"Quite so," she said vaguely, not in the least understanding why she was accord portals of the Haldane home should be opened to this upstart outsider. She did not know that Haldane intended to fight this man to the bitter end, and as a preliminary there to be felt it advisable for many reasons to invite him to dinner—such are the conditions of modern life—"we should be charmed, I am sure, if Mr. Gormly would honor us," she continued, as she accompanied him toward the breakfast room.

But Gormly, though he saw an interested second to the invitation in Miss Haldane's glance, was wise enough to decline. He preferred to be in the position of one who confers favors rather than receives them at this stage of the game.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Woman's Danger Periods Made Safe

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Here is proof:

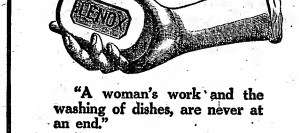
Natick, Mass.,—"I cannot express what I went through during the Change of Life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold. I had such sensations and could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I had a tumor.

"I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it has worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Nathan B. Greaton, 51 No. Main St., Natick, Mass.

ANOTHER SIMILAR CASE.

Cornwallville, N. Y.—"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time for a change of Life, nervousness, and a fibroid growth.

"Two doctors advised me to go to the hospital, but one day while I was away visiting I met a woman who told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and I know it helped me wonderfully. I am very thankful that I was told to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. Boughton, Cornwallville, N. Y., Greene Co.



The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Lydia E. Pinkham

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

"A woman's work and the washing of dishes, are never at an end."

But the woman who uses Lenox Soap has the satisfaction of knowing that what she does, with the aid of Lenox Soap, is WELL done.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

WOMEN wear W.L.Douglas stylish, perfect fitting, easy walking boots, because they give long wear, same as W.L.Douglas Men's shoes.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY

FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The workmanship which has made W.L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L.Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom.

If your dealer cannot supply you, write W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., 147 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes from your dealer, write direct. Give KIND of shoe, STYLE (plain toe, cap toe), SIZE and WIDTH (B, C, D, E) wanted. Shoes sent everywhere, free from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W.L. Douglas shoes are sold in your town. Catalog free. Agents wanted. Over ONE HALF of my BOYS' $3, $2.50 SCHOOL SHOES are worn by boys of policemen, firemen, and others who know the best shoe value for the money. TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes will outwear three pairs of poor shoes. Name and price stamped on bottom. Sold by the best shoe dealers everywhere. Take no substitute. Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottom. Sold by the best shoe dealers everywhere. Take no substitute. Insist upon having W. L. Douglas shoes with name and price stamped on bottom.

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever

Keeps nose and mouth free from secretions, no matter how severe and obstinate the case or how far developed. Liquid given on the tongue; across the throat and down the gullet. Acts through the blood. Cures the worst cases with one bottle. Cures others exposed. If sick, prevents exposure. Shows its value. Destroys the germs of disease. Cures all diseases among horses, cattle and dogs. Best stock tonic. Keeps them in health. Prevents contagious diseases. Cures Colic, Chronic Coughs, Heaves, Indigestion, Worms, Kidney Troubles, Loss of Appetite, Sore Mouth, Thrush, Scratches, Mange, Blood Poison, Abortion, Impotency, Barrenness, Weak Back, Debility, Lost Vitality, Etc. Guaranteed to cure. Send for booklet. Sold by druggists, harness dealers, or sent prepaid. $1.00 and $5.00 per can, according to size. Cures 100 to 500 ordinary cases. Also manufacturers of Spohn's Compound for Human Use. Sold by druggists everywhere.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

TYPEWRITERS—Good second-hand Visibles for sale, all kinds; $15 to $50. Rentals, $2 per month. Shipped anywhere on approval. Write for bargain list. Typewriter Emporium, 310 Dearborn St., Chicago.

KODAKS AND KODAK SUPPLIES: Write for catalogues and literature. We do it. Developing and printing. Mail orders given prompt attention. Photo Supply Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

COPAN, THE MOTHER CITY OF THE MAYAS

By SYLVANUS G. MORELY

THE ruins of Copan are situated in the valley of the Copan river in the western part of the Republic of Honduras only a few miles from the boundary of Guatemala. Mountains, the foothills of the Cordilleras, reaching an altitude of some 2,500 feet, surround it on every side, their lower slopes overgrown with a wellnigh impenetrable thicket of low trees and bushes, and their summits sparsely covered with pine. The valley at this point is about a mile and a half wide, and it is upon this rich river plain that the ancient Maya metropolis was built. The river here flows east and west, now skirting the northern foothills, and again having crossed the plain, rushing along the base of the southern slopes, a modest stream, easily forded in the dry season, but a raging, swollen torrent frequently overflowing its banks after the rains have set in. This pleasant valley surrounded on all sides by mountains of considerable height, peopled with an abundance of never failing streams, and renowned for its fertility, offers a striking contrast to the parched waterless plains of northern Yucatan, which form the general environment of northern Maya sites. With the former the water supply was never a question of moment, but with the latter its satisfactory solution is a few places only, absolutely determined the distribution of the aboriginal population. And yet, unlike as these two regions are, the Maya civilization, which overspread both of them, was of sufficient homogeneity, as we shall see, to follow in each one much the same lines of cultural development. At the very beginning of our study of Copan we find ourselves confronted with a grave difficulty, namely, the entire absence of aboriginal tradition concerning the place, which consequently renders a reconstruction of the historical background impossible. In Yucatan we were able to piece together somewhat of the early history of the principal cities, such as Chichen Itza, and Uxmal, from the account of native as well as Spanish writers, many of whom derived their information from those well acquainted with the former history of the country. And while this information is often quite fragmentary, nevertheless it sheds a very considerable light on the pre-Columbian history of these two northern sites, and in a measure, at least, dispels their darkness and obscurity which so completely enshrouds almost all the other great centers of the Maya culture.

FACE OF STEP IN THE TEMPLE

A WELL-PRESERVED STELA

RESTORATION OF DOORWAY TO INNER CHAMBER OF GREAT TEMPLE.

WEST SIDE OF DOORWAY LEADING TO THE INNER CHAMBER.

Concerning the former history of Copan, however, we know absolutely nothing, excepting the tradition of very doubtful value given below. In 1567, or thereabout, Diego Garcia de Palacio, an official of the Audiencia of Guatemala, visited these ruins and later described them in a letter to Philip II., the then king of Spain. In this communication, after a description of the different buildings, he says he endeavored to ascertain who the former inhabitants of the city were:

"I endeavored with all possible care to ascertain from the Indians, through the traditions derived from the ancients, what people lived here, or whether they have any bad heard from their ancestors concerning them. But they had no books relating to their antiquities, nor do I believe that in all this district there is more than one, which I possess. They say that in ancient times there came from Yucatan a great lord, who built these edifices, but that at the end of some years he returned to his native country, having them entirely deserted."

Unfortunately, the reliability of this tradition is disproved by too many different lines of evidence to permit our accepting it. In the first place, the structures of Copan are far too numerous and massive to have been built within the span of a single life; and its elaborately sculptured monuments are far too intricate to have been carved in one generation with the tools available. Had that "Great lord from Yucatan" lived twice the allotted three score years and ten, his life, even then, could not have embraced one-fourth of the period of building activity at Copan.

Again, as we shall see, the hieroglyphic inscriptions at Copan indicate that it was far older than any of the Yucatan sites, and that it probably had been abandoned many years before the rise of the great northern cities. Still another reason for doubting that Copan was colonized from Yucatan arise when we examine the historical data bearing on each. All the early writers, native as well as Spanish, with the exception of Palacio, above quoted, pass over the great southern metropolis in absolute silence; but when they come to describe Yucatan nearly all of them mention the two largest of the ancient cities there, Chichen Itza and Uxmal, and in some instances even give brief outlines of their history.

The striking absence of tradition relating to such an extensive site as Copan can only indicate one thing—that its fall and subsequent desolation had outlived the memory of man even at the time of the Spanish Conquest in 1530; and a generation later, when Palacio visited the place, it had been forgotten so long that he was unable to find out anything about its former history except the very dubious tradition given above.

The ruins are more easily reached today from Guatemala than from Honduras, in which latter Republic they are located. They are on the Guatemala Northern railroad at Zacepa, and either by horseback or cart, journeys eastward for two days, stopping overnight at Jocotan. The actual distance traveled cannot be more than 30 or 40 miles at the outside, but the road is so rough and winds through country so mountainous that it takes two days to reach the ruins after leaving the railroad. The modern village of Copan, where one can secure accommodations of a sort, is about three-quarters of a mile from the main group of ruins. It is built over a part of the site of the ancient city, and has two beautifully sculptured altars standing in the plaza under a large tree. Several other sculptural monuments are to be found in various pigsties and chicken yards throughout the village, and there is another group of two or three, a short distance to the northwest in the "campo santo" or burying ground.

Taking the path leading to the west from the village, a fifteen minutes' walk brings one to the entrance on the west side of the Great Plaza, the largest and doubtless the most important court in the city. This imposing area, some 200 feet long by 250 wide, is surrounded on three sides by a terrace 10 to 15 feet high. The interior sides of this are stepped so that standing in the center of the plaza the effect is that of a sunken court surrounded on all sides but one, with tiers of stone seats or benches. The southern or open side is occupied by a small pyramid about 20 feet high, which, standing midway between the ends of the terrace, appears to inclose the area. The pyramid, because of its central position with reference to the Great Plaza, must have been a much more important structure than its size would now seem to indicate. Standing on its summit and looking northward, a great spectator auditorium lies at one's feet. Tier upon tier of stone benches rising around its sides, and five great monumental stelæ, posted like gigantic sentinels guarding its sacred precincts.

STONE AND IDOL

This mound, so conspicuously located on the open side of the Great Plaza, attracted the attention of the English traveler and archæologist, Mr. A. P. Maudsley, who visited Copan in 1885, spending several months there in photographing and making molds of the sculptures and in studying the ruins. He cleared its sides and excavated it. The summit, he says, is very small, and shows no signs of any building ever having stood there. Digging through the floor he sank a shaft into the interior of the pyramid and found at a depth of six feet from the top an earthen pot which contained several jade beads, a few pearls, a jade spindle whorl, perforated disk, and some roughly carved pieces of pearl shell. The bottom of the pot was covered with some finely ground cinnabar and several ounces of quick silver. Fragments of human bones were taken out during the course of these excavations and, finally, at a depth of nine feet below the level of the plain, a skeleton of a jaguar was uncovered.

The use of this pyramid without a building of any kind surmounting it must forever remain a mystery. Perhaps here in full view of the assembled inhabitants of the ancient city were practiced the bloody rites of human sacrifice; or perhaps the decrees of rules or the omens from above were handed down. Who can say now? One thing stone seems reasonably certain; the close proximity and commanding relation of this pyramid to such a vast operatic auditorium as the Great Plaza indicates that it formerly played some very important part in the life of Copan.

The most interesting feature of the Great Plaza, however, is not this pyramid, but the great sculptured monuments, which are scattered here and there around the inclosure. Of these, five are now standing and three lie prostrate. They average not far from 12 feet in height and are about 3½ feet in breadth. The general treatment of them all is much the same. The side facing the plaza is uniformly sculptured with the likeness of a human being sometimes of one sex and sometimes of the other, carved in very high relief, which, in places, amounts to sculpture in the round. The clothing and headdresses of these figures are exceedingly ornate.

SEATED FIGURE (PARTIALLY RESTORED) IN CENTER OF STAIRWAY

The sides and backs of these monuments are usually covered with hieroglyphics, though this latter is not a constant feature. Near each one of them, usually just in front, there is a smaller block of stone, sometimes round and sometimes square. These, because of their close connection with the larger monuments, have been called altars, and it is not unlikely that they may have served some such a purpose. They are elaborately sculptured with grotesque figures and in some cases with hieroglyphics also.

Leaving the Great Plaza and its interesting monuments behind, and proceeding southward about 100 yards, we enter a narrow court 220 feet in length by 135 feet in width. This inclosure has been named "The Court of the Hieroglyphic Stairway," because of its most remarkable feature—an imposing flight of stairs ascending the pyramid at its southern end. This stairway, including the elaborately sculptured balustrades on each side, measures 32 feet in width. Its steps, which average a foot in height, have their vertical faces covered with hieroglyphics.

The monumental stairway, rising steeply for 90 feet, its steps and balustrades elaborately sculptured, and full-size human figures occupying its center at regular intervals clear to the summit, must have presented in former times a striking appearance and offered an effect but little short of stupendous.

Ascending the steep slope which forms the southeastern side of the court of the Hieroglyphic Stairway, we find ourselves on the summit of a broad terrace overlooking the Eastern Court. This inclosure, though somewhat small (about 125 feet square), originally must have been one of the most beautiful parts of the city, judging from the elaborate sculptures now strewing it in great profusion. On its south side rises the highest pyramid at Copan, the summit 118 feet above the level of the river. Across the greater part of the western side extends a broad, rather low stairway, flanked by two life-sized rampant jaguars sculptured in high relief. This flight of steps leads to a broad terrace overlooking another court. The remaining sides of the Eastern Court are occupied by high terraces, which support a number of ruined structures. One of these on the northern terrace was excavated by Mr. Maudsley, who found there a beautiful interior doorway nine feet wide, over which there is an elaborate frieze supported at its ends by crouching human figures of heroic size, the whole being carved in high relief almost amounting to sculpture in the round.

The structures on the eastern and remaining terrace have for the most part disappeared, their destruction having been due to a change in the course of the Copan river, which now washes the exterior base of this terrace. This cutting away of the great substructure of the main group of buildings by the river is one of the most unfortunate and at the same time deplorable features at Copan, since ultimately, if not checked, it can mean nothing more nor less than the total destruction of the city.

But this wholesale demolition is not being accomplished without its accompanying lesson to archæology. This great vertical wall, cut by the river all along the eastern side of the main group, is the largest cross-section of an architectural mass in the world. Here, like an open book, one may read the successive periods of the city's growth. At different levels from the hollows upward throughout the rubble hearting of the substructure there are horizontal strata of cut stone pavements. These are the pavements of different plazas dating from successive epochs of the city's history, and they clearly demonstrate that the growth of Copan has been gradual. As time passed and the population increased, newer and larger structures and plazas were built to meet the needs of the growing city. These constructions, as we see from the cross-section of the substructure, were built directly above the older ones. When it became necessary to build a new plaza its rubble foundations were laid on the paving of the old plaza which it was to replace, and thus the highest of the substructure slowly increased. A careful study of the floors of these successive plazas would doubtless teach much as to the different epochs of the city's occupancy, and might even reveal important facts relative to its history.

Before closing this description, it may not be out of place to explain here our reasons for having called Copan "The Mother City of the Mayas." Briefly stated, it is because of the greater antiquity of its hieroglyphic inscriptions as compared with those of every other Maya city now known. This greater age of Copan is indicated, not only by the actual dates recorded in its earliest inscriptions, but also by a cruder technique in their execution. Later, in the best period of the southern Maya civilization, sculpture, however, appears in the earliest monuments at Copan, where the relief is so low that it amounts little more than to incised lines, the sculptor apparently not feeling sure enough of his technique to attempt anything more ambitious.

Aside from this question of technique, however, the dates themselves recorded on these more crudely sculptured monuments are much earlier then those on the more elaborate ones. The earliest historic date at Copan preceded the earliest historic date of all the other great Maya cities by intervals ranging from 20 to 200 years, or, expressed in terms of Maya chronology, from one to fifteen katuns, the Maya "katun" being approximately equal to 20 of our own years.

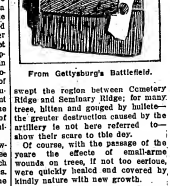
For these two reasons, then, the more primitive character of its earliest monuments and the actual priority of its earliest dates, we have called Copan "The Mother City of the Mayas."

WINDY CITY APPALLED HER

Young Western Girl Draws Up an Indictment of Chicago and Its People.

Chicago—The restraints and conventionalities of the city and the freedom and naturalness of the country are as antipodeans as the east and west of Kipling. Take the average healthy-minded person from the atmosphere of the mountains, the plains, the forests and lakes and place him in the rush and strife of a great city, with the noises of tumultuous life in his ears and knowing that while there is much of virtue and goodness among the rushing thousands that go by there is also much of selfishness and duplicity and deception and hate and envy and mellcousness, and he will wish to he back egain where men is more natural and living more of a joy.

That is the experience that Silver Dollar Tabor recently had in Chicago. She grew up in the unconventional west and from childhood was accustomed to wearing men's clothes and handling a pistol. Much of her time was spent about the mining camps and she was known as "the queen of the miners.



When she visited Chicago she had had no personal knowledge of a big city and she now wishes to forget the knowledge she acquired. She found Chicago big and ugly. Its air compered with her own mountain air was impure. She hated the constant dodging of automobiles and street cars and believes she would he safer shooting grizzly beers than walking the streets. But she found other things disagreeable. She found, she says, that money is the god of Chicago and that manhood and womanhood and character are not appreciated at their true worth. There is too much artificiality in the men and women of the big city, and she is severe in her condemnation of them for wasting devote themselves to amusements. She says work in the west is fun—in Chicago it is purgatory; and it was with a light heart she returned to the west where people are natural and may be polite and courteous and complimentary without being hypocritee.

BULLET IN THE TREE'S CORE

Piece of Wood Bearing Missile From the Leadenswept Field of Gettysburg.

Gettysburg, Pa.—This piece of wood with a bullet imbedded in it is a piece of a tree that stood on the battlefield of Gettysburg in what was called the "slaughter pen." It is a feiut reminder of the musketry fire which at times swept the region between Cemetery Ridge and Seminary Ridge; for many trees, hitten and gouged by bullets—the greuter destruction caused by the artillery is not here referred to—show their scars to this day.

From Gettysburg's Battlefield.

Of course, with the passage of the years the effects of small-arms wounds on trees, if not too serious, were quickly healed and covered by kindly nature with new growth.

Vast Cave Is Discovered.

Hartland, Conn.—Trout fishermen who have been following the Farmington river through the Tunxis valley here have discovered a hitherto unknown cave along the river's bank. The cave is of immense proportions, spreading in several directions far beneath the earth.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE SUNBEAM.

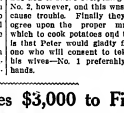
VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1911. NO. 25.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

"Spuds" Cause Split in Sharp Family

PITTSBURG, Kan.—"Them potatoes sort to be peeled before they are boiled," said wife No. 2 to wife No. 1, when the pair were getting Peter Sharp's dinner ready the other day. "Well, I guess I know better than you, for I knew him before the Chicago fire in which he lost me," declared wife No. 1, as she tossed the "murphies" with their jackets on into the boiler. "And what was good enough for him then is good enough for him now."

A row started right there and now Peter Sharp is sorry he found his first wife and took her back to live with him and his second wife, whom he married when he thought his spiritual spouse had perished in the blaze which wiped out Chicago in 1871.



For Peter's home hasn't been a place of joy since he made the compromise which brought the two women under his roof. Some time ago wife No. 1 found out that her husband, who went out of her life forty years ago, was still alive and had married again. She received the acquaintance so long interrupted and Peter hardly knew what to do.

Then a happy thought struck him. He had been married for a number of years—nearly forty in fact—to wife No. 2, and she suited him perfectly. He had no desire to return to conditions as they were before the fire.

So, as a solution to the problem, Peter decided to have two wives to hold a conference with him. He told them how they were old and penceable folk and could live together in peace and amity without jealousies that beset younger persons.

So the bargain was struck and wife No. 1 was installed in the Sharp household in all her ancient glory. She had to share everything with wife No. 2, however, and this was bound to cause trouble. Finally they couldn't agree upon the proper manner in which to cook potatoes and the result is that Peter would gladly find someone who will consent to take one of his wives—No. 1 preferably—off his hands.

Aged Farmer Loses $3,000 to Fiance

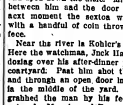
CHICAGO.—No wedding bells will ring for William Dennis, 82 years old, a retired Wisconsin farmer who came to Chicago to be married to a woman whom he had met two weeks before at a county fair. The day after his arrival here Dennis appeared at the detective bureau and reported that his intended wife had disappeared, taking with her $3,000, which he had entrusted to her care.

Dennis told the police that the young woman, known to him only as Blanche, left him in the La Salle street depot on the pretext that she was going to telephone to a wealthy sister.

Dennis, according to his story, told the police he met the woman at the county fair, where she conducted a fortune telling concession. Dennis told the police that he took a liking to the woman and proposed marriage to her. "She accepted me," he said, "and we made preparations to come to Chicago and get married."

They came in on the interurban electric railroad. Then they took a Northwestern elevated train around to the La Salle street depot. Mlle. Blanche said she wanted to telephone her sister in Grant Park. "You stay here, honey, while I telephone to my sister, who will meet us with her automobile," said the woman, according to the story told by the aged man. "I'll call up Muriel and tell her I have captured my mate," explained the blonde stepheress. "She will send her French car right over for us. We will be in time for luncheon. I feer you may be getting hungry." Whereupon she had placed for "safe keeping" the $3,000 of Dennis.

Cigarette Betrays Girl in Male Garb



ST. LOUIS.—The manner in which "Willie" Wright lighted a cigarette attracted the attention of Patrolman Daily, and now, incidentally, "Willie" is Ada.

Bailey saw "Willie" at Third street and Washington avenue. He wore blue overalls, black sack coat and brown cap and stopped at the corner to light a cigarette. The nonchalance of the mouth which held the cigarette first arrested Bailey's attention. Then he observed the small white hand which handled the match. "Willie" held the match between the tips of the thumb and index finger at the extreme end and drew it across a brick wall with a long sweep of the arm. It did not light until it had been scratched several times. Then, instead of leaving the cigarette in the mouth and puffing it into a light, the smoker held it at arm's length until it became ignited and choked and coughed when the puffing began. The contortions of the face alone were a study.

"What is your name?" he asked, going up to the smoker. "Willie Wright," was the reply in a soft voice. The policemen lifted the cap and light tresses fell about "Willie's" shoulders. "Oh, I don't care," ponted the owner of the hair. "That cigarette has made me sick, anyway." At Central District station the prisoner said she was Ada Wright, eighteen years old, 2809 South Broadway. "I got a letter last week that my mother is sick in Bloomington, Ind., and needs my help," she continued. "I had only $8.45, so I thought I would beat my way on a freight train and get a little money left for my mother when I got there.

Bogus Worshiper Would Rob Poor-Box

NEW YORK.—The attempted robbery of a poor-box in the church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, in East Twenty-eighth street, was followed by an exciting chase of the thief which ended in his capture.

Solemn high mass had just been celebrated. Father McCabe, the parish priest, had gone home, but the church was open. Lately money has been missed from some of the collection boxes and William Mangia, the sexton, has been on the watch for thieves. Standing behind the altar he saw a man cater by the Twenty-eighth street entrance and go up the aisle to the altar of the Sacred Heart, where he knelt as if in prayer.

On the center aisle is a large poor-box, which usually contains a very considerable amount in votive offerings. Walking softly down the middle aisle Mangia saw the pretended worshiper pull from his pocket a jimmy and screwdriver and force open the poor-box door.

Hastily grabbing the coins it contained, the man jumped to his feet and sped down the aisle. Mangia was between him and the door and the next moment the sexton was felled with a handful of coin thrown in his face.

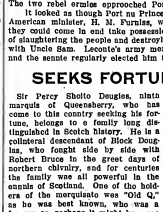
Near the river is Kohler's brewery. Here the watchman, Jack Halpine, sat dozing over his after-dinner pipe in a courtyard. Past him shot the thief and through an open door into a loft in the middle of the yard. Halpine grabbed the man by his feet as he entered. Mangia and Rosenthal soon ran up and the man was captured after a fight.

A modest man never blows his own horn. He lets his fool friends hire a brass band to head his procession.

WHO'S WHO—AND WHY

FOE OF FOOD EXPERT WILEY

According to the evidence before the house investigation, Solicitor George F. McCabe is the man who has been trying to oust Dr. Wiley from the bureau of chemistry of the agricultural department. Although he has been the active adversary of Dr. Wiley for a long time, it is only recently that McCabe has been brought further into the limelight. When the pure food and drugs act went on the statute books McCabe became "solicitor" of the agricultural department. Congress specified that the board of chemistry should be the arbiter of questions arising under the pure food and drugs act. Wiley was head of the bureau. But McCabe said in effect that the "solicitor" of the department, the position he was occupying, should be the actual arbiter of the questions involved in the act. That was the beginning of the struggle for supremacy. Young McCabe is the son of a railroad engineer of Utah, and came to Washington in 1899. He passed a civil service examination in Utah, which entitled him to a position in the treasury department at $55 per month. He took the job and decided to study law. His salary was raised to $100 per month before he had been in the treasury department many months. In 1901 he was transferred to the agricultural department.



NEW CHIEF OF GRAND ARMY

Judge Harvey M. Trimble of Princeton, Ill., who has been elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, is one of the best known of living Grand Army men. He served with the famous Ninety-third Illinois and accompanied General Sherman on his march to the sea. The election was made unanimous when Mr. Trimble's rival, Col. John McElroy of Washington, D. C., withdrew after a heated contest.

Judge Trimble was born in 1842 near Wilmington, Clinton county, O. The family removed to a farm near Princeton, Bureau county, Ill., in October, 1842, and remained on this farm until 1867, when they removed to the city of Princeton. His early education was obtained in the common schools, supplemented by a pumtiel course at Eureka college, Illinois. While a student in this institution he entered the army in the summer of 1862, in the Ninety-third regiment of Illinois volunteers, of which regiment he became the sergeant major. He participated in all the campaigns of his regiment.

HAYTI'S LATEST PRESIDENT

Just at present "Gen." Cincinnetus Leconte claims the right to be called president of Hoiti. He's a mulatto with a reputation for black lust. When old Nord Alexis was president in 1908 Leconte was minister of the interior in his cabinet. A black man named Simon got up a revolution and for months there was bloodshed in Hoiti. Leconte ordered ten gunboats sympathizere with the revolution to be taken from their beds in Port au Prince, marched them to a cemetery, stood them up in a row, shot them to death and buried them on the spot. Nevertheless the revolution succeeded. Old Nord Alexis was driven into exile and Simon was made president. Of course Leconte had to flee from the blood-stained black republic. He took refuge in Jamaica and began intriguing for the downfall of Simon and his own elevation to the presidency. In May he returned and began what proved to be a successful revolt. In the meantime "Gen." Antenor Firmin was heading another revolt. The two rebel armies approached Port au Prince from different directions.

It looked as though Port au Prince was to be given up to repine, but the American minister, H. M. Furniss, went out to the rebels and told them they would come in and take possession, but if they began the old program of slaughtering the people and destroying property they would have to reckon with Uncle Sam. Leconte's army marched in, he was proclaimed president and the senate regularly elected him for the term of seven years.

SEEKS FORTUNE IN AMERICA

Sir Percy Sholto Douglas, ninth marquis of Queensberry, who has come to this country seeking his fortune, belongs to a family long distinguished in Scotch history. He is a collateral descendant of Black Douglas, who fought side by side with Robert Bruce in the great days of northern chivalry, and for centuries the family was all powerful in the annals of Scotland. One of the holders of the marquisate was "Old Q," as he was best known, who was a famous or, perhaps it might be more truthful to say, an infamous, man about town in the days of George III.; and another holder of the title of marquis of Queensberry was the eighth marquis, who was deeply interested in sports and who drew up the rules which modified the old code of the London prize ring.

It was "Old Q" who dissipated the Queensberry fortune and since then the family has been poor. The present marquis has tried his hand at many occupations. He has been a midshipman in the navy, a sheep farmer and gold miner in Australia, a speculator on the London stock exchange and a manufacturer of cement. A few years ago he went through bankruptcy proceedings.

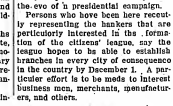
NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Confronted by Currency Legislation

WASHINGTON.—Recently there has been a distinct revival here of interest in banking and currency legislation. There are at least three reasons for this, which may be enumerated as follows:

1. The announcement that on organization to be known as the National Citizens' league is being formed to advocate some sort of federal reserve association.

2. The organization in New York city of the National City company, with capital stock of $10,000,000, as an adjunct of the National City bank, and for the purpose of acquiring and holding stock in other banks.



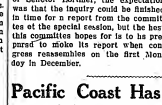
3. The movement on the part of the Insurgent Republicans in the senate, and supported by some of the Democrats, to compel the national monetary commission to close its affairs and report to congress not later than January 1, 1913.

The activities mentioned would indicate that banking and currency legislation will become a live topic in the autumn, and probably will receive much attention at the next long session of congress. It is not believed, however, there will be any legislation soon. The prevailing view is that it will take congress several years to decide what it wishes to do about the creation of a national reserve association.

It is evident that the conservative Republicans in congress will have a plan of their own; that the Insurgent Republicans will have views which they will wish to embody in a bill, and that the Democrats also will desire to present a measure. So it would seem that there is likely to be much discussion of various plans during the next 12 months. Neither political party will, it is assumed, be ready to proceed with this subject on the eve of a presidential campaign.

Persons who have been here recently representing the bankers that are particularly interested in the formation of the citizens' league, say the league hopes to be able to establish branches in every city of consequence in the country by December 1. A particular effort is to be made to interest business men, merchants, manufacturers, and others.

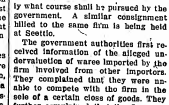
Plans for the Canal Fortifications



GIBRALTAR may be robbed of the distinction of being the most impregnable fortress in the world if the plans of the fortification board in the Panama canal zone are adopted. As a preliminary, looking toward this end, the war department has ordered the 16-inch gun now stored at Sandy Hook proving ground to the canal zone. Although the gun was constructed ten years ago, no more powerful weapon has been produced in the world. Its range is beyond 16 miles and its projectiles, here-to-fore-piece, weigh 2,400 pounds, and could easily destroy a battleship before it reached a point near enough to do damage to the canal locks or other portions of the waterway. Later on more guns of this caliber will be placed there.

Super-dreadnoughts, according to the calculations of ordnance experts, can be sunk easily by the 16-inch gun at distances of 16 miles from the mouth of the canal. This is also the limit of the range of the great gun, but it is about as far as "hits" can be made. The projectile of the gun is virtually an aero-torpedo. It will weigh 2,400 pounds and will carry about 160 pounds of high explosives. There is not the least doubt that even at an extreme range of 16 or 16 miles the projectile will penetrate the heaviest armor plate on the largest battleship. After the projectile has passed through the armor plate the 160 pounds of high explosives which it contains will be discharged. The detonation would create a miniature earthquake and destroy a city.

What is sought by the war department and the joint board is to equip the fortifications with such powerful guns that the enemy's fleet can be kept so far from the canal that it cannot drop shells or projectiles into the waterway.



Many Inquiries are Left Unfinished

THE special session of congress to meet in the 16-inch gun of legislations unfinished, leaving many of the committees that were conducting inquiries to report next winter.

When the senate voted to conduct a second investigation into the election of Senator Lorimer, the expectation was that the inquiry could be finished in time for a report from the committees at the special session, but the best this committee hopes for is to be prepared to make its report at the next congress reassembles on the first Monday in December.

Pacific Coast Has a Customs Scandal

AN investigation of alleged undervaluation fraud involving several millions of dollars has been instituted by the customs authorities at the port of San Francisco, Cal. Disclosures which, it is said, will eclipse in magnitude the recent customs frauds exposed in New York, are promised by the federal officials. The investigation centers around some of the biggest importers of Oriental wares in the United States, and it is alleged that some government officials are in it, too.

The government activity includes the principal seaports of the entire Pacific coast and extends to Japan, where secret service agents have been busy for the last few months amassing evidence of the alleged frauds. Field at the custom house in San Francisco there are at present 500 cases of Oriental wares consigned to a single firm. The goods, which consist principally of crockery, alleged to be vastly undervalued, are being held, pending the determination as to exactly what course shall be pursued by the government. A similar consignment billed to the same firm is being held at Seattle.

The government authorities first received information of the alleged undervaluation of wares imported by the firm involved from other importers. They complained that they were unable to compete with the firm in the sale of a certain class of goods. They further complained that the firm was driving chinaware offered from Germany from the market of the country.

Acting on information received, the customs authorities were ordered to detain shipments en route from Japan and consigned to the firm in question. Similar action was taken at Seattle.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM, - - MINN.

FAITHLESS CORN.

Corn has decided to do without the respect and admiration of the people. The promise of the crop at the period following early seeding was unexcelled, and every eater of meat and eggs in the land could congratulate himself that this promise was equal to the realization of last year. The immense crop of 1910 had cheapened food considerably, and another large one this year would have had a tendency to settle prices for a couple of years or more, provided no real shortage occurred in the crops of those years, says the Providence Journal. But the current stock of information about the 1911 crop makes the prospects for such a substantial arrangement for trade and business wherever dependent on the crop anything but bright. Beef and hogs, with poultry, will do the corn-eaters most directly affected. There is danger of a repetition of the highest prices for them, and of the possible maximum charge once more for eggs and fresh fowls. Three months ago the promise under which them all have been sold since last fall brought a large supply of cheap corn into the market. Today the indications are of a rise to the figures of last summer and of September and October of lost year. It is possible that the warm weather and drought conditions have not seriously hurt the crop and that the quotations for corn will fall off correspondingly when the real facts are shown to be more propitious.

Among the other interesting pieces of news set afoot this summer was one coming from the shoemakers of Boston to the effect that women's feet are growing larger. The shoemakers do not like this, as more leather is thus required for every pair of shoes turned out. Chicago, having heard the word from Boston, has explanations ready. A large retailer of woman's footgear in the Windy City admits that women's feet are growing larger, but says this is due to outings and athletics. For several years, he declares, women have been taking more exercise, doing more walking, playing more games.

Last year there died in the United States of pulmonary tuberculosis about 180,000 people! Multiply this number by three and a fraction—the ratio of India's population to our own —and you will find that these terrible figures covering the loss of life from this plague in India, when analyzed, show that out of a thousand men, women and children in the United States, practically as many die of consumption in the ordinary year as died of the plague in India during the past six months of epidemic. It really seems as if civilized America ought to be able to do a little better than that.

A practical joker at Atlantic City wanted to scare the crowd with an imitation of a drowning man. It took an hour to restore him after the scare had become a real one. The water is an element which does not lend itself kindly to this peculiar form of humor.

The highest paid woman in government service is announced, though somewhat needlessly, to be engaged in the occupation of making money. She is in actual charge of making coins at the mint.

A rich woman from New York angrily declined to become a patron of a Los Angeles hotel when she was informed that her doggie would not be permitted to receive manage treatments in the barber shop. Aren't some hotel keepers independent!

After she had jabbed her hatpin into a man's eye a San Francisco woman scolded her victim for having his eye where it interfered with her hatpin. We feel almost sure that she belongs to the class of women who regard all men as brutes.

The chicken, as well as the dog, has had its day. A St. Louis hen hopped into a motor car and wrecked it. Possibly this is the solution of the old conundrum: "Why does a chicken cross the road?"

A New York woman says she hangs her head in shame because America is not producing more great poets. Poets are born, but we can't expect them at the rate of one a minute.

A Pennsylvanian minister has quit his pulpit to become a carpenter. Hate to think what he'll say when he hits his thumb instead of the nail.

One of the biggest elephants in captivity is said to have broken its leg. Evidently he tried to stop a freight train.

Society women who take up aviation should remember that a massive figure is not adapted to the aeroplane.

NAILING IT DOWN

INDICT RICH MEN

NATHAN ALLEN AND JOHN R. COLLINS ARE CHARGED WITH SMUGGLING JEWELS.

GEMS ARE GIVEN TO WOMAN

Wisconsin Manufacturer and Tennessee Coal Operator Must Answer to Accusations Contained in True Bills Returned by Federal Grand Jury.

New York.—Separate indictments accusing two reputed millionaires of smuggling diamonds, pearls and other gems valued at more than $300,000, and which were found in the possession of Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, have been secretly returned by the federal grand jury here.

The indictments, which have been kept under seal for two weeks by the United States district attorney and now only made public, are against the following:

Nathan Allen, millionaire leather manufacturer of Kenosha, Wis., who has for years had friendly relations with Mrs. Jenkins and who is said to have purchased most of the jewelry in Europe and brought it over for her.

John R. Collins, wealthy coal operator of Tennessee, who is also said to have purchased jewels in Europe intended for Mrs. Jenkins.

Three counts are included in each of the indictments returned against Allen and Collins. They charge smuggling and conspiracy to smuggle.

Mrs. Jenkins lived in Sheridan road, Chicago, for a year or more, and it was during this time that the alleged smuggling is declared to have taken place.

These jewels, valued at $170,000, were given to Mrs. Jenkins in 1909, and for two years the revenue officers have been collecting evidence that they were brought from Europe without the payment of duty. Mrs. Jenkins, Collector of the Port Loeb and Deputy Surveyor Parr were witnesses before the grand jury that investigated the case a month ago.

William W. Smith appeared before United States District Attorney Wise shortly after the indictments, which were found August 23, were made public and said that the two defendants would positively appear this week.

KICKS OFF A BOY'S SCALP

Jeffersontown (Ky.) Mule Causes 15 Stitches to Be Taken in Lad's Head.

Louisville, Ky.—Eleven-year-old Charles Polk, playing in the garden of his father's house at Jeffersontown, got too close to the family's mule for the animal's liking and now his scalp is sewed on. The steel-shod feet of the hybrid ripped the skin from the boy's head. Fifteen stitches were required to hold the scalp in place.

BAILEY OUT OF SENATE RACE

Texan Will Not Be a Candidate for Re-election to Upper House of Congress.

Houston, Tex.—In a signed statement issued here, Senator Joseph W. Bailay announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the United States senate.

Carnegie Gives Up $100,000.

Washington.—A contract for improving the grounds of the Pan-American building at a cost of $100,000 was awarded to Norcross Bros. & Co. of Worcester, Mass. Andrew Carnegie furnished the money for beautifying.

Bankers Meet at Rochester.

Rochester, N. Y.—The annual convention of the American Institute of Banking has opened here. President

PONTIFF HAS RELAPSE

VATICAN CIRCLES ALARMED OVER CONDITION OF POPE.

Authoritatively Stated His Holiness Is Suffering From Uraemic Poisoning in Addition to Gout.

Rome.—There is great uneasiness in Vatican circles over the condition of the pope, his holiness having suffered another relapse. So serious is his condition that Professor Marchiafava has been asked to resume his daily visits.

While it is announced that the relapse is due merely to a reentrence of the gouty symptoms that so greatly annoyed the pontiff and caused him extreme pain two or three weeks ago, it has been learned from an undoubted authority that in addition to the gout the pope is suffering from consequent uraemic poisoning.

The first indication of the relapse came Wednesday when the pope complained for the first time in nearly two weeks of severe pains in his right knee. Professor Petacci was instantly summoned and to his surprise found the knee greatly swollen. This condition, in conjunction with the advanced age of the pontiff and his debilitated condition, are regarded in a very serious light by the papal archiatrs, who at once requested his colleague, Professor Marchiafava, to resume his daily visits.

The pope's sisters and niece, who were enjoying a holiday at Frascati, in the Alban Hills, have returned hurriedly to Rome.

REFUSES TO MARRY ASTOR

Newport Methodist Minister Turns Down Offer of $1,000 to Perform Marriage Rites.

Newport, R. I.—Clergymen of the Baptist church and the Methodist church declined to perform a ceremony marrying Col. John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeline Force.

Col. William P. Sheffield, Newport attorney for Colonel Astor, offered $1,000 to Rev. Dr. Edward A. Johnson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Newport, to perform the ceremony. Doctor Johnson is ill and in sore financial straits. But eyes are forcing his retirement, at least temporarily, from the ministry, and he is in need of money, but despite this fact he would have nothing to do with the marriage.

This is the first intimation that Colonel Astor and Miss Force contemplated marrying so soon.

TAFT CANCELS GOLF TILT

President Had Arranged to Play Officials of Country Club.

Denver, Colo.—That President Taft does not expect to have time for his favorite game in the course of his coming "swing around the circle" was indicated in a telegram received here by President Johnson of the chamber of commerce, in which he is asked that a golf foursome, in which had been arranged between the president and Maj. Archibald Butt, his military aid, and President A. O. Foster and Walter Fairbanks of the Denver Country club, be eliminated from the president's Denver program.

Old Backer of Sullivan Dies.

New York.—John H. Cusack of Brooklyn, who was John L. Sullivan's backer when the former champion was defeated at New Orleans in 1892 by James J. Corbett, is dead. He is said to have lost $68,000 on Sullivan in that fight.

New City Hall for Brooklyn.

New York.—Plans are being drawn for a $3,000,000 municipal building for Brooklyn. The structure will be

CLASH ON TREATY

PRESIDENT AND COLONEL ARE FAR APART ON ARBITRATION COMPACT.

TAFT URGES ITS ADOPTION

Roosevelt in Periodical Attacks Document as Hypocritical and Deficient, Says It Is Constructed Too Loosely to Be Understood.

Hartford, Conn.—President Taft in an address here scored the majority of the senate's foreign relations committee for its "narrow view" in regard to the senate's power to make treaties and defend the peace pacts now pending before that body.

Simultaneously there was made public in New York an article by Col. Theodore Roosevelt in the Outlook characterizing these conventions as "silly and impractical; protesting against the binding of the United States to arbitrate questions of national honor, declaring that the American people would not observe such an agreement and that advocacy of it, therefore, was hypocrisy.

He declares there are certain things in the proposed agreement that the United States never would attempt to recognize and that the document is constructed so loosely that it never could be determined just what certain parts of it meant.

President Taft endeavored to show in his address that would accrue to the high contracting parties from completed arbitration and the support which his movement was receiving from peace societies and commercial organizations.

Perhaps the most significant part of his address was as follows:

"I call your attention to the unfortunate circumstance not only to ourselves but to the whole civilized world, but only for today, but for ages to come, if the final adoption of this reasoning by the senate committee is to prevail.

"Steadily throughout the world the burden of the creation of armies and of the navies grows heavier and heavier, and this competition has grown more fierce that in crushing the life and the hopes of the people.

"But steadily, too, and of late even more rapidly, has grown the hope that an escape from these burdens may be found, that in some measure at least the peaceful methods of settling disputes among individual men may obtain among nations, in some measure. I say, let us not be too extravagant in our dreams and our prophecies, and yet who can say what the end of such a movement may be?

"Now, wherever good men and women the world over are looking and praying for the dawn of this great day of peace, their eyes turn first with hope and confidence to the great republic of the west, to the land of the people are of peace and justice, industry and freedom, to the land which already has more than once used the peaceful method of arbitration for the settlement of its difficulties with other nations.

"In this great movement we are the hope of the world. These hopes by the proposed narrow construction of the senate's power to make a treaty we are now to strike down. To the men and women who are struggling and longing we say, 'Look not to us for leadership.' We cannot follow.

"For remember, if the senate cannot now bind us to abide the judgment of an arbitral court in any matter, there is practicable it can never bind us, and if the senate cannot bind us in advance to submit cases, and the peace-loving people is forever incapable of taking a step along the great path which all the world wishes to tread, and along which all the world thinks America best fitted to lead."

PLOT TO BLOW UP NAVY YARD

Authorities Find Three Sticks of Dynamite in Charlestown Plant.

Boston, Mass.—The police are investigating what appears to have been the work of a crank in the Charlestown navy yard with dynamite. Three large sticks of the explosive were found secreted about the framework of a huge floating derrick. Officials of the yard declare that the plot to wreck the plant might have resulted in the death of more than 200 men, mostly laborers, who were at work on the monster derrick and other apparatus near by.

THREE KILLED BY TROLLEY

Hungarians Stand on Track and Fail to See Approaching Car.

Detroit, Mich. — Three unidentified Hungarians were killed and another was seriously injured by an interurban trolley car near Ecorse, a suburb of Detroit. The men were standing on the track and apparently failed to notice the car.

Missouri Takes Policeman's Slayer.

Seattle, Wash.—William Schmuhache, who shot and killed Policeman William Smith in Joplin, Mo., November 12, 1909, left for Missouri in custody of Sheriff Arch McDonald of Jasper county, Missouri.

Man Killed by Coughing.

Milwaukee.—Thomas F. Ramsay, former Democratic assemblyman, aged fifty-three, died suddenly after a spell of coughing. He was one of the three Democrats elected the day Senator

CHINA IS IN TURMOIL

ADMIRAL MURDOCK IS INSTRUCTED TO PROTECT AMERICANS.

Serious Crisis Arises in Szechuan, China, Over Railroad Policy of the Government.

Washington. — Instructions have been cabled to Admiral Murdock to bring American gunboats into play to guard American citizens during the crisis which has arisen in Szechuan, China, a province which ordinarily is turbulent and which lately has become much wrought up over the government's railroad policy.

A formidable international naval array is on hand in Chinese waters, and all the nations are preparing to act. American Charge d'Affaires Williams at Peking cabled the state department that the situation had become critical, public meetings in various cities, accompanied by the closing of shops and schools and refusal to pay taxes, having culminated in serious disorders.

American missionaries have informed Mr. Williams that none of them have yet left their posts, except the American and British ladies have left Cheng-Tu for Chung King.

SLEEPING CHILD IS STOLEN

Family Too Poor to Pay Ransom—Police Can Discover No Motive For Kidnaping.

Madison, Wis.—Anna Lamberger, seven years old, daughter of Martin Lemberger, a laborer living at 2 South Pinckney street, was kidnaped while asleep. Wide search has so far revealed no trace of her or the person who took her.

Her parents fear she was taken by some degenerate or insane person, and probably murdered and the body sunk in one of the lakes surrounding the city. The police have no theory.

The Lamberger family lives in the center of a district inhabited by Italians and Russian Jews, but the police do not suspect any of them, as the parents are too poor to pay a ransom and so far as known have not incurred the enmity of their neighbors.

MEXICO REBEL CHIEF TAKEN

Juan Salgado is Captured After Battle in Which Ninety-Nine Men Were Killed.

Mexico City.—Juan Salgado, the head of the new revolt in the state of Guerrero, was captured after a two hours' battle near the town of Arguelo by Colonel Federico Morales, commanding the federels. Ninety-nine men are reported to have been killed on both sides during the engagement.

Emilio Acosta, head of the revolution in the state of Vera Cruz, was captured by the state police at Panuco, in the state of Tamaulipas. These two captures appear to have put a damper on the revolts in that part of Mexico.

AUTHORITY TO STRIKE GIVEN

Executive Board of Shopmen Delegated the Right by the Union.

Chicago.—Full authority to declare a strike of the Illinois Central shop workers was delegated to the executive board of the Federation of Shop Employes by the officers of the international union, but it is not likely that any definite action to this end will take place before Sunday, when there will be a meeting of international officers again to take up the situation with delegates representing the federation.

ATTACKS OKLAHOMA LAW

Cotton Broker's Counsel Says Labor Unions Violate Statute.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Attorneys for members of cotton firms indicted for conspiracy to control prices of cotton in Oklahoma attacked the validity of Oklahoma's anti-trust law before the supreme court, arguing that the anti-trust law by exempting labor unions from its provisions legalizes boycotts and is, therefore, in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

OIL MAN CHARGES KIDNAPING

Says His Heir to Rich Wells Was Held by Man Who Sought to Keep Control of Him.

Little Rock, Ark.—Thomas Gibbeneee, oil operator; Robert Wilson, Roy Burt and Cassie Vowell of Tulsa, Okla., were arrested at Newport, Ark., and charged with kidnaping. H. M. Walker, stepfather of Buck Self of Mounds, Okla., who was with the men, charges they sought to keep control of his stepson, who will come into possession of valuable oil lands.

Sunday School Body for Zurich.

London, England.—Zurich, Switzerland, has been selected as the place for the holding of the world's seventh Sunday school convention in 1913. The last convention was held at Washington in May last year.

Orders Express Rates Cut.

Chicago.—An order directing a cut in express rates throughout Illinois, amounting to 33 per cent, was issued by the Illinois railroad and warehouse commission. The reduction will be

AFTER 7 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—"I had female trouble for seven years, was all run down, could not sleep and was so nervous I could not do anything. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not even day or night. While in this condition I read Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began to use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well."—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D., No. 8, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

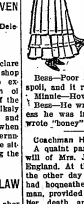
Another Grateful Woman.

Huntington, Mass.—"I was in a nervous, run down condition and for three years could find no help.

"I owe my present good health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier which I believe saved my life.

"My doctor knows what helped me and does not say one word against it."—Mrs. MARY JARVETTE BATES, Box 194, Huntington, Mass.



Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacement, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

ALLEN'S ULCERINE SALVE

For the treatment of Chronic Ulcers, Bone Ulcers, Scrofulous Sores, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Indolent Ulcers, Mercurial Ulcers, White Swellings, Milk Leg, Sore Breasts, Piles, Fistula, Poisoned Wounds, Eczema, Barber's Itch, Blood Poisoning, etc. Price, 25 cts. per box. ALLEN'S ULCERINE SALVE CO., Dept. A-6, St. Paul, Minn.

KODAK adds enjoyment to every sport or recreation. Kodak way is easy and simple. Kodaks $5.00 to $100.00. Ask us for a copy of the Kodak catalogue. Free. Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N. Y.

UNFORTUNATE.

Bess—Poor Jack! He never could spell, and it ruined him.

Minnie—How?

Bess—He wrote a verse to me heiress he was in love with, and he wrote "boney" for "bonny"!

Coachman Had to Earn Bequest.

A quaint paragraph is found in the will of Mrs. Julia Hall of Brighton, England. At the reading of the will the other day it was found that she had bequeathed £100 to her coachman, provided he is in her service at her death, and if he do not die through or from the effects of a carriage accident when he is the driver."

New Disappointment.

First Summer Girl—So you thought a man was coming?

Second Summer Girl—Yes; but as we got a closer view we saw it was only a bird.—Puck.

A LADY LECTURER

Feeds Nerves and Brains Scientifically.

A lady lecturer writes from Philadelphia concerning the use of right food and how she is benefited and banished the strain and wear and tear of her arduous occupation. She says:

"Through improper food, frequently digested, my health was completely wrecked, and I attribute my recovery entirely to regular use of Grape-Nuts food. It has, I assure you, proven an inestimable boon to me.

"Almost immediately after beginning the use of Grape-Nuts I found a gratifying change in my condition. The terrible weakness that formerly prostrated me after a few hours of work, was perceptibly lessened and is now only a memory.—I endorse it.

"Ten days after beginning on Grape-Nuts I experienced a wonderful increase in mental vigor and physical energy, and continued use has entirely freed me from the miserable indigestion and nervousness from which I used to suffer so much.

"I find Grape-Nuts very palatable and would not be without the crisp, delicious food for even a day on any consideration. Indeed, I always carry it with me on my lecture tours."

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

DEATH BEFORE 100 YEARS IS SUICIDE

Prof. Munyon Says Ignorance of Laws of Health Explains Early End of Life.

NOTED SCIENTIST HAS ENCOURAGING WORD FOR DESPONDENT MEN AND WOMEN

"Death before 100 years of age has been reached in nothing more or less than slow suicide. A man (or woman) who dies at an earlier age is simply ignorant of the laws of health."

This startling, original and rather unorthodox statement is made by Professor James M. Munyon, the famous Philadelphia health authority, who is establishing health headquarters in all the large cities of the world for the purpose of getting in direct touch with his thousands of converts.

Professor Munyon is a living embodiment of the cheerful creed he practices. Virile, well poised, active and energetic, he looks and acts more like a man in the late forties than one built which he declares is the normal one. He said:

"I want the people of the world to know my opinions on the subject of health, which are the fruit of a life-time devoted to healing the sick people of America. There isn't a man living who has done more than I have to help people in this State alone who have found health through my methods. Before I get through there won't be a building big enough in Ionne my cured patients in this city alone.

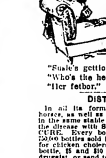
"I want, most of all, to talk to the sick people of the invalids, the discouraged victims of nerve-wearing, body-shaking diseases and ailments—for these are the ones to whom the message of hope which I bear will bring the greatest blessing.

"I want to talk to the rheumatics, the sufferers from stomach trouble, the ones afflicted with that terrible curse, catarrh. I want to tell them that they can be cured, even if their cases are chronic incurable as a result of nervous troubles. I want to talk to the men who are 'all run down,' whose health has been broken by overwork, improper diet, late hours and other causes, and who feel the creeping chills of serious, chronic illness.

"I want to tell them the story of hope. I want to tell the people of perfect things. I want to astonish them by showing the record of cures performed through my new system of treatment.

"I have taken the best of the ideas from all schools and embodied them in a new system of treatments individualized adapted to each particular case. I have studied the cause of disease, and have made startling discoveries, very few thought of modern science. The success which I have had in these treatments in this city and all over America proves its efficacy. Some invalids come, give away my new medical science moves. I know what my remedies have done for the people of this city. I know what they will do for the people of this city. Let me prove my statements—that's all I ask."

The continuous stream of callers and mail that comes to Professor James M. Munyon at his laboratories, Fifty-third and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa., keeps Dr. Munyon and his enormous corps of expert physicians busy.



Professor Munyon makes no charge for consultation, for medical advice, nor a penny for a cure. Address Prof. James M. Munyon's Laboratories, Fifty-third and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Reply Was Revised.

"They have grown very touchy on Alaskan matters in the interior department since the trouble of the Pinkham claims," said a coal man the other day.

"I had occasion some time ago to write to the department about an Alaskan matter that had no bearing on the situation. I have just received an answer that does not commit anybody, but it had on it the initials of at least six persons, showing that this reply had been thoroughly considered and revised before it was started in my direction. I guess they are on the lookout for bombs."

THE HAPPY MAN.

"Finale's getting merried."
"Who's the happy man?"
"Her father."

DISTEMPER

In all its forms among all ages of horses, as well as dogs, cured and others in the same stable prevented from having the disease with SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE. Every bottle guaranteed. Over fifty testimonials from druggists. Safest for chicken cholera. 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. B and $5 the dozen. Any good druggist, or send to manufacturers. Book free book. Spohn Medical Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases. Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

The Recoil.

Tobacconist—You learned long ago how to pack a barrel of apples, didn't you, Uncle John?

Horticulturist—Sure thing, Billy; same as you packed that box of cigars I bought of you the other day—all the nice ones in the top row.

The Congressional Way.

"How did Congressman Wombat acquit himself in the congressional ball match?"

"He struck out twice and then got leave to print a base hit."

A cold on the chest weakens your lungs. Tubercular Germs attack the weak spots. Keep your lungs strong by curing colds quickly with Hamlin Wizard Oil and you will not get Consumption.

Couldn't Help Him.

"I haven't a place to lay my head."
"I'm sorry, but we're all out of bread rests."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Do not yield to misfortunes, but meet them with fortitude.—Virgil.

COLLIER CRITICIZES

MAGAZINE EDITORIALLY AS SERVE SPECULATORS ARE GETTING CHEAP MINNESOTA LANDS.

AUD. IVERSON MAKES A DENIAL

Says Statements Made by Weekly Are Overdrawn—Purchasers Limited to 320 Acres Each.

The last number of Collier's, dated September 8, indulges in sharp editorial criticism of the policy of Minnesota in respect to her public lands, which, it asserts, have become the prey of hungry speculators and trusts by reason of the repeal by the last Legislature of a law passed in 1905. The New York magazine also indulges in a covert assault on the integrity of state officials in their relation to the public lands. To this attack State Auditor Iverson entered e vigorous denial.

The Minnesota correspondent of Collier's becomes less hostile when he permits the people of the North Star State to indulge in self-congratulations over the good roads movement, officially considered. The editorial referred to follows:

Farmers Not Getting Lands, Says Editorial.

Once more let us impress upon the people of Minnesota the fact that their public lands are not going into the hands of farmers.

There was slipped through the last Legislature a law removing all the safeguards from the sale of public lands, and the speculators' paradise.

The pine interests and lumber companies, the steel trust and some offcials have been active from the people are acquiring and will further acquire the timber lands, and the settler is to get the cut-over, burned and stumpy agricultural land, very few thought of modern science. The success which I have had in these treatments in this city and all over America proves its efficacy. Some invalids come, give away my new medical science moves. I know what my remedies have done for the people of this city. I know what they will do for the people of this city. Let me prove my statements—that's all I ask."

The continuous stream of callers and mail that comes to Professor James M. Munyon at his laboratories, Fifty-third and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa., keeps Dr. Munyon and his enormous corps of expert physicians busy.

Professor Munyon makes no charge for consultation, for medical advice, nor a penny for a cure. Address Prof. James M. Munyon's Laboratories, Fifty-third and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Reply Was Revised.

"They have grown very touchy on Alaskan matters in the interior department since the trouble of the Pinkham claims," said a coal man the other day.

"I had occasion some time ago to write to the department about an Alaskan matter that had no bearing on the situation. I have just received an answer that does not commit anybody, but it had on it the initials of at least six persons, showing that this reply had been thoroughly considered and revised before it was started in my direction. I guess they are on the lookout for bombs."

THE HAPPY MAN.

"Finale's getting merried."
"Who's the happy man?"
"Her father."

DISTEMPER

In all its forms among all ages of horses, as well as dogs, cured and others in the same stable prevented from having the disease with SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE. Every bottle guaranteed. Over fifty testimonials from druggists. Safest for chicken cholera. 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. B and $5 the dozen. Any good druggist, or send to manufacturers. Book free book. Spohn Medical Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases. Goshen, Ind., U.S.A.

The Recoil.

Tobacconist—You learned long ago how to pack a barrel of apples, didn't you, Uncle John?

Horticulturist—Sure thing, Billy; same as you packed that box of cigars I bought of you the other day—all the nice ones in the top row.

The Congressional Way.

"How did Congressman Wombat acquit himself in the congressional ball match?"

"He struck out twice and then got leave to print a base hit."

A cold on the chest weakens your lungs. Tubercular Germs attack the weak spots. Keep your lungs strong by curing colds quickly with Hamlin Wizard Oil and you will not get Consumption.

Couldn't Help Him.

"I haven't a place to lay my head."
"I'm sorry, but we're all out of bread rests."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Do not yield to misfortunes, but meet them with fortitude.—Virgil.

HAVILLL SURRENDERS.

President of Bowlus Bank Says No One Will Lose Money.

Little Falls—O. H. Havill, for which a warrant had been issued as president of the First Stats Bank of Bowlus, charging him with accepting deposits after his bank was known to be insolvent, surrendered himself to Sheriff Armstrong of Morrison county. The sheriff held a warrant at the instance of Kelsey M. Chase, state book examiner. Mr. Havill was bound ever in the sum of $4,000 for hearing Sept. 14.

Mr. Hevill, who was formerly president of the Merchants National bank of St. Cloud, was accompanied here by several friends. The following St. Cloud men furnished his bond: D. Ahelen, H. C. Erwin, Robart Herrison, J. P. Leiser and C. S. Bunnell.

The following statement was given out by Mr. Havill:

"I believed and knew that the First State bank of Bowlus was solvent, for I personally investigated its condition and at the proper time I will be prepared to prove it. Until that time I ask the public and my friends to suspend judgment. Immediately after receiving information that the Stats Bank of Royalton was involved, I want to Bowlus on Aug. 3, and personally made on examination of the bank. I found the book solvent, with more than double the reserve cash on hand required by law.

"As a further precaution, I consulted Mr. Chase and requested that he make an examination for the purpose of securing his advice as to what ought to be done in case there was a run on the First State bank of Bowlus, as a result of the failure of the Stats Bank of Royalton. This was forced because of the fact that a large part of the stock of the Bowlus bank was owned by myself, but by the officers of the insolvent bank of Royelton.

"The failure of the bank at Royalton, as was feared, brought about a condition of things that made it necessary to close the Bowlus bank for the protection of the depositors, but I am just as confident now as I was at the time that the First State bank of Bowlus was not insolvent as long ee deposits were received. I am not seeking to avoid any responsibility; I fearlessly accept it, for I have violated no law nor doan any dishonest act."

ASSESSMENTS INCREASED.

State Begins To Feel Credit of Moneys and Credits Law.

Assessments under the new moneys and credits law will reach $100,000,000 this year in spite of the difficulties that have been encountered in its enforcement and the large number of reassessments that have been ordered, according to a rough estimate prepared by the state tax commission yesterday.

Compared to this sum, which is considerably in excess of that anticipated before the work of assessing began, is the amount returned in 1910 under the old system, $142,000,000, as large a sum had ever been returned under the old law.

Almost two-thirds of this $100,000,000 will be returned by Ramsey, Hennepin and St. Louis counties alone. approximately $65,000,000 according to scaned under this head in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, according to the commission's rough estimate.

The establishment of a lower rate of taxation on moneys and credits, while failing in this respect in a number of instances, has served generally to call out upon the tax sheets large amounts of personal property of this character that had never been returned before. The commission had anticipated a large iacreasa in the return this year, but the returns, though unequal and requiring reassessment in many cities of the state, far exceed preliminory estimates.

In more than 200 districts of the state special assessors, in the next month, will complete a reassessment of moneys and credits. It is believed by the commission that the absolute failure in some cities of the state to return any remount under this head was due largely to ignorance of the provisions of the law, which will be explained by the special assessors. In others little secret is made of the fact that it was due to the negligence of the assessors. Most of the special assessors have been at work for two weeks, but others will be appointed this week and a month will ensue before the work is completed.

DR. DUMAS RE-ARRESTED.

Bemidji. — Dr. D. F. Dumas, the mayor of Cass Lake, Minn., was rearrested by Deputy United States Marshal Tuffis on a federal warrant issued July 21, charging him with conspiracy to rob the postoffice at Puposky on the morning of June 17. The mayor was taken into custody at Cass Lake on his return from Bemidji where he had gone to consult his attorney. He was arraigned in Bemidji before United States Court Commissioner A. J. Simon.

The father of Dr. Dumas has been summoned from Minneapolis and will be prepared with other defenders of his son to furnish bail in any amount required. The bail will be furnished and Dr. Dumas will again he given his liberty.

IRON RANGE HISTORY IS SOUGHT.

Steel Probing Committee Chairman In Duluth for Study.

Duluth. — The history of the Minnesota Iron range from the time of the Merritte down to the present day will be gone into by the congressional committee which is investigating the United States Steel corporation, according to Chairman Stanley of Henderson, Ky., chairman of the committee, who arrived in Duluth to examine the steel corporation's holdings.

SEASON IS OPENED

NOW LAWFUL TO SHOOT WILD DUCK, GEESE, PRAIRIE CHICKEN AND ALL AQUATIC FOWL.

DITCHES HURT DUCK HUNTING

Drainage Commission Work Spoils Nesting Places. Many Non-Residents Will Hunt.

The hunting season in Minnesota opened for wild duck, geese, all aquatic fowl; turtle dove, snipe, prairie chicken, pinnatad, white-breasted or sharptailed grouse, woodcock, upland plover and golden plover, the hunters having taken possession of all likely spots.

Sportsmen who have been looking over the hunting grounds report that through the activity of the State Drainage commission many of the favorite pesses will not be fruitful this year because the drainage ditches, which have aided the farmer to an unlimited extent, have spoiled the nesting places of the aquatic birds. It is expected not so many ducks will be brought down this year as formerly.

This condition obtains in several localities in Rosau county, according to Sam F. Fullerton, former executive agent of the State Game and Fish commission, who is something of a hunter. Another sportsman said he had received a report from Lac qui Parle county that his favorite pass near Correll had been obliterated by drainage ditches. It is the consensus of opinion that most of the duck hunting this year will be confined to the northern part of the state.

Lots of Prairie Chickens.

Howavar, tha fact tha ducks probably will ha scarce will work no hardship on the hunters who go after prairie chickens. Reports coming to the State Game and Fish commission show these birds, which are found rather scarce for two seasons, will be more plentiful this year.

Many Non-Resident Hunters.

The game commission has also sold a great many hunting licenses to nonresidents who are willing to pay the fee of $10 for the privilege of bagging fifty ducks or forty-five other game birds. This is the same limit fixed for resident hunters also.

The ducks season will last three months, but the season for the upland game will close November 7, ellowing but two months to get a supply of prairie chicken.

Separate Big Game License Required.

It will cost more to hunt both large and small game this year, owing to the passage of an amendment to the game laws by the recent Legislature prohibiting the issuance of big game licenses until November 7, three days before the opening of the big game season.

It will cost an additional dollar to obtain this license this year. In former years the two classes of licenses were included in the first permits issued, and cost $1. The game commission had this amendment passed, not only to increase the revenue but to protect the game.

NOT AFRAID OF PACT.

Northwest Minnesota Farmers Raise $46-an-Acre Crops on $23-Land.

St. Paul.—"When a person can buy a piece of land for $23 an acre and get a crop that brings $40 an acre the first year, there are farmers are doing in Marshall and Roseau counties, be is not going to worry much about reciprocity with Canada," declared Canada," said W. J. Brown of Warren, former attorney of Marshall county and prominent among Minnesota politicians at the Merchants hotel.

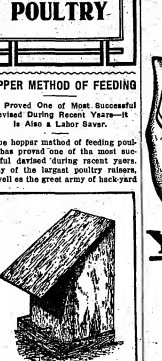
"The people of our section of the state do not like reciprocity agreement, theoretically, because they think the farmer got the short end of the stick, but practically they are not worrying much about it. They think they can raise just as big crops on this side of the line as on the other side, and that competition cannot hurt them.

"Some of the people in the towns are more bitter against it, but the farmers in our country that were so poor ten years ago you could not collect a dollar from them are getting rich now. With barley running 40 bushels to the acre at $1 a bushel, with wheat going 25 to 30 bushels to the acre, with flax at $2.60, and a bumper crop of potatoes at about $1 a bushel, they are not worrying about Canada crops destroying our profits."

Mr. Brown said the La Follette movement is not strong in his section of the state. In a few townships that a few years ago cast a solid vote for John sonn. progressive Republican clubs are being organized, but otherwise there is nothing doing, he said.

SCHOOLS CONSOLIDATED.

Five in Steele and Rice County Combined in One.



Faribault.—School Districts Nos. 5, 6, 7, 50 and 81 of the southern part of Rice and northern part of Steele counties have been consolidated. One large graded school will be established at Midford. After the election of a board of education a special election will be called to vote on an issue of $16,000 to bonds to erect the new school. Out of 144 residents of the district

POULTRY

HOPPER METHOD OF FEEDING

Has Proved One of Most Successful Devised During Recent Years—It Is Also a Labor Savar.

The hopper method of feeding poultry has proved one of the most successful durded during recent years. Many of the largest poultry raisers, as well as the great army of back-yard fanciers and farmers in gensral, are adopting it to the exclusion of all other systems.

Exterior View of Hopper.

The feed hopper is a labor savar, writes H. V. Tormohlen in the Country Gantleman. Aside from the fact that it saves labor and time, it has the advantaga over other systems of keeping food continuously before the fowls, thus insuring the flock against underfeeding and overfasding as well, for fowls raised with hoppers keep them all the time will not require as much in the main as fowls fad at regular intervals.

Ths open hopper, too, has been an invitation to English sparrows and rats to make the poultry quarters their home. Cement floors and foundations, however, will generally stop the rat nuisance, and if the feed hopper is placed well back in the poultry house sparrows will stay out.

The old adage, "Necessity is the mother of invention," proves true in this instance. After much experimenting with different styles of hoppers the one shown herewith has been found very satisfactory. Instead of having tha front of the hopper slant back in the customery way, which causes the feed to clog, the hopper has the slanting board in the rear. In theory this principle is easily seen to be the hsiter of the two and in practice it hes more than justified tha contention. Tha dimensions are given in inches on the diagram, so it is hardly necessary to go into detail about the construction. The roof is made slanting so that the fowls cannot roost or stand on it, if it is located in the poultry house. The roof or lid is made hinged at the top and with wide eaves, so that if the hopper is placed out in the open, rain cannot beat in on the feed. A little drop door near the bottom to fit down over the feed trough part at night if there is any trouble with rats.

Sectional Diagram of Hopper.

Soiling System With Poultry.

By the soiling system profitable poultry can be maintained on comparatively small area. A 50-hen plant need not occupy more than an acre. Small quarters require more care, but if this is given there is no more likelihood of disease than on free range.

The house is the same; the battle with lice the same; the additional work is in growing the green food, cleaning the runs and keeping them well littered and the soil pure by turning it over. Most of the droppings will be taken out with the litter, so there is little dangar of the soil becoming impregnated with filth when diligence is exercised.

Cleaning Brooder and Coop.

Keep your brooder and coops clean. Disinfect at least once a week by spraying or dusting with some coarse powder. Pure fresh air is essential to the life of the chicks. Be sure that you have a properly coostructed brooder.

Feeding Soft Food.

Almost any kind of an incubator, if given the proper care, will hatch chicks; but you must have a good

YOURS

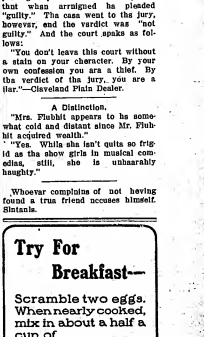
Yours for uniformity.

Yours for greatest leavening power.

Yours for never failing results.

Yours for purity.

Yours for economy.



Yours for everything that goes to make up a strictly high grade, ever-dependable baking powder.

That is Calumet. Try it once and note the improvement in your baking. See how much more economical over the high-priced trust brands, how much better than the cheap and big-can kinds.

Calumet is highest in quality —moderate in cost.

Received Highest Award World's Pure Food Exposition.

TROUBLE WAS OUT.

"At last, Miss Millis, I can say something that I have been turning to ask you for some time."

"What is it? What is it?"

"Has your cousin Erna enough money to merry on?"

Twice Convicted.

Another lawyer's story arrives. We are told that a man was charged with picking a pocket the other day and that when arraigned he pleaded "guilty." The case went to the jury, however, and the verdict was "not guilty." And the court spaks as follows:

"You don't leava this court without a stain on your character. By your own confession you are a thief. By the verdict of the jury, you are a liar."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Distinction.

"Mrs. Flubbit appears to be somewhat cold and distant since Mr. Flubbit acquired wealth."

"Yes. While she isn't quite so frigid as the show girls in musical comedias, still, she is unhaarably haughty."

Whoever complains of not having found a true friend accuses himself. Sintanis.

Try For Breakfast—

Scramble two eggs. When nearly cooked, mix in about a half a cup of and serve at once—seasoning to taste.

Post Toasties

It's immense!

"The Memory Lingers"

Postum Cereal Company, Ltd. Battle Creek, Mich.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. B. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1906, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

After reading the Minnesota Legislature of 1911, by Lynn Haines, it is no wonder that governor Eberhart refuses to call an extra session of that gang.

If game warden Munch, of Crookston hears of fish being caught unlawfully he promptly prosecutes. The facts are before him that the lumber companys have unlawfully shut off the Red Lake River, which means the catching of all the fish from the outlet to Thief River Falls, before next spring. Now just hold your ear near the ground and listen and hear what he says about it.

In his Beeds Budget, Newspaper for August J. Adam Bede, ex congressman says:

"Just now a whole kennel of setters and pointers are barking at the heels of the president while he is doing the world's life work." All right A dam, but you just stick your nose on as a candidate for congress and you will discover that the woods are chock full of setters, pointers, grey hounds, blood hounds and bull dogs. They are on your track J. Adam and you had better climb a tree.

A republican that would like to see the party win in the next campaign should have more sense than to favor the nomination of Taft, for we believe that if old Jeff Davis was allve he could get more votes for president than Taft could, and governor Harmon, of Ohio would defeat him so bad that he would never want to show his face again in the United States. But he could go up to Canada, shake hands with his friends, and raise wheat and barley. The farmers are after Taft and they are going to get him, and if they miss him at the nomination, they will get him in November. Don't nominate him if you want to elect a republican president.

A Famous Engineer.

Some of the excuses made by the government Engineers at St. Paul for not compelling the lumber companys to take their log jam out of Red Lake River are very amuseing. One duck by name of Joice who is of course in the pay of the government, with prehaps a little on the side from forging company, was sent up to investigate the conditions, only got as far as Thief River Falls, where he said he got a great deal of information (probaly at the mill companys office), that the tronhle was that Red Lake had sank three and one half feet below its normal summer level, a condition that has not been known before for 42 years.

Well would not that report make a man that knows the true situation smile? We have heard that there was some pretty big liers in Thief River Falls, but the man that told that story deserves a place at the head of the class. Stand aside all you noted liers and allow him to go to the head. However the facts are before the proper officials to take action to get a hole through that log jam, and until they have had time to act we shall refrain from publishing any more of the facts, but if those whose duty it is to open that jam show that they will not do their duty we shall place the facts before the people as they are, and will not call any names a little white.

If that seven senator amendment to the constitution ever comes before the people it will carry.

Taft will be followed in his speaking tour by progressive republican speakers, who will place the facts before the people, as they are.

All state ditching on the south side of the Red Lake River are at a stand still now, It would save a lot of hair pulling later on if the contractors and their hondsmen would get the walking dredge that is now on the north side to step across the river and dig some of these ditches. But of course you are the boss, until January 1st, and then the other fellows have an inning.

Bear in mind the first annual fair of Red Lake County is to be held at Red Lake Falls Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 20, 21, and 22. Make it a point to be there, for it will be a hummer.

How's This!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Waxter Sex.

The young woman had spent a busy day.

She had browbeaten fourteen salesgeopls, bullyragged a floorwalker, argued victoriously with a milliner, and down the law to a modiste, shipped in the bud o taxi chauffeur's attempt to overcharge her, made a street car conductor stop the car in the middle of a block for her, discharged her maid and engaged another and other wise refused to allow herself to be imposed upon.

Yet she did not smile that evening when a young man begged:

"Let me be your protector through life!"—Life.

New Angle on Help.

"Why did you inquire particularly into the wardrobe of that girl you just hired?" asked one of two women who were leaving a employment agency.

"To find out how carefully she will guard against burglars," said the other. "My experience has been that a girl who has nice things of her own will look up more securely at night and keep a sharper eye out for sneak thieves in the daytime than one who has nothing of value to lose."—New York Press.

She Was Right.

"How effusively sweet that Mrs Blondey is to you, Jonesey," said Witherell. "What's up? Any tender little summer there?"

"No, indeed. Why, that woman hates me," said Jonesey.

"She doesn't show it," said Witherell.

"No, but she knows that I know how old she is. We were both born on the same day," said Jonesey, "and she's afraid I'll tell somebody."—Harper's Weekly.

The First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse was erected at Pharos, near Alexandria, in Egypt. It was finished in 283 B. C. Its height was 550 feet, and the light, which was kept burning on top at night, was visible forty-one miles away. This tower existed for some 1,000 years, when it was destroyed by an earthquake.

The Idea.

"Can a married man acquire happiness?"

"Sure! You don't think that bachelors are the only ones that die, do you?"—Toledo Blade.

Wanted to Convert Utopia.

When the "Utopia" was first published it occasioned a pleasant mistake. This political romance represents a perfect but visionary republic in an island supposed to have been somewhere in the Atlantic, near these western shores.

"As this was the age of discovery," says Granger, "the learned Bufaens and others took it for genuine history and deemed it expedient to send missionaries thither to convert the people."—"Book of Queer Things."

Chattel Mortgages.

A man who gives a chattel mortgage should always examine it carefully to make sure it is not "on demand." Many money lenders who loan funds on chattel mortgages often try to have this clause inserted, and when it is the borrower may expect to part with his chattels at almost any moment. It is a trick by which advantage is often taken of the unwary.

Notice of Expiration of Redemption, Sale to Purchaser.

Office of County Auditor, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

NOTICE OF EXPIRATION OF REDEMPTION.

To Wm. H. Matthews: You are hereby notified that the following described piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, Formerly a part of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to wit: Lot one (1) of Section Twenty (20) Township One Hundred Fifty Three (153) Range Forty Two (42) is now assessed in your name that on the 13th day of May A. D. 1907, at a sale of land pursuant to the realestate tax judgment duly given and made in and by the District Court in and for said County of Red Lake on the 25th, day of March A. D. 1907, in proceedings to enforce the payment of taxes delinquent upon realestate for the year A. D. 1905, for said County of Red Lake, the above described piece or parcel of land was sold for the sum of Six Dollars and Sixty Seven Cents; that the tax certificate issued for said land at said sale has been presented to me at my office by the holder thereof for the purpose of having notice of redemption from said sale given and served, that the amount requid to redeem said pelce or parcel of land from said sale at the date of this notice exclusive of the costs to accrue upon this notice, is the sum of Fifty Dollars and seventy Two Cants (said sum being the aggregate amount of said sum for which said land was sold at said sale and interest thereon at 12 per cent per annum, delinquent taxes penalties, costs and interests thereon accruing subsequent to said sale and paid by said purchaser, and all unpaid delinquent taxes, interest, costs and penalties accruing upon said land subsequent to said sale); and that the time for redemption of said pelce or parcel of land from said sale will expire sixty days after the service of the notice and proof of said service has been filed in my office.

WITNESS My hand and seal of office this 16th, day of June A.D. 1911.

(Official Seal) A.A. Latendresse,
County Auditor,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.

RETURN OF SHERIFF PERSON NAMED NOT FOUND AND LAND VACANT.

State of Minnesota,]
County of Red Lake]ss.

I Charles Fellman, Sheriff of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, do hereby certify and return that I have made and caused to be made diligent search for Wm. H. Matthews, the person named in the within notice and have been unable to find him in my said County; and that I have inspected and examined the land described in the within notice for the purpose of serving said notice upon the person in possession or occupancy thereof; and that there is no person in possession or occupancy of said land and the same is vacant and unoccupied.

Charles Fellman,
Sheriff,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Sep. 1st, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 28 h, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Jorgen Erickson, of Highlanding Minn. who on December 26th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 8255, Serial No.04393, for N.W. ¼ Section 21 Township 153 N. Range 43 W.5th. Principal Meridian. has filed notice of intention to make Final Five Year Proof to establish claim to the land above described. before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of thief River Falls, at thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th.day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses;

Ben Erickson, of Thief River Falls Minn. Ben Stiirud. Elos Sanders, Matt Erickson,of Highlanding Minn.

Authur P. Toupin,
Register.

Gilbert's Witty Comment.

Sir W. S. Gilbert's wit and humor were always ready. He was a fine raconteur and a good after dinner speaker. Rutland Barrington, the old Savoyard, said that "staying in Gilbert's house was like living in a literary fireworks factory."

Barrington played the Captain in "Pinafore." At rehearsal one day Gilbert, who was an autocratic and magnificent stage manager, told him to cross the stage, which represented the deck of H. M. S. Pinafore, and sit on a skylight "in a pensive attitude." Barrington obeyed orders, but unfortunately the skylight had only been rigged up temporarily, and the portly Barrington crashed through it.

"That's an ex-pensive attitude," said Gilbert in a flash.

Help the Children.

"There is nothing in all the world so important as children, nothing so interesting. If you ever wish to go in for some philanthropy, if you ever wish to be of any real use to the world, do something for children. If you ever yearn to be truly wise, study children. We can dress the sore, bandage the wounded, imprison the criminal, heal the sick and bury the dead, but there is always a choice that we can save a child. If the great army of philanthropists ever exterminate sin and pestilence, ever work out of race's salvation, it will be because a little child has led them."—Dr. David Starr Jordan.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 15.1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. December 5th. 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Martin Hickadress. case of b-r-e of Mary Sullivan deceased. of St. Hilaire Minnesota. who on October 19, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 751, Serial No. 1150. for N.W. ¼ Section 19, Township 152 N. Range 41 W.5th Principal Meridian. has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described.before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the city of Thief River Falls, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on the 16th.day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl G.Olson,of Kratka Minn. 1. Oaksbne of St. Hilaire Minn. ; Walter McAndrews and William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

Authur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Aug. 18.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Rev K. Kvisle, of Highlanding Minn. who on Nov. 7th. 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 8688. Serial No. 04964. for N. E. ¼ Section 24 Township 158 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls Minn. at thief river falls Minn. on the 25th. day of September 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Tollak Swenson Dale, Tobias Olson, Sjur R. Stolaas, Dedrick A. Kolestrand, all of Highlanding Minn.

Authur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Aug. 18.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Tollak Swenson Dale, of Highlanding Minn. who on Jan. 8th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 7715. Serial No. 04695 for Lots 4, 5, 8, W. ½ S W. ¼ Section 18 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 25th. day of September 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Tollak Swenson Dale, Ben K. Kvisle Sjur R Stolaas, Dedrick A. Kolestrand, all of Highlanding Minn.

Authur P. Toupin,
Register.

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know when I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and find immediate relief in every case."

A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill.

Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without griping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming.

If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return the price. Ask him.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

McALL PATTERNS
McALL'S MAGAZINE

RHODA STORE.

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FINE LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

Loving His Enemies.

There may be others, but a man who keeps edging across until he wants to live the bettermder loves his enemies more than most men.—Atchison Globe.

Suitable.

"An easy job will suit me, senator." "How about winding the clocks every week?"

"I might make that do. But what's the matter with clearing the leaves off the calendars every month?"—Washington Herald.

Pat'Him Wise.

"Did you give the waiter a tip?" "Did I? Well, I should say I did! I told him if he didn't quit hanging around our table I'd beat his block off."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Bad.

The bad is a bundle of paradoxes. We go to it with reluctance, yet we quit it with regret. We make up our minds every night to leave it early, but we make up our bodies every morning to keep it late.—Colton.

A Competent Critic.

A famous actor at an elaborate entertainment at a Fifth avenue millionaire's palace in New York rose to recite Mrs. Browning's "Dead Pan." As he announced his subject and prepared to begin he heard a lady near him say distinctly:

"What is the next piece? Something funny, I hope. Oh, yes—The Dead Pan! Dear me, how odd! Of course it must be funny—something about bad cooking, I suppose."

Playing Her Cards.

Tommy—May I stay up a little longer? Ethel—What do you want to stay up for? Tommy—I want to see you and Mr. Green playing cards. Mr. Green—But we are not going to play cards. Tommy—Oh, yes, you are, for I heard mamma saying to Ethel that everything depended on the way in which she played her cards tonight.

Cautious.

The young housekeeper was looking at some soft shell crabs squirming and wriggling in their bed of seaweed.

"They're very nice," said the dealer.

"Shall I send you a dozen?"

"Yes," answered the innocent, "if you are sure they are fresh."—New York Journal.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof will be received at this office.

For Sale. A 4 year driving team cheap if taken soon.
Leonard McAndrews,
Stillwater Minn.

Pay up your back subscription.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Wanted, teams and men to haul ice from 30 to 50 acres of land. Wm. Brockman, Rutland Minn.

Martin Hyland has been cutting S.L. Holmes hay this week, just to give brooks a little exercise.

Simon Solberg from McIntosh and Howard Falk Dahl was buying up stock for shipment in this neighborhood Monday.

There will be a harvest ball at John Redmerl's hall, in Deer Park township tomorrow night, Sept. 16th. All are invited.

School will commence in district No. 52, town of Deer Park, on Monday Sept. 18th, with Mr. Henry Mikaelson, of Evan Minn. as teacher.

Glen Martz was up from St. Hilaire this week looking over some of the county ditches, and hunting a few chickens on the side.

Two acres of standing corn for sale cheap. Inquire at this office. Just what you want for working oxen or pig feed.

For Health and Energy Eat CREAM OF RYE

For Breakfast. Reduces Cost of Living. Free Silver Spoon in Every Package. Ask your Grocer for a Package.

Gunder Asbjornson, of Malone made this office a pleasent call today, on his return home from the Highlanding creamery, of which he is one of the best patrons.

Parties wanting to advertise should not forget that THE SUNBEAM is the paper that has the circulation among the famers, in eastern Red Lake and Pennington Countys.

Mrs. George Singer had a very serious attact of pleurisy last Monday and Dr. Gabell was called, from Thief River Falls to visit her. She is reported to be much better today and on the road to recovery.

It looks funny to see a farmer that has lund in this country, and has lived here for five or six years to go out to Dakota threshing, while his neighbor across the road is raising 20 bushels of wheat to the acre. His head is in need of repairs Surely.

Edward Singer bought a fine roller feed mill out in Dakota, which he will put in at Rhoda, with a good heavy engine to run it, which will be a great convenience to farmers wanting to get feed ground.

Henery Enderlee and Tom Norby came out from Plummer on a hunting trip last Saturday and stopped overnight with M. E. Hyland in Deer Park township. Mr. Enderlee expressed his admiration of the fine crops in the eleven townships, and well he may for there is none better in Minnesota or any other state.

As Tufts speaking tour is to be a campaign of misrepresentation we presume he would like to get that fellow in Thief River Falls, who reported to the government Engineers that Red Lake was 3 ½ feet below the normal summer level. He would be a first class man to have along, if he wanted any first class lieing done. He might also get ahold of some of them fellows that used to go around telling the farmers that it would only cost five or six hundred dollars to buy county books for Pennington county, and about that amount to transcribe the records, but the lake man belongs at the head of the class.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Two Points!

Say! If anybody askes you why there is not more news in THE SUNBEAM, just tell them this: Hunt is a mossback farmer, who thinks he is a printer, and runs the whole business himself, and about the time he gets ready to set up a fine news item the steer "Dandelion" crawls under the fence and gets out of the pasture. Then we have to call the dog Sunbeam and chase him in, and then the hogs break out and we have to look after them, and old jack frost comes and kills our corn, but we got out every Friday "just the same," and visit more farmers homes, in eastern Pennington county than all the other newspapers combined. Ask the post masters!

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 15th. 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 13, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Halvor Rasmussen, of Brunkeberg Minn., who on October 4, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 6.65, for lot No. 4, sec. 3, and lot 1, N.W. ¼ section 3, Township 158 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilmon Mitchell, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 25th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Iver Solhlem, Andrew Sandland, Christian O. Nygaard, Torjus T. Rennestvedt, all of Brunkeberg Minn.

ARTHUR P. TORVIK, Register.

SUBMARINE SHIPS

Life Aboard These War Craft Is a Sequence of Discomforts.

TORTURE FOR THE NOVICE.

Between Choking For Air and Suffocating From the Fumes of Gasoline the Agony Is Excruciating—Added Terrors When Caught in a Storm.

Submarine boats have been developed to the point where they can cruise on their own power a radius of 800 miles in effective fighting trim. In storm and calm the submarines are capable of navigating the seas with credit to their inventors and constructors. With a fleet of these vessels stationed in the vicinity of any of our large coast cities it would be difficult for battleships to get within effective striking distance.

The first impressions received on descending into the hold of a submarine are those of discomfort and suffocation. The accommodations for a crew of thirteen even about right for half a dozen. One is in too close proximity to whirring machinery, too, to enjoy the sensation.

On all sides are arranged electrical devices and machinery to operate the craft and the torpedoes. A thin sheet of steel separates the visitor from the torpedoes, and the outside water is so close that one can almost feel its moisture.

When under way on the surface the submarine hums and trembles. The fumes of gasoline are almost suffocating. There is no escaping from them. Some of the men confined what is called "gasoline heart." If under water too long the fumes make one sick and dizzy.

A novice cannot remain in a submarine under water for any great length of time without suffering excruciating torture. In time, however, one gets used to it, and a trip may be one of enjoyment.

But it is when the submarine dives that the most unpleasant symptoms come. There are ten compressed air tanks supplied, and these furnish sufficient air to keep the crew alive a good many hours.

But did you ever live on compressed air? If not it will be a new sensation, especially if you are fifty feet below the surface of the water. There is a tingling sensation all over the body, a pounding of the eardrums and possibly a sense of nausea.

As the air is automatically regulated from the compressed air tanks one gets his share of the oxygen, but sometimes the supply may vary. It certainly does in different parts of the

We Carry A Full Line Of Dry Goods, Shoes, Groceries, Hickorg Hardware Paints & Fencewire,

We keep A Snpply Of Mower Guards, Sections And Rivits

Leave Your Orders With Us For Binding Twine.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

sailn. One may be choking for want of good air in one part and be exhilarated by a too abundant supply in another.

Sometimes when the engines are running to charge the batteries the fumes of the gasoline become so strong that men are rendered unconscious. They must be taken up on deck then to get a whiff of fresh air.

For this reason the batteries are only charged when above the water. Then, indeed, the man aboard the submarine might envy the aerial navigator flying above the sea with his abundance of fresh air to breathe.

Cooking under water is a pretty unpleasant and disagreeable work. The only appliance for this purpose is a small electric heater. This is just about big enough to heat water to make a cup of coffee and nothing else. The crew have their food cooked aboard the tender.

The submarine is built on the principle of economizing space in everything. There is no room for anything except the actual necessities. Every inch of space is given over to machinery. This is everywhere compact and efficient, but unutilized so often that one wonders what it is all for.

There is machinery for running the boat, for guiding it under water, for controlling it when it dives, for compressing the air tanks, for operating the torpedoes and even for regulating the power of vision above and below water.

When caught in a storm in a submarine life is really not worth living. It consists of a series of intense struggles to prevent death by being battered against steel walls or to keep from becoming involved in whirring wheels and dynamos. If you survive the ordeal you conclude that it is not necessary to wait for war to find bodies. It is with you all the time.—Harper's Weekly.

Glad He Left.

Actor—There was a thunder of applause when I left the stage. Bored Friend—Serves you right! You shouldn't stay on so long!

What the stars are to the firmament kind deeds are to the earth.

U.S.Mail.

The U.S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, P. M.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

REAL JAVA COFFEE.

You May Get a Cup Almost Any Place Except in Java.

It seems strange that in the far east, where tea and coffee come from, it is very difficult for the traveler in nearly all places in India, the Straits Settlements and elsewhere in the orient to procure a cup of really good tea or coffee. That says Sir Frederic S. Isham, the novelist, although seemingly paradoxical, is only on a par with the fact that in so many of our Pan-American hamlets and villages where good butter, rich cream and good chickens for the resident are practically nonobtainable, all of them having been "sent to town."

In Calcutta I found an American in the best hotel there say to the waiter: "If this," indicating the contents of a cup before him, "is tea, bring me coffee. If it is coffee, bring me tea." And the waiter (an Eurasian), who had no sense of humor, took away the drink and piteously brought something else—equally bad, no doubt.

So after India, Burma and the Malay peninsula we landed with bated breath for the coffee of Java.

The excellence of it was a childhood tradition. The choice "mother used to make" was compounded of rich Java. In Java surely we should find a nectar of the gods. What did we discover? An extract of burned cereal in little cisterns. It would have made the gods ill. Another fleeting hope!

Don't go to Java for real Java coffee. You may find it, in Yucatan, Mich., or Pasiel Oh, but you won't in Java.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF ORLE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEAR STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Tupin, Pres. Samuel Gibeau Vic. Pres.
Larry O'Neil, Abraham Foquire, T. L. Cruzen.
J. A. Tully, Cashier. T. L. Cruzen, Asst. Cashier.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents, "Hints to inventors," "Inventions needed," "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE,
PATENT ATTORNEYS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Specifics cure by direct, scientific appeal to the diseased part. Sold by druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Write for free booklet.

	Price
1—Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2—Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3—Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4—Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
7—Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8—Neuralgia, Toothache, Facesche	.25
9—Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10—Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11—Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12—Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13—Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14—Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15—Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16—Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
18—Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20—Whooping-Cough	.25
Kidney Diseases	1.00
28—Nervous Debility	1.00
30—Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
77—Grip, Hay Fever	.25

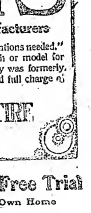
Sold by druggists, or sent on receipt of price. Humphreys' Homeopathic Manual (144 pages) mailed free. Humphreys' Homeopathic Medicine Co., Cor. William and John Sts., New York.

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the famous

"Simplex"



Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes.

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.
93 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

The "Rexpedient"

SEWING MACHINE.

RETAILS FOR $20.00
HIGH GRADE.

Machine Co.
ILLINOIS.

AUTHORITY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

can well be claimed of a book that has the unqualified indorsement of the Executive Departments of the Government, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, all the State Superintendents of Schools, nearly all of the College Presidents, Principals of Normal Schools, and Educators generally.

The New and Enlarged Edition of Webster's International Dictionary of English, Biography, Geography, Fiction, etc., has 2380 quarto pages with 5000 illustrations. It also has 25,000 new words, new Gazetteer of the World, and a new Biographical Dictionary, all edited by W. T. Harris, Ph.D., LL.D., U. S. Commissioner of Education, bringing the work fully up to date. It received at the Highest Award at the World's Fair, St. Louis.

THE GRAND PRIZE

FREE—"A Test in Pronunciation," containing interesting and entertaining words for the whole family. Also illustrated pamphlet.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., PUBLISHERS, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Where It Hurts.

"Say, I have an awful pain. I wonder if it is appendicitis? Can you tell me on what side one gets it?"

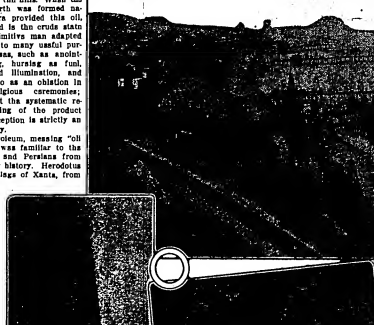
"Why, on the inside, of course."—Columbia Jester.

Bad Selection.

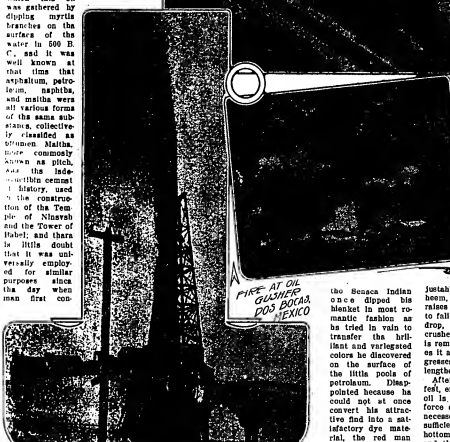
"Doodles the but that woman's mustache is bold."

"It is that. She should have used goldenrod powder."—Baltimore American.

Petroleum as Old as the Hills

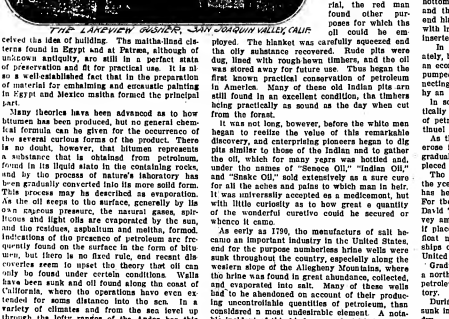


BY RUSSELL HASTINGS MILLWARD



OIL TRAIN HEADED FOR MARKET

ETROLEUM is as old as the hills. When the earth was formed nature provided this oil, and in the crude state primitive man adapted it to many useful purposes, such as anointing, burning as fuel, and illumination, and also as an oblation in religious ceremonies; but the systematic refining of the product from its very inception is strictly an American industry.



The name petroleum, meaning "oil from the rock," was familiar to the Greeks, Romans and Persians from the dawn of their history. Herodotus wrote of the Springs of Xanta, from which this oil was gathered by dipping myrtle branches on the surface of the water in 500 B. C., and it was well known at that time that asphaltum, petroleum, naphtha, and maltha were all various forms of the same substance, collectively classified as bitumen. Maltha, more commonly known as pitch, was the lodestone with the cement of history, used in the construction of the Temple of Ninevah and the Tower of Babel; and there is little doubt that it was universally employed for similar purposes since the day when man first conceived the idea of building. The maltha-lined cisterns found in Egypt and at Patrea, although of unknown antiquity, are still in a perfect state of preservation and fit for practical use. It is also a well-established fact that in the preparation of material for embalming and encaustic painting in Egypt and Mexico maltha formed the principal part.

OIL WELLS OF THE SEA AT SUMMERLAND, NEAR SANTA BARBARA, CALIF.

FIRE AT OIL GUSHER, DOS BOCAS, MEXICO

THE LAKEVIEW GUSHER, SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY, CALIF.

Many theories have been advanced as to how bitumen has been produced, but no general chemical formula can be given for the occurrence of the several curious forms of the product. There is no doubt, however, that bitumen represents a substance that is obtained from petroleum, found in its liquid state in the containing rocks, and by the process of nature's laboratory has been gradually converted into the more solid form. This process may be described as evaporation. As the oil seeps to the surface, generally by its own gaseous pressure, the more volatile gases, spirituous and light oils are evaporated by the sun, and the residues, asphaltum and maltha, formed. Indications of the presence of petroleum are frequently found on the surface in the form of bitumen, but there is no fixed rule, and recent discoveries seem to upset the theory that oil can only be found under certain conditions. Wells have been sunk and oil found along the coast of California, where the operations have even extended for some distance into the sea. In a variety of climates and from the sea level up through the lofty ranges of the Andes has this remarkable "light of the world" been secured.

Petroleum, also known as mineral oil, crude oil, and stone oil, may be described as a liquid form of bitumen, found seeping from the crevices of rocks and floating about on the surface of the water. Its color varies from a light straw, through amber, red and brown, to a dark green and black. It is a mixture of hydrocarbons, or compounds of hydrogen and carbon, varying considerably, according to the locality in which it is found, in both composition and consistency, and of two distinct varieties, asphalt base and paraffin base, with many constituents.

The more volatile and inflammable portions of the raw product are separated by refining, each constituent being taken off and collected separately by gradually raising the temperature of the oil and passing the consequent vapors or gases through a series of condensers. The products from the paraffin bases are usually taken off as follows: Gasolines and naphthas, kerosene or standard white, as it is now known, other illuminating oils, light and heavy lubricating oils, paraffin, and greases of various descriptions. The percentage of each product recovered from the crude varies according to the character of the crude. A fair average of Pennsylvania crude oil ran as follows: Gasoline, 1¼ per cent; naphthas, 1¼ per cent; kerosene, 55 per cent; lubricating oils, 17½ per cent; paraffin, 3 per cent; and residue of pitch, etc., 10 per cent. Many variatias of petroleum require special treatment in order to eliminate sulphur and other objectionable elements. From the asphalt-base petroleum is deprived of a residuum employed in the manufacture of insulating, water-proofing and roofing materials. A residuum known as "coke" is also used as fuel and in the manufacture of carbons for arc lights and electric batteries.

Along the banks of a stream in Pennsylvania, now largely under the present Oil Creek, the Seneca Indian once dipped his blanket in most romantic fashion as he tried in vain to transfer the brilliant and variegated colors he discovered on the surface of the little pools of petroleum. Disappointed because he could not at once convert his attractive find into a satisfactory dye material, the red man found other purposes for which the oil could be employed. The blanket was carefully squeezed out of the oily substance recovered. Rude pits were dug, lined with rough hewn timbers, and the oil was stored away for future use. Thus began the first known practical conservation of petroleum in America. Many of these old Indian pits are still found in an excellent condition, the timbers being practically as sound as the day when cut from the forest.

It was not long, however, before the white men began to realize the value of this remarkable discovery, and enterprising pioneers began to dig pits similar to those of the Indian and to gather the oil, which for many years was bottled and, under the names of "Seneca Oil," "Indian Oil," and "Snake Oil," sold extensively as a sure cure for all the ailes and pains to which man is heir. It was universally accepted as a medicament, but with little curiosity as to how great a quantity of the wonderful curative could be secured or whence it came.

As early as 1790, the manufactors of salt became an important industry in the United States, and for the purpose numberless brine wells were sunk throughout the country, especially along the western slope of the Alleghany Mountains, where the brine was found in great abundance, collected, and evaporated into salt. Many of these wells had to be abandoned on account of their producing uncontrollable quantities of petroleum, than considered a most undesirable element. A notable incident of this kind occurred at Little Seneca Creek, near Burkesville, Kentucky, in 1829, when an attempt made to sink a well and secure what was supposed to be an unlimited supply of brine resulted in the striking of a mammoth oil gusher. Consternation and disappointment spread among the owners of the well as they witnessed the great quantities of oil flowing rapidly beyond the creek and into the Cumberland River, where it finally caught fire and burned for a distance of over fifty miles. When the fire was extinguished the oil flowed on as rapidly as before, and, with the exception of a small quantity which was later recovered, bottled, and sold under the name of "American Medicinal Oil," the product was wasted.

In 1846 Dr. Abraham Gesner discovered a method of extracting an excellent grade of illuminating oil from coal, and in 1854 he patented a successful illuminant, "kerosene," commonly known as "coal-oil." The improvement was a great over the animal and vegetable oils then in use, the objectionable odor and smoke being eliminated, that they were gradually set aside, and in order to meet on enormous and ever-increasing demand for the product, it became necessary to establish factories throughout the country for the extraction of this popular illuminating oil from coal. Altogether there were over 60 of these establishments in operation at one time, and the price of kerosene advanced rapidly until 1857, when it sold as high as $2 a gallon. The industry was short lived, however, for upon the discovery of petroleum in sufficient quantities to effect a competition as a basis from which illuminating oils could be manufactured, these kerosene factories were converted into refineries of crude oil, in order to prevent their total loss.

The great demand for kerosene and its consequent high price were the cause at attracting the world-wide attention of chemists and scientific authorities, and Yankee ingenuity was employed to discover the means of producing at a lower cost some other satisfactory illuminant from coal or petroleum. Researches in this line were continuous and untiring until early in 1895, when a complete and invaluable analysis of petroleum taken from an "oil spring" on Oil Creek, near Titusville, Pennsylvania, was made by the distinguished chemist, Prof. Benjamin Silliman, Jr.

The manner of driving or sinking an oil well is simpler then is generally imagined. A steel drill, weighing anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds, and measuring about 30 feet in length, is selected for the purpose. This is fastened to an adjustable line and connected with a heevy arm or beam, driven by an engine which continually raises and releases the arms and permits the drill to fall with great force into the hole. With each drop, and by its own weight, the drill literally crushes and pulverizes the rock into sand, which is removed with a "sand pump" from time to time as it accumulates in the boring. As the work progresses and the hole deepens the adjustable line is lengthened and the drill lowered as required.

After drilling to depths varying from 100 to 2,000 feet, and when a crevice is struck in the rock, the oil is frequently brought to the surface by the force of its own pressure, but it often becomes necessery, in case the flow of oil is not considered sufficient, to insert a charge of explosive at the bottom of the boring, "shoot" or blast the well, and thus increase the supply. After the drilling and blasting are completed, the well is then cased with iron pipe, known as a "lining," and a pump inserted.

In the old days each well was pumped separately, but the industry is now conducted upon such an economic and scientific basis that the wells are pumped in groups by a veritable network of connecting rods, extending over the fields and driven by an engine in a centralized station.

In some districts the oil fields have been practically honeycombed with wells and the production of petroleum greatly reduced or scattered by continuous pumping.

As the enterprise grew many complex problems arose from time to time, but they have all been gradually but effectually solved and the industry placed upon a conservative and economic basis.

The total flow of oil in the United States for the year 1895, the first of which any official record has been kept, amounted to only 2,000 barrels. For the year 1906 the production as estimated by David T. Day of the United States Geological Survey amounted to about 172,000,000 barrels, which, if placed in a single body, would be sufficient to float a gigantic fleet of 935 Dreadnought battleships of the new 26,000-ton Arkansas type of the United States Navy.

Gradually the oil derrick wended its way from a northeasterly to southwesterly direction, and the petroleum industry was extended over a vast territory.

During the year 1906 there were 16,906 wells sunk in the United States, of which but 2,251 were dry.

Extensive experiments have been conducted to determine the value of petroleum as fuel for power plants as well as for the navy and merchant marine, especially in England and the United States. Numerous merchant vessels have been fully equipped for burning oil se fuel, and, by practical test, it has been determined that oil will evaporate 20 per cent more water per pound than coal, is easier to handle and stow, offers no difficulty in burning, and, in the matter of economy, where coaling and its useless ashor is saved, smoke eliminated, fuel space economized, steaming and speed increased, labor reduced, discomfort to crew decreased, and a clean ship assured at all times. The crude oil of paraffin base is particularly desirable for fuel, and the only obstacles to its universal use are: (1) Difficulty in obtaining; (2) increased cost over coal. With the production of sufficient petroleum at a reasonable cost, there is little doubt that every ship afloat will be eventually equipped with oil burners and the coal grates pass from use.

The United States navy has equipped the battleships Delaware, North Dakota, Utah, Florida, Arkansas and Wyoming with auxiliary provision for from 400 to 600 tons of fuel oil each.

The new battleships now under construction at the Fore River Ship Building Company, Philadelphia, for the Argentine government, will also be equipped for auxiliary oil capacities of 600 tons each.

The usefulness of petroleum is almost unlimited. Besides the many grades of gasolines, naphthas, illuminating oils, lubricating oils, paraffin, and greases obtained from the crude oil paraffin base, filtered paraffin residues or concentrated fellings are also obtained. These jellies are universally employed as therapeutic agents in diseases of the skin, as a basis in the manufacture of medicated ointments for general household use, and also in the preservation of iron, steel and metals generally.

WHERE WIGGINS FELL DOWN

Employer Now Realizes That There Are Such Things as Grandmothers of Office Boys.

Outside his own cleverness there is nothing that so delights Mr. Wiggins as a game of baseball, and when he gets a chance to exploit the two at the same time he may be said to be the happiest man in the world. Hence it was that the other day, when little red-headed Willie Mulligan, his office boy, came sniffling into his presence to ask for the afternoon off that he might attend his grandmother's funeral, Wiggins deemed it a masterly stroke to answer:

"Why, certainly, Willie. What's more, my boy, if you'll wait for me I'll go with you."

"All right, sir," sniffed Willie, as he returned to his desk and waited patiently.

And lo and behold, poor little Willie had told the truth, and when he and Wiggins started out together, the latter lost only last one of the best games of the season, but had to attend the obsequies of an old lady in whom he had no interest whatever.—Harper's Weekly.

"WHY SHOULD I USE CUTICURA SOAP?"

"There is nothing the matter with my skin, and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylectic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. It is also invaluable in keeping the hands soft and white, the hair live and glossy, and the scalp free from dandruff and irritation.

While its first cost is a few cents more than that of ordinary toilet soaps, it is prepared with such care and of such materials, that it wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of other soap, and making its use, in practice, most economical. Cuticura Soap is sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, but the truth of these claims may be demonstrated without cost by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 23 L, Boston, for a liberal sample cake, together with a thirty-two page book on the skin and hair.

When the Minister Scored.

In a contradiction to the Christian Register, Thomas R. Slicer tells this: "Some men the other night, in conversation with me, knowing I was a minister—and it is the spirit of the time to put it up to a minister in terms at least of gentle satire—said: 'We have been discussing conscience,' and one of them said, 'I have given a definition of conscience: it is the vermicular appendix of the soul,' and they laughed. And I said, 'That is a good definition; your case; you have saved know you have it until it hurts you.' Then they did not laugh."

Following the Simile.

"Life," said John W. Gates, valiant lover of conflict, "is a gamble."

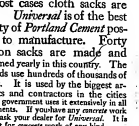
And death? Why, death is the hazard of the die.

Stop the Pain.

The hurt of a burn or a scald stops when Cole's Carbolic Salve is applied. It heals quickly and prevents scarring. 25c at Druggists. For free sample write to J. W. Cole & Co., Black River Falls, Wis.

Too many people waste their time in condemning the work of others instead of spending it in trying to improve their own.

He who knows most grieves for wasted time.—Dante.



Cement Talk No. 5

The term "barrels" is usually used in speaking of quantities of cement. However, cement is seldom actually packed in barrels. A barrel is the unit of measure and simply means four sacks, each sack weighing 95 lbs. Universal Portland Cement is packed in paper or cloth sacks; in most cases cloth sacks are used. Universal is of the best quality of Portland Cement possible to manufacture. Forty million sacks are made and consumed yearly in this country. The railroads use hundreds of thousands of barrels. It is used by the biggest architects and contractors in the cities and the government uses it extensively in all departments. If you have any cement work to do, ask your dealer for Universal. It is the best for cement work of any kind.

UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO.
SECURITY BANK BLDG., MINNEAPOLIS
ANNUAL OUTPUT 10,000,000 BARRELS

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

LEARN A TRADE AND EARN HIGHEST SALARIES

We teach Electricity, Plumbing, Brick Laying, Painting and Moving Picture Operating, by practical work. Short trades pay $3, Short N. Day. Long trades pay $5 to $10 per day. Can place graduates in every town. We secure positions for pupils. Write for free illustrated book on school.

BOYNE NATIONAL TRADE SCHOOL, 80 E. Illinois Street, Chicago

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Restores and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never fails to restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

Pettits EYE SALVE — GOOD FOR Eye SORE EYES Salve

FOR BETTER FARM, FRUIT AND DAIRY LANDS, write THE HOMESEEKERS' GUIDE, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. FOR A DESCRIPTION OF CANAS PRAIRIE.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D. C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

DEFIANCE STARCH for starching all fine goods. Has no equal.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

A BETTER SCORE

At trap shooting or game shooting. Your ability to shoot true under all conditions is made greater by the knowledge that your ammunition will do all that scientifically perfect powder and shot can do.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION

Not Made by a Trust

is loaded with our own smokeless powders that produce a terrific smash velocity by generating high speed all along the barrel. The absence of the "flg explosion" makes for speed, accuracy and penetration, and does away entirely with recoil.

Your dealer sells Robin Hood shot shells and metallic cartridges—if not, write us. Ask for our catalogue.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION CO.
7th STREET, SWANTON, VT.

What is Solvay Coke?

It is the heat element of a mixture of superior coals —carefully selected for coking purposes. The patented Solvay process has removed every impurity, leaving practically pure carbon—a perfect feul for household use.

Buy Milwaukee

Solvay Coke

"The Fuel Without a Fault"

It can be used in any furnace, range, stove or grate suitable for coal and does not burn out fire-pots or grates. It is smokeless, sootless, clean and healthful—leaves no ashes to sift. It is cheaper than hard coal and goes farther.

2,000 dealers in the Northwest sell Milwaukee Solvay Coke. Write us for folder and name of nearest dealer.

PICKANDS, BROWN & COMPANY
Oneida-Abbot Building, Milwaukee, Wis.

The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

ILLUSTRATIONS BY DEARBORN MELVILL

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY HARPER & BROS. & COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young tenderfoot becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a drunken Easterner in a western mining camp. They prepare to elope in a buggy filled with loot and are confronted by the husband, who has been robbed by his wife, but the real villain, boy play a hero to the body taking, and, shooting himself. In their flight to the railroad station the woman's horse falls exhausted. She puts the reins in her own and follows hanging to the buggy. She is at length overcome by heat, the tenderfoot presses her secret into a snow drift and, leaving her to recover, stumbles into the railroad station. He sees the train bearing the woman away. Twenty-five years later Mr. George Gormly, a multi-millionaire in New York, is courted by Eleanor Madison, a beautiful and wealthy settlement worker, and co-operates with her in efforts to remedy terrible horrors of city life. He and finds himself frustrated in plot and track enterprise plans by startling effrontery, backed by the Gotham Traction company, a gigantic corporation which controls the Parkland Bank, owned by Gormly. It announces that it will purchase the New York and reform the city from corruption. Mr. Hudans in a long desired interview with Gormly, makes an indirect proposition to compromise the fight which the latter has been waging in the newspapers against the Gotham Traction company. Mr. Hudans is expected to bring a heavy bribe. Gormly boldly announces his plan of campaign to Hudans.

BOOK II.—THE BATTLE FOR FREEDOM.

CHAPTER VII.

The Outs Would Fain Take a Hand.

The political declaration of Gormly was the sensation of the hour; the sensation of many hours, in fact. It came at exactly the right time. The non-church going section of New York, from which the larger part of politics was unfortunately recruited —the truly good Christian being a man who leaves the doing of such duties to his ungodly neighbor as a relief—had abundant leisure to read the papers on Christmas morning, and every paper in the city contained that same announcement which Miss Haldane and the party at the cottage had read in The Planet.

Every paper contained also editorial comment then and thereafter. The administration papers ridiculed the proposition, and endeavored to laugh it out of court. Other men possibly as high in character had announced themselves from time to time with similar platforms. Their announcements had created mild sensations, their complaints had sometimes created more sensations; but the results had inevitably been defeat.

So the administration papers sought to whistle the new candidate down the wind of their disdain. Nevertheless, since George Gormly's money was as good as anybody else's in New York, they kept on printing his communications, in which his advertisements were alternated with his political manifestos.

The anti-administration papers, and those which strove so for as newspapers could to take a dispassionate view of the situation, were unanimous in their approval of Gormly's candidacy. They declared that his election would be the best thing that could happen for New York; they were also practically unanimous in their hopelessness of his success.

Gormly had carefully studied the situation. He was not disappointed in the least degree—and he realized that while such a proclamation as he had made would inevitably cause a tremendous discussion, it would have to be followed up by work. If it was to be more effective than a flash in the pan. He had learned that organization was the keynote of success, as overorganization was its death knell. He knew that the arrangement which secured all general principles, leaving the utmost liberty in details, was the one which was in the end bound to succeed, provided the factors upon whom dependence was to be placed were in any degree worthy of their responsibilities.

He was also aware that the active intelligence of the community, even allowing for the vast number of ignorant foreigners who were allowed without let or hindrance to fill the city, was very high. The first requisite for successful campaigning, therefore, is decided to be education. Knowledge, as of old, is still power.

The ideal method of enlightening the people to the seriousness of the situation and of convincing them of their ability to amend it was by word of mouth. Gormly had never been a public speaker. Fortunately he had plenty of self confidence, and he was quite capable of presenting a situation in a simple, businesslike way, so clearly that even the ignorant could comprehend it. A few months only would elapse before the spring elections that would determine the issue. No matter how assiduously he campaigned, he could reach only a portion of the vast conglomeration that made up political New York. It would be necessary for him, therefore, to keep telling the same story in the different papers of the city to reach those who did not hear his voice, and to drive home in the minds of those who had heard what they had listened to.

He was prepared to spend his money as well as himself for this end. [illegible] of the sentiment [illegible] managers of the [illegible] tention, a type like Gormly in politics, but a man of great ability and acumen, he made manager of his campaign. The party out of power through its leaders declared that it intended to make him its candidate; other smaller parties proposed to fall in line. It was pointed out by those interested that indorsement by these organizations would provide Gormly with an organization and be of immense benefit in taking off his hands the details and minutiae of political campaigning, about which he was supposed to know nothing; that it would at once provide him with a respectable following, and, as they claimed, lend dignity to his position. The purpose of this political party, whose influence was considerable and whose ramifications were many, whose leaders were men of experience, was of course thoroughly well-known.

The conference between these leaders and Gormly was short, sharp, and decisive. It took place in his own business office. The deputation was made up of a banker named Poole, who had a certain prominence in municipal affairs through his connection with the national committee of the party to which he belonged, who was a brilliant financier, a liberal giver, and a valuable member of the opposition; Benson the real leader of the party, the political boss so far as the outs and anything to boss; and Pitchett, an attorney as bright as he was unprincipled, who aspired to political preferment himself. The trio met Gormly in his business office. Poole was the natural spokesman. "We are," began Poole impressively, Poole Was the Natural Spokesman.

"a committee, I might say a deputation, from the board of management of our political organization, who have been appointed to—ah—interview you about the mayoralty situation."

"We have," continued Poole with lofty dignity, "of course observed your announcement of your candidacy in the daily papers." Gormly bowed. "We have been struck with your peculiar availability for the office. Your large business interests, the fact that you are so well known to the people of New York, your undoubted probity, the evidence of good management and ability which we see around us, and—"

"And in short, we have come here to proffer you our support, and to say to you that our convention which is to be held next week will undoubtedly make you our candidate, and indorse your platform. And in fine we want you to lead us."

"Your convention is composed of deputies from all the voting precincts of the city, is it not, who are elected at regularly called primaries?"

"Certainly," was the answer.

"Well, how can you [illegible] committee—which has how many members?"

"A hundred," replied Pitchett.

"Exactly, a hundred. How then can you three gentlemen, or even the whole hundred of you, forecast the action of your convention which has not yet assembled?"

"It's easy to see, Mr. Gormly," said Benson half pityingly, "that you don't know anything about practical politics. The committee of a hundred will carry out the will of the party because the will of the party will be the will of the committee of a hundred; and the committee of a hundred will carry out the will of this committee visiting you, because the will of this committee is the will of the committee of a hundred. If I say—I mean if we say—that our party wants you for mayor, you can bet your last dollar that you're the man it wants. See?"

"I see," said Gormly. "In that case why have any convention at all? Why have any committee of a hundred? Why have anybody but you, Mr. Benson," he stopped long enough to make the pause appreciable, "and your coadjutors? Why have any people, as a matter of fact? Why don't you and Mr. Liffey, who I believe holds a somewhat analogous position to yours in the other party, get together with two able conductors like those you have brought and settle the question what the people are going to have?"

"Well, Mr. Gormly, since you put it that way," said Benson coolly, "it's was a little stronger than I am, if this city wasn't so hopelessly in Charley Liffey's grasp, that's about what we'd do. Now, we think that you've got certain elements of strength with the people that'll sort of balance things. I don't know whether you can be elected or not. I'm speakin' frankly now, gentlemen, and as a practical politician; but I believe you're more apt to be elected than anybody else, if we can get a fair count, or count the ballots ourselves, which is more or less doubtful with Liffey in power, and therefore we want you for our candidate, because we think we can win.

"Liffey has been in power so long that he ain't even decent. He ain't willing to take a fair, respectable graft; he wants everything. But when it comes down to talkin' business with the candidate in his private office, the best thing in the whole truth. Certainly it's important from one point of view that we should win this year. It may give us more power in the national convention next year. If we can deliver the goods in New York city, why, our voice is goin' to mean something, our influence is goin' to be worth something, and that accounts for Mr. Poole's presence here. As for Mr. Pitchett, he's one of the brightest young lawyers we've got. He knows which side his bread's buttered on. He wants to be district attorney and run with you, and you couldn't get a better campaigner to stand by your side. As for me, all the power we've got, which I admit ain't as much as we'd ought to have, I control. I put it at your disposal. Now what do you say."

"I protest," began Poole angrily; while Pitchett bit his lip, but managed to control himself better than the banker.

"Gentlemen," said Gormly, "it will hardly be necessary for you to continue the interview further on those lines."

"What do you mean?" exclaimed Benson.

"I mean that while I am, of course deeply touched by your hearty and spontaneous promises of support in this coming campaign, and while I appreciate highly the honor that you propose to me of making me your candidate, I regret to say that I must decline your proposition."

"What!" roared Benson. "You ain't goin' to run then?"

"I haven't said anything to that effect, have I?"

"But," interposed Poole, "you can't expect to succeed in any such organization back of you. Why, man, the ring that's against you, the influences that are opposed to you, both financial and political, is something that you can't imagine!"

"It requires much more than a candidate and a majority of votes to win an election."

"The ballots have got to be counted," said Benson, "and the money's got to be spent. In common with all the rest of us, I rend those accounts you're publishing from week to week, and it makes me sick to see so much good money goin' to waste. Not but what it's doin' some good; but a practical man like myself could administer it so much better. You could buy a voting precinct with what you spend on a single ad. Wastin' good money on the press! It's men you want to pay, and newspapers. That's the reason Liffey always gets the best of me. He's got more money than I can get, consequently he's got the men. But with your own contributions and the chances for success that you'll give the[illegible] there's lots of other men that'd be willing to take on our gettin' up power."

"I am not one of these men, Mr. Benson. I'll take no chances whatever on getting in power."

"Well, it's got to be Liffey's crowd or ours, and your fightin' Liffey's the worst from beginning to end. Therefore logically you belong to us."

"I cannot see the force of your reasoning," said Gormly, "and I tell you here and now that while I shall be very glad to have the votes of any or every man in New York, yet I will be beholden to no political party in the city. I have entered this campaign as an independent. If the people wish to elect me, they can do so; if not, not."

"Why, I told you, said Benson pityingly, 'that you might get elected; but you're not to be counted in.'"

"If I am elected," said Gormly, "you need not fear that I shall be counted out."

"You owe to be a regular nominee," said Poole.

"I shall be nominated by petition, gentlemen," said Gormly quietly. He pointed to his desk. "Look at that pile yonder. They are coming in every day."

"Signed by women and children and cranks, I suppose!" sneered Benson.

"I have a corps of young men," answered Gormly, "who personally visit every petitioner, find out if he is a voter and if he really means what he says when he asks me to run. Every name is verified and registered."

"Well, I'll be [illegible]!" cried Benson in great amazement.

"I am afraid if you continue in politics with your present views that you will be," said Gormly coolly. "As for organization, I have an organization of my own. We are discussing the issues and preparing to hold meetings and send out speakers all over the city."

"Who's managing the game?"

"One of my assistant managers in the store, Mr. Watson."

"What's he know about politics?"

"His experience [illegible] with your own has been little, but on different lines. He is learning rapidly, however, and I think before you get through, you will find him worthy of even your own steel, Mr. Benson."

"That's all very well," said the boss, greatly taken aback over the situation. "It does seem as if somebody's got a hend on his shoulders around here."

"It might be concluded that I had myself," said Gormly genially; "but we'll pass that by."

"But in spite of all these things, you'll be beaten as sure as fate. I tell you, you've got to fight the devil with fire. Of course, while I agree with these gentlemen here that purity in politics, which has been called an iridescent dream, whatever that means, is to be desired, and if we could win without money and without resortin' to the dodges that have made the party in power infamous, we'd be glad of it."

"But as it is, it can't be done. Now, every man is supposed to be in politics for what he there is in it. What you're in it for, we don't quite know, but admitting that you're more or less disinterested, so are we. Ain't that so, gentlemen?"

"Certainly, certainly, to h- sure," and therefore we offer you our assistance."

"I accept your offer, as I can[illegible] permit myself to be allied with any political party, or to be known speaking by as the nominee of that party."

"Mr. Gormly," said Benson after a long pause, "what's to prevent us from nominatin' you anyway, and makin' you the nominee of both parties?"

"Nothing that I know of can prevent your doing such a thing; but nothing can force me to accept your nomination.

"But Mr. Gormly——" began the banker.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Equal to the Crisis.

The wives of Napoleon III.'s marshals played a great part during and after the second empire. When Marshal Bazaine was planning his escape from the late Sainte Marguérite his wife assisted in the plan and came in the boat to meet him.

When General de Cavignac died in exile and disgrace on the Riviera his wife was determined that he should at least be buried in the family vault at Pere La Chaise. In order to accomplish her object, with the aid of a faithful servant she had the corpse arrayed in a huge travelin' cloak and plitted into a railway carriage. With such a companion beside her, this woman made the journey alone, in defiance of the law. These [illegible] for have been [illegible] ants which her [illegible]

SPENT HUNDREDS OF DOLLARS.

A Case of Terrible Kidney Trouble and How It Was Cured.

Charles E. Berg, 815 N. Sixth St., Walla Walla, Wash., says: "A sharp pain like the stab of a knife caught me while stooping and after that it was with me constantly. I became so bad I had to take to my bed. My face swelled and my kidneys were in terrible shape. I lost weight, and was bothered by dizzy spells. I spent hundreds of dollars without relief. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me permanently and I believe they saved my life."

"When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S."

For sale by druggists and general storekeepers everywhere. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Where It Points.

"For whom is she wearing black—her late husband?"

"No, for her next. She knows she looks well in it."—Judge.

If you have occasion to pick your company, use a magnifying glass.

Whittemore's Shoe Polishes

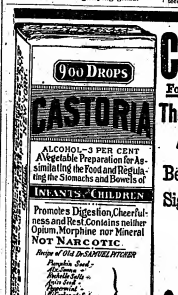
Finest in Quality, Largest in Variety, Unequaled for Shoes, Harness and Leather. Polishing stone of all kinds and colors.

GOLD DUST KING for soft ladies shoe dressing (not for patent leather). Cleans and polishes ladies' and children's boots and shoes without rubbing. 25c. "French Gloss," 25c. Liquid combination for cleaning, polishing and preserving all tan shoes, 25c. Odor-less, 10c. ELITE combination for cleaning, polishing and preserving [illegible] shoes, 10c. Waterproof dubbing to oil black shoes. Polish with a brush or cloth. Same as "Ebony Kidine" size 9 cents. Whittemore's Shoe Polishes are not keep the kind you want, send us his address and 10 cents for a large assortment.

WHITTEMORE BROS. & CO., 2323 Albany St., Cambridge, Mass. The Oldest and Largest Manufacturers of Shoe Polishes in the World.

CAREY ACT land is not waterproofs. Open to entry in tracts of 160 acres at $1 per acre in Payette or Boise counties, Idaho. Water on new line 15 annual installments. Address Carey Act Land Office, Idaho Irrigation Co., Boise, Idaho.

CASTORIA



For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

WOMEN wear W.L.Douglas stylish, perfect fitting, easy walking boots, because they give long wear, same as W.L. Douglas Men's shoes.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The workmanship which has made W.L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are worn, wanted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom.

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes in your town, write for mail order catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. $2.50 to $5.00 saved. ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $2, $2.50 or $3.00 SHOES will [illegible] TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes

Give Lenox Soap a trial and you will find that it is absolutely satisfactory for general household use.

The quality is high. The shape is convenient. The price is low.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

MODERN METHODS OF TRUCK GARDENING

THE summer of 1911 is likely to be long remembered in many agricultural communities in the United States as a season of unusually high temperatures and scanty rainfall. The disadvantages of such weather conditions bore most heavily, however, upon a large proportion of the people engaged in truck gardening. More seasonable temperatures and the life-giving rain appeared in time to save the staple crops in most districts, but too late, unfortunately, to mend matters completely for the truck gardeners. Some of the truckers escaped a curtailment of income, but it was only because their holdings were favorably situated or because they had their private systems for irrigating. To the man who, thanks to such facilities, was able to raise half a crop or better the high prices that ruled for such products offered ample compensation for the smaller yield.

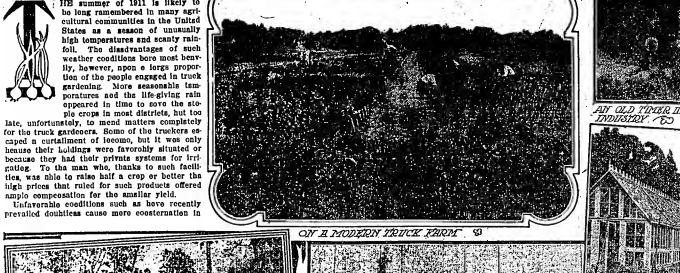
Unfavorable conditions such as here recently prevailed doubtless cause more consternation in the trucking industry than in any other branch of soil tilling. The fruit grower who has had any experience comes to expect the inevitable "bad years" and to view them with some complacency, and even the grain grower does not look for the same ratio of profit from every harvest. However, the truckers, particularly those operating small farms or "patches," are wont to count upon each year's productiveness at a maximum and are correspondingly disappointed when dame nature does not arrange things to their liking.

One explanation, too, of the emphatic complaints that are heard with reference to trucking conditions in an unfavorable year is found in the number of newcomers in the field—men and women who prior to their present venture had never had experience in forming of any kind. The lines told in recent years of the profits and delights of trucking, the ease with which the products can be disposed of, and the comparatively small outlay required for a five or ten-acre "intensive farm," have combined to lure into the field many people who, woe be them, had no fund of experience to draw upon. Particularly has this been the case with our large cities where many small truck farms have been started by city folks, either as the "side line" of some city occupation or with a view to obtaining an anchorage that would later permit migration in the country.

As in poultry raising and other supposedly "get rich quick" vocations there have been a number of more or less bitter disillusionments of late years in th field of trucking, but, by and large, the industry has developed tremendously. It has come to be appreciated by many of the uninitiated that in truck gardening no more than in any other field can rewards be obtained without hard work and that here, as elsewhere, some experience is necessary and that a man must expect to pay for such experience if he has not acquired it at the expense of somebody else before he struck out for himself. Moreover, the up-to-date trucker has come to realize that he must devise means to circumvent nature when she frowns just as the fruit growers have discovered expedients for dodging frosts and other nuances.

One truth that is happily being brought home in many people engaged in or contemplating trucking is that in faith capital is of immense advantage just as it is in every other walk of life. To be sure, the trucker who leases his holdings or buys "on time" at favorable terms can set up in business for a surprisingly small cash capital and it is this possibility which has attracted to the field so many men with very small bank accounts and women suddenly thrown on their own resources. At the same time the new entrant who starts with a "neat egg" has a tremendous advantage and, for one thing, he will not be piously so much at the mercy of the whims of nature as his fellow trucker who has none of the modern aids now considered essential to successful trucking.

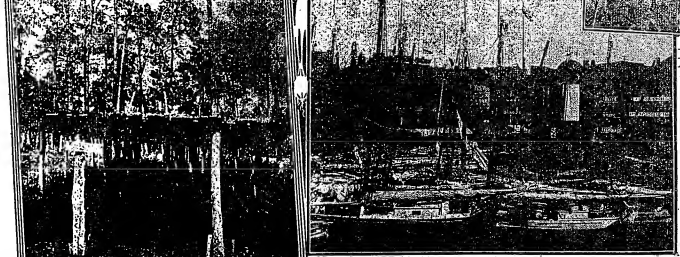
The trucker with capital has, it goes without saying, a full complement of the tools and equipment which, in trucking as in more extensive forms of farming, save time and labor—an especial consideration if a man is attempting to operate a truck patch single-handed. More important yet, the trucker who is able to lay out some money on his property will have some sort of a drainage and irrigating system which will carry off surplus water in the case of torrential showers and will, on the other hand, enable him to "water his gardens" when a rain famine comes. He will have more or less pretentious green houses that will enable him to raise early vegetables and to give his garden stuff an early start under glass. And he may even have facilities for raising some products in shade or partial shade. And so there might be continued almost indefinitely the enumeration of the innovations that have bettered modern trucking conditions, all the way up to the facilities on those large truck farms where we find miniature or narrow gauge railways traversing the trucking area and affording the means of transferring the vegetables, berries, etc., in one handling from the pickers to the hosts or railroad cars that are to convey them to market.



A notable characteristic of modern methods of trucking is the extent to which specialization is being practiced. We still have, of course, farms by the thousand where everything from onions to pumpkins are raised, but we also find, to an increasing extent, progressive men who are devoting their whole investment and energy to one product and endeavoring to secure that extra quality which specialization produces and which always means higher prices when the ultimate consumers learn of its presence. This explains the "lettuce farms" where nothing but lettuce is cultivated and the "celery farms" in Michigan and elsewhere that concentrate on this capricious product and the "watermelon patches" of the south—and so on through a long list.

As a sequel to this era of specialization has come the practice of many truckers to dispose of their products direct to the consumers. Of course this means added profits, for not only does it cut out the middleman's margin but in many instances the trucker finds discriminating city folks willing to pay him more than the prevailing prices in order to obtain products of superior quality and which they can depend upon as fresh. Some truckers in these fashionable hotels do not demand "cut rates" because they buy by quantity. They are so glad to be assured of dependable vegetables of the highest grade that they pay as much as the same stuff would bring at retail in the same city.

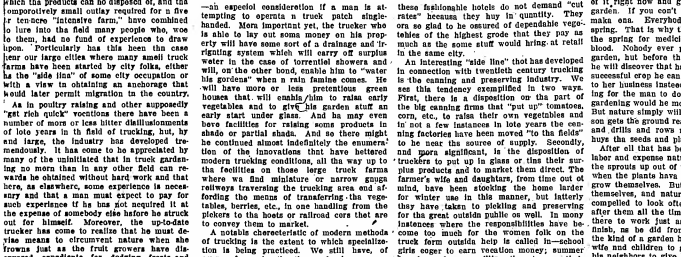
An interesting "side line" that has developed in connection with twentieth century trucking is the canning and preserving industry. We see this tendency exemplified in two ways. First, there is a disposition on the part of the big canning firms that "put up" tomatoes, corn, etc., to raise their own vegetables and to not a few instances in late years the canning factories have been moved "to the fields" to be near the source of supply. Secondly, and more significant, is the disposition of truckers to put up in glass or tins their surplus products and to market them direct. The ways they have taken to pickling and preserving for the great outside public are well. In many instances where the responsibilities have become too much for the women folk on the truck farm outside help is called in—school girls eager to earn vacation money or boarders who are willing thus to pay their way; and factory folk from the neighboring towns who are out of work temporarily, are willing to the summer "shut downs."



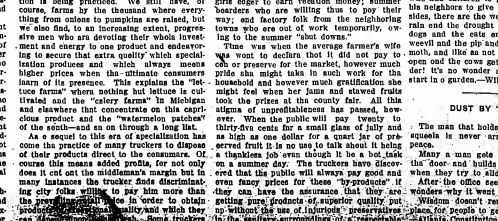
Time was when the average farmer's wife was wont to declare that it did not pay to can or preserve for the market, however much pride she might take in such work for the household and however much gratification she might feel when her jams and stewed fruits won fancy prizes for these "by-products" if they can have the assurance that they are getting pure products of superior quality put up without the use of injurious preservatives in the sanitary surroundings of a respectable home. Furthermore, the country folk who go in for home preserving on a large or small scale will find that no considerable portion of the buying public will give up more than a proportionately increased price if the products are put up in glass jars, or bottles, instead of in tin cans.

Of the modern methods of trucking which are yet open to improvement mention may be made of the methods of storing for the late winter trade. For instance it seems to be generally admitted that the methods now in vogue for keeping celery are defective for commercial purposes. Truckers are working to solve the problem, however, and ultimately will succeed. So, likewise, they are striving for economies in other directions. For example, means have lately been discovered for utilizing the greenhouses or cold-ing houses for vegetable raising oil through the summer instead of allowing them to stand idle throughout the interval. Some crops are found to do better under glass even in midsummer. Finally it may be noted that even the potato has been standing as a truck crop in late years and thousands of acres are annually planted in early varieties of potatoes which are harvested as soon as they attain suitable size and rushed to market.

AN OLD TIMER IN THE TRUCKING INDUSTRY



A SMALL GREENHOUSE OR FORCING HOUSE



ON A MODERN TRUCK FARM

TYPICAL SCENE AT A PRODUCE WHARF

CULTIVATION UNDER SHADE ON AN AMERICAN FARM

PLENTY FOR STARVING VEGETABLES

GARDEN TROUBLES

This is the season when gardens grow. Gentle reader, have you a garden? No? Oh, you live in a city flat where there wouldn't be room to stond a garden up edgaways? Well, move out of it, right now and go where you can have a garden. If you can't have one any other way, make one. Everybody makes garden in the spring. That is why there is such a demand in the spring for medicine that will correct bad blood. Nobody ever plonted bad blood in his garden, but before this novien is done with it you will discover that bad blood is obout the most successful crop he can raise. If nature attended to her business instead of hanging around waiting for the man to do most everything himself, gardening would be more attractive and popular. But nature simply will not do a thing until o person gets the ground ready and lays it off in plots and drills and rows and beds and things and hops the seeds and plants them.

After all that has been accomplished ot great labor and expense nature takes hold and shoves the sprouts up out of the soil; but no more, for when the plants have got a start once they will grow themselves. But they won't take care of themselves, and nature doesn't, so the man is compelled to look after them. He has to look after them all the time, too, because if he isn't there to work just as hard from then to the finish, as he did from the beginning to then, the kind of a garden he will have will cause his wife and children to giggle at him and prompt his neighbors to give him the horse ha-ha. Besides, there are the weeds and the bugs and the rain and the drought and the chickens and the dogs and the cats and the pigs and the holt weevil and the pip and the scale and the codling moth, and like as not somebody leaves the gate open and the cows get in and— Well, by thunder! it's no wonder all our troubles get their start in o garden.—William J. Lampton, in Judge.

DUST BY THE WAYSIDE.

The man that holds one dollar until the eagle squeals is never arrested for disturbing the peace.

Many a man gets safe in office, then slams the door and builds a fire under the voters when they try to slide down the chimney.

After the office seeks the man it sometimes wonders why it went so far for so little.

Wisdom doesn't remain long enough in one place for people to get well acquainted with it.—Atlanta Constitution.

COUNTRY SCHOOL OF TODAY

Three Hundred Structures of the Modern Type Building in Kansas This Year.

Topeka, Kan.—Kansas has finally decided that the old-fashioned, unsanitary, ill-lighted and poorly-appointed schoolhouse does not produce the best results, and years new and thoroughly modern schoolhouses are being built in the country school districts this year than ever before. Mora school districts hove issued bonds for naw buildiugs this yesr than vers ever offered to the state school fund commission before, and tha bonds ara for larger amounts, which meon better schoolhouses than usuol.

AND TYPE OF SCHOOLHOUSE

MODERN COUNTRY SCHOOLHOUSE

The ordinary schoolhouse has cost from $500 to $800. It was simply a big box, of straight lines, with four windows on each side, a door at ons end and o stove in the center. But the new buildings cost from $1,200 to $2,000, and they are thoroughly modern in lighting, with furnace heat, some oven with steam heat, and with genuine slots blackboards. Every conveniences known to the city schools is being installed in the country schools also.

There are many boys and girls now in the high schools and colleges of the state who got their common school education in one of these old-fashioned bex schoolhouses and there are a few who went to school in sn old sod schoolhouse. There ore a few of these old sod schoolhouses still standing but not a single one is in use in Kansos now. All hove been replaced by the modern structures.

Since the first of the year more than 300 school districts have issued bonds for schoolhouses. In every instance tha bonds ware issued for new buildings. The old ones were used last winter for the last time and when the children started to school this fall they went to a new building with every comfort that is possible to give them. Some districts do not have to issue bonds for the new structures.

TREES GROWING ON A TOWER

Lofty Dome of Indiana Court House Surmounted by Trees Which Birds Planted.

Greensburg, Ind.—Trees are growing on the tower of the court house, 175 feet above the ground. Many years ago, seeds dropped by birds and which fell into crevices of the slate roof of the lofty dome of the tower, germinated, and each year, the young trees became larger. Of the present group, tha principal tree is about twelve feet in beight and is os full of leaves, and as healthy, apparently as its fellows growing far below with mother earth to nourish them.

Planted by Birds.

The growth of the trees on the roof, hos loosened the slate as the roots extended nlong the rafters. It is feared that there will be considerable damage to the building in the course of time. Some of the authorities believe that the trees should thrive with opparently but a trifle of earth.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1911. NO. 26.

INDIGNANT AT THE INJUSTICE

Scholars Would Not Stand to See Much-Loved Teacher Not Getting Her Rights.

The following incident told of a public school teacher of cheery manner and marked ability, noted for her success in leading backward or newilling pupils along the rocky road to knowledge.

In laboring with so especially trying class she was wont to encourage the members by such confident remarks as "Of course we can do it!" "Of course we can learn this lesson as well as other people. If we try!" As exasperation time drew near and the little ones become more nervous, she changed her tune to "Of course we're going to pass!" The children did pass, duly, but, natural pleasure in the unexpected success having evaporated, were sulky and disagreeable almost beyond belief. It took their new teacher a long time to get at the root of the misunderstanding, over which they whispered in corners and because of which they treated her like a bitter enemy. At last, however, she drew from the most pliable youngster this indignant, tearful admission.

"We ain't a-goin' ter study no more in this darned ole school. Here, we come up from Miss Blank's room, an' she stays down there all alone, when she knows as much more than we do. It's a plum shame that they didn't let her pass, too!"

Too Little Ton.

Smiley—That lesmae down the street will have to change his name if he wishes to do any business.

Wiley—Why? What's his name?

Smiley—Littleton. Some people might not notice it, but I am afraid most folks would shy at a name like that on an ice-dealer's sign.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

In Cold Storage.

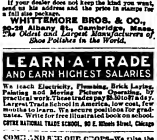
"I am afraid, your honor, this prisoner is a bad egg."

"Hm! Then we'd bettar put him in the cooler."

Do you ever have Headache, Toothache, or Earache? Most people do. Hamlins Wizard Oil is the best household remedy and liniment for these everyday troubles.

True Philosophy.

To have what we want is riches, but to be able to do without is power.—George Macdonald.



Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Friendship is the flower of a moment, sad the fruit of time.—Kotzebue.

Too many officeholders who pretend to be working for their country are merely working it.

Whittemore's Shoe Polishes

Finest in Quality. Largest in Variety. They make Leather Waterproof, by retaining those of all kinds and colors.

GILT EDGE the only ladies shoe dressing that positively remains Gilt. Blacks and Polishes in the act of application. Comes in Bronze, Chestnut and Colorless. Per bottle, 25 cents.

DANDY combination for blacking and polishing all kinds of russet or tan shoes. No. "Nine" size, 10c.

CHIEFTAIN combination for blacking, tops and polishing all kinds of black shoes. Polish with a cloth and leave no dull spots. "Daisy Kicker" size 10 cents.

If your dealer does not keep the kind you want, send us his name and address and the price in stamps and we will supply you.

WHITTEMORE BROS. & CO.,
Sole Agents for Canada, Boston, Mass.
Oldest and Largest Manufacturers of Shoe Polishes in the World.

LEARN A TRADE AND EARN HIGHEST SALARIES

We teach Electricity, Plumbing, Brick Laying, Painting, and Moving Picture Machine Operating. Position secured or money refunded. Largest Trade School in America, low cost, few months to learn. We secure positions for graduates. Write for free illustrated book on school.

COYNE BUILDING, 39 E. Illinois Street, Chicago

COMPLAINT OF EYES.—We rule the Hard Coin Article, Pebbles and Crystal in the Spectacle Lens, Shell Frames, Gold Filled Spectacle Frames, Solid Gold Spectacles, Optical Instruments, and all others, best prices and best satisfaction. Any skilful optician can fit you. For detailed information address: Albert E. Bagley, Lowell, Mass.

FINEST KODAK FINISHING

and supplies by mail. We develop any size film or pack. Trial offer 10 cents; 10 or 12 exp. 20 cents. Any size pack 20 cents. Voegeli Druggist, Minneapolis, Minn.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 38-1911.

WILEY IS UPHELD

PRESIDENT OVERRULES RECOMMENDATIONS OF PERSONNEL BOARD AGAINST EXPERT.

PRAISE FOR CHIEF CHEMIST

Taft's Decision Says the Broadax Issues Raised May Results More Radical Action, Indicating a "Shakeup" in Chemistry Bureau.

Beverly, Mass.—President Taft made public a memorandum which completely vindicates Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, from the charges preferred against that official by a cabal in the department of agriculture and severely condemns persons responsible for the trouble to which the pure food expert has been subjected.

Mr. Taft declares his purpose to overrule the recommendations of the personnel board of the department and Attorney General Wickersham that Doctor Wiley be dismissed and concludes with this significant reference to the house inquiry into the charges against the chief of the chemistry bureau:

"The broader issues raised by the investigation which have a much weightier relation then this one to the general efficiency of the department, may require much more radical action than the question I have considered and decided."

This is regarded as a forecast of summary measures when the president returns to Washington in November.

In his opinion making it known that the "condign punishment" for Doctor Wiley, which Mr. Wickersham held to be necessary, will not be meted out, the president voices no word of criticism for the chemist, but many a word of praise. There is no indication in it that Mr. Taft feels that he "turns down" the attorney general by not accepting his recommendations. He explains that Mr. Wickersham's findings in the case were made with less complete data than that before him when he took it up.

In addition to the recommendation that Wiley be allowed to resign, the personnel board held that Rusby should be dismissed, that Kebler be reduced and that Bigelow be allowed to quit the service. None of these recommendations is upheld in the president's opinion.

Kebler is reprimanded for "disingenuous conduct." In his letter writing to Rusby. Bigelow is held to have been "overzealous," and a reprimand by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is ordered by the president. Rusby is held to be a nullities as Wiley in this particular matter.

A charge against him, however, of securing the appointment on the consular "secret service" roll" of a physician and expert "whom he could use in his work at a very small stipend when he himself was called away," the president holds to be "not especially creditable."

BANK ROBBED OF $315,000

Five Crackamen Blow Safe at New Westminster, B. C., Bind Chinese Caretaker and Escape.

New Westminster, B. C.—Five master crackamen, in flight with $315,000 in gold and bills stolen from the vault of the Bank of Montreal here, are being sought by the police, who have as their only clue the story of a frightened Chinese caretaker who was bound by the robbers as soon as he entered the building.

Content with the bills of large denomination and the gold they could easily transport, they left on the watchman's bed $20,000 in gold, while in the looted vault they left $15,000, with small coins and bills scattered about. When Chong Koh, the caretaker, entered the building, and was captured, bound and gagged, the members had completed their work. The Chinese worked himself free after the bandits had departed sad notified the police.

MAINE VOTE IN BALANCE

Now Appears That Repeal of Liquor Prohibitory Amendment Has a Majority of 134.

Portland, Me. — An apparent majority of 134 votes for repeal of the liquor prohibitory amendment of the Maine constitution was announced in an official statement issued by Secretary of State Cyrus W. Davis as the outcome of Monday's election. The secretary's report is based on signed returns from 509 clerks.

Certain discrepancies which indicate errors by town officials in returning the vote are not taken into account in the secretary's report, as the law requires the secretary of state simply to tabulate the figures as received.

An official recount will probably be necessary to determine the result.

CHENG-TU BESIEGED

BRITISH CONSUL DETAINS MISSIONARIES WHO WOULD QUIT.

Troops Within Walls of City Have Several Engagements With Rebels—Many Latter Slain.

Peking. — Cheng-Tu, capital of Sze-Chuan province, is under siege, and most of the missionaries are within its walls, according to the latest advices received by the Chinese foreign board and the foreign legations. The 1,800 troops garrisoned within the city have had several sanguinary engagements with the besieging rebels.

A dispatch from the prefect of Jan-Chau, about seventy-five miles from Cheng-Tu, dated September 12, said that the troops were firing upon the rebels from the Cheng-Tu walls and that the besiegers had lost many men. The belief is held there that the garrison is capable of resisting the attacks of any number of organized rebels from the outside.

The British consul is reported to have refused permission to five boatloads of missionaries to leave the city.

The Canadian Methodist compound within the city has open access around its own walls. It is believed that the foreigners have taken refuge within this compound, which is considered the strongest and the most easily defended.

Chung King, China. — American and British citizens in the province of Szechuen have been ordered by the British consul, who is temporarily in charge of American interests in this district, to seek places of safety immediately, as the situation in that province is becoming very grave. There are many American missionaries in the rebellious province.

HUNNEWELL BOWS IN SHAME

Commercial Club Appeals to Governor to Stop Row Between Mayoress and Councilmen.

Topeka, Kan. — Shamed by the unsavory aspect of the controversy between Mrs. Ella Wilson, the mayor of Hunnewell, and the town council men there, the Commercial club of that town has appealed to Governor Stubbs to stop the row because of the alleged unsavory advertising Hunnewell is receiving.

There is much agitation of a plan to start general ouster proceedings against the mayor and the members of the council.

NAT GOODWIN AGAIN WEDS?

Gossip at Los Angales Says the Bride is Marjorie Rambeau, an Actress.

Los Angeles, Cal. — A report is current here that Nat Goodwin, the actor, has married Marjorie Rambeau, who was playing in the company with which Goodwin was recently out until two weeks ago. Neither Goodwin nor Miss Rambeau could be found. The report found ready credence among close friends of Goodwin, who hastened to congratulate him—but were unable to find him.

O. K. JOHNSON-WELLS FIGHT

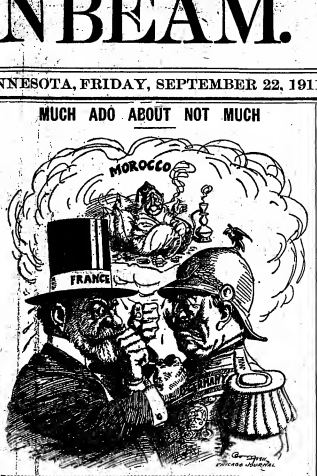
Directors of Earl's Court Decide to Allow Heavyweight Battle in London, Despite Churches' Protests.

London. — The directors of Earl's court, which is controlled by the American amusement promoter, Colwin Brown, decided to allow the Johnson-Wells fight to take place, having been advised that the holding of the contest will not conflict with the terms of their license. The Church Army and other religious bodies have petitioned the county council to prohibit the fight.

SEVEN KILLED, 14 INJURED

Flat Car on Which Fifty Laborers Were Riding is Sideswiped by Freight Train.

Cleveland, O. — While riding home from their work on a flat car, seven out of fifty laborers were killed and fourteen men were injured, half a dozen probably fatally, on the Lake Erie & Pittsburgh railroad, in the southern outskirts of the city. Their train was sideswiped by a freight. All of the men are foreigners.



RAISERS TO DICTATE PRICES

Fort Worth Congress Plans to Control Marketing of All Cattle—To Have $3,000,000 Capital.

Fort Worth, Tex. — A plan to beat the so-called beef trust at its own game was adopted by the consumers and producers' congress executive committee here.

The new organization, supported by the Texas Cattle Raisers' association, will incorporate a selling company with a capital of $3,000,000.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOT MUCH

STOLYPIN IS SHOT

RUSSIAN PREMIER FATALLY WOUNDED WHILE ATTENDING THEATER AT KIEV.

CZAR IS IN ADJOINING BOX

Nihilist Fires Two Bullets at Prime Minister, One Lodges in Spine—Police Arrest Assasain and Prevent Panic in Playhouse.

Kiev, Russia.—Premier Stolypin for the third time is expected to survive the attack of an assasin. Fired upon at close range as he sat defenseless in his chair at the municipal theater, the premier escaped with two wounds, neither of which, it is said, necessarily is fatal.

The bullet penetrated the body, grazing the liver and lodging in the spine. The second shot, fired as his assailant dashed from the box in trying to make his escape, struck the premier in his hand as he fell to the floor.

Emperor Nicholas and his retinue occupied an adjoining box at the time the shooting occurred.

The premier's assailant, who is supposed to be a member of the band of Nihilists that have recently made several attempts on the premier's life, was arrested by the police as he tried to make his escape through the theater lobby.

Instantly the whole house was in an uproar.

Premier Stolypin, avidently seriously wounded, fell across a chair, while friends in his party came at once to his aids and physicians were instantly summoned from the body of the house.

Cries of "the premier has been assasinated" rang through the house and it was with much difficulty that the police were able to prevent a panic.

A few minutes later the premier was carried to his apartments at the Hotel Volva, where he is under the care of physicians.

"I have no doubts that attempts will be made upon my life," said M. Stolypin, when he accepted the premiership in July, 1906, "but I hope that order will be restored and stability established in Russia before they are successful."

Representative government has been its avowed aim and strong-handed reforms have been his policy.

On August 25, 1906, a bomb was thrown into his country house at Aptekarsky island while he was holding a public reception.

The explosion killed 32 persons and wounded a much larger number, insteding the premier's daughter of fifteen and his son of three. The daughter was crippled for life.

Stolypin, who was in his office at the moment came off unhurt.

PEACE CONGRESS PUT OFF

Prevalance of Cholera in Italy Causes Postponement of the International Meeting.

Washington. — The international peace congress, which was scheduled to be held at Rome September 25, has been postponed because of the cholera epidemic in that country. Announcement to this effect was made in a cablegram received by Secretary Trueblood of the American Peace society, from Doctor Gabot, secretary of the International peace bureau at Bern.

HELD FOR BIG THEFT

FEDERAL OFFICERS ARREST S. A. POTTER, ALLEGED "CON" KING.

Loot Totals $1,500,000—Alleged Gold Brick King Arrested After Long Search.

Chicago.—S. C. Potter, alleged leader of a band of confidence men, who is said to have earned $1,500,000 through sales of "gold bricks" and green goods, was arrested by federal authorities. Seated in a Turkish chair in the parlor of his luxurious home at 1223 East Fifty-second street, Potter was smoking a cigar and reading a newspaper when the officers arrived.

The sum of $50,000 offered for Potter's release was refused, and the prisoner was taken to the county jail following a preliminary hearing before United States Marshal Hoy.

Potter was arrested by C. F. De Woody, division superintendent of the United States secret service here, on charge of operating a confidence game in Wisconsin. In addition, his operations are said to have covered the principal cities of the world and his loot to have amounted to not less than $1,500,000.

Potter and his friends are reported to have cleaned up $1,500,000 in cash in the last few years, and have carried on their schemes successfully in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna.

ETNA'S LAVA PERILS 300,000

Many Towns on Slopes of Volcano May Be Swept by Great Molten Streams.

Catania, Sicily. — The eruption of Mount Etna threatens to be of greater proportionse than that of 1879. It is reported that 79 new fissures have opened. The central crater is throwing out an immense amount of cinders.

The river of lava, which is moving slowly northward, hes extended eight miles from its source. It is approaching the railroad stations seven es far away as Molo and Alcantara, which have been abandoned.

The eruption meane s great financial lose to the peasantry who inhabit the slopes of Mount Etna, more than 400 square miles in area. This land supports a population more dense than that of any other portion of Sicily or Italy. There are 65 cities and villages in the entire area, and the number of inhabitants who obtain an excellent agricultural living from the fertile lava beds totals more than 300,000.

The earthquakes continue terrifying the people for miles about.

CONFESSES HE KILLED GIRL

Fearing Mob Ex-Convict Pleads Guilty to Annie Lemberger's Death—Sentenced to Prison for Life.

Madison, Wis.—John A. ("Dogskin") Johnson, former convict end former inmate of the state insane asylum at Meedota, pleaded guilty to the charge of having kidnaped and murdered little Annie Lemberger, seven-year-old daughter of Martin Lemberger, on September 6, and whose body was found le Lake Monona three days later.

Immediately he was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge Donovan. Twenty minutes later Sheriff Brown and Under Sheriff Fege departed with him in an automobile for the state penitentiary at Waupun. The whole proceedings did not last over half an hour.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right side, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 3728 N. D. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drug out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

LOT WAS IMPROVED.

Fred—I love you a whole lot.

Tess—Frank told me yesterday that he loved me a whole house and lot.

Left Him Far Behind.

Childish precedents of greatness are interesting—perhaps because they are at once so like and so unlike the standards of grown folk. Many an adult, for instance, hee been proud with no more reasonable basis then thet which little Johnnie displeyed in attempting to "top" the boasting of a juvenile comrade.

"I've got a reel railroad train, with an engine that goes, an' a reel, live pony, an' a really, truly gun, sir—"

"That's nothing!" interrupted the lad's disgusted listener. "Once I knew a boy that set up until 11 o'clock twice in one week!"

In Seclusion.

"Is your mistress at home?"

"Ate you the bookeeper lady?"

"No, indeed!"

"Then she ain't at home, mum."

There le always a big place weiting for the men who le faithful in a little one.

The Flavour of Post Toasties

Is so distinctly pleasing that it has won the liking of both young and old who never before cared much for cereal food of any kind.

Served direct from the package—crisp and fresh, and—

"The Memory Lingers"

Postum Cereal Company, Ltd.
Battle Creek, Mich.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1906, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

What Ails The State Fair.

The state fair faces a deficit of about $50,000, which the next legislature will be asked to appropriate and make the tax payers foot the bill. The trouble is that the common people, and the farmers in particular have not, and will not attend that fair. No man wants to go to any fair, or any other place of amusement, if he is not welcome. That fair has been nothing more or less, for the past three years than a place for the farmers of this state, and the country merchants, and editors to go and be insulted, by an army of dudes, fitted out with a big star to show their Authority. We visited that fair two years ago, in company with a country merchant expecting to stay three days but he only attended one day and he hasn't been back since. We went the second day, about two o'clock, we quit, and returned home that evening. Last year when they began to send their newspaper advertising we declined to publish it, as we did not feel justified in advising our subscribers, who are mostly plain people to go down to that fair to be insulted by a lot of young twin city dudes, who part their hair in the middle, and set that their panties don't bag at the knee. That is the gang that has cleaned out the farmers attendance at the state fair, and now when they did not go down they want them to send the money down by way of the legislature. If the fair management owe them dudes a job, they had better provide a long bench for them to sit on, out at one side where they will be out of sight of the farmers. Then employ a few men that have a mustache, and a little ordinary brains to meet the farmers, show them gentlemanly treatment, and let them understand that they are welcome visitors, and they will soon all be as sure to go to the fair as they are now to stay away. It is not the price of admission that has driven the farmers of this state away from the state fair, but that army of dudes, of St. Paul and Minneapolis, who has given the old moss backs, as they call them, to understand that they are not wanted there, and the farmers have stayed at home, and the management did not miss them until they counted their cash.

Canada voted on Reciprocity yesterday. We have not heard but you can tell by the price of wheat. If it's up they defeated it. Down they adopted it.

Ole Solberg, of Otter Tail county, "the man behind the plow" has joined the ranks of the progressive republicans, which will be another thorn in the side of the stand patters.

When a candidate for congressional three looms up he will have the search light turned on him to see how he stands on the progressive idea. We do not believe the people of this district would favor a man for election to this important office who did not favor the progressive ideas of our Congressman Steenerson. It would be far better to allow the tenth chair due Minnesota in the lower house of congress remain Vacant than to have it occupied by a Taft republican, at this stage of the game.

Our County Commissioner P. C. Wold is well pleased with our newly fitted up court house, and says that it will do the county good service for a number of years, which should put the bonding ghost to sleep, for some time.

J. Adam Bede may be the next stand pat candidate for congressman at large. It would be fun to see Ole "the man behind the plow" go up against him. Would don't the dust fly. But take this for a tip and bet on Ole to win.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Pay up your back subscription

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam Sep. 23, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 14th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ljot Sigurdson, of Highlanding, Minn. who on Oct. 18th 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 758, Serial No. 01270, for S. W. ¼ Section 28 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 25th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben Kvesle, Tobias Olson, Sjur Sustad, Tom Jacobson, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

CITATION FOR HEARING ON FINAL ACCOUNT.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of Raymond Arndt, Deceased.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA. To Henry Arndt, Anna Arndt, May Arndt, Clary Vaughn, Stella Arndt, Sadie Arndt, Will Arndt and all other persons interested in the final account and distribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this court his final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent, together with his petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled; THEREFORE YOU, AND EACH OF YOU, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this court at the Probate Court Rooms in the City of Thief River Falls in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, on the 18th. day of October 1911, at Ten (10) o'clock A.M., why said petition should not be granted.

WITNESS, the Judge of said court, and the Seal of Said Court, this 15th. day of September 1911.

[Court Seal] Wilhiem Michelet,
Judge of Probate.

Ira C. Richardson, Attorney for Petitioner,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 22, 1911.
Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota September 18th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Even H. Odegaard, of Wanke Minn. who on November 8th, 1905 made Homestead Entry No. 1797, Serial No. 04262, for Lots 1 & 2, S.½ N. E. ¼ Section 3 Township 151 N. Range 39 W., and S.½ E.½ Section 34 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 26th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses.

Christ Thompson, of Lillo Minn. Knut O. Larson, John O. Larson, of Badoll Minn. Nels Rhein, of Wanke Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 22, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. September 18th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole Nilson, of Highlanding Minn., who on October 26, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 778, Serial No. 00398 for S.E. ¼ Section 7 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 4th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Thom M. Thorson, of Highlanding Minn. Jacob Nelsen, of Sunbeam Minn. Kristin O. Vatne, Olaf O. Vatne, of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice of Expiration of redemption. Sale to Purchaser.

Office of County Auditor, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

NOTICE OF EXPIRATION OF REDEMPTION.

To Wm. H. Matthews: You are hereby notified that the following described pelce-or parcel-of land situated in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, Formerly a part of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to wit: Lot one (1) of Section Twenty (20) Township One Hundred Fifty Three (153) Range Forty Two (42) is now assessed in your name, that on the 13th. day of May A.D. 1907, at a sale of land pursuant to the realestate tax judgment, duly given and made in and by the District Court in and for said County of Red Lake on the 25th. day of March A.D. 1907, in proceedings to enforce the payment of taxes delinquent upon realestate for the year A.D. 1905, for said County of Red Lake, the above described piece—or parcel-of land was sold for the sum of Six Dollars and Sixty Seven Cents; that the Certificate issued for said land at said sale has been presented to me at my office as the holder thereof for the purpose of having notice of redemption from said sale given and served, that the amount requid to redeem said peice—or parcel-of land from said sale at the date of this notice exclusive of the costs to accrue upon this notice, is the sum of Fifty Dollars and Seventy Two Cents (said sum being the aggregate amount of said sum for which said land was sold at said sale and interest thereon at 12 per cent per annum, delinquent taxes penalties, costs and interests thereon accruing subsequent to said sale and paid by said purchaser, and all unpaid delinquent taxes, interest, costs and penalties accruing upon said land subsequent to said sale); and that the time for redemption of said peice—or parcel—of land from said sale will expire sixty (60) days after the service of this notice and proof of said service has been filed in my office.

WITNESS My hand and seal of office this 16th, day of June A.D. 1911.

(Official Seal) A. A. Latendresa.
County Auditor,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.

RETURN OF SHERIFF PERSON NAMED NOT FOUND AND LAND VACANT.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake } SS.

I Charles Fellman, Sheriff of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, do hereby certify and return that I have made and caused to be made diligent search for Wm. H. Matthews, the person named in the within notice and have been unable to find him in my said County; and that I have inspected and examined the land described in the within notice for the purpose of serving said notice upon the person in possession or occupancy thereof; and that there is no person in possession or occupancy of said land and the same is vacant and unoccupied.

Charles Fellman,
Sheriff,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Sep. 1st, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 31st, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Jorens Erickson, of Highlanding Minn. who on December 26th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1075, Serial No. 04334, for N.W. ¼ Section 31 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five Year Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben Erickson, of Thief River Falls Minn Ben Sitrud, Elias Sanders, Nat Erickson of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sept. 15th, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 13, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Halvor Halvorson, of Brandenburg Minn., who on October 4, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 658, Serial No. 00216, for Lots 3, 4 & S. ½ N. W. ¼ Section 3, Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before William Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 9th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Per Soltun, Andrew Sandland, Christian O. Nygaard, Torjus T. Hennestvedt, all of Brandenburg Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Livingstone.

Of Dr. Livingstone it was said by Stanley that the missionary lived for years among the most cruel and ignorant savages in the world, but he never died a shoe in anger, never exhibited or showed up temper as he said." His manner was that of a "cool, wise old hero who felt offended and looked grave."

Circumstances Reversed.

Unkempt Smith—Mister, would youse kindly help a poor lad on to a job? I'm down and out. Jocular Citizen—Brace, certainly. Just climb the fire escape on that skyscraper across the street and walk in on the top floor. Then you will be at rest, my lad.—Judge's Library.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 15, 1911.
Department of the Interior.. U. S. land Office at Crookston Minn. September 6th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Martin McLandress, one of heirs of Mary Sullivan deceased, of St. Hilaire Minnesota, who on October 10, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 751, Serial No. 1106, for N.W. ¼ Section 10, Township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on the 16th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl G. Olson of Krattka Minn. L. Dalaine of St. Hilaire Minn. Walter McAndress, and William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Aug. 18.
Department of the Interior. U. S land office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 16th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ben K. Kvisle, of Highlanding Minn. who on Oct. 26th. 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 758, Serial No. 01270, for Lots 4, 5, 8, W. ½ S. W. ¼ Section 34 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of Thief river falls Minn. on the 20th. day of September 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben K. Kvisle, Tobias Olson, Sjur Sustad, Tom Jacobson, all of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Aug. 18.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 16th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Tollak Svenson Dale, of Highlanding Minn. who on Oct. 26th. 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 754, Serial No. 01268, for Lots 4, 5, 8, W. ½ S. W. ¼ Section 34 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of Thief river falls Minn. on the 25th. day of September 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Tollak Svenson Dale, Ben K. Kvisle Sjur Sustad, Jodrick A. Kolstrand, all of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Completely Cured Our Little Boy of Fits."

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health.

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy who was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 10 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and lots of medicine, but all to them said he would not be cured, but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now hale, hearty and fat. It has been three years since he had a spell. I shall always use Dr. Miles' Remedies when ever I can. You are at liberty to use this letter as you see fit and any one writing to me I will gladly answer if they enclose stamp for reply."

F. M. BOGUE, Windfall, Ind.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

is just what it is represented to be, a medicine compounded especially for nervous troubles, such as fits, spasms, St. Vitus' dance, convulsions and epilepsy. These diseases frequently lead to insanity or cause death. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven most effective in relieving these dreaded maladies.

Sold by druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit your money is returned.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

RHODA STORE.

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

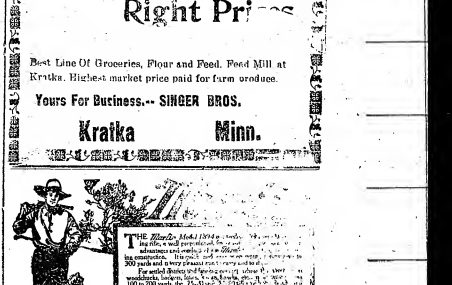
I HAVE A FINE LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!



Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT SINGER BRO. KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods at the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

The Orange in Spain.

It is considered a very healthful thing to eat an orange before breakfast. But who ever heard an orange well? One must go to Spain to see that done. The senorita cuts off the rind with her silver knife, then, putting her fork into the peeled fruit, she detaches every morsel with her pearly teeth and continues to eat the orange without losing a drop of the juice and lays down the core with the fork still in it.

Unpalatable.

The Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon was fond of a joke, and his keen wit was, moreover, based on sterling common sense. One day he remarked to one of his sons:

"Can you tell me the reason why the lions didn't eat Daniel?"

"No, sir," was the reply.

"Because the meat of him was hackbone and the rest was grit."—Youth's Companion.

Going the Rounds.

Husband of Tomorrow (receiving wedding present)—That awful crockery fiddler! Wife of Tomorrow—Yes, dear. You saw it in the Brown's. They got it as a wedding present and gave it to the Smiths at theirs. It's the limit of presents. But never mind, Harry's wedding comes off so

Exaggerated Ego.

One of the loudest liars in this world is the sixteen candle kind of man to go to keep from mistaking himself for a lighthouse.—Galveston News.

Passion For Music.

Mrs. Brown—Did you say your son has a passion for music? Mrs. Jones—Every time I slug him into one.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Box Was Good.

Wife—Wasn't that a good box of cigars I gave you on your last birthday? Husband—Yes; I never saw a better box, my dear.

Below the Average.

Apropos of loss of friends somebody was saying one day before Morgan, the great calculator of lives, that they had lost so many friends, mentioning the number, in certain spans of time. Upon which Morgan, coolly taking down a book from his office shelf and looking into it, said, "So you ought, sir, and three more."—Thomas Moore.

Willing to Risk It.

Uncle—My dear boy, it's a fact that the bacilli on paper money have caused many a death before now. Nephew—Yeah, uncle, but you might let me have a few, anyhow. I'm very fond of life.—

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

For Sale. A young driving team cheap, if taken soon. Lenard McAndress. Sunbeam Minn.

Pay up your back subscription.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof

Wanted, teams and men to break from 30 to 80 acres of land. Wm. Strickmar, Roland Minn.

Stephen Singer is threshing his crop of flax raised on his Kratka homestead to day.

T. S. Jacobson, of Highlanding reports 23 bushels of wheat to the acre on his entire field.

Walt McAndress has been enlarging his grainry this week, to make room for the big crop.

For Health and Energy Eat CREAM OF RYE
For Breakfast. Reduces Cost of Living. Free Silver Spoon in Every Package. Ask your Grocer for a Package.

Martin Hylend and S.L. Holm are helping to move the Griffith dredge up to Horseshoe lake this week.

The Oscar Swanson threshing machine is now as far north as Ole Skrellanda place and with fair weather will be in this neighborhood the first of next week.

Parties wanting to advertise should not forget that THE SUNBEAM is the paper that has the circulation among the famers, in eastern Red Lake and Pennington Counties.

Singer Bros. has employed the services of K. Kratzer as head carpenter on their new Kratka store and the work will be rushed to completion this fall.

Sheriff Labres was up this way yesterday, and forgot a dollar, which he left lying on our table. Would it into our pocket and save him a year credit on subscription.

C.L. Clark and Wilson have completed their road work in the town of Star and are moving down onto the grade running north from Highlanding, which they have a contract to level.

We shall start building on our new homestead next week, where we will make our home. The land corners on the Sunbeam farm, and will make us about a quater of a mile walk to get to our office. But who wouldn't be a homesteader?

James O'Brien and Henry Boss commenced breaking on our new homestead to-day, and we propose to get after our share of them big eastern Pennington county crops, which never faile. 20 bushels of wheat or 15 bushells of flax to the acre looks pretty good to us.

Mr. K. Kratzer, from western Washington was down to Thief River Falls Tuesday and filed a homested entry on three forty's on section 7 in Deer Park township. He says this country looks good to him, compared to Washinton, and has sent for his family and will make his home here.

The fellow in Thief River wood reported that Red Lake had sank three feet is defeated as a liar, by some duck in that city, who reported to the Game and Fish Commission on Aug. 18th, that Red Lake River was open from its source to its mouth. Stand aside you lake liar and let the riverman go to the head, for you are beaten.

This school district No. 37 has a teacher with a first grade certificate and is fully qualified in all the higher branches. Parents of advanced shcolars who do not feel able to go to the expense of sending their children away to high school can send them to the Highlanding school, and be sure they will find a teacher who can teach them.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Highlanding now have a bridge across Red Lake River, and boats are out of date.

Some of the farmers are talking of building dams across the river, so as to hold water for their stock this winter.

Ben Kvistie, Tobias Olson and Tallak Dale will go to Thief River Falls Monday to make final proof on their homesteads.

L.M. Haug has severd his connections with the First State Bank of Thief River Falls and has removed to 425 Temple Court Minneapolis and has organized the Haug Security Co., which will do a large farm loan business.

While there has been frequent light showers the past month, there has not been any heavy rains and the grass is getting to very dry, so be careful about setting out fires. Steam threshermen should keep screens over the smoke stacks of their engines when crossing the prairie, so as not to set fire to the grass

STATEMENT OF THE HIGHLADING CREAMERY.
FOR JULY.

Cream Received	25,456.
Avr test	26-11
Butter Fat	6.648
Butter made	7,934.
Overun	1,286.
Price paid for butter fat 25 1/2 c.
Receipts.
Butter Shipped	$1,874,26.
Sold Patrons	$17,44
Elsewhare	$8,06.
Other Sources	$7,41
Balence from last month	$37,67
Disbursments:
Paid Patrons by check	$1,614,89.
Butter	$17, 44.
Running exnenses	207,17.
Sinking fund	55,98.
Bal. at the end of month	49,36.
Bal. $1,944,84.——1,944,84.

Guy Melius, Sec.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

This week we again drop back to a four page paper. This move was made necessary by the none payment of subscription. If some of you don't like it scratch your head and think how long it is since you paid any subscription, and the publisher of this paper has to put up the cold cash to a newspaper company every month. In addition to that we are paying postage on a large number past due subscribers who seem to be disposed to let us do the worring. We know that old friends and paying subscribers, who take the paper and pay for it, for the part we publish will accept the change kindly when they understand the situation, but a lot of them who owe from four to eight years subscription, are likely to be so med that they will rush down to the post office and tell the post master to stop the paper, as they won't take a four page paper when they should have an eight page, all complete on time. Our paper is as much a legal paper as a four page paper as an eight page, and it has been a case throwing the money made in one department away in the other department, for the past two years, so we concluded to stop it.

We Carry A Full Line Of Dry Goods.

Shoes, Groceries, Hickorg Hardware

Paints & Fencewire

We keep A Snpply Of Mower Guards, Sections And Rivits

Leave Your Orders With Us For Binding Twine.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W.G. Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

Quieker.

"How are you makin' out?" asked one Pullman porter

"Well, I used to think I was doin' pretty good," replied the other, "but after seein' a train held up by a road agent the other day I feel a good deal like throwin' this old whiskbroom away and gettin' a revolver."—Washington Star.

Modern Children.

"How old are you, Elsie?"

"Nine years."

"And you, Evan?"

"I am twelve."

"Really twelve? You are wonderfully well preserved!"—Pliegende Blatter.

Talked Too Much.

Wife (reproachfully)—You forget how you once breathed your love in my ear and promised that my every wish should be gratified.

Husband—No, I don't, but I wish now I'd followed the hygienic rule of keeping my mouth shut while breathing.—Boston Transcript.

Billiards.

"Have you heard the billiard cesus drum? Well, here it is:

"What made the red ball blush?

"Why, when it saw the two white kiss in the corner."

How "Thon" Would Work.

"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a luxury which the English language has thus far had the fortitude to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows:

If a parent desires to spank thon's this or her, as the case may be child thon the ur she should take thon (him, her or it) across thon's knee. Then thon should remove thon's slipper, and after explaining to the child the reprehensibility of thon's conduct thon should apply the slipper to that portion of thon's anatomy which from time immemorial has been dedicated to that purpose.

It may easily be seen from the above how "thon" affects great clarification.—Lippincott's.

U.S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS DESIGNS COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

HE PUNISHED GRANT.

The Cadet Was Guilty of Dismounting Without Leave.

While a student at West Point U. S. Grant excelled in mathematics and horsemanship. He jumped his horse over a bar five feet six inches high, which made a record for the academy and a close second to the highest jump ever recorded in America. He received little honor for some of his efforts, however, notably in the case recalled by Nicholas Smith in "Grant, the Man of Mystery." But perhaps the humor of it reconciled him.

The riding master was one Hornberger, "an amusing sort of tyrant," and on one occasion, whether seriously or as a joke, he determined to "take down" the young cadet.

At the exercise Grant was mounted on a powerful but vicious bronco that the cadets fought shy of and was put at leaping the bar.

The bar was placed higher and higher as he came round the ring till it passed the record. The stubborn rider would not say "enough," but the horse was disposed to shy and refuse to make the leap.

Grant gritted his teeth and spurred at it, but just as the horse gathered for the spring his swelling body burst the girth, and the rider and saddle tumbled into the ring.

Half stunned, Grant gathered himself up from the dust only to hear the "strident, cynical voice" of Hornberger calling out:

"Cadet Grant, ex delimits for dismissing dismounted."

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEAR STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. F. Timm, Pres. Samuel Gilbeau Vice Pres.
Larry O'Neil, Arthur Paquine, T. L. Crozon.
J. A. Tetu, Cashier. T. L. Crozon, Assist. Cashier.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to inventors." "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE,

PATENT ATTORNEYS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Specifics cure by acting directly upon the diseases, without exciting disorder in any other part of the system.

No.	CURES	PRICE
1	Fevers, Congestions, Inflammations	.25
2	Worms, Worm Fever, Worm Colic	.25
3	Teething, Colic, Crying, Wakefulness	.25
4	Diarrhea, of Children or Adults	.25
7	Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis	.25
8	Neuralgia, Toothache, Faceache	.25
9	Headache, Sick Headache, Vertigo	.25
10	Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weak Stomach	.25
11	Suppressed or Painful Periods	.25
12	Whites, Too Profuse Periods	.25
13	Croup, Laryngitis, Hoarseness	.25
14	Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Eruptions	.25
15	Rheumatism, Rheumatic Pains	.25
16	Malaria, Chills, Fever and Ague	.25
19	Catarrh, Influenza, Cold in the Head	.25
20	Whooping-Cough	.25
27	Kidney Diseases	.25
28	Nervous Debility	1.00
30	Urinary Weakness, Wetting Bed	.25
77	Grip, Hay Fever	.25

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the Improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

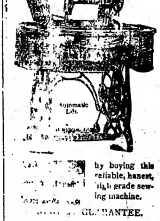
We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes.

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 25 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machines



Electric Cleaner Co.

68 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

The "Redgeton"

SEWING MACHINE.

ROYALLY HELPING. HIGH GRADE.

by buying this reliable, handsome, high grade sewing machine.

GUARANTEE.

Sewing Machine Co.

ILLINOIS.

Easy Pay Cash

WHEN YOU CAN BUY ON

Easy Credit Terms

PIANOS $124.75 Up.

ORGANS $17.00 up.

SEWING MACHINES $7.50

STOVES and RANGES

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE

all kinds at 60 cents up.

SAFES and STEEL SAFES, TYPEWRITERS and OFFICE FURNITURE From $5.25 up.

We are the largest manufacturers on the Pacific Coast, have unlimited capital and sell from the workshop to the fireside at one profit. We pay freight to your station in the United States. No other manufacturer will let you have a piano for 3 years while using it, then exchange it for another if you wish. Write for Illustrated and Free Catalogue can well be claimed of a book that has the unqualified indorsement of the Executive Departments of the Government, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, all the State Superintendents of Schools, nearly all of the College Presidents, Principals of Normal Schools, and Educators generally.

THE ENGLEWOOD CO.

AUTHORITY OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

The New and Enlarged Edition of Webster's International Dictionary of the English, Biography, Geography, Fiction, etc., has 2380 quarto pages with 5000 illustrations. It also has 25,000 new words, new Gazetteer of the World, and a new Biographical Dictionary, all edited by W. T. Harris, Ph.D., LL.D., U. S. Commissioner of Education, bringing the work fully up to date. It received the HIGHEST AWARD at the World's Fair, St. Louis.

THE GRAND PRIZE

FREE—A Test in Pronunciation," interesting and entertaining for the whole family. Also illustrated pamphlet.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO., Publishers, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Another Quibble.

"Don't you hate to sleep in an upper berth?"

"No; I like to sleep when I have to take an upper berth."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Appropriate.

"Here's a hairpin in the soup, waiter," said the mad diner.

"Yes, sir. It's all right. It's hair soup, sir."—Yonkers Statesman.

Cement Talk No. 6

Repairs are the bane of the property owner. Today it is new porch steps, tomorrow it will be a new sidewalk, soo. it will be a well curb. Why not cut out bothersome patching? Why not build those things once and for all, using concrete? It will stand the frost, rain and sun for years, if you make it carefully. Use clean, coarse sand, well graded gravel or crushed stone and UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT. Mix carefully and stop that repair nuisance. The best dealers sell UNIVERSAL and are proud of its record of successful work. Ask them for helpful booklets and prices or write us.

UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO.
SECURITY BANK BLDG., MINNEAPOLIS
ANNUAL OUTPUT 10,000,000 BARRELS

ADDED 'EM UP.

Hix—You said your gun would shoot 900 yards.

Dix—I know I did.

Hix—It's marked to shoot only 450 yards.

Dix—I know, but there are two barrels.

A Trifle Withered.

In his native tongue no one could have made more graceful speeches that Monsieur Hinc; but when he escaped compliments in English he was not quite so successful.

"Have I changed in the five years since we met in Paris?" asked the elderly woman who desired above all things to be thought younger, much younger, than she was.

"Madame," said the courtier, his hand on his heart, "you look like a rose of 20 years!"—Youth's Companion.

No Doubt About It.

"Do you consider yourself good enough for my daughter?"

"I am if, as you say, she is like you."

A HIT

What She Gained by Trying Again.

A failure at first makes us esteem final success.

A family in Minnesota that now enjoys Postum would never have known how good it is if the mother had been discouraged by the failure of her first attempt to prepare it. Her son tells the story:

"We had never used Postum till last spring when father brought home a package one evening just to try it. We had heard from our neighbors, and in fact every one who used it, how well they liked it.

"Well, the next morning Mother brewed it about five minutes, just as she had been in the habit of doing with coffee without paying special attention to the directions printed on the package. It looked weak and didn't have a very promising color, but nevertheless father raised his cup with an air of exceptancy. It certainly did give him a great surprise, but I'm afraid in place of a very pleasant one, for he put down his cup with a look of disgust.

Mother wasn't discouraged though, and next morning gave it another trial, letting it stand on the stove till boiling began and then letting it boil for fifteen or twenty minutes, and this time we were all so pleased with it that we have used it ever since.

"Father was a confirmed dyspeptic and a cup of coffee was to him like poison. So he never drinks it any more, but drinks Postum regularly. He isn't troubled with dyspepsia now and is actually growing fat, and I'm sure Postum is the cause of it. All the children are allowed to drink it and they are perfect pictures of health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

STATE OF MINNESOTA

Executive Department.

Proclamation.

That the fire waste is increasing year by year and becoming more and more appalling within the State of Minnesota is certain.

I.

To determine by a congress of representative men, interested in the preservation of the wealth of our state, what the loss of property has been by reason of fire, the causes therefor, and how such waste can be reduced, will contribute greatly to the advancement of the state and to the economic welfare of its people. The magnitude of loss of property by fire, as well as the cost of fire prevention, is not grasped by the average man. It is estimated that approximately one-half a billion dollars is annually expended by the people of the United States for this purpose.—a sum one-half as great as the entire budget of our federal government. Nearly two hundred fifty million dollars represents the loss by fire. A sum which would be equaled if a per capita tax of $2.71 were collected from every man, woman and child in the United States. In no European country does the per capita loss exceed 60 cents.

During the past fifteen years conflagrations incidents that approximately two billion dollars and twenty thousand lives have been "sacrificed to fire." Minnesota has borne too great a part of this enormous loss of property. The loss of timber in our state by forest fires is almost beyond computation. Property destroyed by fire is a total and absolute loss. Every indication points to an increase of loss by fire in our state during the year 1911.

II.

The season of the year when fires are wont to increase in number is at hand. The heating stove of the householder is again to be utilized, and the smoke therefrom must penetrate the swellow's nest before escaping. It is believed that more than fifty per cent of our fire loss is due to incendiarism or negligence. Much can be done for the prevention of fires by criminals, or through carelessness. Carelessness in the use of fire and lights in householdkeeping is common. Carelessness in the use of matches is universal. Inflammable rubbish in factories is too often found. Dark and dirty hallways where matches are scratched and where cigar and cigarette stubs are thrown are too frequently the cause of fires. Tenants visit dark basements by means of candles, or old-fashioned oil lamps. Unsafe oil stoves are sold and employed. Oily waste is not rarely found in packing houses, factories and lumber yards. Property is not carefully watched and those things which produce fire are improperly guarded.

III.

It is meet that our people should be instructed and caused to realize that fire waste is impoverishing our commonwealth. Taking into account these vital considerstions for the welfare of our state, I hereby do proclaim the eighth day of November, 1911, as, by known as Minnesota Fire Prevention Day, and urge that it be so recognized and observed in all degrees. Ments of the state, in all public and private institutions of learning, and by all organizations and persons interested in the social and economic uplift of our people. It is urged that the fire-loss, as the strongest factor in the development of public sentiment, impress the importance of this movement upon our people.

And I do further proclaim the holding of a Minnesota Fire Prevention Congress, to be held in the Palm Room, Saint Paul Hotel, in the City of St. Paul, on said eighth day of November, and earnestly invite the entire citizenship of the state to participate and co-operate in carrying out the plans of this gathering, that its purposes may be fully realized.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be hereto affixed at the Capitol, in the City of St. Paul, this 7th day of September, A. D. 1911.

ADOLPH O. EBERHART,
Governor.
(Seal.)
Attest:
Julius A. Schmahl, Secretary of State.
A. M. Hayes, Executive Clerk.

8-Cent Sugar Predicted.

New York, N. Y. — An extraordinary jump in the price of refined sugar was announced here by the American Sugar Refining company and Arbuckle Brothers, the largest distributors in the country. The American advanced the price 10 points to $4.70 per hundred, while the Arbuckle raise is 25 points in the market to 7 cents per pound. Dealers in eagles anticipate further increases in prices, and it is reported that retailers are preparing to raise their prices to 8 cents a pound.

Ohio Convicts Try To Escape.

Columbus, Ohio. — Three prisoners, among them Otis Hurley, known as the "poison demon," attempted to escape from the Ohio state penitentiary only to be stopped by a shot from the gun of a guard.

Held as a Fugitive from Justice.

New York, N. Y.—Samuel Cohen, arrested here on complaint of the Chicago police, who accuse him of having stolen a $2,000 Amati violin, was held by a magistrate in $5,000 bail for examination as a fugitive from justice.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

DURNED TOWNS NOW PROSPER.

Baudette and Spooner Develop Wonderfully Since Fires.

Duluth.—W. A. McGonagle and H. V. Eva, members of the state Red Cross relief committee for the border district, returned from Baudette and Spooner, after attending to the last details in connection with the relief work to which the two cities and the surrounding country were reduced by the forest fires last October.

A fair is being held at Baudette this week. Fodder corn aight to twelve feet high, oats, potatoes, all sorts and garden truck, all well developed and in good quantities are in sight.

"I was surprised and delighted by the developments," said Mr. Eva. "The tar-paper shacks that were erected by the relief committee have become parts of substantial houses. Additions were made and the whole completed, so that the temporary shelters that were provided are now the kitchens of houses that are in most cases better than those that stood on the sites when the flames swept down on the towns last fall.

NEWS NOTES.

Brainerd.—The Pillager fair will be held Sept. 21-23; the Pequot fair Sept. 27-29; Park Rapids fair Sept. 13-15; Motley fair, Sept. 14-15.

Lake City.—The barn on the farm of George Lamont of Book Center, was struck by lightning and burned. Four valuable horses were cremated.

Hastings. — At the last week's meeting of the city council a franchise was granted the Interurban Construction Company, to operate its proposed trolley lines which will be extended from Ivor Grove to Hastings.

Minnesota Lake.—The council has established the price of liquor licenses at $1,500 and limited the number of saloons to two. This raises the same revenue that six saloons brought in several years ago, when the license was $500.

Bemidji. — This Beltrami county grand jury completed its consideration of evidence in the Dumas case and reported to Judge Stanton. As there were four documents handed to the judge, it is presumed four indictments were returned.

Karlstad.—The town and surrounding country have been alive with business since the chicken season opened. It was reported that the chickens were numerous this year, as the weather has been favorable for hatching, but the hunters say that, although there is enough for a pretty fair shoot, they are by no means as plentiful as reported.

Little Falls. — An urgent plea for the initiative, referendum and recall, as the first means of the people securing privileges that are rightfully their's, definitions of progressives and "standpatters," and a thrust at the recent Bankers rate decision were features of a speech by Congressamn Lindbergh at the Morrison County fair here.

Red Wing.—D. M. Neill, Red Wing, president of the Minnesota Federation of Commercial clubs, will attend the third national conservations congress at Kansas City, Sept. 25-27, as the personal representative of Governor Eberhart. Fifteen delegates-at-large have been appointed from Minnesota and it is expected that the majority will attend.

Mankato.—L. A. Stacy, of Algona, Iowa, has begun suit in United States court in this city against the city of St. James to recover $2,500 damages for injuries received on a defective sidewalk and fell. He says the bona in his lama leg was fractured.

Winona.—A movement has been started for the construction of a new steamer to be operated between Wabasha and Lansing, Iowa, on the place of the La Crosse, which has been in service this year. Captain Louis Munts of the La Crosse has started a canvass among merchants in the river towns touched. Some $25,000 will be required. Owners of the La Crosse will put in the $10,000 represented in the boat and wharves.

Warren.—Nels Mann, one of the wall to do farmers of the township of Bloomer, ten miles northwest of town, has installed an electric lighting plant on his farm. The plant was installed by his son, who is an electrician, and is similar to the outfits used in small towns, but in addition to the generating machinery there is a storage battery, making it necessary to use low voltage. The batteries, when they are fully charged, will light an ordinary farm residence for about two weeks. The generator is run by a small gasoline engine. Mr. Malm's residence also has a heating plant and hot and cold water in different parts of the house.

St. Paul. — Appointment of 2,000 farmers as delegates to the Farmers' National congress, to be held in Columbus, Ohio, is urged upon Governor Eberhart by Eric Olson, vice president of the congress in Minnesota. The congress is to be held October 12 to 16. Last year 175 dalegates were appointed.

Faribault.—The 1911-12 term of the Minnesota school for the daaf opened here. Students have been arriving for several days. The new auditorium and additional school and working rooms, which were completed last spring, are now available.

HAVE YOU SUSPECTED YOUR KIDNEYS?

Thousands suffer from backache, headaches and weakness without suspecting their kidneys. Mrs. Leigh Cross, Church St., Morrilton, Ark., says: "For weeks I was all doubled over with pain. I became so dizzy I had to grasp something to keep from falling and my ankles were swollen in nearly twice their natural size. None of the doctors understood my case and I felt myself sinking lower day by day. I improved rapidly through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and at last was entirely cured."

"When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S."

For sale by druggists and general storekeepers everywhere. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

CONTAGIOUS.

Gayhore—When my wife saw the condition I was in when I got home from the club last night it just staggered her!

Hartley—I'm not surprised. You know you drank enough for two, old man!

PHYSICIAN SAID ECZEMA CAME FROM TEETHING

"When my little girl was about eight months old, she was taken with a very irritating breaking out, which came on her face, neck and back. When she first came down with it, it came in little watery-like fastars under her eyes, and on her chin, than after a few days it would dry down in scaly, white scabs. In the daytime she was quite a worryance and would dig and scratch her face nearly all the time.

"I consulted our physician and found she was suffering from eczema, which he said came from her teething. I used the ointment he gave me and without any relief at all. Then I wrote for a book on Cuticura, and purchased some Cuticura Soap and Ointment at the drug store. I did as I found directions in the Cuticura Booklet, and when she was one year old, she was entirely cured. Now she is three years and four months, and she has never been troubled with eczema since she was cured. (Signed) Mrs. Freeman Craver, 311 Ash St., Syracuse, N. Y., May 6, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-p. Book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 2 K, Boston.

Qualified Prayer.

Marion's mother was ill, and the aunt who took her place at the head of the household plied the children with unaccustomed and unwelcome dislike articles of diet. One day, after being compelled to eat onions, Marion refused to say grace.

"Then you must sit at the table until you are ready to say it!" was the aunt's stern judgment. An hour or so later, when the brilliant sunshine and impatient calls of her comrades together comprised an irresistible appeal, Marion capitulated—thus:

"Oh, Lord, make me thankful for having had to eat horrid old onions, if you can do it. But I know you can't."

Don't Expect Kindness.

There are six sorts of people at whose hands you need not expect much kindness. The narrow minded think of nobody but themselves, the lazy are too indifferent, the busy have not time to think, the dull disregard appeals for kindness, the poor have neither spirit nor ability, and the good natured fool is not capable of serving you.—Homa Notes.

Witsiy Sarcasm.

"I hear they are wearing nothing but old clothes at Plunkville nowadays," said Mrs. Fangle. "Are you for us go, wife."

"Yes. I can take saran trunks of old clothes. If old clothes are the racket, I can make a splurge."

Stop the Pain.

The hurt of a burn or a cut stops when Cole's Carbolsalve is applied. It heals quickly and prevents scars. 25c and 50c by druggists. For free sample write to J. W. Cole & Co., Black River Falls, Wis.

Such a plaitiuda of n world, in which all working horses can be well fed, and innumerahla working men dia starved.

Being a vice-president is almost as unimportant as being the bridegroom at a church wedding.

The Trouble With Humor.

E. N. Brown, president of the National Railways of Mexico, discussing in New York a railroader who was always out of work, said: "He is too quick with his tongue—that's the trouble. He has a ready wit that he is too apt to use upon his boss." Then, with a laugh Mr. Brown uttered this epigrammatic and true saying: "

"Repartee has lost as many men their jobs as it has made others their reputations."

The Hero's Lament.

Achilles lamented his vulnerable heel.

"It means my wife will always make me wipe my shoes off when I come in the house," he cried.

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they not only give relief—they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

$900 Imported Percheron Stallion, $600 Imported Percheron Mare, combined; just landed, very heavy at 2 years old; sold in pieces, broke to harness. E. E. Smith, Lacyer, Kansas.

Bettis Eye Salve

It's Use Will Quickly End Weak, Sore Eyes

Pleasant, Refreshing, Beneficial,

Gentle and Effective.

NOTE THE NAME

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. in the Circle, on every Package of the Genuine.

DO NOT LET ANY DEALER DECEIVE YOU.

SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA HAS GIVEN UNIVERSAL SATISFACTION FOR MORE THAN THIRTY YEARS PAST, AND ITS WONDERFUL SUCCESS HAS LED UNSCRUPULOUS MANUFACTURERS OF IMITATIONS TO OFFER INFERIOR PREPARATIONS UNDER SIMILAR NAMES AND COSTING THE DEALER LESS; THEREFORE, WHEN BUYING,

Note the Full Name of the Company

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

PRINTED STRAIGHT ACROSS, NEAR THE BOTTOM, AND IN THE CIRCLE, NEAR THE TOP OF EVERY PACKAGE OF THE GENUINE. REGULAR PRICE 50c. PER BOTTLE. ONE SIZE ONLY. FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS.

MINIATURE PICTURE OF PACKAGE.

SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA IS THE MOST PLEASANT, WHOLESOME AND EFFECTIVE REMEDY FOR STOMACH TROUBLES, HEADACHES AND BILLOUSNESS DUE TO CONSTIPATION, AND TO GET ITS BENEFICIAL EFFECTS IT IS NECESSARY TO BUY THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE WHICH IS MANUFACTURED BY THE

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

Free—To Lenox Soap Users

If you use Lenox Soap and would like a copy of a 68-page book—"Approved Methods for Home Laundering," send us a Lenox Soap wrapper, tell us that you want a "laundry book," and we will send it, absolutely free.

The book is exceedingly practical. It was written by a well-known authority on laundry matters, and covers the subject thoroughly.

The Procter & Gamble Co.
Cincinnati, Ohio

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

WOMEN wear W.L.Douglas stylish, perfect fitting, easy walking boots, because they give long wear, same as W.L.Douglas Men's shoes.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The workmanship which has made W.L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L.Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom.

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes in your town, write for catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W. L. Douglas, 146 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $2, $2.50 or $3 SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes

COLT DISTEMPER

One be handled very easily. The sick are cured, and all others made immune to SPOHN COLT DISTEMPER. Don't borrow the disease by doctoring sick horses in your stable. Keep well horses well. Spohn Distemper Compound is the only preventive and cure. Has been used successfully for all forms of distemper for over 20 years. Not only used by horse owners, but by the leading horse importers, breeders, trainers and managers of public stables. Send for free booklet, testimonials, etc. Sold by druggists, or sent express paid by manufacturers. Cut above used by permission of Dr. Spohn. Beware of substitutes and imitations. Accept nothing else. Spohn Medical Co., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can tell how to dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG COMPANY, Quincy, Ill.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1911. NO. 27.

SHE GOT WHAT SHE WANTED

This Woman Had to Insist Strongly, but it Paid

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a female weakness and stomach trouble, and I went to the store to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but the clerk did not want to let me have it—he said it was no good and wanted me to try something else, but knowing all about it I insisted and finally got it, and I am so glad I did, for it has cured me.

"I know of so many cases where women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I can say to every suffering woman if that medicine does not help her, there is nothing that will."—Mrs. JANETZKE, 1903 Arch St., Chicago, Ill.

This is the age of substitution, and women who want a cure should insist upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, just as this woman did, and not accept something else on which the druggist can make a little more profit.

Women who are passing through the critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It's one kind of tough luck to strike oil when boring for water.

When we read the lives of distinguished men in any department we find them always celebrated for the amount of labor they could perform.—Everett.

Most Expensive Hat.

The most expensive hat in the world is said to be a wonderful creation belonging to Princess Mitlosch Bukbarest, one of the richest and most fashionable women in Roumania. The hat, which is worth about $1,000, is of black tagal straw and is very large. It is lined with silver lace and covered with a number of perfect white ospreys.

Red Cross Christmas Seals.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis will this year for the first time has national agent for the American Red Cross in handling the sale of the Cross seals. A new national office has been opened in Washington, and an initial order has been placed for 50,000,000 seals, although it is expected that double that number will be sold. The charge to local agents for the seals will be 12½ per cent. of the gross proceeds, the national agent to defray the seals and advertising material, and taking back all unsold seals at the end of the season. Postmaster General Hitchcock has approved of the design of the seal. Owing to the fact that many people last year used Red Cross seals for postage, the post office department has given orders that letters or packages bearing seals on the face will not be carried through the mails.

FOOD AGAIN

A Mighty Important Subject to Every One.

A Boston lady talks entertainingly of food and the changes that can be made in health by some knowledge or that line. She says:

"An injury to my spine in early womanhood left me subject to severe sick headaches which would last three or four days at a time, and a violent course of drugging brought on constipation with all the ills that follow.

"My appetite was always light and uncertain and many kinds of food distressed me.

"I began to eat Grape-Nuts food two or three years ago, because I liked the taste of it, and I kept on because I soon found it was doing me good.

"I eat it regularly at breakfast, frequently at luncheon, and again before going to bed—and have no trouble in 'sleeping on it.' It has relieved my constipation, my headaches have practically ceased, and I am in better physical condition at the age of 63 than I was at 40.

"I give Grape-Nuts credit for restoring my health, if not saving my life, and you can make no claim for it too strong for me to endorse." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

A LANDSLIDE KILLS RECIPROCITY PACT

CONSERVATIVES THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION SWEEP ALL BEFORE THEM.

MAJORITY OF MORE THAN FIFTY

Agricultural Vote Almost Solidly Against Reciprocity—Savan Ministers in Sir Wilfrid's Cabinet Lose Out.

Montreal, Ontario. — The Laurier government and reciprocity suffered an overwhelming defeat in the Canadian elections. By a veritable landslide the Liberal majority of 43 was swept away, and the Conservative party secured one of the heaviest majorities, upwards of fifty, that any Canadian party ever has had. Seven cabinet ministers who had served with Premier Laurier were among the defeated candidates.

The results with a few of the distant constituencies estimated, were:

Provices.	Lib.	Conserv.
Ontario	13	70
Quebec	36	27
Nova Scotia	9	3
New Brunswick	8	5
Prince Edward Island	2	2
Manitoba	1	9
Saskatchewan	7	3
Alberta	6	1
British Columbia	0	6
Total	82	132

Opposition majority, 50.

The Liberals lost ground practically in every province of the Dominion. Where they won, their majorities were small. Where the Conservatives woe, their majorities were tremendous. Ontario, the leading province of Canada, declared almost unanimously against the administration and reciprocity.

Robert L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party, shortly will become the prime minister of Canada. He will be supported in parliament by a working majority of members far more than ample for his purposes.

Past Not to Be Introduced.

The government defeat means that the Fielding-Knox reciprocity agreement, ratified by the American congress in extra session, will not be introduced when the twelfth parliament assembles next month, and that a revised basis of trade with the United States, looking to closer commercial relations, will not be possible in the immediate future. The Conservatives are committed to a policy of trade expansion within the empire and a closed door against the United States.

Although re-elected in two constituencies in Quebec, the defeat of the Liberal party also means the retirement from public life of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who for more than two decades has directed the destinies of the Dominion. Several times during the recent campaign the venerable premier said that defeat of his party at the polls meant the end of his career; that he never would consent to lead a minority in opposition to a Conservative government.

A Liberal membership of 53 from Quebec was cut down to 36, which, taken alone, seriously threatened the supremacy of the party. But it was in Ontario that the Conservatives won their greatest victories.

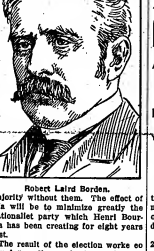
Opposition Sweeps All Before.

Spurred on by appeals to patriotism and the cry that reciprocity was the entering wedge for annexation, the Conservatives swept nearly everything before them. Ontario, which in the last parliament was represented by 35 Liberals and 51 Conservatives, will send a delegation to the next parliament of 13 Liberals and 70 Conservatives. A notable feature of the defeat was the opposition's capture of two Liberal Liberal seats in Saskatchewan.

Landslide is Unexpected.

The landslide was not expected by either side. The Liberals were confident that they would be returned by the people with an increased majority, for they believed that reciprocity would be most acceptable to the Canadian electors. While the Conservatives claimed that they would have a majority, they did not expect that it would be so large or that the general verdict of the country would be given so decisively against the government.

They feared that reciprocity would prove popular with the farmers of Ontario and the farmers and fishermen of the maritime provinces, and, while confident that they would win the cities, they were dubious as to the result in rural constituencies. However, in Ontario especially, the agricultural vote went almost solidly against reciprocity, and in the maritime provinces it did not prove to be the popular issue expected.



The farmers and fishermen of the East do not appear to have placed the high value upon the American market which was anticipated. While Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the prime minister, was safe in two counties, the Conservatives made a great harvest of ministerial heads; thirteen members of the Laurier cabinet sought re election and seven of them were defeated.

Makers of Pact Defeated.

Minister of Finance Fielding and Minister of Customs Patterson, who made the reciprocity bargain with the United States, failed to win their elections. Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia; Mac Kenzie King, minister of labor; Sidney Fisher, minister of agriculture; George P. Graham, minister of railways, and William Templeman, minister of inland revenue, also went down to defeat.

The ministers who survive the landslide are William Pugsley, of New Brunswick, minister of public works; Charles Murphy of Ontario, secretary of state; Frank Oliver of Alberta, minister of the interior; Premier Laurier; Rudolphe Lemieux, minister of marine and fisheries, and Dr. H. S. Beland, postmaster general in the province of Quebec.

The splendid majority of followers obtained by R. L. Borden in the English provinces will make him practically independent of the French nationalist group, for he has a working majority without them. The effect of this will be to minimize greatly the Nationalist party which Henri Bourassa has been creating for eight years past.

Robert Laird Borden.

The result of the election works especially complete a disorganization of the Liberals within the empire and will remain in office for many years before their authority can be seriously challenged. The former Conservative government held office for 18 years and the Laurier government, which has just been turned out, followed with 15 years of power.

The verdict is looked upon as a triumph for the cause of protection and a victory for the manufacturers of Canada, who openly and avowedly were opposing the government because they feared the removal of duties upon natural products would be followed by an attack upon the protection which Canadian manufacturers have enjoyed for many years.

Laurier Expected to Resign.

Ottawa.—The result was a complete surprise to both parties in Canada's capital. The Liberals expected a victory, the Conservatives did not hope for the landslide which occurred in their favor.

It is expected that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier, will tender to Governor General Earl Grey his resignation within the next two weeks, although not required to do so until defeated by an adverse vote in the house.

Cavalier Expected to Yield.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. — Confirmation is given by local attorneys to the story of Sidney Hurrle' trip to Paris to settle the Cavalieri-Chanler affair. Chanler's attorneys are firmly of the belief that when Harris returns he will have Cavalieri's signature to a settlement for $70,000 and an absolution of the marriage contract. The statement that $70,000 would be the price is said to be absolutely true, though as a bonus for a quick waiver $10,000 more may be given.

American Buys Castle.

London, Eng. — It was announced that Tattershall castle, in Lincolnshire, a medieval structure dating from the fifteenth century, has been purchased by an American millionaire. The old castle will be pulled down and re-erected on Long Island.

Waterloo, Iowa, Sept The Upper Iowa Methodist conference took occasion to denounce Secretary Wilson for accepting the honorary chairmanship of the National Brewers' association.

THE REASON WHY

The Sugar Trust, after squaring up with the government for its custom house scales steals, and getting on an honest basis once more, rose to as high a moral plane that it raised the price of sugar.

BOGROFF TO HANG

ASSASSIN OF RUSSIAN PREMIER IS TRIED BY A COURT-MARTIAL AT KIEV.

FACES HIS FATE CALMLY

Young Revolutionist Hears Death Sentance Pronounced Without Flinching—Thousands Attend Stolypin's Funeral.

Kiev.—The court-martial which tried Dmitry Bogroff for slayjng Premier Stolypin sentenced him to death on the gallows. Bogroff heard his doom without a tremor.

The court-martial was attended by 20 officials, six of them having been witnesses of the shooting, among them Minister of Justice Chtchegolvitoff. In view of Bogroff's plea of guilty, however, none of them was called to the stand and only Colonel Kulibaka, chief of the secret police, was examined. It was through the instrumentality of Kulibaka that Bogroff gained admittance to the theater to assassinate M. Stolypin.

Bogroff declined counsel. Every one was amused at his calmness and the firmness of his voice as he related the history of his life. He also described how he had deceived the police in getting the opportunity to assassinate the premier, but did not betray any of his accomplices.

The sentence must be confirmed by the commander of the military district before Bogroff can be hanged.

The funeral of Premier Stolypin was held in the Pechersky monastery and was the occasion for universal mourning. Deputations came to Kiev from all parts of the empire to attend the ceremony and laid over 200 wreaths on the catafalque.

CELEBRATE TAKING OF ROME

Parade Features Anniversary of Fall of Temporal Power of Papacy—Many Denominations Present.

Rome. — The forty-first anniversary of the taking of Rome by the Italian troops and the fall of the temporal power of the papacy was celebrated here. One of the features was a great parade participated in by hundreds of societies, most prominent among the Free Masons; many foreign delegations were present. Many Methodist delegates to the European conference now in session here also took part in the celebration.

THREE IN CANOE DROWNED

Young Woman of Houghton, Wis., Swim Nearly to Shore, When Strength Fails.

Houghton, Wis. — Mary Henderson, Rose Fourten and Ellen Lumbers, between the ages of sixteen and nineteen, were drowned while canoeing. Annie Henderson reached shore, the only one to escape when the party's craft capsized. The bodies of the three were found about twelve feet from shore. They had swam almost to safety when their strength gave out.

LINER IS RAMMED

OLYMPIC BADLY DAMAGED IN COLLISION WITH CRUISER.

Largest Passengor Vessel Afloat Turns Back to Port With Large Hole Near Stern.

Southampton, England.—The steamship Olympic of the White Star line, the largest vessel afloat, which left here with a large crowd of returning American tourists, lies off Calshot Castle badly damaged as a result of being rammed by the British cruiser Hawke.

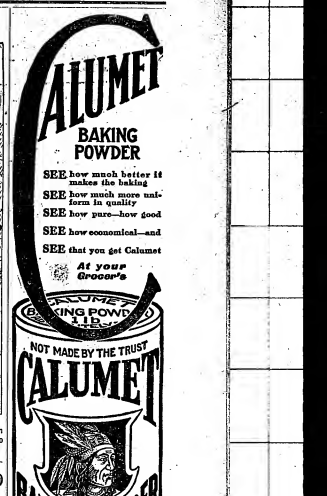
The collision occurred off the north side of the Isle of Wight. A great hole was stove in the starboard quarter of the Olympic, but the 2,000 passengers escaped unharmed. Captain Smith immediately signaled for Ports mouth to send him tugs, then drove at full speed for the mud banks off Osborne bay.

There was great excitement, but no panic, on board the liner, the passengers of which were reassured by the officers. The weather was somewhat thick and there was a squall at the time of the accident, but the here was not sufficient to obscure either vessel from the other.

The Olympic sailed from Southampton, bound for New York by way of Cherbourg and Queenstown. The first cabin passengers numbered 724. Among them were between twenty and thirty American millionaires. All told there were nearly 3,000 people on board.

MADISON OF KANSAS IS DEAD

Insurgent Kansas Congressman Is Stricken Suddenly in His Home.



Dodge City, Kan.—Edmond H. Madison, representative from the Seventh Kansas district, and one of the most influential "insurgents" in congress, died at the breakfast table at home here.

Pontiac, Mich.—President Taft was shocked to learn of the death of Representative Madison. He was to have been a guest of the congressman during his visit in Kansas next week and in Syracuse last Saturday declared that Judge Madison was a large degree responsible for the inauguration of the present tour across the continent.

SAYS HE IS TRAIN ROBBER

Man at Neenah, Wis., Gives Up to Police for Hold-Up at Buffalo, N. D.

Neenah, Wis. — The local police took into custody a stranger who says he is one of the three train robbers who held up the Northern Pacific fast passenger train at Buffelo, N. D., several weeks ago. He goes by the names of Pat Crowe and John Young, he says. The sum of $12,000 was stolen from the express car at the time of the robbery and the stranger was shot. A reward of $10,000 was offered for the arrest of the men. It is expected an officer will arrive here from Buffalo to identify the man if possible.

His Christmas Check.

Al Ryne, the hospitable filet gless worker of Ledgord, Pa., and formerly organizer of the Socialist local at that place, was being congratulated by the boys at the glass factory.

"Yes," said Al, "my uncle out in Tiffin is mighty good to me. The day before Christmas he sent me a check for $100 just as a little Christmas gift."

After the usuel congratulatory comments had been duly made all around, Al added:

"Yes, he certainly is a fine old fellow. In the postscript of his letter containing the check, he said:

"'Dear Al, if you manage to get this check cashed, please send me $4. I need a pair of shoes.'"—The Comfog Notion.

Secretive Family Bible.

Tommy was a venturesome lad, but nobody had ever credited him with sufficient courage to shake hands in contradiction when the Sunday school visitor, who wished to show off his knowledge of Biblical history, asserted that Sarah, Abraham's wife, was the only woman whose age was recorded in the Bible. Seeing the disapproving motion of the little head in the front row the visitor reiterated: "Serah was the only woman whose age is recorded in the Bible." Then Tommy spoke right up: "There was three more that I know of," said he. "Who?" asked the astonished visitor. "Mother, grandmother and Aunt Lucy," said Tommy.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Roman Gossip.

Munny (the village hanker)—What do you suppose the young fellows in ancient Rome did to pass the time?

Phunny (the villege philosopher)—Oh, I don't know. I suppose they used to bang around and talk about what a punk town Rome woe.—Puck.

Needed at Home.

Brow—That is the worst behaved kid I ever saw. Do you know his parents?

Jones—His father is one of those scientific management experts.—Puck.

The Pure Food Law stopped the sale of hundreds of fraudulent medicines. They could not stand investigation. Hewiles Wizard Oil has stood the test of investigation for nearly sixty years.

Sunshine is worth more than gold, when it is real sunshine and not forfire.

If a man owes a lot to his wife it's because she is a poor collector.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Taft is the boy that can pass tariff legislation so it is plain enough so the farmers can understand it.

Canada defeated Reciprocity by a decided vote and when the news came over the wire wheat raised six cents a bushell. Much obliged Mr. Knuck, and the next time old taft gives us a dig we will let you know.

There will be a tremendous increase in the acreage of grain sown in eastern Pennington county next year. Although we are somewhat distant from market the splendid crops raised this year incouraged the people to break up more land to raise more wheat, and flax.

Some of the northern Minnesota newspapers, who had their columns loaded with state fair advertising last summer, are now busy telling about the large attendance at the state fair. If they had such a big attendance why the sixty thousand short, which they want to bleed the taxpayers for at the next session of the legislature? The facts of the matter is, that a large part of the crowd were dude guards and politicians with passes, and now they want the people to pay the expenses.

The initiative, referendum and recall is a question that will not down in the next campaign. It is called the Socalist and Populist and crank ide, but it will come and that at no great distant day. The cornorations tremble at the word of referendum, for they know that it will end their power to control legislation and the decisions of the courts. We supported Taft for president, and would vote now to fire him out by the slack of his pants, if the devil was going to take his place, for it would be impossibilities for him to raise anymore hell on earth than old Taft has.

A Great Spectacle.

"In the Andes, half a thousand feet higher than Pike's peak, is to be found the Peruvian Garden of the Gods, admired by every traveler fortunate enough to visit it," writes William V. Alford, F. R. G. S., in the Century. "It is locally called the Rock forest, though in no sense of the word is it a forest. It simply resembles one when viewed at a distance of ten miles. The traveler may be forgiven the error of thinking it a forest as he sees it for the first time and forgets that he is no longer where trees grow, but within half an hour's ride of the highest city in the world, Cerro de Pasco, perched, like a condor, on the high peaks of the Andes.

"The Garden of the Gods in Colorado boasts of a few spectacular rocks. But they are few in number, and the area which they cover is not large. The Andean garden covers nearly 100 times the ground and in beauty and interest surpasses its northern counterpart in the same ratio."

New York's Famous Library.

The New York Public library is the most complete institution of the kind in the world. Besides the fatal circulating library and children's library there are: Lecture room and classroom of the library school, exhibition room, eighty feet square, for the display of bibliographical treasures; reading rooms for current periodicals, having a capacity of 7,000 periodicals; technology room, in which 50,000 volumes are shelved; two rooms for the science collection, in which are shelved 50,000 volumes relating to mathematical and natural sciences; a library for the use of the blind, six study rooms for special students and investigators, special reading rooms for the consultation of the Slavonic, Jewish and similar collections, a reading room for economics and sociology, shelving about 20,000 volumes; public document room, which contains about 20,000 volumes, etc.

Changes in Word Meanings.

Many common words have once had a meaning very different from the one we now give them. "Silly" once meant blessed. "Thou silly lamb" the poet writes. "Fond" meant foolish, a "fond father" was a foolish father, Milton writes.

Doth God grant day labor, Hight denied? I fondly ask.

"I foolishly ask." A "messenger" was one who was passing along the highways—a foot traveler. Now it means one carried by public conveyance. A journey meant a day's travel.

"Dyed think 'twas a journey to Twickenham town." Now a journey may mean a trip across coujinens or around the world.

"Rather" is the comparative form of an old word, "rathe," meaning early. "The rathe primroses."

Now we have made it mean "somewhat," and we have lost the first meaning entirely when we say, "You are rather late."—McCall's Magazine.

How's This!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by his firm.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE,
Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 22, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Cyookman Minn. Sept. 14th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ajer Sigurdson, of Highlanding Minn. who on Oct 1st 1904, made Homestead Entry No 765, Serial No. 04225, for S. W. ¼ Section 26 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 26th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses;

Ben Kvesio, Tobias Olson, Sjur Steinar, Tom Jacobson, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

CITATION FOR HEARING ON FINAL ACCOUNT.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of Raymond Arndt, Decedent:

THE STATE OF MIINNESOTA, To Henry Arndt, Anna Arndt, May Arndt, Clary Vaughn, Stella Arndt, Sadie Arndt, Will Arndt and all other persons interested in the final account and distribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this Court his final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent, together with his petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled: THEREFORE YOU, AND EACH OF YOU, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this court at the Probate Court Rooms in the City of Thief River Falls in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, on the 18th. day of October 1911, at Ten (10) o'clock A.M., why said petition should not be granted.

WITNESS, the Judge of said court, and the Seal of Said Court, this 15th, day of September 1911.

[Court Seal] Wilhiem Michelet,
Probate Judge.

Ira C. Richardson, Attorney for Petitioner,

Thief River Falls, Minn.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 22, 1911.
Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota September 18th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Even H. Ofteth, of Alvarado Minn. who on November 8th, 1905 made Homestead Entry No. 1245, Serial No. 04838, for Lots 2, 3, S. W. ¼ N. E. ¼ Section 3 Township 153 N. Range 38 W. and S. W. ¼ S. E. ¼ Section 34 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 26th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses.

Christ Thompson, of Lilio Minn. Knut O. Larson, John O. Larson, of Rudell Minn. Nels Rian, of Wascie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 22, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. September 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole Nelson, of Highlanding Minn. who on October 25, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 778, Serial No. 04388 for S.E. ¼ Section 7 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhem Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Tilief River Falls Minn. on the 25th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Thom M. Thorson, of Highlanding Minn. Jacob Nielsen, of Rosheal Minn. Klaus O. Vatne, Olof O. Vatne, of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice of Expiration of Redemption, Sale to Purchaser.

Office of County Auditor, County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota.

NOTICE OF EXPIRATION OF REDEMPTION

To Wm. H. Matthews: You are hereby notified that the following described peice-or parcel-of land situated in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, a County a part of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota; and known and described as follows, to wit: Lot one (1) of Section Twenty (20) Township One Hundred Fifty Three (153) Range Forty Two (42) is now assessed in your name; that on the 13th, day of May A.D. 1907, at a sale of land pursuant to the resistate tax judgement, duly given and made in and by the District Court in and for said County of Red Lake on the 28th, day of March A.D. 1907, in proceedings to inforce the payment of taxes delinquent upon realestate for the year A.D. 1905, for said County of Red Lake, the above described piece—or parcel-of land was sold for the sum of Six Dollars and Sixty Seven Cents; that the tax certificate issued for said land at said sale has been presented to me as my office I as the holder thereof for the purpose of having notice of redemption from said sale given and served, that the amount requid to redeem said peice-ur parcel-of land from said sale at the date of this notice exclusive of the costs and charges of this notice, is the sum of Fifty Dollars and seventy Two Cents (said sum being the aggregate amount of said sum for which said land was sold at said sale and interest thereon at 12 per cent per annum, delinquent taxes penalties, costs and interests thereon accruing subsequent to said sale and paid by said purchaser, and all unpaid delinquent taxes, interest, costs and penalties accruing upon said land subsequent to said sale); and that the time for redemption of said peice-or parcel-of land from said sale will expire sixty (60) days after the service of this notice and proof of said service has been filed in my office.

WITNESS My hand and seal of office this 16th, day of June A.D. 1911.

(Official Seal) A. A. Lutendress.
County Auditor,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.

RETURN OF SHERIFF PERSON NAMED NOT FOUND AND LAND VACANT.

State of Minnesota, }
County of Red Lake } SS.

I Charles Fellman, Sheriff of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, do hereby certify and return that I have made and caused to be made diligent search for Wm. H. Matthews, the person named in the within notice and have been unable to find him in my said County; and that I have inspected and examined the land described in the within notice for the purpose of serving said notice upon the person in possession or occupancy thereof; and that there is no person in possession or occupancy of said land and the same is vacant and unoccupied.

Charles Fellman,
Sheriff,
Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Sep. 1st, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 29, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Jorgen Erickson, of Highlanding Minn. who on December 26th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1025, Serial No. 04385, for N.W. ¼ Section 31 Township 153 N. Range 39 W 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five Year Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bisland, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, at thief River Falls Minn. on the 30th day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben Erickson, of Thief River Falls Minn. Ben Sivrud, Elon Sanders, Matt Lokensgard, of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 15th, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 13th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Halvor Bjornson, of Brunkeberg Minn. who on October 4, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 658, Serial No. 04263, for Lots 3, 4, & S. ½ N. W. ¼ Section 8, Township 153 N. Range 37 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhem Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 24th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Iver Solliden, Andrew Sandland, Christian O. Nygaard, Torjus T. Hemmestvedt, all of Brunkeberg Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Murder in Spain.

Spain has a death penalty, but rarely imposes it, the customary sentence for premeditated homicide being penal servitude in chains for life. A parricide is punished by being imprisoned in chains "in perpetuity until death."

Going Down.

Jones (as the launch capsizes)—I—wish I had been a better man. Brown (with a gurgle)—I wish I had been a better swimmer.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Success.

"What is the key to success?"

"The ability to make people pay."

"Pay for what they get?"

"No; pay for what you tell them they

A Theory and a Fact.

The late Senator Frye attributed his robust health to correct habits and fondness for sport and the outdoors. Two months each year he egaged at his camp by the Androscoggin the lush delights of hook and gun. If there was one achievement of his life of which he was inclined to boast it was that of having caught the largest square tailed trout ever taken with a fly. But some time ago it came to this boast was challenged by no less an authority than Professor Agassiz. That great naturalist asserted that the Maine scamter was in error, for it was a scientific fact that no trout must ever attained the weight mentioned—seven pounds. The following season the scientific was fortunate enough to catch a six pound specimen of the same species, which he packed in ice and sent to Professor Agassiz. The professor acknowledged his defeat in the following laconic line: "The theory of a fleshless ticked to death by ice!" "That," commented Senator Frye, "is the only case I have ever heard of in which a theorist ever paid the slightest attention to a stubborn fact."—Boston Transcript.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 15, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., September 8th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin Mc And ress, one of heirs to Mary Sullivan deceased of St. Hilaire Minnesota, who on October 19 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 751. Serial No. 1158, for N. W. ¼ Section 10, Township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bisland, Municipal Judge for the city of Thief River Falls, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on the 16th. day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl-d Olmscad of Kattle Minn. I. Delahoe of St. Hilaire Minn. I Walter McAndress. and William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 20th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Oscar Lindberg, of Roland Minnesota, who on November 29, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 9276, Serial No. 04371, for Lots 4, 5, & 6 Section 31 & Lot 5, Section 32 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before The Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on the 11th. day of November 1911

Claimant names as witnesses.

Adolph Lindberg, John Olson, Jernnand Ryland, of Rhoda Minn. Christian O. Lindberg, of Roland Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

"I Suffered Years With My Back."

Backache resulting from weak kidneys, a bad cold or other cause, usually renders the sufferer unfit for work and often results in permanent disability.

"I suffered for years with my back, or kidney trouble, and have tried a number of remedies from different physicians. More than a year ago, one of our local druggists induced me to try and after using them some three months I found a decided improvement in my kidneys, and I am glad to say that I hope soon to be fully restored to health." J. P. ALLEN, Ex-Judge City Court, Glasgow, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

As long as pain is present in any part of the body rest is impossible and the system becoming weakened is exposed to any form of disease to which the sufferer may be inclined.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

by steadying the irritated nerve centers, make refreshing sleep possible, thereby enabling the body to recover lost strength. As a remedy for pain of any description Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are unsurpassed.

Sold by all druggists under a guarantee assuring the return of the price or the original package if benefit is not derived.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

A Berlin Kaffeh House.

There is, or was, in Berlin a certain cafe where rudeness is the keynote of the waiting staff. Every patron who enters this restaurant is hustled roughly into a seat, abruptly interrogated as to his wants and finally has to submit to seeing his food thrust before him with as little ceremony as one might show to a surly dog. This cafe is, of course, one of the many "freak" restaurants which abound on the continent, and the entire scheme of rudeness is simply a device to attract customers in search of a new sensation, which undoubtedly they secure.

The Cause of It.

"What's all this fuss about?" asked the policeman, stepping between the two young men.

The one that had got the worst of it was mopping the blood from his nose pointed to the other fellow. "He can tell you how much it he wants to," he said, "but you'll find it's because

ATTORNEY GENERAL SAYS PURE SNUFF CAN BE SOLD IN MINNESOTA LEGALLY

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

AMERICAN SNUFF CO., 111 Fifth Ave., New York

RHODA STORE.

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER, Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

Marlin

THE Marlin Model 1894 is a modern light weight rifle with a well proportioned full length gun with a comfortable amount of drop. It is a rifle that will be used constantly by lots of persons, summer or winter. It is handy and a very pleasant gun to carry and to shoot.

For settled distance and hunting mostly where the shots would be in bushes, bridges, trees, etc., at ranges from 100 to 200 yards, the .25-20 and .32-20 in the Model 1894 are powerful enough and quick to secure game. The factory recommends for the Model 94 also in .38-55 and can be finished in any small size.

The perfect rifle absolutely needs the "Micro-Sight" rear sight on the tang. It contains 148 sights and will shoot about as fine as any rifle made, and come to know exactly what shoot in. Write for free catalog.

The Marlin Arms Co.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

For Sale. A young driveing team cheap, if taken soon.
Lenard McAndress,
Snoboam Minn.

Pay up your back subscription.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Another shower of rain yesterday has again hung up threshing operations for this week.

Walter McAndress finished threshing Monday. His wheat averaged 21 ¼ bushells an acre of No. 1.

Andrew Nelson will thresh out the grain in the Highlanding neighborhood next week.

Mrs. George Singer, who has been very sick for the past two weeks is now on the way to recovery.

Read the new add of Vaughn Bros. & Co. published in another colum and when you get ready to buy give them a call.

Wanted, teams and men to break for from 30 to 60 neres of land. Wm Brockmar, Roland Minn.

For Health and Energy Eat CREAM OF RYE

For Breakfast. Reduces Cost of Living. Free Silver Spoon in Every Package. Ask your Grocer for a Package.

As soon as a farmer gets any spare time now days he starts breaking, as they want more of them big crops next year.

Wm. Rodman has been threshing in the Sjur Stolaas and Ben Shaw neighborhood, in Deer Park this week.

On account of the partial failure of our corn crop we tried to stave off payment of some of our bills but couldent make it.

The Swanson threshing rig is now as far west as James O'Briens and will work west into the Hedeen and Olson neighborhood next week.

Anton Radnecki came up from Deer Park today to make application to make final proof on his homestead, as his seven years is ont in December.

Taken up: Three spring calves. Two white and one red. Owner call and get them and pay for this notice. A. B. Mandt, one mile south from Kratka post office.

Parties wanting to advertise should not forget that THE SUNBEAM is the paper that has the circulation among the famers, in eastern Red Lake and Pennington Countys.

As soon as the fall rush of work lets up we shall put in our branch telephone line to connect with the Lillo and Highlanding line, then by doing a little "rubbernecking" we expect to obtain all the news.

Simon Solberg returned from Pennington county Monday were he shipped out 8 car loads of cattle. Simon is alway busy. He has bought a new hay press and expects to press a lot of hay. —McIntosh Times.

Call again Simon as you pay fair prices for stock.

Fred Haug, him of Dan Patch fame, has bought the Alfred Swanson farm on section 29 in this township for two thousand and five hundred dollars. We do not know whether he will improve it or not, but if he don't the country won't loose much, as Swanson only kept it to look at, and got pretty good pay for looking.

Stiner Johnson threshed 30 bushells of No 1 wheat to the acre on one of his fields this week. This puts the town of Kratka in the lead for a wheat yield, but how are you fixed for potatoes down there? We dug up a potato last Saturday that tiped the post office scales to exactly two pounds and five ounces, and if you Kratka farmers have a biger tater let us know.

STATEMENT OF THE HIGHLANDING CREAMERY, FOR AUGUST.

Cream Received	17,978
Avr test	26-42
Butter Fat	4750.
Butter sold	5799.
Overun	1049.
Net price rec. for butter sold □ 24,-29 cts.β
Receipts.
Butter Shipped	$1384.98
Sold Patrons	$10,84.
Elsewhere	$6.98.
Other Sources	$5,25.
Balance from last month	$49.36
Disbursments:
Paid Patrons by check	$1,184.25
Butter	$16, 84.
Running exsences	153,90.
Canning fund	40,32.
Bal. at the end of month	68,10.
Bal. $1,463,41.——1,463,41.

Guy Mellus, Sec.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington] S. S. District Court,
C. Heilleman Brewing Company, Plaintiff,
vs
Edward E. Olson, Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANT:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which said complaint is now on file in the office of the Clerk of Court of the District Court in and for the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, in the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff will take judgement against you for the sum of Six Hundred and Twenty-two & 44-100 dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of Six per cent, per anum from the 27, day of May, 1910, togeather with the costs and disbursements at this action.

Stanton & Rawberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.
9-30,11-6.

The Three Pigs.

There were three pigs in a poke. The overcrowding was scandalous. Each seconded for the evil in a different manner.

The first pig said, "The overcrowding is terrible; it is because we are in a poke."

The second pig said, "This overcrowding is disastrous; it is because we are pigs."

The third pig spoke as follows: "The overcrowding is undoubtedly appalling, but you are both mistaken as to the conditions that have caused it. It is not due to our being in a poke; neither is it due to our being pigs. The evil is the direct and inevitable outcome of certain spasmodic variations of the law of economic utility."

The other two pigs were much impressed and without more ado elected the third pig leader among them. Still the overcrowding remained as bad as ever.—Life.

Dueling.

It is generally agreed that dueling took its rise from the judicial combats of the Celtic nations. The first formal duel in England was that between William Count of Eu and Godfrey Bayard about the year 1096. Dueling was at its height in France about 1300, though it was pretty popular as late as 1626, in which year Francis I. sent a challenge to Charles V. In England dueling was checked in the army in 1722 and gradually disappeared from civil life with the coming of a more enlightened public opinion. Dueling was never as popular in this country as it was in Europe, but nevertheless many famous duels have been fought here. The last duel that is said to have received its death sentence when Burr killed Hamilton. The decline after that was steady until it practically died ant.—New York American.

An Aged Iceberg.

"When I was in the arctic," announced General A. W. Greely, "I found an aged floe berg in which the yearly stratifications of growth could be traced with great accuracy. I measured them and by careful calculation was able to discover that the oldest layers of that ice probably dated back to the years when Solomon was building his temple. That temple, massive as it was, has utterly perished and left no trace in its exact site. But that ice was still in existence when I was in the polar seas, and it may be there yet. You see, a bit of fresh water ice, once immersed in a salt sea that has a constant temperature of about twenty-eight degrees, cannot very well perish. It is a sort of perpetual cold storage plant, colder than its own melting point. And that accounts for the long endurance of what in our climate would have lasted perhaps but a few brief seconds."

She Laughed

But the Day Came When She Laughed No More

By MARY V. BLACKISTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The evening I landed in the little town in Arizona where I proposed to take up my residence I was sitting at supper with my friend Charnley when the stillness without was broken by a laugh. To say that it was a laugh is nothing. It was the melodious piping of a bird, the swelling of a note from an organ, the ripple of water over rocks—any, every sound that could express merriment. It was feminine, girlish, and one who heard it would at once become impressed with the perfect innocence of her who laughed. My host, seeing that I was interested, smiled at me.

"Who is that?" I asked.

"That is our laughing girl, as we call her. Her proper name is Elsie Jenks. Some call her our pain killer, others our mocking bird. The latter are pessimists, assuming to detect at times in her laugh something beneath its mirth expressive of the inevitable doom that awaits us all—something derisive. Indeed, at times late at night, when Elsie has been coming home from a dance, I have heard her break into one of her sudden peals of laughter and have fancied after it died away that a mocking echo faliured it."

"It seems to me," I replied, "the embodiment of optimism."

"Such is the general effect upon us. When we get the 'blues,' if we can hear Elsie Jenks laugh we are lifted out of our despondency. If an invalid becomes discouraged Elsie is sent for. Usually another person goes with her on such occasions—Ben Horheson. Ben is a very good fellow. He has a way of saying funny things in a peculiar monotone. Put Elsie and Ben at the bedside of one about to give up the fight for life and Ben will say something ridiculous, followed by a peal of laughter from Elsie, the two together electrifying the sick one and bringing about a reaction."

PARSED

NEARLY EVERY SHOT TOOK EFFECT.

"Is there any relationship between these two merry ones?"

"Lovers. You wouldn't think it, would you? Opposites usually monopolize mote. A morose man often chooses a cheerful woman, and vice versa. With these two it's just the reverse. Ben says that all he was brought into the world for was to make Elsie laugh, while Elsie says that her part in life is to bring out Ben's jokes, declaring that if it wasn't for her they would be lost upon an unappreciative world."

Later I met both of these young people, and they seemed to me to be the creators of optimism. They were evidently made for each other, o Paul and Virginia, so wrapped in each other as to be uninterested in others. And yet I doubt if either realized how absolutely they were united. I never heard that there was any engagement between them, and sometimes I wondered if this love had ever been spoken, even realized, for I can understand how love may be so pure as to be, like genius, unconscious.

"What would become of this town," asked a crusty old fellow, "if them two should be eliminated?"

I lived in the place a couple of years, during which I had a fixed regards for existence. Every one was tempted to give up trying to make a town of it, but whenever a person signified an intention to move an Ben Harheson would crack a joke and Elsie Jenks would burst into a laugh, and the discouraged one would brace up and conclude to persevere awhile longer. Indeed, it was said that Ben and Elsie were literally the life of the town. But for them the town would die.

Arizona at that time was suffering from rough. Billy the Kid flourished, and there were more, if not equal to him in bardihood, at least of his kind. Some one suggested that if Ben Harheson were made sheriff he would find a way of getting on the soft side of the villains and stopping the nuisance. When the matter was proposed to Ben he said he could do nothing without Elsie. He might say a lot of things calculated to placate the fiends, but if Elsie were not present to help with her laugh they would all fall flat. However, he was persuaded to accept the position, since Elsie thought there might be cases wherein they could work together.

The first person Ben brought in was Jack Hennessy, a desperado whom the sheriff caught so stupefied with liquor that he was incapable of making any resistance. Ben put him in jail to sleep off his drunk and when he got sober Ben and Elsie went to see him. If Hennessy had not been behind bars he would have torn them to pieces. Jack made fun of him, and Elsie laughed. It was not long before the prisoner caught the infection and laughed, too, and within half an hour was holding his sides with merriment.

"What's that?" asked one passing the jail.

"Oh, that's Ben Horheson and Elsie Jenks. They've got that bloodthirsty Hennessy to laughing, and he can't stop."

Having thus opened the better side of the villain's nature with the wedge of laughter, Ben and Elsie were kind to him, with the result that on their securing a release and their fellow townsmen's promise that Hennessy should not be prosecuted for his crimes he left the jail and become an ardent admirer of Elsie. There were many other converts won by the lovers, and every man converted stuck to an honest life. Since Ben and Elsie in this way captured the principal devils in that region the citizens of the town, being free from having their places of business raided, found themselves in a position to make a living and began to prosper.

From that time the mirthful pair were worshiped by those they had served. I did not hear anything about preparations for their union during their work on criminals, but after they had made nearly a dozen good men out of as many bad ones they were married. There wasn't a person in the place who didn't give them a wedding present, and a man who had started a bank gave a thousand dollars, saying that the couple's service to him had been worth many times that sum.

So Ben and Elsie went to housekeeping with every man, woman and child in the town their friend. Many a sunshiny night before going to sleep I heard Elsie's laugh ring out on the still air. One night after it had died away I heard that "mocking echo" Charnley had spoken of. I was plunged by it from balmy optimism into the fright pessimism. The final dissolution which awaits us all was made vivid to me as never before. "After all," I sighed, "for every laugh there is a sob."

The occasion of Elsie's laugh was this: Ben was going out to bring in a desperado. Elsie looked worried. To cheer her Ben cracked a joke which was followed by the laugh I heard.

The next afternoon Ben was brought in mortally shot by the men he had attempted to capture and died in a few hours in his wife's arms.

I had scarcely heard that Ben was dead when I saw Elsie galloping along the street, followed by every convert who and Ben had made. I derived the errand on which they were lent, and, being mounted, I determined to go with them. The men who had killed Ben—called Mississippi Jake—got word that revenge would be taken upon him for the murder and gathered a dozen or so of his pals to put up a fight. We came upon them crouched on the other side of a bridged spanning a creek and were received with volley.

The crackle had not subsided when Elsie gave a laugh so wild and piercing that it froze me with horror. I was at the mocking echo I had heard the night before, only instead of an echo it was a wail, the wail of a broken heart.

Simultaneously with this, Elsie' galloped forward, cocked pistol in each hand, dismounting the rest of us who endeavored to ride ahead of her. In a change like that it was not to be expected, wild as she was, that she would do much damage to her enemies. But her mind was intent on revenge, once that it conquered madness. She shattered every chamber of the two revolvers, and with so true an aim that nearly every shot took effect.

I saw her take up from behind a law stone wall where she deposited her dead hot of him I knew to be Mississippi Jake. The last dis eyes beat on our woman leader and, raising a rifle, was about to fire at her when I quickly drew a bead on him and dropped him.

That ended the fight. The villains that were left alive were but few—scattered in an adjoining wood.

Then we rode back to town, the whole of the latter at a canter. She rode through the streets lined by citizens, all with heads bowed, and entered her father's house alone.

Since then I have talked with Charnley about this slaughter case. He says, dariig which I had a fixed regard for existence. Every one was tempted to give up trying to make a town of it, but whenever a person signified an intention to move an Ben Harheson would crack a joke and Elsie Jenks would burst into a laugh, and the discouraged one would brace up and conclude to persevere awhile longer. Indeed, it was said that Ben and Elsie were literally the life of the town. But for them the town would die.

Arizona at that time was suffering from rough. Billy the Kid flourished, and there were more, if not equal to him in bardihood, at least of his kind. Some one suggested that if Ben Harheson were made sheriff he would find a way of getting on the soft side of the villains and stopping the nuisance. When the matter was proposed to Ben

"Elsie Jenks? Why, she never laughed after that. Her laugh was her life. Without it she was dead. Her father died soon after, and she went to live with her mother's people in Kentucky. I have never heard from her since."

"Is she living?"

"I don't know. I have never heard that she is dead."

"Then she may be living yet?"

"Yes, she may be living yet."

"Will she ever laugh again?"

"I think not."

Perhaps she will. Sometimes we pick up the thread of happiness after it has been dropped, but no one ever lived who did not finally drop it forever.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn,
NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. San'l Gilcan Vic. Pre.
Larry O'Niel, Abrham Paiquire, T. L. Cuyer.
J. A. Tuttle, Cashier. T. L. Cuyer, Asst. Cash'r.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweatere for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Foofware Buy The BALL BAND.

CALL ON US. IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.
Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.
Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, P. M.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep.29,1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Emrick K. Rinn, of Erie Minnesota, who on November 16th, 1904, made Homestead entery No. 8784, Serial No. 03833 for Lots 3, 4, & S½ N. W. ¼ Section 1 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole O. Johnsgaard, Andrew Hanson, John Dahlen, Isaac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sept. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Andrew Hanson, of Erie Minnesota, who on November 16th, 1904, made Homestead entery No. 8785, Serial No. 04318, for S. E. ¼ Section 1 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridi n, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole O. Johnsgaard, John Dahlen, Emrick K. Rinn, Isaac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Two Ambitions.

"My ambition is to earn $5,000 a year."

"My ambition is to earn more money than my wife can spend."

Ready to Do Her Part.

Mother—Mary, that young man of yours is too forward. He must be set upon. Mary—I have that to me, mother. I'll see that he is.

Not Much of Heaven Is Visible as We Have Eyes to See.—William Whitney.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
McCALL PUBLISHING CO. 236-246 WEST 37th STREET NEW YORK

McCALL'S MAGAZINE is the most influential fashion authority in the world. Its fashions are authentic, practical, economical and reliable. Its fiction is by the best writers. Its household and miscellaneous departments are helpful and instructive. Its pattern service is unequaled. Subscription price, including any one pattern, 50 cents a year. Sample copy and premium catalogue free.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE and THE DELINEATOR
Both published by the McCall Co. Subscription price of both, $1.00 a year. Sample copy of either free.

THE DELINEATOR
A Publication of Authority, Originality and Individuality. Practical, helpful, progressive and new ideas in Fashions, Fiction, Home Building, Household Economics, Social Usage, Current Events, Foreign Travel, Special Articles, Etc. Subscription price, including any one pattern, 50 cents a year. Sample copy and premium catalogue free.

THE McCALL CO., 236 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

10 Days Free Trial
In Your Own Home
of the improved
"Simplex"
Hand Vacuum Cleaner
"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

Write today for the most liberal after free trial offer.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both the hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.
1164 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEN CUPID WAS OFF DUTY

Lover's Bad Cold That Led to Most Unfortunate Misunderstanding With Girl.

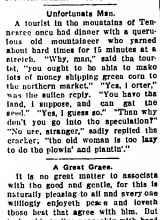
Sweet was the lass, low was the gas; it was the evening she expected him to put across the big question.

He did not look well. Something seemed to be troubling him. He tried to say something, but the words stuck in his throat, and the girl, noticing this, turned the gas eyes lower.

Suddenly he turned to her and cried, "I'm a dub!"

"No," she said, fondly. "You don't appreciate yourself as well as some others do, perhaps. Tea bee!"

"Yes," he persisted stubbornly, "I'm a dub!"



"No," she maintained.

"Yes," he almost shouted. "I'm a dub!"

She was a sensible girl, and so, realizing that he ought to know best, she thanked him kindly for warming her in time and handed him his hat. It was only after the door slammed behind him forever that she realized the awful truth.

He had contracted a nasty cold, and what he had been trying to say was, "I'm in love!"

NATURAL HISTORY.

"Do giraffes catch cold when they wet their feet, papa?"

"Of course, my son—but not until the next month!"—Hettere Welt.

Unfortunate Man.

A tourist in the mountains of Tennessee once had dinner with a querulous old mountaineer who ranted about hard times for 15 minutes at a stretch. "Why, man," said the tourist, "you ought to be able to make lots of money shipping green corn to the northern market." "Yes, I orter," was the sullen reply. "You have the land, I suppose, and can gat the seed." "Yes, I guess so." "Then why don't you go into the speculation?" "No ure, stranger," sadly replied the cracker; "the old woman is too lazy to do the plowin' and plantin'."

A Great Grace.

It is no great matter to associate with the good and gentle, for this is naturally pleasing to all and every one willingly enjoyeth peace and loveth those best that agree with him. But to be able to live peaceably with hard and perverse persons, or with the disorderly, or with such as go contrary to us, is a great grace, and a most commendable and manly thing.—Thomas a Kempis.

Folly of Vain Regrets.

The late John W. Gates, an incurable optimist, harped continually on the futility of pessimism. One of Mr. Gates's partners, still quoted on the Chicago Stock Exchange, ran:

"He who nurses foolish hopes may be an ass, but he is not such an ass as he who nurses vain regrets."

Plenty of Biz.

"How is your son, the young doctor, making out?"

"First rate, since he learned to adapt himself to circumstances. He started out as lung specialist, but he's a great nipple specialist now."

Few of us can do more than one thing well. Many a man who has no difficulty in making money is a dismal failure as a speeder.

Easy Breakfast!

A bowl of crisp

Post Toasties

and cream—
the thing's done!

Appetizing
Nourishing
Convenient

Ready to serve right out of the package.

"The Memory Lingers"

POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd.
Battle Creek, Mich.

THIRTEEN LIVES LOST

VICTIMS STREWN ALONG TRACKS BY C. & N. W. PASSENGER AT NEENAH, WIS.

WHEN TRAIN HITS HAY RICK

Collision Comes in the Fog of Early Morning.—Of Eight Others Hurt, Three Are Fatally Injured.

Neenah, Wis. — Whirling along at the rate of a mile a minute, a Chicago & Northwestern passenger train, half an hour late, crashed into a hayrack loaded with thirty-one young people here, killing twelve of them outright and injuring eight others, one of whom died shortly after and three of them so badly that they are believed to be fatally hurt.

A big hillboard along the railway tracks obscured the view from the locomotive as well as from the wagon. Dust and fog did the rest. Nine of the thirty-one people on the hayrack escaped without a scratch, and so did both horses. Nobody on the train suffered except from the jar.

Bodies Strewn Along Tracks.

Armless, legless and headless bodies covered the right of way as the train of nine coaches was brought to a stop 899 feet from the scene of the accident. Several of the bodies were mutilated so badly that identification was possible only by fragments of clothing. Six bodies were discovered on the engine pilot where they law until removed by the train crew and passengers.

Two others of the persons killed were hurled through a flagman's shanty with such force as to overturn the little structure. One of these was Miss Mabel Finn, who was projected through one of the side walls of the house and was still alive when removed. She died a few hours later. Another of the victims killed was thrown high over a barn 50 feet from the right of way.

The party were returning from the farm of Peter Hanson, where the young people had gone to attend the celebration of a wedding anniversary, when the accident occurred. All but two, who were from Chicago, were residents of Menasha, Wis.

Baho Was Hurled 50 Feet, Unhurt.

Among the occupants of the hayrack who escaped were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Brizinski and child of two years. They were seated in the front of the rack, the mother holding the child in her lap. About half way back in the wagon sat Harry Swartzbauer. The latter was hurled about 50 feet and rendered unconscious. When found by rescuers the Brizinski child was in her arms, having escaped unscratched. The parents of this child were injured only slightly.

Peter Hanson, driver and owner of the horses attached to the ill-fated rig, managed to hang to the reins and was the only person on the rack who was not temporarily stunned by the collision. He managed to hook in both directions along the track, but did not observe the onrushing train until his team had reached the track. He whipped up the horses, but managed to get the wagon only half way across.

The train was nearly half an hour behind schedula. The fact that the engine stopped on the second corner from the intersection where the collision occurred, a distance of more than 899 feet, is evidence that the speed was great. It is said, however, that the rails were slippery from the rain and made the stopping of the train difficult.

On the outgoing trip the hayrack contained 40 persons, but the ride was uncomfortably crowded and on the return trip an additional wagon was obtained. Eight of the party occupied the second vehicle, which followed about a mile behind.

A farmer, his wife and two children recently were killed in a similar accident at the same crossing and during the last eight years nearly two dozen persons have lost their lives at the same place.

Pennsylvania Flyer in Collision.

Pittsburg, Penn. — The Pennsylvania Eighteen-hour flyer between Chicago and New York, was in collision thirty minutes after leaving this city, killing one trainman, injuring four others and one passenger.

Train Hits Auto; Three Killed.

Owosso, Michigan. — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Almendinger, of Flint, Mich., and Miss Mary R. Baughman, of Lansing, were killed and Burr J. Warner, of Flint, was seriously injured when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Grand Trunk passenger train.

Twin City Markets.

Minneapolis, Sept. 25.—Wheat, September, $1.11⅛; Dec., $1.15⅛; No. 1 northern, $1.11⅛; No. 2 northern, $1.09⅛; No. 1 durum, 98c; No. 3 corn, 58c; No. 3 white oats, 46c; barley, malting, $1.16; No. 2 rye, 90c; No. 1 flax, old, $2.26.

Duluth, Sept. 25.—Wheat September, $1.13; December, $1.14⅞; No. 1 northern, $1.11; No. 1 durum, 99c.

South St. Paul, Sept. 25.—Cattle—Steers, $4.75@7.00; cows, $2.50@3.75; calves, $3.50@8.00; hogs, $5.50@6.30; sheep and lambs, $3.25@5.00.

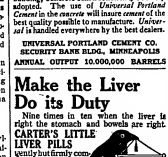
SILENCE IS GOLDEN.

Mrs. Roley—Poor dear, he hesn't said a word for three weeks.

Dr. Bull-Prop—Well, you don't want him to croek, do you?—Exchange.

HANDS BURNED LIKE FIRE

"I can truthfully say Cuticura Remedies have cured me of four long years of eczema. About four years ago I noticed some little pimples coming on my little finger, and not giving it any attention, it soon became worse and spread all over my hands. If I would have them in water for a long time, they would burn like fire and large cracks would come. I could lay a pin in them. After using all the salves I could think of, I went to three different doctors, but all did me no good. The only relief I got was scratching.



"So after hearing so much about the wonderful Cuticura Remedies, I purchased one completa set, and after using them three days my hands were much better. Today my hands are entirely well, one set being all I used." (Signed) Miss Etta Nartker, R. F. D. 2, Spring Lake, Mich., Sept. 26, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 2 L, Boston.

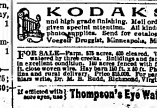
Didn't Break It Around Her.

Ella—Our friend, the pitcher, has a glass arm.

Stella—I didn't notice it when he called on me last evening.

Cement Talk No. 7

Newspapers print nearly every day the story of some fire disaster involving the complete destruction of great property values sometimes the loss of human lives. The annual fire losses of the United States are measured by the millions; in fact, it is stated that over two hundred and fifty millions' worth of property was wiped out by fire in the United States last year. While it is true that the conflagrations by fire and the fighting systems are often inadequate, the main trouble lies in flimsy, non-fireproof building construction. Experience has proved that fireproof construction is both practicable and economical. In some industries fireproof building is compelled by law. Reinforced concrete has come to the front as the most important agent in building against fire. The use of cement in building is becoming more and more common, due to its fireproofness, durability and economy. When building anything from the back porch steps to an office building, concrete construction may be safely adopted. The use of Universal Portland Cement in the concrete will insure cement of the best quality possible to manufacture. Universal is handled everywhere by the best dealers.



UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO.
SECURITY BANK BLDG., MINNEAPOLIS
ANNUAL OUTPUT 10,000,000 BARRELS

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.

Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Headache, Sallow Skin and Distress After Eating.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Promotes an luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists and high grade finishing. Mail orders given special attention. All kinds of photographics. Send for catalogue. Voorhees, Doughty, Minneapolis, Minn.

KODAKS

FOR SALE—Farm, 315 acres, 400 cleared. Well watered by creek running through farm. Buildings in excellent condition. 30 acres fenced with hog fence; balance with 3 to 5 wire. Hay goes with it. Price $30 per acre. Terms, $2,000 cash, balance to suit purchaser. Write owner, Wm. Bell, Richmond, Virginia.

If attacked with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Minneapolis. — F. A. Stephens, former scoutmaster of St. Mark's church troop of Boy Scouts, has been sentenced by Judge Booth to an indeterminate term in the state prison for forgery.

Truman.—A horse and buggy were stolen from the C. N. Boynton farm three miles west of here. The thief abandoned the rig near Welcome and the horse ran into a fence and was savaraly injured. The thief escaped.

Bedger.—Contract for the construction of Ditch No. 10 has been let to the Kohlar Contracting Co., of Little Falls, at 12 cents per cubic yard and $70 a day for leveling road. The total amount of the contract is $21,460.82. Hennepin Bridge company was awarded the contract for the culvert work.

Windom.—This vicinity was visited by one of the worst rain and wind storms ever experienced in this section. The wind did a good deal of damage and totally destroyed the new grandstand on the county fair grounds and did minor damages to smaller buildings. The loss to the fair association is estimated at $3,000.

Rochester.—Roy Beker, for nine years steward at the Rochester state hospital, has resigned to enter the real estata business with his father at Fergus Falls. Masonic orders have united in presenting him was a gold pastmaster's jewel at a banquet in his honor. He is succeeded at the state hospital by John Misner, a former employe at the state institution.

St. Paul.—State Treasurer Walter J. Smith sent notices to all state banks having state funds on deposit, directing them to turn over all state money by Oct. 25. The October disbursements will be very heavy and the credit of state funds $2,150,799.45.

Moosa Lake.—Floyd Ireland, a boy of 16, was shot dead here by Victor King, a companion, aga 14. The boys were shooting at a target and young Ireland fired first and went to inspect his shot. The rifle, left in King's hands, was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering Ireland's head and penetrating the heart. The parents of the boys are well-known residents of this place.

Menhato.—As a result of the recent activity of the State Dairy and Food commission in this section, the farmers living near the city, A. J. Spaulding and A. A. Schmitt, sold fines of $15 and costs each for selling butter that was not up to the required standard. The complaint was made by Inspector C. A. Holquist. The farmers expressed surprise that they were selling poor mitk and pleaded ignorance of the law.

Winona.—The Marshall county Fair Association held its fifth annual exhibition last week. The city was crowded with visitors and exhibitors. Tha numarous rains this fall have held up threshing operations, but a few farmers are feeling blant over the great yields of their season's work. Much plowing has been done, and many farmers are purchasing gasoline plowing rigs to ho ahlo to handle all their plowing in the fall.

Winona.—The Winona Tri-County fair wes held here last week under auspicious circumstances. For several days all of the roads leading to the city and stretching for miles into Wisconsin and Minnesota drained into the fair grounds, where it is announced mora exhibits of farm products and stock are on display than ware ever before collected in Southern Minnesota. The four days' program was crowded with events. Governor Eberhart, Acting Governor Morris of Wisconsin, and D. W. Lawler of St. Paul spoke.

High cost of canned fruits and tomatoes has caused M. C. Cutter, purchesing agent for the state board of charities and corrections, to call a meeting of state institutions during the present quarter. The contracts were let upon in August, but all were so high they were rejected and new bids wil ha asked for. Even prunes were priced at 12 cents a pound, when the state customarily has bought them for 5 and 6 cents. Mora than 7,000 pounds were bought, however, because of their need. This is only half the amount usually purchased.

Mankato.—A change has taken place in the ownership of the stock of the Free Press Printing Company, Jay W. Trua retiring and disposing of his one fourth interest to the other three proprietors, E. W. Hunt, M. D. Pritz and Frank Hart. Mr. Trua left for Oklahoma City, Okla., where he has purchased an interest in the printing and binding establishment of the Hommas Wilson-Trava Company, of which he will become president and manager. Mr. Trua has been connected with the Free Press Printing Company for fifteen years, first as traveling salesman and later as ona of the proprietors E. F. Searling, who has been city editor of the Daily Free Press ever since the paper started twenty-four years ago, also retires.

Sleepy Eye.—Rev. H. J. Hjeland has resigned as pastor of the Congregational church and will eloso his work here Oct. 1. On Oct. 21 he will start on a trip around the world, through the Mediterranean and Suez canal to India, Siam, China, Japan, East Indies and Hawaii and home.

Austin.—William E. Kundy, a pioneer and veteran of the First Minnesota volunteers, is paralyzed from his shoulders to his feet as a result of a fall from a ledge while ha was returning from a fishing trip on the Rum river. He fell a distance of six feet and struck on his head. He cannot live.

THE DECEIVER.

Sargsant—"Ah! Take Murphy's name for talkin' in the ranks.

Corporal—Wy, sergeant, 'e weren't talkin'.

Sergeant—Wasn't 'a? Well, cross it hout and put 'im in the guard room for deceivin' me.—The Tattler.

TOMMY MURPHY,

The great horseman who is winning most of the big races for fast trotters with that farm horse. Tommy record 2:07¼ at Lexington, Ky., and 2:07¼ at Peoria, Ill., and is entered for all the big Decmber and coming I have ever known. I have used it a number of years." All druggists or send to manufacturers, 50c and $1 a bottle. Spohn Medical Co., Chemists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

His Idea.

"An Akhound is the best men of his kind' isn't he, pop?"

"I believa so, son."

"Then, pop, if I kill more flies than all tha other fellows, I will ha an Akhound of Swat!"

Stop the Pain.

The hurt of a burn or a cut stops when Cuticle Carbolsalve is applied. Heals quickly. Take preventive measures against blood poisoning. Sample, write to J. W. Cole & Co., Black River Falls, Wis.

Bean-Porridge Hot.

"Would you call soup an edible?"

"Yes, an audible edible."

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Somehow wa can't help feeling sorry for an ax-hero.

Whittemore's Shoe Polishes

Finest in Quality. Largest in Variety. They meet every requirement for cleaning and polishing shoes of all kinds and colors.

GILT EDGE the only ladies shoe dressing that positively shines. Black and Bronze. Ladies' Patent Colors. Black and Tan Shoes Leather or clothing. 2c. "French Gloss" 25c.

BANDY combination for cleaning and polishing all kinds of russet or tan shoes, 25c. "Star" size, 10c.

ELITE combination for dressings who take pride in their appearance. Black, White, Canvas and tans to fit high shoes. Polish with a brush or cloth, 25 cents. "Baby Elite" size 10 cents.

If your dealer does not keep the kind you want, send us his address and the price in stamps for prompt supply.

WHITTEMORE BROS. & CO.,
90-96 Albany St., Cambridge, Mass.
The Oldest and Largest Manufacturers of Shoe Polishes in the World.

Get Your Hunting Supplies NOW

Buy your guns, shells reloading outfits, Hunting Clothing, Coats, Vests, Hunting Pants, Waiting Boots, "Scimoo and Leather" Hunting Boots, Decoy Ducks, Hunting Implements, Hand Axes, Knives, Axes, Rifles, Revolvers, Ammunition, Etc.

W. E. BURKHARD COMPANY
819 Robert Street St. Paul, Minn.
WRITE FOR FREE CATALOG 179

ALLEN'S ULCERINE SALVE

For the treatment of Chronic Ulcers, Open Sores, Varicose Veins, Scalds, Burns, Boils, Carbuncles, Sprains, Bruises, Wounds, Insect Bites, Milk Leg, Sweet Sores, and all forms of Skin Diseases. 25c. per box. Sold by dealers or MEDICINE CO., Dept. AG, St. Paul, Minn.

CAREY ACT landand water rights. Open for entry. Write Carey Act Board, Boise, Idaho. Map 25c. Booklet free. Illustrated annual irrigation number, 50 cents. Address STATE OF IDAHO ACTS AT CAREY

Pettit's Eye Salve SOLD BY DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE

A GENUINE WANTED—Big money, easy, little work, sure. Write quick for terms and particulars and particulars of valuable article. Experience unnecessary, exclusive territory, mailorer formula. Box 53, Grantsburg, Ill.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D. C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and starches clothes nicest.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 39-1911.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION NOT MADE BY A TRUST

Come—join the merry throng of pleased gunners who have quit seeking for the one best ammunition because they've found it.

If you are a judge of ammunition, Robin Hood will be a revelation to you. Instead of a big explosion and half the force on "kick" our smokeless powders burn progressively all along the barrel and give the load a tremendous velocity as it leaves the gun.

Prove for yourself that R. H. shoots further, gets there quicker and hits harder. Get our Shot Shells or Metallic Cartridges from your dealer and make a note of results. Send for our interesting booklet

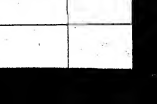
ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION CO.
7th STREET, SWANTON, VT.

W. L. DOUGLAS

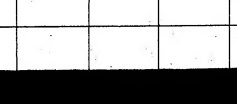
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

WOMEN wear W.L.Douglas stylish, perfect fitting, easy walking boots, because they give long wear, same as W. L. Douglas Men's shoes.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR OVER 30 YEARS



The workmanship which has made W. L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.



If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom.

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes in your town, write for mail order catalog. Shoes from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W. L. $5.00 SHOES will positively not wear OUGLAS, 165 Spark St., Brockton, Mass. TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $3.00 or $3.50 SHOES will positively not wear

Lenox Soap will do anything that any laundry soap will do.

Use it in the laundry, or for washing dishes, pots, pans, floors —anything that can be cleaned with soap and water.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1911. NO. 28.

A REMARKABLE CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA

Munyon's Stomach Treatment Performing Miracles.

MUNYON TELLS YOU HOW TO GET WELL FREE OF CHARGE

"A few days ago I received a letter from a young man, who states he is 27 years of age, and has occupied several important positions, but owing to ill health and inability to sleep he has been unable to concentrate his mind upon his work and has consequently been dismissed from the employment of his father. He goes on to say that he is a young man of steady habits, but for years has suffered from dyspepsia, which has so affected his nerves that he is unable to sleep, and that it is not confined to his part, nor lack of interest in the business, but is growing progressively worse, as he already gives many symptoms of nervousness.

"In the letter a number of those peculiarly situated requested an answer this letter publicly, hoping that it may be the means of helping many who may be affected in this way.

"In the first place, the stomach must be made well before the nerves can be made so, for the nerves depend upon a strong digestion. As nervousness is not to be capable of doing his best who is in any way troubled with insomnia or loss of nervousness. The greatest governors have been men of iron nerve and indomitable will. They have had perfect digestion, and while able to eat well, and digest well.

"It is said that Napoleon lost the battle of Waterloo because of a bit of bad digestion. Grant's enormous reserve power was due to a well stomach, and Abraham Lincoln said that he did not know that he had a stomach. Horace Greeley used to say, 'I have a day, eat a hearty meal, get up in the middle of the morning, go to bed and sleep soundly until 9 o'clock and get up refreshed, ready for a new day's work.'

"Pros. Tait is another type of healthy manhood. When those for one moment that he would be the President of the United States today had he been a victim of dyspepsia, or afflicted with nervous ailments, and that Miss Helen Gould, the father's protection, and her physical frailties are due to weak and deranged stomachs.

"No business house would care to employ a dyspeptic representative to sell goods, for them on the road. One-half the sales would be lost in a single day, earning from the world people will never get beyond these figures, for the reason that they are irritable, fretful. They lack the nerve power and commanding strength that comes with a good stomach.

"Munyon's Nerves to bear a dyspeptic stomach. No matter how much nerve force he is bound to reflect his blues and jaundiced condition. He will unconsciously inoculate his hearers with his melancholy feelings.

"No one would think of entrusting an important trial case in the hands of a dyspeptic lawyer, any more than he would think of a dyspeptic doctor. It is that of a dyspeptic, that one of a dyspeptician who is nervous, irritable and dyspeptic. Men must have good digestion, strong nerves and vital manhood in order to render a clean, strong service, either to medicine, law or business.

"I believe that more than half of the divorces can be traced to ill health. Munyon's Stomach Remedies and Stomach Treatment, for dyspepsia and all forms of indigestion and nervousness. It marks old stomachs almost as soon as they use it, marvelous power for digesting food and getting the best out of it makes for good rich, red blood. This, in turn, strengthens the nerves, builds up the glands and tissues, and thus surely prolongs life and make it a pleasure instead of one of the things allotted to man.

Professor Munyon makes no charge for consultation or medical advice, and will say to pay. Address Prof. J. M. Munyon, Munyon's Laboratories, 53rd and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

Tower That Dominates Paris.

The belfry tower of the basilica of the Sacred Heart is beginning to assume construction behind the dome of the sacred edifice. When finished it will dominate Paris from a total height of 218 meters. This tower itself, 92 meters high, stands on the highest point of Montmartre at an altitude of 125 meters. Its completion will bring to a close the most important construction in church architecture which has been undertaken for about a century.

Inflammatory Rheumatism may make you a cripple for life. Don't wait for inflammation to set in. When the first slight pains appear, drive the poison out with Hamlins Wizard Oil.

There are cures for the dope and rum addictions, but the self-addict never gets left for he is patient.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The fact that beauty is only skin deep shouldn't influence a woman to be shallow.

Don't Persecute Your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal, harsh, unnatural, unnecessary.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, stimulate bile, and restore perfect menstruation. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Indigestion, or millions know.

SMALL PILL. SMALL DOSE. SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

DEFIANCE STARCH cooks to work with and stitches stitches stitches.

300 DEAD IN PENNSYLVANIA FLOODS

Breaking of Huge Paper Mill Dam Sends Torrent of Water Down the Valley

COSTELL AND AUSTIN DESTROYED

Flames, Caused by Bursting Gas Mains, Break Out In Wreckage of Ruined Villages, Adding to Horror of the Catastrophe, as Soon as the Floods Had Subsided.

Austin, Pa., Oct. 3.— While men were at their work, women busy in their homes or shopping, and children at play in their yards or in the streets, without the least warning the great dam of the Bayless Pulp and Paper Company, located a mile and a half above here, swept down the valley of Freeman, and before the inhabitants had time to realize what had happened, between 250 and 300 of them had been snuffed out.

Nearly half a billion gallons of water, freer from the reservoir formed by the recently built dam, rushed with great velocity down the narrow valley and crushed frame, brick and concrete structures alike into nothingness, and with them were whirled to by death those persons who were unfortunate enough to be caught in the rush of water.

The wall of water in a few minutes had swept through the town of Austin, leaving devastation and death in its wake, and struck Costello, a few miles below here, where practically every building in that town was destroyed. Only three or four perished, as news of the breaking of the dam reached Costello in time to allow most of the residents to escape to higher ground.

Survivors in a Frenzy.

Hundreds of men, women and children searched through the ruins of the village for their families and friends. The only light was the glare of hundreds of houses which caught on fire from broken gas pipes almost before the flood had passed. Chaos reigned from the moment the mighty wall of water tore through the town.

The Bayless Pulp and Paper Company's dam, which was 520 feet long and 40 feet high, was 18 feet thick at the base and held back 400,500,000 gallons of water. For the first time since its construction two years ago the water ran over the top, and many people from Austin and the surrounding country had gone out to the dam to see the unusual sight, and it was while they were watching the overflow that with the first break in the dam occurred.

There was nothing to indicate that the dam was about to give way, when with a sharp report, a hole appeared in the west end. In a moment water poured through, and it was practically seen that the hole was getting larger. In a minute it was 20 feet wide and extended almost the entire height of the dam. Then there was another report, and it seemed as if the whole structure was giving way.

Flee to High Ground.

With a cry of alarm, the people fled to the nearest high ground, and persons scattered in every direction. It was apparent that all the great body of water behind the dam was going out. Some were caught, and before it was hardly realized the water was roaring down Freemen Run, a wall 50 feet high and sweeping everything before it.

The sound was deafening. Harry Davis, a locomotive engineer, reached a telephone and notified the operator at the exchange. She called as many persons as possible, but the time was short. The raging flood tore down the little valley carrying death on its debris-covered crest. Hundreds of women and children were caught in their homes and drowned or were crushed before they knew what had happened. Houses went down before the mighty onrush of water and gas pipes, bent and broken, released their dangerous fluid.

Before the water had passed on its terrible course through the town a dozen fires were burning in as many places and the cries of injured and imprisoned persons joined in the terrifice thender of the flood.

Much of the debris lodged against the shops of the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad and there the fire raged fiercest. Many men were caught here, and few, if any, escaped with their lives.

The course of the flood was through the business center of the little village. A majority of the buildings were of wood and those which were not immediately wrecked by the torrent were soon to flames.

So sudden was the onslaught of water that many persons had no time to flee to the hills, but others received the warning sed, believing it was fire, hastened to the center of the town, only to be caught in the flood and swept away.

The flood passed quickly, leaving desolation in its wake. Houses had been crushed and tossed about like toys, while hundreds of bodies had been carried down on the crest of the surging torrent.

With the passing of the water, those who had fled to the hills hastened to return to their ruined homes in search of relatives and friends. Here and there bodies had been cast up along the path of the torrent and 130 bodies were recovered in a short time. Some of them had been so badly battered by the tossing debris that they were beyond recognition, while others had been carried along with no apparent injury.

Many were caught in burning buildings, and it will be days before the real extent of the calamity will be known. It is believed that no less than 850 persons perished and some estimates are higher.

Fire Adds to Horror.

A dangerous situation developed immediately after the water had passed. Austin is piped for natural gas, and the great force of the flood tore the mains from its streets, and the largest pipe in town burst in the business section. The gas gushed out and in a twinkling had taken fire.

The flames leaped to a height of twenty feet, and, blown by a strong wind, were communicated to the nearest house. In ten minutes a dozen other pipes had burst and were pouring their inflammable fluid into the air. Men who had rushed forward in the hope of doing some good were overcome and fell, while others were caught in the flames and incinerated. The street became a glowing hell, and there was no salvation for those who chanced to be near. How many perished there is not known, but one estimates places it at a score.

Austin had little fire protection at best, and with no one left to man the little apparatus the town possessed, the programs of the flames was unhampered. Rapidly they swept along, always fed by the continued supply of gas from bursting mains, there was no staying their progress. They licked up what the water had left.

Down at the shops of the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad, history was in the making. The buildings were located below the business section on the banks of Freeman Run, and were more substantial than most of the houses which had been swept away by the flood. Within the great mass of crushed and broken timbers, representing houses but a few minutes before, came crashing down they lodged against the shops. The impact was so great that the walls were crushed in, but the framework stood and formed a barrier against which debris and jetsem of the flood found lodgement.

Men Caught at Machines.

Here also the gas pipes burst, and as the shops were in operation, fire quickly was communicated to the inflammable substances mean. Men were caught before they could leave their machines. Some of them were crushed to death without a warning, but others less favored of fortune were pinned down and not most horrible deaths in the flames.

Nearby was the plant of the Standard Lumber Company, which had on hand a large stock of store wood. It was the fuel the flames most desired, and when the pipes burst there and the burning gas broke through the building it was soon destroyed. Here, too, debris had piled high, and here luckiest one who had been swept down stream mat death.

For hours the merciless shops and the lumber plant burned, and the odor of burning flesh was so strong as to drive many persons from the scene. How many died here never will be known, but, counting the employes of the plants and the persons in the flood, it will eat fall short by 200.

But worst of all were the cries of the women and children. Most all the men were at work and they went at home alone. They had heard the warning sent out by the telephone girl at least some of the people saw the fire bell rang and thought it was a fire. Some of them rushed to the business section, and were caught in the water, for the flood traveled like a race horse. Those not drowned were crushed by the crumbling buildings, and others were caught in the flames.

Little children playing in the yards at home were caught up by the water and tossed about on the flood like playthings. Cattle and horses were swept off, and even the sidewalks were torn up. And over and above it all were the shrieks of the hundreds of poor people who could not escape.

Only Four Buildings Left.

One thousand buildings were torn from their foundations and crushed in the flood or destroyed by fire. The water sands its way through the business section of the town, and left only four buildings standing.

Food and Supply Soon Exhausted.

Until help comes from the outside, little can be done to ascertain the loss or succor the injured. Those so fortunate as to live above the line of the flood were called to help the survivors in the valley and the food supply was soon exhausted, as every grocery store with the exception of one in the neighborhood was swept away. Many went without, and a scanty meal, and unless help comes they will have no breakfast today.

Among the principal pieces destroyed was the plant of the Empirium Lumber Company, not a vestige of it being left. A part of the plant of the Bayless Pulp and Paper Company, whose dam gave way, also disappeared under the raging waters, and the Commercial hotel and Davis house went down before the rush. The White house, another hotel, was burned, and it is believed that a number of persons perished with the building.

One of the spots where the force of the flood was felt most severely was at the Pennsylvania and Freeman Run with another small stream in the middle of the business section. The primary election was in progress in the building not far away, and many men were in the vicinity. They did not heed the warning shout and all of them are believed to have been carried away. Not a trace of the building which the election was held held could be seen.

Man in Auto Gives Warning.

At Costello, which was practically destroyed by the raging water, the people were warned by a young man who sped through the valley in an automobile shouting to the people to take to the hills. His course was over a rock road through the narrow valley. There he maintained the power, rushing water and arrived at the little village in time to spread the news before the flood arrived.

The first alarm of the dam breaking was given by a bell telephone lineman, who saw the advance of the water from the top of a pole. He tore down the receiver and ran to warn Galeton with his feet ost and then fled to the hills, barely escaping with his life.

The dam that broke was about half a mile above the town. It was 620 feet long and 80 feet high, and held the water for more than a mile. The dam was constructed of concrete and stone. Only a year ago it threatened to give way, but the demege was repaired in time to prevent a catastrophe.

Heavy Rains Swell Stream.

Heavy rains in the hills that surrounded the town, had been falling for 24 hours, and the smallest brooks in small brooks that feed the Sinnamahoning caused a sudden, swift rise of the stream. It came in a frightful gray way with a terrible roar as a great volume of water rushed into the main stream from the little tributaries. The thunder of the crash came so swiftly that the people in the peaceful village below, walled by high hills, had no warning of their impending doom. The deluge hit with full force every building immediately in its track and either carried them down or wrecked them before their occupants were aware of what had happened. Incedents of instances people were drowned in their homes without knowing what had caused the disaster.

A sudden step flee been put to all traffic within a wide area of the stricken section. Railroads have discontinued their trains eed help is being rushed to the valley over country automobiles, wagons and other hurriedly contrived conveniences. Coudersport, the nearest town of any size, has started every able-bodied man to the assistance of the village. Scores of bodies have been rescued and are now being hurried to Coudersport.

The dam was completed in November, 1909, by the paper company at a cost of $150,000. The company's plant, of which the dam was part is estimated to be worth $1,000,000.

The Johnstown flood, which is re called by the Austin, Pa., disaster, occurred on the afternoon of May 31, 1889, and 2,142 lives were lost and property was damaged to the extent of more than $10,500,000.

WAR IS DECLARED

ITALY OPENS HOSTILITIES BY SINKING DESTROYER OF TURKEY'S NAVY.

TROOPS LAND AT TRIPOLI

Ruler of Ottoman Empire Fails to Return Satisfactory Reply to the Ultimatum of King Emmanuel and Latter Acts Quickly.

Saloniki, European Turkey.—An Italian torpedo boat destroyed a Turkish destroyer in the harbor of Prevesa, in Epirus, and landed troops. The Turkish authorities are sending a battalion of troops to Prevesa.

Rome.—War was officially declared between Italy and Turkey at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, Italian time. At that hour the 24 hours of grace allowed Turkey in which to reply to the ultimatum of the Italian government expired, and no satisfactory reply had been received from the Ottoman empire.

The Turkish ambassador was given his passports by the Italian government at the hour war was declared. His government had instructed him to demand them, and the papers were made out when the cry "Avanti Soldati" went up in the streets and crowds began to parade the Italian flag past the Turkish embassy.

In a conference ministers held for 40 minutes the Turkish charge d'affaires informed Marquis di San Giuliano, Italian minister for foreign affairs, that Turkey had decided not to oppose the landing of troops by Italy at Tripoli.

He expressed the hope that should troops be landed, Turkish subjects in Tripoli would be spared the humiliation of treatment usually accorded a conquered people.

Admiral Aubrey has been placed in command of the entire land and sea forces of Italy in its campaign to end Turkish suzerainty in northern Africa.

Acting under orders from the minister of marine the Italian fleets have begun to sweep the Mediterranean and troops have been landed at Tripoli.

Italian cruisers have established a complete blockade of the African coast. Cruisers are also patrolling the coasts of Albania, Macedonia and Syria to guard against any Moslem uprising against Europeans.

Thousands of troops have embarked on 40 transports for Tripoli. The expeditionary force will be under the command of General Caneva.

It was announced from the foreign office that Italy will provide for the safety of the persons of all foreigners in Tripoli and Cyrene.

Constantinople.—The Turkish cabinet resigned.

Said Pasha, president of the senate, has been appointed grand vizier and Hakki Pasha foreign minister.

The government has decided not to oppose on armed resistence to the occupation of Tripoli and Barca, but to take no measures against Italian residents in Turkey. The government hopes by adopting that attitude that Italy will not treat the Tripolitans as conquered people.

Public indignation has been intense since the Italian demonds were made known.

The government has decided to enforce martial law in Constantinople for the present. It is feared the rupture with Italy may lead to riots.

Telegrams from various towns of the empire announce that the Moslem youths are volunteering for a war against Italy.

The war ministry has received a dispatch from the Ista Turkish military attache at Perie, who has assumed command of the forces at Tripoli, stating that the Italians began the disembark, but the Turks succeeded in shaking the first two barges. It is rumored also that Italian forces have landed both at Tripoli and Benghazi.

HITCHCOCK POSTMAN IN AIR

Head of Post Office Department Carries Pouch of Letters on Trip in Aeroplane.

New York.—Frank H. Hitchcock, postmaster general of the United States, qualified as an aerial mail carrier on Long Island. The postmaster took a seat beside Capt. Paul Beck of the United States army, in the latter's aeroplane at the Nassau boulevard aerodrome, carrying seventy-eight pounds of mail matter. The two made a seven-minute flight to Mineola, where, upon signal, the postmaster general dropped the mail sack to one of Uncle Sam's carriers.

Morocco Affair is Settled.

Paris.—Germany has decided to accept the French proposals for the settlement of the Moroccan question. The informatioe was communicated to the French ambassador to Berlin, M. Cambon, by Herr von Kiderlin-Waechter, the German minister of foreign affairs.

Whittemore's Shoe Polishes

Prized in Quality. Largest in Variety. Best for Dressing and Shining any polishing shoe of all kinds and colors.

GILT EDGE the only ladies shoe dressing that positively contains Oil. Blacks and Polishes Better and Quicker than any dressing ever without rubbing. Produces Quick, Lasting Polish. Will not injure the most delicate shoe. Softens all kinds of leather and makes it wear longer. Sold everywhere or sent on receipt of 25c. Size, 2½ oz.

BLACK combination for gentlemen who take pride in having their shoes look well dressed and to retain all of black shoes. Polish with a brush and produces a lasting, brilliant polish.

If your dealer does not have the kind you want, send us his address and the price in stamps for a full size package.

WHITTEMORE BROS. & CO., 32-34 Albany St., Cambridge, Mass. The Oldest and Largest Manufacturers of Shoe Polishes in the World.

TRAPPING TIME IS SOON HERE SO GEY POSTED WE FURNISH FREE CORRECT QUOTATIONS ON RAW FURS

A POSTAL CARD TODAY BRINGS A LIST. TAGS FREE

NO COMMISSION CHARGED AS WE ARE DIRECT BUYERS.

THE HOUSE THAT RARELY LOSES A SHIPPER

LOTZ BROS. 153 IS ELM ST. ST. LOUIS

Circumlocution.

"I am inclined to think," said the man who speaks with firmness though with caution, "that our friend Mr. Grafton Grahm was created on the Sabbath."

"For what reason?"

"We are told that an honest man is the noblest work of the Creator, and also that on the seventh day the Creator rested."

The Simple Life.

Anna Ziarla Wilhelmina Pickering, in her "Memoirs," edited by her son, tells a Yorkshire incident which contains a great deal of human nature. Variety spices life; the plain is monotonous, until its extent entitles it to the name of prairie or desert, and it gains interest through vastness.

There was an old couple in the village whom I used to call Mr. and Mrs. One day, when I found them sitting, each on either side of the fire, the old man said to me:

"Well, t' missis and me, we've been married nearly forty years, and we've never had ons quarrel."

The old woman looked at me, with a face resigned, but triumphant.

"It war verie conscientiouse, but verie dool."—Youth's Companion

When we look back now upon some of the things we used to worry about, we wonder what the hidden commissions were doing all that time!

SOUND SLEEP

Can Easily Be Secured.

"Up to 2 years ago,"a women writes, "I was in the habit of using both tea and coffee regularly.

"I foued that my health was beginning to fail, strange nervous attacks would come suddenly upon me, making ma tremble so excessively that I could not do my work while they lasted; my sleep left me and I passed long nights in restless discomfort. I was filled with a nervous dread as to the future.

"A friend suggested that possibly ten and coffee were to blame, and I decided to give them up, and in casting about for a hot table beverage, which I felt was an absolute necessity, I was led by good fortuna to try Postum.

"For more than a year I have used it three times a day and expect, so much good has it done me, to continua its use during the rest of my life.

"Soon after beginning the use of Postum, I found, to my surprice, that, instead of tossing on a sleepless bed through the long, dreary night, I dropped into a sound, dreamless sleep the moment my head touched the pillow.

"Then I suddenly realized that all my nervousness had left me, and my appetite, which had fallen off before, had all at once been restored so that I ate my food with a keen relish.

"All the nervous dread has gone. I walk a mile and a half each way to and from every day and enjoy it. I fled an interest in everything that goes on about me that makes life a pleasure. All this I owe to the use of ten eed coffee and the use of Postum, for I have taken no medicine." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 29 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year to advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Rear Admiral Schley, the hero of Santiago, dropped dead in New York October 2nd. Now we suppose some nervous old ladies will wonder what in the world would become of this country if Spain should attact us now. To bad but it can't be helped; but if they should pitch into us, they wouldn't get a thing done to them.

The Thief River Falls Times is doing a laudable act in calling attention to the bad condition of the roads east of that city. It is a common expression up this way, that the nearer you get to Thief River Falls the worse the road gets. We don't know whether Thief River Falls considers this as any of their, or our business, but we do know that about all the grain from the east end of the county will be marketed at Okjee, or Plummor, as it is an impossibility to hawl a load of wheat over them roads.

What the people want is the recall of judges, and until they can get that right there is not much use to pass laws through the legislature for the benefit of the common people that are against the interests of the corporations, as his honor? will prounpy declare them unconstitutional, and when his honor says so, it is so if it issues so. If we had had the recall of judges the people of Minnesota would be only paying 2 cents a mile car fare, or old Judge Sanbor would be doing business behind a farmers dung fork and we would have a man in his place that could look at the coostitution without being provided with a pair of green goggles by the railroad company s

That state ditching law needs "fixing." As it is now it makes monkeys of the farmers and tax payers and opens a road for graft for officials and ditch contractors. Had we had any law 20 years ago when we petitioned for ditch 47 that we were just providing an eternal resting place for an old dredging machine that petition would never have been filed by us. After January 1st, the whole control the ditching operations in this county comes under the control of the Pennington County officials and is to be hoped that they will do a little better. In the meantime our advice to farmers is, to keep your names off from them county ditch petitions. No matter how bad you want a ditch, you are not going to get it by signing one of them petitions, but are just signing your name to start to do it. If they don't do it in a reasonable time the contract is let to another contractor, and if he don't complete the contract his bondsman have a reasonable time to complete the contract, and if they don't complete the contracts it goes to let to another contractor and so on for no end, and you can continue to waste water and pay ditch taxes. Keep your names off from them petitions until there is a change in the law or the present system of letting contracts.

Pallaring With the Eternal Vorities.

The uncle from the west took his little Boston nephew on his knee. "Washington," he said, "were there was a man"—

Then he still exists, Uncle Peter," interrupted the little Boston boy. "No sentient, reasoning being within whom the vital spark has found a lodgment on this mortal plane ever ceases to be, albeit his activities may seek expression in another form. Annihilation is abhorrent to the aesthetic sense. Matter may vanish from the sight, but the elements of which it is composed are imperishable. In like manner the intangible essence that constitutes the real man, the ego, survives all changes and mutations. It is the indestructible, semipiernal self, that persists through the ages. A little reflection, Uncle Peter, would convince you that the time worn phrase, 'once there was a man,' is a solecism."

Uncle Peter after a little reflection put the hay down from his knee and began to talk of something else.—Chicago Tribune.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 22, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 14th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ljot Sigurdson, of Highlanding Minn. who on Oct. 18, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 758, Serial No. 04770, for S. W. ¼ Section 28 Township 158 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 25th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ike Kvesta, Tobias Olson, Sjur Stolsas, Tom Jacobson, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

CITATION FOR HEARING ON FINAL ACCOUNT.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, In Probate Court.

In the Matter of the Estate of Raymond Arndt, Decedent:

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, To Henry Arndt, Anna Arndt, May Arndt, Clary Vaughn, Stella Arndt, Sadie Arndt, Will Arndt and all other persons interested in the final account and distribution of the estate of said decedent: The representative of the above named decedent, having filed in this court his final account of the administration of the estate of said decedent, together with his petition praying for the adjustment and allowance of said final account and for distribution of the residue of said estate to the persons thereunto entitled;

THEREFORE YOU, AND EACH OF YOU, are hereby cited and required, to show cause, if any you have, before this court at the Probate Court Room in the City of Thief River Falls in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, on the 16th, day of October 1911, at Ten (10) o'clock A. M., why said petition should not be granted.

WITNESS, the Judge of said court, and the Seal of Said Court, this 15th, day of September 1911.

[Court Seal] Wilhiem Michelet,
Probate Judge.

Ira C. Richardson, Attorney for Petitioner,

Thief River Falls, Minn.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 29, 1911.
Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota September 18th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Even R. Olsrud, of Wylie Minn. who on November 7th, 1903 made Homestead Entry No. 1265, Serial No. 02362, for Lots 2, 3, 8, S.W. ¼ N. E. ¼ Section 2 Township 151 N. Range 39 W., and S.W. ¼ S.E. ¼ Section 34 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota; on the 26th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses.

Christ Thompson, of Silin Minn. Knut O. Larson, John O. Larson, of Rudell Minn. Nels Hines, of Wanka Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 22, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 14th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole O. Nilson, of Highlanding Minn. who on October 30, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 778, Serial No. 04283 for S.E. ¼ Section 7 Township 158 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhiem Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 25th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnsgaard, John Dahlen, Emrick K. Rhue, Isaac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Emrick K. Rhue of Erie Minn. who on November 16th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 894, Serial No. 04283 for Lots 3, 4, 5, 6, S. ½ N. W. ¼ Section 1 Township 158 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhiem Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnsgaard, Andrew Hansen, John Dahlen, Isaac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington] S. S. District Court,
14th, Judicial District.

C. Heileman Brewing Company,
Plaintiff,

vs

Edward E. Olson,
Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANT.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which said complaint is now on file in the office of the Clerk of Court of the District Court in and for the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, in the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff will take Judgement against you for the sum of Six Hundred and Twenty-two & 44-100 dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of Six per cent, per annum from the 28th day of May, 1910, togea ther with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Stanton & Rowbotham,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

S-30, 11-6.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Sep. 1st, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Aug. 28th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Jacques Erickson, of Highlanding Minn. who on December 28th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1025, Serial No. 04289, for N. W. ¼ Section 6 Township 158 N. Range 40, W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five Year Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bisbop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 19th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben Erickson, of Thief River Falls Minn. Bee Rikreid, Ries Sanders, Mats Ericsson, of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 15th, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 13th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Olafur Bjornsson, of Brunkeberg Minn. who on October 4, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 938, Serial No. 04243, for Lots 6, 7, 8, S. ½ N. W. ¼ Section 3, Township 158 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhiem Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 26th, day of October 1911.

Claimant name as witnesses:

Ivar Solheim, Andrew Sandland, Christian O. Nygaard, Torjus H. Hemmestveit, all of Brunkeberg Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

The Popular Tea Spot.

Perhaps the average reader would find it difficult if not impossible to state offhand the denomination of the bullet which represent a larger proportion of our currency circulation than any other. The outstanding circulation amounts to something more than $2,845,000,000 and consists of notes of twelve denominations, ranging from $1 to $10,000. There are outstanding 154,411,835 one dollar bills. But another 150 odd dollar notes hold more than $10,000,000 of the largest item in the currency circulation. There are 22,100 notes of $10,000 each outstanding, a total of $221,100,000. But the most important is the ten dollar note, of which 9,860,461 are in circulation, representing a total of $98,904,610. So the ten spot is your Uncle Samuel's favorite theme.—New York Mail.

Management.

"I don't see, Ella, how you manage with your housekeeping money. If I give you $20 you seem a lot, but if I get down to my last $5 or so much you seem to get along with it."

"Why, dear, it's perfectly simple, Harold. When you give me a lot I never try to pay the debts I get into when you don't give me so much."

Women on the Stage.

The earliest mention of actresses was in 1111, when Conrat in his "Cymbidien" gave this description of a production at the Theater of Venice, Italy: "I saw women act. A thing I never saw before. They performed with as good a grace, action, gesture, as ever I saw any masculine actor."

The Horizon.

"How rapidly the horizon lifts!" remarked a young lady.

"Yes," sighed her humorous companion: "I've just swept it with my eye."

There is a restlessness in inactivity; we must find occupation for kings.—Landor.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 15 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 6th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin McAndrew, one of heirs of Mary Sullivan deceased, of St. Hilaire Minnesota, who on October 10, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 751, Serial No. 1156, for N. W. ¼ Section 19, Township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bisbop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on the 16th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl O. Olson, of Kratka Minn. I. Dalshoe of Sunbeam Minn., J. Walter, McAdreas, and William G. Hulse, of Sunbeam Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 20th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Oscar Lindberg, of Roland Minnesota, who on November 6th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 978, Serial No. 04271, for Lots 4, 5, 6, Section 31 & Lot 5, Section 32 Township 156 N. Range 40 W 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on the 11th, day of November 1911

Claimant names as witnesses:

Adolph Lindberg, John Lindberg, Bernund Rysad, of Rhoda Minn. Christian O. Lindberg, of Roland Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN,
Register.

"I Suffered Intense Pains in My Left Side."

Do you realize it is better to be safe than sorry, that it is the best policy to lock the stable door before the horse is stolen?

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I started taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering with heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that I was impossible for me to do thirty minutes work in a while. I also suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade, could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least exertion would bring on most distressing palpitation. I had nearly taken a full bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see any change in my condition, but after I began to sleep well, & a good appetite, was improved so much that when I had taken six bottles I was entirely cured."

MRS. C. C. GOKEY, Northfield, Vt.

If you have any of the symptoms Mrs. Gokey mentions, it is your duty to protect yourself.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.

is what you need. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned. Ask your druggist.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Love and a Ring.

The story of one woman's pride and devotion comes out of a jeweler's shop. A young man bought an engagement ring. Apparently he was an impecunious young man. At any rate, he ordered an imperfect diamond in less than a week his fiancee called at the store.

"Is this a flawless diamond?" she asked. "I want an honest answer."

She got it.

"I thought so," said she. "Poor fellow! I don't blame him. He did the best he could. I don't care for myself, but I have friends who are good judges of diamonds, and it would mortify me too for them to find out that he gave me a cheap ring. Will you take this stone with bad reparee it with a first class diamond? He will never know the difference. I will pay the bill."

The switcheroo was effected, and that young woman is now proudly showing an engagement ring that for splendor cannot be outdone on the whole west side.—New York Herald.

ATTORNEY GENERAL SAYS PURE SNUFF CAN BE SOLD IN MINNESOTA LEGALLY

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

AMERICAN SNUFF CO., 111 Fifth Ave., New York

RHODA STORE.

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER, Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT SINGER BRO. KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to buy the Right Goods at the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

Madia

The Madia Mfg. Co.
41 Willow St., New Haven, Conn.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

For Sale. A young driveing team cheap, if taken soon.
Lenard McAndress,
Sunbeam Minn.

Pay up your back subscription.

The weather is very fine today.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

C. L. Clark was transacting business at Thief River Falls on Monday.

Wanted, teams and men to break from 50 to 60 acres of land. Mr. Brockman, Roland Minn.

The weather has been so bad the past week that threshing has been at a standstill.

Henry Arndt and Walter McAndress are getting well along with their fall plowing. Early fall plowing is the best.

Marshall Shed is doing the carpenter work for Wm. G. Hunt on the new house he is building on the homestead.

There has not been any heavy rains thus far this fall to soften up the ground so as to hinder the moving of threshing machines.

James O'Brien has had the extra machine hands grubbing and clearing land while they are laying up for bad weather. A good idea.

Those who threshed early had the best of it, for weather, but we have our Indian summer coming, yet which must mean some fair weather.

We are in need of money very bad just now and are calling on our delinquent subscribers to pay up. Please remit when you get your statement.

A stranger pointed to that old ditching machine on ditch 47 and said: "Is that a floating dredge?" We told him no, that it was a setting dredge.

They have got ditch 47 dug far enough to dump all the water from 4 mile south of them onto Mostue and Overvold with a sudden dash, and there the old ditcher stopped.

For Health and Energy Eat
CREAM OF RYE.
For Breakfast. Reduces Cost of Living. Free Silver Spoon in Every Package. Ask your Grocer for a Package.

Taken up: Threespring calves. Two white and one red. Owner call and get them and pay for this notice. A. B. Mandt, one mile south from Kratka post office.

Parties wanting to advertise should not forget that THE SUNBEAM is the paper that has the circulation among the famers, in eastern Red Lake and Pennington Countys.

The lumber companys solved the bridge problem by shutting off Red Lake River at the head of it. They have found it cheaper to make ARRANGEMENTS with the war department at St. Paul than to be compelled to open it up, but some of them ducks may discover that there is a god in Israel before next spring.

We understand that some of the threshing machine hands on the north side had to go down to the Highlanding stores and buy a lunch for breakfast, as the farmer had finished threshing the night before. Pretty small business that, as the farmers must feed the laboring men, if they expect them to stay in the country and help thresh.

Although we have had lots of rain the roads are not very bad, even that road this side of Thief River Falls, along by that school house about three miles this side of town is said to be in passable condition, in fact we have only heard of one farmer getting tip ed off the grade and having his load dumped in the ditch this fall and that isn't bad.

That Log Jam.

We are pleased to note that a few other newspapers dowe the line, Below Thief River Falls are are taking up the matter of the lumber companys blocking up Red Lake River with logs. We reliably informed that there is about twenty five million feet of logs in the jam and that it is about seven miles long commencing right on the head of the river. As these facts are denied by tools and hirelings of the lumber companys, so in order to satisfy our selves we will visit the place and have some views taken of the river and jam as it is. There could be a hole made through the logs to let the water out of the lake into the river, but the lumber companys will not go to the expense of doing it, if they are not compelled to.

A GOOD COLLECTOR.

The Eleven Towns wants subscribers to pay in advance after Jan. 1st,—Take our advce don' you do it, let him walk back to Pennsilvania. He talks about ex cutting down the size of their paper and that he is doing business at the same old place, with about two hundred due on subscription. Add one thousand to that John and then talk about money due on subscription. He also takes a swipe at the Plaindealer Pioneer, but if the subscribers don't pay Quist any better than they pay us, he should get out a blank paper, John seems to be looking for trouble, and sub scription is in advance. If he was as good an editor as he is collector he would be o.k.

Roland News.

Miss Nellie Short and and Julia Rindahl spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs Axel Gustafson.

Mr. Carl Rindal has been spending a few days visiting his parents at Fertile.

Mr. Andrew Hauson, A. Rolandson and Jim Rystad made a business trip to Red Lake Falls last Friday.

Emel Linvik is working for Andrew Letvig digging wells.

Miss Ida Lillo started teaching school in the Rindal district last Monday.

Ole Sunude, from Hill River is up this way looking for land.

Axel Hanson made a trip Wanke Suaday, returning Monday.

Nesland Bros, are building a barn for Tona Johnson.

Miss Gena Gundersen and Alma Fore visited Miss Annie Bell Rolandson last Sunday.

Osmond Mandt, Andrew Brovold and Mr. Luthus made a trip to Red Lake Falls last Friday.

There is a new butcher shop at Roland. Call on or write A. J. Hanson.

It is the rule of rules and the general law of all laws that every person should observe those of the place where he is.—Montaigne.

Capitals We Have Had.

It is asserted sometimes that the United States has had five capitals, but the statement is not correct. The United States has had but three capitals—New York, Philadelphia and Washington. In the period preceding the adoption of the constitution no place was legally constituted a capital, in a loose and unofficial sense it is possible to describe as a capital any city which was the seat of government. Taking the sessions of the Continental congress as establishing a seat of government in the Revolution and the confederation, the following cities may loosely rank as capitals: Philadelphia, Baltimore, Lancaster, York, Princeton, Annapolis, Trenton and New York. The articles of confederation were passed by congress in Philadelphia, and the federal convention charged to prepare a constitution convened at the same place.

Shocked the Parisian.

"We came through with flying colors," boasted the middle aged man who had returned from his first visit to Europe. "About the only serious mistake of the trip was made by my wife. She drove the clerk in a Paris shop to indignation and despair by inadvertently asking if the dress trimmings she was looking at were imported. The girl scarcely took her hand off. 'Imported?' she said. 'Where from?'"—New York Sun.

The Case of Johnny Turner

It Illustrates a Coming Solution of a Social Problem

By EDWARD B. TRAINOR

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

One day in the fall of 1850 two boys, Edgar Thorpe and Johnny Turner, aged respectively seventeen and sixteen years, were hunting in the woods of Missouri. Thorpe came into camp in the evening with a bottle of whisky, and the two began to drink. Turner had never tasted spirits of any kind. He had no memory of what happened at the time, except that he and Thorpe quarreled, till he was sobered by seeing his friend fall dead with blood oozing from a bullet hole in his forehead. Then he knew he was a murderer.

To confess the crime meant months in jail before being brought to trial, and the least punishment that might be expected was a term of years in state prison, and possibly he might swing. The courts do not admit the influence of liquor as an excuse for crime. Johnny didn't know this. He was too young to know anything about such matters. He was seized with a desire to get away as far and as quickly from the scene of his crime as possible.

HE BEGAN AT ONCE TO UNBURDEN HIMSELF.

Leaving the body where it lay, he struck out into the woods, walking all night. He has been through many horrors since, but he says that the first night after the murder was the most frightful of all. In the morning, needing something to eat, he stopped at a farmhouse and heard persons talking about the sea battle in Manila bay that had just occurred. Here was a chance for him to bury his identity. He would volunteer in the army and he sent to fight the Spaniards.

After eating a scant breakfast he went on till he struck a city to which he found the people excited over the news from Manila. Seeking a recruiting station, he offered himself for enlistment. The recruiting officer looked at him dubiously, wondering if he was of a proper age to join the army, but he was eager to fill up his company, and, since Johnny made one of five men he tacked for the purpose, the boy was accepted, going on the roster under an assumed name. He was sent to Tampa, Fla., and from there to Cuba.

The morning of debarkation was the first event to make Johnny forget that terrible scene in the wood when he had come to himself and seen what he had done. As bootlood after bootlood of men left the transports and were pulled to the shore the air was alive with their cheers rising above the strains of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town" from the military bands.

And there was a hot time, sure enough. The army marching inland toward Santiago was met by the Spanish, and a sharp fight was the result. Johnny, who had enlisted with a vague boyish idea of getting killed in battle, forgot his original intention and felt only the emotions of a soldier. The ardor of battle triumphed over all else. Where other recruits showed Johnny pushed forward. When the fight was over he had been marked by the captain for one of the reliable men of his company, and, a sergeant having been killed, Johnny was promoted to the position.

Before the fighting around Santiago ceased Johnny was made a lieutenant. But the war was short, and at the end of it he was still a boy, having barely turned seventeen. Nevertheless he was so badly wounded that it was expected he would die. He lay in hospital for a long while and when finally discharged was permanently disabled.

Retaining his army name, the young "reformed" went to work in an eastern city and by close application to his work gained the confidence of his employers. But, while at the outset all was well, when he went to bed his secret never left him. Often he would awaken in the night with a start, and as if by a flash of lightning the scene in the wood from which he had fled would be vividly revealed to him.

Though Johnny was lost to the world, there was one with whom he communicated—his mother. To her he wrote, explaining his absence, and she realized the importance of keeping his secret. Six years passed and Johnny, partly by good luck, partly because in work alone he was able to temporarily banish the crime that haunted him, prospered. The only person who knew his secret and still loved and respected him was his mother, and he asked her to come to him. She did so, and from the moment of her arrival he found one to confide his load less hard to bear.

But a time came when it again loomed up before him like the figure of a "giant despair." Two years had worn away something of the sharpness of his suffering, his mother had in a measure convinced him that in his case the line between crime and misfortune was an imaginary one, when a new motive for regret came to him. Alice Blair, a woman a few years his junior, old enough to be impressed with the enormity of the crime of taking her life under any circumstances the life of a friend, became a part of his existence. The love between the two was stronger in the end because he considered it hopeless. He could not make the woman his wife under a false name, but he could not bind her to him for a lifetime without a confession that he had shed blood in his hands. And, overcome, he confessed to her. It would be wronging her and chill them that might come to them both.

Slowly, but surely, in this man's life the principle of confession and atonement was working itself out. What nothing else could effect was to be brought about by the woman he loved, she bearing her share of the punishment. He did not spend his love. It seemed with him rather a fever from which he was suffering than love. He would absent himself from her for weeks at a time, only to return to a companionship that he could not live without. Patiently she waited for an explanation that she felt assured must come in time.

One evening after one of these absences—a longer one than usual—the lover appeared. It was at an hour between daylight and dusk. She had been thinking of him and was beginning to fear that this dreadful something then was between them might, in this instance, separate them forever. Suddenly he burst in upon her, and as she looking, so despairing that for a moment she almost fancied that he was his ghost.

He had returned resolved to confess to her. He began at once to unburden himself of the fiendish secret, and it was not long before it was all in her possession. She spoke no word. She gave him one look of heartfelt sympathy, then, overpowered by his and her misfortune, covered her face with her hands and bowed her head. He waited for her to speak, but she did not, and he silently withdrew.

The next day she sent for him. When he appeared a great change had come over her. She showed traces of a terrible mental struggle.

"I have forgiven what in one sense is a crime. I will be anything to you, but on one condition. Confess to the world and take the consequences. I cannot live with you your public shame; I cannot share your secret."

He turned without a word, went to the office of the sheriff of the county and confessed that he had murdered his friend Edgar Thorpe. The governor of the state in which the crime had been committed made a requisition for him, and he was taken there for trial.

When the members of the societies of Spanish war veterans heard that the fellow-soldier had given himself up to be tried for murder they at once became interested. Gradually the whole matter before the case became known to them. Between the murder and the trial the accused had had an opportunity seldom falling to the lot of criminals to show that his act had been rather a misfortune than a crime and that he who committed it had become a good citizen as well as a brave soldier. He'd given himself up immediately after the murder the case would have been far different. A long term of confinement would have wrecked him.

As it was, while the law was satisfied Turner escaped the punishment of the law—at least, all except the degradation of entering a prison. His sentence was but a few months, and he left before the term had expired he was pardoned by the governor of the state.

On the morning he was liberated a large concourse assembled at the prison door to welcome him upon his release. Foremost were his old comrades, veterans in the Spanish war, and lastly a multitude of sympathizers. As he stepped beyond the prison portal it seemed to him that he was leaving the greater part of his atonement behind him. Now, the fear of having taken the life of his boy friend would live so long as he himself, but the secret would not be with him, nor between him and the woman he loved, not between him and the world. In its place would be a heartfelt sympathy.

There is a lesson in the case of John Turner that the world is slowly awakening, a lesson—it is rather a problem—respecting the treatment of criminals. But it will not be easily solved. Justice has not yet found a way of giving one who perpetrates a first crime an opportunity for redemption before inflicting a punishment that deprives him of that opportunity. Nor has a line yet been drawn between the criminally inimic and those offending who attempt to elude justice on a false plea.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.
NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. Samuel Gilbeau Vic. Pres.
Larry O'Niel, Abraham Friquire, T. L. Cuteau,
J. A. [illegible] Cutler [illegible] Cutler, Jerry Cutler.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footware Buy The BELL BARD.

CALL ON US. IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.
Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

Notice For Publication.

First pub in the Sunbeam Oct. 6.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 2nd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Otis S. Quam, of Tegerson Minn. who on June 16th, 1909, made Homestead Entry Serial No. 08836, for S. E. ¼ Section 21 Township 154 N Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Hilton Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 6th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole Vraa, John Sletvik, Peder Nybokkes, Reinhart Johnsrud, all of Tegerson Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Waterfalls in Japan.

Waterfalls in Japan are almost countless. There is one at every turn, and where there was not one in the beginning the fairies have made one for it is their passion. Every little garden has a fall or two or it would not be considered a garden. There are many very beautiful ones in various parts of the country, and they are all of them sketched and by thousands of pilgrims.

The Best You Have.

Always give of the best that is in you. Feel responsibility toward yourself and your work. Never be content with a compromise with work. Give an employer the best that you have in you to give.—Belvedere Brooks.

Mean Reply.

"Talk about mean!" exclaimed the suffering one. "What has mean ever done for woman?"

"He's furnished her with a model she's trying darned hard to imitate," came a voice from the rear of the hall.—Boston Transcript.

Remorse.

A scientist had made a mistake in his weights and poisoned a customer. While the fatal tidings were brought to him he exclaimed, "Perfect fool that I am! My best customer today!"

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, reliability, many exclusive features. Every pattern has a label. Catalog, or by mail [illegible]. Send for [illegible].

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers to [illegible] than any other woman's magazine. Has a [illegible] of 1,000,000 copies. Invites [illegible] fancy [illegible] etiquette, good [illegible], etc., [illegible] Special [illegible]. Subscribe today, or send

WOOD'S NEW HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE is A Corker. Pleased subscribers now each price 50c a year.

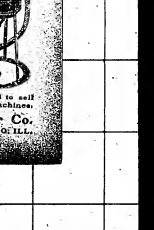
[illegible] Co., 238 to 248 W. 13th St., [illegible]

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the Improved

"Simplex"



Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply every lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.
64 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

Cement Talk No. 8

The appearance of any place can be greatly improved by using concrete wherever possible. If you have a nice home, whether in the city or in the country, you can add greatly to its attractiveness by building not only the sidewalks, but the steps, curbs, fence-posts, cisterns, foundations, driveways, cellars and so on, of concrete. Build of concrete and use UNIVERSAL Portland Cement. Concrete is cheap, easy to use, clean, fire, rat and rot proof. Concrete is the simplest building material and the most durable. You need only UNIVERSAL cement, sand, gravel or crushed stone. But remember to use UNIVERSAL—it is the best cement. It is always : uniform color and great strength. Ask your dealer for it.

UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO.
SECURITY BANK BLDG., MINNEAPOLIS
ANNUAL OUTPUT 10,000,000 BARRELS

REMEMBER
PISO'S
for COUGHS & COLDS

KODAKS
Films and all supplies. Mail orders given prompt attention. Developing and finishing by experts. VOSBURG DRUGGIST, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

TOO MUCH FOR SMALL BRAIN

Big Word Meant an Effort, but This Little Girl Made Brave Attempt.

This incident occurred just after a Jewish holiday. It was in a third grade school in Cleveland in a district of Russian and Hungarian Jews.

The teacher was explaining the meaning of the word Judicious. She asked the children to give her stories about the word.

After several had given illustrations about the judicious use of money, the teacher said:

"Now give me a story about something judicious, without money in it."

A little girl finally volunteered. She said:

"On our holidays we had roast goose and a whole lot of other Jew dishes."

WEAK, ILL AND MISERABLE.

How many people suffer from backache, headache and dizziness without realizing the cause? These symptoms of kidney trouble are too serious to neglect.

James C. Hardin, Weatherford, Texas, says: "My feet and limbs became numb and I had terrible pains through the small of my back. Kidney secretions caused untold annoyance by their frequency in passage and I began to think there was no hope for me. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and I have not had the slightest trouble since."

"When Your Back is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S."

For sale by druggists and general storekeepers everywhere. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A reasonable amount of egotism is good for a man. It keeps him from brooding over his neighbor's success.

Cole's Carbolisalve quickly relieves and cures burning, itching and tortoring skin diseases. It instantly stops the pain of burns. Cures without scars. 25c. and 50c. by druggists. For free sample write to J. W. Cole Co., Black River Falls, Wis.

Some neighors don't like it unless you talk about them.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Newfolden.—Lars Thorson has raised a squash that weighs seventy pounds.

Cloquet.—The postal savings bank installed a few weeks ago has $3,500 on deposit.

St. Paul.—The Minnesota state tax commission has increased bank assessments from 10 to 40 per cent.

Moorhead.—Mrs. Otto Dehl, secretary of the Clay County Sunday-School association, has announced that the next meeting will be held in this city on Oct. 2 and 3.

Warren.—The Marshall County Anti-Tuberculosis association received 1,000 anti-tuberculosis campaign buttons that they will sell to raise money for the work in the county.

St. Cloud. — Robbers broke into the postoffices at Oak Park and Kimberly, Island towns 15 miles northeast of this city, and made a total haul of $1 in postage stamps.

Mankato.—Total deposits in the banks of this county are $6,159,898, and the total loans $9,047,692. The deposits have decreased in the last six months $586,858, and the loans have increased $173,641.

Winona.—Sister M. Cansia of Rollingstone died on Monday from heart failure at the age of 55. She had been superior of the Sisters at Rollingstone for nine years and taught the advanced grades of the parochial schools there.

Bemidji.—Bemidji will have a market day on Thursday, October, 12, and the Bemidji Commercial club has decided that this day shall become a permanent institution, when the farmer will be given the benefit of special bargains in merchandise and supplies in return for his good will and pleasant smile.

Northfield.—The Woman's Relief Corps is making plans for the entertainment of the district convention on Oct. 11. The convention comes to Northfield in accordance with the rules that it is to hold in the city in which the district president resides. The president this year is Mrs. Lucia Davison.

Fernhault.—The farmers in this county are erecting an unusually large number of silos this season. The hay crop has been short the last several years, so the farmers planted more fodder, which now is being cut and put in the silos. The result from feeding it has much increased the milk output.

Bemidji.—Harrison W. Bailey, 74 years old, judge of the Bemidji municipal court, commander of the Robert H. Carr post, Grand Army of the Republic, a distinguished member of the Second Iowa regiment which went with Sherman to the sea, and who was for twelve years a resident of Bemidji, died at his home here.

Cloquet.—The Northern Lumber company's upper mill, shut down for several weeks for repairs, will be running again by Oct. 1, and if the lumber trade permits will operate all winter. The company has passed a resolution to spend pump, which will be used along the St. Louis river for the cleaning of sand and debris from the pockets along the river and in the mill.

Bemidji.—Bemidji no longer has a million company. Captain Charles Ehlers from the adjutant general's office has spent two days in Bemidji packing up Company K's equipment and has shipped it back to the capitol. Since Adam Otto, captain of the company, resigned as assistant postmaster and took up his work as postoffice inspector, which work carried him out of Bemidji, the company has not had a meeting.

Northfield.—The apple crop in this part of the state is not going to waste; 1,200 bushels have been shipped to western Minnesota, South Dakota and Alberta. The winter apples are usually good and thousands of bushels are being shipped. The fruit consists mostly of Patten's Greenings, Northwest Greenings, Wealthy, Peerless and Malinda. At least 5,000 bushels will be shipped by the time the crop is harvested.

Brainerd.—J. W. Lewis and T. W. Todd, prominent laymen of Minneapolis, occupied pulpits in Brainerd churches and spoke at a mass meeting in the afternoon explaining the new movement among the Protestant churches of the country called "the men and religion movement." As a result of the meeting delegates will be appointed to attend the big convention which will be held in Minneapolis the first week in October.

Bemidji.—Six thousand acres of fertile soil, embracing the townsite of Nebish, twenty-five miles north of Bemidji and the Red Lake railroad, have been sold by the Crookston Lumber Company of this city, to J. J. Opsahl. Mr. Opsahl announces that it is his intention to develop this tract and to make special inducements to bring settlers in. It is understood his company will make special terms. The tract is especially adapted to clover, potatoes, onions and celery.

Stillwater.—H. A. Fuller, a farmer near Lake Elmo, pleaded guilty in the municipal court to a charge of illegal fishing last June. The county attorney stated that he understood it was a case of spite and asked leniency. The lowest fine of $10 with costs was imposed and paid.

Fernhault.—At a meeting of the city commissioners the matter of the fire safety of public buildings was brought up by Mayor Blodgett. The commissioners authorized the mayor to appoint an inspector whose duty it will be to make a thorough investigation and report to the city officials.

HEALTH AS AN INVESTMENT

Fraternal Orders, Labor Unions and Insurance Companies Erect Tuberculosis Sanitoria.

At an investment in the health of their members, four large fraternal orders, two international labor unions and one of the largest insurance companies in the United States have established sanatoria for the treatment of tuberculosis, according to a statement issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. The Royal League, the first fraternal order to establish a sanatorium, conducts a hospital for its tuberculous members at Black Mountain. The Modern Woodmen of America conducts one at Colorado Springs; the Workmen's Circle, one at Liberty, N. Y., and the Independent Order of Foresters have one at Rainbow Lake, N. Y., and will soon open a second one at San Fernando, Cal. The International Typographical Union has since 1898 conducted a sanatorium at Colorado Springs, and the International Printing Pressman and Assistants' Union of America has recently opened a new institution at Rogersville, Tenn. A leading life insurance company is now erecting a sanatorium at Mt. McGregor, N. Y., which will be the first of its kind established by an "old line" insurance company.

HIGHLY AMUSED.

Hiram Greene—What did your slate say when you told her I was going to make a speech in the town hall tonight?

Willie—She didn't say nothin'; she just laughed until she had hysterics.

Failed to Scare Him.

A plan was formed to scare a certain Tim Casey, living in a village near Belfast, on his returning from market by night past the churchyard. As he went by, the usual unruly, white sheet, and lanthorn of the conventional ghost were submitted to his gaze, with the customary eerie howls. Tim, however, simply looked fixedly at the apparition for a moment and remarked: "Arrah, now, and is it a general resurrection, or are ye just taking a walk by yerself?"

Usual Thing.

"Seen taking your eyes lately?" asked the oculist.

"Yes," said the patient; "I looked at them in a newspaper of 144 pages which came through the mail to me bearing the words 'marked copy.'"

"No wonder your eyes smart!"

"Oh, but that isn't the worst of it. I didn't find anything marked."—Buffalo Express.

"ECZEMA ITCHED SO BADLY I COULDN'T STAND IT."

"I suffered with eczema on my neck for about six months, beginning by little pimples breaking out. I kept scratching till the blood came. It kept getting worse, I couldn't sleep nights any more. It kept itching for about a month and then I got a doctor and got some liquid to take. It seemed as if I was going to get better. The itching stopped for about three days, but when it started again, was even worse than before. The eczema itched so badly I couldn't stand it any more.

"I went to a doctor and he gave me some medicine, but didn't do any good. We have been having Cuticura Remedies in the house, so I decided to try them. I had been using Cuticura Soap, so I got me a box of Cuticura Ointment, and washed off the affected part with Cuticura Soap three times a day, and then put the Cuticura Ointment on. The first day I put it on, it relieved me of itching so I could sleep all that night. It took about a week, then I could see the scab come off. I kept the treatment up for three weeks, and my eczema was cured.

"My brother got his face burned with gun-powder, and he used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The people all thought he would have scars, but you can't see that he ever had his face burned. It was simply awful to look at before the Cuticura Remedies (Soap and Ointment) cured it." (Signed) Miss Elizabeth Gehrig, Forest City, Ark., Oct. 16, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 17 L, Boston.

Such is Fate.

"Why do you rock that boat?" asked the wise man.

"Because, in case of accident," replied the fool. "I'm always saved."

Some men think they are ambitious if they try to avoid hard work.

PUTTING IT UP TO CENTRAL

All Caller Wanted Was Mrs. Smith's Number, and Surely That Was Easy to Get.

"Hallos, there, central! Is this central? Is it? I thought it was, but I couldn't quite be sure. The other day I supposed I was talking to central, and here it was only my grocer. I do think there are some queer mix-ups in this telephone service. What I want now is to find out the telephone number of Mrs. John Smith—S-m-i-t-h, Smith. I find that there are more than 100 persons of that name in the book, and I don't know which one is the husband of the lady I want. She is a large lady with a florid face and prematurely white hair, and I think her husband is a traveling man, and a brother-in-law of hers, named Jones, lives somewhere on M street—a stout, elderly gentleman with side whiskers. Kindly let me have Mrs. Smith's number at once. I had it on a slip of paper thet I can't find. Seems to me it was two-four-three-ring three, nine-two-sixty-four ring two. You know how confusing telephone numbers are. Let me have Mrs. Smith's number right away, please."

A Rate Maker.

"You say you charge extra for summer boarders who are trying to reduce their weight?"

"Yes," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I have to. They always develop the biggest appetites."

The world doesn't ask how you got there after you arrive.

To Get
Its Beneficial Effects
Always Buy the Genuine
SYRUP of FIGS
and ELIXIR of SENNA
manufactured by the
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
Sold by all leading Druggists
One Size Only, 50¢ a Bottle

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Write for catalogue. ADDRESS DEPARTMENT D ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

FOR EYE ACHES Petit's Eye Salve

DEFIANCE Cold Water Starch
Has 16 ounces more than 10 cent packages. It is 16 oz. 15c, 20c

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 40–1911,

Women Who Suffer

from woman's ailments are invited to write to the names and addresses here given, for positive proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound does cure female ills.

Tumor Removed.

Elmo, Mo., Mrs. Sarah J. Stuart, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 21.

Peoria, Ill., to Mrs. Christina Reed, 126 Monmouth Street. Mrs. Nathan E. Greson, 81 Milwaukee Ave.

Milwaukee, Wis., Mrs. Emma Jesse, 833 1st St. Shippy, Ill., Mrs. Alvena Spurling, 1426 Chippewa Ave.

Galena, Kan., Mrs. A. B. Huey, 713 N. Maryland. Victoria, Miss., Mrs. Willie Edwards.

Chardon, Ohio., Mrs. W. H. Houk, 7 Eastview Ave.

Change of Life.

Peoria, Ill., Mrs. Ida E. Stevens.

Waverly, Ill., Mrs. J. H. Campbell, 206 North Main St.

Mrs. Fay Hall, Peoria, 822 Halsey St.

South Bend, Ind., Mrs. Anna Rose, 1220 Chicago Ave.

Oakland, Calif., Mrs. Mrs Barker, 2940 Ave.

Circleville, Ohio., Mrs. Alice Ellis, 353 West Main St.

Salem, Ind., Mrs. Lizzie S. Hinkle, R. R. No. 3.

Mrs. Florence Lee, Mt. Gow. Cor. Bleecker, 1823 Mishawaka, Ind., Mrs. Chas. Bauer, Jr., 823 East Marion St.

Racine, Wis., Mrs. Katie Kuhls, R. 9, Box 51.

Mrs. Frank Fa., Wis., W. F. Hoyt, MIDDLEAT. Masonville, Brunswick, Mrs. J. Adams.

Peoria, Ill., Mrs. Wm. O. Kirg, Box 208.

Carlsbad, N. Mex., Mrs. Lydia Fischer, R. Mon-

Pain.

South Sanford, Me., Mrs. Charles A. Austin.

Schenectady, N. Y.—Mrs. H. Proctor, 702 Albany St.

Taylorville, Ill.—Mrs. Joe Grantham, 826 W. Vandalia St.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Mrs. Sophia Hoff, 825 Monmouth St.

Big Run, Pa.—Mrs. W. P. Pooler.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. M. Johnston, 219 Siegel St.

Backache.

Peoria, Ill.—Mrs. Ida Gaswirk, R. R. No. 4, Box 29.

Augusta, Me.—Mrs. Winfield Dane, R. F. D. 9.

St. Paul, Minn.—Mrs. E. M. Schorr, 1063 Woodbridge St.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Mrs. G. Leiser, 6219 Kinkaid St.

Kearney, Mo.—Mrs. Thomas Asberry.

Elmo, Mo.—Mrs. Sarah J. Stuart, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 21.

East Earl, Pa.—Mrs. Augustus Iyon, R.F.D. 2. Operation Avoided.

Hampton, Mo.—Mrs. Dessie Bellman.

Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Wm. Abrens, 2236 W. 21st St.

Mrs. Lucinda Ross, Ohio.—Mrs. Edith Wieland, 228 Monroe St.

Dayton, Ohio.—Mrs. Augusta Vesermann.

Denver, Mass.—Mrs. Lizzie Doolittle, Box 1.

Nervous Prostration.

Knoxville, Iowa.—Mrs. Mary Hall, R.F.D. 8.

Hampton, Mo.—Mrs. Dessie Bellman.

Chicago, Ill.—Mrs. Wm. Abrens, 2236 W. 21st St.

Irregularity.

Bethany, Mo.—Mrs. Clara Darbyshire, 17 Morrison St.

Winchester, Ind.—Mrs. Ella Neal, R. R. No. 6, St. Regis Falls, N. Y.—Mrs. J. H. Brayton.

Smyrna, Ill.—Mrs. Jessie Rose, R. F. D. 2.

Hudson, Ohio.—Mrs. Geo. Strickler, R. No. 5, Box 31.

Ovarian Trouble.

Murrayville, Ill.—Miss Chas. Moon, R. R. 2.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. Chas. Boell, 2212 S. Mole St.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Mrs. John G. Holden, 2110 Second St., North.

Hudson, Ohio.—Mrs. Lena Carmichael, R.F.D. 7.

Westwood, Md.—Mrs. John F. Richard.

Mrs. Frank Fa., Wis., W. F. Hoyt, MIDDLEAT.

Female Weakness.

W. Terre Haute, Ind.—Mrs. Artie B. Hamilton.

Elmo, Mo.—Mrs. A. G. Hyland.

Lansing, Iowa.—Mrs. Julia A. Gentry, R. No. 2.

Utica, Ohio.—Mrs. Mary Rochwire, R. F. D. 2.

Bellevue, Ohio.—Mrs. Charley Clapper, R. F. D. No. 7.

Elgin, Ill.—Mrs. Henry Leiseberg, 743 Adams St.

Schaefferstown, Pa.—Mrs. Cyrus Heirich.

Cressona, Pa.—Mrs. Ellis F. Alter.

Fairchance, Pa.—Mrs. Idella A. Dunham, Box 122.

Nervous Prostration.

Knoxville, Iowa.—Mrs. Mary Hall, R.F.D. 8.

Grenoch, N. J.—Mrs. Mae McKnight.

Hampton, Mo.—Mrs. Dessie Bellman.

Asthma Averted.

Muddy, Ill.—Mrs. May Nolen.

Brookville, Ohio.—Mrs. H. Knolson.

Pinckville, Ohio.—Mrs. G. Cole.

Fallsville, Ky.—Mail. Frank Clark, 3412 B. Allegheny Ave.

These women are only a few of thousands of living witnesses of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. Not one of these women ever received compensation in any form for the use of their names in this advertisement—but are willing that we should refer to them because of the good they may do other suffering women. The fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a reliable and honest medicine, and that the statements made in our advertisements regarding its merit are the truth and nothing but the truth.

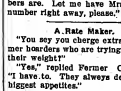
W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

WOMEN wear W.L.Douglas stylish, perfect fitting, and comfortable shoes, because they give long wear, same as W.L.Douglas Men's shoes.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The workmanship which has made W.L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.



If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L.Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are worranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION name and price stamped on bottom of shoe. Take no substitute. If not for sale in your town, write for catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W.L. DOUGLAS, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $2, $2.50 or $3.00 SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes

Quack Grass and Foul Weeds Quickly Destroyed

The most practical and sure method of ridding your land of these great pests. This machine is giving wonderful satisfaction on hundreds of farms. Simple, strong, and durable. Has paid for itself in one season on many a farm. Write us for full particulars.

Austin Weed Exterminator Manufacturing Co., 104 S. Kenwood Ave., Austin, Minn.

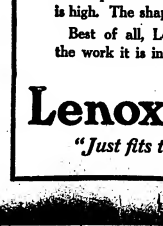
PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. Yousan dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG COMPANY, Quincy, Ill.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought



Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promote s Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral
NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old DR SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bicarbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY,
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES 35 CENTS
Guaranteed under the Foods
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Lenox is not a new soap.

The price is low. The quality is high. The shape is convenient.

Best of all, Lenox Soap does the work it is intended to do.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1911. NO. 29.

MUNYON PREACHES HOPE PHILOSOPHY

New Association Gaining Many Members.

FAITH'S CURATIVE POWER

NOTED HEALTH EXPERT GIVES REASON FOR BIG SUCCESS IN MEDICINE

Tremendous success has attended the organization of the new Munyon "Hope Club," Professor Munyon claims that he has received more cheering than he even anticipated, and says that the "Hope Club" is growing in leaps and bounds. It is said that the total membership of the association throughout the United States is now well over the half million mark.

In an interview given for publication Prof. Munyon said:

"I want to talk to every sick, ailing and despondent person in this city. I want to speak to every one of them. I want to tell them about my new philosophy of health, which is the fruit of a lifetime of study and experience in dealing with the sick.

"I want to expound the Great Truth that I have learned that there is more curative power in an ounce of Hope than in pounds of Hope. That sick people should not take medicine except a medium through which the great curative power of Hope may be made effective. Medicines are necessary in the treatment of disease, but only because they give a patient physical support and strength and renewed vigor with which to brace up the will power. One knows, from the action of the proper medicines, that he or she is feeling better by their inspired Hope and Faith, and that helps to cure.

"I think that probably a million persons at least in the United States have declared themselves cured by my medicals, and I know that these people have had the best remedies medical science had to offer. I have always contended that if there is any virtue in medicine my followers should have the best, but I also claim that the great majority of those who have been lifted to health from the bondage of chronic illness, through taking my medicines, have been really cured by the knowledge that they had the utmost in medical lore at their command, and the Hope this inspired.

"I am not in any sense a practicing physician. I employ at my laboratories in Philadelphia, London and Paris 35 physicians and chemists, and I have many other physicians in various cities of the United States detailed to give free advice to the sick and afflicted. My headquarters are at Munyon's Laboratories 53d and Jefferson Sts., Phila., Pa., and I invite there a staff of duly registered physicians, who are competent to treat and do all the desirable things, and give all medical advice absolutely free of charge."

Write today, addressing Prof. J. M. Munyon personally and your letter will have a special care.

Removing Smoke Stains.

A housekeeper had the misfortune to have a fire and, while everything was not destroyed, the smoke penetrated into the drawers holding table and bed linens and the smoke stain seemed next to impossible to remove. She tried everything she could think of or that was suggested, and finally found that by soaking the white clothes over night in cold water and plenty of kerosene, then washing them in the usual manner and hanging them in the sun to dry, all traces of smoke stains had disappeared.

Not Knocking Slattery.

"Mrs. Coogan—An' the little thing is the devil's own imago of his father.

Mrs. Slattery—Yis, but I don't mind that so long as he knocs bilshy.—Puck.

Saves Worry Time and Trouble

Post Toasties

Can be served instantly with cream or milk.

It makes a breakfast or lunch so superior to the ordinary, that it has become a welcome pantry necessity in thousands of homes, and adds to the comfort and pleasure of life.

"The Memory Lingers"

Sold by Grocers

Postum Cereal Co. Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

CITY IS FLOODED

BLACK RIVER FALLS HALF DESTROYED WHEN BIG DAM OVERFLOWS.

MANY BUILDINGS IN RUINS

Only Two Persons Are Reported Missing, But It Is Feared Several Have Perished—Number of Villages in Valley in Peril.

Black River Falls, Wis.—Half the business section of this city and a portion of the residence section was destroyed when the swollen waters of the Black river overflowed the dam of the La Crosse Water and Power company at Hatfield in a deluge that did damage estimated at between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

Between fifty-two and sixty buildings were destroyed and the homes of a score of farmers were swept away by the deluge. A portion of the residence section is under water and inhabitants have been forced to flee to the high lands near the city for safety. Several are reported missing, and it is feared they have perished. The loss of many farmers, whom it was impossible to warn, is unknown.

There is between twenty and thirty feet of water in Water street and Main street. Two-story buildings there are entirely submerged before they collapsed. The power-house which furnishes the city's light is entirely under water. The Omaha railroad bridge is 40 feet above the water normally, and now the flood is within ten feet of the rails.

Below Black River Falls, in the valley, are a number of villages, including Spring Creek, Irving, North Bend, Melrose, Holmen, Lytles, Midway and Onalaska, which are directly in the path of the flood.

The levee protecting the shore of Black river at the west end of the Dells dam, five miles above Hatfield, the property of the La Crosse Water Power company, gave way, sending a huge column of water against the dam at Hatfield. The structure, unable to stand the strain, opened at the west side, and the flood rushed on its way toward the city below.

The water, flowing with resistless current and in tremendous volume, undermined one large building after another, and as they crumbled to pieces the debris was carried away.

The residents, although they knew of the overflowing of the Hatfield dam, showed little fear of its effects until the waters burst upon them.

The company has been fighting the rising water during heavy rains for a week, but the 800 men, who were trying to save the dam, gave up. The flood waters swept over the core wall at the west end of the Upper Dells dam, emptying millions of gallons of water into the lower lake.

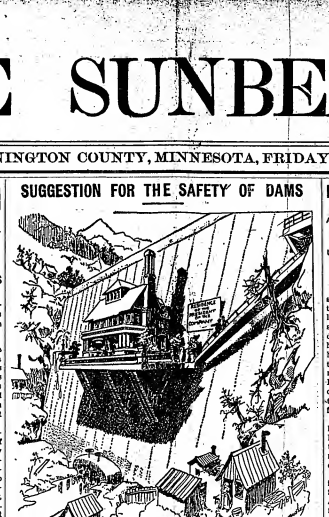
To save the power-house and adjacent settlements, men last night dynamited the canal wall, permitting part of the flood to run back into the river bed below the dam. Although this released some of the tension on the main dam the strain at least is expressed least it crack from the heavy strain. If there is no more rain it may hold, but if rain continues officials of the company fear a further disaster.

When it became apparent the break was inevitable Caretaker True of the Upper Dells dam mounted a horse and warned residents of the vicinity to flee for higher ground. It is believed most of them had time to escape.

When the flood struck Black River Falls farmhouses, barns and other debris were buried against the wagon bridge, carrying it out.

The Green Bay and Western tracks are washed out for a half mile near Hatfield.

Hatfield's telephone connections with Black River Falls, 12 miles below, were cut off. The operators of both the Bell and the independent companies notified their central offices at North Bend that they were leaving on account of the water.



Just as in the Austin flood, telephone operators proved heroines. With almost every resident in Black River Falls fleeing out of the town, the girl operators of both companies there stuck to their boards, warning in every direction. They left only when the water started to flood the floor where they were working.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—Two dams went out in this city and one at Bloomer, and the country is flooded in every direction. The Chippewa river is overflowing its banks, and water is running in the streets as a result of an 18-hours' downpour of rain.

No Trace of Missing Ship.

Houghton, Mich.—The U. S. S. Amarocha, after patrolling the course of ships between Duluth and Keweenew Point, arrived here and reported that no trace of the steamer Hopkins, which was abandoned in a waterlogged condition by its crew, had been found. It is believed the Hopkins went down in the heavy storm Monday night.

SUGGESTION FOR THE SAFETY OF DAMS

Perhaps An Official Residence Suitably Placed Would Have a Good Effect.

HIT PAPER TRUST

U. S. GRAND JURY AT CLEVELAND INDICT EIGHT MEN FOR CONSPIRACY.

GOV. DIX'S PARTNER NAMED

Jobbers and Manufacturers Are Charged With Violating Sherman Anti-Trust Law and With Controlling Country's Wall Paper Output.

Cleveland, O.—Eight indictments against four wall paper manufacturers and four wall paper jobbers, members of the so-called "wall paper trust," charging them with a conspiracy in restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, were returned by the federal grand jury here.

Among the prominent men indicted is W. A. Huppuch, chairman of the New York state Democratic central committee, former manager of Governor Dix's political campaign and president of the state public service commission. He is president of the National Association of Wall Paper Manufacturers.

The indictments were brought on complaint of a five and ten-cent store of Pittsburg. It is alleged that the men indicted, forming the executive committee of the jobbers' and manufacturers' association, met in Cleveland May 30, 1910, and entered into an agreement not to sell to five and ten-cent stores. This it was charged was in restraint of trade and contrary to the word and spirit of the Sherman anti-trust law. Thomas L. Roche of Philadelphia, secretary of the manufacturers' association, and William L. Fetter of Omebe, secretary of the jobbers' organization, appeared before the grand jury and for their testimony were given an immunity bath.

The following were indicted: Jay B. Pearce, president of the jobbers' association, Cleveland; C. C. Adler, Columbus, O.; Norton B. Newcomb, St. Louis; Charles R. Maxwell, Chicago and New York; W. A. Huppuch, Hudson Falls, N. Y.; George Tait, Glens Falls, N. Y.; Robert F. Hobbs, Hoboken, N. J.; John McCoy, York, Pa.

The manufacturers and jobbers declare that they did not plan a war on the small stores and that in the case of the Pittsburg company, which has since failed, they refused to do business with it as the concern had no credit.

WILEY FOES ARE RELIEVED

Solicitor McCabe Is Retired From Pure Food Board—Chemist Dunlap Given Leave.

Washington.—In a sudden succession of orders, an initial move in the expected reorganization of the department of agriculture, Solicitor George P. McCabe was retired from the pura food and drug board, Associate Chemist F. L. Dunlap, closely identified with McCabe, was allowed leave of absence until the president's return, and Chemist Harvey W. Wiley was left apparently in supreme command of the board.

Dr. R. E. Doolittle of New York friendly to Dr. Wiley, was temporarily appointed to the board.

160 Killed in Mexico.

Mexico City.—One hundred and sixty are reported dead as the result of four battles in widely scattered localities in the south during the last three days between the federal forces and the opposition to Madero.

TROOPS RULE CITY

M'COMB, MISS., IS PRACTICALLY UNDER MARTIAL LAW.

Evidence Is Being Gathered by Illinois Central Agents to Prosecute Labor Men.

Chicago.—The international officers of nine different crafts are threatened with a costly legal suit following the interruption in traffic on the Illinois Central railroad, the rioting at McComb City, Miss., and the destruction of valuable records by clerks prior to going on strike.

Following the riot, agents of the company began the collection of evidence to be used in the prosecution of strikers under the Sherman anti-trust act. Evidence is also being sought against striking railway clerks who are charged with destroying way bills and shipping orders at the Memphis and New Orleans offices of the company before they went on strike.

Six strike-breakers are now known to have been seriously hurt, one of them, named Haines, fatally, in the riots at McComb City. The strike-breakers were passing through on a train and 1,000 shots were fired into the cars. Lee Haley, a striker, was also killed by a bullet which the police claim was fired by his friends. About the time Haley was shot an explosion occurred near the car shops. The was followed by a number of shots. The explosive tore a hole in the ground, but no one was hurt.

Julius Krutschnitt gave out a statement that many strikers had returned to work on the Harriman lines. Many new men were also employed. Officials of the Illinois Central stated that 40 per cent. of their usual force was at work and that no more men would be hired.

PLOT NEW MEXICAN REVOLT

Newspaper Declares the Followers of Reyes and Diaz Already Have Established a Junta.

Mexico City.—El Pais publishes a sensational telegram from San Antonio, Tex., to the effect that the followers of General Reyes and the deposed president, General Diaz, have established a junta in that city and await the arrival of Reyes. The telegram permits the inference that a new insurrection is to be begun. The paper also publishes a dispatch from Juarez saying that a revolt will be begun before December. General Madero ottaches little importance to thesa reports.

WILSON TO ATTEND CONGRESS

Announces He Will Not Preside or Take Prominent Part at Brewer's Meeting.

Woehington.—Secretary of Agricultura Jomes Wilson said he will attend the International Brewers' congress in Chicago. but will not preside at any of the meetings or take a prominent part in the proceedings.

The secretary has been irritated by the criticisme which followed the announcement of his election as honorary president of the congress

Captain Cook, Tried, Resigns.

Washington.—The resignation of Copt. Frank A. Cook, recently courmartioled at San Francisco for conduct unbecoming an officer, hes been accepted by the president. It was announcged at the war department. The findings were not made public.

FLYERS IN STORM

AMERICA II., FROM KANSAS CITY, ENCOUNTERS BLIZZARD.

United States, France and Germany Represented in Distance Contest for International Trophy.

Emmetsburg, Ia.—A blinding snowstorm several thousand feet above the earth caused the balloon America II., which sailed from Kansas City in the international race, to descend at a point four miles west of here. When nearing the ground the balloon struck telegraph wires along the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railwey and was wrecked. Pilot W. F. Assman and Aid J. C. Hubert escaped, the former without injury and the latter painfully bruised in a fall from the telegraph wires.

Kansas City, Mo.—Six huge balloons, representing the United States, France and Germany, started from this city in the endeavor to achieve new world's records for distance traveled through the air.

At present the international helioning trophy le held by the United States by reason of the victory of Alan R. Hawley of New York, whose flight of 1,171 miles last year was one of the most thrilling episodes in the history of this sport.

In addition to the international race two balloons hed entered for the cup, which is awarded annually to the helioonist who mekes the longest flight with an American craft. The balloon was entered for the American altitude record.

MRS. SINCLAIR FILES ANSWER

Wife of Socialist Author Declares She Will Fight Husband's Divorce Suit in Every Way.

New York.—Mata Fuller Sinclair, wife of Upton Sinclair, author and Socialist, fled in the supreme court a formal answer to her husband's suit for absolute divorce.

In this document the women who left her husband in quest of a perfect "soul-mete," denies absolutely that she has been guilty of any misconduct with Harry Kemp, the "tramp poet," or anyone else. She intends to defend the case by every legal means within her power.

OPENS FIGHT ON COAL TRUST

Attorney General Wickersham Begins Contest in U. S. Supreme Court on New Line of Attack.

Washington.—At a time when the minds of householders are turning to the winter's fuel bills Attorney General Wickersham has renewed his efforts to "bust the coal trust."

The attorney general, by filing a brief in the Supreme court of the United States, began the fight before that tribunel to have the principel coal-carrying railroads and coal-owning companies in the anthracite regions adjudged to be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

BEACHEY IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Young Aviator Falls With Biplane 150 Feet at St. Louis—His Condition is Critical.

St. Louis.—Hillery Beechey, twenty years old, the youngest aviator entered in the meet being conducted by the Aero club of St. Louis was seriously injured when the biplane which he was driving fell 150 feet. Beachey was taken to St. Louis Mualeuphy hospital where his condition is said to be serious. The accident probably was due to the fact that Beachay failed to properly believe his plane before starting his flight.

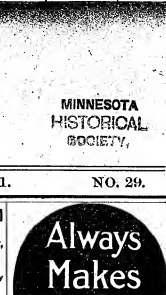
WORLD SERIES DATES SET

Contest Between National and American Ball Teams Begins in New York October 14.

New York.—The first game of the world's championship series between the Giants and Athletics will be played on the Polo grounds on Saturday, October 14.

This date was decided on at a conference between members of the National baseball commission and representatives of tha two clubs at the Hotel Rector.

The games will be played on alternate days in this city and Philadelphia.



"NOT GUILTY," WEBSTER PLEA

Doctor Is Arraigned as Slayer of Wife —State Asks for Immediate Trial.

Oregon, Ill.—Dr. Henry E. Webster, accused of the murder of his wife, Beatie Kent Webster, was arraigned before Judge O. E Heord and pleaded not guilty. A motion to quash was denied. The state demanded an immediate trial.

The date of the trial probably will be fixed for late in October.

Always Makes Good

You'll be delighted with the results of Calumet Baking Powder. No disappointment—no flat, heavy, soggy biscuits, cake, or pastry.

Just the lightest, daintiest, most uniformly raised and most delicious food you ever ate.

Received highest award World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, 1909.

A man never gets too old to remember some of the things that never occurred when he wes a boy.

Soma Mosquitoes.

"Yes," sold the traveler who bed just returned from Central Africa. "I woe one day so annoyed by mosquitoes that I wes compelled to take refuge in an old iron safe which ley discarded on the veldt.

"My first emotions of joy at my happy deliverance were bardly over when the mosquitoes, scenting me, began to force their chele snouts through the cofe. Fortunately, I bed e hammer in my pocket, and as fast as their stingers came through the iron I clinched them, until at length such a host of them wes fastened down in this way that, when I wes forced to fly away, they carried me and that safe miles.

"I then one by one, they died with the exertion, and I wes oble to come out with safety. Two wonderful things happen in foreign ports."—Idno.

A FINE NIGHT-CAP

The Best Thing in the World to Go to Bed and Sleep On.

"My wife and I find that 4 teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and a cup of hot milk, or some cream, with it, makes the finest night-cap in the world," says an Allegheny, Pa., man.

"We go to sleep as soon as we strike tha bed, and slumber like babies till rising time in tha morning.

"It is about 3 years now since we began to use Grape-Nuts food, and we always have it for breakfast and before retiring and sometimes for lunch. I was so sick from what the doctors called acute indigestion and brain fag before I began to use Grape-Nuts that I could neither eat, sleep nor work with any comfort.

"I was afflicted at the same time with the most intense pains, accompanied by a wrenching headache and backache, every time I tried to eat anything. Notwithstanding an unusual pressure from my professional duties, I was compelled for a time to give up my work altogether.

"Then I put myself on a diet of Grape-Nuts and cream alone, with an occasional cup of Postum as a runner-up, and sometimes a little dry toast. I assure you that in less than a week I felt like a new man; I had gained six pounds in weight, could sleep well and think well.

"Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Mine, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Taft is well pleased with the first part of his tour, but he is speaking to a packed house just wait until he hears from the man behind the plow.

Alex P. Lattimore has bought the Plummer Pioneer, and is going to dish up the local news of that locality in first class style. How is hoping you get rich Al. like the other small Village editors.

The first Socialist Member of Congress, Victor L. Berger, of Milwaukee, will speak at the auditorium, at Thief River Falls, next Monday evening October 16th. Be sure to go and hear him, and you may find out how it is possible for the lumber companys to make arrangements with the powers that be, of the present administration to allow them to shove twenty five million feet of logs into this river, shut it off, kill all the fish, hold back the waters of Red Lake, so it will flood and ruin all the meadow land when it does break loose, and the officials can't do any thing about it. Go hear what Berger has to say.

The Red Lake River is getting lower all the time and by the time the freeze up time comes it will not be running at all, which of course means the death of all the fish in the river. The lumber companys have got a seven mile long solid log dam at the head of the river which has closed up the outlet, and the engineers of this government at St. Paul will not send a man any farther than Thief River Falls to investigate, for fear that they will find the conditions just as we have stated them, which would place them in an awakward position with the lumber companys

He Was Very Sorry.

On the day after the defeat of Canadian Reciprocity the St. Paul Daily News contained the following interview with Governor Eberhart of Minnesota:

"I am sorry that reciprocity failed to carry in Canada, for it would have been, I am convinced, a good thing for both countries. I do not think the rejection of the treaty by Canada will hurt President Taft politically, for those who favored him because of reciprocity will continue to favor him, while those who opposed him on that score will probably not be so bitter now."

We wonder if our governor is of the opinion that the farmers are such suckers as to again support Taft because Canada defeated reciprocity, and thereby put millions of dollars in their pockets. So you are sorry are you my dear Adolph? Well just go around this state next year and tell the farmers how sorry you are that Canada defeated reciprocity, after your dear friend Taft had worked so hard to get it through congress, so as to reduce the price of their wheat about 12 cents a bushell and other produce in proportion. But it may not be necessary for you to tell it for there will be plenty of others to tell it and they will send you and old Taft to the same dumping ground, where you can weep in company. The farmers have woke up and are camping on your trail, and they will get you at the ballot box. No more Eberhart for us.

Old Time London Sundays.

Now and then one hears Londoners complaining that their Sunday is too dull. They want more amusements, attractions, life. But had they lived in the seventeenth century they would have found a vast difference. At that period a Sunday in London was a day of trials. One had only to fetch or carry to break the Sabbath. Man were fined for carrying such things as a haunch of venison and a pair of shoes, while a mother individual had to pay up for sweeping on a Sunday. A duke and a knight were fined again and again for riding in their carriages on the first day of the week, and one unfortunate pedestrian had to pay a sovereign because he was caught in the act of strolling from Bristol to Bath on a Sunday.—Pearson's Weekly.

What He Had.

Wife—I saw you coming out of Dr. Bigbee's house this morning. What have you got?

Wag—Nothing now. I went to pay his bill.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 16th 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Lyot-Sivertson, of Highlanding Minn. who on Oct. 18, 1904, made Homestead Entry, No 758, Serial No 01279, for S. W. ¼ Section 30 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 25th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ben Kvaste, Tobias Olsen, Bjur Stolaas, Tom Jacobson, all of Highlanding Minn.

AUSTRUEN P. TOPPEN, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 29,1911.

Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota September 18th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Even H. Offelie, of Waskee, Minn. who on November 8th, 1905 made Homestead Entry No.1248, Serial No. 04598, for Lots 2, 3, S.W. ¼ N. E. ¼ Section 3 Township 151 N. Range 39 W., and S.W. ¼ S.E. ¼ Section 34 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 25th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses.

Christ Thompson, of Little Minn. Knut O. Larson, John O. Larson, of Radell Minn. Nels Risen, of Wanke Minn

AUSTRUEN P. TOPPIN, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 22,1911.

Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. September 18th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole Nilson, of Highlanding Minn. who on october 25, 1901 made Homestead Entry No. 578, for the N. ½ of S.E. ¼ Section 7 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S.Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 24th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Thore M. Thorson, of Highlanding Minn. Jacob Nelshem, of Kelsen Minn. Emile O. Vaine, Olof O. Vaine, of Erie Minn.

AUSTRUEN P. TOPPEN, Register

The Last Hope.

When Lemuel Gregg died a cousin from a distant town appeared, saying he had come to settle the estate and take the residue of Lemuel's only kinsman. He had a jaunty air at first, but at the end of a week he had acquired a watchful anxious expression. When he stepped into the office of Lawyer Mears on Saturday afternoon he seemed to be extremely nervous.

"Well, how are you coming out?" asked the lawyer. "I suppose it's all clear sailing, isn't it?"

"Clear sailing!" echoed the executor. "Do you suppose I'd be here with a fee to pay if 'twas clear sailing? I'm desperate, I tell you!

"There isn't a thing left of Cousin Lem's estate except a two dollar bill and three potatoes. I want to know if there's any way that I can oblige the town to accept those plates for the tax bill it spruns on me after I thought I'd got everything paid? If there is I'll give you a dollar and use the other half of that two dollar bill to get back where I come from this ——"—Youth's Companion.

Another Quibble.

"Don't you hate to sleep in an upper berth?"

"No; I like to sleep when I have to take an upper berth."—Chicago Record Herald

Appropriate.

"Here's a tailpin in the soup, waiter," said the mad diner.

"Yes, sir. It's all right. It's barn soup, sir."—Yonkers Statesman.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sept. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Andrew Hanson, of Erie Minnesota, who on November 10th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 3, Serial No. 04318, for S. E. ¼ Section 1 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnsgard, John Dahlen, Emrick E. Rinne, Isaac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

Austrue P. Toppin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 29,1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Emrick E. Rinne, of Erie Minn. who on November 10th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 904, Serial No. 04322 for Lots 3, 4, & S.½ N. W. ¼ Section 1 Township 153 N, Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnsgaard, Andrew Hanson, John Dahlen, Isac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

Austrue P. Toppin Register.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington] S. S. District Court,

14th, Judicial District.

C. Heilsenan Brewing Company.

Plaintiff,

vs

Edward F. Olson, Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFEDANT.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which said complaint is now on file in the office of the Clerk of Court of the District Court in and for the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, in the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff will take judgement against you for the sum of Six Hundred and Twenty-two & 44-100 dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of Six per cent, per anum from the 27, day of May. 1910, toges ther with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Stanton & Rowberg,

Attorneys for Plaintiff,

Thief River Falls Minn.

9-30,11-6.

Notice For Publication

first pub in the sunbeam Oct. 6.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 2nd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole S. Quam, of Torgerson Minn. who on June 15th, 1909 made Homestead Entry No. 04830, for S. E. ¼ Section 21 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. B. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 6th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Vraa, John Stenvik, Peder Nybokken, Reinhart Johnsrud. all of Torgerson Minn.

Arthur P. Toppin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 15th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 13, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Heivor Bjornson, of Brunkeberg Minn. who on October 4, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 698, Serial No. 04243, for Lots 3, 4, & S. ½ N. W. ¼ Section 3, Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 24th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Iver Solsben, Andrew Sandland Christian O. Nygaard. Torjus T. Hennevestedt, all of Brunkeberg Minn.

AUSTRUEN P. TOPPIN, Register.

Stammering.

Stammering is due to a peculiarly nervous temperament, and only very sympathetic treatment can effect a cure. Stammering in a child should receive immediate attention, and the first thing to be done is to see that the little one's health by means of plenty of sleep, fresh air and good food. Every day he should take deep breathing exercises in the open air. These deep, steady inspirations strengthen the muscles of the throat and counteract a spasmodic habit of breathing. Notice should be taken of the sounds which the little stammerer has most trouble with, and sentences containing these sounds should be composed for him to repeat each day—very slowly and clearly. He should also be asked to read aloud every day. This exercise should be omitted whenever he seems overexcited or run down in health, and it goes without saying that he should never be scolded or laughed at.—New York Tribune.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 15,1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 8th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Martin McAndrew, one of heirs of Mary Sullivan deceased, of St. Hilaire Minnesota, who on October 19, 1901, made Homestead Entry No. 754. Serial No. 02515 for N. ½ Section 10, Township 152 N. Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the city of Thief River Falls, at Thief River Falls Minnesota on the 26th day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Carl O. Olson, of Kratka Minn. I. Dalahoe of St. Hilaire Minn. 4 Walter McAndrews. and William G. Hunt, of Sunbeam Minn.

Austrue P. Toppin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 20th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Oscar Lindberg, of Roland Minnesota, who on November 29, 1907, made Homestead Entry No. 4010, Serial No. 04271, for Lots 4,5,6, Section 31 & Lot 5, Section 32 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on the 11th, day of November 1911

Claimant names as witness:

Jacob Lindberg, John Oscar Jerstand Bystad, of Rhoda Minn. Christian O. Lindberg, of Roland Minn.

Arthur P. Toppin, Register.

Take One Pain Pill then—Take it Easy

To get the best of Backache Get a Box of

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

Otherwise Backache

May get the best of you

Nothing disturbs the human system more than pain whether it be in the form of headache, backache, neuralgia, stomachache or the pains peculiar to women. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are a standard remedy for pain, and are praised by a great army of men and women who have used them for years.

"A friend was down with LaGrippe and nearly crazy with awful backache. I gave her one Anti-Pain Pill and left one for her to take. They helped her right away, and she says she will never be without them again."

Mrs. G. H. Webb, Ashinbarg, O.

25 all druggists—25 doses 25 cents.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

RHODA STORE.

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER, Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT SINGER BRO. KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.— SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

French Whiskers.

The full end sumptuous beard which was once the pride and joy of every well oiled Parisian is fast disappearing. Not so long ago the streets of Paris teemed with round figures carrying block portfolios under their arms and accompanied by a curtain of curly hair which whisked gayly in the breeze. Red wine was the favorite color, either natural or bottled, as the case might be. In moments of agitation or perplexity the beard offered great possibilities to its harassed owner, who seemed to derive inspiration from the constant manipulation.

I remember once, when I was living with a French family on the other side of the Seine, I was asked to dine at a soiree. Madame insisted upon my calling in her doctor. He was a very small man with a very large beard. After listening to the story of my life he proceeded to examine my lungs. I was about a foot taller than he was, so he was obliged to stand on tiptoe to perform the rite. As he pinned his ear to my chest his beard escaped to sunny hills, for he suddenly gathered it up in one hand and flung it over my shoulder. The action so astonished me that I entirely forgot to wheeze, thereby depriving him of one of my most interesting symptoms.—Exchange.

What Did He Mean?

Mrs. Benbow—Death is the debt we owe to nature, Benbow.—Nature does not send our her bills often enough.—New York Life.

A Thousand Refusals.

Kote—Tint Bragson girl claims to have made a thousand refusals of marriage. Ethel—That's true. When Gus asked her to be his wife she replied, "No, a thousand times, no!"—Boston Transcript.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to inventors" "Inventions needed" "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and so much had charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE

PATENT ATTORNEYS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

For Sale. A yonng driveing team cheap, If taken soon.
Lenard McAndrews,
Sanbeam Minn.

Pay up your back subscription.

The weather is very fine to day.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Sigrud Sigurdson was assisting us to dig potatoes on Wednesday.

Wanted, teams and men to break in from 30 to 60 acres of land. Wm. Brockmar, Roland Minn.

The weather has cleared off nicely this afternoon and our Indian summer is again with us.

Conuty Superintendant of schools E.A.Mostue visited our school Wednesday.

They are having disasterous floods in a number of different states and we may have one yet this fall.

We can not take wood,or potatoes on subscription as we have plenty of both, in fact some of our farmers get garden truck from us.

We are in need of money very bad just now and are calling on our delinquent subscribers to pay up. Please remit when you get your statement.

If you want to get your plows new layed, or your horses shod, call on Charles Engalst, at his Kratka shop and got the work done right. Charges reasonable.

Those who sowed flax after the big rain in June did not have a very good crop. What flax you can not get sown by June 10th, it is better to keep your seed flax until the next spring.

Erickson Bros. will cross the bed of of what used to be Red Lake River, before the lumber companys shut it off, with their threshing rig and thresh for S. L.Holm on this side.

A visit to the garden and cellar of Walt McAndress will convince anyone that there is no use of a farmer buying potatoes, or any other kind of garden truck in this country. Grow it.

Liot Sigurdson drove down to Thief River Falls Monday, returning Wednesday. He reports that roads are very rough,particulary along by that school house this side of Thief River Falls.

For Health and Energy Eat CREAM OF RYE
For Breakfast. Reduces Cost of Living. Free Silver Spoon in Every Package. Ask your Grocer for a Package.

Estray. Came to my place on N.E. ¼ section 11 town of Mayfield, on last Tuesday evening, a grey bronko mare, weight about 900 lbs. Had a short peice of rope tied arround the neck. Owner can have his property by paying for this notice and the keeping.
Torgei Lanjie, Malone Minn.

Torgei Lanjie, of Malone made this office a nleasnt call Wednesday evening. He expressed himself as being well plesed with the crop prospects for the future in Pennington county, as it was sure to produce a good crop of whatever you sowed or planted.

There has been four days of fine weather this week, but another rain this morning has again stopped threshing, but we would advise the farmers not to wait for just the right kind of sunshine, brfore threshig the grain, for you may get worse weather, instead of better.

The Socialists are to have a big Rally at Thief River Falls on next Monday evening, when the Socialis Congressman will speak. Do not be affraid to go and hear him, for he will not bite you, and you might hear some facts that are not fixed up for the occasion, like old Taft speeches.

The Kratka War.

The Kartka post office fight is still draging along and the end is not yet. This seems to be a case of the patrons of the office on one side and the owner of the land on which the present site is located on the other side, backed by a few politicians in Thief River Falls. The people who do business with that office have had Carl Jenson for post master, and they are nearly unanimously, and bitterly opposed to his reappointment. We see the petitions yesterday for a change in the present location, and a protest against the reappointment of Jenson that was signed by nearly every man in Kratka, headed by such names as Charles D. Henry and Peter Hedeen. The people have had Mr. Jenson for post master, and they don't want him again, and it would be an outrage on the patrons of that office to appoint him again, because he owns the land on which the present site is located, when there is plenty of other land to locate the post office on.

Roland News.

Lillo Bros have started a blacksmith shop at Roland.

Miss Anniebell Rolandson Snajayed with Miss Nellie Short.

B. Langlie, H.B. Bladahl and A. Rolandson transacted business at Crookston this week.

Butler Rindahl left for Hill River on Tuesday.

There will be services in the school house by Knut Ericksons next Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m. All are welcome.

Elick Hanson is helping N. E. Syversrud for a few days.

August Lillo visited with the home folks on Sunday.

Mrs. A. Rolandson and Mrs. Otto Dahl spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Brekka.

Gilbert Hoveland and family, of Hillriver spent Sunday with the Lillo's.

Mr. and Mrs. Con Short was Plummer visitors last Thursday and Friday.

Everybody seems to be busy, flax hawling being the main job.

Miss Hege Fore is working for N.E.Syversrud while they are housecleaning.

Andrew Letvig is drilling a well for Sam Gunderson.

Spruce Trees Nursed by Pines.

A singular fact with regard to the relations of different species of trees has been brought out by the reforestation of the peninsula of Jutland, Denmark. It was observed that when planted alone spruce trees did not prosper, but that if a spruce was planted near a mountain pine it grew up vigorously. Further experiment has shown that if the pines are placed near the spruces at the beginning and after being allowed to grow together with them for a few years are cut down the benefit to the spruce continues. The phenomenon is not understood, says Professor J. W. Hasbhrger, but it is supposed that the roots of the mountain pine are inhabited by some mycorhizin which produces the nitrogen needed by the trees and that this organism is transferred to the roots of the surrounding spruce. Once the infection has taken place the presence of the pine is no longer necessary.

Queensland Pearl Divers.

The Queensland diver gets into his dress at daybreak, steps on to the ladder over the side and passes the life line round him. The tender screws on the face glass, the pumps are started, and down goes the diver to look for shell. If he is on ground where shell is plentiful he fills his bag, then allows his dress to fill with air, which brings him to the surface, when he is hauled to the boat by the life line. He empties his bag on to the deck and goes down for another bagful. Some of the divers occasionally work in from forty-five fathoms. The greatest danger with which the diver has to contend is paralysis, and, knowing the danger he runs, he sometimes demands £200 in advance, and this amount is sometimes lost to the pearler through the zeal and daring of the diver.—London Globe.

Evolution of Clothes.

Centuries ago, as Sir Walter Scott says in "Ivanhoe," men wore one thickness of clothes, whether of wool, leather or velvet. The shirt was invented, but for a long time was worn only by the nobility and gentry. Then followed the waistcoat, breeches and later on trousers. The overcoat, which succeeded the medieval cloak, was rare until the seventeenth century. — Pittsburg Dispatch.

Nine and Ten

The Pranks of a Pair of Twins

By CLARISSA MACKIE

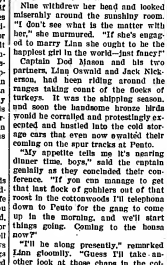
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Their names were Nina and Christina, but for miles around their home on the West creek turkey farm they were known as Nine and Ten. The Mason twins were never for apart. As little girls their pink sunbonneted heads bobbed in harmonious companionship over the rolling farm acres.

The Mason twins were very beautiful to look upon, and they were as similar in face and form that even their own father, Captain Dod Mason, couldn't tell them apart. They were sweet tempered, merry hearted girls, and they had never lacked for admirers, who led a most unhappy existence, for it amused the Mason twins to change characters and puzzle their prospective lovers almost into imbecility with their pranks.

But Cupid had been playing pranks with the twins themselves, and today Nine and Ten, busied with the work of their motherless home, were silent and distrait. Suddenly Nine spoke, her back turned to her sister, as she reached into the china closet:

"Ten," she began, faltering.



"Yes," replied Ten in the same sort of voice.

"Are you—are you engaged to Jack Nickerson?"

There was a little silence while Ten shook her duster out of the window. Then "How did you guess?" she asked in a low tone that tried to be gay.

"Oh, I thought so, that's all. I may as well tell you that I promised to marry Linn last night." Nine's voice sounded tragically hollow from the depths of the closet into which she persistently burrowed.

"Oh!" Ten cried sharply, and then she left the room. Nine heard her run hastily up the stairs to her own room, listened to her light tread across the floor and then silence.

"HE'S THE BEST FELLOW IN THE WORLD."

Nine withdrew her head and looked miserably around the untidy room. "I don't see what is the matter with her," she murmured. "If she's engaged to marry Linn she ought to be the happiest girl in the world—just fancy!"

Captain Dod Mason and his two partners, Linn Oswald and Jack Nickerson, had been riding around the ranges taking count of the flocks of turkeys. It was the shipping season, and soon the handsome bronze birds would be corralled and protestingly ejected and hustled into the cold storage cars that even now awaited their coming on the spur tracks at Ponto.

"My appetite tells me it's nearing dinner time, boys," said the captain genially as they concluded their conference. "If you can manage to get that last flock of gobblers out of that roost in the cottonwoods this afternoon down to Ponto for the gang to come up in the morning, and we'll start things going. Coming to the house now?"

"I'll be along presently," remarked Linn gloomily. "Guess I'll look for other look at those chaps in the cottonwoods."

"Same here," added Jack Nickerson inconsolably, and together in moody silence they watched the captain's retund figure riding easily across the ranges, his horse gracefully rising over every split rail fence that impeded his progress.

"Fine old boy," said Linn, with a hoary sigh.

"Best ever—I say, Linn"— Jack's voice had lost its customary tone of assurance. He spoke almost shyly.

"Fire ahead," encouraged Linn recklessly, as if he knew what his companion was going to say and wanted to get it over with.

"I'm engaged to marry Ten Mason," blurted Jack suddenly.

"Then you ought to be the happiest man in the world," uttered Linn gravely as he held out his hand.

"Happier than the man who marries Nine?" demanded Jack jealously.

"Who told you?" Linn stared at him.

"Told me what?" It was Jack's turn to stare.

"That I was engaged to marry Nine." "I didn't know that you were engaged to her," said Jack shortly. "Congratulations—and all that, you know!"

"Thanks," said Linn dryly. "Going to ride down to the cottonwoods?"

They both mounted their horses and trotted slowly across the crisp pasture land. It was a frosty November day, and the tang of approaching winter was in the air.

When they drew near the cottonwoods they heard the raucous grumblings of the mammoth gobblers that were the pride of the ranch. By mutual consent Linn rode around to the south side of the little thicket while Jack protected the eastern way of escape.

With a loud yell and a thunder of hoofs Linn raced through the thicket, driving the wandering birds before him. It would have worked all right, only the biggest gobbler of all and the leader of the flock lifted his huge spread of wings and flew up into the lower branches of the nearest tree, and soon he was followed by the entire flock of fifty, whose bulk darkened the sparsely clothed trees and hung, a menacing force, over the irate driver's head.

"Let 'em stay, then," said Linn cross ly. "We'll get 'em after dinner. What do you say?"

"Suits me," said Jack, and together they rode silently back to the farmhouse, where Nine and Ten were superintending the placing of the dinner on the table.

Nine was very pale, and her eyes were bright and sparkling, always a sign that things were going wrong with her. Ten's eyes looked as if she had been crying. It was a silent meal; there was universal embarrassment, and even Captain Dod, absorbed in his dinner, noted the silence.

"What's the matter?" he called briefly. "Everybody in the doldrums? Next time you folks ride ten miles to a moving picture show at Penie you'd better see something to laugh at? Didn't anything funny happen last night?

"Well, what's the news?" he went on sardonically. "Anything gone wrong? I've been approached by two young men and two young women this morning, and they've broke the news to me that they're all engaged to marry each other. I took it calmly, for there isn't a better pair of young chaps in the world than my two partners—not a word, boys—and if I've got to give them twins away I'd rather give them to you two, but"— He glared around at them once more and continued: "Somebody had made a mistake, and till it's found out I withdraw my consent, and I declare every one of you disengaged! Understand?"

Without waiting for a reply Captain Dod arose with dignity, and, grasping his plate of pudding in one hand and the pitcher of maple sirup in the other, he retired to the little room that served him as an office.

Silence still reigned at the table, but it was a relieved silence. Suddenly Linn excused himself and departed. Jack followed suit, and there remained no one but the twins staring dejectedly into their puddings.

All at once Nine spoke resentfully: "I think you've treated Jack horribly, Ten Mason, so there! He's the best fellow in the world and you can't appreciate him."

Ten lifted her drooping head and faced her sister. "Humph!" she fiered scornfully. "Jack Nickerson can't be compared with Linn Oswald."

The twins arose and stared at each other across the table, then all at once they ran around and fell into each other's arms with little startled cries of understanding.

Out on the ranges Linn and Jack were riding, back to the cottonwood thicket. In their hands were long rawhide whips. Both were whistling merrily, and, while their eyes were evasive, they had a second consciousness of the other's rising spirits. Suddenly Jack became sunk in gloom. He spoke resplingly.

"Your hilarity over your release is pure complimentary to Nine."

"Neither is your's complimentary to Ten," teered Linn.

Four hours later Nine and Ten walked demurely across the ranges, sent thither by their father with a message to his partners.

When the twins reached the southern confines of the last field there perched upon them a solemn flock of bronze gobblers, heads down and heavy wings beating the ground. Close behind them rode Jack and Linn, and their eyes tenderly anxious of the approaching twins, their mouths hard set with determination. The twins had played their last prank. They must be made to publicly acknowledge their betrothals.

For an instant the girls were rooted to the ground in terror. Forgotten were their dignity and sunbonnets of how to circumvent the angry turkeys when the succulent but tasty bird went on the rampage. The two pairs of blue eyes saw nothing save the approaching brown army and behind them the faces of the men they loved.

All at once Nine's feet found wings, and she darted to the right and toward Jack Nickerson, while to the left Ten swerved and, skirting the rushing flock forgot everything save that Linn Oswald was there.

"Jack, Jack!" cried Nine.

"Linn, Linn!" screamed Ten.

"Help!" shouted the two men in chorus as they leaned down and each lifted his ladylove from impending danger.

At supper Captain Dod beamed upon his partners and their contented faces. "Engaged again?" he asked cheerfully. "Hum! Right side round now, I hope!"

"Oh, yes, indeed!" they all chorused, and the voices of the twins were most emphatic.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. San'l Gilson Vic. Pis.
Larry O'Niel, Abrham Poupart, 2 I. Cutter.
J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Cruzon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footware Buy The BALL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

Had a Return Ticket Perhaps.

"Been abroad, have you, Ruggles?"

"Yep; six months."

"Have a good time?"

"You bet I did, Ramage—best I ever had."

"Humph! How did you get back?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Heat Phenpmenon.

A workman in the observatory at Toulouse has invited attention to a singular phenomenon. A bar of iron is taken by one end and the other end is plunged into a fire, heating it highly, but not so much that the hand cannot retain its hold. The heated end is then plunged into a pail of cold water. Immediately the other end becomes so hot that it is impossible to hold it. This phenomenon, familiar to workmen, is ascribed by them to some repellent action they suppose the sudden cold exerts upon the heat contained in the iron, which is thus driven to the opposite extremity.

Meteoric Matter.

In the early days of its history the earth is believed to have grown rapidly by the addition of meteoric matter. It is still growing in the same manner, though necessarily to an appreciable extent, for the mass of meteoric matter added yearly is reckoned to be only 20,000 tons.

Evidences of Wealth.

"Father seems impressed with your talk about coupons," said the girl. "Have you really any?"

"Sure," answered the gulleful youth. "Got 700 anvel up toward the furniture for our little dat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Of Course Not.

Mrs. Wellmeant—Are you married? Tramp (indignantly)—Well! Do yer think I'd be relyin' on total strangers for support if I had er wife?—Exchange.

Nothing can help a man to do a thing when he thinks he cannot do it.

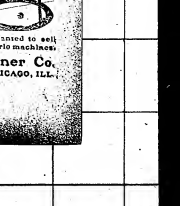
McCALL PATTERNS
Celebrated for style, perfect fit, simplicity and reliability; nearly 25 years in the lead; every one sold down to the last. Ordered by number. Send for free catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
More subscribers than any other fashion magazine—million & a half. It combines authority, economy, style, simplicity, plain sewing, fancy needlework, millinery, etiquette, good stories, etc. Costs $1.50 a year (cash or credit), but either a pattern or subscription worth the money. Sample copy free.

WOODBURY'S FACIAL SOAP
is a pure, delightful toilet soap. Contains the skin tonic properties of Woodbury's Facial Cream. Sold everywhere. 25c a cake.

Send 4c. for sample of all three. Address,
THE McCALL CO., 238 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

10 Days Free Trial



In Your Own Home

of the improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machine costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.
98 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Will purify your blood, clear your complexion, restore your appetite, relieve your tired feeling, build you up. It leads all other medicines in merit.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief—Permanent Cure

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable — act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion, improve the complexion, brighten the eyes. SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

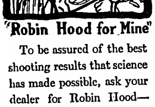
Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup



at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

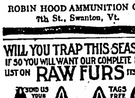
Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application) and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent. (30)

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N. D.; J. S. Sachlachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S. D.; E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.; Geo. A. Hall, 125 2d St., Milwaukee, Wis.

"Robin Hood for Mine"

To be assured of the best shooting results that science has made possible, ask your dealer for Robin Hood—the scientific ammunition.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION Not Made by a Trust



excels in speed, accuracy and penetration, because of the "progressive combustion" feature of our smokeless powders. All the force of the powder is used to propel the shot—the explosion is forward, not backward.

The more progressive dealers sell R. H. If yours is not supplied write us. Send for our catalogue today.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION CO.
7th St., Swanton, Vt.

WILL YOU TRAP THIS SEASON!

IF SO YOU WILL WANT OUR COMPLETE PRICE LIST ON RAW FURS ITS FREE

DIRECT BUYERS OF FURS
LOTZ BROS 113-115 ELM ST. ST. LOUIS.

ALLEN'S ULCERINE SALVE

For the treatment of Chronic Ulcers, Bone Ulcers, Scrofulous Ulcers, Varicose Ulcers, Indolent Ulcers, Mercurial Ulcers, White Swelling, Milk Leg, Fever Sores, all old sores. Very successful. By mail 50 cents. J. P. ALLEN MEDICINE CO., Dept. A0, St. Paul, Minn.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. ADDRESS DEPARTMENT K. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

PISO'S Best for COUGHS & COLDS

BERLIN II. WINNER

GERICKE LANDS IN WILDERNESS UNINJURED, BUT FAR FROM HAUNTS OF MAN.

LOST IN WILDERNESS 3 TIMES

Has to Travel Long Before Being Able to Find a Telegraph Station. Escapade Is Similar to Two Others Which Befell Him.

Kansas City, Mo. — In winning the James Gordon Bennett trophy by traveling 408 miles in the international balloons race which started from this city, Lieutenant Hans Gericke, pilot of the Berlin II, was lost to the world for the third time.

After all the other entries in the race had been located, a telegram was sent by the Aero club of Kansas City to Fred C. Ainsworth, adjutant general of the United States army, asking that all life saving stations, signal corps and others in government service in the Great Lakes region be requested to look for the German balloon and give assistance to its occupants when found.

Shortly after this telegram was sent a message was received from Lieutenant Gericke telling of his landing at Ladysmith, Wis. Gericke and his aide, F. O. Dunker, who came from Germany with the pilot, landed in a wilderness uninjured.

Lieutenant Gericke was also considered lost last year in the international race which started from St. Louis. In the German balloon Dusseldorf II, he was in the air 42 hours, traveling 1,100 miles and landing in the wilderness of Canada, from which he and his aide emerged four days later after a thrilling adventure and narrow escapes from starvation.

Gericke's second escapade of this kind occurred last summer when he went up from Berlin in the German elimination race and drifted out over the North sea. He was sighted in England, but was again lost from view and finally landed in France.

The nearest rival of the German balloon in this year's race was the Buckeye, piloted by Lieutenant Frank Lahm of the United States army. It landed near La Crosse, Wis., 370 miles from Kansas City. Lahm and his aide, J. C. Wade, Jr., landed in a swamp, suffering greatly from the cold. After having passed over Chicago and drifted out over Lake Michigan, they met a southward current which changed their course completely. They tried to rise above this, but succeeded only in finding a current which carried them westward. They were both exhausted with their nine-hour vigil and it was decided that they land.

Hunnswell, who went up as aide to Arthur T. Atherholt, pilot of the Pennsylvania, says that when they decided to come down their valve failed to work and they resorted to the rip cord at a height of 3,000 feet. The balloon fell like a rocket and hit the ground with terrific force.

In winning this year's race, Germany has taken the Bennett cup from America, who would have held it permanently if this country's representatives had been victorious. America had won the championship for two successive years and a victory this year would have ended this international series with a clean sweep for American balloonists. The next race will be held in Germany.

N. Y. Legislature Adjourns.

Albany, N. Y. — The New York state legislature adjourned sine die after passing a direct primary bill which Governor Dix said he proposed to sign next week.

DAILY MARKET REPORT.

Twin City Markets.

Minneapolis, Oct. 9. — Wheat, December, $1.08¼; May, $1.12⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.08¼; No. 2 northern, $1.06½; No. 1 durum, 99c; No. 3 corn, 67c; No. 3 white oats, 47c; barley, malting, $1.18; No. 2 rye, 92c; No. 1 flax, $2.33½.

Duluth, Oct. 9. — Wheat, December, $1.07¾; May, $1.12¾; No. 1 northern, $1.07¾; No. 1 durum, $1.00⅜.

South St. Paul, Oct. 9. — Cattle — Steers, $3.10@$3.35; cows, $3.35@$4.25; calves, $3.50@$7.50; hogs, $6.15@$6.35; sheep, spring lambs $3.25@$5.75.

Chicago Produce.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Butter firm; receipts, 12,199 tubs. Creamery, extras, 28c; extra firsts, 27c; firsts, 25c; seconds, 23c; dairies, extras, 26c; firsts, 23c; seconds, 21c; ladles, No. 1, 20c; packing, 19c. Eggs, steady; receipts, 4,577 cases; at mark, cases included, 17c; firsts, 20c; prime firsts, 21½c. Cheese steady; daisies, 14¼c; twins, 13¾@14c; Young Americas, 14@14¼c; long horns, 14@14¼c; Potatoes, steady; receipts, 60 cars; Wisconsin and Michigan, 70@73c; Minnesota and Maine, 75@80c. Poultry, live, steady; turkeys, 15c; chickens, 10½c. Veal, steady; 50 to 60-lbs. weights 8@9c; 60 to 86-lb. weights, 9½@10½c; 86 to 110-lbs weights, 11c.

Chicago Grain Market.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—With the weather more favorable in the northwest, especially Canada, wheat although firm at the outset, appeared to be more inclined to a downward kind. The bulls were also checked, owing to the fact that buying was only of a scattered kind. The bulls were also checked, owing to a disposition to postpone any aggressive action until after the government report. Opening prices were a shade to ¼c higher. December started at 98¼c, a gain of ⅛c, but then receded to 97⅞c.

JUDGE J. V. QUARLES DEAD.

Milwaukee Jurist Was a Former Senator From Wisconsin.

Milwaukee, Wis. — Judge Joseph V. Quarles died here. He had been seriously ill several weeks. He was elected United States senator from Wisconsin in 1899. He served six years in that capacity and upon his retirement in 1905, was appointed United States district judge for eastern Wisconsin, which position he had held continuously since.

AT A CRITICAL PERIOD.

Of Peculiar Interest to Women.

Mrs. Mary I. Remington, Eigleberry St., Gilroy, Cal., says: "I suffered so severely from pain and soreness over the kidneys that it was a task for me to turn in bed. My kidneys acted very frequently, but the secretions were retarded and passages scalded. I was weak and run down. After taking other remedies without benefit, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and was completely cured. I was going through the critical period of a woman's life at the time and after using Doan's Kidney Pills there was a miraculous change for the better in my health."

"When Your Back is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S."

For sale by druggists and general storekeepers everywhere. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Just for the Summer.

The old woman who lived in a shoe explained.

"Roomier than summer hotel rooms," she cried.

RASH ALL OVER BABY'S BODY

Itched So He Could Not Sleep

"On July 27, 1909, we left Boston for a trip to England and Ireland, taking baby with us. After being in Ireland a few days a nasty rash came out all over his body. We took him to a doctor who gave us medicine for him. The trouble started in the form of a rash and was all over baby's body, head and face, at different times. It irritated, and he would scratch it with all his might. The consequence was it developed into sores, and we were afraid it would leave nasty scars on his face.

"When we reached England we took baby to another doctor, who said his condition was due to change of food and climate, and gave more medicine. The rash got no better, and it used to itch and burn at night so bad that the child could not sleep. He was completely covered with it at different times. It was at this time that my mother advised us to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for about nine months the places disappeared. There are not any scars, or other kind of disfigurement, and baby is completely cured by the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We have no further trouble with baby's skin. Nothing stopped the itching, and allowed baby to sleep but Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Gunn, 29 Burrell St., Roxbury, Mass., March 12, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 14 K, Boston.

As dawn precedes the sun, so should acquaintance precede love.—Du Bose.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

A woman's idea of a man's responsibility depends on how he is dressed.

Why is it that so many people suffer with Lame Back? Hamlins Wizard Oil will cure it and for Aches, Sprains, Bruises, Cuts, Burns, etc., there is nothing better.

A peck of trouble looks like a bushel to the man who is up against it.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

Every man's hat shelters a hobby.

Whittemore's Shoe Polishes

Finest in Quality. Largest in Variety.

They meet every requirement for cleaning and polishing shoes of all kinds and colors.

GILT EDGE the only ladies shoe dressing that positively contains Oil. Blacks and Polishes ladies' and children's boots and shoes, shines without rubbing, 25c. "French Gloss," 10c.

DANDY combination for cleaning and polishing all kinds of russet or tan shoes, 25c. "Star" size, 10c.

ELITE combination for gentlemen who take pride in having their shoes look A1. Restores color and lustre to all black shoes. Polish with a brush or cloth, 25 cents. "Baby Elite" size 10 cents.

If your dealer does not keep the kind you want, send us his address and the price in stamps for a full size package.

WHITTEMORE BROS. & CO., 20-26 Albany St., Cambridge, Mass.
The Oldest and Largest Manufacturers of Shoe Polishes in the World.

KODAK FINISHING
Any size 6-exp. film developed 10 cents. 10 or 12 exp. 20 cents. Any film pack 20 cents. Send for catalog. VOEGELI DRUGGIST, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

85 ACRE FARM FOR SALE CHEAP. Twenty acres cleared and cultivated, balance timber. Five room frame house, frame barn, borders on large lake. Easy terms. O. H. Pederson, Eau Claire, Wisconsin.

Pettit's Eye Salve RELIEVES SORE EYES

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Minneapolis. — Minnesota "U" defeated Ames 5 to 0 in the first game of the season.

Rochester.—Bishop Patrick Heffron of the diocese of Winona, was operated upon for appendicitis here. While his condition is serious, it is not considered necessarily critical.

St. Cloud.—Anton Douhrava, who shot and killed his wife at their home in the town of Getty, on Sept. 21, was adjudged insane and was taken to the hospital for insane at Fergus Falls.

Little Falls.—The trial of Theodore Martin, charged with murder in the first degree, came to an abrupt ending here when the defendant asked permission to plead guilty of murder in the second degree.

Litchfield.—The new company composed of over 250 farmers of the county is in charge of the flour mills here, and will conduct it on a co-operative basis. The directors at a meeting elected Daniel Casey as manager.

Red Wing.—The government river boat David Tipton has a crew of men at work along the river banks in the vicinity of Horseshoe Bend near Diamond Island, dynamiting stumps of trees likely to interfere with navigation.

Minneapolis. — George Benjamin Findling, convicted of murder in the third degree, in connection with the death of 8-year-old Leo Donahue, was sentenced to 40 years at hard labor in the state prison. He was taken to Stillwater.

East Grand Forks. — Steps will be taken this week looking to the organization here of a young men's La Follette club, with similar action probably in Crookston, Thief River Falls and other northwestern Minnesota cities.

Brainerd.—A number of right of way deeds placed on record by the Soo railway give an inkling of the probable construction of a branch line to tap recent ore discoveries on the North Cuyuna range to the west and north of Deerwood.

Minneapolis. — Only five thousand dollars for a kiss and a hug is the price Celia O'Borsky places upon them in a damage suit filed against Olaf O. Searle, whom she charges, seized her in his arms, embraced and kissed her without her consent.

Rochester.—Bishop Patrick Heffron, who underwent an operation for appendicitis, continues to improve, and with no signs of any distressing developments, the chances for the Winona prelate to fully recover grow exceedingly bright.

Little Falls.—At a get-together dinner 130 business and professional men signified their willingness to have Little Falls bonded to the extent of $25,000 to build a spur track from Little Falls south to connect with the Soo road. With this connection Little Falls will have two lines.

St. Paul. — Inspectors C. W. Bongey and Thomas Nicholson of the state bureau of labor have set out on a tour of elevator inspection in which they will inspect every passenger and freight elevator in the state except in the cities of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth. In Duluth, however, they will examine the freight elevators. Mr. Bongey will take the southern part of the state and Mr. Nicholson the northern.

Red Wing.—Progress is being made on the construction of the high power line between Red Wing and Wabasha. The construction crew has its camp at Frontenac. It is hoped to have the line completed during the next forty-five days. The first car of steel towers will be distributed from this point within a few days. Then miles of footings of galvanized structural steel for the tower foundations have been completed.

Litchfield.—The annual report of the secretary of the Minnesota Dairymen's association held here last winter is out. In the list of creameries joining the association at that time a total of $415,403 is invested in buildings and equipment. There are 5,667 stockholders, 8,882 patrons and milk is received from 55,855 cows. During 1910, 9,416,748 pounds of butter were manufactured, for which patrons were paid $2,917,666.75.

Moorhead.—By the announcement by Professor E. F. Ladd, food commissioner of North Dakota, that the results of an analysis of whisky from this city showed the presence of chloral hydrate, the theory of officials concerning several robberies of late has been strengthened. Chloral hydrate is the principal ingredient in "knock out drops."

The whisky was sent to Professor Ladd after it had been taken from Ed Smith and George Derman, transients, who were then sent to the county jail. It was thought by the police that these men would offer the whisky to others who had money and after they were under the influence of the drug would lead them to the river bank and rob them. Several robberies of this nature have occurred of late and the police think this was the method used.

Litchfield.—County Superintendent Janes has arranged the program for the Meeker county boys and girls' industrial contest which will be held in this city on market day, Oct. 14. The Commercial club has contributed $100 toward the premium fund. Much interest is being shown in the county contests, and some fine exhibits are looked for.

Bemidji. — One man is dead, another mortally wounded and a third shot through the arm as the result of a midnight fight at Kelliher, north of here. All the participants were woodsman.

SPLENDID CANADIAN CROPS

Wheat, Oats and Barley Universally Good Throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The reports that come to hand from the wheat fields of the western Canadian provinces show remarkably good yields in all parts. Yields are recorded of wheat going 35 and 40 bushels in many places, and oats from 60 to 100 bushels per acre. Barley and flax are splendid. The thousands of Americans throughout the United States who have friends in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta will be pleased to learn of the great success that has followed their efforts. Many of these have not confined themselves to the growing of grain, but have also gone into the cattle industry. On the luxurious grasses that are so abundant there, in almost all districts, make this industry safe and profitable. The land sales reported by the railway companies and by the different land companies show the great increase that will likely take place during the next year in farming operations. What has been said time and time again may now be well repeated, that there is no place on the American continent where the same opportunities are afforded the man looking for a home, for the young man starting out in life, the man with a growing up family, who desires wider scope for his ambition. The Canadian government agents located at different points in the states will be glad to advise the reader of the conditions, and relate to him instances of the great success that has followed farming in Western Canada.

He is a wise man who laughs at the antediluvian jokes of his tailor.

Cole's Carbolisalve quickly relieves and cures burning, itching and torturing skin diseases. It instantly stops the pain of burns. Cures without scars. 25c and 50c by druggists. For free sample write to J. W. Cole & Co., Black River Falls, Wis.

Charity organizations uncover a multitude of sinners.

DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP HER

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pound, Wis.—"I am glad to announce that I have been cured of dyspepsia and female troubles by your medicine. I had been troubled with both for fourteen years and consulted different doctors, but failed to get any relief. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I can say I am a well woman. I can't find words to express my thanks for the good your medicine has done me. You may publish this if you wish." —Mrs. HERMAN SIETH, Pound, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

10% INTEREST paid on small monthly investments, security, first mortgages. For particulars address Gen. Mgr. Colo. Can. Inv. Co., Dept. 12, 410 Quincy Bldg., Denver, Colo

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 41–1911.

A Reader Cures His Constipation—Try It Free

Simple Way for Any Family to Retain the Good Health of All Its Members.

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which, strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels has looked the whole field over, has practised the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

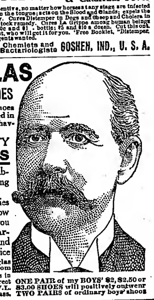
Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 98 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City and thousands of others. It can be obtained of any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any stage are infected or "exposed." Liquid given on the tongue; acts on the Blood and Glands; expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling live stock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 a dozen. Cut this out. Keep it. Show to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures." Special Agents wanted.



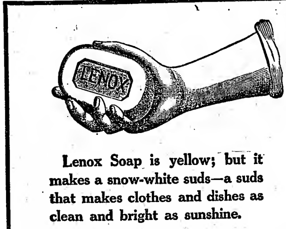
SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

Men and Women wear W.L.Douglas shoes because they are the best shoes produced in this country for the price. Insist upon having them. Take no other make.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY FOR OVER 30 YEARS



The assurance that goes with an established reputation is your assurance in buying W. L. Douglas shoes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L.Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes in your town, write for catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W.L. DOUGLAS, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $2, $2.50 or $3.00 SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes

Lenox Soap is yellow; but it makes a snow-white suds—a suds that makes clothes and dishes as clean and bright as sunshine.

Try it!

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1911. NO. 30.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

EVER TAKE A MUSIC BATH?

They Are as Good for the Soul, Holmes Says, as Water for the Body.

One must be educated, no doubt, to understand the more complex and difficult kinds of musical composition. Go to the concerts where you know that the music is good, and that you ought to like it whether you do or not. Take a music bath once or twice a week for a few seasons, and you will find that it is to the soul what the water bath is to the body. I wouldn't trouble myself about the affectations of people who go to the or that series of concerts chiefly because it is fashionable. Some of these people whom we think so silly will perhaps find, sooner or later, that they have a dormant faculty which is at last waking up, and that they who came because others came, and began by staring at the audience, are listening to a newly found delight. Everyone of us has a harp under the bodice or waistcoat, and if it can only once get properly strung and tuned it will respond to all outside harmonies.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

For Cramps.

A piece of old-fashioned candlewick worn around the leg in the garter place, next to the skin, will prevent, or cure, cramp in the calf of the leg or in the foot. I have proved this by personal experience; I believe this would prove effectual in preventing swimmers' cramp; those liable to cramp while in the water would be wise to try it. Cottonbatting wrapped round the body from the arm-pits downward, saved the life of a man suffering agonies from polsteres' cramp; it gave almost instant relief.—National Magazine.

Better a live dog than a still alarm.

Whittemore's Shoe Polishes

Finest in Quality. Largest in Variety. Best for every requirement for cleaning and polishing shoes of all kinds and colors.

GILT EDGE the only ladies shoe dressing that positively shines. Blacks and Polishes ladies' and children's boots and shoes, gives a beautiful, lasting, patent leather finish.

DANDY RUSSET—the finest preparation for all kinds of russet or tan shoes. No "dauber" with it. Contains sponge attachment. Produces a rich polish in having their shoes look all. Restores color to faded shoes. Will not rub off. Keeps leather soft. 10 cents. Dandy Russet—in russet shades.

If your dealer does not keep the kind you want, send us his address and the price in stamps for a full size package.

WHITTEMORE BROS. & CO., 70-72 Albany St., Cambridge, Mass. The Oldest and Largest Manufacturers of Shoe Polishes in the World.

The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prosperity and independence. Secure a free copy of the Canada Western Farmers' Guide, containing full information as to the Free Homestead and Pre-emption Regulations, Railway Rates, Settlers' Effects, etc., and how to secure them.

Now's the Time

Upon the abundant crops of 1911 depends the prosperity of Canada for the coming year. Upon the abundant crops of 1911 depends the success of all who shall engage in agriculture in Western Canada from now on. Over 90,000 people went to Western Canada from the United States in 1910 than the previous year. Canada's boundless area is calling for thousands more to take up her fertile land out of the reach of speculators. Canada's offer of 160 acres each of prairie farms of magnificent soil, with healthful climate, excellent water and fuel supplies, convenient markets, splendid railway facilities and low taxation, has no equal. Land and lumber easily obtainable.

Write for literature "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and how to reach it, to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or C. J. Broughton, Over's Agency, Minneapolis, Minn.

The Valley Citizen 32c Grand Forks, N. D. Weekly Herald 32c Minot, N. D. Times 32c Devils Lake, N. D. Journal 32c Jamestown, N. D. Sun 32c Rolla, N. D. Record 32c Bismarck, N. D. Tribune 32c Mandan, N. D. Free Press 32c Aberdeen, S. D. Republican 32c Watertown, S. D. Courier 32c Huron, S. D. Republican 32c Redfield, S. D. Sun 32c Rolla, S. D. Republican 32c Milwaukee, Wis.

Your Liver Is Clogged Up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts —Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days.

They do their duty. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion and Sick Headache

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

PISO'S is the name to remember when you need a remedy for COUGHS and COLDS

TREASON IN PEKING

REBELLION SPREADS OVER ALL CHINA—REPUBLIC REPORTED PROCLAIMED.

FOREIGN MARINES LANDED

Terror Reigns and Fires Rage in Hankow—Rebels Fail to Maintain Order—Prisoners Set Free Pillage and Loot—Scores Killed.

Peking.—The rebellion is spreading rapidly. A well-defined rumor says that a republic has been declared at Wu-Chang and that the rebel leader at Hankow has notified the foreign consuls that a new government has been established.

Peking, 1,000 miles away from the rebel stronghold, in the center of the province is threatened with the fate of Hankow, a large part of which has been destroyed by fire and where hundreds of Manchus have been killed.

The government decided to concentrate its efforts to save Peking and unprecedented military activity within the walls of the great city is the result. Thirty thousand troops, who were to have departed for the military manœuvers at Kniteng, are on the move in the streets and several other sections of the army are entraining for the suburbs.

That Peking can be saved is deemed impossible. The garrison is known to be perfectly disloyal and it is feared the first uprising will be the signal for a wholesale desertion, which can mean nothing less than the destruction of the city.

I-Chang and Yo-Chow have been taken and hundreds of their Manchu residents slain. A dispatch reports a battle at Changsking and predicts the early fall of that city.

The troops at the great military posts at Pochigfu and Tientsin, a few miles outside of this city, are reported to be ready to join the insurrectionists. It is reported that Chansha, the capital of Hunan, has been captured and that the yamens of the viceroy and the Tartar general have been burned.

Wild disorder prevails at Hankow. The revolutionists are making every effort to restore order in the city. Great numbers of criminals who were liberated from the prisons and the Hooligan element are pillaging and foraging what few buildings remain standing.

The loss of life cannot be estimated. The slaughter of the native quarter are filled with dead. As fast as the rioters are captured they are executed. Scores have met death in this manner.

All the province of Szechuen, west of the Min river, is in the hands of the rebels. The revolutionists have seized the provincial treasury and mint at Szechuen, which contained about 1,000,000 taels.

Fifteen thousand regular Chinese troops in the province of Szechuen have joined the rebels, leaving the province with practically no government protection.

The foreigners have not been molested as yet. A division of allied foreign marines have landed to protect the foreign concessions. They are commanded by the Japanese admiral, Kawashima. The women and children were taken aboard the warships, of which there are two Americans, two Japanese, three British and one German. Standing a short distance from these ships is o Chinese squadron of six battleships. Several other foreign vessels are en route.

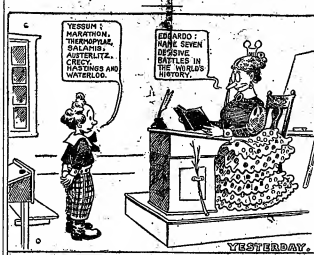
WILEY GETS QUEER QUERY

Florida Association Asks "Is It Legal to Offer Officials Money Under Name of Reward?"

Washington.—"Is it legal and do you approve offering public officials money under the name of a reward? Please answer."

This was the unusual ending of a telegram received by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the government's chief chemist, from the Florida Citrus and Vegetable Shippers' Protective association in relation to the unripe orange controversy that has come before the department.

Dr. Wiley took under advisement this question of public morals until he finds out, as he says, "what they are driving at."



NATHAN ALLEN IS SUED

Mrs. Jenkins Seeks to Recover $200,000—Action Is Also Brought by Government.

New York.—Papers were served on Nathan Allen, founder of the leather trust, in a suit for more than $200,000 brought by Mrs. Helen Dwelle Jenkins, with whom Allen toured Europe in 1909 and upon whom he showered a fortune in jewels.

Only last week Allen pleaded guilty to indictments for smuggling and was fined $13,000 by Judge Kough.

BUT, FOUR MAY SETTLE IT!

PEACE OFFER MADE

TURKEY MAY ACCEPT ITALY'S PROPOSAL TO ANNEX TRIPOLI AND PAY LARGE FUND.

BIG BATTLE IS REPORTED

Constantinople Paper Says 1,000 of Invading Army Are Slain—Italian Newspaper Correspondents Are Barred From Ottoman Capital.

Rome, Italy.—Four aeroplanes have arrived here from France. They will be sent to Tripoli, where it is proposed to make the first experiments in the use of flying machines in actual warfare. They will be piloted by Italian officers, who will undertake to drop bombs into the enemy's encampments.

St. Petersburg, Russia.—The text of a Russian note to Turkey regarding the free export of Russian corn was made public.

In reply to a verbal remonstrance Turkey has said that she intended to act according to the declaration of London of 1909. As this was considered unsatisfactory to Russia, this government presented a written demand wherein it was pointed out that Russia, basing her position upon the declaration of Paris of 1856 and articles 24 and 33 of the declaration of London, considered cargoes of corn subject neither to arrest nor to confiscation when addressed to Russian ports in the Black sea or to Italian ports, if the cargoes were not destined for the Italian field forces or Italian official consignees.

Constantinople. — Italy has made propositions that are expected to bring peace. It proposes to annex Tripoli and pay indemnity. Italy is to control all civil and military affairs, while the caliph is to be supreme in all religious affairs.

The Sabah publishes a dispatch stating that a large Italian force attacked a detachment of Turks entrenched in the hills outside of Tripoli and were replused after a long and severe battle. The Italian casualties are given as 1,500 killed and wounded.

Notice has been given to all Italian newspaper men in Turkey that they will be expelled in 24 hours.

A society has been organized to wage an economic war against Italy. All Ottomans are asked to sign a declaration undertaking on oath to cease all dealings with Italians. Newspapers indorsing this campaign advise Ottomans to inculcate the young with a hatred for Italy and Italians.

Owen Wister Denies Illness.

Rigby, Idaho.—Owen Wister, the author, left his ranch in Jackson's Hole, Wyo., for a hunting trip. Before leaving he said that rumors of his ill health were unfounded and that he expected to leave for New York October 15.

LORIMER PROBE IS ON

NEW TESTIMONY INVOLVES ILLINOIS LEGISLAORS.

Former Senator Hopkins' Private Secretary Names Men Whom He Suspected of Being Bribed.

Chicago.—The committee of the United States senate which is investigating the election of William Lorimer, senator from Illinois, resumed its hearings in this city after a recess of eight weeks.

A sensation was created when Peffers, who was intimate with Hopkins' affairs and practically managed his campaign against Lorimer, called off the names of five Republicans—deserters from the Hopkins camp—whom he suspected of being bribed in one way or another to cast their votes for Lorimer.

These men are: Senator B. F. Dunlap, Dixon, Ill.; Senator George M. McCormick, Alton, Ill.; Representative Carl S. Burgett, Newman, Ill.; Representative Johnson Lawrence, Polo, Ill.; Representative Charles L. Fieldcamp, Irving Park, Ill.

The names were obtained from Peffers on cross-examination by Attorney Eldridge Haney, counsel for Lorimer.

On direct examination Peffers said he had a conversation with McCormick about a week before the election of Lorimer.

"McCormick told me he had been offered money to change his vote from Hopkins to Lorimer," said Peffers. "He specified the amount as $5,500. He said he had refused the money, and had then been asked to name the amount for which he would change his vote. He didn't say who made the offer."

HARLAN DIES AT CAPITAL

Noted Supreme Court Justice Expires of Attack of Bronchitis at Washington.

Washington. — Associate Justice John Marshall Harlan of the United States Supreme court, died at his home here.

Justice Harlan was stricken with an attack of bronchitis. At his advanced age the family was alarmed, and all the jurist's children were summoned. With the exception of the son, Richard, they were all at the bedside when he died, as was Mrs. Harlan.

Justice Harlan attended the opening session of the Supreme court last Monday. He was also present on Tuesday, when the arguments in the anthracite coal case were begun.

There was no member of the Supreme court more widely known than Justice Harlan. He has been called the most independent of the justices. He was noted for his dissenting opinions. In the Standard Oil and Tobacco trust cases, recently decided, his dissenting opinion was as widely quoted as the opinion of the majority of the court.

TUB TRUST SMASHED

UNITED STATES TO PUSH CRIMINAL SUIT.

Government Wins Case at Baltimore and Alleged Illegal Combination Must Dissolve.

Baltimore, Md.—The "bathtub trust" is ordered dissolved.

The government won the suit against the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company and others, and a decree handed down by Judge Chas. C. Rose in the federal circuit court held the concern to be in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act and a combination "unreasonably restraining trade.

The decision is a sweeping. Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant to the United States attorney, and United States District Attorney John Philip Hill of Baltimore, who conducted the case for the government, stated that the decision supports the government's contention on every point.

BOMB TRIAL IS OPENED

State Examines 125 Veniremen in Case of McNamara—To Demand Separate Hearing for Detendants.

Los Angeles, Cal. — The trial of the two McNamara brothers, both of whom are under indictment for murder in connection with the explosion which wrecked the Los Angeles Times on October 1, 1910, was virtually begun here before Superior Judge Walter Bordwell, although perhaps nobody except District Attorney John D. Fredericks knows whether John J. or James B. McNamara will sit in the prisoner's chair when the case formally is called. Indicatione point to James B. McNamara as the first man to be tried.

One hundred and twenty-three veniremen appeared before Judge Bordwell for examination as to their qualifications as jurymen. All save a few asked to be excused for business or other reasons. About fifty names were scratched from the list and as many more were taken under advisement. Several days ago Clarence Darrow went over the names of the veniremen and declared that not a man on it would be acceptable to the defense.

NO RECORD OF FUND KEPT

Attorney Tells Senators as Much as $1,800 Changed Hands and No Account Was Kept.

Milwaukee.—Money was distributed so liberally by Senator Isaac Stephenson during his campaign for nomination at the primaries in 1908 that some as great as $1,800 were paid out without any accounting ever being given or asked.

George H. Gordon, United States attorney for the western district of Wisconsin, so testified before the senatorial investigation committee. Before he held any public office, but while counsel for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad at Lo Crosee, Gordon said he was paid $1,800 out of the $107,793 Stephenson campaign fund to be used in the senator's interest.

D. E. Riordan of Ashland, Wis., testified that he spent $3,200 of the Stephenson fund.

CUTS OFF SONS IN WILL

Louisville Man is Said to Have Disapproved Their Marriage—One is Separated From Wife.

Louisville, Ky.—Disproval of the women he sons married appeared in the will of John Kreuth, who amassed a fortune as a pork packer, is the apparent reason for some handling brooke that wind their sperkling way through bevery meede, comes a note of gratitude for delivery from the coffee habit.

"When one of my boy came to me five years ago, I began to drink Postum, having a feeling that it would be better for him and me than the old kind of drug-inden coffee. I was not disappointed in it, for it enabled me, a small, delicate woman, to nurse a bouncing, healthy baby 14 months.

"I have since continued the use of Postum for I have gained out of it, and have discovered to my joy that it hoe entirely relieved ma of a billous habit which used to prostrate me two or three times a year, causing much discomfort to my family and suffering to myself.

"My brother-in-law was curad of chronic constipation by leaving off coffee and using Postum. He has become even more fond of it then he was of the old coffee.

"In fact, the entire family, from the latest arrival (a 2-year-old who always calls for his 'potic' first thing in the morning), up to the head of the house, think there le no drink so good or so wholesome as Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason"

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Relieves Backache Instantly

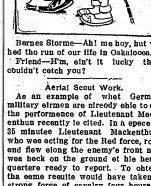
Sloan's Liniment is a great remedy for backache. It penetrates and relieves the pain instantly—no rubbing necessary—just lay it on lightly.

Here's Proof.

"I had my back hurt in the Rock Way and the San Francisco two years ago. I had to lay off work. I suffered awful pain. I tried all kinds of dope without success. Two weeks ago I saw Sloan's Liniment in a drug store and got a bottle to try. The first application gave me instant relief, and now except for a little stiffness, I am almost well."

FLETCHER NORMAN, Whittier, Calif.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT



is the best remedy for rheumatism, neuralgia, sore throat and sprains.

MISS E. RISE of Brooklyn, N.Y., writes: "Sloan's Liniment is the best for rheumatism. I have used the bottles of it and it is grand."

Sold by all Dealers.
Price, 25c., 50c., and $1.00.

Sloan's Book on Horses, Cattle, Hogs and Poultry sent free. Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan Boston, Mass.

UNKIND.

Bernes Storme—Ah! me boy, but we had the run of our life in Oskaloosa.

Friend—If'm, ain't it lucky they couldn't catch you?

Aerial Scout Work.

As an example of what German military airmen are already able to do, the performance of Lieutenant Mackenthun recently is cited. In a space of 25 minutes Lieutenant Mackenthun, who was acting for the Red force, rose and flew along the enemy's front and was back on the ground at his headquarters ready to report. To obtain the same results would have taken a strong force of cavalry four hours.

FROM TEXAS

Some Coffee Facts From the Lone Star State.

From a beautiful farm down in Texas, where gushing springs unite to form babbling brooke that wind their sperkling way through bevery meede, comes a note of gratitude for delivery from the coffee habit.

"When one of my boy came to me five years ago, I began to drink Postum, having a feeling that it would be better for him and me than the old kind of drug-inden coffee. I was not disappointed in it, for it enabled me, a small, delicate woman, to nurse a bouncing, healthy baby 14 months.

"I have since continued the use of Postum for I have gained out of it, and have discovered to my joy that it hoe entirely relieved ma of a billous habit which used to prostrate me two or three times a year, causing much discomfort to my family and suffering to myself.

"My brother-in-law was curad of chronic constipation by leaving off coffee and using Postum. He has become even more fond of it then he was of the old coffee.

"In fact, the entire family, from the latest arrival (a 2-year-old who always calls for his 'potic' first thing in the morning), up to the head of the house, think there le no drink so good or so wholesome as Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason"

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

TWO NEGROES ARE LYNCHED

Blacks Taken From Carrutheraville (Mo.) Jail by Mob, Shot and Thrown into River.

Carrutheraville, Mo.—A. B. Richardson and Ben Woods, negroes, were taken from the city jail here and lynched by a mob of 75 masked men which battered down the doors. The body of Richardson, riddled with bullets, was found floating in the Mississippi river. That Woods met a like fate is the accepted belief. For some time feeling against the negroes has been high. Richardson, regarded as a desperate man, was locked up while the police were investigating several robberies. Woods was arrested for an attack upon two young white women.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minnesota under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

The initiative and referendum and recall, including judges was carried by an overwhelming majority in California at last week's election, and it will carry in Minnesota, if we ever get a chance to vote on it.

The whole cry for the calling of a special session of the legislature is to pass legislation to get even with the railroads for raising milage. It is very doubtful if you could get the present legislature to do anything to injure their bed fellows, the railroad companys, and if they did pass any laws they would be sure to leave that unconstitutional hole wide open, so his honor could crawl through and set them aside. There is no use to pass anymore railroad legislation until the people get the right to fire judges buddy. We would consider it a waste of time for a regular session of the legislature and useless expense to call a special session, to pass railroad bills for his honor to set aside.

This is the way the St Paul Dispatch sizes up the political situation in this congressional district: "Halvor Steenerson of the ninth congressional district probably is one of the most comfortable of Minnesota congressmen. There does not seem to be a rail issue in any of his political fences. In fact the district has little or no factional strife. While there is war in most of the other districts, Steenerson's organization commands the situation and there is not even a cloud on the political sky in the ninth."—Ada Index.

That is easy to explain. Steenerson represents the people in congress and they know it, and are all for him, but Taft and his "Sorry Eberhart" will think they have been hit by the tail end of a Kansas cyclone, when they hear from the Eighth, ninth.

Outlet Is Closed Up.

As might have been expected, the Thief River Falls News comes to the rescue of the lumber companys and claims that there has been an investigation made and that the fault is not in the log jam but because the lake is low. That statement is not true, and we don't care how many committees are sent up from Thief River Falls to report that the drying up of Red Lake River is caused by the low water in Red Lake Lake Does any sensible man, that has ever seen this river and lake believe that the water would go down 18 inches in one night? That is what it did this summer when that log jam was run in. The facts of the matter is, that there is not about twenty five million feet of logs jamed into the river at the lake outlet, and that this jam fills the river solid full of logs from bank to bank for about seven miles, commencing at the outlet of the lake into the river.

Did you notice that the News does not deny this fact? Now any man knows, if he is not a Committeeman, from Thief River Falls that a jam of logs of that kind would block up that outlet so there could only a small amount of water get through it.

We have nothing against the lumber companys, or the people of Thief River Falls who have so nobly stood by them, and assisted them, to deceive public officials, so as to allow them to shut off this river and commit the crime of killing all the fish in it. The truth will come out, and when the facts are shown up it will be an everlasting disgrace to the northern part of the state. Them logs are there, and they have shut off the water so it can not get out of the lake into river. These are facts that are not written in a lumber companys office, but are taken from men who have been on the spot, and know what they are talking about.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. to The Sunbeam Sep. 22, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 18th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Lyle Richardson, of Hig hlanding Minn. who on Oct 18, 1904, made Homestead Entry No 736, Serial No 04270, for S. W. ¼ section 28 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 25th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses;

Ben Krosta, Tobias Olson, Sjur Stolsar, Tom Jacobson, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. to the Sunbeam Sept. 22,1911.

Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota September 18th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Enos H. Ottelie, of Wanke Minn. who on November 8th, 1905 made Homestead Entry No.1243, Serial No. 06305, for Lots 2, 3, 4, S.W. ¼ N. E. ¼ Section 3 Township 151 N. Range 39 W., and S.W. ¼ S.E. ¼ of Section 34 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of his intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 26th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Christ Thompson, of Lillo Minn. Knut O. Larson, John J. Larson, of Rudolf Minn. Nels Rieso, of Wanke Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 22,1911.

Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. September 18th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole Nilson, of Highlanding Minn., who on October 28, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 778, Serial No. 06258 for S.E. ¼ Section 7 Township 150 N Range 37 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhem Michelet U. S.Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn on the 24th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Thom M. Thorson, of Highlanding Minn. Jacob Nelsheni, of Rudolf Minn. Rittle O. Vatne, Olof O. Vatne, of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register

When One Drills With Diamonds.

A diamond bit for rock drilling is quite an expensive article, says Outsider's Magazine. Its value, however, will undergo fluctuations, dependent upon the price of the diamonds. Perhaps $800 is a fair value for a bit. The diamond used is exceedingly hard —harder than those usually used as jewelry. Their carat price is considerable, averaging, say, $60 per carat. The diamonds used will weigh from one to two carats, so that eight bore a value ranging from $480 to $960 on the average. The loss of a bit means many diamonds gone and may lead to difficulty with the hole. The diamond is not tough, but brittle. It will withstand heavy pressure if applied evenly and without shock. It can readily be seen that drilling through seamy rock may become quite unfavorable. If there is much quartz present the abrasion may become excessive. Under ordinary conditions, however, the wear on the diamonds, while considerable, is by no means prohibitive.

Submarines at Sea.

Equilibrium is almost as difficult to maintain for a submarine vessel as for an aeroplane. With modern large submarines the act of diving is performed when the vessels have headway. The bow is depressed by horizontal rudders, and the vessel moves obliquely downward. The desired depth having been attained, the steersman must so manage the horizontal rudders that the vessel shall practically maintain its level but, in fact, its course becomes really an undulating one. There must be no movement of men or weights in the vessel without immediate compensation to restore and maintain the balance, else the submarine may dive to a disastrous depth. Manual control has been found better than automatic control.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sept. 22, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 18th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Patrick K. Kline, of Erie Minn. who on November 28th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 824, Serial No. 04318, for S. ½ Section 1 Township 153 N. Range 39 W 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnegaard, Andrew Hanson, John Dahlen, Isac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 29 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Patrick K. Kline, of Erie Minn. who on November 28th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 824, Serial No. 04318, for S. ½ Section 1 Township 153 N. Range 39 W 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnegaard, Andrew Hanson, John Dahlen, Isac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN Register.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington] S. S. District Court,

14th, Judicial District.

C. Helleman Brewing Company, Plaintiff,

vs

Edward E. Olson, Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANT:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which said complaint is now on file in the office of the Clerk of Court of the District Court in and for the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, in the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls in said County and State, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River falls, in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Six Hundred and Twenty-two & 44-100 dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of Six per cent, per annum from the 27, day of May, 1915, togen ther with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Stanton & Rowberg,

Attorneys for Plaintiff,

Thief River Falls Minn.

9-30,11-6.

Notice For Publication.

First rub to the sunbeam Oct. 6.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct.4,rod, 1911.

Notice is hereby give that Ole S. Quam, of Torgerson Minn., who on June 15th, 1905 made Homestead Entry Serial No. 04820, for S. E. ¼ Section 21 Township 154 N.Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls minn. at thief river falls minn on the 6th day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

gie Yens, John Smevik, Peter Nybokken, Reinhart Jobsered, all of Torgerson Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin,

Register."

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept.29th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 29, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Halvor Bjornsen, of Brunkeberg Minn., who on October 4, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 638, Serial No. 04245, for Lots 3, 4, & S. ½ N.W. ¼ Section 5, Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described; before Wilhiem Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 31th, day of October 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Iver Solhiem, Andrew Skodland, Christian Nygaard, Torjus T. Heimestveit, all of Brunkeberg Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

In a Japanese Sleeping Car.

It was at night we had our first experience in a Japanese sleeping car. The truck is narrow gauge, and the standard sleeping cars have six seats running lengthwise, each seating two passengers, with a center aisle. The upper berth is the regular Pullman style, and a section will accommodate two passengers. The night was during the extreme heat of midsummer, the car was crowded, and in addition to the regular curtains each berth was provided with a mosquito bar, which added to the general discomfort. Passengers were taken on and let down at all stops, so there was a constant procession through the aisle all night. Part of the car was reserved for local accommodation, and those who sat up smoked incessantly, so that long before morning the atmosphere became intolerable.—Railway Age Gazette.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct 20th 1911

Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Emil Sigrud, of Torgerson Minnesota, who on Dec. 10th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 1019, Serial No. 04837, for W. W. ¼ Section 33, Township 154 N. Range 38 W. 5th, Prin. Met Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Mikkel Anderson, Martin Anderson, Soren Hermanson, of Torgerson Minn. John J. Scevik of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 26th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Oscar Liedberg, of Roland Minnesota, who on November 29, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 973, Serial No. 04817, for Lots 4,5,6, Section 31 & Lot 5, Section 32 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before The Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on the 11th, day of November 1911

Claimant names as witnesses

Adolph Lindberg, John Olson, Bernard Hyland, of Rhoda Minn., Christian O. Liedberg, of Roland Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

"I am all right now, thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy."

The same relief is ready for you. Are you sure you do not need it? If Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy helped Charles Holmes, why won't it help you?

"I was troubled with heart disease, and after reading about Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, I got a bottle. Before I got the Heart Remedy I had not up more of the night, and felt very bad at my stomach. Whatever I would eat made me feel worse, and my heart beat very fast. But thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, I am all right now. I eat good, sleep good, and feel like a new man, although I am almost 68 years old. I have been a soldier in the late war of the rebellion, and was badly wounded." CHARLES HOLMES, Private Co. B, 54th N. Y. Infantry Volunteers, Walton, Delaware Co, N. Y.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is kept in thousands of homes as a friend always to be relied upon in time of need.

Sold by all Druggists If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned. Ask any druggist.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkh

A Scotch Marriage.

By the act of 1856 the parties sign in the presence of two witnesses a declaration that they take each other as husband and wife. They then present a petition to the sheriff asking him to certify that they have been married and that one or both of them had their usual residence in Scotland before the marriage or has resided there for twenty-one days preceding it. This petition may be presented within three months of the declaration constituting the marriage, but is usually presented within three hours. The parties and witnesses attend before the sheriff, and the witnesses confirm on oath the statements of fact. The sheriff thereupon grants warrant to the registrar to register the marriage. The registration can then be completed at once. The whole procedure takes only an hour or two, and the cost is only a few shillings. On the eve of the new year and summer holidays there is a constant procession of newly married couples and their witnesses before the sheriff in Glasgow. The suitors are principally drawn from the artisan classes and the classes below them, but there is usually a sprinkling of a better class.—London Quarterly.

What Did He Mean?

Mrs. Benham—Death is the debt we owe to nature. Benham—Nature does not send out her bills often enough.—New York Press.

Greatness.

Greatness is self conscious, not in the ordinary sense of that phrase, but in the sense that denotes consciousness of its possession.—William R. Hutchinson.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to Inventors." "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE, PATENT ATTORNEYS WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Next week we shall again publish our regular sized paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Singer, of Kratka visited with Mr. and Mrs. George Singer Sunday.

Mike McAndress, of St. Hilaire, sold over nine hundred dollars worth of flax raised on 80 acres of land. Does it pay to farm in Pennington county? Ask Mike.

Wanted, teams and men to break from 50 to 60 acres of land. Wm. Brockmar, Roland Minn.

Ye editor was calling on Deer Park friends last Sunday and took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Anderson.

Oscar and Aslak Nesland are working at carpenter work for Singer Bros. at Kratka on their new store building.

County surveyor C. H. Marts and Dan Linihan were up today making estimates on some north side ditches which are completed.

S. L. Holm stated to build a bridge across Red Lake River, but found that it would not meet with the government requirements so he quit.

The Oscar Swanson threshing rig has about completed threshing his western jobs and will be headed back toward Deer Park next week.

We are in need of money very bad just now and are calling on our delinquent subscribers to pay up. Please remit when you get your statement.

The Ole Giving threshing machine has been threshing for Peter Hunstad, P. C. Wold and Hears Arndt the past week, and now will turn back west.

If you want to get your plows new layed, or your horses shod, call on Charles Engaist, at his Kratka shop and get the work done right. Charges reasonable.

Our school teacher, Herbert Swift was sick this week and went down to Thief River to see a Dr. on Monday. He is improving and started teaching Wednesday.

Walter McAndress drove down to St. Hilair Sunday and went to Thief River Falls Monday as a witness for his father Mastin McAndress, who made final proof, on a homestead in Mayfield township, as the heir of Mary Sullivan deceased.

Estray. Came to my place on N.E. ¼ section 11 town of Mayfield, on last Tuesday evening, a grey bronko mare, weight about 900 lbs. Had a short peice of rope tied arround the neck. Owner can have his property by paying for this notice and the keeping. Torgel Lanjie, Maloae Minn.

Mr. George Leimers reports the floollowing yelids of grain on his Deer Park farm. Flax 19 bushells per acre. Oats 50 bushells per acre, Barley 40 bushells per acre, Wheat 27 bushells per acre, of No. 1. Wm. Rodman did the threshing for him last week. Mr. Leimers says he also has a very fine crop of all kinds of vegetables.

F. A. Way, who bought the T. Sullivan farm on which the Highlanding school house is built was up last week giving his yearly talk about improving his farm, but we guess he had just sold another car load of horsesand was nosoing around to buy another farm cheap, to let lay in its wild state while other men improved the country and raised its value. But he said to land the farm on the north side of his land, as there happened to people living in the country that wanted it and had the cash to pay for it, so Mr. Fay can put his cash for the last car load of hogs in the bank.

Not Going That Way.

"Miss Adams, there is something I desire very much to ask you."

"Oh, Mr. Williston—I mean Fred—I'm sure I should be delighted to hear—that is, I mean what is there that you can possibly wish to ask me?"

"Would you be willing to go on a long journey with me?"

"A very, very long journey, Fred?"

"Yes, a very, very long journey."

"Yes, I will go with you. Of course I suppose it is the journey that a man and a woman take together only once in a lifetime?"

"Well, as a rule I suppose it would not be taken more than once. You see, my mother and I are thinking of taking a trip to Japan, and she thought it would be nice if I could find some one who would be willing to go as a sort of traveling companion and maid to her in return for having her expenses paid."

"Oh! Well, you just tell your honey by mother that when I wish to hire out I'll look for some other kind of a job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Father's Dilemma.

A parent's life is one long responsibility. It's a wonder that so many of the genus discharge their duties so acceptably. A writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer has discovered another parental problem, or perhaps he merely calls attention to one which many fathers have discovered for themselves.

"How's the family?" one inquired of a happily married west sider yesterday.

"Well, my children are at a difficult age now."

"Difficult? Why, they've all passed the measles and teething stage, have they not?"

"Long ago. But you don't know a father's troubles. My children are at the age where if I use slang my wife says I'm setting a bad example, and if I speak correctly the kids think I'm a back number. Which would you do?"

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the subscription, Oct. 19th 1911

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 18th., 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Soren H Hanson son of Torgerson Minn. who on Feb. 15th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 1048, Serial No. 04494, for N. E. ¼ Section 28 Township 156 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 20th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigval, Andrew Klos, Mattis Anderson of Torgerson Minn. John Mckenzie of Highlanding Minn.

Aurthur P. Townle,
Register.

Mesmerism.

Frederick Anthony Mesmer, the founder of mesmerism, was a German physician of Mersberg. His thesis setting forth the science of mesmerism was published in 1766. Mesmer contended that the heavenly bodies diffused through the universe a subtle fluid, which acts on the nervous system of all animated beings and especially upon that of man. He had a great number of followers and received a splendid fortune. A committee of physicians and "philosophers" investigated his pretensions, which were finally exposed in 1784. Notwithstanding this, however, Mesmer continued to have many friends and followers, so great was the personal "magnetism" of the man.

Superstition That Is Ancient.

In many parts of Great Britain the superstition still survives that it is folly to cross a driving man, as he will sooner or later do an injury to the rescuer. The superstition comes down from our ancestors, per tenure of it exist among the Slouz and other Indians, who seem to have inherited it from aboriginal sources. The latter is most prevalent in Cornwall and various parts of Scotland.

A Mean Jolt.

Peckam—So you want to marry my daughter, do you? Young—Yes, sir. Peckem—Well! Are you aware that she strongly resembles her mother? Young—I am, sir. Peckem—Then take her, young man, and—er—be as happy as you can.—London Mail.

It is the rule of rules and the general law of all town that every person should observe those of the place where he is.—Montaigne.

Love and a Ring.

The story of one woman's pride and devotion comes out of a jeweler's shop. A young man bought an engagement ring. Apparently he was a very impecunious young man. At any rate, he selected an imperfect diamond. In less than a week his fiancee called at the shop alone.

"Is this a flawless diamond?" she asked. "I want an honest answer."

She got it.

"I thought so," said she. "Poor fellow! I don't blame him. He did the best he could. I don't care for myself, but I have friends who are good judges of diamonds, and it would nearly kill me for them to find out that he gave me a cheap ring. Will you take this stone out and replace it with a first class diamond? He will never know the difference. I will pay the bill."

The substitution was effected, and that young woman is now proudly showing an engagement ring that for splendor cannot be outdone on the whole west side.—New York Times.

A DRAMA IN REAL LIFE

How It Was Unfolded to the Man Who Tells It

By WILLIS BARKER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the civil war closed the south had for four years been suffering from a depletion of everything needful to human beings. It occurred to me that I might turn an honest penny by loading a wagon with household articles, including provisions, drive it through the country and sell to the inhabitants.

I started from Nashville, Tenn., with a two horse team, proposing to drive down to Shelbyville, then ascending the Cumberland plateau and crossing toward east Tennessee. Not far from Shelbyville I overtook a man on horseback whose mount had gone lame. He asked me where I was going, and when I told him he said he believed he would leave his horse and proceed on my wagon. To accommodate him and for company I agreed to take him, and at the next farm we came to we stopped to leave his horse.

While he was dickering for the animal's keep we heard the treed of a hunting horse up the road, and a girl on its back came hurrying along. The man who was to join me on leaving her looked annoyed and went toward her, evidently with the intention of meeting her where they would not be overheard in what they said. They talked for some time, the man apparently trying to persuade her to do or refrain from doing something. He was evidently not making much headway with her, and finally they came to a word me.

"This is Nancy Parks," he said. "She would like to join us, go up on the plateau and take a train at Bridgeport for Knoxville."

"I would be very happy to have her," I replied.

The girl dismounted, and the man led her horse away to the farm, where his own had been put, and left him there. Miss Parks was an excellent specimen of the poor white girl of the south. She wore a sunbonnet, a cellico dress and coarse cowhide shoes. Nevertheless there was something of wild beauty about her. Her cheeks were a brown and red, her hair and eyes jet black, the hair being cut square just above her shoulders. She climbed up into the rear of the wagon, mounting by means of the wheel, and settled herself comfortably among some bags of coffee. The man got up beside me.

By the time we had reached the foot of the Cumberland plateau he had told me that his name was Barker and that he was a northerner looking for a place in the south on which to settle. This was false, as I afterward learned. He was in quest of something very different from this. As for the girl, he intended to tell me the truth about her, saying that he had spent a day or two on her father's farm and had taken a sudden fancy to her, and when he parted with her she had made a great ado at the separation, with the result that she had refused him. He could be didn't know what to do with her, but thought when a favorable opportunity occurred he would "shake" her. The story about her taking a train at Bridgeport was a blind.

I didn't care what either of them did so long as I was not mixed up in their affairs.

Barker whenever we stopped at a farm or in the road to talk with any one asked a good many questions about the country, the soil and the people, hearing, so far as I could judge, upon his own settlement coming there. He asked different persons with whom we chatted about a man named Elijah Hanks. No one seemed to be inclined to give any definite information about Mr. Hanks, some saying they had a very slight acquaintance with him, others that they didn't wish to know him at all. Barker seemed to be trying to get a description of Hanks by which he would recognize him. I noticed that when Barker inquired of one person about Hanks the man gave him a quick, suspicious glance.

Meanwhile Nancy Parks sat in the back of the wagon munching some apples she found there and of which I invited her to partake. She seemed to be satisfied in simply being with Barker, and I could not see that she took any interest in what was going on. Soon after we got up on to the plateau we met a man whom Barker stopped to ask questions about the country and the people and if he knew of a good farm for sale. The man replied in a deep sonorous voice. I happened to turn as he did so toward the back of the wagon and noticed a marked change in Nancy. The voice of the farm Barker was questioning seemed to thrill her. She listened intently to every word he spoke. This time Barker confined himself to inquiries about general matters, not seeking information as to special persons. Elijah Hanks was not mentioned.

We drove on, and I, turning for another glance at Nancy Parks, saw her eyes fixed intently upon the man we were leaving behind, while his face was turned toward us with an expression of wonder. Then she rested her fine direction opposite to the one we were going, indicating that he was to go back. The man stood irresolute for a while, then slowly followed us, much to the girl's apparent dissatisfaction.

Coming to a little place called Tracy, Barker said he thought he would leave me there. The reason that he had heard of a farm for sale in the locality and he would look it up. Since it was evening, I consented to go no further that day, and, driving my team into a wood, I unharnessed my horses, fed them, made some coffee and prepared to spend the night there. Barker, who by this time seemed to repose in me a confidence that I didn't care to have, told me that the girl was going to sleep in a house in Tracy, and when I awoke in the morning he would be missing.

I made no reply to this. I was not especially prejudiced in his favor, and there was something about the girl that drew me to her. I confess I had come to believe that some game was being played between the two, and I had sufficient curiosity to be interested in it. There are so many possible complications in any affair in which a woman is concerned that I had no faith in any theory I formed with regard to the couple. It appeared, however, that they were deceiving each other.

About 9 o'clock Barker and I turned in. The night being pleasant I didn't sleep in the wagon, nor did he. I slept a few hours when something awakened me. Barker was standing near with his hand to me. He had something in his hands, and, although I could not see what it was, I knew by a series of clicks that it was a revolver which he was examining, each time it and lowering the hammer to revolve the chambers. Then he put it in his hip pocket, and, taking another pistol from his other hip, he examined that in the same way. He next looked at his watch, trying to make out the time of night, then, stepping stealthily, moved away from the bivouac.

My curiosity in the little play that was going on so near me impelled me to get up and follow the man. He took a road leading southward down toward a little town at the foot of the plateau called Jasper. I dared not go within near him lest my steps be heard. I therefore kept about a hundred yards in his rear. I was in danger of losing him, but I would rather do so than have him know that I followed him. I should not lose him, but soon again caught sight of him or what I supposed was he. What was my surprise, keeping my eye on the figure before me, upon its passing over a rise in the ground and showing its silhouette against the sky to see the garments of a woman instead of a man.

Had Barker taken on a disguise? Had I lost him and found my mate in another? An explanation soon developed. Against the sky I saw two figures. They walked side by side, but one was in rear of the other. I could see the legs of one; the other from the waist down was hid shaped like a woman's dress.

As I looked the man turned to the right and entered a wood. Then I saw the woman do the same. I entered the wood at the point as near as I could determine at first that had entered and soon found myself in a ravine. It was dark on pitch in there, and I could not choose my steps sufficiently. I would catch a faint sound as one of the persons I followed disturbed a stone or broke a stick under foot. Guided by such indications I pushed on till suddenly I was halted by a sound of another kind.

It was the crack of a pistol or rifle. All was still for a few minutes. Then I heard some one running toward me up the declivity, but I could not see who it was. I stood listening till I heard a groan coming from below. Then I went down as rapidly as I could in the dark and after going some distance stopped and listened. Another groan nearer guided me, and, moving toward it, I soon came to an opening in the trees admitting enough starlight to show me a body lying on the ground. I bent over it at the same time asking:

"Who are you?"

"I'm Barker. Is that you?"

"Yes, it's I. What's the trouble?"

"I've been shot."

"Badly hurt?"

"I think I'm done for. I must give you some information at once. I'm a government detective, United States government detective employed to hunt up these illicit moonshiny whisky stills and bring those who run them to justice. I've come here after a man who is running a still. Some one who has got on to what I was after has followed and shot me."

"Whom do you suspect?"

"I'm not a long way. It may be that Nancy Parks, suspecting that I was intending to 'shake' her, watched and followed me, not knowing anything of my mission and thinking my object was simply to get rid of her."

A very different theory occurred to me. Judging from what I had seen, I believed that Nancy Parks knew what happened on one who lored the man he was after. I reckoned that man to Elijah Hanks. Likely the government man had led Nancy to size him up for what he really was and to feel interested in the proposed to arrest her lover. She had pretended to be infatuated with Archord and followed him to keep him in view till she could warn her lover. Having failed to make Hanks understand her when she was with him, she had followed and stuck to the man who was trying to get him, followed him and shot him just before he was about to raid the still.

This turned out to be the true version of the story. But I kept my knowledge of it a secret, and Nancy Parks was never accused of the shooting. The government man recovered, but was never convicted that Nancy was not infatuated with him.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Tompp, Pres. Samuel Gilcau Vic. Pres.
Larry O'Niel, Asthem Fuiguire, T. L. Cluco.
J. A. Duffy. Cashier. T. L. Cruzon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweatere for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footware Buy The BELL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is oot necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Susbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

Had a Return Ticket Perhaps.

"Been abroad, have you, Ruggles?"

"Yes, six months."

"Have a good time?"

"You bet I did, Ramoge—best I ever had."

"Humph! How did you get back?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Heat Phenomenon.

A workman in the observatory at Toulouse has invited attention to a singular phenomenon. A her of iron is taken by one end and the other end is plunged into o fire, heating it highly, but not so much that the hand cannot retain its hold. The heated end is then plunged into a null of cold water. Immediately the other end becomes so hot that it is impossible to hold it. This phenomenon, familiar to workmen, is ascribed by them to some repellent action they suppose the sudden cold exerts upon the heat contained in the iron, which is thus driven to the opposite extremity.

Making His Mark.

"One funny thing I have learned about [illegible]," said a drug store customer, "is the habit many people have of making their name in the city directory. They do that because the directory is the only place where their name ever gets into print, and it has such a fascination for them that they can't resist calling attention to it. A funny little old man who likes to talk tells me that he has made special trips to different parts of the city just to mark his name in the directories of the neighborhood. He puts a little cross to red ink before it. I asked him what good it did. He said none, possibly, although he is a teacher of languages and may get a few calls on account of that queer advertisement.

"But his is an exceptional case. No many persons spend time and money hunting up city directories, but every time they happen to see a new one they can't help looking up their own and pointing some kind of a mark around it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the Improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every locality introduced with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes.

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

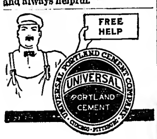
Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machine.

Electric Cleaner Co.
85 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Cement Talk No. 9

If you want to build something of concrete and need help and instructions, write to us. Our Information Bureau is one of our departments for the purpose of assisting our friends in using cement in concrete work so as to produce the best results. We will be glad to give you advice or assistance if you will write for it. There is no charge whatever—the service is absolutely free. We make this offer purely to encourage the use of concrete.

UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO.
SECURITY BANK BLDG., MINNEAPOLIS
ANNUAL OUTPUT 10,000,000 BARRELS

WE SELL
GUNS, TRAPS, ETC.
CHEAP
Write for Free Catalog 105
Ship us your Hides, Furs, Pelts, Wool, Etc.
N. W. HIDE & FUR CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

10% INTEREST paid on small monthly investments, secured by first mortgages. For particulars address Gen Mgr. Colo. Con. Inv. Co., Dept. 18, 518 Quincy Bldg., Denver, Colo.

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and starches clothes nicest.

MISS SUSAN GLASPELL'S DOG

Voila the Original of the Puppies in Her Story, "The Visioning."

Miss Susan Glaspell, the author, has a dog, which fact is of more importance than might at first appear. For in her new novel, "The Visionary," are introduced two frolicsome puppies named Pourquoi and N'est-ce-pas. And there are no two more real characters in the whole book than Why and Ain't It, to use their names in English form.

It was Miss Glaspell's own dog, a Bohemian beast, that inspired the creation of "The Visioning's" twin puppy clowns. The real dog also has a French name, Voila. When its owner bought it, over in Paris, she wanted at first to name it Raspail, both in memory of the boulevard on which she lived and as a sympathetic cognomen for a sensitive souled Parisian dog. But her family objected. They could not see their way clear to shouting, "Come Raspail! Raspail! Raspail!" So Miss Glaspell compromised on Voila.

Voila has vagaries. It is a wanderer. It is a collie, and a collie, it evidently thinks, ought to be afield. Whenever it feels that way, away Voila goes. Fortunately it wears a collar with Miss Glaspell's name and address. She has come to thing nothing of such a phone message as this:

"Hello! Is dis Miss Glaspell! Vell, dis is der bartender bie Hans Bummelransen's saloon. No, no, veit! I didn't got der wrong phone number. I choost veat to say I got here your tog. Vill you come for him?"

Then the author of "The Visioning" has to drop chapter plans and seek out Herr Bummolrensen's place with sorrow—and a dollar. But were it not so there might never have been a N'est-ce-pas and a Pourquoi.

PIMPLES ON FACE 3 YEARS

"I was troubled with acne for three long years. My face was the only part affected, but it caused great disfigurement, also suffering and loss of sleep. At first there appeared red, hard pimples which later contained white matter. I suffered a great deal caused by the itching. I was in a state of perplexity when walking the streets or anywhere before the public.

"I used pills and other remedies but they failed completely. I thought of giving up when nothing would help, but something told me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a Cuticura Booklet which I read carefully. Then I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and by following the directions I was relieved in a few days. I used Cuticura Soap for washing my face, and applied the Cuticura Ointment morning and evening. This treatment brought marvelous results so I continued with it for a few weeks and was cured completely. I can truthfully say that the Cuticura Remedies are not only all, but more than they claim to be." (Signed) G. Baumel, 1015 W. 20th Place, Chicago, Ill., May 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 28 K, Boston.

When the World Was Made.

When Lottie returned from her first visit to Sunday school she was asked what she had learned.

"God made the world in six days, and was arrested on the seventh day," was her version of the lesson imparted.—Lippincott's.

Delusionary.

Every man hugs the delusion that sooner or later he will invent something that will make him rich.

The average man doesn't think he is having a good time unless he makes a fool of himself.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Do not gripe.

It pays to be honest—at least it pays your employer.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

A woman thinks a man is sensible if he tells her that she is handsome.

A man doesn't have to know much to know how little he knows.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Week's History in Gopher State Told in Paragraphs.

Campbell.—Several cases of suspected incendiarism have come to light, but all efforts to locate the firebug have proved futile.

St. Paul. — The committee in charge of St. Paul's Tag day collected $13,388.36 to aid in the campaign against tuberculosis.

Omaha, Neb.—E. M. Wayne, of Delevan, Ill., was re-elected president of the Grain Dealers' National association. Among the directors elected is John R. Marfield, of Minneapolis.

Elk River.—Elk River is to have a box factory. A plant is being erected by W. H. Ebner, formerly of Dayton, who expects to have it in running order in a few weeks. It will employ sixteen men.

Cloquet.—Mayor C. I. McNair has declined renomination on account of the pressure of private business. The city election takes place Nov. 7 and nominations will be by petition instead of in caucus, as formerly.

Winona.—Farmers in the vicinity of Lewiston believe they have not been getting as much for their livestock as they should, and a meeting has been called for Saturday for the purpose of forming a stock shipping association.

Faribault.—Mayor Blodgett stopped the Jesse James pictures, which were to be shown at a Faribault theater. Club women of the city were first to protest. They called the attention of the mayor to the pictures and he did not hesitate to act.

Caledonia.—Fire in the heart of the business district of this city wrecked a business block and for a time threatened the entire town. The loss is estimated at $50,000. The origin of the blaze, which was discovered in a storehouse, is unknown.

Minneapolis. — The seventeenth annual conference of the Minnesota Daughters of the American Revolution, and quarterly meeting of the Sibley House association will be held in Minneapolis Thursday, Oct. 26. Minneapolitan on Grain Men's Board.

Winnebago.—Five skeletons have been dug up in the Van Blair sand pit near the city. Owing to the fact that Indian relics have been found in that vicinity from time to time, it is thought that the skeletons are those of Indians. One of the skeletons was very large.

Bemidji.—Dr. D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, was found guilty of arson in the third degree. Dr. Dumas was charged with having attempted, with Martin Behan, to burn the postoffice building at Puposky early in the morning of June 17. The case will be appealed.

Cloquet.—A new township known as Perch Lake, will be organized in Carlton county out of the unorganized territory of the Fond du Lac reservation, taking in all of the unorganized portion of the county except a small tract in Section 49-17. A petition is being circulated for the small portion to be added to the town of Knife Falls.

Winona.—The experiment has been tried in Winona of having one street, Wabasha, kept in repair by the use of the King drag. The result is that the street is in the best repair of any of the dirt roads in the city, being almost entirely free of chuck holes. The experiment has worked so well that the use of the King drag may be extended to other streets next year.

Minneapolis. — Otto N. Sverdrup, who was navigator of the steamer Fram on the Nansen polar expedition, and who is a member of the Royal Geographical Society of England, made declaration of his intention to become a citizen of the United States. Capt. Sverdrup said he intended sailing for Europe shortly and said he would bring back his wife and three daughters. He will make his home in Minneapolis.

Mankato. — Superintendent Perkins of the St. Paul road the other day took an automobile ride from this city to St. Clair, twelve miles east, the present terminus of the Alphabet road, and this has given rise to a crop of rumors as to what the St. Paul is to do with the new line, which it recently took over. This line runs from Albert Lea to St. Clair and has been in operation a couple of years. It is rumored that the St. Paul will extend the line from St. Clair to this city and thence to Hutchinson and to Fargo and other North Dakota points. It is said that the surveys have already been made.

SECOND MINNESOTA BANQUET.

Survivors to Observe Semi-Centennial of Departure.

St. Paul.—The fiftieth anniversary of the departure of the Second Minnesota volunteer regiment to the front, October 14, 1861, was celebrated by the survivors at a banquet and reunion Saturday evening at the Merchants hotel. General J. H. Bishop presided and brief addresses were made by other members of the organization. Only about one-quarter of the original members are alive.

MORPHINE OVERDOSE IS FATAL.

Minneapolis Man Found Dead in Hotel in Owatonna.

Owatonna.—Frank Moore, of Minneapolis, died at a local hotel from an overdose of morphine. Moore, who was about 25 years old, came to Owatonna a short time ago to work for a local nursery.

In company with George Brown of St. Paul, Moore attempted to procure cocaine and morphine at several local drug stores, but met with refusal.

WISH AT LAST CAME TRUE

Arbuthnot Witheredge Had Long Wanted to Be Alone With Genevieve Grandilot.

"Well," said Arbuthnot Witheredge, "I am in luck to find you alone, this evening."

"O," replied Genevieve Grandilot, "do you consider it lucky to be alone with me?"

"Why shouldn't I?"

"I—I don't know. I have never thought about it before."

"Haven't you ever wished that you and I might be all alone together?"

"Why should I wish that?"

"I don't know. I wish you had wished it."

"Have you ever wished it?"

"A great many times."

"Why?"

"Can you ask me why?"

"Perhaps I could—could guess."

"Would you care if I should tell you why?"

"I—I don't know. Do you think I ought to let you tell me why?"

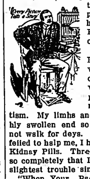
"I wish you would. I am going to tell you. It is because I—"

"Because you what?"

"I wonder if you will hate me after I have told you? Rather than have you decide that we can no longer be friends, I would carry the secret to my grave."

"O, please don't do anything like that. I am sure I shall not hate you. I could never hate you, no matter what happened."

"Do you mean that, Miss Grandilot—Genevieve?"



"Of course. Why shouldn't I?"

"I shall risk all, then, and tell you. I have wanted to be alone with you because—because I love you—because I have wanted to ask you to be mine!"

Then the beautiful girl's mother stole away from her place behind the curtain and tiptoed up the back stairs.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

There are two ways to tell if you have weak kidneys. The first is through pains in the back. The second by examining the kidney secretions. If you suspect your kidneys, begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once.

E. R. Wilson, Emmettsburg, Iowa, says: "I was completely laid up with kidney complaint and inflammatory rheumatism. My limbs and feet were terribly swollen and so inflamed I could not walk for days. After doctors had failed to help me, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Three boxes cured me so completely that I have not had the slightest trouble since."

"When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S." 50c a box at all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Angler's Bait.

A well-known angler at Peterborough having obtained a wasps' nest containing a large number of grubs, placed the nest in the kitchen oven to kill the grubs so that he could use them for bait.

The next morning he went to get the grubs, but on opening the oven door a swarm of wasps flew out. The oven was not hot enough to kill the grubs, but was sufficiently warm to hatch them.—London Daily Mail.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Where It Belonged.

"Where are you going?"

"To fetch some water, sorr."

"What, in those disreputable trousers?"

"No, sorr, in this 'ere pail."—London Opinion.

Whenever you have a pain think of Hamlins Wizard Oil. For Headache, Toothache, Earache, Stomach ache, and many other painful ailments there is nothing better.

The Plain Facts.

"Did you see the prisoner strike this man in the melee?"

"No, I seen him swet him on the nose."

It's awfully hard for a girl to forgive the right young man for not kissing her.

To Mend an Umbrella.

To mend an umbrella that tears loose from the rib at the point, when you are on the street and needle and thread are not available, close the umbrella and bringing the cloth in position, insert a small hairpin in the hole of the rib, and wind securely round cloth. This "first aid to the injured" is so efficient you will be tempted to leave it permanently.—National Magazine.

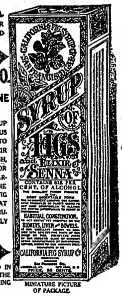
Perhaps the most of us would be different if our neighbors were what they should be.

Terrible Suffering

Eczema All Over Baby's Body.

"When my baby was four months old his face broke out with eczema and at sixteen months of age his face, hands and arms were in a dreadful state. The eczema spread all over his body. We had to put a mask or cloth over his face and tie up his hands. Finally we gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a few months he was entirely cured. Today he is a healthy boy." Mrs. Inez Lewis, Baring, Maine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures blood diseases and builds up the system.



Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

MILLIONS of FAMILIES are using SYRUP of FIGS and ELIXIR of SENNA

FOR COLDS AND HEADACHES, INDIGESTION AND SOUR STOMACH, GAS AND FERMENTATION, CONSTIPATION AND BILIOUSNESS, WITH MOST SATISFACTORY RESULTS.

NOTE THE NAME

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
IN THE CIRCLE
ON EVERY PACKAGE OF THE GENUINE

MINIATURE PICTURE OF PACKAGE

THE WONDERFUL POPULARITY OF THE GENUINE SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA HAS LED UNSCRUPULOUS MANUFACTURERS TO OFFER IMITATIONS, IN ORDER TO MAKE A LARGER PROFIT AT THE EXPENSE OF THEIR CUSTOMERS. IF A DEALER ASKS WHICH SIZE YOU WISH, OR WHAT MAKE YOU WISH, WHEN YOU ASK FOR SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA, HE IS PREPARING TO DECEIVE YOU. TELL HIM THAT YOU WISH THE GENUINE, MANUFACTURED BY THE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. ALL RELIABLE DRUGGISTS KNOW THAT THERE IS BUT ONE GENUINE AND THAT IT IS MANUFACTURED BY THE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. ONLY.

NOTE THE NAME

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO

PRINTED STRAIGHT ACROSS, NEAR THE BOTTOM, AND IN THE CIRCLE, NEAR THE TOP OF EVERY PACKAGE, OF THE GENUINE. ONE SIZE ONLY, FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS. REGULAR PRICE 50¢ PER BOTTLE.

SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA IS ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO THE NEEDS OF LADIES AND CHILDREN, AS IT IS MILD AND PLEASANT, GENTLE AND EFFECTIVE, AND ABSOLUTELY FREE FROM OBJECTIONABLE INGREDIENTS. IT IS EQUALLY BENEFICIAL FOR WOMEN AND FOR MEN, YOUNG AND OLD. FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS. ALWAYS BUY THE GENUINE.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

Scientifically constructed to give most light for the oil they burn.

Easy to light, clean and rewick. In numerous finishes and styles, each the best of its kind.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo Lamps and Lanterns, or write for illustrated booklets direct to any agency of the

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

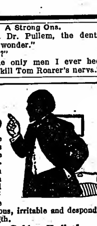
It pays to use a good, safe, dependable soap like Lenox.

It costs a little more than cheap soaps.

It is worth a great deal more.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"



A Strong One.

"I think Dr. Pullem, the dentist, must be a wonder."

"Why so?"

"He's the only man I ever heard who could kill Tom Roarer's nerve."

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

TRAPPING TIME IS SOON HERE
SO GET POSTED. WE FURNISH FREE CORRECT QUOTATIONS ON RAW FURS

THE HOUSE THAT RARELY LOSES A SHIPPER

LOTZ BROS. 113-115 ELM ST. ST. LOUIS

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS ELECTROTYPES
In great variety for sale at the lowest prices by WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION, 521 W. Adams St., Chicago

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. ADDRESS DEPARTMENT E. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

FOR ALL EYE PAINS Pettit's Eye Salve

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG COMPANY, Quincy, Ill.

COLT DISTEMPER

Can be handled very easily. The sick are cured, and all others in same stable, no matter how "exposed," kept from having the disease, by using SPOHN'S LIQUID DISTEMPER CURE. Give on the tongue, or in feed. Acts on the blood and expels germs of all forms of distemper. Best remedy ever known for mares in foal. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. 50c and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 dozen of druggists and harness dealers, or sent express paid by the manufacturers. Cut shows how to poultice throats. Our free booklet gives everything. Local agents wanted. Largest selling horse remedy in existence—twelve years.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

Men and Women wear W.L.Douglas shoes because they are the best shoes produced in this country for the price. Insist upon having them. Take no other make.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The assurance that goes with an established reputation is your assurance in buying W. L. Douglas shoes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L.Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom.

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes in your town, write for catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W. L. DOUGLAS, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $2, $2.50 or $3.00 SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes
Fast Color Eyelets Used Exclusively

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1911. NO. 31.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

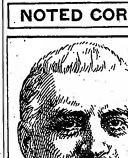
Chicago Has a Port of Missing Men

CHICAGO.—From the Graham & Morton dock, at the foot of Wabash avenue, three men walked into the Chicago river the other morning. Four policemen wearily fished them out and left them in dry on the wharf.

These three men are daily associates of the following distinguished persons:

A brother of a former president's law partner. A son of a millionaire brewer. A brother of a stock exchange operator. A brother of a Chicago police officer.

Some day one of these four men may decide to take a promenade in the water and perhaps the police will get them out, and perhaps they won't. For the four distinguished persons, as well as the three undistinguished ones, only "wharf rats" and theirs deaths would probably trouble the city as little as their near-dentbs troubled the officers who rescued the three.



There is a story called "The Port of Missing Men." O. Burke, dock superintendent for Graham & Morton, thinks he knows where the port is. Hundreds of men have dropped suddenly out of sight. Many of these, according to Mr. Burke, are laboring now along the docks of the Chicago river, unloading boats for 25 cents an hour, and, like the three who nearly drowned, occasionally dropping, or nearly dropping, out of all existence.

The casual attitude in the thing which draws the men to the docks. At 3 o'clock every morning a Graham & Morton steamer comes in loaded with fruit.

The two hundred men ora always there. They begin drifting down to the dock at nightfall, and by midnight they are spread along its length, sleeping the untroubled sleep of the irresponsible. When the boat comes in they unwke ond, forming in long lines, transport the cargo, in the manner of a bucket brigade, to the warehouse.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

NOTED CORRESPONDENT DIES

William E. Curtis, who recently dropped dead from apoplexy in a Philadelphia hotel, was one of the best known and most popular journalists of the present day, and his death came as a shock to his host of friends.

William Elroy Curtis was born at Akron, O., November 5, 1850, and was graduated from Western Reserve college in 1871. On December 24, 1874, he married Cora Kepler at Erie, Pa., at this time and until 1887 being on the staff of the Chicago Inter Ocean. In 1887 he went to Washington as correspondent of the Chicago Record, and remained with that paper in such a connection until 1901, when the union of the Record and the Herald created a new newspaper. Mr. Curtis was retained by the combined papers, however, and was serving as correspondent for the Record-Herald at the time of his death.

During the years 1889 and 1890 Mr. Curtis served as special commissioner from the United States to the South American republics and acted as executive officer at the international American conference of that year. He was director of the bureau of American republics from 1890 until 1893, and was historical secretary and chief of the Latin-American department of the Columbian Exposition from 1891 to 1893.

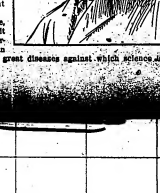
REJECTS TITLED SUITORS

Though her fortune end great beauty call forth persistency on the part of her many titled suitors, Mrs. William B. Leeds has turned them all away and will come back to America to live. She is the youthful widow of the "Tin Plate King," former president of the Rock Island system, a woman whom Tellu, the French artist, enthusiastically testified had 98 of the 100 points that denote physical perfection. She has had a successful social season in London and several offers of marriage, among them being one from Prince Murat, but she wishes to return unfettered to America that she may attend to the education of her son.

Mrs. Leeds wants her eight-year-old son, William Bateman Leeds, to be brought up under those conditions that best tend to promote good American citizenship. More particularly she wants him taught how to conserve and manage the $50,000,000 estate left him by his father, who died at the Ritz hotel in Paris, June 23, 1908.

Among those who danced attendance on the charming widow were Prince Murat, the Duke de Fleuriguy-Lavigo, Lord Falconer, heir to the Earl of Kintore; Lord Alexander Thynne, uncle of the Marquis of Bath, and Sir Abe Bailey, the South African millionaire.

SEES RISE IN LIVING COST



George E. Roberts, director of the mint, who has recently returned to Washington from a trip through the west, predicts that the cost of living will advance.

He says that while agricultural development will be noted, he does not expect it to keep pace with the increase in population. Farm rentals are advancing, he finds, because many farmers are being forced back to tilling of the soil. The consumers must realize, he says, that the day of cheap free land has passed, and with an advance in the cost of everything entering the production of foodstuffs there must be an increas in prices to the consumers.

Mr. Roberts points to the fact that the census shows the population of the country increased 21 per cent. between 1900 and 1910, while the farm land area increased only 4.3 per cent., and says it means higher living cost.

"The fact is," said Mr. Roberts, "that agricultural progress are being offset by the increasing cost of food and raw materials, and the principal factor in this is the complete occupation of the country.

GOES TO WAR UPON OPIUM

F. A. Carl of New York was appointed by President Taft to represent the United States in the conference called at The Hague to consider ways and means for the restriction of the traffic in opium. The greatest evil in China today is the opium curse. The government is laboring hard to combat it, and to a certain extent has succeeded. But the evil in China is still pronounced and for several years past it has been spreading over other countries, among the the United States.

To restrict this evil an international conference was called at the capital of Holland in which the representatives of the various world powers participated. The representative of the American government was present with the others.

While opium is a useful medicine, used under a doctor's prescription, it is a dangerous agent when otherwise employed. It has more human wrecks to its credit that any of the great diseases against which science is now directing its energies.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Famous Statue Again on Barney Lawn

WASHINGTON.—"Natalie," the famous Barney statue, has reappeared. Emerging from the seclusion into which it made an enforced retirement last fall the lovely bit of marble, which may or may not be a representation of the loveliness of Miss Natalie Clifford Barney by her sister, Miss Laura, again stands on the lawn of Studio House, the poetic residence of Mrs. Alice Clifford Barney-Hamaker.

No vandel eye, however, will be permitted to gaze upon the undraped loveliness of the statue which set all Washington talking last fall. The caretaker of the Barney-Hemmick home has not forgotten the stir the statue caused and the order of the chief of police, Major Richard Sylvester, which caused it to be boxed and taken indoors. The improvised fence of barrel staves which the caretaker erected lest yeer between the lawn and the street, where thousands gathered to gaze on the statue, has been replaced by a high confdete wall, penetrated only by a gateway. Hence only those who bove field glesses and residences which command a view of the Barney-Hemmick backyard will be able to see tha statue. Talented and vivacious Mrs. Barney-Hemmick (the woo only last spring she was married in Paris to Christian Hemmick, thirtyfive years her junior) has returned from Europe with her husband.

Mrs. Borney, the mother, wes much put out by the stir made by the statue. Tha Barney family pooh pooh the idee that the statue was inspired by or represents Miss Natalie Borney. They say a professional model wos used by Miss Laura Barney, as she thos was, who sometimes a studio in Paris. Some acquaintances insist.

With the idea of preprring a fitting surrounding for the statue an elaborate garden will be lold out nbout the Borney home. Unique pions, reflecting the originality and artistic taste of tha mistress of the mension, have been drawn. The statue will oc-

Highway Building Soon to Be General

MORE money is being expended in the good roads movement throughout the United States this year than ever before been utilized for this purpose. Some results of the work being done by the Touring Club of America in conjunction with the American Association for Highway Improvement toward educating the public to the value of improved highways throughout the country are illustrated in a chart just prepared by the United States office of public roads, which shows that nearly fifteen thousand miles of transcontinental interstate and trunk lina roads are contemplated in various sections of the country.

Although the chart was prepared by the office of public roads, it does not by any means represent all the work that has been projected or is sided financiolly by the government.

That practically every state in the Union is benefited to some extent by the proposed new highways, and the widespread interest in the good roads movement indicates that tha time is not far distant when the United States will be interlaced by a complete system of good roads.

Estimates prepared by the office of public roads show that by improving 20 per cent. of the roods of the notion almost the highest point of efficiency could be reached. Twenty per cent. of the roads in each state could be improved by an expenditure of an average sum of three million dollers a state and the annual saving thereby in the wear and tear on horses, wagons and automobiles in the transportation of crops and increased land values be estimated at over one million dollars.

Proof That Mine Blew Up the Maine

THE Maine was destroyed by an external explosion. There no longer remains any doubt as to the manner in which the United States battleship was sunk in Havana barbor on February 15, 1898. The double bottom of the ship has been removed with part of the keel standing perpendicular, some 28 feet higher than its normal position. This confirms the report and testimony which Ensign Powell was given before the investigating board after tha disaster and which was based upon the reports made to him by Simon Ingram, the explosion

Military experts who inspected the vessel recently found that the bottom plates are bent plates in a perpendicular position, supported by stanchions The lowest, or platform, deck is an upbeyed mass of steel, obove the submerged bow. The position of this part of the bottom, experts declare, indicates that when is now the highest point originally end structurally occupied a position at obout frome 18. This suggests that there was an explosion of e mine under that part of the ship, say about midway between the stem and the middnhy section.

The explosion, experts believe, broke the ship into two parts, throwing one section, including tha conning tower, toward the stern, the conning tower failing on the superstructure on the starboard side. From this position, in cutting away the wreckage. it has been affixed to metlic to the main deck slightly forward of the after turret, which is on the port side. Thus the tower is on the opposite side in that on which tha explosion took place.

It is o confirmed belief that such a tearing of the ship's bottom could not have been produced by an interior explosion. It is further said that by regulotion military mine could have wrought such terrific havoc.

Destructive New Type of Torpedoes

THE range of torpedoes has been increased from 4,500 yards to 12,000 yards by the completion of two new types by the bureau of ordnance. As many piercing torpedoes of this new type, it is claimed, can be fired from battleships, torpedo boats and submarine tubes at a range of nearly seven miles with the same accuracy that projectiles are buried from guns.

Some time ago it was learned by the naval authorities that foreign torpedo companies had developed torpedoes with a range of 8,000 yards, and that some of tha powers had placed orders for this class of projectiles. It became apparent that something must be done to meet this increase in the range of other navies. A board of officers in the ordnance bureau was assigned to the task

At the bureau of ordnance it was stated that unless some new defense against torpedoes is developed the most powerful super-dreadnought would be helpless against the attack of submarines and torpedo boats. Repeatily does this new type of torpedo increase the destructiveness of the submarines already so formidable.

Hy the plon now being prepared submarines are to be equipped with 12 of these new projectiles. It is not thought it will be necessary for submorines to fire at a longer range than 2,000 yards. From that distance it will be impossible for officers on a botteshlp to locate a submorine, and there has not yet been devised my way to attack these boats. Officers of the ordnance bureau declare that at a distance of 2,000 yards a submarine could drive its 12 monster torpedoes under the armor belt of a battleship and sink her without giving the battleship the least opportunity to reply to the attack.

Guest 'Jollies' Waiter to Save Tips

SALINA, KAN.—In the breach of promise suit of Miss Alice Bowes against N. W. Sly, some inside facts about how a traveling man may invariably get the best there is on the bill of fare at a hotel were made public.

Miss Bowes was a waitress in a Topeka hotel. Sly, formerly a Union Pacific conductor, and now a claim agent for that road, frequently stopped at the hotel where the plaintiff was employed. The "jollied" her freely and she thought he was trying to marry her.

The girl says that Sly made love to her and induced her to go with him on several trips, and wrote her many effusive letters. She could not produce any of these letters, though the statement was met by a denial from Sly that he ever wrote to her, she says the letters were so warm she destroyed them as fast as they arrived. Sly stood pat on a clean denial of every allegation and insisted the whole trouble came from Miss Bowes' inability to differentiate between hunger and love-sickness.

During his many years' work as a railroad man Sly took liberties with his personal locomotive and made many a flying switch on a lunch counter sandwich and cup of coffee. Trying to keep up steam on tough steak and cold spplu pie finally had its effect and by the time he quit eating his meals in restaurants from the top of a stool his stomach was laid up for repairs and to get something he could eat or hold necessitated some kindly attention from the waitresses. He says he was kind to all of them, for he that method he obtained better service.

Trimmed by Strangers in Poker Game

YONKERS, N. Y.—When William Morton, who is 76 years old, came out of his little trance and felt his confidence in how he realized it was no idle dream that he had been put back $500 by his love for poker and his confidence in human nature. His belief that it was all going out and nothing coming in was strengthened when he read the following note:

"Never lry to trim a wiae one. If not other does not benefit s man of your years, but it has been tried by thousnnds before you, and the verdict of time is that it can't be done.

So that this information might not get lost in the shuffle, it was placed under s brick, which Mr. Morton found in a small valley when he opened it to look for $3,500 he thought he had won in a poker game.

According to Mr. Morton hb met a few days ago a man from whom he won $3,000 during poker. After the man had given an "I. O. U." for the money he told Mr. Morton of another man from whom he could win a lot of money. Mr. Morton was told the other man played a strictly cash game and that he had better provide himself with $500. Mr. Morton did so and the trio went to a nice, clean, vacant lot outside the town and began to play. It was a teblo stakes game, and each of the men put up $500 in real money before starting Mr. Morton lost $100 and prayed fervently that his opponent would raise him. He did "Raise you $400," hs said, and Mr. Morton promptly "called" him. The other fellow said he had a flush, and Mr. Morton drew down the pot, showing his hand. Then his best friend produced a voiles, into which he placed oil the money lu the pot. Next he offered to redeem his "I O. U." and put into the voiles what he said was $3,000 in cash.

Steals to Win Honors in Fraternity

NEW YORK.—Richard Pachara, self-confessed embezzler, who had donated most of the $6,000 he stole to the lodge of which he was the chief officer, and contributed the remainder to various charitable enterprises, met clemency on every hand when he was arraigned before Judge Swann. The court suspended sentences and the young man's employers—from whom he had stolen—offered him his old place as confidential bookkeeper and cashier. It was a remarkable case of its kind.

During the eight years previous to his arrest, Pachora had been employed by Darsel Bros. When the thefts was discovered the bookkeeper pleaded guilty. In making his plea he amazed the court by proclaiming that he had spent every dollar of the stolen money in donations to the order to which he belonged and its charities. Not a dollar of the plunder had he spent on himself or his little family.

"My trouble," said the young man, "is due entirely to a mad ambition for fraternal honors. It was the one great joy of my life to attain high rank in the lodge, so I stole money to make donations and give parties and picnics to the old people and children who lived at the lodge's home."

Judge Swann could scarcely credit the man's story, but his probationary officers found that everything Pachara said was true. When he was arraigned the trustees of Pachara's lodge produced their books to show that their officer had contributed $5,000 during the period he was stealing from his employers.

Judge Swann replied that he was moved to clemency not by mere sentiment. From every possible source he had received the highest praise of the prisoner.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM, • • MINN.

DIVERSITY IN FARMING.

The farmer is in a hazardous business at the best. His success depends to a very large extent on the weather. Droughts or excessive rains are disastrous to him. Early frosts threaten him, says the Charleston News and Courier. As in other hazardous businesses, he must make large profits in the good years to make up for the loses of the bad years. His profits must be recorded in ten-year periods. He cannot judge from the record of one year what his profits are. Moreover, it is evident that as a succession of seasons must assist each other in maintaining a general average of success, so the best insurance he can have in any one season is the planting of diverse crops, the harvesting of which will take place at different seasons of the year. In can thus escape a complete calamity in the event of a storm or other natural disturbance. The man, for instance, who has made money on truck is the spring can face the loss of his cotton crop with equanimity. In the average for the year he finds things balanceing up, and although he has lost the profits of the one crop in the destruction of the other, he has been insured against absolute loss on the entire year's operations. It is the capacity of the soil is this section for widely diverse crops that makes it so valuable. This is not a one-crop section. The lands are not merely good cotton lands. They are good truck lands, good orchard lands, good pasture lands. They can be made to yield wealth in e variety of ways.

A woman passed the other day on her way to Reno—regarded by those journeying that way as the fount of eternal happiness—and explained that the American husband was a bore and the educated Englishman was not. There is a certain amount of truth in what she says. When relieved of the necessity of working for the family living the Britisher has time to cultiveto those graces of life which appeal so strongly to the feminine heart, says the New York Herald. But he who must work for every dollar that his wife spends has no more time to devote to social matters than if he were trying to fill n slave with water. But is it not cruel to call such a man a bore and to intimate that because he is necessarily much away from home he has transferred his affections to some other quarter? If the well conserved Englishman could unite with his distinguished bearing, capacity for speeding and alacrity of manner the money-making gifts of the American we should have a husband of the sort calculated to rob Reno of most of its business.

The latest inscription projected by Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools of Chicago, is the introduction of instruction in "flipping," which is another name for the art and mystery of descending stairless from moving vehicles. The idea is that everybody who has acquired skill is this direction—respective of sex—will know too much to jump off a street car heading in any other direction than that in which the car is moveing. Of course, before the generation that has been taught "flipping" supplants that which is now in control, a great many accidents may occur to reckless patrons. In the meantime, however, it is inexplicable that intelligent women continue to slight from street cars in such a way as to court danger.

A Pennsylvania husband put his purse in the store for safekeeping. His wife, ignorant of the fact, started a fire, and now they are hoping the treasury department will redeem the charred remains. There are regularly chartered institutions in the business of coring for other people's money and they pay a premium for the privilege of doing so. Money hidden about the house is never safe and the people who thus hoard their funds had better put their trust and their cash in some good bank.

One of the wealthy ladies of Newport gave a dinner and dance for her domestic servants a few evenings ago, but it is reported to have been a tame affair. None of the participants danced on the table or eloped with one in a lower sphere of life.

A Philadelphia man was obliged to leave his mother-in-law as security for his board bill in Atlantic City. Nobody is guessing as to the basis made to get that board bill paid.

The doctors don't want the mortar and pestle on their automobile tags. That is the symbol of a druggist, they declare, and very naturally they don't care to be taken for soda water dispensers and souvenir postal card dealers.

A New Jersey woman wants a divorce because she finds bungalow life too monotonous. It is hard to tell whether some of the miseries of married life are tragedies or jokes.

NOT MUCH TO HOLD ON TO NOW

"The Chinese government has a weak hold on the army."—Cable Dispatch.

EUGENE ELY DIES

AVIATOR'S ATTEMPT TO MAKE SENSATIONAL DIP. RESULTS IN HIS DEATH.

TEN THOUSAND SEE MISHAP

Birdman, Who Was First to Alight on Deck of Warship in Air Machine, Falls 150 Feet at Macon (Ga.) Fair Grounds.

Macon, Ga.—Eugene Ely, noted aviator and the first man to alight on the deck of a man-of-war in a heavier than air machine, was killed at the fair grounds here, when his biplane failed to rise from a sensational dip and fell 150 feet to the ground.

Misjudging the distance Ely started his downward glide too soon while running at a mile a minute and was unable to make the rise. When the machine crashed to earth the aviator was hurled clear of it by nearly a hundred feet. He was unconscious when reached by his mechanician, Frank Collin, and died ten minutes later before he could be removed to a hospital.

Ten thousand horrified spectators witnessed the fatal plunge.

Before running his machine out Ely asked his assistant mechanician, Edgar Turner, for a note book. The book was handed him and in it he wrote the address of Mrs. Ely in New York. Handing the book back, he said:

"If anything happens to me wire my wife. There's her address."

POSSE SEEKS EX-CONVICT

Ellsworth Authorities Believe Charles Marzyck Killed 14 Persons in Three States.

Ellsworth, Kan.—The theory that one man slew 14 persons in three states within six weeks received support in a statement made by Mrs. Minnie Vopat, divorced wife of Charles Marzyck.

Morzyck, who is an ex-convict, is sought by the county authorities in connection with the murder of five members of the William Showmen family here.

Mrs. Vopat said Marzyck has been in Colorado Springs, where the Wayne and Burnhom families, six persons, six weeks ago were killed, and is acquainted in Monmouth, Ill., where Wm. Ham E. Dawson and his wife and daughter were slain recently.

As a possible connection between the Ellsworth and other tragedies, Mrs. Vopat said her former husband was convicted of forgery in Colorado Springs a few months ago. She said it was not improbable that he had been in Monmouth lately.

TELLS OF $100,000 "FUND"

Lieut. Governor Morris on Stand in Stephenson Inquiry Names Robert J. Shields as Receiver.

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I have been told by Mr. Cook, partner of Edward Hines, that approximately $100,000 was paid by Hines and Senator Stephenson to certain men, one of whom was Robert J. Shields, to be used in the election of Senator Stephenson," said Lieutenant Governor Morris at the Stephenson query.

He said Mr. Shields went to Washington and saw Senator Stephenson and came back with a check.

H. L. Swift Dies on Trip.

Chicago—Herbert L. Swift, president of the Sterling Lumber and Supply company, and brother of Louis F. Swift, the packer, died suddenly on a Chicago & Northwestern railroad train near Milwaukee from heart disease.

Rams German Battleship.

Kiel, Germany.—The German battleship Hessen was rammed by the Norwegian steamer Argo. The damage to the battleship was very slight. The steamer's bow was crushed in, but she returned to Kiel unaided.

TAFT EXTENDS TRIP

ADDS TWO VIRGINIAS AND OTHER STATES TO HIS TOUR.

President Wishes to Clear State Before Opening of Campaign—Returns to Capital Nov. 15.

Las Vegas, Nev.—President Taft's notable "swing around the circle," now ending its fifth week, will not end in Washington Nov. 1, as first contemplated, but will be extended until Nov. 15 or 18. The president will travel 3,000 or 4,000 miles more than at first intended, bringing the total mileage of his tour up to between 16,000 and 17,000 miles and breaking all known records of presidential travel.

The regular itinerary of the original trip will be followed to Pittsburgh, where President Taft will pass the entire day of Tuesday, Oct. 31. Then, instead of keeping on to Washington, Mr. Taft will go direct to Morgantown, W. Va., to pass Wednesday, Nov. 1. From Morgantown he will go to Hot Springs, Va., to rest for five days, starting west again in time to vote at Cincinnati.

Following the Cincinnati trip, Mr. Taft probably will go to Hodgenville, Ky., to participate in the dedication of Lincoln farm memorial. There are two or three tentative dates in Tennessee following this and then, it is expected, Mr. Taft will return to Washington in time to prepare his message to congress, which meets the first Monday in December.

KATE SHELLEY NEAR DEATH

Iowa's Heroine in Precarious Condition and Doctors Give Up Hope for Her Recovery.

Boone, Ia.—Kate Shelley, Iowa's heroine, is in a very precarious condition at her home near Moingona. She is hedfest with Bright's disease and doctors have given up hope for her recovery. Miss Shelley saved a Northwestern train years ago by crawling across a tottering river bridge and rushing to Moingona, where she gave warning as the train was pulling out.

WOMAN WHIPS 15 HAZERS

University of Illinois Sophsmores Are Routed After Breaking into House Where Man Was Ill.

Champaign, Ill.—Mrs. Andrew J. Miller, wife of former State's Attorney Miller of this (Champaign) county, put to rout and severely lashed with a big whip several of a party of sophomore students from the University of Illinois, as they sought to break into the Miller house with the object of hazing certain freshmen who boarded there.

U. S. STEEL CANCELS LEASE

Contract for Great Northern Ore Beds, Biggest Property Controlled by Company, Is Nullified.

New York.—It was officially announced that the United States Steel corporation has cancelled its contracts for the lease of the Great Northern ore beds, one of the biggest properties of that kind controlled by the company.

Four Die From Powder Blast.

Ottawa, Ont. — Through a very bad explosion at the Curtis Powder company's plant, near Regaud, Quebec, four were killed and several injured.

Maine Gives Up Twenty Bodies.

Havana.—Twenty bodies from the petty officers' quarters and berth deck of the battleship Maine were removed from the wreck to Cabanae fortress. About forty-five bodies have been recovered since the work of raising the sunken craft began.

Court Adjourns to See Boat Pass.

Keokuk, Ia.—Court adjourned here to watch the passing of the steamer Yocumbo, the largest transfer boat on the Mississippi, en route from Dubuque to Baton Rouge, La.

MINISTER IN JAIL

REV. CLARENCE V. T. RICHESON CHARGED WITH DEATH OF AVIS LINNELL.

WOMAN DIES FROM POISON

Druggist Tells Police He Sold Minister Cyanide of Potassium—Victim Is Said to Have Been Engaged to Accused.

Boston.—A cell in Charles street jail holds Rev. Clarence Virgil Thompson Richeson, pastor of Immanual Baptist church, Cambridge, charged with the murder of Avis Linnell of Hyannis, Mass.

Miss Linnell, who was nineteen years old and a student at the Conservetory of Music, was found dead in the bathroom of the Young Women's Christian association home here.

The arrest of the minister was made at the home of Moses G. Edmands, father of Richeson's fiancee. It was made without a warrent on information substantiated by the police that the minister had bought cyanide of potassium shortly before the girl died from that drug. The warrent was issued after the pastor was lodged in e cell.

After a brief hearing in municipal court Richeson wee held without bail for further examination October 31. Date set for his wedding with Vole Edmonds.

Deputy Superintendent of Public Watts said he received word from Newton that William Hahn, a druggist of Newton Center, had sold cyanide of potassium to Richeson, whom he knew well, on the night of October 10.

Miss Linnell's death has caused a sensation because of several mysterious circumstances. She is believed to have been engaged to Rev. Richeson, but it is said the engagement was broken and the clergyman later announced his engagement to Miss Edmonds.

Richeson has steadily refused to discuss the case. The minister is a native of Rose Hill, Va., and lived in Liberty, Mo., Carrollton, Mo., St. Louis and Louisville. He is thirty-five years of age.

Liberty, Mo.—Clarence Richeson for several years was a student at William Jewell college here, and was expelled in 1906 in his senior year, when he was detected cheating in his examinations.

While in college he figured in one sensational incident, when he refused to leave the home of a young woman, who is said to have jilted him, until two o'clock in the morning.

CHINESE CRUSHED BY REBELS

Imperial Troops, Defeated in Two-Day Battle Before Hankow, Are in Rapid Retreat.

Peking.—Imperialist troops sant to the relief of Hankow have been defeated by the revolutionists in a two-days' battle outside the city.

The warship fleet under Admirel Saichen Ping was forced to drop several miles down the river under a heavy fire from the shore batteries. One Chinese gunboat was sunk by its crew which deserted to the rebels.

There is consternation in the capitol at this defeat, the second since the revolution started. A wireless message from Hankow confirms the defeat of the imperialist troops. Dispatches from Klu-Kiang are of the same tenor, adding that the Chinese gunboats are deserting to the rebels. The conduct of the rebels at Hankow is reported to be exemplary. Martial law is being enforced.

When the fighting ceased on this first day the revolutionists took up a strong position. Reinforcements for the rebels arrived and on the morning following a force fully 5,000 strong commenced an advance on the imperial encampment.

The advance was conducted cautiously. On the second day the rebels burned hundreds of huts, fearing ambush.

The loyalist infantry made a feint show of resistance, while the shots from the imperial warships failed to dislodge a rebel field gun which had been mode the special object of attack.

When the rebel scouts reached the imperial camp they found it deserted, and the main body entered, receiving bannere and shouting in jubilation. The loyalists' evacuation was so hurried that they left many guns and six carloads of hoggage and ammunition.

A rumor is current that the rebels have cut the railroad behind imperial troops and captured Siaokan, 30 miles north of Hankow.

Another native report is that the rebels hold the railway tunnel at Siangtochow, in the southern part of Ho-Nen province.

Consular dispatches from Yun-Nen report persistent rumors of disaffection among the imperial soldiers.

The Mohammedan rebellion is reported imminent in Kan-Su, the scene of the Mohammeden revolt of 1868-75.

Racing Driver is Killed.

Mason City, Ia.—Billy Pearce, driver of the Cobby motor car, was killed at Sioux City. A tire gave way and the machine went into the fence, killing the driver instantly. He had driven for ten years. He lived here with his father.

New Coffee Advance in East.

New York.—A general advance of two to three cents a pound on all of the cheaper grades of coffee will be declared by retailers in this city within the next ten days.

M'NAMARA IS VICTOR

TALESMAN NELSON EXCUSED AFTER FOUR-DAY FIGHT.

Admits He Had Formed Opinion Which Would Take Strong Evidence to Change.

Los Angeles.—The four days' fight against Z. T. Nelson, a vendreman, as a juror in the trial of James B. McNamara, who, with his brother, is accused of having blown up the Los Angeles Times building, ended with a victory for McNamara.

Nelson was dismissed after the state had withdrawn its objection to a challenge for cause, and after Nelson had admitted that he had formed an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the prisoner and that it "would take mighty strong evidence to shake him."

Judge Bordwell questioned Nelson and he admitted he had obtained information about the alleged dynamiting of the Times building from persons with whom he had talked and from newspapers.

"If you were chosen as a juror in this case could you and would you, notwithstanding the opinion you have formed, act impartially on the evidence submitted to you?" Judge Bordwell asked.

"It would take pretty strong evidence before I would," was the reply.

A wrangle between lawyers as to whether he should have answered yes or no followed and Nelson said he could not answer the question. The state then withdrew its objection and Judge Bordwell permitted Nelson to step out. Thus ended the first skirmish in the trial.

McNamara was silent throughout the session. He manifested a strong interest in the examination of the talesmen, but offered no suggestions.

ALDRICH HAS REVISED PLAN

New Scheme Provides for a $300,000,000 Reserve Association With United States in Central.

Washington.—A National Reserve association with a capital of approximately $300,000,000, which is estimated to be about 20 per cent. of the capital of all national and state banks and trust companies in the United States eligible for membership, is provided in the revised plan of currency reform, drafted by former United States Senator Aldrich, chairmen of the National Monetary commission, has been made public.

The revised plan, which will be submitted to the monetary commission here next month, contains the principal features of the original draft with suggestions as to the relations of state banks and trust companies to the association; a method of purchasing two per cent. government bonds now held by national banks and means to insure the maintenance of edequate reserves by the association and to regulate discounts and note issues.

ROOSEVELT SILENT IN 1912

Letter Indicates that the Colonel Will Keep Out of Next Presidential Campaign.

Richmond, Va.—The pert which former President Roosevelt will take in the coming national campaign probably will be one of silence. This fact is now publicly known through a letter which he wrote to Congressman Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association, declining an invitation to address the convention. Colonel Roosevelt emphasized in the letter:

"From now on I wish to avoid making any speech I possibly can avoid."

This is interpreted to mean that Mr. Roosevelt wished to refrain from giving utterence to any opinions which possibly might be misconstrued in connection with the presidential campaign.

WILSON GREETS BREWERS

Secretary Delivers Speech of Welcome at International Congress Despite Hundreds of Protests.

Chicago.—Secretary of Agriculture Jemes Wilson braved the accumulated wrath of prohibition workers and the prayers of church people throughout the country, and delivered his speech at the international brewers' congress here.

In spite of hundreds of protests that had been sent to President Taft and to the secretary himself, calling on him to refuse to appear at the congress, Mr. Wilson welcomed the members of the organization and made his speech. To the nonexpert andtior it consisted merely in extending the international visitors the same courtesy the United States has received from the European countries from which some of them come.

Edison Wins Nobel Prize.

Stockholm.—A Nobel prize is to be conferred upon Thomes Edison, the femous American inventor, for his scientific achievements, Deneen Has Another Fall.

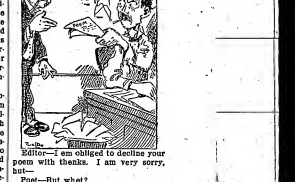
Springfield, Ill.—Governor Deneen suffered a second fall within twenty-four hours and suffered another injury to his broken leg. While entering the governor's mansion the governor fell. Physicians were called and examination revealed the fact that the leg was not rebroken.

American Killed in Honduras.

New Orleans.—A dispatch from Celba, Honduras, says Let Thomlinson, an American, was killed in a re- volver fight with a native.



Cement Talk No. 10

Concrete work stands the weather. No rotting, shrinking, warping, no crumbling nor rusting can occur where good sand, gravel or crushed stone have been mixed properly with UNIVERSAL Portland Cement and cast into sidewalks, floors, steps, foundations or other concrete work. Our best customers are our old customers who know by experience that concrete made from UNIVERSAL cement is good for years of use. Ask your dealer for UNIVERSAL when you have any concrete work to do.

UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO.
SECURITY BANK BLDG., MINNEAPOLIS
ANNUAL OUTPUT 10,000,000 BARRELS

A REAL REGRET.

Too Late to Change.

"A man can no more change his reputation than he can change his face or his form," said Senator La Follette at a banquet in Madison.

"There was once a wicked old Madison millionaire who took his pastor aside and said:

"'I am going to devote the remainder of my life to doing good.'

"Dr. Thirdly, outspoken man, retorted:

"'Do you mean John H. Good, the wealthy farmer, or young Sam Good, the Socialist milltourte?'"

Is of Scotch Origin.

Ellen Key, who has written a number of books and has had much to do with molding public opinion in Sweden, is descended from a Scotch highlander, Colonel McKay, who fought under Gustavus Adolphus. In 1838 her father lost all his money and Miss Key went to work as a teacher. She then gave lectures and has for 20 years been lecturer on the history of civilization at the Popular University of Stockholm.

One Mother Says

"There's only one trouble with

Post Toasties

"When I get a package or two, Father and the boys at once have tremendous appetites."

Post Toasties
Require No Cooking

Serve with sugar and cream and the smiles go round the table.

"The Memory Lingers"
Sold by Grocers

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd.,
Battle Creek, Mich.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NATHAN H. GREATON, 91 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Daniel Fahrenheit.

In view of the abnormal weather which we have had this summer we think a tribute of respect should be paid to the memory of Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, who was born on September 16, either in 1736 or 1740. It is hard to say which. Before his day several attempts had been made to measure the heat level, not the heat, by tubes containing oil of spirits of wine, but it fay with a bankrupt merchant of Danizig to show how the feat could be successfully accomplished.

The first thermometers were made with spirits of wine; but the ingenious Gabriel soon adopted mercury as his medium, and so it has remained to this day. His instruments speedily became known throughout the world, and though a more rational method of graduation has since been adopted, the popular mind still clings to the Fahrenheit scale. Our own Royal society thought highly of this humble inventor and acknowledged his genius by making him one of its fellows. To the "Transactions" of the society he contributed several papers.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Broken Bone.

Your first duty, after notifying a surgeon, is to provide support for the injured member in the form of an improvised splint. Flat pieces of board, as broad, if possible, as the limb and slightly longer than the broken bone, canes, umbrellas, in fact anything that will accomplish your end may be used in adjusting these, and with any soft material that is at hand; straw, leaves or cushions made of grass may be used. Avoid any pressure on the injured part, cover it with a cloth, and keep wet with clean, cold water.—Woman's Home Companion.

Modern Pharmacy.

"We have a very fine course in pharmacy," says the president of the college in the father of the student who is entering.

"I'm glad to hear that. My boy expects to become a druggist."

"Well, we give special lectures on soap, stamps, perfumery, patent medicines, water, candy, city directories, telephone books and stationery."—Life.

SHIFT

If Your Food Fails to Sustain You, Change.

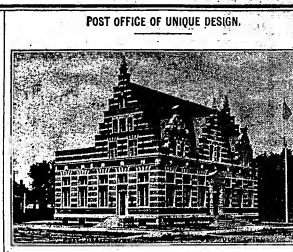
One sort of diet may make a person despondent, depressed and blue and a change to the kind of food the body demands will change the whole thing.

A young woman from Phila. says:

"For several years I kept in a rundown, miserable sort of condition, was depressed and apprehensive of trouble. I lost flesh in a distressing way and seemed in a perpetual sort of dreamy nightmare. No con sarious disease showed, but the 'all-over' sickness was enough.

"Finally, between the doctor and fate, I was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, as it was decided I must have a nourishing food that the body could make use of.

"The wonderful change that came over me was not, like Jonah's gourd, the growth of a single night, yet it came with a rapidity that astonished me.



During the first week I gained in weight, my spirits improved, my whole world began to look brighter and more worth while.

"And this has continued steadily, till now, after the use of Grape-Nuts for only a few weeks, I am perfectly well, feel splendidly, take a lively interest in everything, and am a changed person in every way." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

POST OFFICE OF UNIQUE DESIGN.

Philip Liesch, president of the Liesch Printing Company at New Ulm, Minn., and editor of its two papers, the Brown County Journal, in English, and the Volksblatt, in German, has just been appointed postmaster at New Ulm, and has gotten his office down to running order in the new government building.

The building is one of the most beautiful and most unique of the large number of post offices new owned by the government. When the appropriation was first secured, the architects of the treasury department prepared a conventional design, but the people of New Ulm, most of whom are of German ancestry, made a strong plea through their representatives in congress for a design more in keeping with the traditions and ideas of the citizens, and as a result the modified Dutch design here shown was adopted.

TO CANCEL LEASES

OFFICIAL SOURCES CONFIRM RUMOR CURRENT ALL DAY IN WALL STREET.

REGARDING MINNESOTA LANDS

Herbert Knox Smith's Stand Held as Cause—Commanding Position Might Be Basis for Federal Suits.

New York, N. Y.—In view of the attitude taken by Commissioner of Corporations Herbert Knox Smith towards railroads and ore holding of the United States Steel corporation, the corporation has decided to cancel its leases of the Great Northern ore properties.

When the lease will be terminated, however, is undetermined, inasmuch as the Hill ore contract stipulates that the lease will continue until the ore is exhausted, "unless on Jan. 1, 1915, the lessee is terminated under an option reserved to the lessee."

Well street was unable to figure out how the abrogation of the contract could be effected except by mutual consent. Officials of the Steel corporation refused to state the reason for the decision to cancel the big lease, nad this phase is a matter of conjecture.

Could Lease Lands Again.

It was suggested that in the event of the cancellation of the lease, the ore lands of the Great Northern could be leased again, as a whole or in parcels, to other consumers of iron ore. The effect of such a change on the tonnage of ore transported to the upper lake ports by the Great Northern, it is said, is problematical. It would doubtless be influenced somewhat by the terms of whatever new leases might be made.

If the land, or a considerable portion of it, were leased to producers of iron not so well provided with other sources of ore as the Steel corporation, the result might be that this ore would be taken out more rapidly than has been the case so far under the present lease to the Steel corporation. In that event, the Great Northern railway would benefit by the increased tonnage.

It has been suggested that the trustees of the Great Northern ore lands might engage in mining ore on behalf of the certificate holders and sell the ore instead of leasing the lands. It is doubted that the Great Northern would reacquire any interests in the ore lands or thet the title to them now in trust would in any way be disturbed.

Include Vast Amount of Ore.

The Great Northern ore properties are estimated to include deposits of 300,000,000 tons of iron ore. No figures are available as to how much ore has been mined since the opening of the Great Northern properties. The lease provides that the corporation mine 750,000 tons more each successive year, and the specified amount of ore must be paid for whether it is mined or not.

Under this provision the corporation would be required to mine 3,750,000 tons during the present year, or at least pay for that amount, which would mean $9,637,000.

The iron ore properties of the Great Northern railroad in 1906 were transferred to Louis W. Hill, James J. Hill and Walter J. Hill, as trustees, the 1,500,000 shares of beneficial interest in the trust, equal to the number of the sheres of stock held, being issued Dec. 2, 1906, to Great Northern stockholders.

Confirmation of the rumor that the Steel corporation would cancel its lease on the Hill ore holdings led close students of the situation to refer to the report of Herbert Knox Smith on the United States Steel corporation as a possible reason for the decision on the part of the corporation.

Paragraph Pointed Out.

The following paragraph was especially pointed to as substantiating this theory:

"Hence, not only on account of its great holdings of ore, but also on account of these peculiar advantages enjoyed in transportation of ore, the Steel corporation occupies an extremely commanding position in iron and steel industries. Indeed, insofar as the Steel corporation's position in the entire iron and steel industry is of a monopolistic character, it is chiefly through its control of ore holdings and transportation of ore."

For some time those who are best informed regarding the makeup of the United States Steel corporation have regarded its ownership of ore-carrying railroads and rates charged by its dependents for transportation of their ore from upper lake ports as the most vulnerable feature of its position. In fact, it has been pretty well understood that if the government suit is ever turned against the Steel corporation, this situation could form the chief basis for it.

Profit is Enormous.

With the ownership of these railroads, the Steel corporation is able to transport its ores at small relative expense. On the other hand, its charges independents an 80-cent rate for hauling their ores, whereas the actual cost to the Steel corporation for this haul is only about 20 cents a ton.

United States Steel common was weak throughout the session of the stock exchange, suffering a loss of 1¼ for the day on transactions in 262,000 shares. Great Northern preferred, however, closed unchanged at 124½, Great Northern ore certificates sold down 3 points from Tuesday night. There was a heavy liquidation of them as the total transactions were only 450 sheres.

MEDAL FOR CLITHERALL MAN.

Carnegie Commission Recognizes a Minnesotan.

Pittsburg, Penn. — Among scores of persons who were awarded Carnegie hero medals by the Carnegie Hero Fund commission at its fall meeting here, as a recognition of bravery in saving humnn life or attempts in which the life of the hero was jeopardized, is John Murdock, a young farmer of Clitherall, Ottertail county, Minn.

Young Murdock was awarded a bronze medal for an attempt to save a boy from drowning at Clitherall, Dec. 1, 1910. Last winter a party of boys were crossing the lake on skates when one of them fell through an air hole. The rest of the party rushed to Murdock's house on the shore of Lake Clitherall and called him to the rescue.

Murdock crept out on the ice to the edge of the hole and saw the boy's body lying on the sandy bottom of the lake 18 feet below. He dived to the bottom and brought the body to the surface.

All efforts to resuscitate the boy failed, but neighbors of Murdock, impressed by his heroism in having risked his life in the icy waters of the lake, presented him with a gold watch and sent a record of the case to the Carnegie Hero Fund commission with a recommendation that his valor be recognized.

HONOR OWATONNA TEACHER.

G. A. Merrill Completes Twenty-fifth Year of Service.

Owatonna.—Superintendent G. A. Merrill, of the state school for indigent children, located here, was the guest of honor at a banquet given by friends and admirers in honor of the completion of Mr. Merrill's twenty-fifth year of service. C. L. Crandall made the principal address of the evening, and presented Superintendant Merrill with a massive mahogany clock.

HOSPITAL FOR ALBERT LEA.

Two Bequests Form Foundation for the Institution.

Albert Lea.—The late Mrs. Naeve of this city gave her homestead for hospital purposes and Mrs. Charles Soll gave $5,000. Committees of the Business Men's league secured over $20,000 in two or three days' work and more is to be raised. The hospital will accommodate from thirty to forty patients, and will be ready for occupancy about December 15.

DR. VINCENT'S INAUGURATION

A COMPANY NUMBERING 5,000 MARCHES IN REVIEW.

Spectators Fill Northrop Field and Join in the General Jubilee.

Minneapolis. — Over five thousand students and alumni, with flaming torches and garbed in veri-colored caps, pledged their fealty to George E. Vincent, third president of the University of Minnesota. And the 15,000 spectators who thronged the grandstand and bleachers to the overflowing on either side were not one whit less enthusiastic.

Heading the pageant came the University band, followed by the few branch members of the classes of '75, '76, and on up to the class of 1911.

Behind this came the school of athletics with a diminutive pack mule loaded with pick and shovel. Then came the college of letters and sciences, 900 of them, headed by a float with Atlas bearing the world upon his shoulders and Miss Dorothy Loyhed as the fair sex, symbolic of learning. After this came 300 mechanical and electrical engineers, the mechenicels with a float upon which there was a forge surrounded by grimy students at work, and the electricals with a brougham covered with electric lights, heering the words, "We Shine for Vincent."

After this came the agricultural college, 350 strong, headed by a huge transparency upon which was a picture of President Vincent pulling at a stubborn calf, below which were the words, "Proxy on the Farm." The co-eds, beering Japanese lanterns, and headed by Miss Hoag, Economics club carrying a huge cloth house with lighted windows, followed the men. It was the best of both men and co-eds that they were represented to the last person available.

The literal exercises were held at the university armory. Among those who spoke were Rev. L. A. Johnson, president of the Augustane Synod, St. Paul; President Hill, of the University of Minnesota; President J. H. Pinley, of the College of the City of New York; President Judson, University of Chicago; President Van Hise, of the University of Wisconsin, and Rev. H. P. Dewey, Minneapolis.

ALMOST DIES ON HIGHWAY.

Travelers Thought Chase Was Drunk, Not Sick, and Left Him to Suffer.

Elbow Lake.—A. F. Chese of Parkers Prairie, Minn., on his way home from Norcross where he had been working in the harvest fields, burst a blood vessel on the side of his mouth and fell down a mile east of Erdahl two days and two nights. One of his body is paralyzed. He remembers that several persons spoke to him, but he could not convince them of his helplessness as he was due to intoxication. One mnn even asked him for a drink. Noticing a stray team, Frank Steiger, mail carrier, investigated and found Mr. Chase. Friends came from Parkers Prairie Tuesday and took him home. He is 65 years old.

Traveling Salesman at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis.—It will be a delight to all playgoers to know that the famous musical comedy, "The Traveling Salesman," by James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady" and "The Commuters," is to be seen at the Bijou, Minneapolis, the week of October 22d, under the direct management of its owner, Henry B. Harris, the prominent New York manager. The production of this "Traveling Salesman" will surely be one of the notable events of this season at the Bijou.

Wrecked Steamer Still Afloat.

Duluth.—Despite the failure of four vessels sent in search of the derelict Hopkins, the waterlogged and abandoned lumber steamer is still afloat and a menace to navigation. Captain Bailey of the steamer Willien E. Corey sighted the dangerous obstruction fifty miles below Michigan Island. The Vidette, a government vessel has been sent post haste to remove the hulk.

Sues Three For Slander.

Little Falls.—Frank P. Egan, proprietor of the West hotel in this city, for many years of Minneapolis, has begun actions against three prominent Little Falls men charging them with malicious slander. He asks damage of $1,000 from each. Egan was out of the city a few days and it is alleged the men circulated a report he had skipped out and would not come back.

"Busy Izzy" at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis.—George Sidney supported by Miss Carrie Webber and a company of clever dancers, comedians and scores of pretty girls is to the attraction at the Bijou, Minneapolis the week of October 29th, in the greatest of all emile compellers, "Buey Izzy," the musical comedy.

Derelict Probably Sinks.

Duluth.—That the derelict Hopkins is on the bottom of Lake Superior, about sixty miles off Michigan Island on the course between Eagle river and La Pointe, and is no longer a menace to navigation, is the belief of Captain Brown, of the government rackt Vidette, and Commander Guy A. Reed, of the Minnesota training ship Gopher. The Gopher went 250 miles in search of the lost vessel. Incoming steamers report sighting wreckage, but the hulk has disappeared.

CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCE.

Poet—In winter I write poems to keep the wolf from the door.

Admiring Friend—Yes—

Poet—And in summer I have to keep on writing poems so the lemener will stop et the door.

ALMOST CRAZY WITH ECZEMA

"I, the undersigned, cannot give enough praise to the Cuticura Remedies. I had been doctoring for at least a year for eczema on my foot, I had tried doctor after doctor all to no avail. When a young girl I sprained my ankle three different times, paying little or no attention to it, when five years ago a smell spot showed upon my left ankle. I was worried and sent for a doctor. He said it was eczema. He drew a small hone from the ankle about the size of a match and about an inch long. The small hole grew to about the size of on apple, and the eczema spread to the knee. The doctors never could heal the hole in the ankle. The whole foot ran water all the time.

"My husband and my sons were up night and day wheeling me from one room to another in the hope of giving me some relief. I would sit for hours at a time in front of the fireplace hoping for daybreek. The pain was so intense I was almost crazy, in fact, I would lose my reason for hours at a time. One day a friend of mine dropped in to see me. No more had she glenced at my foot than she exclaimed: 'Mrs. Finnegan, why in the world don't you try the Cuticura Remedies!' Being disgusted with the doctors and their medicines, and not being able to sleep at all, I decided to give the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment a trial. After using them three days thet night I slept as sound as a silver dollar for eight long hours. I awoke in the morning with but very little pain, in fact, I thought I was in heaven. After using the Cuticura Remedies for three months I was perfectly restored to health, thanks to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I will be sixty-four years of age my next birthday, hale and heerty at present." (Signed) Mrs. Julia Finnegan, 2256 Hebert St., St. Louis, Mo., March 7, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-pege book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 12 K, Boston.

Not If He Knew It.

"That's a nice little game you played on that girl in not showing up at the church when you were to be merried to her."

"Well, it wasn't a tie game."

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 43-1911.

If You Have a Sickly Youngster Try This Free

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

The best thing in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor the fussing of the bowels to be always recommended. Simply give the little one, or a mild, gentle laxative, tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by cleaning out the bowels and strengthening the little stomach muscles, will immediately correct the trouble.

This is not alone our opinion but that of Mrs. Mead of Freeport, Kans., who says: "Baby was troubled with colic successfully and so also was I. Whether it be baby, who gives it to her children and takes it herself. It is sold in fifty cent and one dollar bottles at every drug store, but if you want to test it in your family, before you buy it send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will forward you a generous free sample. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

In size, shape, color, quality and price, Lenox Soap suits the majority of women better than any other soap.

That is why most women, when their grocers ask what kind of soap they want, say, "Lenox, of course!"

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

COLDS Cured in One Day

As a rule, a few doses of Munyon's Cold Remedy will break up any cold and prevent pneumonia. It relieves the head, throat and lungs almost instantly. Price 25 cents at any druggist's, or sent prepaid.

If you need Medical advice write to Munyon's Doctors. They will cordially diagnose your case and give you advice by mail, absolutely free.

Address Professor Munyon, 53d and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

Whittemore's Shoe Polishes

Finest in Quality. Largest in Variety.

They meet every requirement for cleaning and polishing shoes of all kinds and colors.

DANDY combination for cleaning and polishing all kinds of russet or tan shoes, 25c. 'Phiar' also, 10c.

GLASS combination for cleaning white kid shoes, 25c. Ivory Kid Cleaner, 10c. Both used and known by their private names.

GILT EDGE the only ladies shoe dressing that positively contains Oil. Blacks and Polishes other and children's boots and shoes, shines without rubbing, 10c. Combination, 25c.

BLACK combination for cleaning and polishing all kinds of russet or tan shoes, 25c. 'Phiar' also, 10c.

GLASS combination for cleaning white kid shoes, 25c. Ivory Kid Cleaner, 10c. Both used and known by their private names.

If your dealer does not keep the kind you want, send his address and the price in stamps for a full size package.

WHITTEMORE BROS. & CO.,
23-25 Albany St., Cambridge, Mass.
The Oldest and Largest Manufacturers of Shoe Polishes in the World.

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Sick Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

ALLENS FOOT-EASE

A POWDER TO SHAKE INTO YOUR SHOES

For the treatment of Chronic Ulcers, Bone Diseases, Scrofula, Abscess, Fistula, Open Wounds, Boils, Carbuncles, Piles, Fever Sores, Eczema, Itching Humors, Sore Eyes, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Wounds of all kinds, and all forms of Skin Disease, even the worst and most obstinate. 50c. and $1.00 at all druggists, or by mail. Sample FREE. Address, A. E. OLMSTED, Le Roy, N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray Hair. A Luxuriant Growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

PISO'S
THE BEST MEDICINE
for COUGHS & COLDS

SASKATCHEWAN farm lands—48 acres best wheat land, $20 acre under cultivation. Write settlers' information bureau, Regina, Saskatchewan Land Bank, Elbow acres. W. J. Patterson, Overshot, Sask.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. W. G. HUNT,

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

There seems to be a wide difference between the price of pigs and bacon at present.

The consumer pays about three times as much for his beef as the producer gets for it. It may be news to some people, who buy their meat at a city shop, to know that cattle buyers are now only paying three cents a pound for prime fat steers. Who gets the difference?

The trusts are mourning over the fact that the people are next to any Taft "hogwash" We do wonder if him and his backers think that the common people are such suckers that they don't know that Taft handed them a lemon.

There is no use to call any session of the present legislature, and there is no use to hold out the bait of reapportionment to the people of northern Minnesota to get them to favor it, for they know there is no use to ask that gang for it. Bring on your next reason, reapportionment don't go. That legislature are safe at home, let them stay there.

Rathat Plave.

"It is a tremendous undertaking to get a new play accepted and produced," once said the late Clyde Fitch to a friend. "So many are written, and so few ever see the light of day. An English playwright with a gift of humorous exaggeration illustrated this fact to me once. He told me how he submitted a play to a celebrated actor and how in the course of the conversation the actor remarked:

"'Don't you think it is growing chilly in this room?'

"'Yes; it is rather,' the young playwright admitted.

"Then the actor rang a bell, and a servant forthwith appeared.

"'James,' said the actor, 'this room is rather cold. You may put three more manuscripts on the fire.'"—Lippincott's.

Talked Too Much.

Wife (reproachfully)—You forget how you once breathed your love in my ear and promised that my every wish should be gratified.

Husband—Yes, but I wish now I'd followed the hygienic rule of keeping my mouth shut while breathing.—Boston Transcript.

Billiards.

"Have you heard the billiard conundrum? Well, here it is:

"'What made the red ball blush?'

"'Why, when it saw the two whites kiss in the corner.'"

Cards and Card Playing.

In a paper in the Journal of the Royal Society of Arts Professor H. Chesney discussing the part played by gambling in magic, observes: "The use of cards is said to be derived from the Tarot cards, which were originally employed for occult purposes. The legend which ascribes the invention of cards to the purpose of amusing a mad king does not seem at all a sufficient explanation, and there is in addition the fact that cards of a kind existed before the said king. In further support of this idea the well known practice of telling fortunes by cards may probably be regarded as a survival of a regular form of divination by such means. It seems, in fact, that card playing for stakes is the development of a ceremony in which individuals consulting the oracle decided to abide by its pronouncements as to the holding of disputed property.

Meteors and the Atmosphere.

One of the most useful results arising from the study of sporadic meteors is the light thrown upon the question of the height of the atmosphere, since it is the friction of the air that sets them on fire, and if their elevation is known at the moment of their first appearance the probable height of the atmosphere can be calculated. On Aug. 11, 1909, a brilliant meteor happened to impress its picture simultaneously on three photographic plates, at Tashkend, Iskander and Tschimgan, in Russian Turkestan. The distances between these places furnished base lines from which the height could be deduced. The calculation shows that the meteor first appeared at a height of 69.45 miles above the earth and disappeared at fifty miles.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 23rd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole J. Haugen of Hills Minnesota, who on July 8th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1201, Serial No. 04956 for E ½ Section 6 and Lots 4, 5 & 7, Section 7 Township 150 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal

Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 28th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole J. Haugen, of Hills Minn. Ernest Sater, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 23rd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Andrew Hansen, of Hills Minnesota, who on July 8th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1201, Serial No. 04957, for Lots 3 & 4, Section 7 Township 150 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 28th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole J. Haugen, of Hills Minn. Ernest Sater, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ezekiel E. Sims, of Fisk Minn. who on November 18th, 1907, made Homestead entry No. 4061, Serial No. 06338 for Lots 3, 4, & S ½ W. ¼ Section 1 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 9th day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnsgaard, Andrew Hansen, John Dahlen, Isac J. Hole, all of Erie Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington} S. S. District Court,

14th, Judicial District.

C. Hollepean Brewing Company, Plaintiff,

vs

Edward E. Olson, Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANT

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which said complaint is now on file in the office of the Clerk of Court of the District Court in and for the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, in the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff will take Judgement against you for the sum of Six Hundred and Twenty-two & 44-100 dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of Six per cent, per anum from the 27, day of May, 1910, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Stanton & Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

9-30, 11-6.

Notice For Publication.

First pub in the sunbeam Oct. 6.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 2nd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole S. Quam, of Torgerson Minn. who on June 15th, 1909, made Homestead Entry Serial No. 04839, for S. E. ¼ Section 21 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of Thief river falls Minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 6th day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Vraa, John Stenvik, Peder Nybakken, Reinhart Johnsrud, all of Torgerson Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register,

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 19th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin M. Anderson of Torgerson Minn. who on March 6, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1007, Serial No. 04416, for S. W. ¼ Section 33 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigerud, Michael Anderson, John Stenvik, Soren Hermanson, all of Torgerson Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

The Box Was Good.

Wife—Wasn't that a good box of cigars I gave you on your last birth day? Husband—Yes; I never saw a better box, my dear.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sept. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 26th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Oscar Lindberg, of Roland Minn. who on November 29, 1906, made Homestead Entry No. 6973, Serial No. 04971, for Lots 4,5,6, Section 31 & Lot 5, Section 32 Township 161 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before The Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on the 11th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Adolph Lindberg, John Olson, Gerhard Erstad, all of Roseau Minn. Christian O. Lindberg, of Roland Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeamOct. 20, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Soren H. Hermanson, of Torgerson Minn. who on Feb. 19th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 1048, Serial No. 04491, for N. E. ¼ Section 33 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigrud, Andrew Kjos, Martin Anderson of Torgerson Minn. John M. Johnson of Highwarding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Take One Pain Pill, then—Take it Easy.

To Head-Off a Headache

Nothing is Better than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

They Give Relief without Bad After-Effects.

"For four years I was subject to almost constant headache. At times so severe I was unfitted for work. Through the advice of a friend I was persuaded to try Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and the result has been that I have entirely eradicated my system of those continuous headaches that followed a hard and continuous mental strain."—O. L. Russell, Agt. C. & N. W. Ry., Early, Ia.

For Sale by All Druggists. 25 Doses, 25 Cents.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Exaggerated Ego.

One of the hardest things in this world for the sixteen candle kind of man to do is to keep from intensifying himself for a lighthouse.—Galveston News.

Passion For Music.

Mrs. Bacon—Did Sol say your husband has a passion for music? Mrs. Egbert—Yes. Every time I stagger into one.—Yonkers Statesman.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Missionary's Puzzle.

To the untutored Chinamen the presence of the missionary is a puzzle. They simply cannot imagine human beings exiling themselves from their native land for the love of men on the other side of the globe. So they frame their theories to explain the thing to themselves. One theory is that the missionaries are secret political agents bent on gaining an influence over the Chinese and then swaying them to the advantage of their respective governments. Only of late have the natives come to realize that the strangers are not sent by their governments, but by religious groups. According to another theory, China is so excellent and renowned that the red haired barbarians come to live there for the mere pleasure of it. As for their self denying works of benevolence, these are supposed to be prompted by the desire to acquire merit.—Century.

Underground Hotels.

An extraordinary hotel is that in the sewers of Paris, immediately below the Church of St. Madeleine. It was built and is conducted solely for the benefit of the sewer workers. Nearly a hundred meals are provided every day, and for the sum of $2.40 a man can be comfortably housed and fed for a week in this gigantic drainpipe.

Very similar.

Whistler's Ways.

It was Whistler's custom when drowsy to go deliberately to sleep, no matter where or what the circumstances might be. At one dinner party his gentle snore suddenly aroused his neighbor, who nudged him violently with his elbow. "I say, Whistler," he protested excitedly, "you must not sleep here to the "Leave me alone!" snapped Whistler. "I've said all I wanted to. I've no interest at all in what you and your friends have to say."

One evening he was my guest at dinner at a hotel. Edwin A. Abbey was also there. Right after dinner Whistler went calmly to sleep. On the way to the theater he enjoyed another nap in the cab, and he slumbered peacefully through the greater part of the play. The next morning he blandly asked me: "What did Abbey have to say last night? Anything worth while?"—Century.

"Charms" in Cornwall.

Cornwall, England, is a county of "charms." The passing of children through holes in the earth, rocks or trees, once an established rite, is still practiced in various parts of Cornwall," wrote Thomas Q. Couch about fifty years ago. "With us boils are cured by creeping on the hands and knees beneath a bramble which has grown into a wall on both ends. Children afflicted with hernia are still passed through a slit in an ash sapling before sunrise. Sitting after which the slit portions are bound up, and as they unite so the malady is cured. The ash is indeed a tree of many charms. Verbomous reptiles are never known to rest under its shadow, and a single blow from an ash stick is instant death to an adder. Struck by a bough of any other tree, the reptile is said to retain marks of life until the sun goes down."

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN. LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER, Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods at the Right Pr[illegible]

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to inventors" "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE
PATENT ATTORNEYS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

What Ha Had.

What Did He Mean?

Mrs. Benham—Death is the debt we owe to nature. Benham—Nature does not compel me to pay my bills if I don't want to. New York Press.

Wigg—I saw you coming out of Dr. Bigleo's house this morning. What have you got?

Wragg—Nothing now. I went to pay the bill.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Next week we shall again publish our regular sized paper.

The weather is very fine today with good prospects of continuing.

Clark and Wilson got caught by jack frost, with a small part of their road grade unfinished.

The ground froze enough on Wednesday night to stop plowing and it may stay frozen until April.

There does ant seem to be thrashing machines enough in the country to do the threshing in a reasonable time this fall.

We have had two men hunting, corn this week, but are not very well pleased with our crop as the frost came a little to early.

Alfred Anderson was over from Deer Park Monday and bought his winters supply of fine potatoes from the Sonbeam farm.

Peter Hedeon raised over two thousand bushells of No.1 wheat on his Kratka farm, so you see some of our farmers are beginning to go some.

We are in need of money very bad just now and are calling on our delinquent subscribers to pay up. Please remit when you get your statement.

If you want to get your plows new layed, or your horses shod, call on Charles Enquist, at his Kratka shop and got the work done right. Charges reasonable.

We are badley in need of two, or three weeks due weather to clean up the threshing,so if Mr. Weather clerk will please turn his storm clouds the other way, it will be appreciated.

Oscar and Aslak Nelnad made this office a pleasent call last Sunday, on their return to Kratka, where they are working on the new store building of Singer Bros.

Mail carrier Sigurdson went down to Crookston this week to make final proof on his homestead. Sjur Stolnas and Ben K. Kveste went with him for witnesses.

Next week we shall resume the publication of the continued story "The Man and the Ring." If you are owing more than a year subscription you had better remit so as to not miss the continuation of this story, as we shall start the pruneing knife next month and a lot of dead limbs will be cut from the tree.

We hear that our assitant Tom, who disappeard in July, has a great record, in Mayfield and Kratka, where he has been threshing, of being the first man at the dinner table. One day Tom was driveing a pair of mules, to haul straw to the engine, and when the whistle blew for dinner he ran for the house and left the mules standing hitched to the wagon, but he saved his record, of being first at the dinner table. If he had stopped to unhitch the mules some other man might have got ahead of him,and he would have lost the record,of always being first to dinner.

There is now no prospect that ditch 47 will be completed this fall, which of course will be a great disapointment and damage to the people who live and own land along the line. But it has been said that you can not tell by the looks of a frog how far he can jump.That man Kolberg who took the job to dig the ditch appeared to be the right man in the right place, and to have the machinery to do the work, but the contractors failed to have his head examined and it was discoverd afterwards that it came to a peak on top, so here we are just where we was last fall, but with more experience.

Roland News.

Mr. Possum returned to his home at Fosston this week, after doing the finishing work on the house of A. Rolandson.

Miss Signie Gundersonn is helping Mrs. Lintvet during thrashing.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gunderson visited with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Dahl on Sunday.

Miss Signa Gunderson spent Sunday with Alma Fore,

Mrs. Sarah Lergvold will intertain the Ladies Aid Society on Wednesday November 1st. All are welcome.

Mr. Christ Lindberg left for Lessor this week,where he will teach school.

Peat We can't make out who, was calling on Roland friends on Saturday.

Mr. Sam Gunderson ma dowa to Plummer after a bran new wind mill.

E. V. Carlson left for Hillriver this week to do some clothing.

Mr. Chris Larson and Mr. Tuoheim are around buying cattle this week.

Mr. A. Rolandson is moveing his old house and will have it fixed up for a grainery.

Mr. Andrew Letvig is drilling a well for Mrs. Legvold.

Butter maker Rindahl was doing Mr. Stinlonse for a few days.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 25th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Anton Radnicki, of Roland Minn. whom October, 9th, 1908, made Homested Entry No. 998, Serial No. 0263, for N.E. ¼ Section 11 Township 152 N. Range 46 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wiblem Michels, U.S.Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 5th. day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John L. Reinicki, of Roland Minn. Tom Lofthus, of Rhoda Minn. Laurntz Wojcerowski, John Peterson, of Roland Minn.

ALBERTON P. TOWERS, Register.

Loggerheads.

The giant turtles which are found along the Atlantic coast and frequently in southern waters in great numbers are known as loggerheads. They commonly attain a weight of 1,000 pounds, are mild swimmers and are often seen far from land, floating asleep upon the waves Carnivorous by nature, these huge tortoises feed on crabs and fish, especially on a large species of conch, which they break open with their massive jaws. The flesh of this terrapin is leathery and oily, with a strong smell of musk. Young specimens are more palatable and are often on sale in the markets.

A duck as large as our goose, which is native of the shores of Tierra del Fuego and the Falkland Isles, is also called loggerhead, from its seeming stupidity and helplessness.

In the West Indies this name is also given to two or three sorts of fly catchers.

The Brain Is Very Adaptable.

Each vocation makes a different call upon the brain and develops faculties and qualities peculiar to itself, so that as the various professions, trades and specialties multiply the brain takes on new adaptive qualities, thus giving greater variety and strength to civilization as a mass, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine.

When the world was young the brain of man was very primitive, because the demand upon it was largely for self protection and the acquisition of food, which called only for the development of its lower, its animal part. As civilization advanced, however, there was a higher call upon the brain and a more varied development until today, in the highest civilization, it has become exceedingly complex.

Women on the Stage.

The earliest mention of actresses was in 1611, when Coryat in his "Crudities" gave this description of a production at the Theater of Venice, Italy: "I saw women act, a thing I never saw before. They performed with as good a grace, action, gesture, as ever I saw any masculine actor."

The Last Gladiators.

It was in A. D. 438 that the edict was passed which forever abolished the gladiatorial combats. In the games of Lydia there lived a monk named Telemachus, who, touched by the cruel stories of the combats, went to Rome, leaped over the barrier of the arena of the Coliseum, threw himself between the groups of fighters and implored them in the name of Christ to desist. Telemachus fell, slain by the swords of the gladiators, but there never was another fight in the Coliseum. The spirit of the monk had its effect, and the above mentioned edict was soon passed.

The Last Chance

It Led to Proof of True Friendship

By SARAH MARIA GRANT

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A dirty looking Mexican had brought the roughly scrawled note to the Lone Bull ranch. It was at the close of the evening, and the extended absence of light hearted Harry Barry had been a matter of comment among his comrades. His two weeks' leave of absence had been stretched to three, and although work was dull at this season, his silence caused a vague disquietude among the older men.

The note was addressed to Gabriel, and he unfolded it with the careful deliberation of one who seldom receives an epistle. He held the torn sheet of paper close to the lamp and scanned the words with sharp eyes that narrowed to mere pin points of light when he had concluded.

"It's from him," he said, with a curt nod toward Harry Barry's empty chair.

They scented trouble in the tone of his voice. Gabriel was not given to emotion, but he had grown attached to Harry Barry and loved him as a son.

"What's happened?" demanded Jim Lewis.

For answer Gabriel tossed the note across the table, and Jim seized it eagerly and read aloud:

Come to the three cottonwoods and bring the boys to celebrate. It's the last chance. H. B.

Hardened though they were, the faces of the four blanched as the meaning of the words smote them strongly. The three tall cottonwoods that stood near Satan's Gulch marked a spot that was recognized throughout the adjacent cattle country as a place where the swift justice of the plains was meted out to offenders.

Without a word the four arose and reached for their hats. In the same grim silence they strode out of the bunk house, forgetful of the Mexican who crouched in the verunda as they passed.

They were three miles on their way toward Satan's Gulch when the Crane broke the silence. "What became of the greaser?" he asked suddenly.

"I forgot him," admitted Gabriel. "Did anybody pay him for the letter?"

"You paid him yourself, Gabe. I saw you dip him four bits," remarked Jim Lewis.

They all grew silent once more, thinking perhaps of the merry evenings spent under the star dusted sky or in the shelter of the bunk house with Harry Barry, the pivotal center about which good humor swung.

"There's only one thing Harry might do," groveled Gabriel from the depth of a troubled heart.

"And he wouldn't do that unless he was pushed to extremity, Harry. It wasn't one to force gun play," added Jim Lewis seriously.

"If Harry did deny his man it would be in a fair fight, and there wouldn't be no cause to"— The Crane's pause was significant.

They rode on across the shriveled grasses and down dry water courses, heading always for the mountains that yet ever dreading to glimpse the gaunt outline of the cottonwoods against the sky. A young moon slipped down the western spaces, and after awhile there was no light, save the stars in the sky and in the soft radiance they moved on their way to take advantage of their last chance to say farewell to Harry Barry.

It was Gabriel's eyes that first saw the black cottonwoods, and he halted his horse with a sudden jerk and stopped the progress of the other men.

"I got something to say," he muttered hoarsely. "We all know that what's going to happen in the morning can't be stopped just because Harry is our friend. Them of us that breaks the law, whether intentional or otherwise, has to pay the price, and Harry got to take his medicine. But we'll all stand by him still"—

They nodded silently, but there was not one of them, Gabriel included, who did not register a mental vow to attempt to free Harry Barry before the dawn broke.

Almost within the shadow of the trees the four halted their horses and peered into the gloom. Jim Lewis slipped from his saddle and crept silently reconnoitered. Presently he came back and spoke breathlessly.

"He's yonder—alone. White Star is near at hand."

Leading his own horse and followed by the others, Jim Lewis cautiously led the way into the deeper shadows where Harry Barry was to suffer. They were somewhat puzzled at the absence of his captors, but Satan's Gulch permeated many counties and sides that might be preferred to the star canopied sky as sleeping quarters, and probably the condemned man was bound and helpless.

Presently they discerned the outline of a picketed horse and not far away a dark bundle on the ground that breathed heavily.

"The young devil," groaned Gabriel to himself—"sleeping like that tonight!"

In spite of the silent vow that had been registered a half hour before Harry Barry's friends moved as by one accord to accomplish a set purpose.

Quietly enough one unpicketed the horse White Star and, mounting this own beast, led the other. Another pulled a blanket from his saddle, and the other two assisted in tossing it over Harry Barry's head and bodily carrying that bundle of muffled threats and struggling protests to Gabriel's mount. There he was laid across the saddle in front of the lean cowhand, and in less time than it takes to relate the incident they were away, riding like a circle for the open line.

The muffled form of their captive only added speed to the flight of Gabriel's horse. Familiar expressions, some of them profanely strong, assured them that they had made no mistake in capturing the right man. If required all of Gabriel's iron strength to hold the paper captive in place.

The mysterious change that heralds the dawn found Gabriel, Jim Lewis, the Crane and Tim Lewis flying through a narrow pass whose sides farther and marked the site of another grave. Harry Barry, shaken into a more comfortable posture, but his hand and shoulders still enveloped in the blanket, was permitted to ride White Star, while his friends with voices lowered during their infrequent converse managed to conceal their identity from him.

When they were safely on another territory they paused and gathered into a semicircle about the prisoner. The blanket was withdrawn from Harry Barry's indignant countenance, and [illegible] the shadow fair with a whoop of dismay when he viewed the faces of his friends in the wan daylight. Weary and haggard they were, but each pair of faithful eyes viewed him with brotherly love.

"What in the blankety-blank-blank is the matter with you gumboils?" he bellowed wrathfully. "Is this what you call a joke to carry a fellow thirty miles away from the first streak of luck he's ever had? I wish I'd kept it to myself!" He looked around at their crestfallen faces, his own anger shaking in the light of concern he read in the eyes fixed on him.

"We're your friends, Harry," boomed Gabriel solemnly. "What we've done this night has been quite the law, as we all know it, but I don't believe one mother's son of us would have done it for anybody but you. Seems like I couldn't bear not to hear you laugh no more." The rough fellow drew his sleeve across his brow, and for an instant his troubled and betraying eyes were hidden.

The others nodded assent. "Not for creation, Harry," added the Crane crustily.

Harry Barry stared at their woebegone faces with bewildered eyes. He looked little like a condemned man—a man who had faced death but a few short hours before—a man who had escaped certain hanging from one of the three cottonwoods at Satan's Gulch.

"What's the rumpus?" he demanded at length. "You got my note all right?"

"That's why we came, and—what's happened that you call the limb of a cottonwood the first streak of luck you ever had?" demanded Gabriel sternly. "There wan't no gal in the case?"

Harry Barry stared. "Nary gal," he managed to say after awhile, "but what's the limb of a cottonwood tree got to do with me?"

Silently Gabriel passed over the note that the Mexican had delivered, and his friends stared curiously as the young man read it.

"Where's the rest of it?" he demanded.

"Rest of it?" they echoed.

"The first part. It's been torn off!"

"That's the way it was handed to me," said Gabriel.

"I'll bet the greasy toad tore some of it off to make a cigarette," muttered Harry Barry. Then, turning to ward them, he said without a trace of emotion in his pleasant voice: "This part, boys, sounds mighty desperate, but when I tell you what was in the part I tore the greaser tore off you'll understand. The whole note said: 'Harry, I've struck silver at Satan's Gulch after all! Come to the three cottonwoods and bring the boys in celebrate. It's the Last Chance.' And, boys, the name of the new mine is Last Chance."

His careless young face grew very tender as the four veiled themselves hoarse with delight. They joked one another about the mistake they had made and as they turned about and rode back over the trail into their own state they discussed, with much laughter, the point they had taken to bring Harry Barry away from his streak of luck. Harry gave a little smile when he had been engaged in putting up decorations on the occasion of the belated obsequies of Napoleon the Great in the lofty dome of the Church of the Invalides in Paris. When busy moving a ladder on the top of a high scaffolding he overbalanced himself and, in obedience to some obscure influence, jumped clear of the ladder and the platform, [illegible] to his fellow workmen as only a Frenchman would, "Behold me quit!" With these cheerful words on his lips he fell eighty-two feet, bounding in one place off the roof of a little dome, which caused him to describe a second parabola in the air, and landing finally, feet first, on the slate roof of a small sacristy.

Crashing through the slates, he landed astride a rafter, where he was found sitting, surprised but coherent, for he was able to give his name and address when asked for them. He had no recollection of this and became unconscious when put to bed shortly afterward under the care of the great Pasquier. His insensibility lasted a very short time, however, and he made an extraordinary rapid recovery, having sustained an apparent injuries, either external or intehal. At the end of a month Pasquier found him quite well.—London Lancet.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Caupp, Pres. Sam'l Gilson Vic. Pre. Larry O'Niel, Alther Pasquire, T. L. Cruzon.

J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Cruzon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children, For Good Warm Footware Buy The BELL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make out trips to th. County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

Had a Return Ticket Perhaps.

"Been abroad, have you, Ruggles?"

"Yes; six months."

"Have a good time?"

"You bet I did, Ramage—best I ever had."

"Humph! How did you get back?"—Chicago Tribune.

A RECORD FAIL.

It Was Remarkable Not For Distance, but For Results.

Writing in 1841 of a fall from an immense altitude which did not result in death, a French observer, M. Mandiel, declares that he had searched in vain in the annals of science for a similar case. We can well believe it. That victim or patient was a Parisian who had been engaged in putting up decorations on the occasion of the belated obsequies of Napoleon the Great in the lofty dome of the Church of the Invalides in Paris. When busy moving a ladder on the top of a high scaffolding he overbalanced himself and, in obedience to some obscure influence, jumped clear of the ladder and the platform, [illegible] to his fellow workmen as only a Frenchman would, "Behold me quit!" With these cheerful words on his lips he fell eighty-two feet, bounding in one place off the roof of a little dome, which caused him to describe a second parabola in the air, and landing finally, feet first, on the slate roof of a small sacristy.

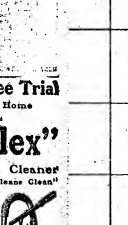
Crashing through the slates, he landed astride a rafter, where he was found sitting, surprised but coherent, for he was able to give his name and address when asked for them. He had no recollection of this and became unconscious when put to bed shortly afterward under the care of the great Pasquier. His insensibility lasted a very short time, however, and he made an extraordinary rapid recovery, having sustained an apparent injuries, either external or intehal. At the end of a month Pasquier found him quite well.—London Lancet.

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the famous

"Simplex"



Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both on hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.

52 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

TIN MINING in the AMERICAS

WHETHER tin, as such, was known to the ancient world is a mooted question. Most probably it was not, although the alloy of copper and tin called bronze was used ages before that time whereof the earliest legends run end loseby called the dawn of history. It is common to say that the age of bronze followed the age of stone and that both are prehistoric. Unscientific as is such a marshaling of "ages," and untrue if applied to man the world over, it yet presents a picture something near the known facts about that part of the ancient world which lies around the Mediterranean sea. Bronze was no doubt the first metal hero used by man, just emerging from the lowest state of savagery. Its superiority for the forming of weapons and tools over flints, bones, and fire-hardened sticks was manifest. Hence the Persian savage derived it, by what process the metals were separated from the ore, whether the alloy of the two metals was made by man or fortuitously occurred in nature, are interesting subjects, but not within the scope of this article. The fact is, however, that that pure tin been the first metal known it would have received but scanty consideration from primitive man; for, except for its weight, which would have rendered it suitable for a mace or club head, its want of strength and softness is such that for his uses it would have been inferior to flint, bone or even fire-hardened wood.

The remarkable property which certain metals have, and among these tin is one of the most conspicuous, that when alloyed with another metal the compound possesses a quality of strength, hardness, malleability, or resonancy superior to that of either of the metals entering into the compound is what in its first use gave value to the union of copper and tin called bronze. At a later period in the world's history the property which tin has of not tarnishing, or rather of being in a high degree resistent to the decomposing action of air, water and the common acids and alkalis, was taken advantage of in the use of the metal as a coating for harder and stronger but more easily affected metals, like iron or steel. Tin alone has even now but few industrial uses, principally in the making of certain pharmaceutical instruments and tin foil. For almost every other purpose for which tin is suitable an alloy of tin and copper, or tin and zinc, or tin and lead, or steel, iron, or brass coated with tin, is more suitable, and it is these uses of tin, as an alloy or as a coating, which give it its real value and its place in the arts and industries. Just as primitive man would have found but little use for pure iron, so civilized man might easily dispense with it were it not for its use as an alloy or as a preservative coating. As such it is of enormous use to the world and easily ranks among the four or five most valuable metals. Of the so-called common metals it is the least widely distributed and the most costly.

A TIN MINE IN THE CRURO DISTRICT of BOLIVIA

The value of the imports of tin into the United States as given by the bureau of statistics is now about $20,000,000 a year. In 1907 it amounted to nearly $19,000,000. This includes ore, bar and block tin, and some of the manufactures thereof, and also tin plate, but does not include the ordinary alloys of tin, such as bronze, pewter, gun metal, and bell metal, nor does it include a very large importation of manufactured articles in which tin is a considerable and sometimes the major element of value.

For 1909 the figures were as follows:

Article.	Quantity (pounds.)	Value.
Tin plates	16,115,771	$ 3,230,869
Cassiterite	26,661	3,124
Bars, blocks, pigs, etc.	91,132,413	26,007,216
Foil		43,612
Manufactures		69,251
Total		$29,344,972

This exceeds largely the imports of any other metals except iron and steel—gold and silver are being considered true imports. Of the total value of tin imported into the United States could be given, including all manufactured articles and alloys in the proportionate value of the tin therein contained, the amount would probably be over $40,000,000 for the year 1909.

About one-fourth of the tin imported is used for the making of tin plates, sheet steel dipped in tin, and the bulk of the remainder goes into the alloys of which there are scores of varieties containing different proportions of tin with copper, zinc, lead, silver, and antimony.

Metallic tin is rarely found in nature and then never in commercial quantities. Fine grains of its metal sometimes occur in the gold sands of several localities, principally in Bolivia and in Siberia. There are a number of tin compounds, oxides, chlorides and sulphides, but there is but one ore of any considerable importance in tin mining, and that is the binoxide of tin or stannic acid called tinstone or cassiterite. Tinstone is of various colors—brown, gray, yellow, red or black—ordinarily due to the presence of peroxide of iron or manganese. In its pure state the ore is nearly colorless. It is a remarkably hard and heavy mineral, so hard that it will often strike fire from flint, and of specific gravity 6.7, about equal in weight to antimony, and not much less than cast iron.

Tin mining bears many resemblances to gold mining. Like gold tin is found either in veins, running through dike rock formations, or in alluvial deposits which represent the remains of the same veins washed down from the hills after the disintegration of the surrounding rock through the action of air and water and cold and heat. Unlike gold tin occurs in a compound, cassiterite, while gold is generally more or less pure. The tin mines of Cornwall in England and of Bolivia are mostly vein deposits while those of the Malay Peninsular, the Dutch islands and elsewhere are alluvial.

The following figures give approximately the world's production of tin in 1908. Quantities are given in short tons (2,000 pounds), and the reduction from ore in tin ingots is made:

	Short Tons.
Straits Settlements	87,760
Bolivia	19,040
Island of Banka	12,880
Australia	6,552
Cornwall	6,048
Island of Billiton	2,491
South Africa	1,904
Total	136,848

The Socavon de la Virgen, San Jose, Huanuni, Negro Pabellon, Morococala and Antiquera mines, now rich tin mines, were in the old Spanish colonial days rich silver mines, tin being held of such little value that it was rarely extracted. The San Jose mine is about two miles from Oruro. It is both a silver and a tin mine, but the tin is of the greater importance. The Antiquera mines are near Poopo, on the Antofagasta and Oruro railway. Huanuni is said to contain the richest tin mines in the department of Oruro. These are located about fifteen miles from the station of Machacamarca of the Antofagasta railway. The Cerro de Poznacari, in which these mines are situated, rises to the height of about 10,000 feet—a rough cone in shape. It is laced by innumerable lodes and veins, some of which are worked on a large scale. The Ceturicagua vein produced in 1905 ore equivalent to 1,102 metric tons. The vein runs from two to eight feet in width and is from 20 to 50 per cent. cassiterite.

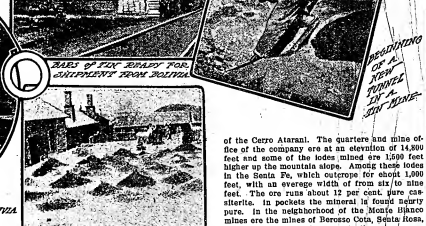
The Bolivian ores are ground and concentrated for the pure cassiterite. In this form is sand called tin barilla; it is exported. A very considerable part of the valuable oxide is lost in treatment.

The mines of Negro Pabellon, Morococala and Vilcollo are about ten miles south of Huanuni, near Paria. The principal lode of the Negro Pabellon is about three feet in width and is crossed by several smaller veins, with here and there rich pockets of cassiterite. The barilla obtained from this ore is exceptionally rich, containing more than 70 per cent. metallic tin. Concentrated Bolivian ores as a rule run about 60 per cent., or a little less, metallic tin in the Morococala mine the vein is from twelve to fifteen feet thick, of a good grade of ore.

Berenguela, in the province of Cochabamba, has an exceptionally high grade of ore. In colonial days Berenguela was a rich silver mine. The two ores are in distinct veins.

The tin mines of the northern field of Bolivia are in two groups—Hunyun-Potosi and Milluni, north of the Great Plateau. Included in the Hunyuni fields are the mines of Quimsa Cruces, Arica and Santa Vela Cruz.

The first ores is at the southeast end of Lake Titicaca, in the mountains some 13,000 feet above sea level. During colonial days these ruins were rich silver mines, but silver now in this locality is but little more than a tradition, for the only mining now carried on is tin mining. There are a great number of small mining properties in this locality, but the principal output comes from the French company, which owns the Carmen mine of the Huayna Potosi and the Milluni mine.



The Quimsa Cruz or Tres Cruces district of Inquisivi is one of the most promising of the Bolivian fields. It is in the heart of the Cordillera Real, which here rises over 17,000 feet above the sea level. These fields are about equidistant from La Paz and Oruro, but much more accessible to the latter. The principal tin property in the district is the group of Monte Blanco mines, owned by a Chilean company. These mines are on the western slope

A BOLIVIAN ORE CARRIER

BARS OF TIN READY FOR SHIPMENT FROM BOLIVIA

BEGINNING OF A TUNNEL IN A TIN MINE

TIN ORE FROM THE HUANUNI MINING DISTRICT, BOLIVIA

of the Cerro Alaraui. The quarters and mine office of the company are at an elevation of 14,800 feet and some of the lodes mined are 1,500 feet higher up the mountain slope. Among these lodes is the Santa Fe, which outcrops for about 1,000 feet, with an average width of from six to nine feet. The ore runs about 12 per cent. pure cassiterite, in pockets the mineral is found nearly pure. In the neighborhood of the Monte Blanco mines are the mines of Berenice Cota, Santa Rosa, La Florencia, Copacabanca and others.

About twenty miles south of Monte Blanco is the Santa Vela Cruz field. The most important property in this field is that of the Concordia Tin company, an English corporation. The location is not quite so high as Monte Blanco. Here the best mining methods are being adopted and the property will be without doubt a large producer, although not yet fully developed.

South of Santa Vela Cruz are the fields of Sayaquiri, a new field in which some prospecting has been done which promises large results, and Colquiri, formerly a silver field, but now developing into a tin producing district.

The northern tin fields of Bolivia have in the past suffered much for lack of good transportation. This condition is being greatly improved with the recent railroad development in the country.

Another Change of the Times

Nurses and parents do not frighten children so much nowadays with foolish stories as they did a generation or two ago. Children are not terrified into "being good." But in the remoter country places this objectionable and dangerous form of tyranny still lingers. In parts of Scotland the bogbch still has his terrors for youngsters. The chief of these specters is "The Boy of Peterpool from gray spike, silken spike, great cater pillar." There is almost a Shakespearean suggestion about the name. This terrific highbrat peers in at windows, flattens his wicked face against the pane, sharpens his teeth with murderous distinctness, and carries away crying or noisy children in a twinkling. But he never enters a house without being called. The invited summon him in enough, and the unhappy child goes to bed quietly, to brood over nameless terrors in the dark.—London Chronicle.

Use for the Crickets

The cricket has had other uses besides that of affording an excuse for argument. In China cricket were frequently trained for fighting purposes and bets were made on their combats. In Florence, too, crickets in cages were hawked about the streets on Ascension day to be bought and let loose about the houses in order to insure a year of good luck. Theophile Gautier mentions how the people of Madrid kept pet crickets in small cages decorated with gloss ornaments. Also, presumably, to bring good luck.

Where He Drew the Line

"Ethel," said Mr. Brown, "I want you to give that young man of Pours a little message from me."

"Yes, father," said Ethel, blushing.

"Tell him that your mother and father don't object to his gas bills, but they object to his carrying the morning paper away with him when he leaves."—Tit-Bits.

A DRUGGIST'S FAVORITE KIDNEY REMEDY—CURED HIMSELF.

Fifteen years ago I had an attack of acute kidney trouble. I consulted a physician who gave me medicine which only relieved me for a time. After discontinuing his medicine my trouble returned as severe as before.

Having heard of Swamp-Root I gave it a trial and can honestly state that three dollar bottles cured me, never having any sickness in fifteen years. I have sold Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root as a druggist for many years and can give the very best of recommendations at all times.

You are at liberty to use this statement any time you wish.

Respectfully,

W. C. SUMMERS,
Notary Public.

Letter to Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Quick Action.

"They tell me you took a flyer in Wall street."

"Yes," replied Mr. Lambkin. "For a little while I was considerably ahead."

"How much?"

"Can't say. Before I had time to figure it out the market dropped and wiped me out."

An Unbeliever.

"Sir," said the haughty American to his adhesive tailor, "I object to this boorish dunning. I would have you know that my great great grandfather was one of the early settlers."

"And yet," sighed the anxious tradesman, "there are people who believe in heredity."—Argonaut.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE will cure any possible case of DISTEMPER, COUGHS, COLDS, and the like among horses of all ages, and prevents all others in the same stable from having the disease. Also cures chicken cholera, and dog distemper. Any good druggist can supply you, or send to nearest dealer. 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. Agents wanted. Free book. Spohn Medical Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

A Cross-Reference.

Mistress—Have you a reference?

Bridget—Polne; 01 held the poker over her till I got it.—Harper's Bazar.

Accidents, Burns, Scalds, Sprains, Bruises, Bumps, Cuts, Wounds, all are painful. Hamlins Wizard Oil draws out the inflammation and gives instant relief. Don't wait for the accident. Buy it now.

A man may consider himself truly famous when he has five-cent cigars and yellow dogs named after him.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

The shortest words sometimes carry the most weight.

TOWN IS BEING REBUILT

Flood of Waters Has Not Taken Black River Falls, Wis., From the Map.

More than a million dollars absolutely disappearing in the short time of two hours was the toll collected by the waters of Black River Falls, Wisconsin. Even the residents of the town could not realize what it meant until the lake formed by the Hatfield dam was dry, and the rush of waters had passed on to the Mississippi.

Just out of reach of the flood the business men and residents of the place watched the waters carry away the buildings that represented the homes of business enterprises which it had taken years of effort to build. Among the larger industries swooningly wiped out within a few minutes was the plant of Coles Carbolsalve. This plant, along with others that suffered a like fate, is today being rebuilt, and the business men of Black River Falls promise that a better town shall replace the one destroyed by the raging floods and that just as rapidly as men and material can put it together. It is catastrophies like the breaking of the Hatfield dam that demonstrate the American spirit.

Would Arrest Him Anyway.

Sergeant—"Ah! Take Murphy's name for tellin' in the ranks.

Corporal—"Why, sergeant, 'e weren't tellin'.

Sergeant—Wasn't he? Well, cross it out an' put 'im in the guardroom for deceivin' me.—Tetler.

Sometimes a girl gets confidential and tells a men that a lot of other men have tried to kiss her, but he is the only one who succeeded.

Australia Likes American Magazines.

American magazines are constantly increasing their popularity in both Australia and New Zealand.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

So combines the great curative principles of Roots, Barks and Herbs as to raise them to their highest efficiency; hence its unequaled cures.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

WE SELL GUNS, TRAPS, ETC. CHEAP
Write for Free Catalog 105
Shipped over 1000 Cars Wool, Fur, Hides
N. W. HIDE & FUR CO., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

AGENTS WANTED—Man or firm to represent us. Good paper in your city on a liberal commission basis. We own and control the choicest local and traveling subscription propositions. Address Ind. Subscription Agency, Box 1, Chicago. Attractive points on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. To the right man or firm our offer is good for from $50 to $100 a week; only those who mean a position to do business need apply. Write us today. Subscription Dept., The Winnipeg Tribune, Winnipeg, Man.

AGENTS WANTED—Good proposition for right man. Write quick. Address Box 1, Chicago. Publishers of Lincoln Memorial Bible. Send for particulars. L. P. HAMSLY, Chicago, Illinois.

Pettit's Eye Salve FOR ALL DISEASES

Rheumatic Pains quickly relieved

Sloan's Liniment is good for pain of any sort. It penetrates, without rubbing, through the muscular tissue right to the bone—relieves the congestion and gives permanent as well as temporary relief.

Heres Proof.

A. W. LAY of Lafayette, Ala., writes:—"I had rheumatism for five years. I tried doctors and several different remedies but they did not help me. I obtained a bottle of Sloan's Liniment which did me so much good that I would not do without it for anything."

Thomas L. Rice of Easton, Pa., writes: "I have used Sloan's Liniment and find it fine for rheumatic pains."

Mr. C. G. Ivess of Baldwin, L.I., writes:—"I have found Sloan's Liniment par excellence. I have used it for broken sinews where the horse's leg was cut to the bone and have also found it good for sprains, bruises, sore throat, asthma. No rubbing necessary—you can apply with a brush.

At all dealers. Price, 25c., 50c. & $1.00.

Sloan's Book on Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Poultry sent free. Address

Dr. EARL S. SLOAN, BOSTON, MASS.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Is every cold weather emergency you need a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater. Is your bedroom cold when you dress or undress? Do your water pipes freeze in the cellar? Is it chilly when the wind whistles around the exposed corners of your house?

A Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater brings complete comfort. Can be carried anywhere. Always ready for use—glowing heat from the minute it is lighted.

Ask your dealer to show you a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater; or write for descriptive circular to our nearest agency

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

Stringing Beans and Hearts

By A. MARIA CRAWFORD

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Jeanette, stringing beans on the side porch of the farm house, heard an automobile stop at the road gate. She watched the big car as it came up the long shaded driveway. When it had almost reached the house she snatched a ruffled blue sunbonnet from the back of her Aunt Nan's chair and pulled it over her face.

A strong athletic young fellow sprang out of the car and, cap in hand, approached the porch.

"Good morning," he began cheerfully. "Will you be kind enough to roll us some milk and bread? We left the hotel at Kingston this morning for a run, expecting to get breakfast at Holler's inn, but we have lost the way and now we are starving."

"Nobody has to starve in this country," said Jennette's Aunt Nan. "I will be glad to give you breakfast just as soon as Hannah can cook it. I am Mrs. Gerding," beamed the genial woman. "Ask your friends to come in."

"I am Robert Mayfield," said the young fellow. "Better known as Bob."

His eyes had quickly taken in the modish gingham dress and shapely hands of the girl stringing beans.

"Is this your daughter?" he asked boldly.

"No, my niece, Miss Jeanette Rathburne, Mr. Mayfield." There was conscious pride in her voice when she spoke of the girl.

In greeting him Jeanette lifted her head only for a second, but it was long enough for Robert Mayfield to see that she was beautiful.

"Take your party to the spring down that path if you want milk right away. I will send glasses," promised Mrs. Gerding.

"Won't you show us the way, Miss Rathburne?"

"I would like to, but I am pledged to string these beans for Hannah."

"Tom," called the newcomer from the porch, "take the girls down that path to the spring. We'll rig a hell when breakfast is ready. Now for the beans!" he laughed. "I am an expert."

One of the girls glanced back as Jeanette took off the cover and settled to work again.

"Good gracious, Tom, look at the country beauty. I thought there must be a pretty face under that bonnet

"Good Morning," He Began Cheerfully."

when both lingered. I wonder who the rustic beauty can be," Aunt Nan heard her say as she and little black Mary with a tray of glasses overtook them.

Aunt Nan's eyes snapped when she came back to the house and called Jeanette inside.

"Go dress, she insisted. "Put on something fine. Those foolish girls called you a rustic beauty. Make them look to their laurels, Jeanie."

Jeanette laughed, excused herself to young Mayfield and hurried upstairs. There was neither rustic about her when she came down. From the tips of her dainty slippers to her beautiful head she looked as if she had just stepped from a fashion plate.

"Yo gods!" cried Mayfield, "you are Helen of Troy come back to earth to drive men mad."

"Can you keep a secret?" She bent toward him, her eyes dancing. "Your city friends think that I am a rustic beauty. Aunt Nan wants them disillusioned."

"You will more than succeed. Those girls might have shown better breeding than to say such a thing when your Aunt Nan has been so hospitable," he said, his face darkening as the light laughter of the girls coming up the paths reached his ears.

"Never mind," laughed Jeanette. "They are like a good many people who believe that only great things grow in the country."

The sunbonnet girl was gone and Mabel and Lenore Martin gasped at the substitute.

"Why, how do you do?" they cooed sweetly when Mayfield introduced them.

Jeanette was coolly polite, but to Tom Sibley she was a model of gracious loveliness. At table she readily showed her superiority over the other girls. Her quick wit and cleverness held the men like a magic.

"I think," said Aunt Nan when her guests were leaving, her sharp old eyes noting Mayfield's efforts to find some excuse for returning, "that perhaps some day you will get hungry for Hanna's beans and want some. You helped string the ones we expect to have tonight, so any evening consider yourself an invited guest here."

"How fine! How splendid! Would tonight seem too soon?" he asked quickly and boyishly.

"Not a bit of it. Glad to have you."

"You can't come tonight, Bob," shouted Lenore, who had overheard. "It's the big hop, you know, and we can't get along without you." Her smile failed to win him.

He had seen that Aunt Nan was really hurt by the girls' thoughtless comment, and since she had been so kind and considerate he did not hesitate to answer:

"You don't believe a hop could hold me from here, do you, Lenore? Moreover, a fellow will go after a rustic beauty, you know. It is such a relief from the painted shams of real beauty we find in town."

He smiled at Aunt Nan when he said it and asked if she did not agree with him.

"Of course, I am for the country girl since I live here most of the year."

"You know we thought that you and Miss Rathburne were really country people this morning when we came. Wasn't that funny?"

"Very," said Aunt Nan dryly, and turned to Mayfield. "What time shall we look for you?"

"Will it be unpardonable to come as early as 5?"

"No, indeed. We'll be glad to have him, won't we, Jeanie?"

When dinner was over that evening and Jeanette and young Mayfield were sitting together on the great porch fragrant with the breath of moon flowers, he turned to her and asked quietly: "It is possible that you are the Jeanette Rathburne who here turned down dukes and things royal across the water?"

"Why do you ask?" she parried.

"Because of this." He snapped open his watch and in her surprise her own face smiled up at her.

"Where did you get it? That was taken in Paris last winter."

"It came out in a newspaper under glowing headlines—'American Girl Who Cannot Be Bought.' I have carried it ever since then."

"It flatters me. I was never as good looking as that."

"And to think that I came here asking to buy milk! Ye gods! What a funny old world! What a funny move of Fate!"

"Fate?"

"Yes. I have been carrying this picture around with me believing it must be a dream face, and I go to a farm house in the country and the princess is there in the flesh."

"I always enjoy getting out here with Aunt Nan. She only keeps two or three servants and we really live like country people. I shell beans and gather tomatoes from the plants and Hannah is teaching me to make bread this summer. It is fun to feel yourself a human being and capable of ministering to people's needs. I know it sounds hypocritical for me to say such things when I have led an absolutely idle life, but I am going to change all that."

"You are going to marry?" Mayfield felt his heart fluttering.

"When I fall in love," said Jeanette quietly.

A week later the girl left the solitude of the country to go for luncheon with Mayfield to the big summer hotel at Kingston. Friends crowded about her in welcome. Lenore Martin stopped to speak to them, and when she started away said to Mayfield, "Poor old Bob! I have been hearing all about your famous beauty. Of course, you can't see one more fly caught in her sparkling web."

Mayfield knew by Jeanette's eyes that she had heard.

"Is that true?" he asked. "You're just like a dream come true. You must see how I care." He leaned over the little table. "You are to me what Pygmalion's statue was to him, a great wonderful dream made real by some kind Providence. Can't you live for me and be my Galatea? Jeanie, dear, I'm from the south and our blood runs warm. It may seem too soon to say I love you, but hearts know nothing of time." He saw the swift blood crimson her face. "Jeanie, dear, what are you going to do with me?"

"Marry you," she said in a whisper

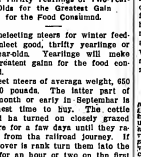
A Human Crust Stand.

Several villagers were discussing a deceased neighbor who had been given to good deeds, but was rather too fond of dispensing sharp-spoken advice.

"She was an excellent woman," said our deceased lady's pastor. "She was constantly in the homes of the poor and afflicted. In fact, she was the salt of the earth."

"She was more than that," remarked a villager. "She was the vinegar, the pepper and the mustard as well. She was a perfect crust stand of virtues."—Tid-Bits.

LIVE STOCK



MAKING LATCH HORSE-PROOF

Means Provided for Keeping Mischievous Colts From Unfastening Door and Getting Out.

We had a number of mischievous colts that were loose most of the time in the barn and often worked the fastening of the door loose and got out. It was up to me to provide a fastening for the door and gates that would work easily, yet one that could not be opened by the colts.

The accompanying illustration shows the result of my planning, says a writer in the Farm and Home. The sliding bolt is shown by a, which is a piece of inch board 2x12 inches. This is shaped at one end as shown, and fits into the notch. The door in shown at d, and the pin at i.

A nail is attached to the sliding bolt to operate it by. As is plainly seen, the slide in which this operates is large enough so the bolt can be lifted clear of the notch and opened. It may be that there are horses foxy enough to open this fastener, but noon of mine have got on to it yet, and I believe it is going to prove satisfactory.

A Horse-Proof Latch.

STOCK FOR WINTER FEEDING

Select Thrifty Yearlings or Two-Year-Olds for the Greatest Gain for the Food Consumed.

In selecting steers for winter feeding select good, thrifty yearlings or two-year-olds. Yearlings will make the greatest gains for the food consumed.

Select steers of average weight, 650 to 800 pounds. The latter part of this month or early in September is the best time to buy. The cattle should be turned on closely grazed pasture for a few days until they recover from the railroad journey. If the clover is rank turn them into the field for an hour or two on the first day or so, and only when the clover is dry. When accustomed to the clover they can be left in the field day and night. See that the cattle have shade and water. Good Durhams or shorthorns will make the largest gain.

Buy only as many as you can feed from the home-grown feed. Do not pay too much for the cattle and do not buy poor, thin stock even if they can be bought cheap.

A grain farm of 160 acres, under good tillage, should be able to fatten 20 to 30 head of steers during the winter from home-grown feed, with the addition of a few tons of purchased wheat bran and linseed or cottonseed meal.

This farmer and his help can care for this number of cattle and attend to the ordinary farm work. By feeding all the forage and most of the grain grown on the farm, and selling the wheat and a portion of the corn piling the manure for the fall seed bed and liming the clover sod on which the corn, the fertility of the land can be kept up and a fair return made on the investment.

Blood Tells in Beeves.

A western experiment station fed six carloads of cattle, one lot as good as they could buy, the other as inferior. The good cattle were eighteen months old and cost $44 a head; the inferior cattle were three or four years old and cost $35. The first lot produced 100 pounds of beef for every 1,000 pounds of dry matter fed; the second, 77 pounds. Though the good cattle cost heavily at the start, the profit was $18 a steer; on the poorer cattle the profit was $5.43 a head.

The Young Harness Horse.

There is nothing more important in the education of young harness horses than that they should be taught to start off smoothly. Very commonly they are apt to jump forward into the collar with a jerk, a habit which ought to be constantly checked from the first, trivial though it may seem; otherwise it tends to make them unsteady, and in the case of high-mettled animals sometimes becomes so ingrained after a time that it is difficult, if not impossible, to eradicate.

To Cure Scours.

A sure remedy for scours in calves and colts is the following: One ounce laudanum, one ounce spirits of turpentine, one ounce tincture of rhubarb. Mix. The dose in real bad cases is one-half teaspoonful every half hour until relieved. Put in a little water and use as a drench. A good way to drench a calf or colt is to get hold of the tongue, they they will have to swallow.

AN EXPLANATION.

Sapho—Soy, greenmammy, what makes de moon shine so bright sometimes, while some nights is so dark?

Greenmammy—Well, chile, I reckon dat de good Lawd made dem dark nights so dat poor colored folks kin have chicken 'thout de formality ob payin' foh it.

BED-BOUND FOR MONTHS.

Hope Abandoned After Physicians' Consultation.

Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew and Washington Sts., Centralia, Wash., says: "For years I was weak and run down, could not sleep, my limbs swelled and I had many sensations were troublesome. I was fast in bed four months. Three doctors said there was no cure for me and I gave up to die. Being urged, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I was better and in a few weeks was about the house, well and strong again."

"When Your Book In Lome, Remember the Name—DOAN'S." 50c a box at all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

This Time for a Friend.

"'Tis a wise man," said Robert Edeson, "who knows when to ask questions. The other night I was standing inside the refined station when an Irish cab driver came up to me and asked me how soon the next train came in. I told him and he said thank you and went away. In about five minutes he came back with the same question. 'I told you not more than five minutes ago,' I said. 'I know it,' he answered cheerfully, 'but it's not ma th't wants to know this time. It's a friend of mine outside th't has to watch his horses and can't come in an' ask yez himself!'"—Young's Magazine.

Successful Economy in Baking.

Most housewives assume when they buy a big can of baking powder that a low price is the chief consideration. Not so with the "Big 10" eight ounce can when they use that cheap "big can" baking powder, and find it no longer in quality, or so unreliable that the baking fails, there isn't any economy in it after all, for the wasted materials far outweigh the few cents saved in the price.

SUCCESSFUL economy is in the reach of every housewife who buys a 16 ounce can of pure Calumet Baking Powder, and use it according to instructions. Then, she will achieve success. For not only does Calumet sell at a reasonable price—80c per pound—but it is so carefully made by experienced chemists that failure is impossible. Only the best materials are used and the proportions of the ingredients are always the same. Calumet is an EVENLY baking powder, from first to last, sweet, and beautifully raised. Calumet is a sanitary safeguard against failure, and that is what constitutes real economy in baking.

Why not use Calumet, a baking powder that you can always rely upon? You can get no better at any price, for at the World's Pure Food Exposition, Calumet received the Highest Award.

All the world's a stage, and all the men and women are merely kickers.

Mrs. Whatlow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

The shortest words sometimes carry the most weight.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets induce mild natural bowel movement once a day.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION Not made By a Trust.

After all, it's a question of powder. Your ammunition is effective, or ineffective in proportion to the strength of the powder—and the manner in which it is exerted.

"Kick" is wasted power; all the force ought to be forward. This result is possible only in Robin Hood Ammunition because our smokeless powders are the only ones that burn progressively and create velocity all along the barrel.

Try R. H. and prove for yourself that it shoots quicker, hits harder and kills further. Buy our Shot Shells and Metallic Cartridges from your dealer.

Send for our booklet of ammunition facts.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION CO.
7th Street, Swanton, Vt.

Honored by Women

When 6 woman speaks of her silent secret suffering she honors—Hundreds have bestowed this mark of confidence on Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. Everywhere there are women who will bear witness to the wonderful working, curing-power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—which saves the suffering sex from pain, and successfully fights those dreadful woman's weaknesses and stubborn ills.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG
IT MAKES SICK WOMEN WELL.

No woman's appeal was ever misdirected or her confidence misplaced when she wrote for advice to the WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package—other starches only 12 ounces—same price and DEFIANCE IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS / CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral

NOT NARCOTIC

Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER

Pumpkin Seed
Alx Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

Fac Simile Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher

THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.

At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS

Guaranteed under the Food & Exact Copy of Wrapper.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

Men and Women wear W.L.Douglas shoes because they are the best shoes produced in this country for the price. Insist upon having them. Take no other make.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The assurance that goes with an established reputation is your assurance in buying W. L. Douglas shoes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L.Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and retail price stamped on bottom. If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes in your town, write for catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, delivery prepaid. W. L. DOUGLAS, 240 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

I HAVE FAITH in my BOYS $3.50 SHOE
$3.00 SHOES will positively outwear two pairs $5.00 SHOES of ordinary make.
Fast Color Eyelets Used Exclusively.

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

The strong, steady light.

Rayo lamps and lanterns give most light for the oil they burn.

Do not flicker. Will not blow or jar out.

Simple, reliable and durable—and sold at a price that will surprise you.

Ask your dealer to show you the Rayo lamps and lanterns, or write to any agency of

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

COME SOUTH TO AMERICUS'S MARKET GARDENS.

Address Box. Notice reserved for A. A. L. Fry, Secretary, Americus, Ga.

FROM THE FRUIT FIELDS OF VIRGINIA TO THE ORANGE GROVES OF FLORIDA

Today Fruit and Vegetables for High Profits. Healthful climate—fertile soil—abundant supplies (one car ready)—schools and churches. Quick transportation to big markets. Near towns. 25 Families County on the West Coast of Florida raise 2 to 3 crops a year—net $500 to $1000 per acre. Write NOW for Free illustrated booklet.

W. A. PRIOR, Gen. Ind. Agt., Seaboard Air Line Ry., Suite 710 Norfolk, Va.

Why Rent a Farm

and be compelled to pay to your landlord most of your profits each year? Own your own farm. Be interested in your work. Be independent. Raise your own crops. Own the land in one of these districts and bank a profit of $10.00 or $20.00 per acre every year.

You can purchase a Seaboard Air Line farm in a section where an acre has recently changed hands at $25.00 an acre. The crops grown on these lands warrant the advance.

160 ACRES FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Become Rich

by cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, 160 acres each, and other areas may be purchased at $10.00 per acre. Schools and churches, good railways. For settlers' rates, descriptive pamphlets, and information as to routes, apply to any Canadian Government Agent, or to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Chas Pilling, Office 810, Grand Forks, N.D.
W. H. Rogers, Box 1, Portage la Prairie, Man.
Jno. A. Hall, 315 2d St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Readers of this paper desiring to buy anything advertised in its columns should insist upon having what they ask for, refusing all substitutes or imitations.

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING, PRINTING and FINISHING a specialty. Catalogue free. Address DEPARTMENT "G" for catalogue. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

AGENTS WANTED—Special Representatives for Reliable Guaranteed Specialties. Good pay to any energetic man. Exclusive territory. Extraordinary Plans. We prevent him to any one else. Address, with stamp, Box 1, Station A, Cincinnati, Ohio.

SEE BIG OFFER, 216 Wood St., Williamsburg, Pa.

FRONTIER PO

Reminiscences of "Wild Bill" Hickok by his old Friend Buffalo Bill

BY WALTER NOBLE BURNS.

(Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman.)

"WILD BILL was the greatest gun fighter the west ever knew. I don't know how many men he killed, but it was more than thirty. That number is exclusive of the men he killed in the Civil war. He is credited as a sharpshooter with having killed 35 men, including the Confederate General McCullough, in the battle of Pea Ridge alone. I don't know how true that is. It is impossible for anyone to tell how many men he kills in a battle when thousands of men are firing. But he killed more than thirty in personal encounters. He killed two in one fight, single handed. That was when he wiped out the McCandless gang at Rock Springs, Kan., in 1861, and it was the most heroic single handed fight in all the history of the frontier. Imagination has not colored or enlarged his record. It is a sure-enough record of men killed in fair, stand-up fights. If one cares to search, one can find their graves with their names neatly carved on little headstones scattered from the Missouri river to the foothills of the Rockies."

Col. William F. Cody, better known all over the world as Buffalo Bill, was in reminiscent mood. He can't this tribute to the prowess of his dead comrade of early days on the plains. He was intimately associated with Wild Bill. He fought by his side in the Civil war, he scouted with him in the Indian campaigns, he shared the same blanket beside many a lonely camp fire. Many years there was a bed and a chair and the table for Wild Bill at the ranch of Buffalo Bill's mother near Fort Leavenworth, and to the very end of his stormy and wandering career Wild Bill thought of this spot as home.

Buffalo Bill is himself one of the most picturesque characters of the old west left to these piping, prosaic times. Though the public knows him chiefly as a showman, he is the last of the great scouts. His life has not been all blank cartridges and calcium lights. Back of his spectacular career as an exponent of wild west drama is a frontier life of daring, hardship and danger. He is an old man now, only a few years on the sunny side of three score and ten. His sweeping mustaches and imperial and his long hair that falls upon his shoulders in the waving abundance of early years are as white as snow. But his tall figure is still straight and as straight as a young pine on the mountains, his step is elastic and his eye bright, and he still wears his white sombrero tilted at a jaunty angle on the side of his head as in the brave days of his youth.

"I was eleven years old when I first met Wild Bill in 1857," said Buffalo Bill. "I was making my first expedition across the plains. It was the expedition led by General Albert Sydney Johnston, afterwards killed at Shiloh, against Brigham Young and the Mormons in Utah. I was connected with the supply train as the driver of the extra cattle. A big bully in my mess seemed to think I was meant to be his servant and ordered me around at every opportunity. I grew sulky and resentful under his badgering, but I was a mere kid and was helpless. One evening as we were eating supper he ordered me to get him another cup of coffee. 'Get your own coffee,' I said. He reached over from where he sat and slapped me over. I rolled into the ashes at the edge of the camp fire and narrowly escaped getting badly burned. I ran to the pile of coffee kettle, caught it up, and stepping up behind the bully, doused the scalding coffee over the back of his neck. He roared with pain. Then he rushed for me. A young man stepped between us. I knew him casually as Jim Hickok. The men of the wagon train called him 'Jimmy.'

"'Boy,' he said, facing the bully squarely, 'you leave that kid alone.'

"My unexpected champion was about twenty years old, tall, slender, bronzed and athletic looking. The powerful brute he confronted would have made two of him. The bully stopped in surprise. He sized up the stripling with a glance. The investory doubtless convinced him he had nothing to fear.

"'What bove you got to do with this?' he bellowed and he charged at the youth like a mad bull.

"The men of the outfit expected to see Hickok beaten to a jelly or killed. He gave me the surprise of our lives. He proved to be the quickest man I ever saw. A catamount could not have been quicker. He stepped into the bully fearlessly. He was all over his man. He rocked his head with right blows. He ripped punches into his midsection. He closed his eyes, bloodied his lips, knocked the teeth down his throat. He ended by dropping the bully to his knees and making him blubber out, 'I've got enough' and beg for mercy. After the fight my maddest enemy was the worst admirer up man I ever saw. Hickok didn't show a mark. He walked away and sat down on a wagon tongue and smoked a pipe of pure screech. That was my introduction to the man afterward known all over the west as Wild Bill, and from that day we were fast friends.

"I enlisted in the Union army in 1863 and was sent to Tennessee. I was employed as a scout and spy. I was peculiarly fitted to play the part of spy in Confederate camps. Most of the people with whom I had been thrown all my life on the plains were from Missouri, Kentucky or Tennessee. It was second nature for me to talk in the drawling lingo of the south.

"On one of my excursions as a spy I was disguised as a Tennessee farmer boy with a ragged hat, a homespun shirt and pants of butternut jeans. I was riding along a road when I came to a farm house. Hitched to the palings of the fence was a fine horse, saddled. Through a window I saw a man in the uniform of a Confederate officer sitting at a table eating. Something about his face looked familiar. I dismounted and stepped to the door of the house and asked for a drink of water. As I was drinking I took a good look at the man. It was Wild Bill. He shot a quick glance at me. But I had grown since he last saw me and in my disguise he did not recognize me. I waited till he had finished his meal and followed him to the road. As he prepared to mount his horse I stepped close and said in a low tone, 'Bill, don't you remember me?' I thought I saw a gleam of recognition in his eyes, but he said simply, 'No, I don't.' 'I'm Billy Cody,' I said. 'Well, well,' returned Wild Bill, 'are you little Billy Cody?'

"Then he gave me a dressing down. 'You betray my business in this part of the country,' he said. 'You ought to be in the Union army.' 'How do you know I'm not?' I asked. 'You in the Union army?' he said. 'Maybe I am,' I answered. 'What are you doing in those clothes, then?' he asked. 'I suspect I'm doing the same as you,' I replied. Bill smiled. 'Get on your horse,' he said. And we rode together back into the Union lines. For the remainder of the war we did much scouting together in Missouri and the southwest.

"When I joined General Sheridan as chief of scouts in the campaign against the Indians of the northwest in 1868 I found Wild Bill with the command. I went to General Sheridan and said 'General,' I said, 'Wild Bill is the best scout, the best shot and the bravest man in the western country. He is seven or eight years older than I and I have always looked upon him as my superior in everything that goes to the making of a plainsman. I don't like to give orders to such a man. I would rather serve under him. Moke him chief of scouts.'

"'Well, I won't,' said General Sheridan. 'You are chief of scouts of the United States army. When you get ready to give Wild Bill an order, give it.'

"I went to Wild Bill and told him how I felt about the situation and what the general had said."

"'Why, that's all right, Billy,' Wild Bill said. 'I'm a soldier and I'll take orders from anyone who has the right to give me orders. I'd just as lief work under you as anybody I know. I'll obey you as my ranking officer as readily as I'd obey the commanding general of the United States army.'

"And he did. He did fine work under me through many stirring campaign. He held in check that turbulent spirit that brooked dictation from no one and obeyed my orders like the soldier that he was.

"I first entered the show business in 1872," Buffalo Bill continued. "General Sheridan had been ordered to Chicago to take command of the Department of the Lakes and I went with him as inspector of horses. Ned Buntline, whom I'm sure you know out west, had written a drama of the border named 'Scouts of the Plains.' He offered me $500 a week to take the leading part. I hesitated to ask General Sheridan for permission for fear he would laugh at me and perhaps refuse. I finally got Col. Mike Sheridan, his brother, to prefer my request. It was granted readily.

"The drama was produced in Nixon's amphitheater, which used to stand near the site of the modern Hotel Sherman. On the opening night when I was to make my bow before the footlights for the first time the immense theater was packed to the walls. General Sheridan and all the officers of the post occupied boxes in all the glory of full-dress uniforms. I was worse scared as I stepped out of the wings and faced that great audience than I ever was in an Indian fight with bullets and arrows sleeting about my ears. But I carried it off as bravely as I could. What I didn't know about acting I made up for by strutting about the stage, storming out my lines and firing my navy revolvers after every other sentence. There was an amazing amount of gunpowder burned in that play. After it was all over I imagined I had scored a triumph. Next day the Chicago papers said the play was so bad it was good. But we packed the theater nightly and the reserve police had to be called out to quiet the crowds that fought at the doors for admission.

"The management offered me $1,000 a week to go to St. Louis, where our success was repeated.

"I decided at the opening of the next season that it would be a money-making scheme to have Wild Bill as a member of our troupe. He was then in Hays City, where he had killed several people, and I wrote him telling him of the money he could make by appearing on the stage. He wrote I have to do much acting,' I told him. 'You will only have to shoot and pose around.' He wrote back that he would accept my proposition. I wrote him he would have to agree to stop fighting and sitting while he was with the show. He sent me an agreement to that effect by return mail. Then I sent him money to come to New York, where the show was to open. In this last letter I gave him instructions as to what he must do when he reached the city.

"'I am stopping at the Bravoort hotel,' I wrote him, 'and you will land in New York at the Forty-second street depot. To avoid getting lost in the big city, take a cab at the depot and you will be driven to the hotel in a few minutes. Pay the cabman $2. These New York cabmen are regular hold-up men and your driver may want to charge you more, but don't pay him any more than $2 under any circumstances.'

"I was glad Wild Bill was coming. I hadn't seen my old pard for a long time, and I looked forward with pleasure to meeting him again. I told everybody about the Brevoort hotel that Wild Bill was coming and in the evenings as I sat about the lobby I recounted some of his wonderful fights and adventures. I wanted Wild Bill to feel easy on soon as he arrived at the hotel, and I told the proprietor if I didn't happen to be around to welcome Bill and make him feel at home.

"Wild Bill arrived in New York on schedule time. He had my lest letter in his pocket and had committed to memory my instructions as to what he should do. As soon as his train arrived he stepped into a cab and ordered the cabman to drive him to the Brevoort house. When the cab drew up in front of the hotel and Bill had stepped out he handed the driver a $2 bill. He was bent upon following my instructions to the last detail.

"'Here's your pay,' he said.

"'Pay nothin',' said the jehu. 'My charge is $5.'

"'Well, $2 is all you're going to get,' said Wild Bill.

"'Well, Rube, I'll just take the rest out of your hide,' said the irate cabman, and he leaped from his box and made at Wild Bill. Wild Bill punched him around the sidewalk unmercifully and wound up by knocking him under his cab horses, where he lay unconscious until pulled out by onlookers. Wild Bill walked quietly into the hotel. The proprietor, who had witnessed the fight, came running up to my room where I was having a nap and thumped on my door.

"'Say, Mr. Cody,' he shouted, 'I guess that gentlemen you have been expecting has arrived.'

"Wild Bill was a bad actor most anywhere, but he was an especially bad actor on the stage. Jack Omohundro, known as Texas Jack, was with the show, and when the curtain fell at the close of the first act he and I and Wild Bill were supposed to stand out near the front of the stage clooping rescued maidens to our breasts in the white glare of the calcium. But Wild Bill wasn't there. He was where he belonged. He invariably hung back in the shadows at the rear or remained half-hidden behind a painted tree or rock. His was a poor hand to pose or show off and hated to have a lot of people staring at him. One night when the spot light found him leaning against a painted oak in the background it made him mad, and he took a shot at the spot-light machine in the central aisle of the balcony, shattered the bulb's eye and broke the machine. The play had to go on to the end without the usual calcium effects.

"Wild Bill remained with the show three or four months. By that time he had demonstrated that he was impossible as a member of a traveling theatrical company. I tried to make him do better, but I couldn't do anything with him and he was released. He was glad of it and turned toward the west with a light heart.

"A little while before Bill joined the show he had killed Phil. Cole, a wealthy Texas cattleman of Abilene, Kan. Bill was marshal of Abilene, and Cole, who was a desperado himself, had threatened to kill him just so the frontier he could do it. They met on the street Bill's partner was with him. As Bill started to shoot, his partner stepped in the line of fire. Bill killed him accidentally, fired over his body and killed Cole with his second bullet. Cole's brother and a number of his cowboy friends came to Abilene from Texas to revenge his death. They found that Bill had gone east to become an actor. They boasted about Abilene that they had come to kill Bill and he had been scared out of town and run away. Bill heard of this talk and as soon as he left the show he started for Cheyenne by way of Abilene. He sent word to the Kansas town that he would be glad to meet Cole's brother and friends or any one else who had any scores to settle with him. Bill went into Abilene standing out on the rear platform and there was a great crowd at the depot to greet him. He was dressed in his most dondified style and looked extremely well as he smiled ploddily and surveyed the throng. He remained standing on above the heads of the crowd where everybody could see him for a few minutes and then stepped off upon the depot platform and shook hands with everybody. When the train pulled out he stood again on the rear platform and waved the crowd good-bye. If there were any friends of Cole or enemies of Wild Bill in Abilene that day they kept carefully out of sight. Not a shot was fired. Nothing happened. Wild Bill's reception at Abilene was a regular ovation.

"That little trip shot Cole's brother and friends had made from Texas to Abilene to revenge Cole's death was to bluff. They went to Abilene again the following year expecting to find Wild Bill there. They they learned that he was in Cheyenne. Cole's brother and two of his close friends started off for the Wyoming town. Wild Bill's friends in Abilene wired him to be on the lookout for them.

"Bill was standing against the bar of a saloon in Cheyenne drinking a glass of beer when the three Texans strided in. Bill recognized Cole's brother by his resemblance to the Cole he had killed. But Bill made no move. He merely fingered his glass lightly and watched the three strangers out of the corner of his eye. The Texans separated slightly and closed on Bill in a semi-circle. Get him now!' said their leader suddenly. All three whipped out revolvers. But—would you believe it?—they did not fire a shot. Bill was the quickest man on the draw that ever lived. He fired so rapidly that others in the saloon testified afterwards they heard but one report. His bullets found the Texans between the eyes and they fell dead in their tracks. Wild Bill killed these men with a six-shooter I had given him when he quit the theatrical business.

"Wild Bill was one of the best revolver shots ever in the west," Buffalo Bill went on. "He certainly was the best revolver shot in a fight."

"The men of today wonders why Wild Bill got into so many fights. One naturally figures he must have been a quarrelsome man. On the contrary he was distinctly likable and amiable. But out west in early days there were many men who took pride in bloody exploits and killed men simply to add to their fame. In the spirit of gamblers these men swore to hit each other to decide which was the better man. They hunted each other often and traveled hundreds of miles to fight it out with a rival killer. A number of these professional bad men tried to kill Wild Bill for the reputation it would give them. Other men tried to kill him as a result of disputes. Still others sought his life to avenge the deaths of relatives who had fallen before Wild Bill's revolvers.

"He was slain in Deadwood by Jack McCall on August 2, 1876. With a party of friends he had entered a saloon to play poker. The card table was in a corner at the rear of the place. Captain Durfee, an old Missouri steamboat man and a friend of Hickok's, took the seat in the corner. Wild Bill tried to get the seat first. When he failed, he asked Captain Durfee to let him have it. Captain Durfee suspected Bill wanted the seat to have a certain view of his hand, but he good naturedly arose and stuck the deck. Captain Durfee refused to give up the seat. Then Bill without more ado sat down in a chair with his back to the front door. In that position he could not see McCall enter. The assassin stepped up behind him and fired a bullet in the back of his head, killing him instantly. McCall was hanged in Yankton not long after. The fatal bullet, after passing through Wild Bill's skull, broke Captain Durfee's arm.

"Captain Durfee said afterward that he did not realize until too late that Wild Bill wanted the chair in the corner so he could command a view of the bar and all who entered from the street. If the captain had known this he would have surrendered the chair and Wild Bill would not have been assassinated."

COL. F. CODY (BUFFALO BILL)

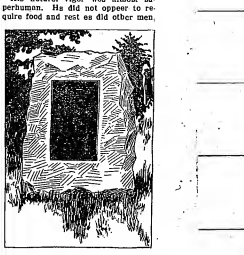
"WILD BILL" HICKOK

HONOR TO PIONEER

Methodists Unveil Tablet to Early Western Minister.

Rock River Conference Erects Stone to Memory of Man Who Organized First Methodist Church in Illinois.

Chicago.—The memory of Jesse Walker, the "Daniel Boone" of Methodism, organizer of the Methodist church in Illinois and first Methodist pastor in Chicago, was honored in a monument erected to him and his wife by the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church, south, at Plainfield, this state, recently.



The monument was formally presented by Rev. W. M. Ewing of Plainfield, pastor of the Methodist church of that village. Master Everett Davis Weese, a great-great-grandson of Jesse Walker, unveiled the monument. The acceptance of the monument in behalf of the conference was made by Bishop J. H. Hamilton. The final chord of good feeling was touched by Bishop E. R. Hendrix of the Methodist church, South, who made the address.

Jesse Walker was born in Virginia in 1792 and he was a pioneer preacher in Missouri and Illinois during the first third of the last century. After he had started the Chicago church, which was one of the landmarks of the city for years, and after he had served as the first presiding elder in Illinois he went to St. Louis, where he continued his work. He died in Plainfield in 1836.

The monument is of Vermont granite, six feet high and occupies a conspicuous place in the little cemetery. It was paid for by subscriptions of the members of the conference.

Jesse Walker was a pioneer in every sense of the word and his was a striking personality of the church militant. Whenever a virgin field with pioneer difficulties was to be entered, he was the man the bishops of his church chose for the work.

His natural vigor was almost superhuman. He did not appear to require food and rest as did other men.

Monument to Jesse Walker.

No day's journey was long enough to wear him out and no fare too poor for him to live upon.

He was a native of Virginia, joining the western conference in 1892. He was sent to Red River, Tenn. In his first year's work he gained 218 members. Cartwright, the famous circuit rider, his license to preach.

In 1805 he was transferred to Illinois, the entire state being his territory. He made a tour of the state on horseback and reported 218 conversions in the first year. Then he went to St. Louis, Mo., and made friends. At the end of his first year he had organized a church of 70 members and a Sunday school.

Two years later this church was strong enough to entertain its conference. The pioneer then went to Chicago and presided at the first Methodist sermon ever heard there. He also established the first Methodist church at Fort Clark, now Peoria.

FARMER KILLED BY MACHINE

Swiftly Revolving Knives of an Ensilage Chopper Cut Him to Pieces.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Drawn upon the fast revolving knives of an ensilage chopper in his place near here, Andrew Lendey, a young farmer, met a horrible death. His right arm was first severed from his body and in his struggles to free himself his entire left side, including the heart, was torn off. His brother had nearly finished his work of preparing fodder for the Lendey silo. Lendey sought to get a piece of corncob from the knife machinery in the knife box. The operators of the cutter heard his screams, but were unable to stop the engine in time. The victim is survived by a wife, a bride of a year.

Spanking Age 18 Months.

Kansas City, Mo.—The age limit under which no child should be spanked is one and one-half years, according to Judge Porterfield in the juvenile court. Paul Wilson and his wife were in court charged with spanking the woman's child, which is just under the limit.

"If I ever hear of either of you spanking that child again, or any other person spanking a child under one and one-half years, I'll put you on them in jail," the judge said.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1911. NO. 32.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Painted Meat and Aged Eggs in Gotham

NEW YORK.—Sinca tbs first of tbis year the state hurcou of food inspection has coedemned 10,486,778 pounds of food as rotten or adulterated. Most of tbo food condemned was le New York city.

The otber day tbn first of tbe group of offenders were arraigned and must appear for trial. Most of tbcm wern dealars froie tho' lower part of tha city, aed tbe ebargs sgsinst them alleged the possession of decayed cbickens, soured condensed milk, spoiled corned beef, dyed chopped meat, spoiled meat of all kinds, rotten eggs, bad butter aed decayed fruits.

According to reports tbero arn even worss articles in resteurants and stores, such as peinted fish, spoiled meat dipped le formaldcbydn ond redensd so as to look fresb, ice crsam containing wood alcobol, candles containing poisonous dyes and soda sirups msdo of coal tar.

"We hove foued hed hetter—a mess," ssys Dr. McMilisn, cbisf of tbn lespectors, "thot was a mixture of good and bed hutter or oleo snd bsd butter and good buttsr sll mixed snd treated so that it looked pslatabln. Ie ons of tbe cellers of a restaurant mae I found hams tbot he bsd bought ot a novy sele of rejected foods, and he bsd, in addition, many pounda of rottee. tomatoes. On ths staeda of street vendors we bave found a goodly amount of decaysd vcgetables and fruit, wbieb, strangely nnough, people buy.

"As soon as rottsn food la discovsred hy inspectors it is denatured by metbylnno blue or some liks acid, unless it is needed for chemical analysia.

"Mests can be trnated sffectively with formaldebyde. A plecn of tainted meat, black and melodorous, la often washed le tbe acid, wn find, and is then sold for good meat, red and fresh looking, as its treatmeet mekes it.

Indianapolis Has a Municipal Market

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Bnlieving that Indianapolis commission firms combleed to maintain bigh prices by keeping down the supply of farm products, Mayor Sbank brought a cer load of potatocs from Wisconsin aed sold tbem ot cost, plus a small sum for huyleg, bandling and deliverleg. In iess tban n week tbe price of potatocs dropped 50 per cent. ar a result. Tbs mayor has now proposed to thn council that it autborizo the employment of a municipol huyer to follow the sale prices of the dealars and tha prices charged by producors.

"I am convinced," the mayor said, "tbat if 25 of our leading cities would do this thn combiees that maletain higb prices could bn broken. Thern ere thousaeds ond thousaeds of hushels of pears and apples going to wasto in tbs orebards of Indisna hecausn tbn commission firms plae to keep thn visibin supply down aed keep up tbe prices. The samn conditions exist in other states and citios."

Tbs msyor bad chargn of tbn first car load of potatoes, and tbere was o remarkablo scenn st thn city market wben the first cor was sold. It had been aneounced tbat any one person could buy as mucb as a busbel for 75 cents, a pcck nt 20 cents or half a peck for a dimn.

As early as three o'clock thn crowds began gathering. Cnstomers went there on foot, borsnback, in carriages and automobiles. When thn first wagon ioed arrived oed tbe meyor announced thn saln was on, tbsre was o continual clsmor for potatoea until ten o'clock, when ths car load hsd been sold.

Tbn potatoes were sold by weight and eot by measure. There ere 60 pounds to a busbsl and it wes foued thet 60 pounda alwnys beepnd high a bushel measere. So witb thn measures of less denomination. Onn maa remarked he could huy potatoes at 75 cents by weight, ssil them at 75 cents by mnasurn and make money.

Prison Warden's Novel Experiments

TOPEKA, Koe.—A eew plae, ietended to givs Kaesas convicts a nnw idea of life, bss been put leto effsct at the Kensas ponitentlsry, according to tbn report of Wardee J. K. Codding to Governor Stubbs. Every mae tbat is sent to tho prisoe is given six months' work on tha farm just prnvlous to his release. Thn men get out in the open. Tbny ore taneed and sunburned, bsvn mors iiberty, less discipllno, get close lo eaturn and lcava ibn prisoe with ths batred of msn and laws gonn aed really waeting to try to livn hetter lives. Sieca tbe nsw system haa heen tried not onn relessed convict has come heck. Warden Coddleg believes tbat tbrough this system Kanses may gain a record for a minimum number of second-term men wbicb will be lower tban that of any other state.

Many yeors ago an island in the Missouri river was sold to the stata by some political sharpers, who medn a lot of money in thn desl. Tba island has never been used, aed tbe lands owned by tbs stata around the prison bave esver been used to any great sxtent for farmieg.

Warden Codding began work two years ago, aed thn first thing bn did was to givn the prisoeers bsif an hour's liberty each day in the prison yard. Tbe mee can do anytbing tbny wish dnring thnt half bour. Tbey can talk to eoch other end and the guard, play bsll, pitch horsn shoes, play croquet or a dozen other games.

Finds a $1,000 Pearl in Clam Shell

CHICAGO.—A $1,000 pearl, found in a clam baks aed subsequeetly forcibly iakee away hy tbe dealer who supplied the sbsilfish, was takne into custody the other dsy by Capt. Max Doeeer of ths police departmeet, pending a decisioe by Municipal Judga Caverly of e question equally perplexing as thst of the egg laid by the famous Maywood hen. As a result Judge Caverly waa expected to givo the correct answer to ths following questioe:

"If n clam dealer is ordered to supply clsms for a church dinesr and gives soms of thsm to a carpeetnr, wbo finds a $1,000 pearl le oea of tha shells, does the gem beoeg to the church?"

Our Lady of Lourdea church, Leland and North Ashland avenues, recently gava a clam baks and ordered the clama for thn feast from Frank J. Duggst, 70 Soetb Watsr street. While carrying the clams into the cherch Dugget gavs' half a dozen to Elmsr Thessn, a carpenter, whn was at work in the building.

Thesen opened onn of the shella and fonnd the pearl. Thereupon Dugget claimed tha gem as bis property, and an argument regarding tbn ownersbip followed, reseltieg in the dealer forcibly takleg possessidn of the pearl. Thesen thee had Dugget arrested oe a chargn of larcnny and the case was called before Judge Caverly.

After pondering nn the details, the judge auggeaied that thn pearl should rightfully belong to ths church which had pnrchased the elams. Immedietely Thesen and Duggst joleed ranks against thsir common contestant, tbs church, and refused to listen to any terma of settlement by which tbny both would "lose out." Accordingly, the judge continued his ruling

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

NEW BISMARCK OF GERMANY

Germsny has anothsr Bismerck. He is Alfred von Kiderlen-Waechter, who is secretary of foreign affnirs and who is thn big man in Germaey's foreign relations. It is he who set Europe by the eors over the Morocco situation.

Kiderlen-Woechter bes heeu secretary of smbessy at St. Petersburg and Paris and coueseilor of embassy at Constantinopla. Ha is a linguist, speaking tha leading lenguages of tha contlnset and being as proficient in English as le bis own eativa German.

Two years ago Herr Alfred was a comparetively littia known member of Germany's diplomatic corps, bolding tbo post of minister to Roumania. He was rated as n man of ability and force with a mora salient and sbarply defined personality tben tbat of the averagn government official, but thn public heard little of him. Recently he has heen tbe man of thn bour in Gormany and probably the moat talked of statesman in Europe. For the events tbat precipitated tba international crisis with its menace of impending war be more than any one else waa responsible.

CHICAGO BANKER ON PAROLE

John R. Walsh of Cbicsgo, who has beee paroled from the Leavenworth prison, wes convicted in 1906 of a violation of the federal banking lawa, tbn tecbnical chargs heing tbat of makieg false reports with refereece to tho fineecial status of tbe Chicago Nationol Baek, of which he was president.

Tbe liberated fleancier is now 74 years old. He wes born in Ireland in 1837, aed camn to Chicogo wben bn was 10 years old, beginning lifn es a nnwahoy. In 1861 be estabilsbed a news agency whicb leter dnveloped into the Western Naws company, supplying railway trains and country towns witb pnriodicals, books, maps and current literature. In 1882, beving bsen successful in various business ventures and investments, includieg a larga leterast in the Chicngo Herald, Mr. Walsb, togatbnr with others, established the Chicago National bank. After disposing of bis leterast in the Herald in 1895 be foueded tbs Cbicago Chronicls, which paper suspended publication followieg the closing of the Walsb banks. In addition to his banks oed tbe eewspaper, Mr. Walsh was beavily interested in a large number of propositions.

NEWPORT SOCIAL INSURGENT

Durieg tbe past seasoe there has bsen insurgency in tha renks of Newport swelldom whicb started a near ponic in the ranks of tbe "old guard." Tha leadsr of the social insurgents wes Mrs. John R. Drexel, who la here pictured, and tha captain of the stendpattera waa Mrs. Ogden Mills. Newport is to select society wbat Mecca is to the Mahommedans, or Benores to tha Hindus, or Jarusalem to thn Jew and to tha Christian—tbn holy of holies of the idle rich, whose bible is tbe social register duly stamped witb tbe dollor mark. Mrs. Drexsl would widen the ranks of tha selecl and admit many now barred from tha social paradise, where nobles with decayed fortunes matrimonially browse. Mrs. Mills would eoee of tbia. Sba standa for a closs corporation, so to speak, and would limit to 100 or even fcwer tbose who would ha entitled to enter tbe elect aat of Newport.

Tbus theae two women, who are taken seriously cnough by their followers, entered into a hattia royal for social supremacy. Supporting Mrs. Drexel are scores of femilies, fleancially powerful, but bitherto barred from the Eden of tha elect. Upholdieg Mrs. Milla ara nil thosn already witbin the ineer sacred precincts.

DESCENDANT OF THE PROPHET

Will thern ever bn a holy wnr declared by Islam ogainst her eeemies? Oee oftee meets witb refereeces to such possibility and sieca thn declaration of wer ageiest Turkey by Itely thesn refereeces heve heen more frequent tban for msny years before.

But tbere is little probebility of such a crusade by tba Mobammedans ageinst the Christians, unlesa in tbs event of e European coalition, having for its object tha dismemberment of Turkey in Europe and her expulsion from tbe continent. The authority for tbis is Mobammed Ali, whose portrait is shown, a descendant of the great propbat who founded the Mobammedan religion. Mnhammed Ali is now in tbis country and he ssya tbat a holy war will never be declarsd unless the diamemherment of tbs Ottoman empire ia threatened. Tben, hn says, there will be an nprising of the 175,000,000 Mohammedana scattered throughout the wnrld. Thnse are dwellera in Asia and Africa, principally, many nf them living under the British flag in India and nthers under the tri-color of France in northern Africa.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Drug Dens Are Found Near the Capitol

WASHINGTON.—Revenus officers end detectives in Washington raided four Chinesa opium dens witbin 500 yards of the Capitol and confiscated about $8,000 wortb of the drug. Tbey also secured evidence in the sbapn of bairpins, women's clothing and sboes to indicate tbat iba pisces wern frequented by iarga numbers of women. Tba relda wara the beginning of a series tbat are planned hy tbe autborities who bave been watching the activities of Cbieese le Wasbiegton for saveral months.

In recent raida in Loa Angeles, Cal., tha pollen bava uoearthed a new system of concealing opium. They wsre disnppointed in the raids of tbe past faw weeks for wbile tbay took many auspicious-looking packsges, all wera sealed with what appeared to ba revenue stampa used on hoxes of confectionery. On opeeing soma of thn hoxes it was sbown every ona contained opium. Boxes, supposed to contain Cbinese tes, were also found full of opium. Soma boxes isbeled ginseeg also contained tbe drug. Thn secoed ieteraetloeol opium coeference will begin Dec. 1 at Tbe Hagus. An invitstion from ths Netbsrlands government to attend hes been received at ths stats depsrtment.

Despita tha prohibitory law of 1909, wbicb mokes it illegal to bring into the United States smoking opium, opium smoking still prevails in tbis country to an alarming extent end is finding its new victims lergely in ths wbita population. This is msda possibla pertielly by drug smuggled from Canada and along tha Pacific cosst, and partly hy tba manufacture of smoking opium in this country from crude opium hrought in as a medicieal drug. Of thia smuggled article more than 250,000 pounda hava heen seizsd in tha last two yeara. In 1910 more tban 400,000 pounds of the drug wers hrought in ns medicinal opium. It is estimated that at least 100,000 pounds were successfully smuggled acroas ths border in 1910, and tbat 10,000 additional pounds ara monufactured annually from cruda opium.

Hughes' Palace Now in a Black Belt

WHEN Justice Cbarles E. Hughes of tbe Suprems court takes possassion of bis $100,000 homs, wbicb will bs finisbad in e faw wesks, he will bs the only wbite man living in tbn block wbicb bis bouss faces.

Soon after President Taft nppointed Governor Hugbes to the Supreme court ha cama to Wasbington end spent several days looking for a housa. He waa not satiafied with anything on the merket and rented a large, old fasbloned bouse in Massachusetts avenue for his first season.

For a long time bn debated whether he would huild le Massachusetts aveeue or Sixteenth street, the two most foshionable streets in the city. He chosa tha latter finally, and bought a good-sized lot on tba corner of Sixteentb and V streets. Tha lot bas a frontage le Sixteenth street of ahout thirty feet nnd 100 in V streat. In order lo bave an effective entrance he decided to bave tbe residence face V street. There wos no other house of any sort in V street. Tba property bad been beld for years at a higb prica and remaleed vacant.

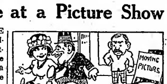
Shortly after work was started on both sidee of V street between Sixteenth and Seventeenth atreets was aeeounced for sale at n greatly reduced prica. Tha land bad to bs sold and was bougbt le by a speculative buildsr, wbo started tha construction of twenty two-story "box" houses.

Tbe housea wers completed six weaks before tbe roof was on the Hughes bouse. The houses did not appeal to white purchasers or tenaets, and wera promptly offered to negross, wbo hastened to iocate in such a "swell" neigbhorbood. Altbougb tbey bave heee on the market hut a sbort time, seventeen of them ara occupied.

Uncle Sam Has 8 Churches in Panama

ALTHOUGH it is tha commoe tbought tbat most of tha mee working on tha great Paname Canal left tbeir religion behind them in thn states, those who liva le tba Canal zono know tbers ara maey wbo observe tha laws of Moses and lead the same purn lives tbey did at boma.

When tba canal was begun family quarters were built, many man brought or sent for tbeir wives and ebildren, and it hos paid. Family life and the presence of good women in their homes hava hsen powerful influences for good. Tbese families coming from every state in tbe Union meant that schools end churches must be provided. Again Uncla Sam met the need, nnd at every town along the line of tha canal built schoolbouses and churches.



Eight chapels were built, aed every one bas st least one servica each Sahbatb. Tbess are two-story buildings with lodge rooms on tbe second floor. The room on the ground floor known as the churcb is cepoble of seating about 250 people. A pulpit at ona end of the room, piano and soma folding chairs constitute tha furnishings.

All authority rests in a body elected by tha people attending tha churcb. The executive council of the church in Cristobal is composed of men of every denomination. Tbera are one Methodist, two Baptist, two Presbyterinns, one Congregetionalist and one Lutberan.

The membership is mada up of "tbose wbo love the Lord." Membersbip in tba bome churcb is not changed.

Found Lost Fiance at a Picture Show

VISCOUNT JEAN BAPTISTE DE VENTURA, a French officer, strolling along Pennsylvania ovenue, waiting for tha tima to errive wben he would keep an engagement with a friend at the cepitol, decided to while away an hour at a moving pictura show. He started to purcbsae a ticket at the first theater on tbe route, but, instend of buying a ticket, he got a wife and hastened to a neer-by parsonage.

Miss Price Viscountess de Ventura.

Miss Althee Price was selling tickets at the theater, and she happened to be tha sama young lady with wbom tha young Frenchman had plighted his troth months ego, only to lose all track of her when he was called to France to settla up an estate.

Viscount Jeen Baptiste came to Wasbington a year ago and, hecoming financially embarrassed, got a job. He happened to get a position where Miss Price was working. He soon lost his heart and gave up his jnh to go home to gnt some money which hn had inherited. He was to return as snon as he got ths cash and make Months passed, Miss Prica moved to snotber boarding bouse, and wben the viscount returned with tba cash be could not locate her. After montbs of futila search be laft Washington and established himself in New York. He came here on business, still on the lookout for Miss Price.

When tha viscount saw Miss Price bis hat, arms and voica all went up in the air.

The viscount scoffed at tba mnnagar, and, arm in arm, ba and the eratwhila ticket seller hurried around tn the residence of the Rev. W. L. Devries. Tbe parson tied the knot and the pair left on a train for New York, where they will live.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - MINN

THE CARELESS SMOKER.

The average smoker is too careless in the manner in which he tosses burning cigar and cigarette butts and lighted matches about. The chances are that no damage will be caused, and he takes those chances. When a home, a business house, a city block, or even a large section of a city, is burned by a fire starting from a smoker's carelessness the smoker goes scot free. Is it not pertinent to ask why the law should punish a man for spitting on the sidewalk because some one might contract a germ disease as a result of his carelessness, while no punishment is fixed to deter him from throwing fire about, although millions of dollars worth of property and many lives may be lost if the butt or match chances to fall where it can start a fire. The crusade of the anti-smoke contingent is not making much headway as a moral issue, a movement for the improvement of public health or an agitation against the boorish individual who is discourteous to those with whom he comes in contact, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. If it should result in the ooestment of city ordinances making it a misdemeanor to throw lighted matches and butts about, and in state laws providing punishment where it is possible to fix the blame for a fire upon a negligent smoker, millions of dollars' worth of property and many lives might be saved. The behit of smoking connot be ended by agitation.

When does sleng cease to be slang? This is not a conundrum, but the inquiry of a correspondent who seeks to know what length of life a word must have, how long must it be used ood generally understood, before it passes from being, as it were, an undesirable alien le the realm of our words and becomes naturalized. Every schoolboy knows that "the herring pood" means the sea. Most people would probably term it an Americanism referring to the Atlantic ocean. The only dictionary habit duly admits the hyphenated word, describes it as slang, and illustrates it with "to be sent across the herring-pond; to be transported," says the London Chronicle. The word was used as long ago as 1763, when an English ambassador wrote from Calais to a secretary of state that he had "traversed the herring-pond after about ten hours' sail."

The hurgior will olways be about seeking for a chance to rob, and the police problem is how to reduce the ranks of them thieves to a minimum and make their work so dangerous that few will dorn to undertako it. Corelessness and forgetfulness on the port of the housekeeper make the work of them gentry far easier than it would otherwise be. The policu generolly on the best they can, but they could do far better wern not the burgiors offered so many golden opportunities for the work they are always so reody to do.

A one-pounder mounted on a gun carriage is said now to solve the problem of firing at aeroplanes. How such a weapon could be effectively sighted remains to be shown. The convlotion grows that efforts to prepare for the aerial battleship should be nlong the lino of perfecting the sight, enlarging the caliber and lengthening the range of sharpshooters' rifles, and training men for their speediest and most accurate use.

The seleurn of Dr. Richter, a noted German engineer, by Greek bandits who held him for a ransom of $205,000 will be apt to cause travelers to avoid Mount Olympus until assurance is received that the government of Greecn is strong enough to prevent such proceedings by the Greek National society, so-called, for the rejenlishment of the society's treasury.

A Boston Chinaman is going back to bis nativn land after having amassad a fortuan of half a million dollars over chop suay. We venture to predict that he will lose his head if he avnr trins to spring that American invention on his fallow countrymee.

Whnn we read how the aviators are held up by rain and fogs and other weather conditions it becomes more and more avident that an immnnse development must comn!n the flying machiias before it arrives at the stage of much usefulness.

In certain parts of the country farmers have been cutting hay with their automobiles. Unfortunately, it will not be possible for many of them to dig potatoes with automobiles this year.

One difference between joy riders and night riders is that joy riders sometimes manage to kill themselves, But they are both dangerous to the innocent bystanders.

AMERICA TO GET 3 NEW CARDINALS

HONORS GO TO ARCHBISHOP FARLEY OF NEW YORK AND O'CONNELL, BOSTON.

MGR. FALCONIO ALSO HONORED

Dispatches Say the Pope Will Create Cardinals at Consistory Nov. 27. —Total of Four Assured for This Country.

Rome, Oct. 30.—The pope will create a large number of cardinals at the consistory to be held November 27. Among those to be elevated are Most Rev. John M. Furley, archbishop of New York, and Most Rev. William H. O'Connell, archbishop of Boston. Mgr. Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate at Washington, also will be elevated, according to the announcement. This means that, with Cardinal Gibbons, there will be four cardleals in the United States.

It is stated that soon the American cardleals will be lacreased further, so as to give the West s representative in the senate of the church. Some time ago when the question of the appointment of another cardinal was under discussion, the names of Archbishop Quigley, of Chicago, and Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, received mention.

For the first time since the rupture with Frence cardioals have been elected from that country. Portugal, on the other hand, has not been recognized, Monsignor Mendes Bello, petriarch of Lisbon, having failed to receive the red het, indicating that the pope considers the rupture of the concordat with that country must have a retroactive effect.

More Italians Likely.

It is remorked that only five Italanx bavs been chosen, but it is believed that before the consistory in

MGR. DIOMED FALCONIO.

Papal Legata in the United States.

held two or three more will be added to the list.

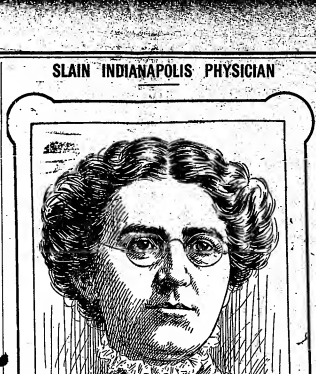
The last consistory was held in December, 1907, four cardinals then being oppointed. Since then mmy vacancies hevo occurred in the Sacred colloge by death and now there are 23 seats of the total of 70 unfilled.

Plus Has Named 17 Cardinals.

The proposed consistory in November will be the fifth held by Pope Plus X. On the deoth of Leo XIII there were 64 cardinals. During the last eight years Plus X has created 17 new cardinals, of whom two have died. Thirty of the cardinals who took part in the election of Cardinal Barto as popa also have died.

The first consistory of Plus X was held Nov. 9, 1903. Its chief purpose was thn raising to the cardinalate of Monsignor Merry del Val in order that the papal secretary of state could beat the full title of his position. The second consistory was held Dec. 11, 1905; the third on April 16, 1907, and the fourth and latest on Dec. 16, in the same year.

Others to Be Elevated.



Other prelates whose elevation to the cardinalate officially is announced are: Monsignor S. M. Cosy Hleches, archbishop of Valladolid; Monsignor Avico, papal nuncio at Madrid; Monsignor J. Granito di Belmonte Pignatelli, former papal nuncio at Vienna; Most Rev. Francis S. Bauer, archbishop of Olmuetz; Most Rev. Francis Bourne, archbishop of Westminster; Monsignor La Amiette, archbishop of Paris; Monsignor F. Y. Dubillard, archbishop of Chambery; Most Rev. Franz X. Nagel, archbishop of Vienna; Monsignor De Cabrieres, bishop of Montpellier, France; Monsignor Bisloti, papal major domo; Monsignor Lugari, anessor of the holy offices; Monsignor Pompili, secretary of the congregation council; Monsignor Billot of the Jesuit order; Monsignor Van Rossum, redemptionist.

STEAMER CUT IN TWO.

Freight Boat Multnomah Sinks in Collision on Puget Sound.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 30.—In a dense fog the steamship Iroquois, outbound from Seattle with passengers for Victoria, struck the freight steamer Multnomah off Tacoma, bound for Seattle, and cut her in two. The Multnomah sunk in deep water. All persons on board were saved. Fifteen head of cattle went down with the Multnomah. The Iroquois proceeded apparently unmanaged.

SLAIN INDIANAPOLIS PHYSICIAN

DR. HELEN KNADE

MACKS OWN TITLE

WORLD SERIES ENDS IN DEFEAT FOR NEW YORK GIANTS BY SCORE OF 13 TO 2.

INDIAN PITCHER IS MASTER

Sender Hurls Four-Hit Game While His Teammates Administer Worst Defeat of All—Three of McGraw's Twirlers Fail.

Philadelphia.—For the second successive year the Philadelphia Athletics of the American league are the champions of the world.

With a victory so decisive that it bordered on the ridiculous the great Athletic machine triumphed over McGraw's Giants in the sixth battle of the crucial series, a battle that ended after a pitiful effort by the New Yorkern and a brilliant tuesle by "Big Chief" Bender and the Mackmen.

With the victory goes 60 per cent. of $127,610.61, or $76,746.37, of which each Athletic player will receive $5,654.59. The losers will receive the remainder, $51,164.24, or $2,436.39 for each New York player.

Traveling in a batting streak which totaled 13 hits for 18 bases and which drove three of McGrew's flingers to a stage of distraction, the Athletics clinched the battle and the world prize by the lopsided score of 13 to 2. They made the giant defeat the more humiliating by its decisiveness, bonaycomded the Giant defense with a succession of terrific bits, outplayed as well as outhected them, and through it all, Bender loomed up the particular star of the closing combat of the prolonged series by holding the National leaguers to a skimpy four scattered hits.

The curtain goes down with four victories for the Quakers and two for the Giants, and with the conclusive evidence that the speed of McGrew's machine was not equal to the terrific hitting of Mack's star aggregation.

Leon Ames, George Wiltse and the prized Rube Marquard each took a turn against the Indian, but to no avail.

WATERWAY BILL IS KILLED

Ballot in Illinois is 69 For and 65 Against—Long Fight Ends.

Springfield, Ill.—The administration's deep waterway bill was defeated in the Illinois house of representatives, there were 69 votes in its favor and and 65 in opposition. The bill needed 77 votes for passage.

Forty-two Republicans and 27 Democrats voted for the bill. Twenty-seven Republicans and 38 Democrats voted against it.

The defeat administered the bill ends a bitter fight that has engulfed Illinois Republican leaders for the past three years.

Oklahoma Bank Is Raided.

Shawnee, Okla.—Robbers attacked the town of McComb, several miles from here, cut telephone and telegraph wires, then blew open the safe in the town bank. They got a large amount of money and escaped.

Rear Admiral Sands Dies.

Washington.—Rear Admiral James H. Sands, U. S. N., retired, who participated in the evacuation of Charleston, died at his home here of acute indigestion. He was sixty-six years old.

Is 116, But Will Cast His Vote.

Grand Junction, Colo.—The oldest voter in the state of Colorado and probably the oldest voter in the United States, registered here for the city election. He gave his name as Cherokee Bill, aged 116.

HAVE NEW THEORY

POLICE BELIEVE DR. KNASE WAS SLAIN BY FRIEND.

Missing Knife is Reported as Tending to Disprove Suicide—Robbery Proven Not Motive.

Indianapolis, Ind.— "If Doctor Knabe was murdered, as appears, I am satisfied she was murdered by a person with whom she was acquainted and that she voluntarily let this person into her apertment. But the theory of suicide must not be neglected."

With this statement Capt. William Holtz, chief of the detective department, summed up the result of the police activity in the investigation of the death of Dr. Helene Knebe, former state bacteriologist, whose throat was cut while she lay on her bed last Monday night.

Captain Holtz declared that he did not intend to reflect upon the character of Doctor Knabe in saying he believed she knew her murderer, if she was murdered. "Doctor Knabe's reputation was unblemished," said he, "and she lectured to young women and men on the necessity of social purity, as well as on physical culture and hygiene.

"But there are a number of possible motives for her murder.

"It is certain that robbery was not the motive.

Some of Doctor Knabe's own friends suggested to the police the idea that she ended her own life should not be found with the knife with which she was killed had disappeared.

They said she recently had been despondent over her debts, that even her furniture and instruments were the property of her cousin, Miss Augusta Knabe.

SENATOR WAS EASY MARK

Political Workers Fleeced Stephenson, Says Former Campaign Manager.

Milwaukee.—Because Senator Isaac Stephenson was reputed to be worth $30,000,000 some of his political workers thought they ought to be paid for their time and this was the reason it cost the senator so much to secure the nomination at the primaries in 1908, according to testimony before the United States senate investigating committee.

W. R. Knell, former sheriff of Milwaukee county, testified that as Stephenson's campaign manager in the county he expended $11,200.

"Why did you have to spend so much money in one county?" asked Senator Hepburn, the chairman. "Because the other candidates were spending a lot. We felt we had to meet them," replied Knell.

"If Senator Stephenson had been a poor man his workers might have thought only right that those who worked for him should be paid for their work," assartnd Knell.

Rear Admiral Sands Dies.

Washington, D. C.—Rear Admiral James H. Sands, U. S. N., retired, who participated in the evacuation of Charleston, died at his home here of acute indigestion. He was sixty-six years old.

SUING FOR PEACE

CHINESE IMPERIALISTS TO NEGOTIATE WITH REBEL LEADERS TO END HOSTILITIES.

WAR MINISTER IS OUSTED

Yuan Shi Kai Takes Command—Assembly Asks Popular Parliament—Gen. Li Yuen Hung Claims He is President of New Republic.

Peking.—Their navy gone, armies defeated or in revolt and their power crushed in a score of large cities, the imperialist forces at the instigation of Yuan Shi Kai in the Yangtse Kiang are to sue for truce with the revolutionists.

The announcement is made officially here and is regarded as a victory for the revolutionists. To bring about peace the throne must offer terms on a basis of constitutional government, and it is authoritatively declared that the throne is ready to take this step.

It is proposed to send government emissories et once to the Yangtse Kiang regions, the hotbed of the revolution. The government is said to have made such edvances already to certain of the rebel chiefs to learn their temper and to have received the reply that no copitulation will be agreed to unless it provides for a complete reorgantization of the govern. ment, including the immediate convention of the representative parliament and the appointment of Yun Shi Kai as premier.

The imperial assembly adopted a resolution to memorialize the throne requesting the immediate lestitution of a popular perliament, with the nobles excluded from the cabinet and the pardon of all political prisoners, including the rebels.

The rebels heve teken no cognizance of the new attitude of the government, however. Mgauking, the capitel of the provinces of Ngauwhei, 160 miles southwest of Nanking, has been taken and other mieor successes are reported from several sections.

Great excitement was caused here when a bend of rebel sympethizers set upon Sheng Hsuen Huai, the removed minister, and were prevented from assassinating him only by the prompt interference of the imperial police. He asked to be taken to the American legation, whence he was escorted to Tientsin by a squad of soldiers.

Yuen Shi Kai has been pinced in complete control of the imperial army and navy and will proceed to Shiyangchow at once to take command. He relieves Gen. Tin Tchenz, minister of wer, who has been ordered to return to Peking.

Gen. Li Yuen Hung, leader of the rebel forces, has informed the foreign consuls thet he has been proclaimed "President of the Republic of China." It is believed, however, that in the event of a new form of government Yuan Shi Kai will become the ruler of China.

FINDS CURE FOR MENINGITIS

Dr. Flexner Says Newly Found Serum Will Make Disease Less Dangerous Than Heretofore.

New York.—Dr. Simon Flexnr, director of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, announced to the annual conference of sanitory officers of the state in Carnegie Lyceum that epidemic spinei meaingitis could now be obsolutely controlled.

Dr. Flexner said the cure hed been perfected through the discovery of a new method of using the serum. It has been injected into the cerebral spinal membruna instead of into the blood.

"Influenzee meningitis in the child," said the doctor, "will, with the application of this new method of treatment, be no more dangerous as it has formerly been."

"It has taken a long time of money and e long time to perfect this cure. This is the first time I have announced it, as only very recently have I demonstrated to my own satisfaction thet the serum will do whet I cleim it will."

TURK TROOPS HEM TRIPOLI

Force of 60,000 Is Ready to Attack Italian Army—City in Panic of Fear.

Malta.—A force of 60,000 Turks and Arabs has concentrated outside of Tripoli, according to dispetches received here, and is expected to attack the italian force at any moment.

The city is tarror-stricken and hundreds ara fleeing to the country for safety. The Mussulman forces in the city are numerically inadequate to offer any serious resistance.

The Mussulmans intend to surround the Italian positions, annihilate the forces and enter the city.

Indians Bank Will Quit.

Montgomery, Ind.—After having met the withdrawal demands of a line of unsany depositors, the directors of the Farmers' National bank of this city decided to liquidata its affairs. The business has not been profitable, the directors announced.

Ingersoll Statue is Unveiled.

Peoria, Ill.—A statue of Robert G. Ingersoll was unveiled in Glen Oak Park in the presence of a large gathering of his admirers from this and other places.

BODY IS EXHUMED

REMAINS OF AVIS LINNELL BACK IN BOSTON FOR EXAMINATION.

Love Letter Now Forms the Best Defense for the Accused Preacher.

Boston.—Removed from the grave in the cemetery at Hyannis, the body of Miss Avis Linnell, for whose death by poisoning Rev. C. V. T. Richeson of Cambridge is being held prisoner, was brought back to Boston by order of District Attorney Pelletier.

Uncertainty on the part of the prosecution as to the exact manner in which the young girl met her death is reported unofficially to be the reason for the sudden move, and the announcement by the district attorney's office that the government bee enlisted five medico-legal experts gives some strength to this report.

Richeson in his cell received his sister, Miss L. V. Richeson, and two members of the Edmands family and with the eid of his attorney prepared a statement for the trustees of the Cambridge church of which he is pastor, which wes a refusal voluntarily to resign.

A love letter written by Avis Linnell to Richeson forms the best defense yet developed for the minister.

The letter was found among Richeson's effects at his home. In it, according to one of the lawyers interested in the defense, Miss Linnell asks the minister, as a friend in whom she could trust, to meet her ond talk with her about the serious trouble she was in.

Mock merriege os a part of a carefully pleneed scheme for the deceiving of Miss Avis Linnell was a new cherge which developed against Richeson.

WHARVES THE CHIEF TOPIC

Upper Mississippi River Improvement Association Begins Its Tenth Annual Convention in Alton.

Alton, Ill.—The tenth annuel convention of the Upper Mississippi River Improvement nssociation opened here with an attendence that was very gratifying. Among the delegetes were numerous meyors end other officels of river cities and towns, as well as representative business men.

The subject of improving wherves and terminal facilities on the river was the chief one for discussion at this convention.

COOK'S HEARERS MOB HIM

"Explorer" is Called Swindler When He Visits the Scene of His Triumph.

Copenhogen.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook's theatrical attempt to vindicate his reputation by a lecture in the hall where two years ago he eddressed the royal family and some of the most prominent people of Denmark, under the auspices of the Geographical society was the occasion of his triumphal entrance into the copitel, resulted in riotous scenes and a call for the police. The lecturer was compelled to retire by the back door.

GLIDDEN TOUR JUDGE SLAIN

Auto Overturns Near Tifton, Ga., and S. M. Butler is Killed—Two Injured.

Tifton, Ga.—Samuel M. Butler, chairmen of the American Automobile association and one of the well known men in the United States, was instantly killed about three miles south of Tifton, when the car in which he was riding was overturned in a ditch. At the same time P. J. Welker of San Francisco and his wife were badly injured.

BIG LAND PRIZE TO WOMAN

Mary J. Kendall of Rapid City, S. D., Gets No. 1 at Rosebud and Pine Ridge Drawing.

Gregory, S. D.—For the second time a woman has won the prize in a government land lottery. At the initial drawing here for the 4,000 prizes in the Rosebud lottery, Mary J. Kendall of Rapid City, S. D., was winner of No. 1, valued at $10,000.

HARRY DAVIS TO LEAD NAPS

First Baseman of the Athletics Resigns to Manage the Cleveland Club Next Season.

Cleveland, Ohio—Harry D. Davis, first baseman of the world's champion Athletics and lieutenant of Connie Mack, their manager, hen signed a contract to manage the Cleveland team of the American league in 1912.

C. P. Bryan Sails for Japan.

San Francisco.—Charles Page Bryan, newly appointed minister to Japan, who has been staying in San Francisco for a few weeks, sailed for Yokohama on the steamer Chyo Maru.

Bryn Mawr is Given $750,000.

New York.—A bequest of $750,000 was made to Bryn Mawr college by Emma Carola Woerrechoefer of New York, who died at Cannonsville, N. Y., September 1, and whose will was admitted to probate.

CANADA'S IMMENSE WHEAT FIELDS

THE ATTRACTION FOR THREE TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAYS.

Last August there visited the Canadian west the vice-president of the largest individual hardware company in the United States. As his firm have a turnover of millions, and deals extensively with farm implements, this man took a deep interest in crop conditions in Canada, and on his return he embodied his findings in so article for the Hardware Reporter. This article should be of special interest to farmers.

The writer speaks of the importance of the spring wheat crop of Western Canada. He might also have spoken of the importance of the oat crop and also of the winter wheat crop, as well as barley. Winter wheat during the past few years has been a great success, and experimoots have shown that it can be grown with success in almost any portion of the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. But apart from this, the spring wheat crop is the one generally grown, and all who know anything of grain, anyone who has had anything to do with markets, knows or has heard of the high character of this cereal and the splendid yields that are annually produced. Reproducing from this article:—

"In a land of such great sweep, and of such difference in soil and climate, there are many resources, but noos are at present of the some overwhelming importance as the spring wheat crop. In the interminable prairie stretches of the northwest provinces it is the one absorbing topic of interest and of conversation during its growing and its harvesting, for upoo its success or failure hangs the weal or woe of a large part of the Dominion. Its influence extends for down into the United States, drawing thousands of farmers northwards with the flow of cheap lands, but likewise beyond the great lakes, over to the easy going maritime provinces, coiling the flower of their young men to its opportunities. Development in these prairie provinces goes on at high pressure for everything hangs on the outcome of spring wheat. Success has emboldened the makers of this one all-important crop, and each year there is further incursion into those northern fields that only a short time ago were regarded as Arctic wastes. The Canadian Northwest seems to be one of those modern agricultural examples set forth to drive the final nail in the coffin of that ancient Malthusian delusion that population tends to outrun the means of subsistence, since in the only fear now among Canadian economists is as to the danger of overstocking the wheat market. Only about two ood ooe-hnlf per cent of possible arable lands in the northwest provinces is now under cultivation, and this year the crop promises to be close to 200,000,000 bushels, so that your imagination and your arithmetic can easily supply the ooswer as to the possible or oroo probable outcome."

During the months of July and August the weather was unfavorable and the production of o 200 million yield of wheat will not likely be realized, but even with this, the threshing reports coming to hood show that the crop will ho o splendidly psytog one.

Up to Date.

"I notice that young Doctor Curem urces nuteboynoats in his practice."

"Of course he does. Didn't you know he specializes in motor cerves?"

Thousands of country people know the value of Hamlins Wizard Oil as a best family medicine in case of accident or sudden illness for the safety of your family buy a bottle now.

Prudeot men look up their motives, tatlior families have a key to their hearts os to their gordens.—Shoestone.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets first put up 40 years ago. They regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated tiny granules.

The ons way to help a worthless man otong is to assistant a swift kick in the proper place.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

We always respect the opinions of a mao who keeps them to himself.

ARE YOU FREE —FROM—

Headaches, Colds, Indigestion, Pains, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Dizziness? If you are not, the most effective, prompt and pleasant method of getting rid of them is to take, now and then, a deserts poonful of the ever refreshing and truly beneficial laxative remedy—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. It is well known throughout the world as the best of family laxative remedies, because it acts so gently and strengthens naturally without irritating the system in any way.

To get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., bearing the name of the Company, plainly printed on the front of every package.

The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

ILLUSTRATIONS By DARNBORON FELTON

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY DOUBLE DAY, PAGE & COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

A Scotish young landlordcot becomes bankrupt on his bold, acrid wife of a drunken prospector in a western mining camp. They agree to elope in a blizzard. Their horses are found dead by the deserted husband. He is also found dead, his wife, but the chivalrous Miss Ruth Rutherford, who is leaving the scene of the crime upon Bonanza, the last flight from the railroad station the woman's horses fails exhausted. By much pulling her on his own and fellows hanging to the sleeve strap. Seeing he is an invalid, Miss Rutherford takes him to the station just as the train is leaving. In a long drawn out journey of years later this man, George Warrin, is a self-millionaire in New York. He meets Eleanor Haldane, a beautiful and highly intelligent woman, and co-operates with her in her efforts to get Burnly become governor of the state and the latter is instrumental in placing Warrin in possession plans by greeting after Berman, backed by the Gotham Traction Company. An automobile accident brings the Haldanes to Burnly home. George Burnly announces that he will run for governor. Haldane returns to the city from conference. Warrin has a long desired interview with Gormly, makes an indirect proposition to reconcile the fight which the latter has been waging in the newspapers against the Gotham Traction company, and which Haldane is suspected of being the head. Gormly declines. Warrin has plan of campaign in which Gormly will be a factor. Haldane, carrying word of a plan satisfactory to Gormly, returns to rates to the ride of the night before and Warrin comes to ride he experienced in his boyhood days. The papers announce his candidacy for mayor.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

"Mr. Poole, excuse me; it is quite useless to talk to me any more on this loe. My mind is made up, and nothing you can say, or anyone can say, will change it."

"Mr. Gormly," said Benson, rising contempt and excitement, striving for the mastery of his' voice, "in some ways you're a mighty smart man. You have built this movement brilliantly, but the position you're takin' now makes me regard you as, you'll forgive the language, a damned fool!"

"Mr. Benson," said Gormly, "thank you for your compliment. Your opinion does me honor, at least the last part of it. Let me say that I have been considering the unlikelihood of your stamp as damned fools who have done the good work of the world. Mr. Poole, Mr. Fitchett, I wish you good afternoon."

The disgusted delegation tramped out. The three men had to run the gauotlet of reporters outside the business office. They communicated nothing beatsoevr of the results of their interview to these assiduous young men.

Promptly, however, was more amenable to their appeals for an interview. One resolution Gormly had taken; to give the people the fullest information all the time about what he proposed. He was willing to discuss any public question at any time with anyone, and he had no objections to his opinions being quoted.

"Gentlemen," said Gormly to the group of newspaper men, "as has already appeared in the press of the city, these gentlemen who have just left came to offer me the nomioetioo of the minority party for the office for which I have proposed myself. I thanked them for the booor that they had done me; I declined that I should appreciate the individual votes of any members of that or any other party at election time; but I refused positively to allow myself to be tied up to any party, to be allied with any party, or to be the candidate of any party. I intend to make this canvass as an absolute independent."

"Isn't Mr. Poole a stockholder in the Gotham Freight Traction company?" asked one of the reporters.

"I know nothing whatever about Mr. Poole's financial undertakings."

"Doesn't Lawyer Fitchett desire to run for district attorney?" asked another.

"I am not informed as to the political ambitions of Mr. Fitchett."

"What did Bill Benson say to you?" asked a third.

"As a practical politician of large experience, he seemed to give me some advice upon the conduct of my campaign."

"Did you take it?" asked another amid the roar of laughter which greeted this reply.

"I am sorry to say that the cogency of his arguments and the force of his representations did not appeal to me as he expected. My methods are so different from those he advocated that it is hardly possible to harmonize our views or practices."

"I think that will be all this afternoon, gentlemen," said Gormly, rising to signify that the interview was over.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Quiet Meeting of the Dictators.

Early in the new year, at the instance of Haldane, a meeting of the inner circle of the governing body, popularly known as "The Ring," was called at his private residence on upper Fifth avenues, which he very obtrusively reoccupied for the occasion. The meeting was held late at night. The men summoned thereto came up town quietly and unostentatiously slipped into the house.

For many reasons Haldane's relation to the Sachem society was carefully concealed. He represented a distinct group of financiers and business interests whose relations with the party in power were most intimate. These relations in some instances were suspected, but their actuality had not been allowed to transpire. Haldane kept in constant touch with Liffey the boss; but no one, save the inner circle, suspected that the two were head to shoe together.

Haldane did not often meet with anyone but Liffey. In this instance, however, he at least appreciated the gravity of the situation, and had directed Liffey to bring with him those whose advice would naturally be sought on such subjects as he desired to discuss. He had also assembled two of the directors of the Gotham Freight Traction company, to wit, Van Slyke and McClonald, men associated with him upon whose judgment and ability he could rely. In addition to them came Liffey, grand chief of the Sachem society and the acknowledged and undisputed boss of the party; Cocoosli, the chief of police; Ruther-ford, the district attorney; Habberley, the street commissioner; and last and also least, Hon. Peter D. Werren, mayor of the city.

Liffey, as leader of the Great Seehem society, controlled the organization absolutely. The chief of police wielded the vast powers for good or for evil of the police department. The district attorney, through whose hands all criminal proeecutions must pass, was the safety valve of both the Sachem society and that portion of the people to which it looked for support. The street commissioner, who bed at his disposal more appointments than all the rest of the administration put together, used them primarily for the good of the party and after that for cleaning the streets.

The mayor, the ostensible head but really the servant of the quartet, was there because of his office, and he was in office because he could be controlled. From the point of view of the men present, he was the best mayor that New York had ever had. He was a man of some parts. He could make a brilliant speech, preside gracefully and with dignity at public meetings, and was altogether an admirable figure to head a great city in everything but morals.

Associated with these four intensely practical men and this prizer, willing figurehead were the interests represented by the Gotham Freight Traction company, of which Haldane was in absolute control, although the presidency was vested in another man. The interests of Haldane and his associates were not confined to the Gotham Freight Traction company. They had their hands on every public franchise. Their private affairs, of course, were vast and multiform; but with them we have nothing to do. Their alliance with the political party, for which they had paid and would continue to pay enormous sums, had brought them very material advantages in one form or another. All the trusts that make New Jersey their headquarters hardly equaled in wealth and control the organizations these man represented.

Haldane, from his early interview with Gormly, had an idea that in this instance the two forces to be dreaded by the ring were incarnated in Gormly and would rally about Gormly.

The Disgusted Delegation Tramped Out.

Now, of course, everyone of those present had read Gormly's startling announcements of his candidacy. Most of them had read them with amusement; some with contempt; others with any feeling of alarm, and even that feeling was not sufficiently deep to have awakened any special degree of anxiety. Yet the fact that each one had been summoned to Haldane's house, the politicians through Liffey and the financiers through Haldane himself, rather startled them.

The eight men assembled in the spacious library of the Fifth Avenue house. The curtains were discreetly drawn. The man had arrived singly and at different times. They were admitted by Haldane's confidential secretary in person. Cigars and liquors were provided, and the eight, from all sorts of differing social ranks, mingled freely together on terms of absolute equality.

The district attorney, for instance, was a graduate of Yale. Haldane himself had come from Harvard. The mayor was a product of Columbia. Liffey had started in as a poor Irish immigrant. The chief of police had been a saloonkeeper and finally the colonel of a Neticool Guard regiment. McClonald was a Scotsman whose shrewdness and ability had won him a high position among the financial magnates. Van Slyke belonged to an old Dutch family and had inherited a vast fortune, which his adroit management had tremendously increased. They represented American life with its opportunities and its possibilities.

"Gentlemen," began Haldane quietly, "I have called you here, as you have doubtless surmised, because of the announcement of the candidacy of George Gormly for mayor."

"You bet you think it's of sufficient importance, Mr. Haldane, for such an unusual conference as this is?" asked Liffey.

"I certainly do, Liffey," was the reply.

"It isn't the first time," said Rutherford, a man of exceptional ability and great distinction of manner and bearing, "that some impracticable reformer has offered himself for popular suffrage on such a platform."

"But it is the first time in my recollection," said Haldane, "that a man possessing the peculiar combination of business ability, unquestioned integrity, and unlimited money has put himself forward, and I beg to assure you that I consider him the most available man from the point of view of the opposition that has ever appeared on the political horizon."

"I don't care a cuss how available he is," said Liffey. "We can beat him, and we will. Of course, it'll take mora money."

He looked significantly at the trio of financiers.

"The amount of money that it takes now," said McDonald grimly, "is something terrific."

"I should say so," added Van Slyke; "like to cut the people doo't you?"

"Gentlemeo, gentlemen," said Haldane authoritatively, "I hardly think the discussioo is taking a profitable turn. Doubtless, as Liffey says, we can beat him; certainly we must do so. Probobly it will cost more money; that is, if in some way his candidacy cannot be headed off."

"Can he be induced to withdraw, do you think?" asked Rutherford.

"No, I think not, but if we made him some concessiooes it is barely possible he might, though I scarcely doubt it. He's all stirred up over the switch business. I have already taken upon myself to offer to use my influence to get the price demanded cut in half. He declined the offer immediately. I think he said he wouldn't pay anything except the cost of the switch and a reasonable sum—$40,000—for the privilege."

"I want you to mark, Mr. Haldane," put in Liffey, "that if we're mixed up in a fight, it's the extortionate demands of the Gotham Freight Traction company which has brought it about."

"My dear sir," answered Haldane contemptuously, "how are we to satisfy the demands made upoo us by you and your fellow members of the Sachem society and make a profit for ourselves out of the matter, if we don't make men like Gormly pay heavily?"

"That's your lookout."

"Well, you will find that it's also yours if we stop payments."

"Oh, I don't know. I guess there's others that'd be glad to enjoy the franchises."

"Now, Liffey," said the district attorney, who suffered from his official position as public prosecutor now more influence over the boss than anybody present. "Don't talk like a fool! You know, perfectly well that we are all necessary to one another; that we are all in the same boat; we all have to fight the some battle. Have you anything to propose, Mr. Haldane?"

"I don't know that I have any definite proposition just at present," was the answer. "I have met the man Gormly. I have—er—as you would say, sized him up carefully; I put him down for a man of indomitable courage. Whatever his motive may be, he is thoroughly determined upon his course. However small his experience in politics, he is a business man through and through."

"Then he debbie in Wall street!" asked Warren. "If so, it would be easy for you to form a combination to break him."

"His business methods are confined to his mercantile establishment, and they are purely legitimate."

"What resources has he got?"

"Well, I should say he can command perhaps a score of millions."

"Wlow!" exclaimed Liffey. "He might be a good man to tie to."

"You can set your mind at rest as to that, Liffey. He wouldn't tie to a man like you."

"Oh, I don't know. Pretty good men have found it to their interests to tie up with me, and they haven't lost anything by it. Have you, Mr. Haldane?"

Haldane looked his teeth. It was this sort of covert insult which was the necessary concomitant of his alliance which, in his secret heart, he loathed. Agoio it was the district attorney who interposed.

"I take it that this is a conference," he said equably, "as to what we are to do, if anything, to head off this man. You don't think he can be bought off, Mr. Haldane?"

"I am sure he cannot be."

"Well, then, he'll have to be fought down," returned the other; "for it is evident that we cannot afford to have the workings of the Sachem society brought before the public. The thing to be done now is to get together, keep together, and beat Gormly."

"You think he's got a chance, do you?"

"More than a chance."

"But we control everything."

"Everything but Gormly, apparently," answered Van Slyke.

"Yes," said Rutherford, disregarding the last remark; "but you know, Liffey, our control rests largely upon the indifference of the people. If they get waked up, it won't do us that."

He snopped his finger as he spoke, and no man contradicted him, for truth it is that on the indifference of the many is founded the power of the ons.

"We could still count the votes," onid the chief of police uncertainly.

"Undoubtedly; but if there is enough people interested in the affair the votee will be counted as cast."

"And we have the courts on our side," added Habberley.

"Yes, to a certain extent; but then are limits beyond which even our own judgee could not go. Therefore, S Mr. Haldane's estimate of Gormly is correct, and for myself I am rather inclined to believe that it is, wa are face to face with a terrific proposition."

"Well then," said Liffey, "I think the best thing to do, if you gents are all agreed that it's serious, is to pitch in e cano'kin. We went to have a man that's entirely respectable, and yet who knows which side his bread's buttered on and who'll take care of the interests."

"I think," said Warren tentatively, "that I have earned another term—certainly I haven't failed in any duty—"

"To the people!" asked Rutherford

"To the organization," answered the mayor with dignity, "and my private character is all that could be desired."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Fifty-six Years in One School.

Prof. Cephaniah Hopper, the oldest school teacher in Philadelphia, who is eighty-two years old, began his fifty-sixth year of teaching at the Central High school.

He was greeted by the faculty and by another generation of students, as he marched into the assembly hall the other day. He is as active as ever, still walking every day to and from his home.

The veteran professor was graduated in the first class that left the high school. After spending a few years at colleges and in special work he went back to the school as a professor. He has remained there ever since.

There are men all over the country who are now grandfathers, who remember Doctor Hopper as their teacher. It is estimated that he has taught fully fifteen thousand students during his long service.

Sounded Like Another Word.

Mand—What is woman's sphere?

Jack—That her hat isn't on straight

Chest Pains and Sprains

Sloan's Liniment is an excellent remedy for chest and throat affections. It quickly relieves congestion and inflammation. A few drops in water used as a gargle is antiseptic and healing.

Here's Proof

"I have used Sloan's Liniment for years and can testify to its wonderful efficacy. I have used it for sore throat, croup, lame back and rheumatism, and in every case it gave instant relief."

REBECCA JANE ISAACS, Lucy, Kentucky.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is excellent for sprains and bruises. It stops the pain at once and reduces swelling very quickly.

Sold by all dealers.

Price, 25c., 50c., $1.00

Sloan's Treatise on the Horse sent free. Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan Boston, Mass.

Splendid Crops

In Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres of wheat was the broker's return from a lawyer, Saskatchewan. Thousands of others, in all lines, did as well as a yield of from 25 to 35 bushels per acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS

HOMESTEADS FREE

of Western Canada.

Railway lands, including mines and coal rights, at low prices, should double in two years' time. Irrigated lands, highly productive, ensuring crops in all seasons. Ideal conditions for mixed farming. Over 12,000,000 acres will be taken up the very best within the next few years. Over three thousand settlers per week have arrived in certain areas. Schools and churches convenient. Good markets, healthful climate, unsurpassed water, fuel and building material plentiful.

For literature as to location, routes, settlers' rates, and descriptive literature pamphlet, write to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to authorized Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Office 315, Grand Forks, N.D.; J. M. Gibson, Box 287, Watertown, S.D.; C. J. Broley, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.; Geo. A. Hall, 315 6th St., Superior, Wis.

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible—they are not only give relief they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin,

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

WE SELL GUNS, TRAPS, ETC. CHEAP

Write for Free Catalog 105

Ship us your Hides, Furs, Pelts, Beef Hide, Tallow, Wool.

N. W. HIDE & FUR CO. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

AGENTS WANTED—Men or Gins to represent us in their county for one of our 30 NEW combinations. We are the oldest company in the clothes line sold in the market, giving a guarantee with every garment sold. Write for terms and sample outfit. Address, Wisconsin Co., Ltd., P. O. Box 837, Winnipeg, Man.

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for $15-$20 per acre. Improved farms $25-$50 per acre. Write for free illustrated literature. Information given as to best locations, settlement conditions, etc. Canadian Government Agent, Chas. Pilling, Office 315, Grand Forks, N. Dak. Board of Trade, Geo. A. Hall, Duluth, Minn.

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. Mail orders receive prompt attention. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

AGENTS WANTED—Good proposition for any man who can handle horses. Sell to farmers. Write for particulars. L. F. & MACHINERY, Chicago, Illinois.

BE A "GUN MAN" Our "Pioneer" Wizard Rifle shoots 22 short cartridges only, perfect accuracy for target practice, 25 yards. Price, postpaid, 50c. Agents wanted. Cat. free. Pioneer Gun Co., Box 1, Ansonia, Conn.

Pettit's Eye Salve TONIC FOR EYES

WANTED to farm on tree system land, with stock, by man with large family. Address, Box 22, ALEX., 315 S. State St., Chicago, Ill.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 44-1911.

TAKE A DOSE OF PISO'S THE BEST MEDICINE for COUGHS & COLDS

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 26 '09, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Taft joined the brick layers union at Chicago, and he had no right to join the hod carriers union, as it might help him to get a job after March 4th, 1913

If Eberhart calls a special session of the present legislature he should be prosicuted under the section of the penel code, that prohibits being a promoter of fights.

President Taft spoke against the recall of Judges at Chicago. it would be a hard blow on the trusts and corporations, if they should loose their Taft, and get the recall of judges adopted by a majority of states at about the same time.

A party of halfbreeds and Indians that came down from Red Lake Monday reports that the lake is high and is seeking an outlet through the meadows at the northwest corner of the lake, as the natural outlet into the Red Lake River is closed off entirely with logs. Such a condition of affairs is enough to make a man pinch himself to see if he is awake, when we stop to consider that this river is under the control of the war department of this government, who have sat down in their St. Paul office and allowed the logging companys to dam it up and kill all the fish and dry it up so the farmers have no water for their stock.

Power of a Picture.

We stated at the famous picture of "The Doctor" in silence that could be felt, and I tell you it fairly made me hold my breath and a lump come in my throat as I looked first at the suffering child and then at the kind doctor, with his grave face, and then at the father and mother in the background, and, as for Smart, I don't mind telling you I saw the water in his eyes, and presently a great big tear rolled down his cheek as he said:

"Isn't that wonderful? I suppose as a tailor I should be looking at the style of the M. D.'s clothes; but, man, I'm human, and when there is a picture that appeals like that to the great heart of humanity, why, I just forget all about my trade and think only of my humanity. Come on," he added. "I can't stay longer to look at that, for it reminds me too much of a little one I lost. There you are," he said—"there's something more in our line, Dr. Johnson waiting for an audience with Lord Chesterfield. Here's comedy, if you like. And now we may examine the clothes."—London Tailor and Cutter.

A Picture of Ibsen.

In Schurmann's "Secrets de Coulisses" is a picture of Ibsen at the summit of his fame. When Ibsen had completed a new play the Copenhagen newspapers announced the event with a great flourish of trumpets, and added: "The master will deposit his manuscript at the National theater at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning." At that hour the load between Ibsen's house and the theater was lined with people. The great man appeared with his precious roll of paper neatly tied up. As it slipped through the purchasers' legs the public gave a great shout. The philosopher acknowledged the demonstration with a grave bow and retired within doors with the consciousness of having performed a glorious mission. Every one of his ordinary acts in public was accompanied by something of the sort, and even when he set the curtains of the window were drawn aside so that his features might be visible to his admirers outside.

Cause For Thanks.

The Rev. Moses Jackson was holding services in a small country church and at the conclusion passed his hat to a member, as was the custom, to pass around for contributions. The brother canvassed the congregation thoroughly, but the hat was returned empty to its owner.

Rev. Jackson looked into it, turned it upside down and shook it vigorously, but not a cent was forthcoming. He stirred slightly.

"Brudder," he said, "I 'low it kind dat I got mah hat back again."—Editor Texas Journal

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 23rd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole J. Hanson of Hills Minnesota, who on July 7th, 1908, made Hom stead Entry No. 1301, Serial No. 04649 for Lot 8 Section 6 and Lots 3, 4 & 5, Section 7 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal

Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 5th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Frank Savage, John Olann Sordal, Olaf B. Hanson, of Hills Minn. Rivers Sarre, of Thief River Falls Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.

Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 30th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole O. Nesland, of Roland Minn, who on February 21, 1905 made Homestead Entry No. 9052, Serial No. 03097, for S. E. ¼ Section 29 Township 152 N. Range 49 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 12th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Oscar Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Hoola Minn. Amound K. Breland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 30th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Amound K. Breland, of Roland Minn. who on June 17, 1905, made Homestead Entry No 4186, Serial No. 04152, for N. W. ¼ Section 29 Township 152 N. Range 48 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 12th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Nesland, Oscar Nesland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Hoola Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 25th, 1911

Notice is hereby given that Anton Radinovich, of Mound Minn. on October 9th, 1911, made Homestead Entry No. 988, Serial No. 04081, for N.E. ¼ Section 18 Township 152 N. Range 46 W. Fifth

Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U.S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 5th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John L. Radinovich, of Roland Minn. Tom Lothian, of Hoola Minn. Laurans Wagnerawski, John Peterson, of Roland Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Sha Was Used to Storms.

The storm burst forth in all its fury. Great trees were torn up bodily by the roots, houses were unroofed or even wrenched from their foundations and were shrieked and raved with their children to pieces of fancied safety while strong men turned pale and visibly attempted to say unutterable evil. But in the midst of all this fury of nature one little woman sat cool, calm and collected. She did not appear to notice that anything out of the ordinary was happening. Now and then she raised her eyes from the book that seemed to absorb her, glanced out of the window and went back to the literary love. Afterward we learned that she was a teacher in a primary school and that she hadn't heard or felt anything she wasn't accustomed to.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Shark Stories.

A shark is very tenacious of life, and Dr. Gunther, the ichthyologist, has pointed out in one of his contributions to the literature of his subject that wounds affect those generally much less than higher vertebrates. A Greenland shark continues to feed while the head is pierced by a harpoon or by a knife as long as the nervous center is not touched.

A Norwegian antarctic explorer, H. J. Bull, gives a startling word picture of a shark's tenacity of life. This man-eater was caught at the Icelandic fisheries. His liver, heart and internal arrangements were removed so as to put a period to his career, and the thus mutilated body was then cast into the sea. He simply gave a leisurely wag of his tail and swam rapidly out of sight.—Chambers' Journal.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sept. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Andrew Hanson, of Erle Minnesota, who on November 10th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 8274, Serial No. 04208, for S. E. ¼ Section 7 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal

Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnsgaard, John Nelson Parish, K. Rime, Isaac J. Hole, all of Erle Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 27th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Enrick R. Rime, of Erle Minn. who on November 10th, 1904, made Homestead entery No. 9011, Serial No. 04233 for Lots 3, 4, & S. ½ N. W. ¼ Section 1 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 7th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Johnsgaard, Andrew Hanson, John Dahlen, Isac J. Hole, all of Erle Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin Register.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington] S. S. District Court,

14th, Judicial District.

C. Heilerman Brewing Company,

Plaintiff,

vs

Edward R. Olson, Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEPENDANT:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which said complaint is now on file in the office of the Clerk of Court of the District Court in and for the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, in the Court House in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, and to serve a copy of your answer thereto upon the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service, and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Six Hundred and Twenty-two & 45-100 dollars, with interest thereon at the rate of Six per cent, per anum from the 27, day of May, 1910, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Stanton & Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

9-30,11-6.

Notice For Publication

First Pub in the Sunbeam Oct. 6.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 2nd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole S. Sparre, of Torgerson Minn. who on June 13th, 1909 made Homestead Entry Serial No. 03693 for S. E. ¼ Section 23 Township 151 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Hislop Principal Judge for the city of third river falls Minn. at third river falls Minn. on the 6th day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Johnsgaard, Peder Nybakken, Reinhart Johnsrud, all of Torgerson Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 19th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin M. Anderson of Torgerson Minn. who on March 6, 1906, made Homestead Entry No. 1967, Serial No. 04116, for S. W. ¼ Section 29, Township 151 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigrud, Michael Anderson, John Smorik, Soren Bormasson, all of Torgerson Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

The Box Was Good.

Wife—Jimmy, that's a good box of cigars I gave you on your last birthday? Husband—Yes; I never saw a better box, my dear.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents. Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 20th 1911

Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Soren Hermansen, of Torgerson Minn. who on Dec. 19th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 1010, Serial No. 04387, for N. W. ¼ Section 25 Township 151 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Mikkel Anderson, Martin Anderson, Soren Hermansen, of Torgerson Minn. John J. Sherrick of Erm Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. September 26th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Oscar Lindberg, of Roland Minnesota, who on November 29, 1909, made Homestead Entry, No. 953, Serial No. 03907, for Lots 3 & 4, Section 31 and Lot 3 Section 32 Township 152 N. Range 49 W. 5th Principal

Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before The Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. on the 11th, day of November 1911

Claimant names as witnesses:

Adolph Lindberg, John Olson, Jernand Ryland, of Hoola Minn. Christian O. Lindberg, of Roland Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Sep. 29, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Sept. 26th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Soren H. Hermansen of Torgerson Minn. who On Feb. 15th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1008, Serial No. 04404, for N. E. ¼ Section 35 Township 151 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minn. on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigrud, And ew Martin Anderson of Torgerson Minn. John Mickelson of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register

"I had been given up to die by three of our best doctors,

I could not stand it to be on my feet and I was so swelled in the abdomen I could hardly breathe.

But thanks to Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine I am able to be about the streets, a walking advertisement of the curative qualities of your remedies, although I am 70 years old."

JOHN R. COCHRAN, Lewistown, Ill.

Better than any statement we could make regarding the value of

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

are these words of Mr. Cochran. He speaks from experience, the highest possible source of knowledge. If you have any of the signs of a weak heart, such as pain in the left shoulder or arm, fainting and hungry spells, shortness of breath, smothering spells, fluttering of palpitation of the heart, you need which for over twenty years has been recognized as the best preparation of its kind to be had.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

Sold under a guarantee against the return of the price of the first bottle if it fails to benefit. AT ALL DRUGGISTS.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

What teen price meat is a privilege, even if it be that of chief mourner at a funeral.—Lowell.

Universal Language.

Bobbie—Do you think we shall ever have a universal language? Stubbs—We have now, when money talks.—Philadelphia Record.

There's room for everybody in this big world, but we can't all have front rooms.—Exchange.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop, Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Right Goods at the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.— SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

She Was Biased.

Dubleigh—Was that you I heard fumbling at your door this morning at 1 o'clock? Clubleigh—At 1? I guess so. My wife doesn't get in about 3 o'clock.

The Paternal Idea.

Miss Rocky—I bet my heart last night, pa. I brought Mr. Poorman, Mr. Rockey—Huh! You didn't bring your heart. You must have lost your head.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to Inventors." "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE,
PATENT ATTORNEYS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Ballard's Horehound Syrup

Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Pneumonia, Influenza, Hemorrhages of the Lungs, Tightness and Pain in the Chest, and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Prevents Consumption. Relieves Quickly. Cures Surely. Contains no opium or other harmful drug. Pleasant to take. Children like it. Mothers recommend it. Sold by druggists for 24 years. 25c., 50c., $1.00. Never sold in bulk. Ask for Ballard's. Refuse substitutes. Manufactured only by A. G. Ballard Co., St. Louis, Mo.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Plowing is adjourned to April.

Miss Sadie Arndt is attending high school at Thief River Falls.

Miss Phoenie Wesner began attending the Highlanding school this week.

O. L. Clark drove down to Thief River Falls with a load of wheat Monday, returning Tuesday.

Will Vaughn, of firm of Vaughan Bros. was transacting business at Thief River Falls Monday.

The Highlanding school have just received a new lot of books and additional blackboards to enable them to comply with the law to obtain special state aid.

We are in need of money very bad just now and are calling on our delinquent subscribers to pay up. Please remit when you get your statement.

If you want to get your plows new layed, or your horses shod, call on Charles Eggerist, at his Kratka shop and get the work done right. Charges reasonable.

A. B. Mandt, of Kratka passed by this way to day with a load of cream for the Highlanding creamery. He called and added his name to our subscription list for one year.

Hyland Bros. are drilling a well for Wm. Parno, which is proveing to be a hard proposition, as they have to go very deep, and are striking many stone. Martin took a heavier engine down to them Wednesday.

Miss Genia Robertson, from Grafton N. D. is making an extended visit with her aunt Mrs. Ole Overum. We understand she has taken the contract to paint the new grocery for Mrs. Overum. Who says the Dakota girls are not hustlers?

Chas Kratzer is expecting his wife to arrive from Washington state next week and they will move into the Sunbeam residence for the winter. We shall keep the post office and printing office in their present location, but can be found at home on the homestead evenings and Sunday.

A poor cuss was fined $10.00 at Bemidji for catching a white fish out of season. If he had a saw mill in Thief River Falls he could catch all the fish in the Red Lake River at one hawl, and get plenty of men from that city to swear that he never touched, or harmed a single fish, but what said men was caused by the Red Lake going dry.

The river, what is left of it, is now frozen over and will soon be frozen to the bottom which means the death of all the fish. The lumber company's are the boss. They can close up Red Lake River at any time, they are o.k. for they have got the money. Our congressman and war department can not stop them because they are a rich corporation and have a saw mill in Thief River Falls.

Walter McAndress sent down a load of barly to Thief River, by his hired man, who met Miss jing down there who intertained him so well that he forgot to return. Mr. McAndress telephoned yesterday and located his team and had them taken care of and went down after them to day. It is affairs of this kind that would incline one to vote county option, or some other kind of option that would place whisky so far out of reach of such a that that he could not get a smell of it.

RAINED ICY BULLETS.

A Hailstorm in the Pyrenees is a Serious Matter.

In a letter to the London Times a traveler tells of a hailstorm that going up the pass in the Pyrenees. "It was as if night was preparing for us, more and more dense—a night, too, of strange sort of lurid and swirling clouds, of storm, smoke and thunder. Midway in the darkness was the clear and singular line of light, which in variously tells of hail. Except for the sighing of a small tree the level air was stopped in the gloaming fury, and when they examined the hailstones they found they were of the strangest sort of puzzles, with a central core and faces of purple, green, blood, and brass as gold balls.

"We, however, was merely the outlier. The real storm came later that and reached their seats. Suddenly the whole land was bombarded by great hailstones as large as pawn tennis balls. There fell with deafening roar on the canvas of the tent, and it seemed only a matter of a few seconds for us to be battered into the ground, 'mad and all.' An icicle rushed bath in front of their shelter. With its sides beaten down in places, was half full of ruined the walls cricket balls.

"When the storm had finally passed the mountain around were white with the hailstones. The hail was weighed. 'Six stones went to the pike.' The size was that of a tennis ball and almost uniform." Seventy sheep were killed on the heights above the travelers' shelter, and in a neighboring valley thirty-five cows and some mules and the body of a child that had been wandering in the mountains "were brought down by a stream."

THACKERAY AS A TALKER.

A Grand Oratorical Display That Did Not Take Place.

Thackeray was terribly self conscious and usually presented a very poor appearance when he attempted to deliver a speech. "Why can't they get Dickens to take the chair?" he grumbled when he had to preside at the general theatrical fund. "He can make a speech, and a good one. I'm of no use. They little think how nervous I am, and Dickens doesn't know the meaning of the word."

An amusing story is recorded of the occasion when, with Mr. Fields, the well known American publisher, Thackeray traveled to Manchester to make a speech at the founding of the Free Library institution in that town. The would be orator declared that, although Dickens and Bulwer Lytton and Sir James Stephen were to preside him, he intended to beat each of them on this occasion. He insisted that Mr. Fields should be seated directly in front of him so that he should not miss a single word.

Later, as rose, he looked at his friend as much as to say, "I'll show you what speaking is." He began fluently, was excellent for two minutes and then in the midst of a most earnest sentence stopped suddenly, gave a look of comic despair and sat down. "My boy," he said when the meeting was over—"my boy you have accidentely missed hearing one of the finest speeches ever prepared by a great British orator."—Some Aspects of Thackeray," by Lewis Melville.

What He Wanted to See.

It cannot be doubted that the saddest thing in the world is a man trying to buy in a department store a garment for a woman. Discouraged before he begins, a walk through acres of garments which are none of his business depresses him still further. Subservience are pitifully tolerant, even kind, but he seems of inferiority grown. One unfortunate who tried to buy a sweater for a wife who was out of town did at last rebel. His first mistake was in language. "Thirty-six chest," he said. "Thirty-six bust," corrected the young woman. At last in a hapless tangle he bought meekly what he was told to buy. Then she asked, "Is there anything more I can show you?"

"Yes," he said solemnly, "the quickest way out."—New York Sun.

A New Way to Religion.

A clergyman recently said, "If I were to start a new religion, do you know what I would do?"

"You'd go out and preach, wouldn't you?" I asked.

"I'd do something else first," he replied. "I would go to the popular song writers, writers of words and writers of music, and I would get them to write songs expressing the spirit of the new religion. If we can only make people feel religion, if we can make them realize that it is already there in their hearts, make them love it, we can move the world."—San Francisco Bulletin.

Her Suspicions Aroused.

"My father persuaded me to take a course in domestic science."

"And how do you like the course?"

"Well, it looks like ordinary kitchen work to me. If my suspicions are confirmed I shall drop the course and make father buy me a fifty dollar hat." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Buying Precious Stones.

In buying gems always beg, buy or borrow a microscope and examine the stone carefully through the telltale lens. Flaws invisible to the naked eye which depreciate or entirely destroy the value of the gem will be easily recognized.

The eyes believe themselves, the ears their people.—German.

Geographical Puzzles.

"There are lots of puzzles in geography," said the cocographer.

"Why, for instance, that the northern part of most countries got a reputation for being rather backed and more unchanging than the south. The Scotsman and the Yorkshireman was Lowe. France and their counterpart in the Norman, who is disposed to put away his phrases, his oratory and his business qualities, and father prides the latter and goes his headed south. Similarly the Prussian in the Scotsman of Germany. Northern Italy is a kind of intermediate, and the Lombardian regards his compatriot from Naples as a lazy and fractious child. And it always is easy to put people's backs up.

"And why, when a city stands on a river, is the northern half always far more important than the southern? Look at London, Glasgow, Newcastle, Berlin and Liverpool. The great streets and business and fashion and theatre districts are always on the north bank.

"Why, too, have all the great literations in the republic history gone west, and not gone east?"—London Answers.

Reasons For Pride.

Where was present at a certain big dinner in England many years ago an American woman of prominence who was somewhat annoyed by a tactless Englishwoman who undertook to insult her and who said:

"I take it for granted that you have no coats of arms in your new country."

"Of course no American family could have one unless it was borrowed from English ancestry," replied the former American.

"For instance, has your family any special cause for pride over your grandfather?" persisted this particularly tactless female.

When the American woman opened up and replied as calmly as possible under the circumstances, "Not much perhaps, only that my grandfather on my mother's side received Burgoyne's sword when he surrendered at Saratoga and my grandfather on my father's side received the sword of Cornwallis at Yorktown."

Pedaling Mothers Mend.

Infant prodigies are not unknown in China, and Chinese Buddhism finds it easy to account for them, says a correspondent of the London Chronicle. According to the doctrine of the transmigration of souls, persons passing through bodies on their way to the wheel of life (which retouches souls into the bodies of babies or animals just being born) have to cross a bridge. Before mounting the bridge they are stopped by an old hag called Mother Po, Ipdio in hand, compels each soul to drink a mouthful of the waters of forgetfulness, for which the popular name is Mother Meng's soup. Those who drink of this forget all that they had passed through or had known in their former life and thus on being reborn into the world are entirely ignorant. Some, however, manage to dodge Mother Mang and enter the world full of knowledge, which they display as soon as they can articulate.

A Stolen Kiss.

It seems strange that because a man steals a kiss his girl should break the engagement, but that is what a Germantown clubman is telling his associates.

"Oh, she objected seriously to my stealing a kiss," he said.

"Oh, nonsense!" interrupted one of the group. "Tell is too sensible to do o thing like that."

"But she did," the protested. "You see, she caught me stealing it from another girl, and immediately she protested that stealing was a crime of which she evidently did not approve."—Philadelphia Times.

Both Died as They Wished To.

Tennyson, who was a shy, reserved man, could never understand Robert Browning's love of society. He had been heard to remark that Browning would die to o white choker at a dinner party. The two poets died on they would have wished to die. Robert Browning in the grand Polazzo Ressonicco, with his son by his bedside, and Lord Tennyson in his beloved Surrey home, surrounded by his loved ones.

Spoiling the Game.

Bertie—I don't want to go to bed yet, sis. I want to see you and Mr. Shepherd play cards. Lucie—You wicked boy, to think we should do such a thing! You never do it then.—But I heard mamma tell you to mind how you played your cards when Mr. Shepherd came.

Suspicious.

Small Miss was two years older than the baby and had come to realize that the little creeper was likely to be in some mischief when quiet. One day she called to her mother: "Mamma, you'd better see about baby. I hear him keeping still!"—Chicago News.

Knew It Was Useless.

"I don't take much stock in these holdups. I have been out at all hours of the night and no one ever held me up."

"Some holding men must be mind readers."

FOUND AND LOST GOLD.

General Sutter Discovered the Precious Metal in California.

Still in part generally known, partly a mythical story, is that the discovery of gold in California was a comparatively small one by a resident of Pittsburg, a thoroughly intelligent gentleman, living in the soil of Pennsylvania all most interesting. He was honored both by his fellow citizens, who elected him to the legislature in 1834 and bestowed a rich gift of the commonwealth. His career is in the pleasantly amazing ground of little Lancaster county, in which he remains to spend the last years of his life.

General Sutter was born in 1803 in Baden, Germany, near the borders of Switzerland. From his arrival in this country he spent some time in Philadelphia, subsequently engaging in the vicinity of Lititz, where, in the midst of rebellion, he engaged in farming. Possessed of a roving nature, however, it was not long before he yearned to explore the great unknown land beyond the Rockies. After many years of vicissitudes he reached California some time in the early forties and stated a claim it was in the fall of 1848, after a heavy rain, that attracted by reflection the people to a small stream he made his great discovery of the precious metal. The news of his find spread rapidly, and the following spring the great rush from the east began.

General Sutter amassed a considerable fortune through his gold discovery, but lost most of it through unfortunate speculations. He returned to Pennsylvania in 1871 and spent his declining years in retirement, living on the pension of $250 a month voted him by the California legislature. He died June 18, 1880. Two of his pallbearers were Generals John C. Fremont and Ambrose E. Burnside, who had been his friends in California."—Philadelphia Record.

FATTED SHEEP.

Tells of the System Breed Welsh Ton to Fitness Needs.

It has been suggested that in the sheep fattening process, which is common in the vicinity of Damascus, one might be able to trace the original meaning of the Biblical phrase, "the fatted calf." Mrs. McIntosh thus describes the process in her book, "Damascus":

"The sheep differ from ours. When we show pictures of the latter to the natives they say, what animals they are. They miss the enormous tails of the Syrian sheep, in which the fat of the body appears to concentrate and which, after skinning and preparation, often weigh ten to fifteen pounds.

"During the summer the band of each family lives or eats quiet one, two or three sheep, according to his means, but in the night take little wooden stools and sit by the sheep. With one hand they keep the sheep's mouth open, while the other they cram in the leaves, forcing them down the throat.

"Twice a day the sheep are led to the village fountain in drink, and their coats are frequently washed. About the end of September the work of the women and children comes to an end. The sheep have grown so fat they cannot stand up. They are then killed. Their flesh is boiled with spices and put into pots for winter use. This nincemeat is eaten as a relish at festivities."

It Was His Mistake.

Mr. Newed (the week before his birthday)—Dear precious, here are six boxes of cheap cigars my wife has evidently bought out for a present! I don't possibly smoke such vile things, and still I wouldn't like to hurt her feelings by refusing. I'll just substitute a boxes of my best Havanas and throw them cheap ones away before she returns.

Mrs. Newed (the day after)—Oh, Tom, I bought six boxes of cheap cigars yesterday for my dear Uncle Joshua, the sea captain, who lives in Wales. I here just posted them to him. They only cost me 5 shillings a box, but I'm sure he won't be able to tell them from good ones. Why, how funny you look, dear! Are you ill?—London Tit-Bits.

Too Much Appreciation.

A biography of Huxley dwells on the annoyances which he suffered from lionizing. But the plague had its funny side. Huxley once wrote to a friend:

"I had a letter from a fellow yesterday morning who must be a lunatic, to the effect that he had been reading my essays, thought I was the man to spend a month with and was coming down by the 5 o'clock train attended by his seven children and his mother-in-law!"

Defined, Arithmetically.

"So poor Dinny is a dead man."

"O! didn't say that. O! touil you he was half kilt from a blast in the quarry."

"Well, an' wasn't he half kilt only last mouth fallin' down an elevator? How many halves does he got to be killed?"—Boston Transcript.

Quite the Other Way.

"Does your wife go to services to see what other women wear?"

"No," replied Mr. Cimrox. "We are now sufficiently prosperous for her to go in order to let other women see what she wears."—Washington Star.

If hero mean sincere man, why may not every one of us be a hero.—Carlyle.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.
NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited,

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. Sam'l Gilsen Vice, Pres.
Larry O'Niel, Abrhem Farquire, V. L. Cuyer.
J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Crupon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children, For Good Warm Footware Buy The BALL AND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE

DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W. G. Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

McCALL PATTERNS
Are the most perfect, simplest and most reliable patterns ever made. Only 10 cents or 15 cents each. Can be had of any Agent in Canada, or by mail direct, from any office in the world. Send for catalogue.

McCALL'S MAGAZINE
Is the most popular Ladies' Magazine—50 cents per year—and the subscription entitles the subscriber to a free pattern of her choice every month. Subscriptions taken at any time. Sample copy free.

Premiums. Every subscriber to McCall's Magazine is entitled to a premium. Send for list. Address, THE McCALL CO., 70 to 146 West Adelaide St., Toronto, Ont.

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the Improved

"Simplex" Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to introduce this lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

While today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) fast extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.
68 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

His Waterloo.

Kind Lady—Poor fellow! And how did you lose your fortune?

Tramp—I opened a livery stable in Venice.—New York Mail.

Kicked Out.

"Don't you like Marie's father?"

"I don't?"

"Why?"

"He's too demonstrative."

"How is that?"

"He puts his best foot forward too violently."

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been cured, to those who are in need of it.

In an interview on the subject a prominent local druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows immediate results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects many troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

A free trial bottle will be sent by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. Regular size bottles sold at all druggists—50c. and $1.00.

THERE WITH A REPUTATION

Doubtful and Humiliated Hubby Now Probably Believes Wife Can Keep a Secret.

"The late William Rotch Wistar, the father of American cricket, might also be said to have been a godfather of the feminist movement," said a woman writer at the Acorn club in Philadelphia.

"Mr. Wister," she continued, "maintained that type of husband who trents his wife like a child, refusing to take her into his confidence. I once heard Mr. Wister tell a story about a Germentown man of that sort.

"The man came back from a business meeting wherein the future welfare of himself and his family was vitally involved, but he declined to tell his wife what had been the meeting's outcome.

"'Oh, no,' he sneered, 'I can't tell you anything. You'd repeat it if I did. You, being a woman, are constitutionally unable to keep a secret.'

"But the wife, with a quiet smile, retorted: 'George, did I ever tell the secret of how you were led astray that summer the church conference met in Chicago and got arrested in a saloon for biting off the bartender's ear?'"

The Bishop and the Boy.

The late Bishop Williams of Connecticut was very fond of children, and it was always a joy to as young sters when he came for his visit to my father's parish. His anecdotes and stories enlivened the whole household. Once when he was staying with us he told the following story:

"One Sunday morning, just after breakfast, I repaired to the rector's study, where I was soon followed by his little four-year-old son, who climbed up on my knee and began to talk. Suddenly the little fellow looked me into my face and said: 'Bishop, do 'oo want to see my piggy book?'

"'Yes, indeed,' said I. So the child slid down and started to get the book. When half-way across the room a sudden idea seemed to strike him, and, running back and putting one hand on my knee, he looked up in my face and shook his little forefinger at me, whispering: 'Bishop, it's Sunday. We must do sin on ze sly!'"—Harper's Magazine.

THE TEA PENALTY.
A Strong Maine Experience.

Writing from a busy railroad town the wife of an employe of one of the great roads says:

"My husband is a railroad man who has been so much benefited by the use of Postum that he wishes me to express his thanks to you for the good it has done him. His waking hours are taken up with his work, and he has no time to write himself.

"He has been a great tea drinker all his life and has always liked it strong.

"Tea has, of late years, acted on him like morphine does upon most people. At first it soothed him, but only for an hour or so, then it began to affect his nerves to such an extent that he could not sleep at night, and he would go to his work in the morning wretched and miserable from the loss of rest. This condition grew consistently worse, until his friends persuaded him, some four months ago, to quit tea and use Postum.

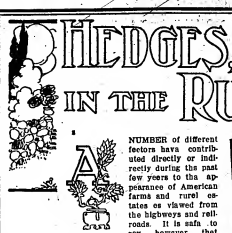
"At first he used Postum only for breakfast, but as he liked the taste of it, and it somehow seemed to do him good, he added it to his evening meal. Then, as he grew better, he began to drink it for his noon meal, and now he will drink nothing else ot table.

"His condition is so wonderfully improved that he could not be hired to give up Postum and go back to tea. His nerves have become strong and reliable once more, and his sleep is easy, natural and refreshing.

He owes all this to Postum, for he has taken no medicine and made no other change in his diet.

"His brother, who was very nervous from coffee-drinking, was persuaded by us to give up the coffee and use Postum and he also has recovered his health and strength." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."



Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

HEDGES, WALLS AND FENCES IN THE RURAL DISTRICTS

A NUMBER of different factors have contributed directly or indirectly during the past few years to the appearance of American farms and rural estates as viewed from the highways and railroads. It is safe to say, however, that nothing has been more influential in this direction than the improved means introduced for marking the boundaries of fields and estates. Nor has the provision of better facilities in this respect been confined by any means to the wealthy folk who have taken up country life as a fad and have the means to indulge every caprice in that connection. The common-sense, every-day farmer is fully holding up his end of the responsibility of providing a more orderly countryside.

Until comparatively recent years in most sections of the United States and even yet in many of the more newly settled districts, farm fences were considered solely from the standpoint of utility. This was perfectly natural. A homesteader establishing on agricultural domain or a sheep and cattle ranch in territory recently opened to settlement has other things to think of beside providing ornamental boundary markers for his acreage. And anyway he has numerous heavy drains upon his pocketbook at such a time and probably can ill afford to go in for anything fancy of such a juncture, even though he have the strongest inclinations to have everything about the place in apple-pie order.

These considerations explain how it has been that as each section of the United States has in turn been settled the pioneers have avolled themselves of the most economical means of indicating boundary lines. The farmer wants to have his lines, as readed for by a surveyor, marked distinctly, since that forestalls trouble-

ORNATE IRON FENCE ON A RURAL ESTATE

A TOUCH OF THE RUSTIC

LODGE AND GATEWAY OF A SOUTHERN PLANTATION

GATEWAY TO A FARM HOME

AN OLD-FASHIONED NEW ENGLAND RAIL FENCE

COUNTRY SEAT OF A WEALTHY AMERICAN

some litigation and heartburnings. Almost invariably the pioneer or early settler in any community was anxious to find material for his fences on the place. This will explain the almost universal use in our whole broad form domain of the old familiar type of zig-zag rail fence. And just here be it noted that it is an admirable type of fence, too. Cheap to construct, if the rails be split from timber on the place; easy to keep in repair; substantial and enduring; it is calculated to yield excellent service. This is the type of fence that Abraham Lincoln constructed and its fame may go down to posterity through the rails which are treasured as precious relics becoming in sight them.

The early settlers in stony districts, such as New England and certain sections of New York, including the famous Mohawk Valley, in many instances made their first fences of stone. In this respect they were in one sense ahead of their times because stone fences are constructed nowadays because of their artistic and picturesque attributes and are preferred by people to whom expense is no object. As a matter of fact a fence of loose stones was never a cheap form of construction. On the face of things it has always been an extravagance as compared with the rail fence, but the consideration that leads to its selection in many localities was that the land had to be cleared of stones era it could be tilled. It was no more trouble to pile the stones thus collected to the form of a fence than in a pile which would serve no good purpose and it took less time to thus arrange the stones along the boundary lines than to cart them to some distant dump. So the average farmer working such land killed two birds with one stone, so to speak, and set up fences that in most localities have endured to this day.

The appearance of the wire fence and particularly the barbed wire variety marked a new era in fence building in our rural districts. Nonody has ever contended that the average wire fence was anything very beautiful to look upon, but it has proven a boon to thousands of farmers in the west where timber was too scarce to be wasted on rail fences and where there were no stones to be cleared. The wire fence has been proven an even greater boon to stock raisers, many of whom must needs fence large tracts and who are not disposed to outlnke ever cost if they can get a fence that can be put up quickly and will stand hard usage. Of course the dramatic incidents of "wire cutting" days in the cattle country proved that the wire fence was as easy to destroy as it was quick to build, but of course that turbulent condition is not one that has continued.

And while we are on the subject of the wire fence it may be noted the regeneration of the wire fence has been one of the most marked features of the present era of more presentable farm fences. The treatment that has been accorded many of the old wire fences reminds one—in its ingenious expedient for covering up old material with new—of the scheme now so frequently followed in coating old brick houses with a layer of stucco or concrete that gives them a pristine freshness. In some instances ivy, roses, or rapidly-growing vines of one kind or another have been planted at frequent intervals along a wire fence—say at each post—and in a surprisingly short time the fence becomes a trellis for a luxuriant growth that is bound to charm even the most fastidious person and one to whom a wire fence is a wire fence. The bushes, shrubs or other hedge-making vegetation may be planted on either or both sides (preferably of the fence) and in a few years the presence of wire strands and their supporting posts would be a complete surprise to a person who attempted to pass the barrier, so completely will they be hidden. Indeed, a close growing hedge reinforced by a wire fence has a twofold value as a preventive of trespass by man or beast and many persons of wide experience declare that it is the ideal form. The hedge may be permitted to grow to any height and there is, of course, no necessity for a farmer to keep such a hedge trimmed in symmetrical fashion as is along with those in the formal garden of the rich.

The hedge, close-cropped, beautifully rounded and with no wire fence concealed is seen much more frequently that formerly as one traverses the most traveled roads in America. Such hedges, however, usually bespeak the indulgence of some wealthy land holder who is willing to spend freely for the sake of appearances. The invasion of the country districts by this leisure class, retired men of means and so-called gentlemen farmers, has also resulted in the appearance of great numbers of stone and concrete walls. Of course such barriers, likewise the ivy-covered brick-walls, are costly and particularly so when we take into account the massive gateways which have usually been provided in such connection. There is no doubt, however, that such walls add much, in the estimation of most persons, to the beauty of our rural landscapes. Indeed, it is the walls and hedges more than anything else which cause returned travelers to grow enthusiastic over rural England.

The iron fence has shared in the stimulated activity but the iron fence, alike to the stone wall, calls for a pretty heavy outlay, although if it is kept painted it will endure for so many years that it is rendered fairly reasonable in the long run. The picket fence, preferably painted white or white and green, continues to have many staunch friends among the farming class and the running board fence which is said to have originated in New England has spread to many other sections of the country and taken on a few frills suggestive of the designs of "barred pie." Rustic work when well done is always mighty effective in any rural surroundings and the picturesque appearance of the logs with the bark on is heightened by the introduction of some brightlued posies. Another latter day development is seen in the latitude now manifested in the height of the fences in the rural districts. A generation ago pretty much all the fences were about the same height. Nowadays they vary greatly. In some instances where the fence or hedge is purely ornamental its height is very much restricted whereas on the other hand it is not unusual to encounter a wealthy land owner whose desire for privacy has prompted him to erect—at least in the immediate vicinity of his dwelling—a wall so high that a man on horseback cannot see over it. A comparatively low stone wall surmounted by a high iron fence is another form of construction that has been introduced extensively.

HE KNEW.

Sometimes the proverbial "small brother" proves himself a remarkably well informed if tactless person. The brother of a certain confident damsel thus recently addressed a shy and shrinking suitor.

'Mr. Jones, are you going to marry Sister Ruth?'

'Mr. Jones (blushing and disconcerted)—Why, sonnie, I—or—I really don't know, you know!

Small Brother (with a giggle)—That's what I thought. Well, you are!

LITTLE RUSE DIDN'T SUCCEED

Youngster's Ashame Was All Right, But Economical Father Was a Match for Him.

The proprietor of the most prominent hotel in the town of S——, Ky., in a man of a very economical nature, in fact he is somewhat penurious in this feature. He has a six-year-old, red-headed son that didn't inherit his father's economical disposition. Recently the son was very much in need of a five-cent piece for soda water purposes. He went into the dining-room, where he was free from observation, and removed his shoe strings and placed them in his big pocket for future reference. Returning to the office he approached his father and said:

"Pa, give me a nickel to get me a pair of shoe strings."

His father glanced down at his son's shoes, then turning around approached the office safe and opened it in silence. He took out the cash box and raising the lid extracted a pair of new shoe strings, which he handed to his son without a word. The youngster took the strings with a crestfallen air and then to the amusement of the onlookers exclaimed:

"Shung again, by granny."

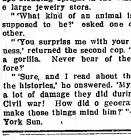
WANTED TO KNOW.

Life Insurance Solicitor—If you live 20 years you get the $10,000—but if you don't, then your widow will get it.

Mr. Knitting Hints—How will I know that she got it?

Astonished the "Cop."

Police Lieutenant "Barney" Kolehar always has a new story to tell.



"Two of our 'finest' were walking along Broadway not so long ago," began the lieutenant, unfolding his latest offering, "and their attention was attracted to the bronze figure of an ape standing upright in the window of a large jewelry store.

"What kind of an animal is that supposed to be?' asked one of the other.

"'You surprise me with your thickness,' returned the second cop. 'That's a gorilla. Never hear of them before?'

"'Sure, and I read about them in the histories,' he answered, 'sly, what a lot of damage they did during the Civil war! How did a general ever make those things mind him?'"—New York Sun.

Two 40 bushel crops of Corn on the same Land

T. M. K. Ville did this at Mereedes, in the lower Gulf Coast Country of Texas and Louisiana, Jan. 6th last he planted 6 acres of corn. He got 240 bushels, which sold for $1 a bushel. The whole cost of raising came to $33, leaving a net profit of $207. June 1st he planted a SECOND crop and got 240 bushels. This crop cost $36, leaving him a net profit of $204. From the 2 crops, one HUNDRED $408—not bad for 6 acres; and he can grow a crop of fall potatoes on the same land and market them before Christmas. This is not unusual in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas and Louisiana

Three crops a year is making money just 3 times as fast as four crops, and the Gulf Coast farmer saves more of what he makes than the northern farmer, because he has none of the northern farmer's heavy winter expenses.

Better Look Into This!

The pleasure of a trip to the Gulf Coast—Country via the Frisco Lines—is worth the little cost of going. On the first and 3rd Tuesdays of each month, round trip rates via Frisco Lines, over GREATLY REDUCED to any point in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas and Louisiana. The Frisco Lines operate splendid electric lighted, all-steel trains, daily from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Birmingham and New Orleans. Every day these trains carry through cars and on occasion will also carry tourist sleepers through to the Gulf Coast Country.

3 Splendid Books Free!

They describe this wonderful country from one end to the other; give examples and personal statements by men who have gone there and made good. Scores of fine pictures. Write for your free copies today, while you think of it. I will also send you information about fare from your home town and give you complete schedule, etc., all free.

A. HILTON
General Passenger Agent
1537 Frisco Bldg.
St. Louis.

DEFIANCE STARCH corner sticks to the iron

TRYING LUMBERMEN

FIFTH OF GOVERNMENTS SUITS IS BEGUN AT ST. PAUL.

ALL ARE NORTHWESTERN MEN

One of the Series of Suits Against Secretaries of Lumber Associations for Maintaining a System of Blacklists.

Minneapolis. — The federal government's fifth suit in its fight to break up the so-called lumber trust has begun in the United States court in St. Paul. The bill, was filed by C. C. Haupt, United States district attorney, of St. Paul, in Minneapolis, where most of the defendants reside.

It is directed against the Northwestern Lumbermen's association, the Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of information; an illinois corporation already under fire in another suit against the trust brought in Colorado; Luke W. Boyce, owner of a private detective agency in Minneapolis, Minn., who is charged with spying upon independent lumber dealers who had the temerity to violate the trade "ethics" laid down by the alleged trust, and the Lumberman Publishing company, a Minneapolis corporation which issues the Mississippi Valley Lumberman, a trade journal which the government charges has been the organ of the "trust" in that section.

Fred H. Walker, of Minneapolis, editor of that paper, is made a defendant, as are the following, as being members, officers or directors in the Northwestern Lumbermen's association.

W. R. Wood, Parker; Charles Webster, Wisconsin, Iowa; Willard G. Hall, Minneapolis, Minn.; George P. Thompson, Minneapolis; C. M. Porter, Cedarapids, Iowa; E. G. Filon, Minneapolis; O. M. Botsford, Winona, Minn.; W. H. Day, Jr., Dubuque, Iowa; N. T. McMahon, Fergus Falls, Minn.; C. A. Finkbine, Des Moines, Iowa, and John W. Harry, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

As in similar suits now pending against the Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' association, the Michigan Retail Lumber Dealers' association, the Colorado and Wyoming Lumber Dealers' association and the Lumber Secretaries Bureau of information (if members of the later organization being under criminal indictments charging violations of the Sherman anti-trust law), the government alleges that the lumber trade has been unreasonably restrained by illegal agreements and understandings which prevent the consumer from buying of whom and where he will, which absolutely forbid competition for trade and which has divided the country into non-competitive territories. It is also alleged that names of lumbermen who have violated the "ethics" have been published to the trade in the Mississippi Valley Lumberman.

The bill alleges many acts in pursuance to an alleged conspiracy covering several years and that some of them were perpetrated and in force ceased several years ago, but each act is alleged to have been part of a carefully devised plan by which first one restriction and then another fastened upon the lumber trade and when once fixed was to all appearances abandoned and substituted with one less iniquitous.

The theory of the bill is that while no one of the separate acts performed now might be taken as a violation of law, when considered alone, they are but a part of a general plan and that by the alleged "continuing conspiracy," an apparently harmless act is now directly contributory to the original scheme of restriction and suppression of which the government complains.

All the allegations in the bill, which is replete with exhibits of letters, lists, resolutions and minutes of meetings, indicate that the government is in possession of much original evidence.

The bill relates in great detail the government's allegation that dealers who insisted upon selling to whomever they pleased were constantly under the surveillance of the defendant, Boyce, and his detectives, who reported all "irregular" business to their employers—the Northwestern Lumbermen's association; that the reports of such espionage were sent to the lumber secretaries' bureau of information, through which they were sent to the 20 or more territorial organizations of the so-called trust, in addition to being published in the Mississippi Valley Lumberman.

The government asks injunctions restraining all the defendants from continuing the acts of which complaint is made. The suit is in direct charge of Clark McKercher, special assistant to Attorney General Wickersham, who has directed the government's fight against the alleged trust all over the country.

MINNY LEAGUE IN TWIN CITIES.

Formal Application Will Be Made to American Association.

Duluth. — The Minny league magnates, meeting in Superior, Wis., ordered their secretary to make application to the American association to permit the league to place clubs in the cities now occupied by the American association. Assurance is said to have been given that this will be permitted. The Minny league magnates will meet in Minneapolis two weeks hence.

FIFTY-YEAR LEASE OF CUYUNA.

Mine on Ironton Townsite Yields Owners Royalty of 50 Cents a Ton.

Brainerd.—The ore body on Ironton townsite, which promises to rival in richness and extent the iron mines of the Lake Superior ranges, has passed into the hands of John Helmer of Duluth, through a lease executed by Winnoes M. Krotter and husband, of Duluth, and Edwin A. Lamb, Jr., of Michigan. N. T. The lease runs for fifty years and provides 50 cents a ton royalty on all ore mined, payable every three months.

Iron ore running steadily from 64 per cent to 67 per cent to a depth of several hundred feet, is rarely encountered and is in strange contrast with the persistent statements for a long time made by certain iron interests that the ores of the Cuyuna wars all low grade. It is understood Mr. Helmer will carry the lease, for the present, at least, although several eastern furnacemen are negotiating for the ore.

This ore body is at the extreme northeastern of the townsite of Ironton. A little white schoolhouse, built years ago by pioneer settlers and familiar to all who have traveled through that section of the iron range, stands on top of what promises to be one of the richest mines of Minnesota, while as if marking the progress of events, a modern school building of commanding appearance and proportion faces boldly up Ironton avenue, a half mile distant. Mining men assert that Helmer will make a million on this lease, while the fee owners, the Hill and Lamb families, will receive large incomes through royalties.

MILLIONS MADE IN DAIRYING.

Returns From Blue Earth County for Six Years Shows Big Total.

St. Paul.—Blue Earth county farmers have received nearly $2,500,000 for milk sold to their local creameries in the last six years, according to figures compiled by the state dairy and food department. The figures reported to the department, which show a steady increase from a little more than $500,000 in 1910, are typical of the growth of the dairy industry in nearly every county in the state, according to F. W. McIntosh, secretary of the commission.

The annual reports of the creameries are slow in coming in, and Blue Earth is one of the few counties that have furnished complete statistics. The figures from Blue Earth county for the six years follow:

Year.	Number of Creameries.	Paid Patrons for Butter Fat.	Pounds Butter Made.
1905	18	$207,197.48	1,207,743
1906	19	226,443.79	1,765,576
1907	17	251,690.40	1,670,766
1908	17	254,150.49	1,693,165
1909	18	314,433.25	1,937,450
1910	19	622,943.51	3,967,609
Totals	.....	$1,919,747.92	$12,242,289

CHURCH WOMEN ORGANIZE.

Women's Auxiliaries of the Mankato Deanery Meet at Mankato.

Mankato—At a meeting of representatives of the women's auxiliaries of the Episcopal church in the Mankato deanery, a permanent organization was perfected by the election of the following officers: President, Mrs. W. D. Stires of St. Peter; vice president, Mrs. William M. Streder of Mankato; secretary, Mrs. Frederick P. Nutter of St. Peter; treasurar, Mrs. Ada Pfeffer of Mankato.

The organization represents twenty-two congregations in the southwestern portion of the state, and it is the intention to hold yearly meetings each year. Fifteen delegates from outside towns attended the meeting and were entertained at dinner by the ladies of St. John's Episcopal church. Mrs. H. A. Tomlinson of St. Peter made a report of the women's auxiliary of her church and told of the work being done.

The object of the new organization is to increase and make more efficient the work of the women in commissions in this deanary.

ORE CANCELLATION JAN. 1, 1915.

Steel Corporation Decides to Give Hill Three Years' Notice.

Duluth. — The official announcement of the United States Steel corporation's decision to cancel the Hill ore leases was handed out here by W. J. Olcott, president of the Oliver Mining company, upon his return from New York, where he had attended a conference of officials of the subsidiary companies.

"The lease calls for the giving of at least three years' notice of the intention to cancel and that will be given very shortly," said Mr. Olcott. "The cancellation will take effect Jan. 1, 1915. The directors considered the proposition very carefully and decided that this was the right thing to do."

In the interval it is intimated that mining operations will be vigorously prosecuted upon the various properties, it being the aim of the corporation to reimburse itself for the large outlays made in stripping and developing the mines. This will mean the employment of several hundreds of additional men at the several points.

BROTHERS DENY ARSON CHARGE.

Geraids Twins of Blackduck, Demand Separate Trials.

Bemidji. — E. E. Geralds and Edwin Geralds, twin brothers of this city, accused of arson in the third degree in the burning last April of a building which they owned at Blackduck, each entered pleas of not guilty through their attorney, George H. Spear of Grand Rapids. Mr. Spear has demanded separate trials for the Geralds boys and that their cases be taken up at once.

RATE WAR FOR ORE BUSINESS

RESULT OF COMPETITION FOR CUYUNA RANGE TONNAGE.

Hill Road to Run Spur to Properties—D., M. & N. Announces Cut Rats.

Duluth. — Of extremely vital importance to shippers of ore is the announcement made by prominent mining men of this district that the Northern Pacific railroad will run spurs to the Cuyuna range and compete with the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie road for the ore business there. It is further stated that a rate war will result.

The fight for tonnage promises to be a long struggle. The competition will mean lower rates on ore from the Cuyuna, the building of new ore docks by both roads and the immediate development of several new ore properties on the Cuyuna.

That may be considered was the first tentative step taken in the Soo-Northern Pacific fight is the movement made by the Soo last week when it engaged contractors to drive test piles for a proposed extension of 600 feet to the new Soo docks, which were built last year in St. Louis bay.

The Northern Pacific has through a subsidiary or holding corporation known as the Northwestern Development company, virtually obtained control of the bulk of the best ore properties on the south range of the Cuyuna range, which is tributary to the Northern Pacific lines.

Local men who have keenly watched the Cuyuna range say that the Northern Pacific has enough tonnage in sight at its present time to keep the railroad busy hauling for the next 25 years.

W. A. McGonegle, president of the Duluth, Missaba & Northern railroad, officially informed the state railroad and warehouse commission that the road would file a reduced rate for iron ore. He said the new rate would be 60 cents per ton for all hard ore. Soft iron Ranga rate varies from 80 cents to $1 per ton. The Great Northern railroad has a flat rate of 80 cents. At present tha rata from Ely to Two Harbors is $1 a ton and from Tower 90 cents a ton.

The reduction will mean a heavy cut in the state revenues, though it would not be felt this year. A 25 per cent reduction, ha said, would mean a shrinkage of about $250,000.

TAFT IN MINNESOTA.

President Spends Two Days in the Twin Cities.

Minneapolis. — After finishing his South Dakota tour, which was about as successful as any on his long trip, President Taft came into Minnesota for two days. His first stop was at Mankato. Brief stops also were made at St. Peter, Bells Plains and Hastopes, arriving at Minneapolis in time to speak at the auditorium at night.

The night was spent there and Wednesday morning he inspected the suburb of Wyzata on Lake Minnetonka where it has been proposed to erect the summer White House. At 11 a. m. the president spoke to the students of the state university, after which he was taken on a sight seeing tour of the Twin Cities.

Wednesday night ha spoke at the St. Paul auditorium and then went into Wisconsin.

MASONS TO CONFER DEGREES

Scottish Rite Reunion Nov. 6 to 9 Followed by Shrine Ceremonial.

Minneapolis.—Scottish Rite Masons will be engaged Nov. 6 to 9 in conferring Masonic degrees from fourth to thirty-second. The Shrine will have a ceremonial session Nov. 10 at which "unregenarate sons of the desert" will have their eyes opened. Degrees will be conferred as follows: Nov. 6, fourth to fourteenth degrees, Kreisling Lodge of Perfection, No. 2, C. A. Erdmann, honorary thirty-third degree, venerable master; Nov. 7, fifteenth to eighteenth degrees, St. Vincent da Paul chapter Rose Croix, No. 2, E. E. Nicholson, wise master; Nov. 8, nineteenth to thirtieth degrees, Alfred Elisha Ames council, Knights of Kadosh, No. 2, A. B. Darling, commander; Nov. 9, thirty-first and thirty second degrees, Minneapolis consistory, No. 2, C. C. Reynolds, master of Kadosh.

Peterson a Candidate.

Moorhead. — Former State Senator F. H. Peterson, of this city, intends to be a candidate for congress against Halvor Steenerson. For saveral years he was sent to the senate from this district, but in the campaign last year was defeated by Charles S. Barden, of Barnesville.

Two Officials Resign.

Fergus Falls.—City Justice B. J. Johnson has tendered his resignation to the city council and Alderman Steva Butler resigned as alderman from the fourth ward and was elected to succeed him. The council will now elect an alderman to succeed Butler.

Pipestone is Hard Up.

Pipestone.—Because of loans losses sustained by reason of the recent hail-storm which passed over Pipestone the council has decided to make no contribution towards the fund for the relief of the flood sufferers at Black River Falls.

Hunter Drowns in Lake.

Faribault. — George Medina, an automobile machinist, was drowned in Wells lake just outside of the city limits. Medina was hunting ducks when the boat capsized.

WAIL OF MODERN BENEDICT

Adaptation That Aims to Set Forth the Trials and Tribulations That Beset Life.

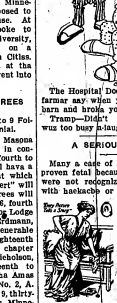
1. My wife is my boss, I shell not delay.

2. She maketh me lie down behind the bed when the swell company comes, and she leadeth me behind her up Main street.

3. She restoreth my pocketbook after she has spent all its contents on hobble skirts and theater tickets, and she leadeth me up the main aisle of church for her pew hat's sake.

4. Yea, though I walk more than half the night through dark rooms with a crying baby, I will get no rest, for she is behind me; her broomstick and her hatpin they do everything else but comfort me.

5. She prepareth a cold snack for me, then maketh a bee-line for an all-night supper. She anointeth my head with the rolling pin occasionally. My arms runneth over with bundles before she is half done her shopping.



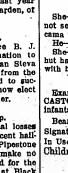
6. Surely her dressmakers and millinery bills shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the house of my wife forever.—Exchange.

BABY'S TERRIBLE SUFFERING

"When my baby was six months old his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scabs would come off when I removed his shirt.

"We tried a great many remedies, but nothing would help him, till a friend recommended me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered almost six months before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other remedies and doctors, too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more."—(Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodson, Mont., Jan. 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 18 K, Boston.

NOT SYMPATHETIC.



The Hospital Doctor—What did the fiend who threw you full out of his barn and broke your arm?

Tramp—Didn't say nothin'. Ha wuz too busy a-laughin'.

A SERIOUS ERROR.

Many a case of kidney disease has proven fatal because the symptoms were not recognized. If you suffer with backache or bladder irregularities, follow the advice of Mrs. H. S. Woods, 615 11th St., Aurora, Nebr. She says Mrs. Woods: "I was in a critical condition. My ankles were so swollen with dropsy, I could not wear my shoes. Four-teen weeks prior to taking Doan's Kidney Pills, I was confined to bed practically helpless. They made me feel like a new woman and soon I was doing my work the same as ever."

"When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S." 50c a box at all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Bad Sign.

She—If I marry you, dear, I would not send for that plumber again who came today. He's too inexperienced.

He—Didn't he do the work all right, but he brought all the tools he needed with him.

Important to Mothers
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for Infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

A Cross-Reference.

Mistress—Have you a reference?

Bridget—Foine; Oi held the poker over her till I got it.—Harper's Bazar.

Loss of Appetite

Is loss of vitality, vigor or tone, and is often a forerunner of prostrating disease.

It is serious and especially so to people that must keep up and going or get behindhand.

The best medicine to take for it is the great constitutional remedy

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which purifies and enriches the blood and builds up the whole system.

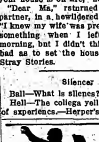
Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

DEFIANCE STARCH starches more with less and starches clothes nicest.

Hardy, as Bid as That.

The boy whose business it was to answer the telephone rushed into the room of the senior partner.

"Just got a message saying that your house is on fire," he said.



"Dear Me," returned the senior partner, in a bewildered sort of way. "I knew my wife was pretty hot about something when I left home this morning, but I didn't think it was so bad as to set the house on fire!"—Stray Stories.

Silence!

Ball—What is silence?

Hall—The college yell of the school of experience.—Harper's Bazar.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics nor alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Sylvatica), Black Cherry bark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no druggists could imitate.

This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fevers; for the run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

FOR PINK EYE
DISTEMPER
CATARRHAL FEVER AND ALL NOSE
AND THROAT DISEASES

Cures the sick and acts as a preventive for others. Liquid given on the tongue. Safe for breed mares and all others. Preventive, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle; $5.00 and $10.00 the dozen. Sold by all druggists or horse goods dealers, or sent express paid, by the manufacturers.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists, GOSHEN, INDIANA

The Famous Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

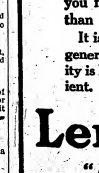
Rayo lamps and lanterns give most light for the oil used.
The light is strong and steady. A Rayo never flickers.
Materials and workmanship are the best. Rayo lamps and lanterns last.
Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps and lanterns, or write for illustrated booklet to any agency of
Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS
$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

Men and Women wear W.L.Douglas shoes because they are the best shoes produced in this country for the price they are asking them. Take no other make.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR OVER 30 YEARS



The assurance that goes with an established reputation is your assurance in buying W. L. Douglas shoes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W.L.Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other shoes at the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom.

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes in your town, write for catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W.L. DOUGLAS, 146 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $2, $2.50 or $3.00 SHOES sent direct on receipt of price.
TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes wear out one pair of mine.
Fast Color Eyelets Used Exclusively

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Smokeless Odorless Clean Convenient

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater warms up a room in next to no time. Always ready for use. Can be carried easily to any room where extra warmth is needed.

A special automatic device makes it impossible to turn the wick too high or too low. Safe in the hands of a child.

The Perfection burns nine hours on one filling.

Just the heater the minute it is lighted. Handsomely finished; drums of blue enamel or plain steel, with nickel trimmings.

Ask your dealer or write for descriptive circular to any agency of
Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

You will go a long way before you find a better laundry soap than Lenox.

It is absolutely satisfactory for general household use. The quality is high. The shape is convenient. The price is low.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods brighter and faster—with less trouble—than any other dye. One 10c package colors all fibers. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without spoiling spots. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. PUTNAM DYE CO., Quincy, Ill.

The TREASURE of COCOS ISLAND

The Romantic History of a Pirate Hoard on an Island in the Pacific

By WALTER NOBLE BURNS

Copyright, 1911, by W. G. CHAPMAN

THE good bark Hesperus will spread her white wings at Eagle Harbor, Wash., a few weeks sad sail away across the blue Pacific into the heart of the most fascinating romance of all pirate story.

Capt. Frederick Hackett, in command of the vessel, claims to be the only man in all the world who knows the secret of the buried treasure of Cocos island. Its plans on the expedition to lift the vast wealth plundered by ages covers in the early part of the last century and hidden on the island in a cove, the exact location of which has been lost and for which adventurers have sought in vain for many years.

He is equipped with hydraulic mining machinery and has sufficient provisions to remain for a year if necessary on the island, which lies 300 miles off the western coast of Central America. That a score of former expeditions have proved failures does not discourage him. The treasure hunters who have gone before have depended upon pick and shovel. He will be the first prepared to use hydraulic mining methods. Earthquakes, he says, have shaken down landslides upon the treasure cave and changed the topography of the island. His will wash the earth away with streams of water powerful enough to uproot trees and burst rocks asunder. He is confident of success.

"When I return to the United States," says Captain Hackett, "I shall have the entire Cocos island treasure battened down beneath the hatches of the Hesperus."

The story of Cocos island makes Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island" seem true in comparison; so much stranger are the facts of this real romance of buried treasure than the dream-adventures, highly colored as they are, wrought by the imagination of the novelist. The marvelous tale has its beginning in the days when savage buccaneers, flying skull-and-crossbones at their mast-heads, harried the Spanish main and plundered tall galleons on the high seas. It feirly glitters from beginning to end with a fairy wealth of doubloons, pieces-of-eight, louis d'ors, medioes, sequins and double eagles. In its crowded episodes, blind-folded victims walk the plank, bronzed and turbaned cutthroats swarm over the bulwarks of captured ships and lay about them with cutlass and dragoon pistol, sea rogues are strung up at yard-arms, men are sacked and looted, vessels are left to wetter to their ruin in items and smoke. It centers about the lonely island, palm-shadowed in tropic seas, whereon lies buried a treasure beyond the dreams of Monte Cristo. It rings with the clash of battle on the island beaches and with the death cries of the men murdered that they might never betray the treasure's secret hiding place. Flashy it hands down from the far-off time of romance to prosaic modern days a great goldan mystery which, like a siren beckoning through the years from purple southern seas, has lured men to ruin and death.

According to well-authenticated accounts, $12,000,000 in pirate treasure is hurled on Cocos island. Of this sum $12,000,000 in money, and gold and plate is supposed to have been hidden in 1831 by Benito Bonito, the last of the great pirates who, even after Lafitte had passed away, kept alive upon the ocean the lawless traditions of L'Ollonais, Pierre Le Grand, Rock Brasiliano, England, Hawkins and Sir Henry Morgan.

The missing $11,000,000 is said to have been concealed in the same cave in 1828 by "Bugs" Thompson, one of Bonito's old pirate crew, who sailed away with the treasure from the harbor of Callao when the government authorities of Peru entrusted it aboard his vessel to save it from capture by ravolutionists. It consisted of money from the public treasury, ingots of gold from loca mines, plate, chalices, ornaments and golden statues belonging to the churches and cathedrals of Lima.

Captain Hackett is fourth in what may be christened the royal line of the holders of the goldan secret of Cocos island. This secret has been handed down in a sort of lineal descent from Thompson. The former ocean freebooter for years carried about a chart of Cocos island drawn upon a piece of yellow parchment showing the exact location of the cave in which his own and Bonito's treasure lay hidden. He gave this chart to a fisherman of St. John's, N. F., named Keating, with full directions how to find the treasure. Thompson died under mysterious circumstances a little later and the suspicion grew that Keating killed him. However that may be, Keating sailed to Cocos island in 1844 with Captain Bogue, a seaman of sufficient means to finance the expedition. They found the treasure, but Bogue never returned. Keatig said he was drowned in the surf while attempting to climb into a boat with his hocts and pockets stuffed with gold. It is generally believed that Keatieg murdered him.

Keeting made a second vielt to the island four years later and again found the treasure. In both tripe he is supposed to have brought away gold and jewels to the value of $150,000. He was prevented from recovering the entire treasure by mutinous crews on both voyages. Keating and Bogue are the only men, so far as is known, who ever recovered treasure from Cocos island.

Keatieg peesed his secret on to the Hackett brothers, both seamen and his neighbors in St. John's. Keeting had lost or destroyed the chart which he had obtained from Thompson. But he drew another chart which he gave to the Heckette with explicit instructions how to find the cave. Keating died in 1883 and Capt. Thomas Hackett, the elder brother, sailed in 1885 on an expedition bound for Cocos, but the voyage ended with lie death in Havana from yellow fever.

Capt. Frederick Hackett, who is about to undertake the latest Cocos island treasure hunt, has himself made a two former unsuccessful expeditions.

Captain Hackett was formerly a whaling skipper. He has been a seafaring man all his life. He formerly sailed out of St. John's, Newfoundland, where he was born and grew to manhood. For the last ten years he has made his home in Vancouver, British Columbia, where he is engaged in the fishing trade. He is a bluff, ruddy, hearded old sea dog, hale and vigorous despite his three score years, and full of a boyish enthusiasm over a project that has been, his one dream for a quarter of a century. So many expeditions to Cocos island have failed to find treasures that Captain Hackett has had difficulty in raising funds for his present expedition. He succeeded in getting together $100,000, and with this sum he has been able to provision his ship properly for a year's voyaga and to take along hydraulic mining machinery which he is sure lies the only hope of ever unearthing the Cocos island treasure.

"I have stood over millioee," said Captain Hackett recently as he set by the skylight on the quarter-deck of the Hesperus and watched his sailors busy with final preparations for the expedition. "It was not lack of knowledge that caused me to fail in my two former voyages, but lack of equipment and supplies. I have after my first expedition that picks and shovels would not do in Cocos, and that the only chance to get the treasure was to tear up the earth with streams of water thrown by a hydraulic mining engine. I have the letest hydraulic machinery with me now, and I shall sat out with perfect faith in the successful outcome of my voyage.

"The landslide that now lies on top of the treasure cave probably occurred in the middle of the last century during the violent earthquakes that shook the western coast of South and Central America. Forest trees hava grown upon it, and the appearances of that part of the island is vastly changed since the days of Bonito, Thompson and Keating. But with my bearings and chart and the instructions given me by Keeting in many long interviews, I believe I can locate within a radius of 30 feet tha spot bcneath which the treasure is hurled.

"I know Keating from youth up," Captain Heckatt continued. "He was a rough, ignorant man who had been a fisherman and a sailor all his life.

"It was hecausa my brother and I befriended him when most everybody else looked askance at him that after advancing years mada it pretty certain that he never would be able to go to Cocos again, he decided to divulge his secrat to us. My brother and I owned the cutter, Lord Dufferin, which we kept busy cruising up and down the coasts of Newfoundland and New Brunswick. On one of our voyages we took Keating with us. One stormy night as the old man sat by the table in the cabin over a glass of stiff grog, he first told us how to find tha treasure. He began his strange story with an account of his first visit to Cocos with Captain Bogue.

"It was a hot day in June, he said, when he and Bogue landed. They struck off through the tropical jungle with Thompson's chart to guide them.

"The cave, Keating said, was 15 feet long by 12 feet broad, with a ceiling high enough to permit a man to stand upright. It was full of bars of gold and sacks of money. Many of the sacks bore the stamp of the Bank of Lima. There were many golden crucifixes, chalices and church ornaments.

A statue of the Madonna of gold gold lay upon the floor. It was so heavy that Keating and Bogue together could not lift it, but could only push it along. The glitter of the piles of gold, Keating said, fairly dazzled him and seemed to fill the cave with a ghostly radiance that at first struck him with awe.

"Bogue and Keating tied a few coins in a handkerchief and rowed back to their ship. They told the sailore they had found a spring of fresh water, but they were so excited with what they had seen that they acted annaturally and the crew, may be, had suepicions of the truth, anyway. One word led to another, and Bogue and Keating told as little as possible, but it was enough for the crew, who made them promise to go shares.

"Right here Keeting and Bogua began to play their game more shrewd ly. They served out unlimited grog, as if to celebrata treasura trova. Long before night the whole outfit was piled drunk except Keating and Bogue, who took care to remain strictly sober. All hands turned in early to sleep off their potations and be ready to bring the treasure ahoard next morning. As soon as they were asleep, Keating and Bogue slipped off in shore in a whaleboat. They heached their boat and again made their way to the cave. They filled their pockats with doubloons and pieces-of-eight and louis d'ors. Not satisfied with the money Bogue, stuffed her gold into his seehoots so that he could hardly walk for the weight. In launching the boat, Keating said Bogue went under and was drowned.

"Keating," Captain Hackett went on, "escaped to sea with his plunder, leaving the ship to its fate, and the men never were seen or heard of afterward. Four days later he was picked up by a Spanish coasting vessel which landed him safely sate at Acapulco. He quietly worked his way back to Newfoundland and deposited much money in the St. John's banks.

"Keating made a second voyage to Cocos island four years later. He told us of this adventure on a visit he paid to us afterwards in Keating's own longuoge as nearly as I could remember it."

The first treasure was hurled on Cocos island by Benito Bonito a few months before his death in 1831. Bonito was born in 1788. His was a Spaniard of supposed gentle blood. His real identity is not known—Benito is who was an assumed name. He began his carreer as a lieutenant of a Spanish privateer. The close of the Napoleonic wars he became master of a Portuguese trading brig. In 1816 he quarreled with his captain, murdered him and seized the vessel. From that data he followed the life of a pirate. One of his first prizes was an West Indian watera was an English slaver named the Lightning. Having his fine for the British vessel, renamed her the Relampego, which is Spanish for chain-lightning. Most of the crew of the slaver were made to walk the plank. Two pleaded for their lives and offered to join Bonito. On this condition Benito spared them. These two men were Thompson, known in Cocos island traditions as "Bugs," and a Frenchman named Chapelle, who also figures later in tha story of Cocos island.

In tha long, low, rakish Relampago, which could show a clean pair of heels to anything sailing the Spanish main, Bonito had a busy and prosparous career as a pirate. From Rio to the Bahamas he became a scourge and collected an immense amount of booty. When the Spanish government sent warships to hunt him, Bonito slipped around Cape Horn to frash pastures in the Pacific.

The wealth of the churches of Spanish America is still considerable, but in the early days of the last century the richness of the plate and ornaments with which they were adorned was amazing. Bonito sacked cities and towns up and down the western coast, pillaging the cathedrals and leaving tribute upon the citizens. He fams as a cruel and rapacious sea robber agreed from the Spanish settlements in California. In hunting for a spot in which to bury his growing treasure, he chanced upon Cocos island.

Cocos island is a volcanic apeck in the Pacific ocean and belotgs to Costa Rica. It is 200 miles off the Costa Rica coast, 500 miles from Panama, and 5 degrees north of the equator.

On tha trip to Cocos island destined to be Bonito's last, a number of his men became dissatisfied. Having vowed their treasure to the cava they gathered on the beach in sullen temper, and soon came to open mutiny. They were tired of piracy. They demanded that the entire treasure be divided among them and that they be set upon the mainland and permitted to shift for themselves. Bonito refused. A pitched battle was fought with cutlass and pistol, and in the hand-to-hand engagement many were killed.

Bonito was victorious. With the mutiny suppressed, he sailed for the West Indies. Off Jamaica, some one suggested a carousa hefore Bonito gava his consent. Seventeen men were landed and Bonito proceeded to lie off and on near a certain headland and wait for them. With the 17 were all that were left of the mutineers, including Thompson and Chapelle. But Bonito proved treacherous. He sailed away and left the mutineers to their fate. The 17 were recognized in Valparaiso as pirates and captured. They were convicted and all except Thompson and Chapelle were hanged. Thompson and Chepelle escaped by representing that they had been forced into Bonito's service and offered to guide a warship to Bonito's secret haunts among the West Indies islands.

The British government was just then planning a campaign of extermination against Bonito and his buccaneers. Sent to England for the purpose, Thompson and Chapelle joined a British corvette to pne of their old chief's places of refuge in the Caribbean. Bonito's ship and crew were captured, but the grim old sea wolf, seeing ahead the loom of the gibbet on Execution dock, blew out his brains on his own quarter-deck.

Of the subsequent fate of Chapelle little is known.

Thompson drops out of sight until 1836 when he reappears as Captain Thompson, master of an English vessel ing brig, tha Mary Dear, which at the opening of the second chapter of the romance of Cocos island was lying in the harbor of Callao, Peru. A revolution was under way in Peru. Lima, the capital district, was in a state of siege. Just before the beleaguering lines of the revolutionists closed around the city, the government authorities removed the money from the treasury and the plate and ornaments during back to the golden days of the conquest, and sent them for safekeeping to an old stone fortrese at Chilao. When the revolutionery army learned of the removal of the treasure, which was valued at $11,000,000, it marched on Callao with the determination of capturing the ship board. In the crisis, the commandant of the fortress, seeing an English flag fluttering from the peak of the Mary Dear, bethought him that under the folds of the union jack Lima's treasure would be safe. Captain Thompson gave his consent to the propoaition. The treasure was soon stowed snugly under the Mary Dear's hatches, and four Peruvian soldiers were left on board to guard it.

The Peruvian authorities, of course, did not dream that Captain Thompson, who so bravely flaunted the English flag, had sailed in earlier days under the Jolly Roger with Benito Bonito's cut-throat crew. But with $11,000,000 battened down in his hold the old lawless spirit of his buccaneering days flamed up anew in Thompson, and he could not resist tha temptation to turn robber again. In the night watches he and his men alit the throats of the guardians of the treasure, slipped their cables and put to sea.

The Mary Dear bore up for Cocos island and dropped anchor in Wafer bay. Some portion of the spoil was distributed among the craw. The remainder Thompson carried in 11 boatloads around the headland which separates Wafer bay from Chatham bay and there landed it upon the beach. He sent the boats back to the brig, keeping two men with him. With their assistance he carried the treasure into the tropical brush and stowed it in Benito Bonito's old trecsure cave. Then he shot the two men.

He spread to the winds every stitch of canvas and headed the brig westward in a mad hurry to escape pursuit, but before the tall peoks of Cocos leland had dropped hetow the horizon a Peruvien gunboat hove in sight and sent a shot across his bow. When capture seemed inevitable, Thompson surrendered. Perhaps his cunning brain foresew he immediately that must he granted to the sole possessor of the key to the hiding place of millions of dollars. At any rate he and the mate of the Mary Dear were spared the fate which befell the Peruvian heck to the Cocos island treasure. The other ten men of the Mary Dear's crew were strung up at the yard-arm.

The warship proceeded to Cocos island and Thompson and the mata vora lured under an armed escort. But the desperado was n man of resource, and he and the mate contrived to escaped from the ship and hide in the caves and undergrowth. For four days armed parties searched for them through the tangle and breadth of the island, pouring volleys into every piece of thick scrub or likely hiding place. At the end of this time, thinking that perhaps the fugitives had been killed by the broaddides with which the jungle had been raked, the captain of the gunboat sailed away.

The two marooned man eked out a miserable existence on berries and birds' eggs until a vessel called at Cocos for water. Passing themselves off as shipwrecked sailors, they were given passaga to the mainland. The mata died soon afterwards of yellow fever at Punta Arenas. Thompson escaped. One story has it that he went to Samoa where he lived among the natives of MacConnahl. According to another tale he mada his way to Egypt, land.

Nothing was heard of Thompson egain until 1844, when on n voyage from England to Newfoundland he fell in with Keating, who was to become heir to the secret of tha Cocos leland treasure.

Soon after Thompson had confided his secrat to Keating he died. His death aroused no suspicion at tha time, but long afterwards in the light of events Keating was suspected of having murdered him. Keating took over Thompson's effects, including his map of Cocos island. By Thompson's death, Keating became the sole possessor in all the world of the secret of the Cocos island treasure. How Keating lifted the treasure on two voyages to the island already has been told.

FAMOUS SUFFRAGIST

Began Life's Battle Handicapped by Fate.

Early Struggles of Dr. Anna Shaw, Head of the Suffrage Association, Who Won Success Against Many Discouragements.

Boston, Mass.—One of the ablest leaders connected with the woman suffrage movement in the United States is Dr. Anna Shaw, president of the National Suffrage association. She started for Albion college, in Michigan, with just $18 in her pocket. She had earned that $18 by teaching school at $1 a week, and after she had earned it she had to wait one year for the dog tax to be collected to get her pay.

Dr. Shaw was born in England, like those other pioneers of the suffrage movement, the Blockwells. But her parents took her into Michigan 52 years ago, when she was eight, having stopped four years in Masecchusetts on the way. They traveled days and days in an old-fashioned prairie schooner to reach their destination. Then they lived in a log cabin. The cabin was papered with spare copies of Horace Greeley's paper, and Anna learned to read from the paper on the walls, beginning with the big letters in tha advertisements and progressing to the editorials.

Miss Shaw spent four years in college and another four in the theological and medical schools of Boston university. Her people were deeply opposed to the whola plan and told her they could do nothing whatever to help her. During that eight years she had only $91 that she did not earn.

DR. ANNA SHAW

She lived in an attic without any fire—in Boston winters. She studied in bed to keep warm, her breath making frosty clouds upon the air. She ate food enough to satisfy hunger.

One day she woe sitting on the steire. She had cot down because she felt too weak to get to the top. A woman whom she knew slightly came along and asked her what was the matter with the stairs. When she found out she went away and borrowed $91 from another woman and gave it to Miss Shaw with the proviso that she was never to know from whom it came. That was the first help she had through her course. She repaid the money after she was graduated and never saw who lent it.

But about this time she acquired the warm friendship of Mre. Perala Addy. Mrs. Addy had planned to go to Europe and take Miss Shaw with her as soon as the latter should have finished her course. She died just before commencement, but is her will left Miss Shaw $1,500 for the identical purpose of taking a journey to Europe. Miss Addy knew that Dr. Anna Shaw would spend that money and it will be gone forever. Instead of that she gave you two bonds worth $1,500 Then I will keep the bonds for security and lend you $1,500 of them. When you get to work you can repay me as convenient, and when it is all paid tha bonds will ha yours again."

She did this, and having acquired a certain sentiment about the matter, she has done the same ever since. She has left the bonds on deposit and let the interest accumulate, and they have paid the actual traveling expenses of her three trips to Europe.

Miss Shaw took the medical course because during her theological course she did missionary work in Boston. She found, to use her own words, that "half nothing the people wanted." They did not want either her theology or her gospel. They wanted help in their materiel lives. She took the medical cours in order that she might give them free medical treatment.

It was as a missionary doctor and preacher in the slums of Boston that Miss Shaw became convinced that thers were certain defects in an all main government which called for political power in the hands of women. She had always believed in woman suffrage. Now she decided to work for it. She began to spaak for the Massachusetts Suffrage association and from that grew her national work.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1911. NO. 33.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Curb on Sharpers in the Alien Hotels

NEW YORK.—Robbing immigrants and emigrants has long been a recognized industry around the docks of New York and proprietors of lodging houses have been taking money away from these people coming and going. Two laws recently became operative by which lodging house keepers will be compelled to give the arriving and departing persons of foreign birth something like the equivalent for money received.

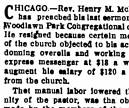
Foreigners arrive all the year around, but those who depart for a visit to the old country generally begin coming to New York about October 1 and continue coming until the Christmas holidays. Then the steerage begins to bring them back, and by March nearly all are again in this country and ready to go to work.

Under the old system, runners for the lodging houses boarded the steamers and went through the steerage passengers looking for victims. No matter what country the arriving emigrant came from, there was some runner to talk to him in his native language.

When the boat had docked the runners led their victims to some lodging house, where they were made welcome as long as they had money. It often happened that an immigrant bound for some inland town had provided with a railway ticket would be detained in New York as long as he had money and then loaded on a train to go hungry to his destination. Those who go back to the "old country" in the fall on a visit find it so easy. Agents of the lodging houses, however, meet western trains, sometimes riding several hours out from New York, in search of customers.

Under the new laws the runners are no longer allowed to board boats or swarm around the docks soliciting patronage and every lodging house keeper has to furnish a bond for the fair treatment of his patrons.

Picture Unites a Brother and Sister



AURORA, ILL.—John Stanton of Aurora and his missing sister, Mrs. O. W. Waters of Philadelphia, whom he has not seen for 30 years, have been reunited through a moving picture film, and the Aurora man has gone to make his future home with his sister.

Mrs. Waters is an actress who paid her last visit to her brother almost a quarter of a century ago when she was appearing at the Park theater in Brooklyn. Correspondence finally was dropped and Mr. Stanton waited year after year for some word from the woman. Recently his attention was called to a theater poster in Aurora and the striking resemblance between the woman and his long-lost sister caused him to buy a ticket for the performance.

As the drama was cast on the screen he recognized the nurse to the young heroine in the drama as his sister. He sought out the manager and got the address of the film company, and ultimately located her in Philadelphia. He recently returned from a ten weeks' visit and goes back to pass the remainder of his life at her home.

Stanton, who is 72 years old, was born in New York and served in the navy during the Civil war at the Brooklyn navy yards. After the war he moved west and became a farmer. A few years ago he moved to Aurora. The Stantons have been of a dramatic tendency and most of them have been actors and actresses. Mrs. Waters has been on the stage for 46 years and expects to remain there the rest of her life. Stanton's nephew, Barry O'Neal, is a stage manager for a film company, while Mrs. O'Neal writes many of their picture dramas.

Pastor Quits Pulpit to Be Expressman

CHICAGO.—Rev. Henry M. McDowell has preached his last sermon as the Woodlawn Park Congregational church. He resigned because certain members of the church objected to his action in donning overalls and working as an express messenger at $18 a week to augment his salary of $120 a month from the church.

That manual labor lowered the dignity of the pastor, was the objection made by the members of the church, and according to friends of the pastor, while they were unable to have him ousted from the pulpit, they made things so unpleasant for him that he resigned.

"The Master I have been serving for 20 years as a pastor was a carpenter," said Rev. Mr. McDowell. "It did not lower his dignity to do manual labor, and I do not think he would object to my being an express messenger so I could pay my honest debts.

"It was impossible for me to keep my family on the $1,440 a year I received from the church. I have six children. Each of them contributes to the church, yet none of them was earning money. Each of them attended the church suppers and socials, paying at them out of my salary.

"Then came serious illness, and last spring, I found myself $200 in debt. Casting about for means of paying this sum, and certain that I could not pay it out of my salary, I found that I could add $18 a week to my income by becoming an express messenger. I consulted with one of the trustees and he told me it would be all right for me to accept. I did accept, and my doing so raised a storm of protest. Finally it became so unpleasant that rather than continue the difficulty, I decided to stop the trouble by resigning."

Corn Fed Catfish Latest From Kansas

TOPEKA, Kan.—Ever hear of a corn-fed, pedigreed catfish? Kansas has some and is going to have more. Prof. L. L. Dyche, curator of the Natural History museum of the State university and state fish and game warden, has undertaken to improve the breed of catfish by the methods employed by expert breeders in improved hogs, cattle, sheep and chickens and the methods advised by zoologists to improve the human race —careful selection of mates.

At the state fish hatchery at Pratt they are growing corn-fed catfish that are as much of an improvement over the ordinary catfish, just by feeding alone, as the catfish is better than a buffalo as far as food value is concerned. The corn-fed Kansas steer and hog bring the highest prices in the markets.

"We have one small pond at the catchery that is flooded and lined with cement," said Prof. Dyche. "After the spawning season is over and the little fish are old enough that they don't need the mother's care, we take the big ones out of the spawning ponds and put them into this cement pond, where we can feed them.

"In this cement pond we put, among other varieties, a large number of catfish. These eat live food, frogs, fish, worms, snakes and such, while the cripple and catfish live chiefly on vegetables. Every day we put chopped cornmeal and cornbread into that pond for the catfish.

"We have catfish in other ponds that are not fed on corn and we have been eating both the corn-fed catfish and those that are not corn fed and there is all the difference in the world in the flavor of the two."

IN THE LIMELIGHT

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

One of America's most picturesque figures celebrated the golden anniversary of his wedding the other day. This man is Joseph H. Choate, the brilliant lawyer, orator and diplomat, who did so much toward increasing American popularity in England while in charge of the American embassy in London.

Joseph Hodges Choate was born in Salem, Mass., in 1832 and comes of a famous legal family, his father, Rufus Choate, being one of the most eminent lawyers of his time. He was educated at Harvard and was admitted to the bar in 1855. While never a politician in the practical sense he always took an active interest in public affairs and during his legal career in New York took a leading part in many of the reform movements.

Fifty years ago Mr. Choate married Miss Caroline D. Sterling of Cleveland. Their married life has been one of unusual merit. Not long ago some one asked him who he would choose to be if he were not Joseph H. Choate.

"Mrs. Choate's second husband," was his instantaneous reply. At the anniversary celebration, which took place at Wellesley, near Stockbridge, Mass., were several persons who were present at the wedding 50 years ago.

CANADA'S ROYAL GOVERNOR

The Dominion of Canada deeply appreciates the honor which has been conferred on her by the appointment of the Duke of Connaught as governor general and will give his royal highness a most enthusiastic welcome on his arrival. The distinction which is Canada's in having, as a representative of the British throne, an uncle of King George will be more readily understood when it is stated that never before has a prince of the royal blood been sent as governor general to any of the British possessions over the seas. The nearest approach to such distinction was when the Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria, resided in Canada with her husband, the Marquis of Lorne, who was then governor general. The marquis afterward became and is now the Duke of Argyle.

The Duke of Connaught is the only surviving son of Queen Victoria. He was her third son and the seventh of her nine children. His surviving sisters are Helena, Princess Christian; Louise, Duchess of Argyle, and Beatrice, Princess Henry of Battenburg. If so good a mother as Queen Victoria justly may be said to have had a favorite son, then Arthur William Patrick Albert, Duke of Connaught, was that son.

MAY HEAD CHINESE REPUBLIC

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the Chinese reformer, who was banished from the empire not long ago and is now in the United States, is believed to be slated for the presidency of the republican government when the Chinese revolutionists can take time enough from fighting to organize. There is said to be a standing offer from the Pekin government of $50,000 for the body of Sun Yat Sen, dead or alive.

Each succeeding day has added to the gravity of the situation in China. The imperial government, having discovered that the naval methods used in uprisings throughout the empire are entirely inadequate in this case, has gotten down to the business of real warfare. But the enlightenment of the situation, and the consequent delay in real repressive measures, have given the revolutionists an opportunity to become better organized, draw greater forces to its standard and seize more territory.

Yuen Shi Kai, the banished war head who was recalled recently, has accepted the post of viceroy of Hu-Peh and Hu-Nen provinces, to which territory he is directed to proceed and immediately re-establish the imperial authority.

HARVESTER HEAD IS SUED

Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester Company, the McCormick's man of business, clubman, churchman and aspirant for the title of one of Chicago's leading citizens, was recently sued by John Henning, who asks $25,000 damages on the claim that Funk has alienated the affections of his wife, Josephine Henning. To say that the suit created a sensation is to put it mildly. Funk has recently been before the public of Chicago in so-called moral uplift movements, which well befitted a man of church proclivities, and his talk of furthering such causes has made him more or less well known to the newspaper public, consequently when the suit was filed it caused wide interest. Mr. Funk untered a denial, emphatic and vigorous as it was possible for a man to make. It is said Mr. Funk first saw and admired Mrs. Henning while she worked in the Auditorium Annex cafe. Mrs. Henning is said to be not only good looking, but a beauty.

Clarence S. Funk is sufficiently in the public eye to warrant the sensation caused by the John Henning's charges.

NATION'S CAPITAL AFFAIRS

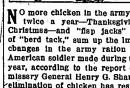
Now Aim to Make the Panama Canal Pay

WASHINGTON.—Foreshadowing the practical completion of the Panama canal by July 1, 1913, the Isthmian canal commission, in its annual report, recommends congressional legislation governing canal tolls, organization for the operation of the canal and for government of the canal zone, utilization of canal revenue to pay operating expenses and to repay the capital invested, and other action. Expedition was urgently demanded in order to advise the commercial world of the use it may make of the great waterway, of the cost of sending ships through it and just when it will be opened. The commission wished to give at least eighteen months' notice of the rates to permit the world's maritime interests time to readjust their routes and to build new ships and organize new transportation companies.

It was also deemed desirable to put the canal to use as early as possible, not only to secure financial returns on the enormous capital invested, but to make possible the passage of the world's fleets without confusion or delay. The report showed that the engineers' board has already found that all the concrete in the great Gatun locks will be laid by June 1, 1912, and five months later the locks on the Pacific side will be finished, except the gates, which will be ready June 1, 1913. Meantime by April 1, next, the giant spillway at Gatun would be at the fifty-foot elevation and the entire dam there would be completed by the following winter.

The total outlay for maintaining the canal will be for wages of the operative force, engineering work, sanitation and civil administration. The commission was insistent that the revenue of the canal should go to pay not only the operating expenses, but to repay the capital invested. Every legitimate means for raising revenue should be adopted, said the report, which recommended that the government should not only supply coal and oil for its own vessels, but should sell them to merchant shipping.

Rangers Exterminate Predatory Beasts



ONE of the duties of Uncle Sam's forest rangers is to let "varmints" that destroy cattle, sheep and other domestic animals, in the western states, where bears, mountain lions, wolves, coyotes, wildcats and lynxes are plentiful, the eternal damage from wild beasts runs into millions. Last year forest rangers killed 7,971 destructive animals. The reports, just out, show that 213 bears, 83 mountain lions, 172 wolves, 69 wolf pups, 6,467 coyotes, 870 wildcats and 72 lynxes fell before the rangers' guns.

In addition to their efforts after animals that are harmful to live stock and to game animals and birds, forest officers have made headway against the prairie dog, which eats one thirty-second as much as a sheep. The biological survey estimates that one grown wolf will destroy about $1,000 worth of stock a year, and that the average family of wolves will get at least $3,000 worth. The stock killed by wolves is principally

"The problem of the extermination of predatory animals," said John A. Rhodes, a guard of the forest service, "is one that calls for determined and persistent labor along lines that are practical, at the hands of men who are accustomed to the country, thoroughly understand the habits of the wild animals and are familiar with the means of their extermination.

"Where hunters are employed, the use of poison as a means of extermination stands first. Its advantage lies in the once and rapidity with which it can be handled. Where the labor of a half a dozen men would be required in setting and watching a line of traps, one man can easily cover the same country with poison. The greater the number of baits the greater the chances for killing."

Given Flapjacks Instead of Chicken

NO more chicken in the army, turkey twice a year—Thanksgiving and Christmas—and "flapjacks" instead of "herd tack," sum up the important changes in the army rations for the American soldier made during the past year, according to the report of Commissary General Henry G. Sharpe. The elimination of chicken has resulted in a yearly saving to the government of $65,000. The poor soldiers are no longer to worry along on beef, pork, mutton, bacon, eggs and fish.

It cost the United States 16.14 cents a day more to feed the American soldier in Alaska than it did those stationed in the United States. This is declared due principally to the cost of beef and its transportation to the isolated posts in the territory.

The daily average cost of the rations issued during the year in the United States alone was 23.76 cents; Alaska, 39.39 cents; Hawaii, 24.10 cents; Porto Rico, 28.72 cents; inboard transports, 29.56 cents; American soldiers in the Philippines, 24.56 cents, and the native soldiers in the Philippines, 14.67. Even the Philippine islands shows a greater average cost per diem per man. The report shows the average cost per year per man in the United States to be $105.96, and in the Philippines, $114.21.

It is interesting to note, the report says, that out of a total of $11,884,894 spent during the year for subsistence, only four-fifths of 1 per cent, or $96,906, is accredited to losses from such causes as ordinary wastage in issue and transportation, deterioration from climatic causes, theft and property worn out.

Wants Pension Office Beauty Restored

PENSION COMMISSIONER JAMES L. DAVENPORT has no use for the artistic, and as much as it is possible for that genial gentlemen to be disappointed, is mightily grieved over the fact that the pension office does not look as pretty as it ought to, and nothing like as pretty as it might. Commissioner Davenport says that the pension office ought to be one of the show places in Washington, and there was a time when this was true. Now it is half-filled up with the dusty files cases and literature of the Indian office, which really hasn't any business there. In fact, the great court of the pension office, which until the new government printing office was constructed was the largest building in the world, all under one roof, looks more like a clutter closet so far as the main floor is concerned, than like a decent, respectable public building.

"The great interior court is surrounded by the various offices which rise tier on tier to the great glass ceiling, with the rows of handsomely ornamented balconies opening upon the court. In the center of the court is a beautiful fountain, and it used to be that exquisite little models of the Monitor and the Merrimac chased each other around and around in this fountain. There are a number of wonderful columns of brick cemented over and painted to resemble marble, and formerly there were all kinds of palms and aquatic plants around the fountain, with nice lounging seats, and, as Commissioner Davenport says, it was one of the show places in Washington, and it ought to be again.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - - - MINN.

ARE THE STARS FADING?

The opening of the present theatrical season is accompanied by the proclamation of a new principle. For 20 years or more the star has been the idol of the public and the god of managers. Mighty was the wage of this divinity. The star system seemed permanent. But last season was one of the most trying that theater managers have ever weathered. Scarcely one has not curtailed his enterprises, says the New York Sun. Theatrical investment is on a much less extensive scale than it was 12 months ago. Extreme conservatism marks the business this fall. Managers are searching for suggestions as to the best means of putting their affairs on a solid basis. One result of this investigation is the assertion that it would probably be much better for the theaters if there were fewer stars or none at all. The reasons for this decision seem sound, at all events sound-er to reasonable laymen than the causes of the sudden promotion of every blue-eyed ingenue to the rank of a star. Managers have decided that the theatrical celebrity they make holds them afterward in tyrannical grasp. They must eventually accede to all the conditions these players may impose. Thus by deliberately creating a star they are raising up a force that will eventually be inimical to them.

Grindell Matthews, a young English engineer, is believed by his friends to be on the verge of giving to the world a wireless telephone with which conversations may be carried on across the Atlantic. It may not become public, as the British government may seek to acquire the sole right to it, preserving the secret, and retaining it for use in war. All that is known concerning the apparatus is that it is in a box so small that one may easily carry it about. Instruments may be toned so that they will transmit only to others tuned to the same key. A man might telephone to his wife while she is out shopping. Tests have been made in which the interpenetration of brick and iron walls was shown to be no barrier. Nothing seems too wonderful in the way of invention—especially where electricity is concerned; so nobody will be greatly surprised if Matthews' invention fulfills its promise.

The New York populace is apt to smile with pitying superiority when it hears a Cockney drop his "h's." It forgets that it is equally culpable in regard to another letter of the alphabet. "r." How it does shy at "r." When the letter is not dropped entirely it becomes "ol," as in "gol" for girl, or "eviol" for world. What is being done in our public schools to correct this bad habit and others equally bad? The Cockney language is not a thing of beauty or a delight to the ear, but positively wa ars de-veloping as ergot here that is much worse, a monstrous, hybrid form of speech, devoid of oace of grace and music. Let our school commissioners look to it!

When a man holds up his fellow man at the point of a gun and relieves him of his belongings it is a case of highway robbery. When a nation does the same thing it is called war. What the world needs is an international police force.

When a man sues a girl for the money he spent in courtieg her, it behooves the girl to enter a counter suit for the gas that was burned during the sessions in the parlor.

An Ohio man fainted after he had played a piano continuously for twenty-seven hours. We haven't heard what happened to the people who were compelled to listen.

A Chicago man jumped from the third story of a burning hotel, but the kind that jump a hill on the first floor in the silent night are the kind the hotelkeepers don't like.

One of the esteemed missionaries tells us that China will one day dominate the world. Think, brethren, before being forced to eat all one's meals in a Chinese restaurant!

A telephone girl in Portugal gave warning of a royalist attack and quelled a revolt, proving herself a first-class information operator.

The freshman and sophomore medics are rather rough in their rushes, but after they graduate they will mingle with more finesse.

Chasing a monoplane with automobiles is a merry sport at which one can wish the fairy tales of our childhood blated.

A Boston clergyman advocates the teaching of love-making in the schools. That's where it begins, usually.

REBELS TAKE CITY

SHANGHAI IS CAPTURED BY CHINESE REVOLUTIONISTS WITHOUT RESISTANCE.

THRONE ACCEPTS NEW CODE

Constitution Adopted Provides For Perpetuity of Manchu Dynasty But Curtails Power of Throne—Fall of Wasung Expected Soon.

Shanghai—The city of Shanghai was taken over by the rebels without a battle, the authorities offering no resistance and the troops of the Klangnan arsenal joining the invading forces.

A large force of rebels has set out for Wasung, ten miles up the river, and a report that the city has fallen, together with all the forts along the river, is expected hourly.

Other forces are advancing on Nanking and Ching Kiang. The province of Yunnan seceded and declared its independence.

The capture of this city was accomplished with astonishing ease. There has been no fighting or disorder and the sudden movement was unexpected.

The police and native soldiers made no attempt to interfere. All the officials quietly gave up their offices to the rebels and thousands of residents swarmed into the streets wearing a band of white about their arms, signifying their sympathy with the new regime. An attempt was made to capture the taotai, but he had fled with the appearance of the first rebel flag.

The rebel leaders have notified the foreign consuls that they have established a republican government and that all foreign concessions and subjects will be amply protected.

It is stated that the rebels are planning to concentrate all their forces at Wuchang, evacuating Hanyang for that purpose.

Peking—The national assembly completed a draft of the basic law upon which it proposes to construct the new constitution of China. It was submitted to the throne and accepted immediately. The tentative plan provides for the perpetuity of the Manchu dynasty. The power of the emperor is closely restricted by the constitution, which is to be written by the national assembly.

The imperial princes are made ineligible to the offices of premier, members of the cabinet and administrators of the provinces.

Hongkong—Fighting is still in progress in Hankow, according to late dispatches received here. The rebels have taken the city of Lueh-yang with bodies strawn everywhere. The battle there between the royalists and the rebels is believed to be the most vicious of the revolution.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF MURDER

Arrest of Mrs. Louisa Vermilya, Charged With Poisoning Chicago Policeman, Is Ordered.

Chicago.—Following a report of the experts who examined the viscera of Policeman Arthur F. Bissonette, who died in the hospital of Louisa Vermilya under mysterious circumstances, that they had found "arsenic in abundant quantities," a warrant charging Mrs. Vermilya with murder was issued.

Coroner Hoffman announced that he would exhume two bodies immediately in a further investigation of the fatalities among persons related to or closely associated with Mrs. Vermilya.

For reasons best known to the authorities interested in the case, Mrs. Vermilya has not been taken to police cell. The warrant charging her with murder was taken before Judge Walker by Archie Bissonette, a brother of the man whose death brought on the investigation.

Two policemen are constantly on guard over Mrs. Vermilya at her residence, 415 East Twenty-sixth street, to prevent her from escaping or from harming herself. In their hands the murder warrant has been placed.

TRIPOLI SHELLED BY TURKS

Outar Forts Are Captured by Arab Allies After Two Hours' Terrific Bombardment.

Berlin.—The outer forts at Tripoli have been captured by the allied Turkish and Arab forces following a terrific bombardment. The Italians were driven back, according to reports here.

The dispatches state that Reschad Bey, the Turkish commander, sent a note demanding the immediate surrender of the city and that upon the Italians replying in the negative a two hours' cannonade was opened by the attacking force.

The Turkish leader warned the foreign consuls and unarmed citizens to leave Tripoli. How many escaped before the bombardment began is not known.

Fool Joker Kills Friend.

Hoboken, N. J.—"Didn't know it was loaded" was responsible for the death of George Snyder when Jeremiah Wilson in a joking mood placed a revolver against Snyder's temple and pulled the trigger. The men were close friends.

"Ad." Costs a Jeweler $350.

Kansas City, Mo.—A jury in the circuit court here has awarded $350 damages to Orel Mundee, a five-year old boy, because a local jeweler used his picture in an advertisement.

LOS ANGELES CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

JOB HARRIMAN.

Job Harriman, Socialist candidate for mayor of Los Angeles, Cal., got more votes than either of his opponents in the primary election held here, but he did not receive a majority. Hence the issue will not be settled until the election in December. Under the city charter a majority in the primary elects. Thousands of women worked for Harriman.

ASKS BIGGER NAVY

TAFT AFTER REVIEWING FLEET IN NEW YORK HARBOR CALLS FOR MORE SHIPS.

ONE SEAMAN LOSES HIS LIFE

Only Incident to Mar Mighty Pageant of Marine Fighting Forces Is Drowning of Man From Battleship New Jersey.

New York.—Fresh from his cross-continent tour of 13,000 miles, President Taft, from the wind-swept bridge of his historic little cruiser yacht Mayflower, reviewed the mightiest line of fighting craft ever assembled under the American flag.

Standing on the bridge of the Mayflower, anchored off Twenty-third street, the president braved a 60-mile gale to receive the homage of 22 great steel-clad leviathans steaming down the river along the shora of New York city.

As the line of ninety-nine ships of war swept past the Mayflower, on which stood Mr. Taft, and boomed the presidential salute of twenty-one guns, the three tiers of men manning the port rail were in rigid salute. As the New Jersey, seventeenth vessel in line, swept by everyone on the president's deck uncovered in silent respect to the memory of Gustave Frey, able seaman, who had lost his life the day hour before. The seaman lost his footing while assisting at the starboard gangway of the New Jersey and plunged into the raging river. For an hour the vast armada was held up while boats from various ships made a fish search for the unfortunate sailor.

After reviewing the fleet the president left for Hot Springs, Va.

Before his departure the president issued the following statement:

"Those who saw the fighting fleet which was assembled in New York harbor could not fail to be struck with its preparedness and with its high military efficiency and must have been proud of its personnel.

"The demonstration has had an educational value in arousing patriotism, increasing the general knowledge of and interest in the navy, illustrating the ability to mobilize on short notice and showing the skill of the officers, who turned the whole fleet in the narrow river and sent it to sea at the rate of 14 knots an hour.

"I am more than ever convinced of the desirability of conferring upon the commanding officer of our fleet the title of admiral, or at least of vice-admiral. At present the ranking officer is a rear admiral and the title is not commensurate with the importance of the fleet. At the review of the German fleet at Kiel, a smaller number of ships were under the command of a full admiral; two squadrons were commanded by vice-admirals, and each of four divisions was commanded by a rear admiral."

Chinese Manila is Burned.

Manila.—The Chinese district was swept by fire with a loss of over $1,000,000. The fire threatened to destroy the commercial center of the city, and the Twentieth infantry, with General Pinkston in charge, was called out to assist the fire fighters.

Indiana Banker Leaves Prison.

Leavenworth, Kas. Frank H. Nicolai, a former Auburn (Ind.) banker, left the federal prison here a free man. He served two years of a five-year sentence for embezzlement.

HALT SENATE INQUIRY

STEPHENSON COMMITTEE ENDS WORK AT MILWAUKEE.

Senator, Who is Last Witness, Denies Use of Money for His Election.

Milwaukee.—The senatorial investigating committee, which has been probing the election of Senator Stephenson, he has completed its work in Milwaukee. The committee finished the taking of testimony and adjourned to meet in Washington at the call of the chairman.

The last witness was Senator Stephenson, as he had been the first. He denied ever having any connection with either Hines or Shields in regard to his election, and denied ever having given Shields or anyone else a blank check.

Senator Stephenson said that he had made no promises and had paid no money to any legislative candidate to assist in his election, nor had he authorized anyone to do so for him behalf.

Edward Hines of Chicago took the stand again and denied that he had a conversation with R. J. Shields. Hines denied that he had ever had a talk with Senator Stephenson regarding the election or in regard to money.

Senator Asbury said, before announcing the adjournment, that the committee had examined 120 witnesses, and had taken 30 affidavits.

FIND CLUE TO KNABE DEATH

Police Search for Man Seen Near Woman Doctor's Apartment Night of Tragedy.

Indianapolis, Ind.—A mysterious, well-dressed man is being sought by the police as the possible slayer of Dr. Helena Knabe, who was killed in her apartment. He was seen by H. W. Heskett, keeper of a cigar store in the neighborhood, to emerge from a passageway adjoining the first floor flat occupied by Dr. Knabe.

Heskett was passing the place on his way home at 11:10 o'clock when the stranger came hurriedly out of the entrance and passed Heskett. He was tall, well dressed and had a dark mustache.

THANKSGIVING DAY IS SET

President Taft Issues Usual Proclamation at Chicago and Designates November 30 as Holiday.

Chicago.—Chicago as a temporary capital of the nation during the four days' visit of the national chief executive took on additional prestige when, for the first time in history, a Thanksgiving day proclamation was issued by the president of the United States while away from the White House.

President Taft, from his temporary executive seat at the Blackstone hotel, made public the annual proclamation which will make Thanksgiving this year fall on the fifth Thursday of the month, November 30.

Colman is Critically Ill.

Lexington Junction, Mo.—Norman J. Colman of St. Louis, first secretary of agriculture of the United States, was taken from a Wabash train here after having suffered a stroke of apoplexy, which, it is feared may prove fatal.

Killed in Auto Wreck.

Danville, Ill.—Moses Solomon, a wealthy business man of Elgin, Ill., was instantly killed at Pittsburg when his automobile in which he was riding overturned.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

The wonder of baking powders—Calumet. Wonderful in its raising powers—its uniformity, its never failing results, its purity.

Wonderful in its economy. It costs less than the high-price trust brands, but it is worth as much. It costs a trifle more than the cheap and big can kinds—it is worth more. But proves its real economy in the baking.

Use CALUMET—the Modern Baking Powder.

At all Grocers.

Received Highest Award World's Pure Food Exposition

MADE CONVERT OF OLD SILAS

Member of School Board May Have Had Deep Thought, but Anyway He Was Satisfied.

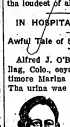
The athletic young woman who taught the district school was on trial for soundly thrashing seven unruly boys.

"You—you think you can control the situation, do—do you?" inquired the president of the school board, who stuttered.

"I can," replied the young woman with considerable decision.

"Well, I don't know about this," grinned Silas Weatherwax. "If my boy needs a lickin' I can give it to him myself. I don't believe in mixed lessons lickin's."

The teacher smiled.



"Neither do I," she said. "If thrashings are to be administered, I think I much better for one person to administer them. And after I have cleaned up the school I may decide to go out and clean up the township."

A moment later when a vote of confidence in the teacher was called for, the "ayes" of Silas Weatherwax was the loudest of all.

IN HOSPITAL NINE MONTHS.

Awful Tale of Suffering From Kidney Trouble.

Alfred J. O'Brien, Second St., Sterling, Colo., says: "I was in the Baltimore Marine Hospital nine months. The urine was in a terrible state and soma days I passed half a gallon of blood. They wanted to operate on me and I went to St. Joseph's Hospital at Omaha, putting in three months there without any gain. I was pretty well discouraged when advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I did so and when I had taken one box, the pain left me. I kept on and a perfect cure was the result."

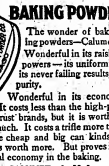
"When Your Back is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S." 50c a box at all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Early Training.

"Sha claime that her ancestors stood torturing with red-hot pincers."

"I believa it. Sha can wear shoes three sizes too small and look happy."—Harper's Weekly.

Blood Poisoning is often caused by slight cuts or wounds. Death may result. Hamlins Wizard Oil will draw out the poison, heal the wound and prevent serious trouble.



The love of the beautiful is becoming not only the possession of the rich, but the desire and possession of the very poor.—Rt. Hon. John Burns.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

There are many who recite their writings in the middle of the forum.

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Lacombe, Alberta, got from his Spring Wheat. Same with Flax. Same with Barley. Records from other districts in that province: Strathcona district, Barley 80 bushels per acre; Innisfail district, Oats 102 bushels of wheat from 25 acres; Leduc district, Potatoes 600 bushels per acre; Medicine Hat district, 1,000 bushels of oats from 10 acres; Edmonton district, 1,500 bushels of potatoes from 10 acres.

The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Dominion Government for the exhibit of grains, grasses and grains in sheaf. Records for 1909 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

From homesteads of 160 acres, Free; purchased prairie at $10 per acre; irrigated land $25 per acre. Railway rates to settlers are low.

Schools conveniently situated. Churches in all districts. Markets good. Climate ideal. Healthful. Pamphlet describing in detail the resources of Western Canada, and telling how easily procured, sent free on application to Superintendent of Immigration at Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agents.

Dan Mills, 125 First St., Grand Forks, N. D.
C. J. Broughton, Room 2, Bullard Block, Marquette, Mich.
W. H. Rogers, Room 3, Callahan Block, Duluth, Minn.
Geo. A. Hall, 125 1/2 St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but surely compel a lazy liver to do its duty.

Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Dizziness and Distress After Eating.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

A GENTS WANTED—Men or live to represent our Company in your city or a short commercial trip. Salary $75 per month and expenses paid. Men in no other line can make as much money. Position permanent. Address, with stamp, The Standard Silver Co., Dept. 10, Toronto, Ont. Mention this paper.

ALLEN'S ULCERINE SALVE

For the treatment of Chronic Ulcers, Bone Ulcers, Scrofula, Wounds, Piles, Fistula, Fever Sores, Eczema, Barber's Itch, Salt Rheum, Blood Poisoning, Sore Breasts and all Skin Diseases. Price 50 cents per box. ALLEN MEDICINE CO., Dept. A.O. St. Paul, Minn.

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for 32,000 Homeseekers. Address Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or Canadian Government Agent, Winona, Minn., Milwaukee, Wis., Detroit, Mich., Buffalo, N. Y., Boston, Mass., Portland, Me.

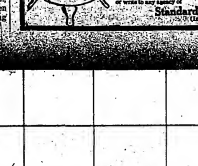
KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. ADDRESS ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, NO. 45-1911.

WOMAN'S ILLS

Many women suffer needlessly from girlhood to womanhood and from motherhood to old age—with backache, dizziness or headache. She becomes broken-down, sleepless, nervous, irritable and feels tired from morning to night. When pains and aches rack the womanly system at frequent intervals, and your neighbor advises



Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

This Prescription has, for over 30 years, been curing delicate, weak, pain-wracked women, by the hundreds of thousands and this too in the privacy of their homes without their having to submit to indelicate questionings and offensively repugnant examinations.

Sick women are invited to consult in confidence by letter free. Address World's Dispensary Medical Ass'n, R.V. Pierce, M. D., Pres't, Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Pierce's Great Family Doctor Book, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition—1000 pages, answers in Plain English hosts of delicate questions which every man, single or married, ought to know about. Sent free to any address on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of wrapping and mailing only, in French cloth binding.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Always ready for use. Safest and most reliable. The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater is just like a portable fireplace.

It gives quick, glowing heat wherever, whenever, you want it. A necessity in fall and spring, when it is not cold enough for the furnace. Valuable as an auxiliary heater in midwinter. Drabs of blue enamel or plain steel, with nickel trimmings.

Ask your dealer to show you a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater. If he cannot supply you, write to our nearest agency for descriptive circular.

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

LITTLE TALK DID THE WORK

Pastor, of Course, Had Only Good of Congregation at Heart, but He Got Monetary Results.

At the end of the first six months of his pastorate, Rev. Amos Johnson had learned the ways of his flock so thoroughly that he knew exactly how to deal with them. One Sunday the collection was deplorably slender. The next week Mr. Johnson made a short and telling speech at the close of his sermon.

"I don't want any man to gib more dan his share, brethren," he said gently, bending toward the congregation. "But we must all gib according as the Lawd has blessed and favored us, and according to what we rightly has.

"I say rightly hab, brethren," he went on, after a short pause, "because we don't want any tainted money in de box. Squire James told me dat he'd missed some chickens dis week. Now if any ob my pore benighted brudders has fallen by de way in connection wid dose chickens, let him stay his hand from de box when it comes to him.

"Brudder Leroy, will you pass de box while I watch de signs and see if dere's anyone in de congregation dat needs me to wrastle in prayer for him."—Youth's Companion.

ERUPTION COVERED BODY

"Three years ago this winter I had a breaking out that covered my whole body. It itched so it seemed as if I should go crazy. At first came out fi little pimples on my back and spread till it covered my whole body and limbs down to my knees, also my arms down to my elbows. Where I scratched it made sores, and the terrible itching and burning kept me from sleeping. I tried several remedies all to no purpose. Then I concluded to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, also the Resolvent, for about four months, and they completely cured me of eczema. I have had no return of the disease since. I never had a good night's rest after the skin eruption first broke out till I commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I had only used them a few days before I could see they were beginning to heal, and the terrible itching was gone.

"Those that lived in the house at the time know how I suffered, and how the Cuticura Soap and Ointment cured me. I never take a bath now but out using the Cuticura Soap, and I do not believe there are better remedies for any skin disease than the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Miss Sarah Calkins, Waukegan, Ill., Mar. 10, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists all the sellers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Arms Made to Order.

A United States senator, worth millions which he made rapidly, has a coat-of-arms recently acquired. He gave a large dinner party one night his coat-of-arms was emblazoned in gold on the top of the dinner bowls. The lady who went in with the senator, the wife of another senator, observed the insignia when she picked up her dinner card and exclaimed: "How pretty!"

"Yes," replied the senator proudly, "I think it is rather neat. My wife invented it."—Saturday Evening Post.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was afraid that death behind him, and I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 8, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

PISO'S
will immediately relieve COUGHS & COLDS

The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY HARPER BROS & COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young taxpayer becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a franking prosecutor, a western mining town. They propose to elope in a blinding blizzard, but are confronted by the scandalized husband. He is shot by the lady in the confusion, but dies at the side of his assailant's wife, who is upon himself. In their flight to the railroad station the woman's horse is killed, exhausted. The youth puts her on his own and, following tangling to the stirrup strap. Seeing he is an unpolished gentleman, she thrusts her pocket into a more fitting and wider set. Subsequently, in the Pullman, the statistician just from the city meets the woman and a twenty-five years later, this man, George Gormly, is a multi-millionaire of New York. He meets Eleanor Haldane, a beautiful and wealthy settlement worker, and co-operates with her in her work. Gormly's daughter Ethel, a spoiled child, flies and Ruth himself fascinated in part and track extensions gained by grafting aldermen, backed by the Gotham Traction Company. An automobile accident brings the Haldanes to his country home. Gormly announces that he will be mayor of New York and redeem the city from boss rule. Mr. Haldane is a fine specimen of manhood, but his wife is a confirmed invalid. Gormly's daughter has been wooing the newspaper reporter, Jack Warren, a man of high character. Gormly, however, rejects all proposed alliances.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

Liffey snorted with disdain.

"My dear Mr. Warren, undoubtedly you are very available. Whether or not you are the most available is the question," interposed McDonald.

"We ought to get some man of the highest consideration, who belongs to a most respectable family, and yet who is amenable to the right pressure. How'd you do yourself, Mr. Haldane?" asked the boss innocently, if bosses ever ask anything in that vein.

"Under no consideration," he said, decisively, "could I accept the honor. My interests, my time, are much too vast for me to localize them by becoming mayor of New York."

"Haven't you got a son?" asked Connell, the chief of police. "He'd have all the orders everywhere, and the job of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

"Oh, I guess you'll take your orders from the society."

"Not from me, Liffey, not from anybody," said Rutherford quietly enough, though his face flushed at the insult. "As a matter of fact, being district attorney, I hold the whip hand of you all." And again the uneasy movement from the financiers outboard the truth of that assertion. "My term still has two years to run, remember, and there are things I could do even with you. Don't forget that!"

Liffey gritted his teeth, but said nothing in the face of so obvious a proposition.

CHAPTER IX.

The Plans of the Ring.

At this moment Haldane reentered the room. He looked gravely troubled.

"Gentlemen, it is past belief, but when I asked him whether he would accept the nomination or not, he said—"

Haldane paused.

"He said he had already pledged his support to Gormly that afternoon at the intercession of—a—my daughter and some other friends."

"Well, I'm damned!" said the boss. "Are you goin' to stand for that?"

"I hardly see how I can prevent it," answered Haldane, very much perturbed, "unless I should disclose my own connection with the administration, which, I take it, is a thing to be avoided for all our sakes."

"Yes, unless we want to kill the cow we're milkin'," returned Liffey. "It is. But can't you put pressure on him?"

"To a certain extent, yes."

"Turn Up Some Dirty Story About Him," Said Liffey Bluntly.

"Cut off his allowance."

"Unfortunately, he has sufficient money of his own from his grandfather's estate, to keep him from—a—want; and as he is quite of age, my influence must be a matter of persuasion."

"Gentlemen," said Rutherford, "this is a very serious indication of the gravity of the situation. If young men like Livingstone Haldane espouse the cause of George Gormly, it means that he'll have a following among—a—class that has tremendous weight."

"That class as a rule don't cut much of a figure in politics," said the street commissioner. "It's my white wings and Connell's gang and the society that does the work."

"Don't make any mistake," said Rutherford. "The class to which you refer, if it could be waked up, is capable of doing amazing work."

"If I know anything about it," said Van Slyke, "Gormly will wake them up too."

"I guess we'll have to fall back on Mr. Warren and his administration," said Haldane.

"Gentlemen," began Warren sententiously, "I shall always be glad to serve the people and—or—my friends and supporters in any office to which I may be chosen."

"We'll take care of that," interrupted Liffey contemptuously.

"In order to make it regular," said the district attorney, "I propose that we all declare here and now our presence for our candidate. I don't hesitate to say that I think Warren is the best man we can get. We know him; we know just exactly what we can expect from him. I feel called upon by the people, and his connection with this little ring here is not embarrassing."

"I guess that suits me," returned Liffey.

Rutherford and Connell agreed, and Van Slyke and his colleagues also assented.

"Now," said Liffey, "I've got something else to propose. What do you think as to the likelihood of Gormly's getting or accepting the nomination of the cuts?"

"I think he could get it by turning over his hand," answered Haldane; "but I think it is extremely unlikely that he'll accept it. His tool me that he intended to run as an absolute independent; not to be tied to any party whatsoever."

"They'll offer him the nomination sure," said Connell. "They all never had such a chance as he'll present since Pa' been chief of police, and that's nearly twenty years."

"Well, if he won't accept it, that'll make them all sore as the devil," said Hilsberry.

"Exactly," interposed Liffey, "and therefore I propose that we make a compartisan ticket to run against him; that we divide the offices between the ins and outs; reserving to ourselves the most important and vital ones, of course, but givin' the outs enough to make 'em feel good, let 'em git their fingers into the public pie for a few pickin's, and so on. We can easily do that without hurt too much, and we'll present a united front against him."

A united front of all the grafters, thieves, blackguards, financiers, and politicians in New York!" sneered Rutherford.

"You don't like the scheme, Mr. Rutherford," roared Liffey angrily.

"Vastly. I think it's one of the best that could be proposed."

"As for myself," said Haldane, "I also think it has elements of attractiveness, although I must protest against being placed in the category you have enumerated, Mr. Rutherford."

"Oh, protest all you like," said the district attorney easily. "The suggestion is a good one, Liffey. It's not hard to see why you're in your present position."

"I suppose," said Mr. Haldane, "that any information you may acquire should be submitted to those of us who are present before any use is made of it."

"Oh that, of course," said Liffey. "Chief, don't make any moves without submitting them to me."

"There is still another matter of interest in all which must be settled," continued Haldane.

"What's that?"

"The old franchise of the New York Street Car company that expires this spring; the link that completes the chain of the Gotham Freight Traction company."

"Well, it doesn't seem to me that's a very difficult proposition," said Liffey. "We've got the board of aldermen, and the borough presidents as well. All we've got to do is draw up an ordinance and shove it through. The mayor herself sign it, and that'll be the end of it."

"It is by no means as easy as you think, Liffey," said Haldane. "If I know anything about Gormly he'll make a fight on that issue. That is the weak point. If we had that franchise safely passed and in our pockets, we could laugh at him. I don't see any reason, therefore, why we should not to defer the passage of such an ordinance until after the election."

"I think that while there is much in what you say, Haldane," said Van Slyke, "yet we'd better make sure of the ordinance before the election. We would have that, anyway, even if we failed, which, as Mr. Liffey says, is hardly possible."

"Gentlemen," said Haldane, "I am by no means convinced of what you say. I tell you that the main fight will be on the disposal of that very franchise. I admit that we can pass anything in spite of any commotions, but the question is do we want it."

"That's hardly the question," said McDonald. "Of course we want to; but the question is, is it the best thing to do? Shall we not bring our force in your arguments, Mr. Haldane. If we present ourselves with the franchise, which is immensely valuable and vital indeed to the completion of our properties, as well as to the success of the whole scheme, and given to the opposition the strongest ground for appeal to the people. If we do not present ourselves with the franchise, if we allow the election to determine that unofficially as it were, and then when we have won the election, we avail ourselves of our opportunities, we shall be in a much safer and stronger position."

"Do you wish to submit this franchise to the vote of the people, Mr. McDonald?" asked Rutherford.

"By no means," answered the financier.

"Well, what do you propose then?"

"This. Would it not be well, in case this movement proves strong enough to be worthy of the attention we are giving it, to declare as from the party in power that which we have the power to grant the franchise, and while we think it would be for the interests of the people that it should be granted, yet we are willing to defer action until after the election and let the election determine."

"That would be a wise course," said Haldane. "I don't know but that is the wisest course; but we must face the alternative."

"What is that?"

"Defeat! If we made that proposition, and then were defeated, it would be impossible to—a—secure the franchise. The stock of the Gotham Freight Traction company is $14,000,000, and the bonds outstanding aggregate almost as much. If we don't have this franchise, they won't be worth ten cents on the dollar to us."

"How much actual money has been invested in the concern?" asked the district attorney.

"Two hundred and fifty millions from the people, and—very little else," answered Haldane.

"How much is it really worth?" queried Liffey.

"It's worth, of course, what was put into it."

"And what will its earning capacity be?"

"If we control it, it will pay a fair dividend on all the stock that has been put out, most of which is held by our friends and the friends of the organization," answered Van Slyke.

The problem was a tremendous one. They faced it silently a moment or two, and at last Haldane restated it.

"If you and we can, by electing a public opinion and jam through an ordinance at the last minute even if, that franchise safely for the people, though by so doing we should give the enemy a tremendous advantage at the close of the campaign. Or we can defer the granting of the franchise until after the election, in the hope that the postponement will be our strongest card for winning. I tell you gentlemen, that other interests of greater magnitude would be involved in the fate of the Gotham Freight Traction company."

"Why is the name of all that's businesslike didn't you get control of this franchise before?" asked Rutherford.

"We couldn't," Haldane replied. "It is impossible to get a renewal of a franchise until it expires."

"Why didn't you wait before committing yourselves to the greater enterprise until this franchise was—a—secured?"

"We couldn't. There were other interests anxious to build the subway and unite the various other franchises in one organization. The people were clamorous that the road should be built, and there was nothing else to do but build it. Besides, who could have foreseen this situation. No gentlemen, we were helpless, we were without this franchise we are now helpless."

"Do we clear ourselves," said Liffey, "that any information you may acquire should be submitted to those of us who are present before any use is made of it."

"Oh that, of course," said Liffey. "Chief, don't make any moves without submitting them to me."

"There is still another matter of interest in all which must be settled," continued Haldane.

"What's that?"

"The old franchise of the New York Street Car company that expires this spring; the link that completes the chain of the Gotham Freight Traction company."

"Well, it doesn't seem to me that's a very difficult proposition," said Liffey. "We've got the board of aldermen, and the borough presidents as well. All we've got to do is draw up an ordinance and shove it through. The mayor herself sign it, and that'll be the end of it."

"It is by no means as easy as you think, Liffey," said Haldane. "If I know anything about Gormly he'll make a fight on that issue. That is the weak point. If we had that franchise safely passed and in our pockets, we could laugh at him. I don't see any reason, therefore, why we should not to defer the passage of such an ordinance until after the election."

"I think that while there is much in what you say, Haldane," said Van Slyke, "yet we'd better make sure of the ordinance before the election. We would have that, anyway, even if we failed, which, as Mr. Liffey says, is hardly possible."

"Gentlemen," said Haldane, "I am by no means convinced of what you say. I tell you that the main fight will be on the disposal of that very franchise. I admit that we can pass anything in spite of any commotions, but the question is do we want it."

"That's hardly the question," said McDonald. "Of course we want to; but the question is, is it the best thing to do? Shall we not bring our force in your arguments, Mr. Haldane. If we present ourselves with the franchise, which is immensely valuable and vital indeed to the completion of our properties, as well as to the success of the whole scheme, and given to the opposition the strongest ground for appeal to the people. If we do not present ourselves with the franchise, if we allow the election to determine that unofficially as it were, and then when we have won the election, we avail ourselves of our opportunities, we shall be in a much safer and stronger position."

"Do you wish to submit this franchise to the vote of the people, Mr. McDonald?" asked Rutherford.

"By no means," answered the financier.

"Well, what do you propose then?"

"This. Would it not be well, in case this movement proves strong enough to be worthy of the attention we are giving it, to declare as from the party in power that which we have the power to grant the franchise, and while we think it would be for the interests of the people that it should be granted, yet we are willing to defer action until after the election and let the election determine."

"That would be a wise course," said Haldane. "I don't know but that is the wisest course; but we must face the alternative."

"What is that?"

"Defeat! If we made that proposition, and then were defeated, it would be impossible to—a—secure the franchise. The stock of the Gotham Freight Traction company is $14,000,000, and the bonds outstanding aggregate almost as much. If we don't have this franchise, they won't be worth ten cents on the dollar to us."

"How much actual money has been invested in the concern?" asked the district attorney.

"Two hundred and fifty millions from the people, and—very little else," answered Haldane.

"How much is it really worth?" queried Liffey.

"It's worth, of course, what was put into it."

"And what will its earning capacity be?"

"If we control it, it will pay a fair dividend on all the stock that has been put out, most of which is held by our friends and the friends of the organization," answered Van Slyke.

The problem was a tremendous one. They faced it silently a moment or two, and at last Haldane restated it.

"If you and we can, by electing a public opinion and jam through an ordinance at the last minute even if, that franchise safely for the people, though by so doing we should give the enemy a tremendous advantage at the close of the campaign. Or we can defer the granting of the franchise until after the election, in the hope that the postponement will be our strongest card for winning. I tell you gentlemen, that other interests of greater magnitude would be involved in the fate of the Gotham Freight Traction company."

"Why is the name of all that's businesslike didn't you get control of this franchise before?" asked Rutherford.

"We couldn't," Haldane replied. "It is impossible to get a renewal of a franchise until it expires."

"Why didn't you wait before committing yourselves to the greater enterprise until this franchise was—a—secured?"

"We couldn't. There were other interests anxious to build the subway and unite the various other franchises in one organization. The people were clamorous that the road should be built, and there was nothing else to do but build it. Besides, who could have foreseen this situation. No gentlemen, we were helpless, we were without this franchise we are now helpless."

"Do we clear ourselves

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all humors, catarrh and rheumatism, creates a true stomach feeling, restores the appetite, cures paleness, nervousness, builds up the whole system.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

WE SELL
GUNS, TRAPS, ETC.
CHEAP
Write for Free Catalog 105
Sits us our Rides, Furs, Pelts, Wool, Etc.
N. W. HIDE & FUR CO.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses the scalp. Prevents Dandruff. Restores Color and Beauty to Gray Hair. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures Scalp Diseases & Hair Falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Pettit's Eye Salve QUICK RELIEF SORE EYES

DEFIANCE STARCH easiest to work with and stands clothes nicest.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

Appetite Not a Necessity.

Dr. John R. Murlin of the University of Virginia, assistant professor of physiology at the Cornell university medical college, in an article in the October number of the Journal of the Outdoor Life, compares the food we eat to the fuel used in furnishing steam and power for an engine. In selecting our food he says that we should eat enough to furnish energy for the day's work, but that much more than this is not needed. He holds that the appetite is not a necessity for good digestion. "There is no fallacy of nutrition," he says, "greater than that which supposes that a food cannot be digested and utilized without appetite." Most of the food we eat, the doctor declares, furnishes energy for our everyday tasks, while less then one-fifth goes to supply building material.

Restored Courage.

The southern lover was impetuous, says the author of a recent book of reminiscences of eastern Virginia, entitled "Memory Day," and the maiden was timid and unused to passionate proposals of marriage. "Oh, don't!" she interrupted in a whisper. "You frighten me dreadfully."

Overcome by emotion, the young man humbly apologized for his fervor, and a painful silence ensued. The girl broke it at last.

"Robert," she began, with a hopeful smile, "I don't think—I—shall—be so frightened this time."

Easy to Understand.

When Senator John E. Hessin and daughter of Meshatten were doing Europe and Asia last summer, says the Kansas City Journal, they took a motor boat ride on the Sea of Galilee. In the party was a New York minister. When the party had finished the ride the minister asked the boat man the amount of the bill. The boatman told him. It was exhorbitant.

"I can readily understand why Christ walked on the water here," said the minister.

Urgent Necessity.

A distinguished theologian was invited to make an address before a Sunday school. The divine spoke for over an hour and his remarks were of too deep a character for the average juvenile mind to comprehend. At the conclusion, the superintendent, according to custom, requested some one in the school to name an appropriate hymn to sing.

"Sing Revina Us Again," shouted a boy in the rear of the room.—Life.

RED.

It's the Red Blood Corpuscles That Proper Food Makes.

An Ohio woman says Grape-Nuts food gave her good red blood and restored the roses of youth to e complexion that had been muddy and pimply. She says:

"For 10 years I had stomach trouble which produced a breaking out on my face. The doctors gave it a long Latin name, but their medicines failed to help me any. Along with this I had frequent headaches, nervousness and usually pain in my stomach after meals.

"I got discouraged with coffee and stopped them and coffee off short, and quit eating everything but fruit and vegetables, with Postum for my table beverage.

"The headaches, stomach trouble, and nervous weakness disappeared almost like magic, which showed that when the cause was removed and good food and drink used nature was ready to help.

"My blood was purified and my complexion grew to a beautiful pink, while my weight was increased from 90 to 120 pounds in a few months' good, solid firm flesh, where it used to be soft and flabby.

"I recommended Grape-Nuts and Postum to one of my friends, who was afflicted as I had been. She followed my advice and in a short time was restored to complete health and in about 8 months her weight increased from 100 to 143 pounds.

"Our doctor, observing the effect of Grape-Nuts and Postum in our cases, declared, the other day, that he would hereafter prescribe these food products for gastritis." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

While it will be very handy to pick up fish out of the bottom of Red Lake River, it might be a violation of the game and fish laws—unless you own a saw mill in Thief River Falls.

There has been several railroad route lookers passed through this locality lately, which indicates that they have this country spotted and that the large ferill territory between Warroad and Bemidji, lying west of Red Lake is quite certain of a railway within the next two years.

THAT LOG JAM AGAIN.

The Thief River Falls Times says; that the Red Lake Falls Gazette got his information about the log jam in Red Lake River from Hunts Sunbeam. Well supposing he did, we have published nothing but facts, and any newspaper that will try to supress these facts shows themselves to be a cheap tool and pap sucker of a lumber corporation. We have only just started to publish facts about this heinous crime of that lumber company blocking up this river with logs and killing all the fish, and making an epidemic of sickness among the settlers along the river in the spring, caused by the smell of dead and rotten fish. That log jam is what has blocked up this river and caused it to go dry, and we shall continue to publish the facts and shall later publish illustrations of the head of the river showing how the logs has been jamed into it so as to shut off the water.

A Blot on Its Record.

The evil of adulteration has its humorous phases, one of which is brought out in "Science and the Criminal," a book by C. Ainsworth Mitchell, the head of the inspection bureau of Scotland Yard.

An eminent English counsel was cross examining Mr. Simmons, the electrical expert, in a case in which there was a dispute about the working of some electrical plant.

"I think, Mr. Simmons, that you have had a long experience with electricity."

"That is so."

"Well, now, I want you to tell me whether in the course of all your experience you have ever known electricity to be adulterated?"

"In only one instance."

"When was that?" eagerly asked counsel.

"In the phrase 'greased lightning,'" the expert replied demurely.

A Difference of Opinion.

On one occasion Bishop G. of Atlanta purposed leaving home on a Saturday night train, arriving in Savannah the next morning in time to fill a pulpit engagement. His brother, much his senior, old fashioned in his notions of Sabbath observance, hearing of the proposed Sunday trip, took him to task about it. The bishop explained that he was starting home as long as possible in take care of his children who had been ill all the week, so that his wife would be in better shape to nurse them during his absence. "You see, Alfred," the explanation ended, "it's a toss of the ut in the dark."

"Or in the ditch nothing!" snorted his brother in disgust. "It's a case of a donkey in a sleeping car!"—St. Louis Republic.

Had a Full Course.

The sign in front of a Harlem restaurant attracted the eye of a farmer, and he went in. He had a raw, a fry, a stew, a pan roast, a broil and a steam on toast. When he got through he laid a quarter on the waiter's desk, only to be told that he was shy a dollar and a quarter.

"No, by Jing," said the farmer. "A quarter's right. Doesn't your sign say, 'Quarter In, Dollar Out, for Twenty-five Cents'"—Lippincott's.

Not Sure of Him.

"Why are you so sure that he loves you?"

"Because he says when I am not in hopes he can overcome the fascination of my presence. And there is not one thing that bothers me—I fear he will succeed."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27,1911.

Department of the Interior. U.S. Land office at Crookston, Minn. October 23rd, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ole J. Hanson of Pine Minnesota, who on July 7th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1260, Serial No. 04686 for Lot 8 Section 6 and Lots 8, 9 & 7, Section 7 Township 163 N. Range 38 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 8th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Frank Sawyer, John Olson Serial, Olaf R. Hanson, of Hlida Minn. Rivert Saire, of Thief River Falls Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.

Department of The Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota. October 30th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole Ov. Nesland, of Roland Minn. who on February 21, 1906 made Homestead Entry No. 1052, Serial No. 04497, for S. E. ¼ Section 29 Township 159 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 12th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses.

Oscar Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Rhoda Minn. Amund K. Breland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 30th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Amund K. Breland, of Roland Minn. who, on June 17, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1185, Serial No. 04470, for N. W. ¼ Section 29 Township 159 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 12th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Nesland, Oscar Nesland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Rhoda Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 23th, 1911

Notice is hereby given that Anton Bachiecki of Roland Minn. who on October, 9th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1668, Serial No. 04385, for N.E. ¼ Section 11 Township 162 N. Range 40 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 4th. day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John L. Radziecki, of Roland Minn. Tom Lothus, of Rhoda Minn. Mathias Wojnerowski, John Polereck, of Hallock Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN,
Register.

She Was Used to Storms.

The storm burst forth in all its fury. Great trees were torn up bodily by the roots, houses were shivered or even wrenched from their foundations women shrieked and fainted with their children to places of fancied safety, while strong men turned pale and vainly attempted to appear unconcerned. But in the midst of all this fury of nature one little woman sat cool, calm and collected. She did not appear to notice that anything out of the ordinary was happening. Now and then she raised her face from the book that she was reading to absorb her, glanced around the room and went back to the book's love. Afterward we learned that she was a teacher in a primary school and that she hadn't heard or felt anything she wasn't accustomed to.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Shark Stories.

A shark is very tenacious of life, and Dr. Gunther, the ichthyologist, has pointed out in one of his contributions to the literature of his subject that "wounds affect fishes generally much less than higher vertebrates. A Greenland shark continues to feed while his head is pierced by a harpoon or by a knife as long as the nervous center is not touched."

A Norwegian antarctic explorer, H. J. Bull, gives a startling word picture of a shark's tenacity of life. This monster was caught at the Iceland codfishery. His liver, heart and intestinal arrangements were removed so as to put a period to his career, and the thus mutilated body was then cast into the sea. He simply swam a leisurely way of his tail and swam rightly out of sight.—Chambers' Journal.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, } ss.
Lucas County.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of CATARRH that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

(Seal) A. W. GLEASON,
Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Quicksand.

Quicksand differs from beach and other sand in that the individual grains have become worn by water or wind until the natural facets and angles have been abraded and each grain has become more or less spherical. The coefficient of friction is thus reduced to the minimum and the bed does not pack when dry and when wet behaves like a fluid. The depth of quicksand is conditioned by the depth of the hardpan or other compact material upon which the sand rests. In building operations on the lower end of Manhattan island quicksands are encountered more than 100 feet in depth. Near Pueblo, Colo., in 1878, a train was drawn by a derailed locomotive into a quicksand and was swallowed up beyond discovery, although probed for to a depth of fifty feet. In certain smaller littoral quicksands, bodies which have been engulfed are in time brought to the surface at the edge of the shivering schist. This is due to the structure of the containing bowl of rock which permits a sluggish circulatory movement of the plastic mass.

Notice For Publication.

First pub in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 6th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that John Krkocek of Highlanding Minn. who on March 2, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1057, Serial No. 04411, for S. E. ¼ Section 10 Township 163 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 19th. day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Martin Bordsek, of Erie Minn. Joseph Schlieber, Henry Eliason, of Highlanding Minn. Charles W. Vernechek of Thief River Falls Minn.

Aurthor P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 19th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin M. Anderson of Torgerson Minn. who on March 6, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1007, Serial No. 04416, for S. W. ¼ Section 33 Township 164 N. Range 39 W. Fifth Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigrud, Michael Anderson, John Sverik, Soren Hermanson, all of Torgerson Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN,
Register.

Willie's Way.

"Auntie?"

"Yes, Willie?"

"Mother says that I shan't ask for cake."

"No, Willie, you mustn't."

"But, auntie, don't think it would impolite to refuse if you should offer me some."

"The Only Thing That Will Relieve Neuralgia."

The piercing pains of Neuralgia, which often follows a bad cold or La Grippe, are frequently almost unbearable and few medicines afford any relief to the sufferer.

"I am a rural mail carrier and have been a user of the Dr. Miles medicines for years.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills can't be beaten. They are the only thing I have found that will relieve my neuralgia and I have tried most everything, besides medicine from the doctor. I am willing to tell anyone what the Anti-Pain Pills did for me."

CHARLES HILDEBRANDT,
Box 205
Woodvill, Ohio

If you, like Mr. Hildebrandt, "have tried most everything" in vain, why not do as he did, fight your aches and pains with Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. The pills bear the brunt of the battle. No matter how stubborn the contest, they will battle out victorious.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold on this plan: The first package fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Oct 20th-1911.

Department of the Interior.U.S.Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that. Emil Sigrud, of Torgerson Minnesota, who on Dec. 10th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 1010, Serial No. 04382, for N. W. ¼

Section 35 T. wnship 164 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Mikkel Anderson, Marvin Anderson, Soren Hermanson, of Torgerson Minn. John J. Sievik of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. November 4th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given, that Martin Bordsek, of Erie Minn., who on December 21st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1018 Serial No. 04388, for N. E. ¼

Section 17 Township 163 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn.on the 16th. day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Joseph Schlieber, Henry Eliason, John Krkocek, Charles W. Vorechek, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 20, 1911

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 16th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Soren H. Hermanson of Torgerson Minn. who on Feb. 15th, 1905 made Deeded and Entry No. 1048, Serial No. 04404, for N. E. ¼ Section 35 Township 164 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th, day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigrud, And ew Ejue, Martin Anderson, of Torgerson Minn. John M. Johnson of Highlanding Minn.

Aurthor P. Toupin,
Register

It Was Impossible.

Boy—Ros-o! Billy's been ah' took all my marbles.

Old Lady—Well, don't cry. He will give them back to you.

Boy—N-no, he won't. He's swallowed 'em already.—Lesley's Opinion.

Suspicious.

"Let me show you 'Love Letters of Wise Men,'" said the actor to the book emporium.

"Are they signed?" asked the cautious bookworm.

"Yes, indeed, every one of them."

"Then they won't be forgeries. Wise men never sign their names to love letters."—Chicago News.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &c.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. HANDBOOK on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER, Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods at the Right Prices

Best line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours for Business.— SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

Why Was Blessed.

Duhleich—Wot's dat you I heard tumbling at your door this morning at 1 o'clock? Chuleigh—At 1? I guess so. My wife declares I got in about 3 o'clock.—Baltimore Clam.

The Paternal Idea.

Miss Roxley—I lost my heart last night, pa. I accepted Mr. Poorman. Mr. Roxley—Huh! You didn't lose your heart. You must have lost your head.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book of inventions. "Hints to inventors." "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE,
PATENT ATTORNEYS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Mrs. Ole Overom is visiting at Germantown this week.

George Sinner the Rhoda merchant was down to the twin cities last week to buy goods.

The new church at Highland Inn is now inclosed and work is being rushed to complete it before winter sets in.

E. Peterson returned from Canada last week, where he has a homestead and will move there with his family.

Singer Bros. have their new store building at Kratka nearly completed and will put in a large new stock of winter goods.

Miss Katie O'Brien, from Cavalier N.D. is visiting her brother Jones O'Brien and her sister Mrs. Wm. Cousins this week.

It turned good and cold last night, with a flurry of snow just to remind us that we lived in northern Minnesota.

Chas Kratzer went down to Thief River Falls yesterday to meet his wife, who he expects to arrive from the state of Washington to day.

We have our claim residence finished and expect to move in tomorrow. In fact we have our fall farm work all completed, and will have more time to spend in his office now.

Boys should be a little careful about trapping before the season opens, as you know you must be careful not to violate the game and fish law—unless you own a saw mill in Thief River Falls.

The Chas Swanson threshing machine is now in the Malone neighborhood, and Wm. Rodman is near Rhoda with his threshing rig, and with one more week of fair weather they will complete the threshing in that locality.

Crookston found out last Tuesday that they had a few Socialists down there. The fun of it was, that while the other fellows were "scrapping" the Socialists said nothing—but they voted, to win and did win.

Peter Hedeen has rented his Kratka farm and will sell his stock and farm machinery at public auction tomorrow We are sorry to loose as good a farmer as Peter, but the farm will remain at its present location.

Willie Parno returned home from Norman county this week, and started building a new residence on his claim in the town of Star. He claims that he is still single, but it seems to us that he is building rather a large house for a bachelor, and if anything happens later we will let you know.

Walter McAndress took a load of wheat to Okiee Wednesday. He reports that the market is badly crowded at that point at the present time, as the elevators are to small to take care of the large quantics of wheat hawld there. He was complemented on the fine quality of his wheat which graded No. 1.

Wanted: An improved farm to rent for next yer. Inquire of, or address George Leimers," Reland Minn.

Strict German Discipline.

"German discipline in the army is the strictest of any nation in the world," said a man who has experienced it. "Every German boy must serve a definite period in the army. He can buy his way out in six months if he has money, but the richest must serve that period. The first thing told a recruit when he enters the barracks is that he does not know how to walk. That information startles him, because naturally he believes he had learned to walk years before. A drillmaster gets him in a courtyard, and for a week, often a month, the poor recruit is drilled in walking alone. Then he gets another course, and the longest practice marches of a regiment are almost equal to the stress of actual war. It makes thorough soldiers of the [illegible]—New York Tribune.

The Socialist Win Out,

Crookston elected a Socialist mayor last Tuesday and one of the six Aldermen. Of the election the Crookston Daily Times says:

"The Socialist came down the ballot battlefield yesterday like an army of Italians charging an Arabian spewing soclet holding a missionary ton, and landed H. L. Largen in the prayers chair with a majority of 98 votes. Mayor McKinnon was second and W. R. Low had 28 votes less than Mc Kinnon.

"A study of the vote will reveal a Chinese puzzle. The ballots was cut, backed and split, the voting being the most independent ever recorded in Crookston. There were hardly two ballots marked alike. In addition to the mayor the Socialist elected George Christianson in the 6th Ward, getting there more votes than F. H. Hilliard and 14 more than Gilbert".

A Wonderful Machine.

The machine by which railway tickets are printed gives an exhibition of intelligence or what looks very like it. Railway tickets are not, as might be supposed, printed in large sheets and afterward cut up. The cardboard is cut into tickets first and printed one by one afterward. The little blank cards are put in a pile in a kind of perpendicular spout, and the machine slips a bit of metal underneath the bottom of the spout and pushes out the lowest ticket in the pile to be printed and consecutively numbered. It is of no use trying to print a lost ticket. The machine finds out an imperfect blank in an instant and flatly refuses to have anything to do with it. Tear off the corner of one of the bits of card and put it into the spout with the others in order to see what will happen and it refuses to budge again until somebody comes and removes the imposter. Pull out the damaged ticket and the mechanism will set briskly to work again.—Philadelphia Record.

When Women Carved.

In George I.'s reign it was the bounden duty of the mistress of a country house to carve for her guests. Etiquette demanded it of her, and no one might relieve her of her arduous task, not even the master. To the latter was only assigned the easy labor of passing the bottle and looking on while each joint was placed in turn before his wife or daughter, as the case might be, and by her rapidly manipulated. Carving became one of the branches of a good feminine education, and there were professional carving masters who taught the young ladies. Lady Mary Wortley Montagu took lessons in the art three times a week and on her father's public days made a practice of hand ing round a dish on hour or two beforehand. A guest who did not receive his portion from his hostess' own fair hands would have considered himself much aggrieved.—London Spectator.

Real Angel of Death.

Most of us are impatient with the beautiful and artistic conception of French wherein a young sculptor who is plying his magic chisel upon a block of stone and summoning from the snowy depths of the marble the dream face of his soul's ideal is gently touched by the winged eyed angel of death and the skillful arm forever stayed. The whole creation is marvelously beautiful and the world is better for its birth. Nevertheless it is allegorical and misleading. The real angel of death is the one of the thin faced sculptor was not a mad visaged maiden of classical profile. In all probability it was a minute, rodlike organism floating amid motes of dust and known to scientists as the "bacillus tuberculosis." The writer does not want to be a shatterer of ideals, but the sooner such poetic notions of death are done away with and the mass of the people educated in a common sense way to the dangers of dust and bacteria the better it will be for humanity in general.—J. G. Ogden in Popular Mechanic.

Getting Them Wholesale.

"I saw you kissing Sister Sue last night."

"Don't say anything about it. Here is a quarter for being a good boy."

"Quarter nothing! I want at least a dollar. They ought to be worth a cent a kiss."

Waste of Opportunity.

Stella—What do you consider a waste of opportunity? Bella—A freight train going through a tunnel.—New York Sun.

Roses are carried away by the flood, while thistles remain.—Proverb.

THE WRECK

A Story of Kidnaping

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Asso'n, Chicago, 1901.

When Alice Lorett had come out of the east, where she had been for a year's visit, Percie Card encountered at once to her lavishness and charm. It was by no means his first love affair, but it was without doubt his most serious one.

The beautiful Miss Lorett, however, looked with indifference upon the young millionaire—upon his extreme slenderness, his narrow face with its pale pleading eyes, sleek hair and rosepink nostrils, like a girl's. She disliked his ungodfearingly manner, the touch of his white sapphire finger tips and, above all, his effeminacy. Mentally she wore a picture of a tall, brown faced man, with strong hands, keen blue eyes and a shock of chestnut hair. There was also the memory of a brief, blissful betrothal, a quarrel and the long ache after the parting. He, the artist, had sailed for unknown seas with sketch book and pencil, while she had fled home to California as being farthest from the scene of her heart disaster.

It was at the suggestion of his social sponsor, Mrs. Arlington, that Percie Card plunged a crushing blow at Marjequin. It required heroic resolve to do this, but the opportunity offered by long, delightful days on the Pacific with Alice Lorett, followed by dreamful, moonlit, tropical nights, was not to be denied, and so it was that once she Spotter. her morning the long black hull of the Harlequin slipped through the Golden Gate and disappeared into the enchanted west.

"Can you do it?" asked Card for the third time.

Captain Alveiro scowled. "I must think," he said sullenly. "I must plan it all out and consider it. There is a risk."

"Bah!" scoffed Card. "If you're afraid, say so. I thought you fellows were fire eaters. When it comes right down to tarning off a job—well, say, you've got a kindergarten beaten to a standstill."

"Ah, you think so?" The captain's slim brown fingers caressed an ugly looking knife produced from his tight fitting waist. "Just the same, sir, I'll take my time and think about it."

Card shifted uneasily in his seat. "All right, take your time, old sport," he said, with a slight sneer. "I've got for you, Colton, keep your mouth shut —savvy?" He glared savagely at the old seaman.

Colton observed a respectful silence, and Alveiro, who had sheathed his knife, turned his scowl of hate to the young millionaire. "Give yourself no uneasiness, Mr. Card. It will happen as you wish—about tomorrow evening or very early the following day." His voice dropped to a hissing murmur. "And the payment of the money —I may be assured of that, sir?"

"Sure thing," nodded Card carelessly, "and if you make a pretty job of it I'll make it twenty-five hundred."

All that night and the next day the Harlequin labored in the teeth of a gale. At nightfall Percie Card reported that the men were exhausted, a propeller shaft was broken and that the yacht was drifting helplessly at the mercy of the storm. Nevertheless at seven short aboard, but under present conditions no repairs could be made. He made this announcement to the three men in the smoking room after the women had retired.

"Then there is danger?" said Manering coolly.

Card laughed nervously. "Of course," he said abruptly. "If the wind changes Alveiro says we'll come out all right."

Alice Lorett slept little that night. She as well as the rest of the women was a good sailor, but the pitching and heeling of the yacht prevented repose of body, while her mind was painfully active in its restive unhappiness. That day she had refused Percie Card's offer of marriage for the third time, and his open resentment was unpleasant.

She took a long walk in the forenoon by an insistent rapping at her door. Some one was speaking hoarsely. "Miss Lorett, get up and dress at once! We are in great danger! Hurry!"

There were hoarse shouts from the boat that had been lowered, and she found herself hurried over the side and passed from one strong arm to another until she was seated in the pitching dory. There was a little delay while the boat rose and sank on the great rollers. Another boat was being lowered.

Once she raised her voice and called, "Mrs. Arlington, are you safe?" but the words died out on the gale. She reached out a hand and felt nothing save the rough flannel shirt of a sailor. Her friends were probably following in another boat.

Before she could think further the roar of the breakers drowned even her thoughts, and for a few moments it seemed as though animation was suspended while the dory burst through a booming mountain of water. She was drenched to the skin and panting for breath when, with a sudden shock that was startling, they glided down the mountain of water and descended with a rush into infinite calm, and except for the long swell left by the crashing combers the boat glided evenly under the impetus of the stout armed persons.

All this while not a sound had been uttered by the companions. Presently the first struggles of the gale yielding sand, and Percie Card's voice broke the long silence.

"Safe at shore, Miss Lorett," he said briskly, and Alice was too cold and weary to resent his clammy hand that pinched hers in the darkness.

Day was dawning.

She looked at the jungle covered shore, sloping upward into a high crested hill topped by feathery palms. There was a smell of cassia and lime and out into the myriads of bright hued birds flickered among the tall, tufted cocoanuts.

"Where are the others?" she asked as Card helped her over the gunwale.

"Coming in the next boat," he answered promptly, and then, jumping to the men, "All ready—cast off!" and in an instant the dory was manned and put out into the grey mist.

"Where is the Harlequin?" asked Alice, straining her eyes after the departing boat.

"Beyond the reef," replied Card carelessly.

"And—why are you here?" she asked with growing wonderment in her wide gray eyes. "You came in the first boat —and left the women behind?"

"Certainly I would you and I said I would win you my lady!" he retorted hotly.

"Am I to understand that the Harlequin has not been in danger—that it is a trick?"

"Not in the least danger," he laughed easily. "Alveiro knows this island and the coves like a book, and the ship's wreck part, the landing in the boat, I may as well tell you, was part of the game?"

"And—now? It is your intention to detain me here?" she asked sagely.

"Well, until you promise to marry me," he admitted.

"And if I don't?"

"You'll have to stay until you do!"

"And if I consent?"

"Why, there's a settlement on the other side of the island, and the clergyman there"—he stopped abruptly.

"A settlement?" she repeated joyously. "Thank you for the information, Percie Card!" She turned and with pretty pique the carrying bunch toward a point of land that jutted into the little bay.

For a moment he watched her wrathfully. Then he followed. She ran like a deer, but he was lithe of form and like a cat upon his feet. With long, sweeping bounds he gained on her and, reaching her, placed one hand on her shoulder. She uttered a sharp cry, and in that instant there was a scuffle of feet, the shout of a great voice, and some dark body darted itself upon Percie Card and bore him to the sand.

The dark body resolved itself into the leaden countenance and stocky figure of Simon Colton. He sat upon the recumbent form of his late employer and addressed the trembling girl.

"You'll not be afeard of this here little piper, miss. He couldn't hurt a flea. If you'd slapped his face good and hard he'd 'a' run away. But you did the runnin', and the 'unt' the kind that ain't afeard of unhuddy that's been after him, why, he just not'rily followed after."

"How did you get here, Simon?" she asked eagerly. "How can we get away? And is it true that the Harlequin has gone?"

Simon tucked a generous bit of tobacco in his mouth and nodded solemnly. "I heerd them a-layin' plans in the wheelhouse t'day. They expected me to jine in, and I did as far as I wanted to. I knew if I opposed 'em, nobody'd believe me and they'd clap me below. So I keeps my trap shut and thinks I'll be on deck to take care o' mine when the winds. They loses me overboard while they were bringin' you here, miss, and devil a one did one of them degrees say when I slipped over. I lays in with here, and blast me if I didn't go asleep on duty. But I'm wide awake now." He arose and aimed a kick at the recumbent form of Mr. Card.

The little millionaire jumped to his feet, ashen with anger and despairing exhilaration. He stared from the forbidding countenance of the sailor to the haughty, scornful one of the girl who had attempted to abduct him, turned away and looked beyond him. Her face softened, and a glad light came into her eyes. Amazement and recognition flashed over her. She looked like a vision of the morning with her shining hair and sweet, gray eyes.

"Oh!" she cried rapturously. "Who is that?"

Then turned and followed her glance. A figure was advancing down the beach toward them—a tall man with broad head into his shoulders. Suddenly he lifted his eyes and saw the little group. Alice started forward with a loud, glad cry that rang in Percie Card's ears for many a day. Such a revelation of love that it was!

"Ralph, Ralph, Ralph!" she called.

Ralph Bolton dropped his burden and came to meet her with incredulous eyes. He gathered her into his willing arms without further explanation.

"Oh, I have wanted you so badly!" she murmured into his shoulder.

He tightened his grasp on her form as he drew back her head and kissed her tenderly on the lips.

Simon Colton spat reflectively upon the sand and turned his back on the reunited lovers.

"Seems to me, young feller," he said, fixing the miserable Percie with a baleful eye, "that you're hollerin' that there young miss to a place where she's mighty glad to be."

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEW STATION ON DELUTH EDD LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Tvumm, Pres. Samuel Gilcau Vic. Pis.
Larry O'Niel, Asthan Fuequire, T. L. Cuttud.
J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Cruzon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footware Buy The [illegible]

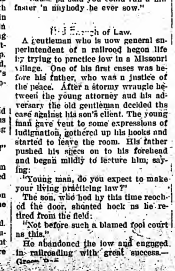
CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE

DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.



Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN.

It is not necessary to make your trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

Thought She Must Be.

"Ma, are you a sprinter?"

"Why?"

"'Cause pa said you could run a hill faster 'n anybody he ever saw."

Bit of Law.

A gentleman who is now general superintendent of a railroad began life by trying to practice law in a Missouri village. One of his first cases was before his father, who was a justice of the peace. After a stormy wrangle between the young attorney and his adversary the old gentleman decided the case against his son's client. The young man gave vent to some expressions of indignation, gathered up his books and started to leave the room. His father pushed his specs on to his forehead and began mildly to lecture him, saying:

"Young man, do you expect to make your living practicing law?"

The son, who had by this time reached the door, shouted back as he retired from the field:

"Not before such a blamed fool court as this."

He abandoned the law and engaged in railroading with great success.—Green Bag.

U.S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays. Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the Improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.
98 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

EFFECT OF GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY IS SOON REALIZED.

I feel it my duty to let you know what Swamp-Root did for me. I was bothered with my back for over twenty years and at times I could hardly get out of bed. I read your advertisement and decided to try Swamp-Root. Used five bottles, and it has been five years since I used it, and I have never been bothered a day since I took the last bottle of it. I am thoroughly convinced that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root cured me and would recommend it to others suffering as I did.

My husband was troubled with kidney and bladder troubles and he took your Swamp-Root and it cured him. This was about five years ago.

You may publish this letter if you choose.

Very truly yours,
MRS. MATTIE CAMFIELD,
R. F. D. No. 3 Goblesville, Mich.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 13th day of July, 1909.

ABVIN W. MYERS,
Notary Public,
for Van Buren Co., Mich.

Letter to
Dr. Kilmer & Co.
Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

No More Room.

The railway carriage was crowded, but a very fat old gentleman who sat by the window calmly ignored the ominous looks of the passengers for taking up so much room.

A boy selling buns poked his head in at the window and inquired:

"Buns, sir?"

The old gentleman was slightly deaf, and, not noticing the buns, thought the boy wanted a seat in the already packed carriage; so he remarked:

"Full up, my boy! No more room inside!"

A roar of laughter followed his reply, and the old gentleman innocently wondered as to the cause of their merriment.—London Tit-Bits.

Distemper

In all its forms among all ages of horses and dogs, cured and others in the same stable prevented from having the disease with Spohn's Distemper Cure. Every bottle guaranteed. Over 750,000 bottles sold last year. $.50 and $1.00. Good druggists, or send to manufacturers. Agents wanted. Write for free book. Spohn Med. Co., Spec. Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

Test of Real Greatness.

Columbus had made the egg stand on end.

"But could you unscramble it?" demanded the mortified courtiers.

Which merely accentuates the great truth that nobody is springing any new puzzles nowadays.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

A town that pays the preacher and supports the editor is mighty close to heaven.—Atlanta Constitution.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules. Easy to take as candy.

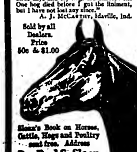
In order to become a nuisance you have only to hunt up a grievance.

Stops Lameness

Sloan's Liniment is a reliable remedy for any kind of horse lameness. Will kill the growth of spavin, curb or splint, absorb enlargements, and is excellent for sweeny, fistula and thrush.

Here's Proof.

"I used Sloan's Liniment on a mule for 'high lameness,' and cured her. I am never without a bottle of your liniment; have bought more of it than any other remedy for pains." BAILY KIRBY, Cassady, Ky.



"Sloan's Liniment is the best made. I have removed very large shoe boils off a horse with it. I have killed a quarter crack on a mare that was awfully bad. I have also healed raw, sore necks on three horses. I have healed grease heel on a mare that could hardly walk." ANTHONY G. HIVER, Oakland, Pa., Route No. 1.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is good for all farm stock.

"My hogs had hog cholera three days before we got your liniment, which I was advised to try. I have used it now for three days and my hogs are almost well. One hog died before I got the liniment, but I have not lost any since." A. J. McCARTHY, Idaville, Ind.

Sold by all Dealers. Price 50c & $1.00

Sloan's Book on Horses, Cattle, Hogs and Poultry sent free. Address

Dr. Earl S. Sloan

Boston, Mass.

The Great Awakening of China

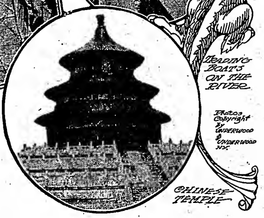
By Gen. A. W. Greely

6

EVEN the most casual observer of current affairs must have been impressed by the steadily increasing volume of matter that is appearing in periodical literature relative to China and to its evolutionary progress toward its proper and destined position as one of the great civilized nations of the earth.

In the last decade affairs oriental have been a series of surprises to the world, and in this respect the transformation of China has not been the least wonderful. In late years the Chinese government has astonished the Christian peoples of the Occident by its political audacity and persistent activity in suppressing not only foreign trade in opium but also in abolishing throughout its vast provinces the prevalent growth of the poppy plant. Today it confounds the predictions of foreign politicians by hastening, instead of delaying, the formation of a central constitutional government with a responsible cabinet. Again it has instituted a system of secondary education along modern scientific lines, and has transformed its antiquated literary examinations into more suitable tests of official fitness.

At home it is redeeming its treaty obligations to mint a standard and national coinage. It has formed its first budget, has initiated a system of imperial taxation, reorganized its postal and telegraph services, and nationalized its railways.



PUPILS OF A GIRLS' SCHOOL

SHOPPING CENTER IN CANTON

TRADING BOATS ON THE RIVER

CHINESE TEMPLE

Photos Copyright by Underwood & Underwood N.Y.

Abroad its statesmen have brought to a head the Mongolian question, maintained the status quo in Manchuria, and opened relations with Siam.

Through its strength, its conscriptive methods, and its training the new army promises to be soon such a military force as will command the respect of foreign nations. Its insignificant navy is to be largely increased, and has already given signs of efficient activity by its participation in diplomatic missions and in international reviews.

The foreign policy of China promises to be insistent, and perhaps aggressive, where the interests of its subjects are concerned. Especially significant is its late reported demand on Mexico for an adequate indemnity, amounting to tens of millions of dollars, for the massacre and destruction of the persons and property of Chinese by the Mexican revolutionists.

Perhaps the most impressive action of all is the regard for aliens within its own borders shown in recent days by the Chinese government. Confronted by a most serious (in appearance, at least— revolution in its greatest province (Sze-Chuen, with its 80,000,000 of people), the government on its own motion takes early and efficient measures to preserve the lives of foreign missionaries and alien traders operating within the disturbed and dangerous areas.

In a period of such transitions it is well worth the while for Occidental nations to keep well informed as to the progress of affairs in China. Few people are aware as to either the extent or as to the methods by which such marvelous changes have been wrought in the governmental conditions of the Celestial Empire during the first decade of the twentieth century.

It has been universally recognized that from the conjoined standpoints of area, population and productivity, China stands unequaled among the nations of the earth.

It may be noted that the population of China has been for centuries a problem of the greatest interest, which successfully defied solution.

La Revue Jaune, the new Chinese?Belgian review, for May 15 publishes the data as far as compiled, the whole empire numbering 439,214,000 souls. They are distributed as follows, by provinces:

An-Houe	30,000,000
Canton	32,000,000
Fo-Kien	30,000,000
Honan	*26,000,000
Hunan	22,000,000
Hupeh	34,000,000
Kiang-Si	24,500,000
Kiang-Su (Shanghai)	23,900,000
Kan-Su	*8,000,000
Kwang-Si	8,000,000
Kweichau	6,000,000
Sechouan	79,500,000
Shang-Si	*9,000,000
Shantung	53,000,000
Shensi	*6,000,000
Tche-Kiang	11,800,000
Tchili (Peking)	29,400,000
Yunnan	8,000,000
Manchuria	17,000,000

The approximate population of the dependencies, from other sources, is as follows: Mongolia, 2,600,000; Tibet, 6,300,000; Chinese Turkestan, etc., 1,200,000.

Enormous as is the population of the empire, there are but few very great cities, as would be expected with the limited transportation for their maintenance. Possibly Canton, Peking, and Singan have each a million of inhabitants, while Tientsin, Hankeu, Shanghai, Chungking, Fuchau and Sucheu probably range in population between half and three-fourths of a million.

In view of these data the belief vanishes that China is the most densely populated portion of the world. The population of Europe is 430,000,000, in an area of 10,000,000 square kilometers, while China has practically the same number over an area of 11,000,000 square kilometers.

Influenced by the spirit of the century, China is gradually changing its form of government to that of a constitutional monarchy. The burning question before the Advisory Parliament, which nearly caused its disruption, was the restriction of imperial powers. Parliament strenuously urged the establishment of a responsible government along English lines. As a compromise the Prince Regent yielded to the extent of adopting a system analogous to that of Germany, and imperial edicts instituted, in lieu of the old organization, as officials of the emperor, Suen-Tong, a privy council, a general staff and a responsible cabinet.

The privy council consists of forty-four, of whom ten are non-voting counsellors, "especially well-informed men, who have received a modern education." The general staff (two princes), reports direct to the emperor. The responsible cabinet is formed by a premier, with two princely assistants, and ten portfolio ministers, as follows: Foreign affairs, interior, finance, public instruction, war, navy, justice, agriculture, public works and commerce, communications, dependencies and colonies. The premier, Prince Ching, is a wily, typical politician of the old school, to whom reforms are unacceptable save as temporary makeshifts.

The cabinet, appointed and dismissed at the pleasure of the emperor, is responsible to him and to public opinion only. Criticised by some as a system controlled too largely by princes and nobles, it is viewed by others as an important advance towards the constitutional methods of the Occident.

Viceroys, appointed and removable by the emperor, govern the provinces with practically unlimited power, which in the past has often resulted in unbridled corruption and tyrannical oppression. Under the edict of Nov. 6, 1906, for the reformation of local governments, provincial assemblies were established. Their functions were advisory, and the administrative powers remained entirely in the hands of the vice-regal officials.

It might appear that public opinion would be ineffective under such conditions, but the contrary result is usual. In an exceptional case the provincial assembly of Kuang-Si passed a resolution which the governor vetoed. When next convoked the assembly refused to sit, and its appeal to the advisory parliament at Peking was sustained.

The assemblies have taken concerted action to extent their influence in imperial affairs, and have occasionally attempted to coerce the imperial government—usually with indifferent results. Twice the assemblies have held congresses in Peking, and lately the congress urged on the government the organization of civil guards in the provinces, opposed the nationalization of railways, and asked a change of the law that the premier must be either a prince or noble. Finally, the members, in the way of compromise, agreed to favor an increase of taxes provided that their wishes were granted as to civil guards and the premier.

The first really national and representative body that ever met in China under authority of an imperial edict convened on Oct. 5, 1910. It has been variously called a senate, an advisory assembly and a provisional parliament; the last appellation seems most appropriate, as the body had no legislative powers, its functions being confined to petitions and reports to the throne on matters pertaining to the formation of institutions and enactment of laws in accord with the age.

The parliament proved to be an able, independent body, equal to the situation, broad-minded in its views, and realizing its responsibilities.

Rarely does a single act mark the upward turn of a decadent nation, but in China it was the signing by the emperor, Koueng-Su, July 26, 1898, of the edict on the liberty of the press, drawn up by the ardent reformer Yang-You-Wei.

Reciting the various needs of railways, the imperial edict of May 9, 1911, points out that for years the emperor has fostered local railway projects, but that hitherto the Chinese companies "have so maladministered affairs that they are in inextricable confusion; they have built neither main lines nor branches. In the Province of Kuantong they have issued bonds covering half the work, while the railroad has hardly been commenced. In Sze-Chuan an enormous sum, intrusted as bonds to a bank, has been lost by failure of the bank. In Hupeh and in Hounan large sums have been spent uselessly in past years."

It should be said that Canton, which had made the greatest progress from local resources, accepted the nationalization. The importance and gravity of the action of assemblies and local organizations in Sze-Chuan and Hounan may be estimated from the fact that their combined population quite considerably exceeds that of the United States, and is about one-fourth of that of China.

The action of the imperial government has been described by a Chinese writer as "a truly unexpected and unfavorable blow to provincial autonomy." An early successful issue in Sze-Chuen will be a welcome evidence of that central, coordinated power which is vitally essential to the future utility of the Chinese Empire.

Cement Talk No. 11

There are countless uses for UNIVERSAL Portland Cement about the place. For the cellar, concrete is water-proof, rat-proof and everlasting. Concrete is the best material for sidewalks, steps, foundations, well curbs, posts, troughs, water tanks, barn floors and cisterns. It will pay you to build of concrete. It lasts forever. It is fireproof, sanitary and cheap in the long run. Use UNIVERSAL Portland Cement—it makes the best concrete.

UNIVERSAL PORTLAND CEMENT CO.
SECURITY BANK BLDG., MINNEAPOLIS
ANNUAL OUTPUT 10,000,000 BARRELS

DEFIANCE STARCH never sticks to the iron.

Summoned as Witnesses.

Whenever Rev. Solon Jefferson called on Aunt Candace it was her custom to set a plate of gingerbread before him and then ply him with what she called 'ligious 'spoundin's."

"Whe' fo' does de Lawd send epidemics into de land?" she asked him one day.

"When folks get so bad dey must be removed, some of 'em, Sist' Candace, den de Lawd permits de coming oh en epidemic," said Mr. Jefferson, and took a large bit of gingerbread.

"Uh-h!" said Aunt Candace. "Ef dat's so, how come de good people gets removed along wid de bad ones?"

"De good ones are summonsed fo' witnesses," said Rev. Solon, fortified in spirit and clarified in mind by the gingerbread, although slightly embarrassed in his utterance. "De Lawd gibe every man a fair trial."—Youth's Companion.

Silly Game.

A city cousin had been staying at the farm for two weeks, resting up for the winter's round of pleasure. One evening after supper she suggested to her country cousin that they get up a bridge party some evening.

"My sakes, Arabella," was the horrified reply. "They ain't no bridge nearer than four mile, and that one's awful rickety. This time of the year, you'd all have penumonia. For crazy new-fangled ideas, give me you city folks!"

Elemental Error.

Judge Stevens was angling in the Mentlowish waters, and just after dinner became involved in an argument with his boat companion. The debate lasted some minutes, and during that time the judge had his baited hook dangling in the air over his shoulder.

The guide took a hand.

"Judge," said he, peremptorily, "drop your line in the water. There are no flying fish around here."—Chicago Post.

It takes a bachelor to think that he understands women.

To Be Pleasant In the Morning

Have some

Post Toasties

with cream for breakfast.

The rest of the day will take care of itself.

Post Toastics are thin bits of White Indian Corn—cooked and toasted until deliciously crisp and appetizing.

"The Memory Lingers"

Sold by Grocers

Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

CANADA'S CENSUS

A THIRTY-TWO PER CENT INCREASE IN THE PAST TEN YEARS.

That Canada has come rapidly to the front in the past ten years is amply shown in the results of the census recently made public. The population of the Dominion is now placed at 7,081,869, which with outlying points to be heard from, may bring it up to 7¼ millions as compared with 5,371,315 in 1901. Though these figures are large, they do not present a total as large as was expected but they do show a greater increase of percentage in population for the decade than any similar increase in the United States. The highest percentage ever reached by the Republic was 24%; the percentage of increase in Canada for the decade is 32%. Thus it will be seen that the provinces west of the lakes, with the great broad fertile acres ready for the sowing and immediate reaping of grain and the Valleys of British Columbia capable of producing fruit with which to supply its neighboring provinces east of the mountains, have attracted numbers, which has exceeded the most optimistic of the expectations of ten years ago.

Upon the prairies of the ten years ago there was but a spare scattering of people; but today, no matter in which way you go, take any direction, and you find homes and farms and good ones too, occupied by the very best class of people in good sized settlements with plenty of room for five or six times as many more. The population of Alberta is set down at 372,919, as compared with 73,022 in 1901; Saskatchewan 453,508 as compared with 91,279 in 1901; Manitoba's 454,691 compares well with its 255,211 in 1901; and so does that of British Columbia—392,753 as against 178,657 in 1901; but in a territory as large as this a population of 1,541,000 is little more than discernible to a point of numbers. The work through it has been great. Look at the towns that have been built up; its cities, Winnipeg with 136,000; Vancouver with upwards of 100,000; Calgary with 43,000; Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon; Lethbridge; Medicine Hat, Moosejaw, splendid cities—none better anywhere; well maintained and equipped. These have come with existence and been built as they have been built by reason of the splendid agricultural country by which they are surrounded. The population is scarcely discernible. A population ten or twelve times that shown by the recent census could be easily maintained in even greater wealth than that which maintains the present numbers. There is certainly a wonderful future for Western Canada and that which goes to the development of the west will enrich the last. This is the growing time in Canada and what has been done in the past ten years is but a beginning. The next decade will show a far greater advancement. In the meantime Canada a bidding welcome the progressive and industrious citizen. The invitation is a standing one. At the forthcoming land exposition in Chicago, Canada will have one of the best exhibits of farm products that has ever been made and it will be well worth while inspecting it and getting information from those who may be in charge.

Immensity of Nature.

They were on a trip to Switzerland, and had that day braved all dangers and ascended one of the highest points in the Alps.

He was very fat, and as he stood panting and mopping his brow at the top of the mountain, he turned to his wife and said, with pathos in his voice:

"See, dear, how small one is in the face of the immensity of nature."

"Small, indeed!" answered his better half. "Why, you're standing in front of me, hiding the whole of Mont Blanc and the best part of the valley of Chamonix!"—Exchange.

Curative Treatment.

In his reading lesson Bobby had come to the word "punishment," and it was too long and hard for him. After puzzling a while he asked the teacher what the word was.

"You ought not to let that puzzle you, Bobby," she answered. "What does your mother give you when you have been an unusually naughty boy?"

"Castor oil!" he exclaimed, sure that he had guessed it.—Youth's Companion.

Right Place.

"Heary may be a bad student, but at least he is consistent."

"In what way?"

"I caught him swearing over his profane history."

Lots of men who sit around on dry goods boxes and growl about hard times would consider it a result if anyone were to offer them a job.

A bald man doesn't want the earth. Give him a bottle of hair restorer that will restore, and he'll go on his way rejoicing.

COLDS
Cured in One Day

As a rule, a few doses of Munyon's Cold Remedy will break up any cold and prevent pneumonia. It relieves the head, throat and lungs almost instantly. Price 25 cents at any druggist's, or send postpaid.

If you need Medical advice write to Munyon's Doctors. They will cheerfully diagnose your case and give you advice by mail, absolutely free.

Address Professor Munyon, 53d and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

CHANGE OF VENUE

ALLEGED THAT FEELING IN BELTRAMI COUNTY IS PREJUDICIAL TO MAYOR.

WANTED IN DR. DUMAS CASE

Twenty-one Documents Entered in Support of Motion by Defense—Counsel Will Argue Case.

Bemidji, — Legal counsel for Dr. Delbert F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, accused of arson in the third degree, alleged to have been committed at Black Duck, April 19, last, filed affidavits in support of their motion for a change of venue for the physician from Beltrami to some other county. The affidavits were filed by former Judge Marshall A. Spooner, chief counsel for Dr. Dumas, and his assistant, A. A. Andrews.

It is alleged in the affidavits that the general feeling throughout Beltrami county is strongly prejudiced to Dr. Dumas, and this allegation is supported by assertions that it is the general belief that Dr. Dumas is guilty of some or all of the charges of arson preferred against him by the state. The Cass Lake mayor has given bonds in $5,000 for his appearance to answer to the Black Duck charges.

Twenty-one affidavits were filed in support of the motion. Four of these were obtained at Baudette, four at Kelliher, one at Battle River, one at Farley, one at Rugby, one at Durand and one from a resident of Bemidji. All the affidavits agree as to sentiment being against the doctor.

Signers of Affidavits.

Those who signed affidavits were:

At Baudette—John A. Keneady, United States customs officer; George S. Partridge, lumber broker; W. F. Noonan, publisher Rainy River Region, and R. M. Skinner, banker.

At Kelliher—E. P. Egan, president village council; Oscar Flataer, merchant; F. E. Rose, village marshal, and Ferdinand Koefod, assistant bank cashier.

At Black Duck—E. P. Rice, banker; J. M. Reed, merchant; J. G. Thompson, merchant; J. E. Dade, postmaster, and E. N. French, druggist.

At Rugby—R. W. Hardy, editor; Henry Futter, surveyor, and A. Gilmour, druggist.

At Battle River—J. E. Jarome, merchant.

At Farley—W. T. Blakely, merchant. At Redby—A. Breite, sealer.

At Bemidji—John A. McDonald, sealer.

Hugo Peterson, of Durand, chairman of the board of county commissioners, filed a lengthy affidavit reciting his belief that the cost of trying the case in Beltrami county would be enormous, because, he alleged, it would be next to impossible to secure a jury.

A. A. Andrews, assistant counsel for Dr. Dumas, attached an affidavit of his own, in which he told about obstacles in the way to try Dr. Dumas on the charge of attempted arson at Peasley, on which the doctor was convicted. He said that seven persons were secured at that trial, when Judge McClenahan suggested to counsel for the state and for the defendant that if they would agree to the discharge of the jurymen selected he would transfer the case to Crow Wing county, because it would facilitate matters, as jurors could be obtained much quicker than in Beltrami county. The defense agreed to this, Andrews said in his affidavit, but the state objected, the state will file counter affidavits, when Judge Spooner, for Dr. Dumas, will argue the case with either Assistant Attorney General Jaaes of St. Paul or E. E. McDonald of this city appearing for the state. The counsel for the state not having yet decided which attorney will make the argument for the prosecution.

Dumas Gets Venue Change.

Bemidji.—Saying that he believed that it would not be just and right to Dr. Dumas to try him in Beltrami county on the latest charge lodged against the doctor of having committed the crime of arson in the third degree at Black Duck, April 19th last, Judge Stanton at the conclusion of the reading of affidavits and making of arguments for and against ordering a change of venue for the doctor from Beltrami county to some other county, granted the motion, and ordered the case transferred to Crow Wing county at the term to be held at Brainerd, beginning Dec. 5.

"The House Next Door" at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis. — "The House Next Door," which will be seen at the Bijou Minneapolis, the week of Nov 12th, enjoys the reputation of being the most talked of play that has been produced in New York City in many years.

SCHOOL FAIR DRAWS BIG CROWD

Governor Eberhardt Speaks at Brandon and Evansville, Minn.

Alexandria.—The school fair at Brandon drew one of the largest crowds ever seen on that place. Governor Eberhardt was the principal speaker. Three hundred children filled the hall, the older people being unable to gain admission. Afterwards the governor spoke in the open air to those who could not get into the hall. In the evening he addressed another large audience at Evansville.

MORE POWER FOR FERGUS FALLS

Water Fall of Seventy Feet Can Be Secured Without Building a Dam.

Fergus Falls.—A discovery has just been made here which is going to make Fergus Falls the largest waterpower between Minneapolis and International Falls. The Otter Tail Power company already owns a large dam below this city, with a head of thirty-eight feet. There are three dams inside the city limits with heads of from fifteen to twenty feet each, and just above the city is the wreck of the municipal electric light dam which had a head of about twenty-five feet. The Otter Tail Power company owns all except one of the dams and furnishes electric power for Breckenridge and Wahpeton as well as for this city. Officers of this power company have been studying the topography of the country, and have discovered a method whereby a dismiss waterpower can be obtained just above the city, with a fall of seventy feet.

By obtaining a seventy-foot fall, the power possibilities will be increased four-fold. The river enters the city from the east. It comes to within three miles of the city limits at a point where it crosses what is known as the Aurdal road, and then makes a big bend, the detour being about ten miles. In this ten miles there is a seventy-foot fall. By erecting a seventy-foot dam at a point three miles out, and then cutting a channel directly toward the city, the course of the stream can be turned, and the ten-mile bend cut out. To cut this channel, a large hill will have to be tunneled, and an immense amount of dredging will have to be done. Once it is cut, the water can be turned into a land locked reservoir just above the city, and passing over the crest of a hill, can be shot down a steel tube and given a sheer fall of approximately seventy feet into water wheels below.

The Power company has expended about $25,000 in acquiring land and in other expenses incident to carrying on the project. The plan is almost the sole topic of conversation here.

The estimated cost of diverting the river is about a quarter of a million dollars and if satisfactory terms can be made with the city, the work will be undertaken early next spring and completed within a year.

If the city wishes to go into the power business on a large scale, it will be given the right to purchase the property, at cost, plus 10 per cent, at the expiration of fifteen years.

GUARDS INDIGNANT.

Stillwater Company Members See Politics in Transfer to the First.

Stillwatar.—A political expediency, shrouded with secrecy and under the guise of a militia improvement, is the way the changes in the First regiment of the National Guard have been characterized in this city. That the movement will cut both ways in the popularity of Governor Eberhart is the opinion of men who are interested in politics and National Guard affairs.

It was rumored that Company G of this city and Company C of Red Wing were to be transferred to the Third regiment and Lieutenant Colonel Luce would organize companies to take their places in the First.

A further surprise came when inquiry at the office of the adjutant general in St. Paul revealed the fact that such an order had been made as long ago as September 25. This movement had been kept secret, and the wish was expressed at the state capitol that the facts be kept quiet for the present.

The belief is prevalent in this city that Minneapolis, with the approval of the government and adjutant general, slipped it over on St. Paul, Stillwater and Red Wing to get favor from Colonel Luce. It has developed that the changes were decided on soon after Colonel Luce took command of the First regiment, succeeding Colonel Reeve, but at the request of Colonel Luce, on September 25, promulgation of the order was to be delayed until Colonel Luce could organize two Minneapolis companies. No one of Company K, other officers of the First regiment or former members of the National Guard in Stillwater were given an inkling of the proposed change, and many of them are indignant as a result.

SAWS AND KEYS ON PRISONERS.

Attempt at Jail Delivery at St. Cloud Frustrated by Officials.

St. Cloud.—An attempt at a jail delivery in the county jail here was frustrated by Sheriff B. J. Moritz and his deputies when they discovered saws and keys on Frank Smith, Otto Watson and Robert Engleman, three prisoners awaiting trial for robbery.

The men had taken springs from clocks in the jail and manufactured them into saws. Best wire had been utilized to form skeleton keys. The yeggmen implicated in the deal are three of the members of a gang who recently robbed a number of stores in this section. Dan Moore, one of the cliqus, plead guilty a short time ago and was sentenced to Stillwater.

ANOKA BOY STRICKEN BLIND.

Roy Gale, Mining Engineer, Loses Sight While at Work on Range.

Bovey.—Roy Gale, a young mining and civil engineer in the employ of the Great Northern Ore Company, near here, was stricken blind while using the sextant, and has been taken to Minneapolis for treatment, and from there will go to his home in Anoka. Gale had been employed in the office of the company continuously for a long time.

CONCORDIA 20 YEARS OLD

Moorhead Lutheran School Celebrates Anniversary.

Moorhead.—Oct. 31 was devoted to festivities at Concordia Lutheran college in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of its founding. Nearly all the clergymen in the district attended the celebration was the formal installation of Rev. J. A. Aasgaard as president of this school, the duties of which he assumed last July.

The school was dedicated Oct. 31, 1901, by the president of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of the United States, Rev. G. Hoyme, now father-in-law of President Aasgaard, who has recently taken charge of the institution.

The first building was a structure erected by the late Bishop Whipple as a parochial school. The building and site of two blocks were bought for $10,000. Today the estimated value of the school, realty and buildings is conservatively placed at $ 170,000.

The anniversary and installation addresses was delivered by Rev. M. O. Boeckman, D.D., president of the theological seminary, St. Anthony Park. The responsum was made by President Aasgaard. All of the forenoon proceedings were in Norwegian. In the afternoon an address in English was delivered by President L. W. Boe of Waldorf college, Forest City, Iowa. He was followed by greetings and addresses by visiting guests. There was a wealth of music by the college band and singing organizations. The exercises came to an end with a public reception.

GULL LAKE DAM FINISHED.

Government Will Now Dig Canals and Otherwise Improve Navigation.

Brainerd.—The Gull lake dam near Brainerd, has been completed. Geo. Steatigger was the superintendent in charge. The dam is eighty feet long, the entire length of the concrete work being 116 feet. The piers are ninety-eight feet in length and twelve feet in height. To add further to the capacity of the reservoir made by the dam and to facilitate the passage of boats and launches from Gull lake to Round lake and from Round lake to Long lake, canals are to be dug and other work done to improve navigation. The government is making preparations to begin this work next season. The ditch between Gull and Round lakes will follow the nearest watercourse, which adjoins the land owned by C. H. Pope, of Pittsburg, on one side and the grounds of the summer home of Fred B. Lynch, of St. Paul, democratic national committeeman of Minnesota, on the other side.

CREAMERY CAN BAR MEMBER.

Ousted Owatonna Shareholder Cannot Vote, Says Court.

Owatonna.—If a creamery association chooses to blackball a man from participation in its meetings, it may legally do so.

William Healey was a shareholder in a creamery south of Owatonna. Then he decided to retire and enter another creamery association. He did so but later desired to return to the first organization. One Smith sold Healey shares of stock, which the latter attempted to vote at the annual creamery meeting. The association balked and refused to allow Healey's votes in the case.

Healey appealed to the courts and the local creamery held in his favor, but the district court ruled that Healey could be legally barred from the association.

POWER FOR THE MESABE RANGE.

Electrical Plant to Be Built on Sturgeon River.

Duluth.—C. E. McMillan, of Chicago, who is at the head of a corps of engineers who have examined the water power of the Sturgeon river for the Mesabe Range Power company, has made a favorable report and on the strength of it the company will develop sufficient electrical energy to supply the Mesabe ranga towns and cities and mines with light and power. There may be some rivalry for this business, however, as the Great Northern has a power company of Duluth has contemplated extending its line to the Mesabe country. A water power is also to be developed on the Vermillion range by Detroit and Saginaw people.

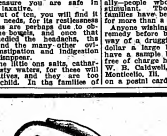
FOR MORE AND BETTER ROADS.

Carlton County Development Association Holds Meeting at Moose Lake.

Moose Lake.—A good roads meeting was held here under the auspices of the Carlton County Development association. Three delegates were appointed from each township and the repairing of state highway No. 2 between Hanna and Holyoke. Dinner was served the visitors at noon by the Barnum and Moose Lake Commercial clubs.

Makes a Park of Big Farm.

Brainerd.—On his 200-acre farm on Gull lake, Alderman James M. Elder of Brainerd is propagating pine trees. A force of men is cutting undesirable trees and underbrush and the land resembles a beautiful park. It is historic land, for one section near the lake was the site of the old St. Columbia mission, established by the Episcopal church fifty years ago. Near the Elder farm is the summer place of Fred B. Lynch of St. Paul, democratic national committeeman of Minnesota.



WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YOUR BABY?

The young mother—and many an old one too—is often puzzled to know if baby is sick or well. The baby's tongue, appetite, disposition, sleep, etc., may easily indicate the seriousness of its troubles. It may have nothing to do with the matter with it but a headache or a toothache of some kind. The cause, of course, describe its feelings; but as a preliminary measure you are safe in trying Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. If it does not, you will find it all the child needs, for its restlessness and peevishness are perhaps due to obstruction of the bowels, and once that has been remedied the headache, the sluggishness and the many other evidences of constipation and indigestion will quickly disappear.

Don't give the little one pain, either, with its nasty waters, for these will not act as purgatives, and they are too strong for a child. In the families of Mrs. H. A. Wells, Marvel, N. D., and Mrs. Mary Jackson, Grafton, Wis., the baby laxatives given to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in time found to answer most perfectly all the purposes of a laxative and its very mildness and freedom from griping recommend it especially for the use of children, women, and old folks generally—people who need a powerful laxative, but one so mild as to offend no familiar have been enthusiastic about it for more than a quarter of a century.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 361 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

You cannot expect to have clean clothes if you do not use clean water.

Nor will you get rid of the dirt, without injuring the clothes, if you do not use good soap.

Lenox Soap is good soap.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

Idaho Public Land

Water Right $50.00 per Acre

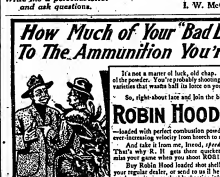
IN TWELVE ANNUAL INSTALMENTS

The Wood River Project began its annual run of water for irrigation on March 29th, 1911. There has been no interruption in the service since the run began. There is no shortage of crop on this project this year.

Some Things You Can Find on Wood River Project

Your choice of 20,000 Acres of new land. The best water right anywhere. Markets for every product. Good fruit land. Sheep and hogs to feed and feed for all of them every year.

Good Dairy Country



Market for one million pounds of butter. Market for all the chickens and eggs you can raise. The best potato soil on earth. Irrigation system complete and fully tested by two growing years. Ample water, splendid soil.

WE NEED YOU

IDAHO IRRIGATION COMPANY, Limited
RICHFIELD, IDAHO
I. W. McConnell, General Manager

Write me a personal letter and ask questions.

How Much of Your "Bad Luck" is Due To The Ammunition You're Using?

It's not a matter of luck, old chap. You're one, it's the lack of the proper ammunition. Probably you're using one of the varieties that wastes half its load on your shoulder.

See the Robin Hood Dealer and by a pay of cents to

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION (Not Made by a Trust)

—loaded with perfect combustion powders that produce a gradual and even increasing velocity from muzzle to muzzle.

And take it from me, friend, three of the rounds or what counts. That's what you get when you shoot ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION and it's what you don't get when you use any other kind.

Robin Hood loaded shells are sold by dealers everywhere from your regular dealer, or send to us if he is not supplied. Write for our catalog and booklet "Duck Shooting Hints."

"IT'S ALL IN THE POWDER"

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION CO.
70 Bank, Swanzey, Vt.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

Men and Women wear W.L.Douglas shoes because they are the best shoes produced in this country for the price. Insist upon having them. Take no other make.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The assurance that goes with an established reputation is your assurance in buying W. L. Douglas shoes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom.

If you cannot obtain W. L. Douglas shoes from dealers near you, write for catalog. Shoes sent direct from factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W. L. DOUGLAS, 149 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

$5 Gift of BOYS! A. W. Douglas $5.00 SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes. Your Color Quality Size Certainly.

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

Scientifically constructed to give most light for the oil they burn.

Easy to light, clean and rewick. In numerous finishes and styles, each the best of its kind.

Ask your dealer to show you the Use of Rayo Lamps and Lanterns, or write for illustrated booklets direct to any agency of the

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

Romances Near to Thrones

Napoleon III and Eugenie

By STERLING HELLIG

Copyright by Pearson's.

WHEN a king's love is mentioned, the mind flies to the morganatic.

In America the word has been misused for semiliness in mentioning the usual heart affairs of royalty, but it is an exact term of purely German genealogical law, and means a legal and binding marriage that does not raise an un-royal wife to royal rank.

Now, if a false morganatic marriage is the easiest thing imaginable and a true one, disadvantageous but quite possible, how shall we sufficiently admire an emperor who lifts a little countess to he empress beside him? Add an unstable throne, new in itself, newly mounted, to sore need of royal alliances; add the bitter opposition of his family, the laugh of the world, the contempt of statesmen, and the estrangement of partisans; make the beloved one a foreigner completely unpopular with his people, and you will have the elements of Napoleon III's heroism in loving Eugenie.

Few kings since Cophetua have loved like this.

Among so many royal loves that lacked devotion, it shines like a star.

It begins with a gypsy at Madrid. Eugenie's mother, a widow, chmnerra mayor to the queen, lived in her own house in the Plaza dal Angel.

One day—Eugenia being thirteen and a tomboy—they refused to take her in the Prado carriage promenade, which, with the opera, still remains the common ground where good, proud families meet the great oaca of Madrid as equals. The Countess de Montijo clung to her carriage and her opera box.

Alone, Tomboy Eugenia was sliding down the banister. She slid too strong, hinged against the fly-screen front door, and fell inanimate. A gypsy woman, passing, took the girl's head in her lap and brought her to. Then she looked attentively at her and said:

"The senorita was born under the open sky, the night of a battle."

"What!" exclaimed the countess, returned with the carriage. She was struck by the truth of the words. Thirteen years ago, at Grenada, an earthquake had forced them to camp a night in the garden, and Eugenia was there prematurely born.

"What will he her future?" asked the superstitious mother.

"She will be queen," said the gypsy.

The prediction was bold, and beauty only could lift the thirteen-year-old girl to its realization; but beauty had already done much for that family.

So dreamed the mother. She herself had been a really poor girl, daughter of a British subject who had failed in business in Malaga. His name was Kirkpatrick, and he had long been American vice-consul. He had married one of two beautiful sisters, yet still poorer—born hereditary beauty will force its way, through four generations, from its unadorned self to a throne!

The first was a poor Spanish girl, Gallegroa, whose sole possession was her beauty. Gregiana. French was merchant of Malaga, married her and had two lovely daughters; and two foreign cousins, French du Lesseps and Scotch Kirkpatrick, lifted them by marriage to the first rounds of the social ladder. From the De Lesseps alliance came the "grand Francais" of Suez and Panama; but Kirkpatrick's wife gave him a daughter of such rare charms that a Spanish grandee, with a place at court and of considerable family, married her for love.

His was a duke, a marquis, a viscount and a baron, but the title by which he had been known to the world was Count de Montijo. He had two daughters living—yet then mother, grandmother or great-grandmother, and he died. Eugenia was one, her sister Paeca was the other.

On the thirteen-year-old girl the gypsy's prediction made a formative impression. Confirming it, as she grew up she saw her elder sister Paeca (Maria Francisca) make an unprecedented match even in that family. Paeca caught the rich and mighty Duke of Alva. Higher than the Duke of Alva could only be a king.

Eugenia, growing up, refused brilliant Spanish offers; first the Duke of Osauna, then the rich and handsome young Duke of Sesto. Sesto in truth inspired her with "a certain sympathy and admiration. His was se attractival" But it was not love. Deep in her heart she loved a dream prince, the unknown of the gypsy, endowed by her girl's fancy with a thousand charming attributes. She smiled at the absurdity of it. Whara could such a prince be? Yat she held off from all other suitors.

When her mother took her to Paris her heart leaped at an unexpected pramonition.

The handsome, dark-browed, careworn man, still young, who, as French president, received at the Elysee, became a romantic figure in her eyes. Eugenie wished to attend a presidential reception. Her mother hesitated. It would make them ridiculous with the mildewed smart set.

"But my father was an officer of the great Napoleon," said Eugenie, and she had her way. The prince-president, weighed down with the

NAPOLEON III

EUGENIE

"I PUT NO GAST TROP?"

"CODE BY WAY OF THE CHAPEL"

"MADEMOISELLE WHICH WAY SHALL I TAKE TO GET THERE?"

dangerous and complicated details of his plot, was struck by the girl's beauty. That evening he sought her out a second time. He was touched and flattered by the romantic interest she showed in his person and his cause. The beautiful girl excited in his mind. He felt as if he bad always known her. He knew that he would meet her again.

Eugenie felt the same mysterious attraction. "Ah, would that I could help him!" She thought of the lonely prince and his risky ambitions that were being laughed about in Paris as an open secret. At the moment of the coup d'etat she fairly burned with anxiety. She dashed about the little flat like a tigress. "What can I do?" she asked herself. "What can I do to aid him?"

That night Napoleon received a letter. It was from a romantic, inexperienced girl, but ardent and sincere. It gave him her good wishes and audaciously offered him all she possessed should his projects need ready money.

After December 2 it was the Empire in fact if not in name. Napoleon gave hunts like a sovereign, at Fontainebleau and Compiegne. At these he met again the beautiful Spanish girl, fearless horsewoman, tireless dancer. He remembered above all her letetr written in that dark hour of his wavering chances.

His love at first sight for Eugenie was soon noticed, showing itself full-blown in the most open attentions. The girl and her mother had continual invitations to Compiegne and the Tuileries.

Napoleon soon found the uselessness of throwing his handkerchief at the beautiful foreigner.

Yet he felt—he knew—that she loved him passionately. It was a desperate situation for the girl, and his heart swelled with love and pride and admiration of her. Once Eugenie and her mother were bidden to a parade review at the Tuileries. In the courtyard Napoleon, drew up his horse under the windows of the first floor to salute the ladies. He wished to dismount and go up to them.

"Mademoiselle," he said, addressing Eugenie, "which way shall I take to get to you?"

"He was almost as new to the Tuileries as any of us," told the Eugenie of eighty-three years. "He did not know his way about the palace."

"Sire," she called down to him, "you must came by the way of the chapel!" As a fact the corridor leading to the chapel was the shortest route to these rooms, but Napoleon understood her bidden meaning. Again, one afternoon at Compiegne, when the flower of the brand-new emperor's court was idling around his vingt-et-un table, she made the situation clear to him. Seated at Napoleon's right, she consulted him from time to time as to her play. She found two picture cards in her hand, counting twenty out of twenty-one possible points. "Stand on that," said the emperor, "it is very high."

"No," said Eugenie, "I must have all or nothing!"

Every morning old Jerome Bonaparte, his uncle, last surviving brother of the great Napoleon, would arrive, confidential, fattering, gigging and some with bad insinuations:

he said to his weeping cousin. And she did it Napoleon acted toward Eugenie with chivalrous loyalty. He had before her all the disadvantages of the brilliant yet uncertain position he was offering her. He explained to her his unpopularity with the old French aristocrats, the bad will of certain great powers, the possibility of his being assassinated by some secret society of which he had become a member in his adventurous youth. There were hostilities even in the army, in his opinion the most serious danger; but he could cut them short by declaring a war.

"I would not have it otherwise," she answered. "I will take my risks beside you. So may I be worthy!"

As a queen she lacked dignity. She had not been born to the solemn self-appreciation of royalty; and she was a mixture of lightness and austerity, generosity and cruel kindness and indifference, in which the transitions were abrupt and disconcerting to French orderliness.

Among the sovereigns of Europe Queen Victoria bed received her cordially; more, she had taken up Eugenie and imposed her on the courts of Europe. Yet even at Windsor, where the imperial couple were received with extraordinary pomp, Eugenie's inconciaence threatened to play her a bad turn that would have illustrated her un-imperial attitude.

A quarter of an hour before they were to ha received by Victoria and her beloved consort in the throne room, Eugenie discovered that, among the hundred trunks of the French visitors, here alone had not arrived! The emperor was deeply mortified that the discovery should have been made so late, as showing lack of discipline and serene orderliness, and on his advice Eugenie had already begun to pretend a headache due to suppressed sensitiveness when one of her ladies dared to offer her a choice of gowns.

A blue dress of the simplest description seemed the only one that promised well. Great ladies and maids fell upon it deftly, and in a few minutes the blue gown was reedfooted for the empress. So Eugenie—without jewels, flowers at her corsage and flowers in her hair —appeared before the British court in her own dazzling beauty. She made en immease success.

What most touched Victoria's heart, it may be told, was the pathetic and pretty way in which the young couple spontaneously confided certain doubts and fears to her as an experienced matron and mother of eight. They had been married two years, and as yet there was no heir. When the little prince-imperial was born, one lady only was permitted to be present with the doctors and the accouchewomen all the time. This was the Countese of Ely, Queen Victoria's intimate friend, sent over from England to help along.

As had been done for the King of Rome, it was announced in advance that should the infant be a boy, cannon would fire, not twenty-one times, but a hundred.

It happened after midnight, and the Paris lens, awakening, counted the cannon-shots. When they got peet twenty-one, the Parisians rolled over in their beds and yawned: "Well, what's that?"

The bigamous old Jerome had bitterly persented her as an interloper. His son, Plon-Plon, her heter and detrector by inheritence, wes not persona grata with Eugenia. So Napoleon, who enjoyed smoking cigarettes with the reprobate father of the present pretender, Victor, was forced to visit him secretly. One day, some time after the marriage, he came, sat down, and said:

"Prince, does your wife make you scenes?"

"No," replied the hunkback of Civitlla, the daughter of Victor Emmanuel.

"There is no living with Eugenie," sighed Napoleon. "The moment I give audience with another women I risk a violent quarrel."

"Crack her on the side of the face the next time she makes you a scene," suggested Plon-Plon.

"Don't think of it," exclaimed the emperor. "You don't know Eugenie; she would open a window of the Tuileries and cry 'Police!'"

Crowds her on the side of the face the next time she makes you a scene," suggested Plon-Plon.

"Don't think of it," exclaimed the emperor. "You don't know Eugenie; she would open a window of the Tuileries and cry 'Police!'"

"Mermree is a great writer," said Napoleon. "Surely—let me see!—it was Eugenie's letters to you!" laughed De Persigny. "Mother, daughter, and newspaper men sit round the table and compose a letter that you cherish. Really, it was not worth risking the coup d'etat to arrive at that!"

When a triumph for the aged lady to recall Napoleon's steadfast love in face of both policy and slander! It was always known why Eugenie hated De Persigny, Prince Jerome and the Princess Mathilde. She could forgive political counselors who pressed the royal princesse upon Napoleon; she could not forgive the powerful ones who sought to take away her character behind her back.

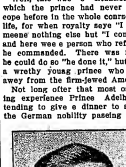
Napoleon heard them all alike. He answered nothing. Could and most of the military backers, with Edward Ney and Tocilcognon for their spokesmen, formed rapidly "The Clan of the Lovers." In vain did Mathilda drag herself at Napoleon's knees, begging him to renounce a marriage that would be the ruin of them all. The emperor had decided. "You will give a great ball to announce the engagement,"

'HAVE NO MANNERS'

Young German Prince Says This of Americans.

Adalbert, Third Son of the Kaiser, Says We Are the Rudest People in the Whole World.

New York.—We are the rudest people in the world. Prince Adelbert, aged 27, third son of the Kaiser, says so and when a prince makes a statement it is never quite politic—nor safe—to contradict him. The fact that recently two young Americans did refuse to acknowledge his royal prerogative to "bow" is the reason for his conclusion that "Americans have absolutely no manners." The young men has been spending the summer at a famous European pleasure resort, also patronized by a large number of society folk from the country. Tennie hes been the favorite sport of the young folks from "the States" and the prince, who is a splendid player, made a great many friends among them. One Saturday afternoon he had been watching with great interest the brilliant play of Bernard Dell, the well-known athlete of Princeton University. The game over, he asked Mr. Dell to play a single with him on the morrow.



"Sorry," sold Mr. Dell, "but I never play games on Sunday."

"But I ask you," insisted the prince.

"Sorry again," replied Mr. Dell, "but I cannot go against my religious principles—not even for you."

Well, this was a situation with which the prince had never had to cope before in the whole course of his life, for when royalty says "I ask" it means nothing else but "I command" and here was a person who refused to be commanded. There was nothing he could do so "he done it," but it was a wrathy young prince who strode away from the firm-jawed American.

Not long after that most astonishing experience Prince Adelbert, intending to give a dinner to some of the German nobility passing through the resort, suddenly made up his mind that his American friend should be his guests es well end, forthwith, he walked to the tennis courts and "asked all of them. Now it happened that e Philodelphia girl was also to give a party on the day royal persons were to be in the place and, se the prince knew, the Americane bested him other to the guests. So when the invitations to both the dinner was given the Americene politely declined, saying that they "would not disappoint Miss Blank for the worlde." Then they resumed their game as if nothing had happened. The prince was astounded. Could it he possible that any one should dare to turn down a royal-imperial invitation issued by one of royal blood? That ordinerlly untitled human beings should not be willing, yes, should not jump at the chance to cancel any other engagement for the honor of sitting at his table was most amazing. But what could he do about it? Nothing, obviously. He tried to work off a little of his indignation by giving out the statement that we were rude and unmenerly, but the Americane, who had treated him quite as if he were a somewhat too haughty young society man, didn't seem to mind greatly. European society, however, is much excited over the affair, one section siding with the prince, a number saying that the invitation of a member of a reigning house should be regarded as a royal command by everybody, without regard of nationality; while on the other hand, all the Americane end a great many Europeans are siding on the part of Mr. Dell and the girl, arguing that they were not impolite and only acted quite as sensible young Americane should.

Prince Adelbert.

Prince Adelbert, who, like the rest of the Kolsere's sons, is rather overbearing in appearance and manner, was worried three years ago to his cousin, Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Sonderburg.

Bottle of Catsup Blew Up.

Springfield, Mass.—Mrs. Herbert Morgan will lose the sight her left eye as the result of an explosion of a bottle of catsup. A bottle of Argus fell into the stream and were drowned.

Drown Trying to Capture Pig.

Akron, O.—While attempting to capture a pig on the banks of the Cuyahoga river, near Boston Mills, Anatasio Scravel and Justin Argus fell into the stream and were drowned.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1911. NO. 34.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

TALES of GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Hobo Makes a Record Trip on Trucks

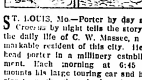
NEW YORK.—The fastest tramp trip ever made on the trucks of the transcontinental limited trains was finished in New York city recently when Clarence Fields, of San Francisco, Cal., alighted from the trucks of a Lackawanna flyer. He said he had to get to New York in a hurry for medical treatment. His face covered with soot, cinders and coal dust and looked as if he had been in 40 political cyclones.

"I was kicked off the Santa Fe limited at least 30 times," he said. "The first time was in the Mojave desert, when I landed in two feet of alkali dust. But as soon as the train started I got aboard again in a dust storm. Next time it was in the mountains. I must have been kicked several miles ahead, for when I came to my senses we had made 60 miles, and the train was well on toward the Aztec country. The speed was fearful down those mountain grades, but I never lost my clutch until I was thrown off by a brakeman.

"Once during the trip I went without food for two long days. That was a test of endurance. I won out. When we reached Newburg, on the Hudson, I had to leave the express. The brakeman's boots were 40 pounds heavier than my physique called for, so I stopped over that night for the first time on the trip. I went to the police station and had a fine rest. Getting aboard a fast coal train next day, I pulled out. When I reached New York I beat my way across the ferry."

Newsboy Banker Who Came to Grief

WALLACE, Ida.—Bernard F. O'Neill, who started life as a newsboy in New York and came to be a director of the Carnegie Trust company there, as well as president of the State Bank of Commerce at Wallace, with a fortune well beyond the $1,000,000 mark, was arrested in Vancouver, B. C., recently on a warrant charging him with liability in the wreck of the Wallace bank. O'Neill was penniless when he was arrested and was planning to start life over again.



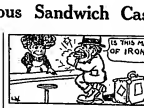
O'Neill is a hearty Irishman of 50, and a year ago was candidate for the nomination for governor of Washington. In was defeated in the convention. In the meantime O'Neill's troubles were piling up at Wallace. The bank there was compelled to suspend. In the crash O'Neill lost the rest of his fortune, and a short time ago he went to Vancouver, a "busted for a job," as he told the officers who routed him out bed and put him under arrest. Indictments were found against several other wealthy men of eastern Washington when action was taken against O'Neill in connection with the Wallace bank failure.

O'Neill went west as a charge of the Children's Aid society when he was a lad in knickerbockers selling papers along Park Row. His worked for a time for a farmer in Iowa, next moved on a ranch in Nebraska, and at 19 was working in a bank. Then he went to California, and in 1901 went to Idaho with the foundations of his fortune already laid. As a banker O'Neill soon began to attract attention.

Just a year ago O'Neill went back to New York to attend a directors' meeting and was in a night at the newsboys lodging house in Fourth street. He made a speech to the boys in which he said: "Boiling for a lot of lonesome job," as he told the officers who routed him out bed and put him under arrest. Indictments were found against several other wealthy men of eastern Washington when action was taken against O'Neill in connection with the Wallace bank failure.

O'Neill went west as a charge of the Children's Aid society when he was a lad in knickerbockers selling papers

St. Louis Shop Porter Is a Croesus



ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Porter by day and Croesus by night tells the story of the daily life of C. W. Massey, a remarkable resident of this city. He is head porter in a millinery establishment. Each morning at 6:45 he mounts his large touring car and hurries to work, where he has the privilege of boss ing twelve negroes. Late in the afternoon he hurries home in the same car, tired as any other laboring man, and spends his evening in quarters as lavish as those of the wealthiest millionaire in St. Louis and associates with the wealthiest people in the city. He declares he could live without work, but no life out of the ordinary would be to him, so he prefers to work for $12.37 a week, hire a chauffeur, live in luxury and scarcely earn his board at his labor.

Massey owns nearly 3,000 acres of the rich, deep lands of Minnesota. He has other property, much other property, in fact, located in St. Louis. He is able to maintain a nine-room house, four servants and a big touring car while working at a salary that is in the immediate neighborhood of $50 a month. His fellow workers gasped with amazement when they learned of it. When he began coming down to his portering in a costly touring car, that runs 60 miles an hour, they began to view him with awe. His is the "Man of Mystery" among the fellow-workers.

Massey has been in St. Louis about four years. He married a widow with not a little property, and to this he has added steadily. It is said that he is anxious to get back to the prairies of Minnesota and be a farmer, in the higher sense of the word. Special considerations have thus far tied him to St. Louis.

Road Settles Famous Sandwich Case

TOPEKA, Kan.—A western railroad would not permit the bunk of hardtack and piece of hog hock, known as the railroad ham-and-hoop sandwich, to get into the Kansas courts, though it had to pay well to keep it out.

Last spring L. M. Couchman, a Topeka traveling salesman, was riding on a train toward home. The train stopped at McFarland, 30 miles west of Topeka, for dinner.

The greasy girl behind the counter passed him out a dinner wrapped and ribbon tied square of bread, butter and ham—supposedly, and the traveling man opened and bit. The girl grinned at Couchman as he vainly tried to force his teeth through the adamantine crust and when he quit she asked sweetly. "Oh, isn't it good?" "Naw. Gimme a piece of pie instead," said Couchmand.

The pie was a wonderful improvement over the sandwich. He paid for it and walked out. Then a special officer of the railroad company collared him on the platform and roughly forced him to disgorge 10 cents for the hunk of hardtack and pork.

Couchman brought suit for $2,000 damages to his peace of mind for the rough treatment he received and 10 cents additional for the sandwich he paid for and couldn't eat. The suit has been pending in the district court here for three months and much evidence from traveling men throughout the state regarding the frailties and abominations of the railroad eating house sandwich has been taken. The railroad attorneys looked over this evidence and settled the case by paying a sum to Couchman for his suffering and returning the 10 cents. What the amount was is not known.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

FRISCO MAYOR HAS BIG TASK

It is a big job that James Rolph, Jr., the pay mayor of San Francisco, formally on errand boy, has before him in taking charge of the city government for the four-year term, during which it must prepare for the Panama-Pacific exposition, he will be largely responsible for the expenditure of $100,000,000 for public works.

And then, most difficult and most important of all, perhaps, he must "clean up" San Francisco. That is, he must give the city such a moral cleaning that it will present a decent appearance to the thousands of visitors from all over the world.

By his election Rolph becomes an international figure with the expenditure of millions of dollars under his direction, with the prosperity of a million people largely dependent upon his policies, with the success of the world's fair linked to his administration and with the good name of San Francisco in his keeping.

Rolph plugged his way through the grammar school and spent three and one-half years in completing the high school course, doing odd jobs to earn money to buy books and clothes. Rolph's meteoric start in business life began in January, 1900, when he formed a partnership with George H. Hind, a high school classmate. The two young men opened a little office near the water front and started in the shipping and commission business.

PASTOR OF CHURCH 40 YEARS

One of the unique figures in the religious world of today is Rev. Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur, former pastor of Calvary Baptist church, New York city and newly elected president of the World Alliance of the Baptist Church.

Dr. MacArthur was born in Canada of Scotch parentage. After graduating from Rochester Theological seminary he began his pastorate in the nbova church May 15, 1870. Since his pastorate ha has increased the membership from 238 to 2,500. He has laid on God's altar for church work, city missions and home and foreign missions more than $2,000,000. This is a remarkable record, especially when it is borne in mind that not a millionaire is to be found in the membership.

His election calls to mind that Dr. MacArthur, who seems far from fitting the role of a seventy-year-old minister, has retired from the first and only pastorate occupied by him during his four decades as a clergyman. His retirement from the pastorate brings him to a wider activity.

LAURIER IS NOT TO QUIT

"I will remain in parliament as leader of the opposition for some time. I should be a deserter of my party if I ran away now," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Ottawa, Ont. Sir Wilfrid said that he had intended to retire and, no doubt, would do so after some time, but not immediately. He undoubtedly will go through the next session as leader of the opposition.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, defeated, and perhaps a little chagrined, possibly wishes now more than ever that he had remained unknighted. He did not desire the honor bestowed upon him at the diamond jubilee. "I would have preferred to remain plain Wilfrid Laurier," he has said. "I began my political career under plain Alexander McKenzie, who began life as a stone cutter, and who lived and died plain Alexander McKenzie."

An enemy charged him once with having received as a gift from a corrupt corporation a handsome, well furnished dwelling. He told the Dominion parliament what the facts were. Sir Wilfrid explained that he had bought the house himself, paying £1,100 cash down and furnishing it, except for a few gifts from personal friends to Lady Laurier, raising the money on his own personal note, and giving a mortgage for the balance, £800, on the house itself.

KITCHENER GOES TO EGYPT

Field Marshal Viscount Kitchener's appointment as agent and consul general at Cairo was received at that city with great satisfaction. As a matter of fact, Lord Kitchener will really, though not in name, be arbiter of Egyptian policy, and will be responsible under the British government for the administration of Egypt and the Sudan. His full title for the position is minister plenipotentiary and consul general and his salary is £7,000 a year.

As regards his suitability for the position, it is certain that there is no man in Britain with whom could be more surely trusted the affairs of Egypt and Sudan. His very name proclaims him to be the man that is wanted—K. of K. Kitchener of Khartum. It is a nickname by which he will always be remembered. And yet it is only one of his many nicknames. It has been said, "The great usually talk too much; Kitchener never talks." The Yankee boasts that he can "talk good on talk, and without it succeed is well nigh impossible." But here we have a living contradiction to the theory.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

President Taft Holds Travel Record

WASHINGTON. — William Howard Taft, president of the United States and champion traveler of the universe, has completed his fifth tour of 24 states of the Union to add about 15,000 more miles to his record. It is a wonderful record for getting over ground, even in these days of the fast express trains and giant ocean steamships, that the president has established and when he returned to Washington he had traveled since he entered the government service in 1900 as a Philippine commissioner 298,728 miles.

The travel microbe stung William Howard Taft in 1900, when President McKinley selected him as one of the Philippine commissioners. Up to that time Mr. Taft was used to the court room, and on his maiden trip to the Orient he was affected with what has proven to be an incurable case of travel mania. Since that first trip, a little over ten years ago, he has traveled almost incessantly, and from the president's personal standpoint it has been most enjoyable, for all of the trips and journeys and excursions up to two and a half years ago were made at government expense. For since his first appointment as a Philippine commissioner Mr. Taft has been continually on the payroll of Uncle Sam, excepting the short period between his nomination for the presidency in 1908 and his installation as president on March 4, 1909.

Since he has been president he has traveled also at government expenses, for the president is allowed $25,000 a year to cover his "getting around" expenses, an appropriation that came into being when the railroads cut off free transportation and congress enacted an anti-pass law.

Forest Service as a Training School

UNCLE SAM'S success as master of a great training school is nowhere better shown, perhaps, than in that branch of the school known as the forest service. The interstate commerce commission probably is a close second. Great railroads and other corporations are continually picking out the most promising men connected with the interstate commerce commission. The success of treasury, postoffice, agricultural department and geographical survey employes in landing good positions in the business or scientific world is proverbial.

Of course, on the other hand, there is a trail of wrecked careers dan in younger men entering the government service and losing their ambition in dull routine work; but where the young man stands the test his success is usually great.

The forest service, for example, has developed into a great governmental post-graduate institution for learning the theory and practice of forestry. A couple of years ago there was a furor when it was learned that the chief forester had authorized a number of forest rangers to attend forestry schools in the west during the dull season while their names were on the government payroll. Yet before and since then the forestry bureau has been in itself a gigantic school.

Nobody criticises anybody for this. A majority of the men heretofore and now connected with the forestry bureau no doubt have been faithful and efficient employes, but there is no gainsaying the fact that the knowledge and experience they have acquired while working for Uncle Sam has been of great benefit to them in bettering their position by getting outside employment.

Matters have reached such a pass in the forest service that the personnel is constantly shifting and changing. Young men enter the lumber service after leaving school or college, and after learning the practical side of forestry and being promoted to some extent they accept offers from lumber associations or companies, colleges, states, railroads and other corporations interested in forestry.

Discipline Is Improving in the Army

FEWER trials by court-martial than in any year since the Spanish-American war were had by the army during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of Brigadier General H. H. Crowder, judge advocate general.

During the year there were 3,851 general courts-martial, or a decrease of 1,355 as compared with the year preceding. The number of trials was 6.5 per cent of the average enlisted strength of the army, whereas the 1910 average was 6.38 per cent, and in 1909 it was 7.4 per cent. Absence without leave and desertion were the chief offenses.

Trials by summary courts decreased last year by 9,193 compared with the previous year. These trials represented 43 per cent. of the average enlisted strength of the army, a decrease of 14 per cent. from the 1910 percentage. The reduced number of summary courts, according to the judge advocate, has been accomplished without relaxing discipline and is partly accounted for by the movement of troops from their posts to the maneuver division, where the duty approximated that of active field service. However, General Crowder believes that the principal cause for the reduction has been the growth of the opinion that minor infractions of discipline can be punished better by summary discipline than by subjecting the offender to formal trial.

Uncle Sam Can't Exclude the Chinese

MORE Chinese are entering the United States today than ever before since the passage of the Chinese exclusion act, according to the report of Commissioner General of Immigration Keefe, to be submitted to Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor. The business of smuggling Chinamen into this country has been growing in spite of the increased efforts of inspectors. Most of the Celestials are coming across the Canadian border. Last year 8,000 entered the Dominion, but it is estimated only a small proportion remained there. In the past five years immigration has been on a steady increase, and yet only 22,000 Celestials are reported as living in Canada. The others have been smuggled across the American border.

Mr. Keefe will advise Secretary Nagel that the only way to handle the Chinese situation is to register all Celestials, now in the country, irrespective of the manner of their entry, and to allow them all to stay here. He will suggest that congress then pass a law that every Chinaman found without registration papers be exported.

After a two months' trip in Hawaii, Mr. Keefe made a report to Secretary Nagel on labor conditions on the sugar plantations, severely arraigning the great land owners for keeping the greatest part of the population in a state of vassalage. He will ask congress to take action to remedy the "commissary store" system, by which the underpaid laborers are deprived of their meager earnings by overcharges for foodstuffs.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - - MINN.

BIRDS AND THEIR ENEMIES.

A recent report of the United States bureau of entomology constitutes one of the strongest arguments imaginable upon the absolute economic folly of exterminating America's bird life. The country, says a bureau expert, suffers each year enough insects a loss aggregating $1,200,000,000; rodents cost us $300,000,000; weeds more than $400,000,000. These are staggering figures, indeed. They need not be minutely accurate to point a moral as obvious as it is important. Every thinking person knows they are near enough the truth to make the warning significant. In nature's fine balance of living agencies the birds found their largest utility in keeping the insect pests of mankind in subjection. Not all birds eat insects, but most do. Others destroy rodents, and many eat the seeds of weeds. It was a fine scheme of economy nature had. Man in his cruel blindness has upset the balance. He has made plumage fashionable for hats and glorified bird cloners. Even pot-hunting has been winked at. A policy widely recognized as indefensible has been followed for years. America foots the bill for her own indifference. The first punishment is visited upon the farmers, but its effects are felt by every family in the land.

The rapid transmission of news among Kaffirs and Hottentots is a mystery which even Mr. Rider Haggard is unable to solve. Mr. Haggard was at Pretoria in 1879, at the time of the battle of Isandhlwana. Twelve hours after the disaster an old Hottentot washerwoman told him that Cetawayo had defeated the British troops, and gave details of the battle. So impressed was Mr. Haggard that he reported the information to his official superior. The British official pointed out that it was impossible for the news to be true, as Isandhlwana was 193 miles from Pretoria, and no telegraphic or railway communication existed between the two places. On the following day official confirmation of the disaster was brought by mounted messengers, who were dispatched immediately after the battle and traveled at top speed all the way. Yet the natives won by twenty hours, and the washerwoman's story was true in every detail.

The assertion that cats are necessary in bakeries is supported by wide observation and by the judgment of high practical and scientific authorities in all parts of the world. Rats are pests, and no better antidote for them than cats has ever been found. Poison will not do—especially in a bakery, where the smell of the poisoned cats comes from the holes into which they had retreated to die would not help the air and the bread. It is a curious criticism that would object to bakers keeping cats.

Dr. Hastings, the Toronto medical health officer, complains that only about 23 per cent. of the 600 cattle killed for consumption weekly in that city are inspected, and that an average of 55 diseased animals a week are sold for food. A Canadian government analyst asserts that for the last third of a century the proper meat in Canada has been adulterated 40 per cent. We are doing better than Canada in some things.

How interesting it would be to students of mechanics as well as to students of history to see the first steamboat in which Fulton took passengers on the Hudson in 1807. By preserving in the National Museum at Washington the first flying machine purchased from the Wrights for the war department, the government is providing a treat for students in centuries to come.

We are informed that an easterner whose best girl gave him the frigid mitt has gone insane. We have often heard of people who want crazy with joy.

We fail to understand why some people are so badly stung by the aviation bug when all the delights and dangers of the game may be experienced on a roller coaster.

The policemen of Lynn, Mass., are to be armed with clubs made of paper. These will logically go with paper sanitary drinking cups.

Boston highbrows are trying to determine whether "beet" should be pronounced "bin" or "bean." If they are patriotic Bostonians the bean will win in a walk.

A woman of eighty in a Connecticut town captured and held a burglar un til help came. Here is the first knockout blow for the age limit.

Advice to the aeroplane operator: Be careful.

DEMOCRATIC GAIN GENERAL OVER THE COUNTRY

REPUBLICANS BEATEN IN THREE STATES IN RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIPS—CINCINNATI DEMOCRATIC.

REPUBLICANS WIN NEW YORK; GOVERNOR FOSS RE-ELECTED

Socialist Vote is Surprisingly Heavy—Schenectady Elects its First Socialist Mayor—Kentucky Deserts Ranks of the Republicans by Big Vote.

Chicago, — Elections held in many states and cities throughout the country resulted in the election of Democratic governors in Massachusetts, Kentucky and Mississippi, a Republican governor in Rhode Island, a Republican assembly in New York, which will challenge the continuance of Governor Dix's policies; a New Jersey legislature with majorities probably not in accord with Governor Woodrow Wilson, with results of the state elections in Maryland and New Mexico in doubt.

In Massachusetts, Governor Foss, Democrat, was elected by a reduced plurality of 7,734 over Louis Frothingham, Republican.

The Republican candidate for lieutenant governor was elected by 7,000 majority and other Republican state candidates were elected.

In Rhode Island Governor Pothier, Republican, is re-elected over Louis A. Westerman, Democrat, by a greatly increased plurality. The state senate is solidly and the assembly largely Republican.

New York state furnished one of the chief surprises of the election, reversing the present Democratic majority of 24 in the state assembly and electing a Republican majority of 50 or upward. The change removes the united support which both branches of the legislature heretofore had given Gov. Dix's policies. In New York city Tammany's control was broken, but not overcome. Tammany candidates in Manhattan and the Bronx being elected, while those in Brooklyn and Queens county were defeated by fusion candidates.

New Jersey Furnishes Surprise.

New Jersey similarly furnished a surprise by the probably reversal of control of the legislature, the returns giving Republican majorities in the senate and assembly.

In Kentucky, James B. McCreary, Democrat, was elected governor by a majority estimated at 20,000 to 40,000. A Democratic legislature also was elected, which insures the choice of Congressman Ollie James or United States senator from Kentucky.

Returns from Maryland were inconclusive. Claims were made of the election of Phillip Lee Goldsborough, Republican candidate for governor, by 5,000 majority over Arthur P. Gorman, Democrat, while counter claims of Democratic success were made. The constitutional amendment designed to disfranchise negro voters probably was defeated.

Ohio Cities Democratic.

The Ohio municipal elections resulted in the election of Democratic mayors in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Columbus. President Taft cast his vote in Cincinnati.

In New Mexico the Democratic state committee claims the election of MacDonald as governor by 4,500 in the first election which the new state has held. The election of a Republican legislature is indicated, which will mean the election of two Republican United States senators.

Marked Socialist strength has developed at various points, notably in several of the municipal contests of Ohio, where 10 cities elected Socialist mayors; also in Schenectady, N. Y., where a Socialist mayor and a Socialist member of the state assembly were elected, and in Mississippi, where the Socialist candidate for lieutenant governor polled a considerable vote.

Four congressmen were elected to fill vacancies, Joseph A. Tagger, Democrat, in the Second Kansas district; W. D. B. Ainy, Republican, in the Fourteenth district; William J. Browning, Republican, in the First New Jersey district, and Daniel V. Stephens, Democrat, of the Third Nebraska district.

Tammany's Hold is Shaken.

New York.—Tammany Hall's hold on New York city was shaken yesterday in a battle of the ballots, in which local offices were mainly at stake. The Democrats successfully defended their ancient strongholds of Manhattan and the Bronx, but by greatly reduced pluralities. Queens county also stood by the Democrats, but the Republican fusion candidates made nearly a clean sweep of Brooklyn, and probably divided honors in the little borough of Richmond.

A year ago Manhattan and the Bronx boroughs gave Governor Dix a plurality of 68,289 and elected a Democratic supreme court justice by about 22,000. Now Robert L. Fowler, the Democratic candidate for surrogate, carried New York county with a majority plurality of about 17,000.

The Democrats elected their candidates for sheriff by about 8,000 and the three Democratic candidates for supreme court justice in the First judicial district pulled through by a mere 5,000. Francis M. Scott, the fourth justice elected, was indorsed by both parties.

The Republicans gained eight assemblymen in New York county and will send fifteen member of that body out of the total delegation of thirty-five.

The Republicans elected a sheriff in Kings county by about 1,400. In 19 out of 23 districts in Brooklyn, the fusionists gained six assemblymen.

From a Democratic majority of 24, the New York state assembly turned overwhelmingly Republican. The Republicans in the lower chamber have a majority of 50. The present senate holds over.

In the unexpected landslide the Democrats were able to capture only three seats held by the Republicans, whereas all over the commonwealth's Democratic assemblymen fell by the wayside.

In Schenectady, Herbert M. Merrill, a Socialist, was out where a Democrat had held the seat.

Kentucky Republicans Lose.

Louisville.—Kentucky, for years considered in the balance between the Democrats and Republicans, went back into the ranks of the former in a landslide victory.

James B. McCreary, Democratic candidate for governor, has been elected by from 20,000 to 40,000 majority. His opponent was Judge Edward C. O'Rear.

Chicago Judges Picked.

Chicago.—Six Republicans and four Democrats were elected to the superior court of Cook county. John P. McGoorty, Democrat, was elected to fill the one circuit court vacancy. A "higher pay for judges" proposition was defeated. Chief Justice William H. McSurely and Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh, Republicans, were re-elected to the superior bench, as was Judge Joseph H. Fitch, Democrat. The new judges are Charles M. Foell, Hugh Pam, Albert C. Barnes and Henry V. Freeman, Republicans, and M. L. McKinley, Dennis E. Sullivan and Clarence N. Goodwin, Democrats.

Kansas Elects Democrat.

Kansas City.—Joseph A. Taggart, a Democrat, was elected to congress from the Second Kansas district by a majority estimated at 1,200 votes over his Republican opponent, Dyness S. Geyer. Mr. Taggart will fill the unexpired term of the late Republican congressman, A. C. Mitchell. Mitchell carried the district in 1910 by 8,481 votes over John Caldwell, Democrat.

Philadelphia Republicans Win.

Philadelphia.—In one of the closest political contests in the history of Philadelphia, the Republicans succeeded in electing George H. Earle, Jr., mayor over Rudolph Blankenburg, "the war horse of reform," by the mongre majority of 5,000.

Ohio Cities Go Democratic.

Columbus.—The Democrats were swept into power in the three largest cities of Ohio, Columbus, Cincinnati and Cleveland returning decisive Democratic plurralities.

A feature of the election throughout the state was the large Socialist vote. In Columbus, Ehy, the Socialist candidate for mayor, according to early returns, was running a close race with Mayor Marshall, the Republican nominee, for second place, while George J. Karb, Democrat, had been elected by from 400 to 600 plurality.

In Cincinnati Mayor Louis Dolle, running for re-election, with the Republican indorsement, was defeated by Henry T. Hunt, Democrat, by probably 6,000.

In Cleveland, Newton D. Baker Democrat and political heir to the late Tom L. Johnson, was elected mayor by probably 20,000, while practically the entire Democratic ticket was elected with him.

In Toledo Brand Whitlock independent, has been elected for a fourth term by a plurality in the neighborhood of 2,000.

Crookston Socialists Win.

Crookston.—By a majority of 91 votes, H. J. Larson, Socialist, was elected mayor of Crookston over Mayor Allen McKinnon, candidate on the citizens' ticket, and W. R. Lory, Republican candidate, backed by the Young Men's Progressive club. George Christianson, also a Socialist, was elected alderman of the Sixth ward and John Kolka, Socialist, is running neck and neck with Walter Stone for alderman at large. Armory bonds lost.

SEATTLE MAY BE TRANSFERRED.

Unless New Trial is Granted He Will Go to Death House.

Richmond, Virginia. — Unless the state supreme court of appeals grants a new trial for Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., the young man convicted of the murder of his wife will be taken from the Richmond city jail to murderers' row in the death house at the state penitentiary. According to the law, a man condemned to electrocution must be lodged in the penitentiary 15 days before the date set for his death.

TURK GUNBOAT SHELLED; SUNK

Italians Bombard Arabian Town of Akabah and Warship in Port.

Constantinople, Turkey.—An Italian cruisor bombarded the town of Akabah, Arabia, sinking the Turkish gunboat Hadid, which was lying in port.

The second officer of the gunboat was killed, but the others on board shelled the hilly portion of the town. The extent of the damage is not stated.

MINNEAPOLITANS WILL DINE

WHILE THEY DISCUSS UNION DEPOT PROJECT.

Big Function at Mill City Public Men Wednesday Evening.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13. — When the business day comes to a close Wednesday and the clock strikes 6, the greatest representation of the patriotism and commercial strength of Minneapolis that time or occasion has ever brought together will be seated in Donaldson's ten rooms, which is 735 Minneapolis men from every business and professional walk of life will meet to determine if it is the sentiment here that Minneapolis ought to have a union station and whether Minneapolis, to a man, wishes to enter into a definite agreement to get a union station.

Railroad officials and presidents of banks, men eminent in commercial life, representatives of labor, of the building, transportation, distributing and manufacturing industries, men identified with education and men in public life, city officials, members of the various boards that are concerned with civic betterment, men from the commercial clubs, improvement associations, and business organizations of every kind, and men eminent in law and finance will sit together. Every man will be on the same basis as every other man; every men in Minneapolis is welcome to come and there will be no restrictions other than space limitations. One dollar will cover the cost, and out of it all Minneapolis will find out if sentiment here favors the continuation by the committee of one hundred of the work that has been started to secure for the city a greater, more adequate, up-to-date passenger terminal into which all the railroads of the city shall enter.

The committee of one hundred of which Judge M. B. Koon is the head and which has on it the most representative men of Minneapolis, has labored for a year.

Frank Washington, president of the Soo road, unless duties call him out of town, or other unavoidable circumstance prevents, will be present, as he will sit with the crowd, and not at the speakers' table, nor will he come as a guest in any greater sense than any other men present.

W. G. Bierd, western representative of the Hawley interests as vice president and general manager of the Minneapolis & St. Louis and Iowa Central lines, likewise will come.

W. G. Nye, commissioner of the Commercial club, who recently visited Kansas City and Omaha, to obtain information regarding the union stations of those cities, will tell what he found out.

James Gray will then make a few remarks upon the condition of the present union station. He will be followed by men representative of the various activities of the city, including L. S. Gillette, capitalist; Fred James E. Freeman, distinguished divine; J. W. Bragdon, wholesale merchant; Harington Adams; and will touch upon the artistic phase of the question; Joseph Chapmen, jr., who is the latest book from the mint of banker and Minneapolitan; Judge W. A. Lancaster, who will give considerations on the legal aspect of the situation, and Judge M. B. Koon, chairman of the committee of one hundred and of the executive committee of three.

George H. Partridge will then be introduced and he will present the Parker-Gray plan, that the Commercial club has drawn for it and which shows what could be done here, and this plan will be easily understood, for Mr. Partridge has placed it, in reduced size, in the mens book that he has prepared, and as the big plan is explained, and they follow them in their menu books.

DAILY MARKET REPORT.

Over Wire of Wilson.

Minneapolis, Nov. 13.—Wheat, December, $1.03¾; May, $1.08¾. No. 1 northern, $1.04¾; No. 2 northern, $1.03¾; No. 1 durum, $1.00; No. 2 corn, 72c; No. 3 white oats, 36c. Barley, malting, 57@61c; feed, 50@55c. Flax, $1.19¾@1.20¾. Rye, No. 2, $1.02¾@1.03¾. Bran, $17.50@18.00. Flour, $5.10@5.60. Cash barrels, $4.60@5.10.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—With the northwestern millers assessing a fair decrease in Omaha after having frozen 45,000,000 bushels of wheat in Canada, the export forecast that cereal today took a sudden upward turn. Wheat closed 1¾c higher, corn unchanged to ¼c lower, and oats ¼c to ¾c higher. Provisions were unchanged to 10c lower.

Influenced by statements that the acreage of September had been overestimated and that the crop there would not yield more than 200,000,000 bushels, wheat at times showed weakness. Offerings were free, however, and Northwestern markets were liberal. Besides, there was a big increase in the visible supply and cold weather prevailed toward the south. The opening was unsettled, with prices a shade to ¼c lower. December started at 97¾@97¾c and then jumped to 98c.

Heavy selling on the bulges, though, broke the price back to 97¾@97¾c. Later on, however, there was a rally, which was explained that the fall was due to profit-taking on the part of those who were comparatively steady with December 97¾@97¾c and May 97¾@97¾c.

Corn was one of the most dull and featureless of the modern request and seemed to have no independent action. The market closed with prices following the course of wheat. December started at 74@74¼c and then rose to 74¼c.

The market later, reacted when wheat turned weak. Closing figures were steady at 73¾@73¾c for December, but easier at 74¼@74¾c for May.

Several of the larger local speculators sold moderately. Smaller traders followed suit and there was in consequence a sharp break in the price of corn. December started unchanged to 1c up at 47¾@47¾c and climbed to 47¾c.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC AT DULUTH.

New Cases Reported Daily in Western End of City.

Duluth, Nov. 13.—The smallpox epidemic in the western end of the city is assuming proportions; new cases are being reported daily to the health department. In October the disease doubled. Pupils of the schools in the smallpox district are being vaccinated and those who refuse are being kept out of school.

A Question of Art.

"Was the play you speak of highly artistic and powerful?" asked the girl who pouted.

"I don't know how it could have been," replied the girl who prefers frankness. "I understood, and I heard every word of it."

A Failure.

"Has he had a successful career?" "No. He doesn't owe anybody any money."

Scouting at Home.

"No thanks," says the man with a grizzy mustache. "I'd like to look in a little game of poker tonight, I think I'd best go home."

"Nonsense!" says the fair "What's changed you all of a sudden?"

"Well, you see, my son has joined the Boy Scouts, and the little rascal has become so shrewd that he can tell by where my hat is just what time I came in the night before."—Judge.

"BETTER FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN THAN CASTOR OIL,"

SALTS, OR PILLS, AS IT SWEETENS AND CLEANSES THE SYSTEM MORE EFFICIENTLY AND IS FAR MORE PLEASANT TO TAKE.

SYRUP of FIGS and ELIXIR of SENNA

IS THE IDEAL FAMILY LAXATIVE, AS IT GIVES SATISFACTION TO ALL, IS ALWAYS BENEFICIAL IN ITS EFFECTS AND PERFECTLY SAFE AT ALL TIMES.

NOTE THE NAME

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

in the Circle,

on every Package of the Genuine.

MINIATURE PICTURE OF PACKAGE

ALL RELIABLE DRUGGISTS SELL THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE WHEN CALLED FOR, ALTHOUGH THEY COULD MAKE A LARGER PROFIT BY SELLING INFERIOR PREPARATIONS. YET THEY PREFER TO SELL THE GENUINE, BECAUSE IT IS RIGHT TO DO SO AND FOR THE GOOD OF THEIR CUSTOMERS. WHEN IN NEED OF MEDICINES, SUCH DRUGGISTS ARE THE ONES TO DEAL WITH, AS YOUR LIFE OR HEALTH MAY AT SOME TIME DEPEND UPON THEIR SKILL AND RELIABILITY

WHEN BUYING

Note the Full Name of the Company

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

PRINTED STRAIGHT ACROSS, NEAR THE BOTTOM, AND IN THE CIRCLE, NEAR THE TOP OF EVERY PACKAGE OF THE GENUINE. ONE SIZE ONLY. FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS. REGULAR PRICE 50c PER BOTTLE.

SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA IS THE ONLY PERFECT FAMILY LAXATIVE, BECAUSE IT IS THE ONE REMEDY WHICH ACTS IN A NATURAL, STRENGTHENING WAY AND CLEANSES THE SYSTEM, WITHOUT UNPLEASANT AFTER-EFFECTS AND WITHOUT IRRITATING, DEBILITATING OR GRIPING, AND THEREFORE DOES NOT INTERFERE IN ANY WAY WITH BUSINESS OR PLEASURE. IT IS RECOMMENDED BY MILLIONS OF WELL-INFORMED FAMILIES, WHO KNOW OF ITS VALUE FROM PERSONAL USE. TO GET ITS BENEFICIAL EFFECTS ALWAYS BUY THE GENUINE MANUFACTURED BY THE

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

Lenox Soap is the best value, in the way of laundry soap, that money will buy.

It is the cheapest of good soaps; the best of medium-priced soaps.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

WOMEN wear W. L. Douglas stylish, perfect fitting, easy walking boots, because they give long wear, same as W. L. Douglas Men's shoes.

THE ENORMOUS INCREASE in the sale of W. L. Douglas shoes proves their superiority over all other makes for the price.

The workmanship which has made W. L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they are warranted to hold their shape, fit better and wear longer than any other make for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom. If you cannot obtain them from our agents we can. ONE PAIR of my $3.50 or $5.00 shoe will wear as long as two pairs of ordinary shoes. Fast Color Eyelets Used Exclusively. Write for catalog. Shoes sent anywhere. Mail orders filled promptly. From factory to wearer, all charges prepaid. W. L. DOUGLAS, 148 Spark St., Brockton, Mass. TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes

TO EVERYONE INTERESTED IN HUNTING OR TRAPPING

who will cut out this advertisement and mail it to us with your name and address plainly written on coupon below, together with 2c for postage, we will send absolutely Free a set of Natural Tracks in Snow or Mud showing the tracks of Rabbits, Deer, Muskrat, Skunk, Mink, Squirrel, Fox, Coon and Otter; running, walking or leaping, and also pattern sheet of dogs for Mink and Skunk. For 4 cents we will send you the above tracks and our 48 page Furgrower Book. For 8 cents we will send you all three tracks and Furgrower Book. For 10 cents we will send you all three tracks and Furgrower Book and our 32 page illustrated booklet How to Make Money in Furs and Hides. Price List of Hide and Furs sent to any one who writes for it. Our price list is the most liberal ever issued. Write your name and address plainly so there can be no false tracks may be sent to reach you.

Yours always for a Square Deal, the Old Reliable,

Northwestern Hide & Fur Co.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

FATE AND THE FLETCHERS

Intervention That Made It Certain Hour for Senator's Death Had Not Struck.

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida sought his berth one night on a sleeping car on the way south from Washington. Finding back the curtains of a lower nine, he saw that his bed was already occupied.

"Hi, there!" called the senator, shaking the stranger by the shoulder. The sleeper awoke and protested angrily.

"My name's Fletcher," explained the statesman, "and this is my berth."

"You've got nothing on me," answered the other. "My name's Fletcher, and this is my berth."

"My full name is Duncan U. Fletcher," the senator elaborated.

"So's mine," agreed the intruder.

"Ah, I see," said the senator, politely. "There must have been a mistake in reserving the same berth for two men of the same name. I'll get into the next sleeping car."

The stranger, by this time, was fully awake, and proceeded to apologize, and to offer to give up the berth. This the senator would not do, and he went into the car ahead, and found a place to sleep.

An hour later the train was wrecked. The car to which the stranger occupied the lower one fell through a trestle, and that Fletcher was killed. The senator's car was not damaged at all.—Popular Magazine.

Mad About It.

"Hubby is just crazy about being up-to-date."

"How does he show it?"

"He is trying to get his parrot a wireless cage."

Constipation causes and seriously aggravates many diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. They sugar-coated granules.

Apicultural.

Mother—Yes, Johnny, the queen bee is boss.

Johnny—How about the presidential bee?

MY DAUGHTER WAS CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"I send you here with the picture of my fifteen year old daughter Alice, who was restored to health by Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was pale, with dark circles under her eyes, weak and irritable. Two different doctors treated her and called it Green Sickness, but she grew worse all the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended, and after taking three bottles she has regained her health, thanks to your medicine. I can recommend it for all female troubles."—Mrs. L. A. COMBRAY, 1103 Rutland Street, Baltimore, Md.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice, free.

Don't Persecute Your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal, harsh, unnecessary. Try

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membranes of the bowels. A perfect laxative. Cure Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

Defiance Starch

16 ounces to the package—other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY

KENDRICK'S LIQUID GLUE FOR WALLS AND CEILINGS
NEW LITTLE PAPER HANGER (48 PAGE BOOK) FREE
KENDRICK'S PATENT SIZE
KENDRICK'S PATENT FLOUR PASTE
KENDRICK'S PATENT WALL PAPER CLEANER
KENDRICK'S PATENT WHITE LEAD
KENDRICK'S PATENT VARNISHES
CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Pettit's Eye Salve STOPS EYE ACHES

PISO'S CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. BEST COUGH SYRUP. TASTES GOOD. USE IN TIME. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. CONSUMPTION

The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL REFERENCE TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

ILLUSTRATIONS BY DEBORDON HEUSNA

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY HARPER, 1909 & COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young taxidermist becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a political magnate in a western mining town. They prepare to elope in a blinding blizzard but are confronted by the cuckolded husband. He is shot by the wife, but the chivalrous boy plies a note to the body taking the crime upon himself. By their flight the fellow is stalled in the snowdrift. Soon he catches up with the couple at a little town and shows himself in the lobby of the hotel. Seeing he is an impediment, the woman slips her sleeping car into a snow drift and rides on. Half-frozen he stumbles into the railroad station where at the train hears the woman away. Twenty-four hours later, this time by special train, he again overtakes the fugitives. This time he is accompanied by Haldane, a beautiful and wealthy anti-political worker, and co-operates with her in her work. Gormly becomes owner of a steamship line and finds himself frustrated in plot and track scheme by grafting ex-Governor Packard by the Gotham Traction Company. An automobile accident brings Haldane and the country boy together and announces that the latter is mayor of New York and redeem the city from corruption Mr. Haldane is a long drawn interview with Gormly, makes an indirect proposition to compromise the fight which the latter has been waging. In the news papers against the Gotham Traction company. Gormly declines the proposition saying that he will himself be appointed as his plan of campaign to Haldane. Gormly files at Haldane's place, carrying word of the auto accident. The next morning he refers to the case of the night before as child compared to one he experienced in the Klondike. The papers announces his candidacy for mayor. The political pot begins to boil. Gormly opens headquarters in the Metropolitan. Haldane, a minority party, seeing in him a possible means, makes overtures looking to the endorsement of his candidacy by the "anti-Gormly" forces, rejects all suggestion of alliance. A meeting of the Sachem Society of the "Ring" is held at the Haldane home. Many political dignitaries are present. Many suggestions are made as means to advance to success Gormly's mayoralty aspirations and sidetrack his candidacy. Only after Haldane is promised as an opposition candidate and the whole machinery of the city's detectives force is to be furnished to dig up something damaging to Gormly. Haldane, however, refuses the nomination and announces his self-support.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

"What does it cover?" asked the mayor.

"It covers pretty much every available route by which we can connect the ends of the traction company."

"How much territory?"

"Oh, a mile or a mile and a half, I should say; but every possible right of way is included in the franchise."

"And if we don't get it?"

"Somebody else will get it, of course. He will build the connections, and hold us up for anything that he wants."

"But it will be no good to anybody else without what we've got," suggested Van Slyke.

"True; but we have got several hundred millions involved and can't adopt a do-nothing policy. Probably two millions or even less will cover the expenses required by rebuilding under the old or new franchise, and that ten million bee us by the throat."

"It should be easy for five hundred millions to freeze out Gormly," said Rutherford.

"Under other circumstances it would not be at all difficult," answered Haldane; "but the people are to be considered in this case. They want results not a public convenience and, gentlemen, it has to be run."

"This is a fine time for us for men as smart as you to git yourselves in!" said Liffey. "As I take it, we can secure the franchise or we can make its future great the bane of the campaign; and if we win, pass it then; and if we fail, take our medicine."

"You've stated it exactly."

"For myself, I'm in favor of grabbing the franchise now," said the boss. "It means money. Money's what we're born for. The object of politics is money for the crowd that's in. The aim of the crowd that's out is to git in so they can git the money. We can't control the votes; with votes we can git office; with office and money we can get immunity from the consequences. Even if we're beaten by the mayor, we'll still have the district attorney, we'll still have the police force. I'll still be here; so will you, Mr. Haldane. And therefore, rather'n take any risk, I move that the franchise be renewed as soon as it expires, and that the grant be made to the Gotham Freight Traction company. I'd rather have something substantial than play for a chance any time. I guess we wouldn't suffer any therefore, no matter what happened.' Besides, all it'd mean would be a wait for four years. These reform movements always git tired of themselves, and then one er the other of the old parties comes in. We'll be the one."

"I am inclined to believe that much of Mr. Liffey's contention is sound," said Van Slyke at last.

"Well, gentlemen," said Haldane, "what do you all think about it?"

"Let's get what we can," said the mayor.

"And keep all we've got," added Connell.

"Very well then," said Haldane, "so be it. We are united upon a nonpartisan ticket which we can select presently, with Warren at the head of it. Mr. Liffey will see Mr. Benson and induce his co-operation. Mr. Connell will investigate Mr. Gormly's person. Mr. Rutherford will arrange to have the franchise renewed as soon as it is possible to do so. Mr. Van Slyke will come quietly to Gormly and, as a candidate for re-election. Messrs. Liffey, Habberley, and Connell" will get their forces in line. And I think that's all."

"Not quite, Mr. Haldane," said Liffey.

"What else?"

"You'll git the barrel open for the necessary expenses of the campaign?"

"Quite so," said Haldane, dryly. "You may depend upon us to do what is proper; eh, gentlemen?"

Van Slyke and McRonald nodded.

"I think we've done a pretty good night's work," said the district attorney, rising to his feet.

"Don't go yet," said Haldane. "We must fix up the slate first, and that will be all."

It was a half-hour later when the last one departed from the house. Haldane was quite aware of the conditions under which his fortune was being increased and his power extended. He had been brought in contact with the naked reality of the situation e great many times; but it seemed to him that never before had it presented itself in so hideous and unattractive a guise as on that night. The financier was hardened. His conscience, white heavily afire in other directions, in matters concerning politics and the people was seared and indurated. But what had been said and add what he had discussed that night had sickened him.

Haldane felt quite lonely, quite old, as he sat there in the small hours of the morning, his cigar gone out, musing over the situation. He pulled himself together at last. The battle was not lost. The enemy had not won, and before that came about there would be a struggle which would beggar description. The cards seemed to be in his hands, or in the hands of the ring of which he was chief. No more experienced players ever sat at a game than those associated with him. They ought to win; but would they? Haldane was by no means certain.

CHAPTER X.

The Voice of the People Is Heard.

Gormly's refusal to accept the indorsement and become the nominee of the ons created a great sensation. It was an evidence, which by and by even the stupid would apprehend, that Gormly literally meant what he said when he declared that he was to be an absolutely independent candidate, tied to no faction, bound by no party, entirely free and unfettered.

The men who rallied to his support, while as innocent as babes in the practical politics affected by Liffey and Benson, were nevertheless men of abounding zeal, keen intelligence, and high quality. Nor were the workers that gathered round the new leader entirely from the social set and circle of the Haldanes. Gormly in one way or another employed a vast number of working men. His relations with them had always been not merely "square," as they phrased it, but kind and generous. They were organized and started at work immediately in every direction. Before the enemy realized it, ample time had been secured in every possible assembly room and there were nightly meetings all over the city.

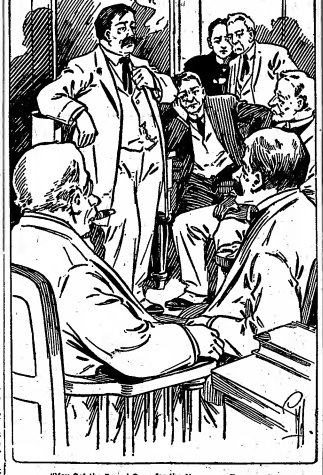
In the Gormly store itself was a great auditorium in which prize concerts, lectures, and entertainments had been given for the employees and patrons of the store. This auditorium had outside entrances and could be completely cut off from the other business. Every afternoon he assembled in the auditorium the workers and speakers, and every afternoon there was the freest possible discussion of the issues, of what was to be said in the speeches of the night, of the plans to be covered. This man showed a genius for leadership and direction that was amazing. He developed a power of succinctly presenting the facts, which in large measure he was able to communicate to his followers.

Livingstone Haldane's example had been followed by not a few young men of fortune and position. It became in a certain sense among a certain set the fashion to campaign for Gormly. Automobiles of all sorts were available for transporting speakers, and classes and social distinctions were wiped out in the greater issues involved. By these methods what was picturesquely described in the city papers as a whirlwind campaign was inaugurated.

It must not be supposed that the opposition was idle; by no means. Never had its activities been so great. Its engine so manifestly put forth. It had welcomed with joy the news of the refusal of Gormly to become the candidate of the minority party. Liffey had at once decided in his own mind that that settled the issue. Even further sighted men like Rutherford were of the same opinion. Haldane alone, with wisest, shrewdest, and ablest of the group, was not convinced, and under his vigorous though quiet urging the ring redoubled its efforts to beat the men.

At the proper time the proposition from the party in power to make a combination with the ons was sprung upon the public. It was hailed on one side as a confession of the fatness of the party in power and the Sachem society, which many people imagined needed no alliance of that kind. It was considered as testimony to the fact that the party in power had nothing to conceal, since it admitted the truth of its counsels, and that it was sincerely desirous of giving New York a business administration in which all factions and parties should be represented. There was truth in the contention, too. The only faction or party that would not be represented by this alliance would be the common people.

Wiser heads, however, realized that although the ons were incorporated entirely with the real spirit of either party end saw in the alliance a confession of weakness. And the effective contingent of the Gormly papers seized upon this idea and made the most of it. In the beginning, Gormly's advertisements, including his political manifestos, had been printed in every paper in the city. They were paid for as other advertisements are—and why not? But the Sachem society had put the screws on certain journals which owed much to its "influence" and bosses of this preserve they had summarily refused any more of Gormly's unique proclamations. They professed themselves entirely ready to print his business advertisements at the usual rates. Gormly retaliated, of course, by withdrawing all advertising of any sort from them, and doubling the space he purchased in the other papers. Naturally, these force the press divided in two sections; those that were controlled by the party in power, and those that were favorable to the new candidate.



Incidentally, nothing that he could have said or done could have so harassed the business of his store! His business rivals and associates indeed suggested, and the suggestion was quickly seized upon by the administration people, that the whole thing was a clever advertising dodge, and that Gormly was simply using his candidacy to boom his business. There was no satisfactory answer to this argument, which was one of the best that could have been devised by the opposition, and it was harped upon immensely, although their leader was vigorously justified from this charge by his army of fighters.

The expenses of the campaign were enormous. Not one cent was paid out for bribery or for the purpose of influencing votes in any improper way; but the hiring of halls, the payment of the expenses of meetings, organization, transportation, printing, salaries, and so on aggregated an extraordinary sum. Even Gormly himself had not realized how great these expenses would be; but he kept them without blenching. His resources were vast. He put at the disposal of his candidacy all the profits accruing from the days of twenty-five years. He saw that by the time the vote was taken, his ready money would be expended. Of course, he would still have his great business, which would be entirely unencumbered; but everything else would go.

He still kept to his plan of printing every week sworn statements of his expenses, challenging the other party to do the same. The reason the society did not publish its expense account was not because it was ashamed of the amount, for it was vastly greater than what Gormly expended. They had nearly as many expenses as he, except for the newspaper advertising, which they got free, and in addition they discovered an immense bribery and corruption fund through Liffey, Connell, Habberley and Benson.

Again and again were Haldane and his associates called upon for remittances, which were invariably forthcoming. There was no possibility of refusal. Failure to win a victory would mean financial ruin to many of them. Fortunately for him, it did not mean so much to Haldane, although his great fortune would be seriously impaired by defeat. Most of the others, however, had turned over everything that they possessed, and pledged their credit as well, to the vast syndicate of which he was the head. Indeed, he and Van Slyke would be the only ones not totally ruined by the election of Gormly. Consequently they paid and paid and paid, gritting their teeth grimly and handing out the cash, which was disbursed to the best advantage by Liffey and Benson.

Gormly himself spoke every night somewhere, and the crowds that greeted him were enormous. Meanwhile every detective in the employ of the city, and all other who could be suborned, were concentrating their efforts on Gormly's past and present. He could not take a step outside of his office without being shadowed. It was not difficult for spies to mingle with the crowd at every meeting in his store and scrutinize every person who entered his private room. They had no fear whatever of reprisals. Gormly had lived an absolutely clean, upright, honest, hardworking life since he landed in New York. They did not find out where he came from or even where he was born. The only possible data they had was the statement that he had once been in the west, with which Haldane had supplied them. Men had scoured the principal cities of the west; but nothing had been learned. Connell was in despair. He and Liffey and Benson had spent and again been on the ave of determining upon the manufacture of some degrading or discriminating story which would at least serve their purpose. It would not be difficult to get witnesses to such an endeavor; but it would be highly dangerous to resort to such an expedient, and they were still hesitating and undecided.

"You Get the Barrel Open for the Necessary Expenses."

About this time the disputed franchise expired. A resolution was immediately introduced in the board of aldermen at the city hall granting a renewal of it to the Gotham Freight Traction company. Every move in the game was watched, and the resolution had scarcely been read ere referred to a committee when it was communicated to Gormly. The next day the Gormly papers came out with the charge that the city fathers intended to give away its most valuable remaining public franchise to the Gotham Freight Traction company.

At the next meeting, despite the vehement protests of the Gormly party, the resolution was put upon its passage. Gormly here played his greatest political card. Attended by a body of friends, he presented himself at the council chamber and forced admission. When the resolution renewing the franchise was about to be voted upon, as a citizen of New York Gormly interested in the matter he demanded to be heard. Before permission was either granted or refused by the astonished presiding officer, Gormly drew from his pocket a piece of paper. Amid the deepest silence he held it up and said:

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Riches and Honor.

It is an honorable thing to be rich, but dishonorable for discovered able in any sense, so long as he who acquires it has remembered and has practiced the golden rule.—Ram's Horn.

Labor and Drudgery.

It is claimed that nine-tenths of all productive labor is drudgery. The overwhelming percentage of all the effective work in every vocation is done by the strong in mind and body.

TELLS WHAT SAVED HER LIFE.

I had tried several remedies but they did not seem to give me any relief. My doctor said I had kidney and liver trouble which I could not believe, as the pain seemed to be in my stomach. At times I had such dreadful pains that I could see no cure for them and days and nothing would bring relief. I could not walk and in a short time I lost ten and one half pounds in weight. I also had fainting spells, backache and always that tired and sleepy feeling.

A lady friend who appeared to be troubled in the same way as myself, recommended Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. I procured several bottles and gave it a thorough trial and am glad to say that I am feeling perfectly well and like a new person. I cheerfully recommend Swamp-Root to all sufferers. I truly believe that Swamp-Root saved my life.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. HENRY MUMM.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

R. F. D. No. 1, Box 49
Lowell, Ind.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You may also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Explanations.

Miss Fullcourt (of a poetical turn)—"Which are you of opinion ons should say, professor: 'Summer flies or 'Summer flees?'"

Absent-Minded Professor (great on entomology)—"The two species, my Now, the common house fly—" Then ha wondered why she suddenly opened in a manner with the poker and pressed a man on her right.—London Sphere.

MRS. SELBY AND PRIZE BABY

"I have always used Cuticura Soap and no other for my baby and ba hes never had a sore of any kind. He does not even chafe as most babies do. I feel sure that it is all owing to Cuticura Soap, for it is so pure and healthy, and when five months old, won a prize in a baby contest. It makes my heart ache to read about many homes and see a sweet-faced baby with the whole top of its head a solid mass of scurf, caused by poor soap. I always recommend Cuticura, and nine times out of ten the next time I see the mother she says: 'Oh! I am so glad you told me of Cuticura.'" (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, California, Jan. 15, 1911.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 20 L, Boston.

Distinction.

Senator Lotsmun—Who is this McCrumkerson that want a consulship, and what claim has he on me as a political pal?

Private Secretary—He says he's the only man who hasn't been mentioned as a candidate for governor of Illinois.

DANGER SIGNALS.

Sick kidneys give unmistakable signals of distress. Too frequent or scanty urinary passages, backache, headache and dizzy spells tell of injured kidneys. Neglect of these warnings may prove fatal. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure sick kidneys.

"Hello Hot coffee alone"

Mrs. M. A. Gamblin, Russellville, Ark., says: "I was in such bad shape from kidney disease that I gave up hope of recovery. There were decided dropsical symptoms, my heart palpitated violently and the pains in my back almost drove me frantic. After doctoring without benefit, I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and when I had used two boxes, I was as well as ever."

When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S. 50c, all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Some men have a well-seated prejudice against a bath as their place to a women in a crowded car.

Could Hardly Hear

Senses of Taste and Smell Were Also Greatly Impaired.

"I was afflicted with catarrh," writes Eugene Jordan, of Atchison, Kansas. "I took several different medicines, giving each a fair trial, but got no relief, and I could hardly hear, taste or smell. I was about to give up in despair, when I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking three bottles of this medicine I was cured, and have not had any return of the disease."

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects radical and permanent cures of catarrh.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

KODAKS

The three following are the most popular size and prices:
No. 2 Brownie Kodak Size 2½x4½ inches, $10.00 to $15.00
No. 2 Folding Pocket Kodak Size 2½x4½ inches, $15.00 to $20.00
No. 3 Folding Pocket Kodak Size 3¼x5½ inches, $20.00 to $25.00

"Brownie" Cameras $1 to $12. Excellent work-ers in our Finishing Department insures best of results from your films. Catalog furnished.

Peck Company MANHATTAN

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS

for 22-23 Years Have Been Yielding Phenomenal Crops in the Great Mixed Farming District in Canada's West. Over 100,000 Americans Have Settled There. Free Government Homestead Lands in 1911 Mostly of Good Quality Are Within Reach of Settlers. Reduced Railway Rates. Write for Pamphlet, Atlas and Information as to Best Routes, Rates, Etc., to Supt. Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to C. J. Broughton, Room 2, Bee Building, Omaha, Neb.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 ,905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Will uncle Joe Cann on please tell us who the man was that said California was strong for Taft.

All the democratic and socialist leader are well pleased with the results of last weeks election while our man Taft has nothing to say.

The Crookston Times advised the electors to vote late and early at last weeks election, so the socialist started early and voted steady all day until late at night, and they came out ahead.

One Wm. H.Taft put his seal of approval on the republican candidates at Cincinnati O., and the people forthwith elected the entire democratic ticket. Maybe this means something.—Northern Light.

Both Crookston and Thief River Falls discovered that they had a few Solalists in town, at last weeks election. We would have liked to have been in either city the next day after election. and heard some of the old "war horans" tell how it happened.

Champ Clark, the great democratic leader, predicts that his party is sure to win the next presidential election. If Taft is the next tromlnee of the republi can party we believe he is right, as the people have had enough of Taft, and will surly retire him to the brick layers union,as soon as they get the chance.

As usal the U.S. is getting a little mixed up in the China war, and they are likely to get mixed into the Italian Turk row at no distant day, as the American people are liable to say that the butchering of helpless women and children must cease. When the American people speak,your Uncle Sam will fight, as was proven by the Spanish war, and it only took them about four mon; ths to stop Spain from butchering Cubians.

Somemore Log Jam.

Farmers living along the Red Lake River are likely to be short of water for their stock before spring, as what little water now leaks through that log jam will soon freeze dry. But there could not be anything done about it by the present administration war department, because the water was shut off by a rich corporation, who have proven to the entire satisfaction of the people living along this river that they have their thumb on the war department of the present administration, and can do as they please, and the people can bo damned. A complaint made by the people about the conditions, that now exist might stel as well be sent to the chief lunatic of the Insane asilum at Fergus Falls, as to the war department of this administration at St.Paul, There is no use to report the conditions to them for they know all about it, but won't do anything about it for the reasons given above, and yet you will see men standing on the corners and wondering why socialism is on the gain in this country. The reason is plain The dubbiton people are beginning to see their eyes open to the fact, that there are two kinds of laws in this country. One for the rich, and one for the poor. If some poor devil had had the power to close up Red Lake River you would have seen how promptly that war department at St.Paul would have been up here with a string of red tape that would reach to Washington. But big, rich lumber company can jam twenty five million feet of logs into the outlet of Red lake, shut off all the water, kill all the fish, deprive a hundred and fifty miles of farmers of water for their stock, stink them out of the country with dead fish in the spring and our St Paul branch of engineers of the war department says. "I recommend that NO ACTIONBE TAKEN IN THE MATTER." Signed; Francis R Shunk,

Lieut. Col. Corps of Engineers.

And then some yaup will stand on the corner and wonder why Socialism is increasing so fast.

(To he Continued)

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27.1911.

Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Offic at Crookston, Minn. October 23rd., 1911.

Notice is hereby given that John J. Hanson,of Ilida Minnesota, who on July 7th. 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 1901, Serial No. 04825 for Lot 8 Section 6 and Lots 3, 8 & 7 Section 7 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal

Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S.Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn.,on the 8th.day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Frank Kenyon, John Olson Serdal. Olaf B. Manson, of Illida Minn.Steen Sature, of Thief River Falls Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.

Department of The Interior,U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 30th, 1911

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole O. Nesland, of Roland Minn. who on February 21, 1903 made Homestead Entry No. 9031, Serial No. 04695, for S. E. ¼ Section 20 Township 152 N.Range 49 W.5th. Principal Meridian,has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 12th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Oscar Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Rhoda Minn. Ammund K. Dreland, Aslak Nesland. of Roland Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 30th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Amund K. Breland of Roland Minn. who on June 17, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1186, Serial No. 04479, for S. W. ¼ Section 20 Township 155 N. Range 49 W. 5th, Principal Meridian,has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof,to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 12th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Nesland, Oscar Nesland,Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Rhoda Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN. Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., October 26th,1911.

Notice is hereby given that Anton Barkowski, of Roland Minn.,whoon October, 6th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No, 968, Serial No. 03365, for N.E. ¼ Section 18 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. Fifth

Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U.S.Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 8th. day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John Lofthus,of Roland Minn. Tom Lofthus, of Rhoda Minn. Laurtis Wojnerowski, John Peterson, of Roland Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN, Register.

Artistic.

"Are you an artist?"

"I can draw a little."

"What can you draw?"

"The attention of idiots."

Keeping Cut Flowers.

Cut flowers will last only three or four days under ordinary care, but you can make them last a week or more by doing four things. First, do not try to arrange them the moment you get them, but put them in a pail of water for a few hours so that every stem will be under water clear up to the flower; second, cleanse the vase thoroughly before putting in the flowers and change the water every day; third, the cooler you keep the flowers the longer they will last. If you are too busy in the morning to enjoy them or have to go out for the afternoon do not leave them in the living room, for they are not used to a temperature of 70 degrees. Every night put the vase in a cool place, or, better still, plunge the stems up to the flowers in a pail of water, and, fourth, cut about a quarter of an inch off each stem every morning. It is more trouble to do this under water, but it pays. If you cut the stems in the ordinary way air bubbles get into the stems and impede the taking in of water.—Country Life in America.

Notice For Publication.

First pub in the sunbeam Nov. 10th.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 6th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that John Erickson, of Highlandier Minn. who on March 2, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1057, Serial No. 04411, for S. E. ¼ Section 10 Township 153 N.Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop,Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls, Minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 10th. day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Martin Burdeen, of Erie Minn. Joseph Schleicher, Henry Eliason, of Highlanding Minn. Charles W. Vernechek of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct.27th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 19th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin M. Anderson of Torgerson Minn.who on March 8,1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1057, Serial No. 04416, for S. W. ¼ Section 33

Township 151 N. Range 39 W. Fifth

Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of Thief River Falls.

at Thief River Falls Minn.on the 28th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigerd, Michael Anderson. John Sionvik,Soren Hermanson, all. of Torgerson Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN, Register.

Wagner's Nerve.

Wagner, the eminent composer, had the nerves of an acrobat. Once he was climbing a precipitous mountain in company with a young friend. When some distance up and walking along a narrow ledge the companion, who was following, called out that he was growing giddy. Wagner turned around on the ledge and, taught his friend and passed him between the rock and himself to the front.

Brain Work.

"Does your husband help you much around the house?" asked the neighbor.

"Well," replied the tired looking woman, "Joshua's work is mostly brain work. He keeps right busy thinkin' up ways for me to economize."—Washington Star.

Forgetful.

"Is Bronson as forgetful as ever?"

"More so. Why, that fellow has to look himself up in the directory every night before he goes home from business—forgets his address."

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Raised Me From the Grave"—Mrs. Taylor

This is a strong statement to make, but it is exactly what Mrs. Thomas Taylor, of Blum, Texas, said in expressing her opinion of this remedy.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine raised me from the grave and I have much confidence in it. I can never say enough for your grand medicines. If anyone had offered me $100.00 for the second bottle of Nervine that I used I would have said 'no indeed.'"

MRS. THOMAS TAYLOR, Blum, Tex.

Nervous exhaustion is a common occurence of modern life. The wear and tear on the nervous system is greater now than at any time since the world began. For sleeplessness, poor appetite and that "run down" feeling, nothing is so good as

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Your nerves are your life and lack of vital energy makes existence a misery. Dr. Miles' Nervine will tone up your nervous system.

Ask any druggist. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Swuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct 20th 1911

Department of the Interior,U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 20th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that, Emil Sigerd, of Torgerson Minnesota, who on Dec. 10th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 1079, Serial No. 04837, for N. W. ¼

Section 25, Township 151 N.,Range 39 W., 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Mikkel Anderson, Martin Anderson, Soren Hermanson, of Torgerson Minn. John J. Swearth of Erie Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOPPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. November 4th,1911.

Notice is hereby given, that Martin Burdeen, of Erie Minn., who on December 21st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1013 Serial No. 04888, for N. E. ¼ of Section 11 Township 153 N.. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop,Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn.on the 19th. day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Joseph Schleicher, Henry Eliason, John Krutsek, Charles W. Vernchek, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P.TOPPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 20, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Oct.18th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Soren H. Hermanson of Torgerson Minn. who on Feb.15th,1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1058, Serial No. 04404, for N. E.¼ Section 35 Township 151 N. Range 39

W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th. day of November 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Emil Sigrud, Axel Anderson, Martin Anderson. of Torgerson Minn. John M.Johnson of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register

State of Ohio, city of Toledo, } ss

Lucas County,

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December A. D. 1886.

(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Cutting the Bill.

"I have got to perform a very distasteful operation this morning," remarked the eminent surgeon.

"What is that?"

"One of my rich patients wants me to take a little something off his bill."—Washington Herald.

Works Both Ways.

The man who knows how to work his way through college for an education won't have any trouble afterward working his way through the world with an education.—Judge's Library.

Foolish Question.

Mrs. Catchaw—Did you see any of the old families while you were abroad?

Mrs. Newrich—Mercy, no! They are all dead.—Exchange.

Animals Under Water.

The ability of a beaver to remain under water for a long time is not really so tough a problem as it looks. When the lake or pond is frozen over the beaver will come to the under surface of the ice and expel his breath so that it will form a wide, flat bubble. The air, coming in contact with the ice and water, is purified, and the beaver breathes it again. This operation he can repeat several times. The otter and muskrat do the same thing.

A Little Knowledge.

Mrs. Wheatpit—Do tell! I didn't know Tilnah was an artist. Miss Wheatpit—Ah, mamma! Of course he was an artist. Mrs. Wheatpit—Well, now! I thought he was just up one of those corporations for the hair. Exchange.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT SINGER BRO. KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

She Was Biased.

Dubleigh—Was that you I heard fumbling at your door this morning at 1 o'clock? Clubleigh—At 1? I guess so. My wife declares I got in about 3 o'clock.

The Paternal Idea.

Miss Beedey—I lost my heart last night, pa. I accepted Mr. Poorman, Mr. Beedey—Hush! You didn't lose your heart. You must have lost your head.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to inventors." "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE, PATENT ATTORNEYS WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Will Vaagh is out east on a deer hunting trip this week.

Wm. Barno has a well drilled 210 feet deep, and has not struck water, something unusal in this locality.

The Highlanding creamery will remain open as usal during the winter and will take in cream twice a week.

Peter Hunstad, living 4 mile west of Kuehnel will sell his stock and farm machinery at public auction to-morrow. We have not learned what his future intentions are.

Last Saturday and Sunday we were taken by surprise by a regular January snow storm, something unusal at this time of the year, and it has been very cold all the week.

Oklee the new town on Duluth line of the Soo is doing a thriving business this fall, and is going to be a fine village. We expect to make them a call soon and get better acquainted.

Mrs. A. Weaver and daughters who has been visiting her brother C. L. Clark, left for their home in Wisconsin Tuesday. Mr. Clark accompanyed them as far as Thief River Falls.

Mrs. E. Peterson, of Deer Park gave her subscription to THE SUNBEAM a three years boost this week. We also extend our thanks to a number of others for payment of subscription. Go thou and do likewise.

Mrs. Charles Kretzer arrived from the state of Washington on last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Kretzer will remain at Sunbeam this winter, and in the spring will move onto their Deer Park homestead, where they will make their future home.

The Thief River Falls flouring mills are about closed down for want of water. Good for them, and we hope to see the town half stunk out with dead fish in the spring. Let them learn better than to insult and indorse a lumber company to block up Red Lake River.

If you should fail to receive a copy of THE SUNBEAM next week, remember that is because we have grown tired of sending you statements and paying extra postage on your long past due subscription and have striken your name from the list.

Thief River Falls are to have two new up to date hotels, which is badly needed by that city, as the rest of the town is about ten years ahead of the hotels. During the fair this fall there was a large number of people that had to set up all night who could not get hotel accommodations.

Herbert Swift, received a box of wedding cake from his brother and bride, who were married last week at Snokcenter. He received an urgent invertation to attend the wedding, but he rang the school bell on the Highlanding school house, at the usual time on that date, as he is the teacher and did not like closing school to make a pleasure trip.

Wanted: An improved farm to rent for next yer. Inquire of, or address George Leimers,

Roland Minn.

Knew His Business.

Willie—Say, pa, you ought to see the men across the street raise a building on jacks. Pa (absently)—Impossible. Willie, you can open an jacks, but a man is a fool to try to raise an theer—I mean it must have been quite a sight.—Puck.

Not Always.

"They say that a girl who nets three times as a bridesmaid will never be a bride."

"It isn't so unless the best man always happens to be a person who doesn't interest her."—Chicago Herald.

Are We Awake.

The poor homesteaders gow will stand on the bed of the Red Lake River this winter and bawl for water, while one must have to supply milk for his family, and the millions of fish, that helps to provide the settlers food, are frozen to death on the muddy bottom of whare once flowed this Government meandered stream, Red Lake River, that has been closed up with logs by a rich corporation, lumber company, whose officials ride through the cities in their automobils dressed in their seal skin coats, and the officials of this government, whose duty it is to compell them to open that log jem sit in their St. Paul office and say: I recommond that no action be taken in the matter," Pinch yourselves you common people and see if you are awake, and living under a government of the people who have official as that santion this darkest orime, that was ever commited in northern Minnesota.

Roland News.

The Roland Correspondent has been busy during the threshing season.

Mr. Carl Rindal returned to his home near Fertile last Thursday, after raising the Clearwater creamery for nine months.

Mrs. Short and the Misses Ora and Short were over to Pennington county to call on Miss Lillo and Miss Rolandson, who were chiefl cooks for a Pennington county bachelor during his threshing.

Mr. Otto Dahl's are moving this week, just across the street, on Feres addition, 20763 Roland Avenue, east.

Mr Lewis Londe was seen on his way to Oklee wit a big load of wheat.

Knut Wetherson is teaching a term of Norwegin school in the east district.

Oscar Lindberg was a visitor at Roland on Sunday.

Mr. Otto Dahl was down to Oklee after a load of store goods Thursday.

Say young fellow! You had better get your cutter ready and take your best girl out for a sleigh ride.

Mr. Sunderud and Melhouse, from Hillriver are hawling lumber for their homestead houses in the town of Hickory.

Knut Lintvet made a business trip to Oklee Monday.

The snow storm will stop threshing. To bad, but it can't be helped.

Andrew Letvig was an overnight visitor at Roland Saturday

Mr Arthur Lambert came out from Oklee with a load of lumber for a young man from Montana, who has filed on a peice of land east of the big ditch.

James A. Walker and Pattie Short returned home from Oak. on Thursday, where they have threshing all the fall.

Andrew Letvig has just completed a well for Sarah Leavold, at a depth of 175 feet. Who will be next? Better try your luck, you will never be sorry.

Reassuring.

Irate Gentleman (to his gardener)—What do you mean, sir, by telling people in the village that I'm a stingy master? Gardener — No fear o' me a-doin' the likes o' that, gurnor. Miss keeps my thoughts to myself.—Punch.

* * *

And Hard to Do at That.

"Jones is a jolly fellow."

"Has to be."

"Why?"

"Makes his living peddling people."

* * *

GREAT NATURAL BRIDGE.

Justice Marshall Calling It God's Greatest Miracle in Stone.

The great Natural bridge, which is one of the natural wonders of the United States, overlooks the James river valley, jutting up the western slope of the Blue mountains. It is just about the center of the state. It approaches Niagara in grandeur and exceeds it in height and awful mystery. It is a single block of limestone, with many shades of color. The walls are smooth, as if cut with chisels, and there is no sign of displacement.

The visitor follows a rumbling cascade down a deep fissure in the mountain under some of the largest cedar trees in the world and, turning down a line of steps cut into the precipice, suddenly finds himself by a swift stream in a dark canyon and the great bridge far above him.

Washington when a surveyor for Lord Fairfax visited the Natural bridge and carved his name, where it may still be seen. The original title deed was granted by King George III. to Thomas Jefferson in 1774. After he was president Jefferson visited the place, surveyed it and made the map with his own hands. Jefferson spoke of the place as "a famous place that will draw the attention of the world." Chief Justice Marshall wrote of the bridge as "God's greatest miracle in stone." Henry Clay wrote of "the bridge not made with hands that spans a river, carries a highway and makes two mountains one."

FOOT OF THE BEE.

Strong Claws and Flexible Pads For Rough and Smooth Surfaces.

The seeming miracle of insects walking nonchalantly on a ceiling is explained by Tickner Edwardes, chairman of the British Beekeepers' association, in his book on "The Lore of the Honeybee." Insects own such power, it appears, to an ingenious device which is well illustrated in the foot of the bee.

She has a pair of short, strong double claws, which will take her securely over all but the smoothest and shiniest surfaces, and it is with these claws that bees form themselves into dense, clustery and knots and cables within the hive, holding hand to hand, as it were, in all directions. But when there is nothing for the claw to hold by another part of the foot comes into play. This is a soft, flexible pad, which is always covered by a thick, oily exudation. In walking the bee puts her feet down three at a time, the pads adhering instantly they come into contact with the smooth surface. At the next step the other three pads come into play, while the first three are stripped off. But each foot is capable of attaching and detaching itself independently of its fellows.

In this case, we learn, "the stripping is accomplished by downward pressure of the claws of the same foot."

Saxons.

Saxon is from "seax," a sword, and so the "Men of the Sword." In the early days the Saxons took for themselves such names as "Bloody Axe," "Skull Cleaver," "Death's Head," names which in no way belied their original character. The "berserker rage" of the old Vikings spread death and destruction all around the coasts which they haunted, and by the terror of their name they led the Christians to put into their litnay the prayer, "Deliver us, O Lord, from the fury of the Northmen." Very terrible were these old Saxons, and to this day the most dreadful of all the people on the face of the earth, when they are tuned wrongly roused, are the descendants of the same Men of the Sword.—New York American.

End of Altruism.

Because he was too soft hearted to ask his poverty stricken landlady to buy new rugs for his room the altruistic young man bought several small rugs and spread them over the floor. Immediately after the next sweeping day she presented a bill for the worker's expenditures: Items—Room rent, breakfasts, laundry and beating rugs, 25 cents.

"Hello!" said the altruistic young man. "What does this mean?"

"Just what it says," she returned. "If folks must cover their floor with extra rugs they'll have to pay for beating 'em, that's all. I can't afford to do it for nothing."

And from that moment altruism lost a disciple.—New York Times.

Persian Ware.

True porcelain was never produced in Persia, but hard paste porcelain in Persian forms and styles of decoration was made in China for the Persian market. Wine ewers with powder blue glaze and gold overglaze decoration, small vase, and bowls with bronze luster glaze and designs reserved in white are found in collections of Persian ware, but these are considerably of Chinese origin.—Argonaut.

Hamalike.

Mamma—Why are you hiding from your little brother, Lizzie? Lizzie—Oh, we are just playing. I'm the lady of the house, and Tommy is the butcher come with his bill.—Chicago News.

Woman's Intuition.

Mrs. Crabshaw—I can't understand why I didn't see those faults in you before we were married. Mr. Crabshaw—It's quite plain, my dear. I don't possess them.—Judge.

Property has its duties as well as its rights.—Thomas Jefferson.

NOISE OF THUNDER.

Theory as to the Cause of the Crackle, Roar and Rumble.

It has usually been thought that the noise of thunder is caused by the closing up of the vacuum created by the passage of the lightning, the air rushing in from all sides with a clap. But the intensity of the noise is rather disproportionate, and it is now supposed thunder is due to the intense heating of gases, especially the gas of water vapor along the line of electric discharge and the consequent corrugation of suspended moisture into steam of enormous pressure.

In this way the crackle with which a peal of thunder sometimes begins might be regarded as the sound of steam explosion on a small scale caused by discharges before the main flash. The rumble would be the ever lengthier steam explosions, and the final clap, which sounds loudest, would be the steam explosion nearest to the auditor.

In the case of rumbling thunder the lightning is passing from cloud to cloud. When the flash passes from the earth to the clouds the clap is loudest in the beginning. Travelers have gave substance to these suppositions by causing electric flashes to pass from point to point through terminals clothed in soaked cotton wool, and he succeed: in magnifying the crack of the electric spark to a terrifying extent.—Exchange.

THE PHALANX,

Its Formation in the Military Methods of Ancient Greece.

A phalanx in the military affairs of Greece was a square battalion or body of soldiers formed in ranks and files close and deep, with their shields joined and pikes crossing each other so as to render it almost impossible to break it. At first the phalanx consisted of 4,000 men, but this number was afterward doubled by Philip of Macedon, and the double phalanx is hence often called the Macedonian phalanx. Polybius describes it thus:

"It was a square of pikemen, consisting of 16 in flank and 500 in front. The soldiers stood so close together that the pikes of the fifth rank extended three feet beyond the front. The rest, whose pikes were not serviceable owing to their distance from the front, couched them upon the shoulders of those who stood before them and, so locking them together in file, pressed forward to support and push on the former rank, by which means the assault was rendered more violent and irresistible." The spears of those behind also stopped the missiles of the enemy. Each man's pike was twenty-three feet long. The word phalanx is also used for any combination of troops distinguished for solidity and fierceness. A grand phalanx consisted of 16,384 men.

Charlotte Corday.

Charlotte Corday, the slayer of Marat, was, according to the best authorities, of noble lineage. Unlike the Maid of Orleans, the most illustrious blood flowed in her veins. She was well educated, and not a whisper was ever heard against her moral character. It does not appear that she ever manifested the slightest signs of lunacy or fanaticism. Her action in killing Marat was attended by nothing like madness or hallucination. Taught to believe that the Paris butcher was the one man who hindered the right-ous settlement of the strife that was destroying her country, she quietly went down to the great city and in a very unostentatious manner dispatched the man she believed to be her people's greatest enemy.—New York American.

Some Famous Dunces.

Literary history is crowded with instances of torpid and uninteresting school. Gibbon was pronounced "dreadfully dull," and the utmost that was predicted of Hume in his youth was that "he might possibly become a steady merchant." Adam Clarke, afterward so deeply skilled in oriental languages and antiquities, was pronounced by his father to be "a grievous dunce," and of Bolleau, who became a model for Pope, it was said that he was a youth of little understanding. Dryden was "a great numskull," who went through a course of education at Westminster, but the "stimulating properties of Dr. Busby's classical ferule were thrown away upon the drone who was to be known as 'Glorious John.'"—London Standard.

Stand a Fact.

A clergyman highly esteemed for his many excellent qualities, of which oratory is not one, has recently had placed in his church by his loving congregation a new pulpit. It is a fine piece of work, ornate with carving and artistic embellishment. But the test remained to be applied, to ascertain the effect of the good rector's sermons, might have been more happily chosen. "He giveth his beloved sleep," it runs.

The Way of Them.

"Oh, yes; he's a very intellectual man."

"What makes you think that?"

"I judged so from his talk."

"Why, what does he talk about?"

"Oh, forever talking about how intellectual he is."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Measure of Life.

There is no use in reckoning that life is short. It is not to be measured by the quantity of its years, but by the quality of its achievements.—Philadelphia Ledger.

He that plants thorns will not gather grapes.—Proverb.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn,

NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. Samuel Gilcau Vic. Pre.
Larry O'Niel, Abraham Fiquette, T. L. Cruzon.
J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Cruzon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS,

Sweatere for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footware Buy The BALL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W. G. Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

Doctor's Orders.

Through French Eyes.

How the American millionaire marries his titled model.—Pele Mele.

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the Improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both our hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co.
99 Jackson Boul. CHICAGO, ILL.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

WHEN WE HAD A WAR WITH TRIPOLI

HOW STEPHEN DECATUR MADE HIS NAME IMMORTAL

Stephen Decatur

WHERE is Tripoli, anyway? What is it good for? Why does Italy want it? Nobody in America ever heard of Tripoli—except in a soon-to-be-forgotten geography lesson, or in the history of—where did Tripoli figure in that stupid old history we studied in the grammar school?

At about this point in the average man's series of mental gymnastics, the light begins to dawn. That scrimmage with Tripoli, he remembers, was recorded in the United States history, along between the chapters that treated of the revolution and those devoted to the war of 1812. One by one the names, Decatur, Preble, Somers, Bainbridge, Hunt, Truxtun, Sterrett, come flocking back into his memory, and a cold thrill of patriotic emotion creeps slowly up his spine. It was something great, something spectacular and heroic, the fine achievement of an infant navy. Slowly out of the mist of forgotten things comes the glorious tragedy of the fireship, "Intrepid"; the thunderous retort of Ambassador Pinckney, "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute," and finally the storm-center of the entire war, the American frigate, "Philadelphia."

In the centuries preceding the Christian era it was tossed from Carthage to Rome and back again, with many a lesser nation taking a whack at the oasis-dotted desert, between times. After the Arabs took possession in the seventh century it became the bone of contention among the nations of the eastern end of the Mediterranean, until its final capture by Turks, in the middle of the sixteenth century. However, this present menace is not the first to challenge the authority of Turkey in that turbulent little Barbary state. In 1714 the Turkish yoke was thrown off utterly, and it was not restored until 1836, several years after the extermination of the Barbary pirates, by the combined effort of all the Caucasian nations of the world.

"Barbary pirates," "corsairs of the Mediterranean," "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." At last we have it. That was what it was all about. The bumptious little American nation objected to paying ransoms for her citizens and sailors, who had been captured and enslaved—a thing that Europe had been doing without protest for centuries. Indeed, it was tacitly understood that the pirates of Tunis, Tripoli, Morocco and Algiers were countenanced by the great powers of Europe for the sake of the injury they could do to the weaker powers. England encouraged the piratical attacks on the shipping of other nations, as a part of her system of securing and maintaining her vaunted "supremacy of the sea." The consuls she sent to the Barbary states went with instructions to make only a surface show of opposition to the merciless treatment to which the slaves were subjected. And there was a wonderful roster of those slaves, such men as Arago, the great astronomer; St. Vincent de Paul and even Cervantes, having fallen into the clutches of the pirates. The author of "Don Quixote" probably acquired something of the adventure that was to figure in his later literary works during the five years of his slavery in northern Africa. Coming closer to our own times and interests, the new nation of the western hemisphere had not forgotten the indignities that had been heaped upon Dr. Daniel Mason, a Harvard graduate, who died in captivity, when the systematic capture of American brigs and schooners was undertaken by all the Barbary states, following the close of the revolution. With the connivance of England, eleven American vessels were captured within two months, the men being stripped of their clothing, attired in the filthiest of rags and set to work at hard labor. Those that attempted to escape were subjected to the most frightful torture. It was this condition of affairs, no less than the published pamphlet of Lord Sheffield, which announced, in part, "It will not be to the interest of any of the great maritime powers to protect them (the American vessels) from the Barbary states. The Americans cannot protect themselves from the latter; they cannot pretend to a navy," that spurred the ambitious young republic on until she not only pretended to a navy, but had given those same pirates such a drubbing as they had never received at the hands of any European power.

Meanwhile it seemed wisest to dig deep down in the American stocking and produce tremendous sums of money with which to appease the marauders. Under the direction of our greatest statesmen, with the notable exception of Thomas Jefferson, we had concluded treaties of "immunity from piratical capture" with all the Barbary states, the one with Tripoli being most cheaply purchased. It was when that state awoke to a realization that she had received only $66,000, while Tunis had extorted $107,000 as payment for "perpetual peace," that Tripoli forgot all about her treaty and began in earnest the capture and enslavement of Americans. There is a touch of grim humor in the demand of the "bey" of Algiers for 10,000 stands of arms, because a fire in the armory had destroyed 40,000 stands, and he considered it the duty of America to redeem one-fourth of the loss. Ambassador Eaton refused to convey the insulting and altogether preposterous demand to his home government, not only because America had nothing to do with the fire, but because she thought she had purchased immunity from such demands. The insolence of Tripoli was even more irritating to the new-born national pride of the republic, and when, in February, 1801, the pasha repudiated the treaty altogether, demanding a lump sum of a quarter of a million, with $20,000 annually, which was the sum he had extorted from Sweden, there seemed nothing left for the Americans but to fight it out. Our commerce in the Mediterranean was growing at such a pace that we could no longer take the attitude of cringing vassals to a set of unprincipled cutthroats, whose honor was bounded only by their convenience.

When the new tribute was refused the bey of Tripoli cut down the American flag staff and made formal declaration of war, having been duly informed that war was inevitable. Already a little squadron had been assembled in Hampton Roads, consisting of the President, the Essex, the Enterprise and the Philadelphia, the latter a frigate carrying thirty-six guns. These were followed by other war vessels, as fast as the youthful war department could provide them. More than two years went by, with only an occasional engagement, and absolutely no glory, when Commodore Preble was sent to take command. On the last day of October, 1803, a misfortune overtook the American forces that proved a temporarily disguised blessing. The Philadelphia, which had been doing police duty in the harbor, was caught in a heavy gale and blown upon a submerged mass of rock that had not been charted. Captain Bainbridge and all his force fell into the hands of the enemy, and two days later the frigate was floated off the reef and added to the Tripolitan navy—the largest and best fighting ship the pirates had ever possessed.

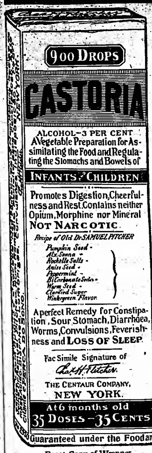
Bainbridge and his first lieutenant, David Porter, outlined and conveyed secretly to Commodore Preble a plan for snatching this prize from the enemy, and the commission was handed over to Stephen Decatur, then a young lieutenant of twenty-five, who volunteered to command the hazardous expedition. In the meantime, the Tripolitans had repaired the frigate, remounted her guns and anchored her in the harbor about a quarter of a mile from the bashaw's castle. While the daring plan was being developed a bit of luck dropped into the hand of the Americans. A Tripolitan "ketch," the mastico, bearing a load of handsome girls as a gift from the bashaw to sultan of Turkey, ran into the fleet as it lay anchored off the coast of Sicily. What became of the lovely maidens history refuses to relate. As for the "ketch," it was renamed the Intrepid and was assigned the duty of carrying the Americans who were to undertake the destruction of the Philadelphia.

The Siren, under Lieutenant Stewart, was ordered to escort the Intrepid as far as was deemed safe, and this doughty little vessel was repainted and rigged to look as much like a Maltese merchantman as possible. As for the Intrepid itself, it was a typical Tripolitan freighter, with ample cabin space, and the Turks in the harbor had not yet learned of the mastico's capture and the fate of her fair cargo. The place the ladies had occupied was filled with explosives and shells, for there was a double purpose in the minds of Preble and Decatur. There was no such thing then as a torpedo; but the fireship, or "infernal," as it was commonly called, was sometimes employed. It was Decatur's idea that if his expedition should prove a failure he could at least blow up his own ship and thereby wreck the Philadelphia. It would mean the almost certain death of every man on board; but that cost had been counted as a normal part of the desperately glorious game.

It was ten o'clock on the evening of the 16th of February, 1804, when the Intrepid, having left the Siren about three miles behind, lifted her drags and sailed boldly into the narrow channel between the rocks and shoals that protect the treacherous harbor of Tripoli. A half-grown moon hung in the clear sky and a stiff breeze against the beam set the sails in a beautiful swell of canvas. As the daring vessel advanced the breeze gradually died down until the motion was scarcely perceptible. Slowly the ketch stole along until there arose out of the mist before her the shadowy outline of a great ship.

On the open deck of the Intrepid not more than a dozen men were to be seen, the others lying in the shadows of the bulwarks or concealed by the masts and rigging. Decatur stood close to a Sicilian named Catalano, as he steered for the frigate's bow, where the ketch would be out of reach of those American guns that the Turk would have employed, only too gladly, for the destruction of American patriots. When only about 100 yards intervened between the two vessels the lookout on the Philadelphia became aware of the near approach of a ship and a challenge was issued. Catalano called back that he had come on a trading voyage from Malta, that he had encountered terrific storms and had lost his anchor. He begged the privilege of riding by the ship until morning, since he could not make his vessel fast and dared not proceed into the midst of the forest of ships in the inner harbor. A crowd had gathered on the deck of the Philadelphia and many a rude joke was hurled across the water, as the pilot was compelled to enumerate the items of his imaginary cargo. While this conversation was going on the wind changed suddenly, hurling the Intrepid in the direction of the frigate's stern. There, in full range of the guns that might have shattered her in less time than is required for the telling, she lay in a suddenly tranquil sea, absolutely becalmed.

In another moment the sailors on board the Philadelphia manned a boat and came to the rescue with a line that was passed to the ketch as a boat from the ketch rowed up to the frigate and attached another line to her fore-chain. Cautiously the men on the Intrepid drew in the line until the daring boat lay alongside her victim. In that tense moment the Turks nearest the rail caught sight of a sturdy pair of anchors, and a sharp cry, "Americanos!" was raised. Even at that the crew, lying in the shadows on the nearby deck, did not move.



A moment later, those same bewildered Turks beheld the lithe body of a man, leaping cat-like for the Philadelphia's chain-plates. The man was Decatur, and as he clambered up the side of the frigate, he gave orders that transformed the tranquil deck of the merchantman into what appeared like an ant hill, suddenly aroused. Long before the men on the Philadelphia began to understand the meaning of those forms that appeared to grow, mushroom-like, out of the shadowy deck, they were confronted by heads and bodies that emerged from the ports and swarmed over the rail. It was like the mystic spell of some weird magician, materializing human beings out of empty space, and in another moment the terrified Turks rushed, panic-stricken, to the starboard side of the ship. As the Americans dashed after them, they flung themselves overboard and began to swim for shore. From the quarterdeck, Decatur sent up a rocket to announce to Captain Stewart, on board the Siren, that the ship had been captured, and before the Siren's rocket could reply the flames were seen leaping up from every part of the ill-starred Philadelphia. As swiftly as they had boarded her, the Americans departed, dropping back to the deck of the ketch and cutting loose. The engagement had lasted but twenty-three minutes.

A shout from Decatur dispatched a dozen men, with swords, to cut the entangling ropes, and a mighty shove sent the ketch out of reach of the roaring flames. In another instant the sweeps had been manned, and a succession of long oar-strokes carried the craft well out into the channel of the treacherous harbor. Now the men could hold in no longer, and a mighty shout of triumph arose, a shout that was drowned in the roar of the batteries, for the sleepy gunners had been startled into activity by the sight of the burning Philadelphia. Two corsairs and a galley gave chase and the surface of the water was torn by a rapid succession of explosions, as the fire in the burning frigate reached her batteries. By a strange freak of the wind, the flaming hull was shifted around and poured a terrific broadside directly into the town—the American warship's almost human retaliation upon her hated captors. From their prison windows, Captain Bainbridge and the 300 men who had been captured on that once proud ship, watched with mingled joy and grief the work of the destruction. At least the Philadelphia would not serve as the enemy's slave.

In a veritable rain of shot and shell, that sent brilliant jets of illumined water all about her, the Intrepid dashed out of the harbor, joined the Siren and set sail for Syracuse. She had not lost a single man, and only one member of her crew had need for the surgeon's aid. The Tripolitans lost twenty men in addition to those unnumbered victims who had retreated to the depths of the burning ship. When the story of the adventure was told abroad, the pirate nations along the northern coast of Africa sat up in wild-eyed amazement. This was not the sort of thing they had been accustomed to. The war had dragged along for almost three years and nothing much had happened. They began to ask who this Stephen Decatur was, and a little while later they had a reply when one of their commanding officers, under pretense of surrender, boarded the ship commanded by Decatur's brother and murdered him. No sooner had the news of this dastardly act come to the newly appointed captain that he made off for his dead brother's ship, engaged the murderous Turk in a hand-to-hand fight, bore him, struggling and pleading for mercy, to the deck and ran him through with his short sword, the only weapon he happened to have at hand when the death of his brother was reported to him.

Without waiting to wash the blood from his hands, he gave orders for the occupation of the Turk's ship, and that night he joined the American fleet with two captured vessels.

It is commonly asserted that piracy was extinguished by the drubbing he gave Tripoli in 1805; but this is by no means true. We were immune from molestation, because the Barbary states had learned to fear and respect us.

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

For DISTEMPER Pink Eye, Epizootic Shipping Fever & Catarrhal Fever

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE

Sure cure and positive preventive, no matter how horses at any stage are infected or "exposed." Liquid, given on the tongue; acts on the Blood and Glands; expels the poisonous germs from the body. Cures Distemper in Dogs and Sheep and Cholera in Poultry. Largest selling livestock remedy. Cures La Grippe among human beings and is a fine Kidney remedy. 50c and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 a dozen. Cut this out. Keep it. Show to your druggist, who will get it for you. Free Booklet, "Distemper, Causes and Cures." Special Agents wanted.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

The strong, steady light.

Rayo lamps and lanterns give most light for the oil they burn. Do not flicker. Will not blow or jar out.

Simple, reliable and durable—and sold at a price that will surprise you.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps and lanterns, or write to any agency of

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

Youth and Age.

"The difference between youth and age was never so well put," said Rev. C. W. Penlaw, in an address at an Ocean Grove beach meeting, "as by a playwright who wrote:

"'Youth, which is forgiven everything, forgives itself nothing. Age, which forgives itself everything, is forgiven nothing.'"

Special Talent.

"Can your boy read 'The Iliad' in the original?"

"Not very well. But he can make ten yards around the left end almost every time."

Pain and Swelling seldom indicate internal organic trouble. They are usually the result of local cold or inflammation which can be quickly removed by Hamlins Wizard Oil.

"A wife," says the sage brush sage, "has to have a lot more patience to let the cat in and out than she has for her husband, because if she didn't the cat would leave."

In the hands of a woman the powder rag is mightier than the sword.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

Even the prude has occasional thoughts that she likes to think.

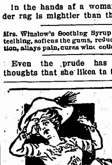
The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time
—not a year from now, when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 50 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

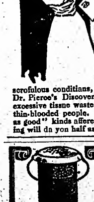


For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N. D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S. D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
Geo. A. Hall, 125 2d St., Milwaukee, Wis.

DEFIANCE Cold Water Starch
makes laundry work a pleasure. 16 oz. pkg. 10c

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 46--1911.



Faint?

Have you weak heart, dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals? Or do you experience pain over the heart, shortness of breath on going up-stairs and the many distressing symptoms which indicate poor circulation and bad blood? A heart tonic, blood and body-builder that has stood the test of over 40 years of cures is

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

The heart becomes regular as clock-work. The red blood corpuscles are increased in number—and the nerves in turn are well fed. The arteries are filled with good rich blood. That is why nervous debility, irritability, fainting spells, disappear and are overcome by this alterative extract of medicinal roots put up by Dr. Pierce without the use of alcohol. Ask your neighbor. Many have been cured of scrofulous conditions, ulcers, "fever-sores," white swellings, etc., by taking Dr. Pierce's Discovery. Just the refreshing and vitalizing tonic needed for excessive tissue waste, in convalescence from fevers or for run-down, anæmic, thin-blooded people. Stick to this safe and sane remedy and refuse all "just as good" kinds offered by the dealer who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing will do you half as much good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

In every cold weather emergency you need a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater. Is your bedroom cold when you dress or undress? Do your water pipes freeze in the cellar? Is it chilly when the wind whistles around the exposed corners of your house?

A Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater brings complete comfort. Can be carried anywhere. Always ready for use—glowing heat from the minute it is lighted.

Ask your dealer to show you a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

MEET AT DULUTH

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTION HOLDS ANNUAL CONVENTION.

PROMINENT PERSONS PRESENT

President McVey of North Dakota "U" Addresses Meeting—Sessions Continue Four Days.

Duluth.—Representatives from all sections of the state congregated here Thursday to attend the meeting of the Minnesota conference of charities and correction, which held a four-day session.

Mayor Cullum gave the address of welcome. The second address was given by President P. M. Ringdal, "Quality in Social Service" was the title of a paper delivered by Prackling McVey, president of the University of North Dakota.

The Minnesota child labor committee held a meeting Thursday afternoon at which President E. W. Hoeseon of the state normal school in Duluth presided. An interesting program of two-minute papers was given as follows:

"Child Labor and the State," by Mrs. C. J. Buell, president Minnesota federation of Women's clubs, Minneapolis.
"Child Labor and the Street," Henry F. Burt, secretary Minnesota child labor committee.
"Child Labor and the Factory," by W. P. Rich, commissioner state labor department.
"Child labor and the School," by Eugene T. Lies, general secretary, Minneapolis Associated Charities.
"Child Labor and Progress," Miss Elizabeth Dinsmoor, field secretary national child labor committee.
"Quality in Social Service," by Frank La Rand McVey, president North Dakota university.
"Medical Inspection in Industrial Problems," by Dr. N. C. Hulsley, health commissioner, Stewart.
"Acts Which Should Be Done in the Interest of Child Labor," by Dr. Richard Burton, professor of English literature, University of Minnesota.
"The Discovery of Capacity in Backward Children," by Everett J. Mc Minnesota, superintendent of schools, Minneapolis.
"The Parole of Inmates of State Institutions," N. L. Harvard, state prison agent, and Miss Myra B. Gray, state agent for after care of insane.
"Charity Employed to Fight Tuberculosis," Dr. A. T. Laird, secretary St. Louis county sanatorium commission.
"A Farm for Petty Offenders," W. E. McEwan, publisher Labor World, Duluth.
"The Work of Organization for Women," Miss Catherine McFarlane, Glyndon.
"The Menace of Child Labor," Elizabeth Dinsmore.
"The Solution of Our Social Vice," Rev. Mary D. Shuster, Minneapolis vice commission.
"The Delinquent Parent," by R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of education, Duluth.
"The Solution of Family Problems From the Standpoint of the Public Schools," by Miss A. Abbott, assistant state board of child and animal protection, St. Paul.
"Possibilities for Constructive Charity by County Commissioners," by Mrs. Charles Culver, Minneapolis.
"Plans Necessary for Sufficient and Uniform Histories of Dependent Children," by Colonel E. E. Faulkner, superintendent Washburn Memorial home, Minneapolis.
"Various Methods of Educating the Rural Public to the Necessity for Better Care of Tuberculosis," discussion opened by A. D. Blakey, director traveling exhibit state board of health.
"The Problem of Financing Anti-Tuberculosis Educational Work," discussion opened by Dr. Ira Dean, county physician, Ramsey County Tuberculosis commission, Duluth.
"Rural Nurse Work," discussion opened by Dr. Ida Hazelhurst, resident physician Tokeanna sanatorium, Pine City.
"The Problem in Rural Social Work," discussion opened by Miss A. Hesselberg, Cass City club, St. Paul.
"It will be hung in the Outer recent, L.L. D., president University of Minnesota.
"Social Surveys," illustrated by lantern pictures, by Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary Associated Charities, Minneapolis.
"The Passing for Abuse," by Miss Florence M. Underwood, secretary Associated Charities, Duluth, Minnesota.
"The Relation of the Associated Charities Movement to General Social Welfare," by A. W. Guttridge, St. Paul.
"Plans for Social Opportunities for Industrial Workers," by Miss Mrs. N. E. Nagel, Anthokes Lake, Minn.

O'LEARY FACTION TRIUMPHS.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Has Hottest Election in Its History.

East Grand Forks, No. —In the hottest election the city of East Grand Forks has known in years the O'Leary faction, in power during the past two years, came through the battle of votes with the reins of city government still in hand, winning one of the most significant political victories of the city's history. With one exception, that of John Busch in the First ward, the O'Leary faction put every one of their candidates in office.

The election of W. J. Rasmussen to the municipal judgeship was the most significant and perhaps the most surprising victory of the election. His election was significant in that it marked the exit of Judge Sullivan from that office, which he has held for 19 years, and probably from city politics. Rasmussen carried every ward in the city, winning by a majority of 60.

Mayor John O'Leary was re-elected for a second term, defeating John Vossler, the Sullivan candidate, by a majority of 34. N. Larson and George Barlow were re-elected aldermen at large, while J. Culliton was elected alderman from the Second ward, Frank Tessier from the Third ward and John W. Logan from the Fourth. Hamilton was the only Sullivan man to be elected, defeating Busch for aldermen at the First ward. McIlraith was re-elected for the fourth time as city treasurer. The anti-brewery control ordinance passed by the present council caused a bitter fight against the O'Leary faction. Practically all brewery agents in the city were out working for defeated candidates.

BURGLARS DISAPPOINTED.

Proceeds of Two Robberies at Glenwood Only $5 and a Few Pennies.

Glenwood.—Burglars entered two stores in Glenwood by breaking the glass in back doors and prying off the locks. In Thacker Brothers' store they procured a few pennies from the cash register, and in Callaghan's back were store about $5 in silver. They also opened the safe in Callaghan's store, but got nothing of value.

MINNESOTA GAME SLAUGHTER

WOODS SAID TO BE UNUSUALLY WELL STOCKED.

Opening of Season Finds Forest-Bound Cars Filled With Hopeful Hunters.

Duluth, Minn.—The season for hunting big game in Minnesota is open. Reports from the northern part of the state are that deer and moose are more plentiful this season than for several years. Duluth and Bemidji will be headquarters for hunters for the next two months. Nearly 3,000 licenses to hunt big game have been issued in Minnesota during the last three days.

In the neighborhood of International Falls, Rainy Lake and Lake Vermillion, it is reported that game is particularly plentiful. Edgar E. Chapman, state forest ranger, said he counted 18 moose in one small lake a short distance north of Ely. Deer, he said, were also plentiful in that district.

Wisconsin Deer Poisoned.

Old-time deer hunters say a majority of Wisconsin deer are suffering from a disease that poisons their meat and eventually kills them. For this reason, it is said the season in that state will not be a good one. The disease is a peculiar one and is said to be caused by a parasite. Warnings have been issued by a Milwaukee physician, who is also an enthusiastic sportsman, against eating smoked venison this year. By roasting or boiling the meat, it is said that the parasites will be destroyed.

The disease has been known by the Shawnee tribe of Indians since 1874, but it has not appeared in Wisconsin since 1898.

Bulletins More than 1,000 hunting licenses have been issued by the auditor of St. Louis county and hundreds of nonresident fish and deer hunting game grounds. Snow fell just in time for good results, as the season opens today for moose and deer. The woods will be quiet as a result of the snow blanket.

Good hunting of moose and deer has been in progress for several weeks. Many hunters have been arrested. Several horses and cows have been slain by excitable hunters, and there have been some narrow escapes. Farmers in many cases are keeping their cattle and horses out of the woods and warning members of their families to keep close to home.

WORK ON WAR PICTURE.

Sketch of "Fifth Minnesota at Corinth" to Be Inspected by Committee.

St. Paul.—A rough sketch of the painting, "The Fifth Minnesota at Corinth," to be executed by B. H. Blashfield, of New York, was received by General L. F. Hubbard, the commander of the regiment, at his offices in the old Capitol. The painting will he 7 feet 2½ inches in height and 15 feet in length. It will be hung in the outer reception room of the governor's office.

As shown in the sketch it depicts the charge of the Fifth Minnesota at the battle of Corinth. General L. F. Hubbard is riding at the head of the regiment, closing the gap which had been made in the Union lines by Van Dorn's and Price's Confederate troops.

This was the battle in which Archbishop John Ireland, then chaplain of the Fifth Minnesota, in the excitement of the conflict and when the men at the front were running out of ammunition, time and again rushed to the front carrying additional supplies.

The sketch will be inspected soon by a committee, consisting of Archbishop Ireland, General Hubbard and E. B. Dyke, of Minneapolis. This committee was appointed at the last session of the legislature et the time that money was appropriated for the painting.

SEEK PART OF DULUTH.

Descendents of Chief Buffalo to Begin Suits to Recover Millions.

Duluth.—Suits are to be brought by descendants of Chief Buffalo to recover property a mile square in the heart of Duluth, which the Indian's heirs allege was ceded him by the government fifty years ago. Chief Buffalo's heirs reside at Red Cliff, Odanah and Bayfield. The property extends from the Spalding Hotel east and north, and is valued et many millions of dollars.

Announcement of the proposed action comes from Ashland, Wis. Albert Sonnenberg, of Washington, D. C., has been investigating the rights of the Indians of the reservations and will handle the action.

"The Call of the Cricket."

Minnesota Danish Poynter, e clever little actress, will he seen at the Bijou the week of November 19th, in a new play entitled "The Call of the Cricket," by Edward Peple, author of "Classmates," "Prince Chap," and "The Littlest Rebel," now being successfully produced in Chicago.

INSPECTOR MAKES ROUNDS.

Lannen Finds Hotels in Winona in Good Condition.

Winona.—Bert M. Lennon, deputy state hotel inspector, completed four days' inspection work in Winona and vicinity and left for Goodhue county. He found conditions in Winona hotels and boarding houses to be good. In the main, although some of the smaller establishments have not yet equipped their rooms with the rope fire escape called for by law.

DELAGEY WOOD DEAD

VETERAN NEWSPAPER MAN OF NORTHWEST ENDS A PICTURESQUE CAREER.

CAME OF A LITERARY FAMILY

Founder of 32 Publications in Northwest, Dies in Duluth.—Organized the Minnesota Editorial Association.

Duluth, — A. Delecoy Wood, the veteran newspaper editor and the founder of 32 papers in the Northwest during his picturesque and checkered career, died here of pneumonia. His wife and children, five daughters and a son, were at his bedside when the end came. The late Mr. Wood organized the Minnesota Editorial association. He was president of the Lake City Old Settlers' Association.

Born May 15, 1855.

Mr. Wood was in his fifty-sixth year. Among his visitors and relatives were President James Monroe, John Quincy Adams, and, through marriage, Jo Henry Wetherse. His uncle, John Quincy Adams Wood, was the publisher of the Southern Shield at Greensboro, Ky., in 1861, and a staunch Union supporter. Both papers were destroyed by literary pursuits. His father established the first newspaper published at Sauk Rapids, Minn., Mr. Wood's birthplace.

His mother was literary editor under the nom de plume of "Minnie Lee," and wrote many poems which were widely read and reproduced.

Educated in the common schools et John's college, near St. Cloud, he obtained his first newspaper knowledge, prior to 1870, when he worked as a printer on the Sauk Rapids Record. His first instruction was under the veteran editor, George W. Benedict, and through his efforts Mr. Wood was induced to make his first literary contributions. At that time he was but 15 years old and the next year he was tendered an editorial position on the Hastings Union, published by William R. Todd. Following that he started his first paper at Prescott, Wis. He has also published newspapers et Kasson, Minn.; Bessemer, Mich.; Eyota, Minn.; Sauk Center, Minn.; Reedsburg, Wis.; Denton, Minn.; Breckenridge, Minn.; Grand Meraia, Minn.; Wehpeton, N. D.; Hillsboro, N. D.; Celedonia, Minn.; Carlton, Minn., Two Harbors, Minn.; Grand Marais, Mich.; Hermann, Minn., and nearly as many more cities and towns.

MORE LAND SALES NEXT MONTH

State Will Auction School Properties All Over Northern Minnesota.

St. Paul.—Beginning Monday, November 5, and continuing until November 27, 288,760 acres of Minnesota school lands will be put up at auction by State Auditor Iverson. Sales and acreage are as follows:

November 4, Wadena, 7,600 acres; November 7, Park Rapids, 26,000 acres; November 8, Bemidji, 7,200 acres; November 11, Mercury, 40,000 acres; November 12, International Falls, 7,000 acres; November 13, Duluth, 2,000 acres; November 14, Pine City, 6,200 acres; November 15, Cambridge, 6,200 acres; November 18, Grand Rapids, 32,000 acres; November 21, Crookston, 4,000 acres; November 22, Moorhead, 760 acres; November 23, Hazley, 8,200 acres; November 25, Hallock, 15,000 acres; November 26, Warren, 32,000 acres; November 27, Roseau, 8,600 acres.

Buyers must pay 15 per cent of the purchase price down. Long time is given on the balance.

SOCIALISTS HAVE TICKET.

Candidate for Mayor of Thief River Falls Runs on Stickers.

Thief River Falls.—The candidate for mayor on the Socialist ticket has withdrawn, and another member of the local Socialist party will head the ticket, but will have to run on "stickers."

The fight waxes warm all along the line, and Tuesday will see the culmination of one of the hottest city campaigns ever conducted in Thief River Falls.

Four candidates are running for the position of municipal judge. This office has for many years been the Socialists have e full ticket in the field, and the fight appears to be their organization against the balance of the candidates.

COLLEGE MARKS ANNIVERSARY.

Thirty-seventh Milestone Passed by Northfield School.

Northfield.—St. Olef college celebrated the thirty-seventh anniversary of its foundation. At a program held in Hoyme chapel an address by President L. O. Vigness of Pleasant View Luther college, Canon, Ill., a vocal solo by Miss Mabel Jacobs, an address in Norwegian by Rev. C. B. Solberg of Minneapolis, a violin solo by Prof. Adolph Olson and music by the St. Johannes choir were the features.

HUNTERS KILL FARMER'S COWS.

Spins Man's Bovines Are Mistaken for Deer.

Duluth.—The St. Louis county attorney received a letter from a man near Spina, who stated that his New Jersey cows had been shot by some hunter who evidently believed he was shooting a deer. He wanted the county attorney to investigate. Hunters are already rounding the woods with rifles on their shoulders in spite of the fact that the season does not begin until Nov. 15.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Colors more modern and faster colors than any other dye. One 10c package colors 4 lbs. They dye in cold water better than any other dye. You can dye any garment without ripping apart. Write for free booklet—How to Dye, Bleach and Mix Colors. MONROE DRUG COMPANY, Quincy, Ill.

DANGEROUS VARIETY.

Caroline—She may he a gossip, hut I believe she tells the truth.

Pauline—My dear, the truth is frequently the worst form of gossip imaginable.

Insulted.

A strapping German with big heeds of perspiration streeming down his face was darting in and out of the aisles of a Philadelphia department store.

His artified actions attracted the attention of all sale-persons, and they hardly knew what to make of it. A hustling young man of the clothing department walked up to him and asked, "Are you looking for something in men's clothing?"

"No!" he roared; "not men's clothing; vimes's clothing. I can't find my wife!"—Lippincott's.

How Fido Lost Out.

"My girl used to think a lot of her pug dog, but I've managed to get the edge on him since we married."

"How did you work it?"

"Fido wouldn't eat her cooking, and I did."

The Humor of It.

Stella—Were you shopping today?

Belle—Yes, I got some things to exchange.

JUST BEFORE THE TROUBLE

How Could the Listener Know What His Friend Was Trying to Say?

If any man ever admired his wife, that men was Howler. And when the Pitchoodles asked Mrs. Howler to get up and sing, "There is a Garden in My Face," the husband glowed with pride.

No matter that she had a face like a hippopotamus and a voice like an elephant, he sat beaming as she sang, and could not refrain from bending over to his neighbor and whispering: "Don't you think my wife's got a fine voice?"

"What?" said his neighbor, who was a little deaf.

"Don't you think my wife's got a fine voice?" repeated Howler.

"What?"

"Don't you think my wife's got a fine voice?" roared Howler.

"Sorry!" returned the neighbor, shaking his head. "Can't hear a word you say. That awful women over there is making such a frightful row singing."

Tree Destroyers.

Porcupines are good climbers, and when unable to get enough apples windblown to the ground, swarm a tree and eat down the finest bearing limbs as quickly and neatly as a beaver can sever the trunk of a young hemlock. Besides that, when other food is scarce they nibble the bark off young eople trees, and can destroy e newly planted orchard in a short time. They also are a great enemy to the young spruce, but why they cut them is a mystery, ee it is not found that they even eat the tenderest shoots.

No Jury.

"Didn't you give that man a jury trial?"

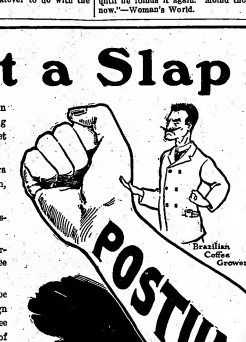
"Look here," replied Broncho Bob; "there ain't e big lot p' men in this settlement. We couldn't possibly get 12 of 'em together without startin' a fatal argument about somethin' that had nothin' whatever to do with the case."

THE REASON.

Little Wallace—Pa, why does popcorn pop?

His Pa—Because, my son, like men, it doesn't know any better.

Proved.



"There's no question about it," said Scribleigh. "England is the place for an author to live in who wishes to write perfect English. We become merely the expression of our environment, after all, and I wish to do my work in an atmosphere in which the language is one for the expression of my ideas is spoken in all its prestine purity. Do you not agree with me, Lord Miggleton?"

"By Jowve, you're hbsly right, old top!" replied his lordship.—Harper's Weekly.

A Word of Wisdom.

"No, me dear," said Mrs. Maloney to the cherity worker when the topic had turned upon the question of married women taking upon themselves the support of the family when the husband is out of work. "Don't yeever begin anything of that koind if so hap yees should one day have a husband ay your own. In the evint av that happening an' he should come home an' fail to cryin' because he was out av e job, do yees sit down an' cry until he folinds it again. Molnd that, now."—Woman's World.

We Get a Slap

The big coffee trust, made up of Brazilian growers and American importers, has been trying various tactics to boost the price of coffee and get more money from the people.

Always the man who is trying to dig extra money out of the public pocket, on a combination, hates the man who blocks the game.

Now comes a plaintive bleat from the "exasperated" ones.

The Journal of Commerce lately said: "A stirring circular has just been issued to the coffee trade." The article further says:

"The coffee world is discussing what is to be the future of coffee as a result of the campaign of misedncation carried on by the cersal coffee people. We have before us a letter from one of the largest roasters in the South asking what can be done to counteract the work of the enemies of coffee.

"The matter should have been taken up by the Brazilian Gov't when they were completing their beautiful valorization scheme."

Then the article proceeds to denounce Postum and works into a fine frenzy, because we have published facts regarding the effect of coffee on some people.

The harrowing tale goes on.

"Where e few years ago everybody drank coffee, several cups a day, now we find in every walk in life people who imagine they cannot drink it. (The underscoring is ours.) Busy blacksmiths, carpenters, laborers and athletes have discontinued nr cut down the use of coffee; as there is not a person who reads this and will not he able to find the same conditions existing among his own circle of acquaintances, is it not well for the Brazilians to sit nj and take notice?"

Isn't it curious these "burly" strong men should pick out coffee to "imagine" about? Why not "imagine" thet regular doses of whiskey are harmful, or daily slugs of morphine?

If "imagination" makes the caffeine in coffee clog the liver, depress the heart, and steadily tear down the nervous system, bringing on ona or more of the dozens of types of diseases which follow broken-down nervous systems, many people don't know it.

But it remains for the man who has coffee, morphine or whiskey to sell, to have the supreme nerve to say: "You only imagine your disorders. Keep on buying from me."

Let us continue to quote from his article.

"Notwithstanding the enormous increase in population during the past three years, coffee shows the appalling decrease in consumption."

* * * *

Then follows a tiresome lot nf statistics which wind up by showing a decrease of consumption in two years of, in round figures, two hundred million pounds.

Here we see the cause for the attacks on us and the Brazilian papers et Americans who prefer to use a healthful, home-made breakfast drink and incidentally keep the money in America, rather than send the millions to Brazil and pay for an article that chemists class among the drugs and not among the foods.

Will the reader please remember, we never announce that coffee "hurts all people."

Some persons seem to have excess vitality enough to use coffee, tobacco and whiskey for years and apparently be none the worse, but the number is small, and when a sensible man or woman finds an article acts harmfully they exercise some degree of intelligence by dropping it.

We quote again from the article:

"These figures are paralyzing but correct, being taken from Leech's statistics, recognized as the most reliable."

This is one of the highest compliments ever paid to the level-headed, common sense of Americans who cut off about two hundred million pounds of coffee when they found hy actual experiment (in the majority of cases) that the subtle drug caffeine, in coffee, worked discomfort and veeying forms of disease.

Some people haven't the character to stop a habit when they know it is killing them, but it is easy to shift from coffee to Postum, for, when meals according to directions, it comes to table a cup of beverage, seal brown color, which turns to rich golden brown when cream is added, and the taste is very like the milder grades of Old Gov't Java.

Postum is a veritable food-drink and highly nourishing, containing all the parts of wheat carefully prepared to which is added chont ten per cent of New Orleens molasses, and that is absolutely all that Postum is made of.

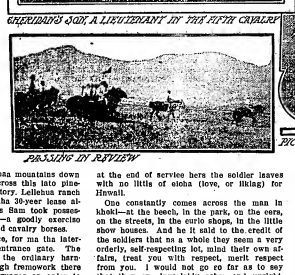
Thousands of visitors to the pure food factories see the ingredients and how prepared. Every nook and corner is open for every visitor to carefully inspect. Crowds come daily and seem to enjoy it.

"There's a Reason"

Postum Cereal Company, Limited
Battle Creek, Michigan

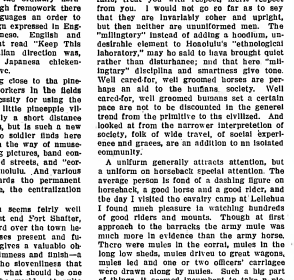
MILITARY SERVICE IN HAWAII

By KATHERINE POPE



"WITH TOUNGEST AND DRUM"

THE BEST MULE IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY



A TENT AT SCHOFIELD BARRACKS

SHERIDAN'S SON A LIEUTENANT IN THE FIFTH CAVALRY

PICTURESQUE AGAINST THE MOUNTAINS

PASSING IN REVIEW

AT Schofield barracks, twenty-five miles from Honolulu, the Fifth U. S. Cavalry is in garrison, and the original cavalry camp has been added to comparatively recently by the arrival of two battalions of the Second infantry and a full battalion of the First field artillery. There are now three regimental headquarters, three colonels and three bands at Schofield barracks, but to Honolulu folk generally it is still thought of as the "cavalry camp."

One may travel thither by train, and a pleasant journey it is speeding along close to the sea, flashing by fields of sugarcane, with short halts at tiny stations to let off or take on diminutive Japanese, presently leaving the sea and climbing through narrow gulches to the tableland a thousand feet above sea-level. The sun may be shining away with full glare, but the air is fresh and vital, one feels like talking effort, responding to the various invitations to effort that here are offered. Away over to the right stretches the long low line of the Koolau Range. To the left lies the mass of the Waianae mountains, the plains at their base, in front of the Gap, dotted with the various buildings of Schofield barracks. Looking a good place to "do service" and proving a decidedly interesting place to visit.

It is a very beautiful and healthful spot where the soldiers are stationed—though a little far from town to suit the sojer boys—and sincere are the regrets of officer and officer's wife when the order comes to move on. The barracks are located on what were once ranch lands, and part of the property is still used for that purpose. The old estate included wide plains, mountain, valley and ridge, stretched from the top of the Waianae mountains down to the public highway, across this into pineapple and sugar-cane territory. Leilehua ranch was leased crown land; the 30-year lease almost run out when Uncle Sam took possession of the 16,000 acres—a goodly exercise ground for cavalry men and cavalry horses.

When I visited the place, for me the interest began at the very entrance gate. The gate differed little from the ordinary barnyard affair, but on the high fremework there was printed in three languages an order to those entering there, a sign expressed in English, Hawaiian and Japanese. English and Americans that run might read "Keep This Gate Shut." The Hawaiian direction was, "Poni Ka Puka." The Japanese chicken-scratching I forbear to give.

Schofield barracks being close to the pineapple country and the workers in the fields Japanese, there was necessity for using the Japanese language. The little pineapple village of Wahiawa lies only a short distance beyond the Leilehua gates, but is such a new and small center that the soldier finds there nothing of consequence in the way of amusement, longs for the morning pictures, band concerts, sea bathing, peopled streets, and "corner" social offerings of Honolulu. And various causes are pointing towards the permanent rettlement of the soldiers, the centralization of troops in Honolulu.

As it is now Honolulu seems fairly well soldiered. Off at the west end Fort Shafter, set upon a hill, keeps guard over the town below, and not only promises present and future protection, but also gives a valuable object lesson in soldierly trimness and finish—a needed object lesson to the slovenliness that marks various portions of what should be one of the fairest cities in the world. At quite the opposite end from Fort Shafter, off there about the famous headland, old Diamond Head, Fort Ruger is situated, companies of coast artillery here—at Shafter, infantry. Between Forts Ruger and Shafter lies Fort de Russy, eventually to be an artillery post.

It is generally understood in the army that the men do not like service in Hawaii. They complain of lack of variety, that life here has too much sameness, and they complain because service in Hawaii does not mean increased pay or time allowance, but of these granted elsewhere in the tropics. Yet many of the men give other testimony, approve of the equable climate, the cool trade-winds, discover no little variety in the multitudinous races with their multitudinous customs and costumes that island life affords in this port in the Pacific a babel of voices, a marvelous motley people—Hawaiian, Japanese, Chinese, Portuguese, Korean, Porto Rican, Filipino, East Indian, Scandinavian, German, French, Anglo-Saxon and others. He bobnobs with all of these, picks up a jargon that he is never to lose—but which it would take a Kipling to put into cold print.

The officer who obligingly answered my questions and also volunteered information regarding the invasion of "The Islands" by Uncle Sam's men, told me that while the soldiers were supposed to be indifferent to service in Hawaii, still there were very few desertions. And then we both laughed—for where would the disgruntled desert to? They could scarcely swim the 2,000 miles to San Francisco, and departing vessels are watched by sharp and experienced eyes. If they fled to the mountains or the cane-fields, some day they would have to leave this seclusion, and to secure safe seclusion in a small, sea-girt isle is very difficult. One thing and another the soldier to his task, and it is probable that the days do not drag so very heavily, that at the end of service hers the soldier leaves with no little of aloha (love, or liking) for Hawaii.

Duty constantly comes across the man in khaki—at the beach, in the park, on the cars, on the streets, in the curio shops, in the little show houses. And he it add to the credit of the soldiers that as a whole they seem a very orderly, self-respecting lot, mind their own affairs, treat you with respect, merit respect from you. I would not go so far as to say that they are invariably sober and upright, but then neither are uninformed men. The "millingtary" instead of adding a hoodlum, undesirable element to Honolulu's "ethnological laboratory," may be said to have brought quiet rather than disturbance; and that here "millingtary" discipline and smartness give tone. Well corralled, well groomed horses are perhaps an aid to the hufians society. Well corralled, well groomed humans set a certain tone are not to be discounted in the general trend from the primitive to the civilized. And looked at from the narrower interpretation of society, folk of wide travel, of social experience and graces, are an addition to an isolated community.

A uniform generally attracts attention, but a uniform on horseback special attention. The average person is fond of a dashing figure on horseback, a good horse and a good rider, and the day I visited the cavalry camp at Leilehua I found much pleasure in watching hundreds of good riders and mounts. Though at first approach to the barracks the army mule was much more in evidence than the army horse. There were mules in the corral, mules in the long low sheds, mules driven to great wagons, mules led and one or two officers' carriages were drawn along by mules. Such a big part of things, it seemed incumbent to take a picture of a worthy representative, and I asked a man in authority if I might, then if he would have brought forward a fine specimen, was assured that the one brought forward was considered by its groom—or whatever the attendant is called in the army language—"the best mule in the United States army."

On leaving the corral we passed the soldiers' quarters, afterward drove on to Officers' Row, marvelling at the wonderful cleanliness and trimness everywhere, all as clean and fresh as the air that blew down from the mountains over the wide open stretches. The dwellings were but temporary affairs, but already had an established look, suggesting they were occupied by people that kept to the habit of making themselves at home as soon as landed. Having a note of introduction to the colonel, we asked direction to his quarters, found his house at the head of the row and in orderly on the veranda. Also a car, which gave a peaceful, domestic look to the abode of the man of war. Shortly the colonel appeared, bade us welcome, and informed us that the next day was monthly muster, to which we should consider ourselves invited, and advised us to be present in the field at nine o'clock sharp. We spoke of a camera, asked permission to use this weapon on the range, were assured officers and men, horses and mules would be "dee-lighted."

On this muster day at Schofield Barracks the Fifth cavalry was complete, the entire regiment now stationed together for the first time since the Civil war. The Fifth made a fine showing as men and horses passed in review before the colonel, and we congratulated ourselves that we had front seats for the play. It was very picturesque—the wide plains bounded on either side by mountains, the cavalrymen, capering hither and yon, their sabers and rifles gleaming, and, for contrast, joyous skylarks singing overhead. The ladies of the post and we visitors were allowed close to the reviewing stand, had an excellent view of the horsemen as they went by first at a walk, next at a trot, then at a gallop. The mounted band, the color bearers, the officers, the soldier boys, the picture as a whole was well worth seeing. There was a stirring suggestion of the pomp and circumstance of war, and we liked it—as a play, were glad it was only the pomp and circumstance of practice. The music was inspiring, the dipping of the colors and the officers uncovering thereto, aroused emotion in us that out here so far from "the states" Uncle Sam was looking after his citizens, promising them protection. But we hoped that the soldiers would never have to face grim reality at Leilehua, that those skylarks there would never be disturbed by the crack of rifles used on men as targets. It was a hot morning, but "muster" went on to the last detail. After the review horses and men were inspected in companies, or whatever they call the groups, were examined critically fore and aft, stood and sat like statues while they went through the ordeal. It was a fine opportunity to get pictures, and we were grateful indeed when the colonel sent over his orderly to tell us we might go along the line and snap what we liked during inspection. There were a number of groups that presented themselves as having good picture qualities, and we were especially pleased when the son of famous Phil Sheridan stood forth in range of the camera, the lieutenant and his horse both such desirable models.

"Mr. Sheridan"—as the "Service" people say—is among the best of the polo players that the Fifth cavalry send out against the island men. At Schofield Barracks they have a splendid polo field, one of the finest in the world, of regulation length. Polo is encouraged in the army, for the sake of the horsemanship and the strengthening of qualities specially desirable in the soldier. The polo matches, sometimes played out at Leilehua, but oftener in the field at Moanalua, just a few miles from Honolulu, are largely attended, arouse much enthusiasm. The island players, riders from infancy, as a rule prove too much for the cavalrymen, though the latter have done excellent work the present season and shown excellent ponies.

At the polo matches the army is out in full force. There are autos and carriages filled with ladies from the various posts, officers walking about visiting auto and carriage folk, enthusiasm runs high; the army people are one in their partisanship, the island people divided in their partisanship; for while the soldiers are among those hard-working fellows on horseback it would be against nature for them not to be "agin" the army; but if they are free from personal bent, then a brilliant play by an officer will get its just applause. All races go to the games, the Oriental now taking a keen interest in sports; one sees his Japanese face lighted up by alert attention, his western calm giving piece to expressive approval. At the baseball games there is a no more interested spectator than the smooth-shaven, smooth faced Chinese man of affairs—unless it be the smooth-complexioned, muscled Japanese of a like class.

The tennis courts are popular at Schofield Barracks, stand at the end of the street nominated Officers' Row, and before the little club house. The barracks form a little world of their own, a pleasant seeming little world of polo and tennis and teas and balls and riding parties, and mountain trips. Trails have been cut here and there in the mountains, peaks not so very long inaccessible are now more or less easily conquered. There are mountain excursions where the ladies are included as well as trips involving army practice and discipline. The Waianae range, with its numerous deep gulches, forested ridges and cloud-capped peaks, offers a good field to climber and explorer, and since the coming of the rep in khaki the mountains have been opened up, as it were. Surveys have been made, trails, passes assailed, every here and there on the island one comes upon little encampments of soldiers out on their quest of learning the lay of the land, studying and making conditions. The alert and omnipresent Jape, it is said, know the island better than any folk here save a few of the old natives; the Jap sampan men are thoroughly acquainted with the coast, the ebereout burners with remote mountain fastnesses, the agricultural laborers with both lowland and mountain valley. But the boys in khaki know a thing or two themselves, and are quietly, steadily adding to their knowledge. A company of engineers is stationed here and is now at work making a military map of the island of Oahu.

Strolling along Officers' Row at Schofield Barracks, we stopped at one of the white-washed "bungalows"—as a sojer boy called it—for a call on an officer's wife and a chat about army life from the woman's point of view. Our hostess surely spoke from the standpoint of one that knew; three generations of her family having served in the army or navy—her mother in a period of twenty-five years lived in thirty-one different stations. The being picked up and moved from place to place, little movees of three or four thousand miles or so—but its adventurous side, tends to the increase of adaptability and breadth; and it is very admirable the philosophic way the ladies of the army accept the temporery shelters provided for them, take the little sheeks and make them so attractive and homey. About the verandas along the Row vines were climbing and blossoming; in the tiny lawns exotic looking young trees were growing and various ornamental shrubs, tubs of ferns bordered the paths, in the little gardens tall cosmos was blooming, very effective against the white-washed walls. And the interiors were charming, suggested travel and love of books.

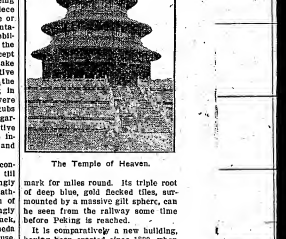
The places were so attractive that inconvenlences were not thought of by us till brought to light by our hostess, who laughingly told of once being kept two hours in the bathroom when an early caller had possession of the all-too-little sitting room. And laughingly told of conditions as they were a year back, when the present "bungaloos" were but sheds with tent wings. And the back of the house? If we cared to investigate, was still just a tent; and sure enough we found the Jap servants out there ironing under canvas and getting ready the luncheon with such conveniences as could be set up in a camp shelter—but all appeared neat and sufficient and homey.

As we sat on the little veranda and supped cooling drinks—very refreshing after the hot unshaded drive we had a talk with the host, come in weary and warm from the morning's work. The captain spoke lightly of the men in the regiment, and regretfully of the way people generally regard the soldier; declared it was unjust, unmerited, declared their men were a good set. The captain spoke of the dearth of decent amusements and decent society for the soldiers, said many of the benefits that were available, the majority of them were by no manner of means mysteries and masters, he decried the black eye given them generally.

Only a very few of the enlisted men had their families with them at Schofield Barracks, at the time of our visit there was a small number of khaki shelters serving as homes for soldier's wife and children, the tents pitched near the bottom of the gulch some distance beyond the polo field. Down in this gulch a number of Japanese dwell, cultivating truck, raising papas and bananas, but with large leisure for visits and music and lying at ease under the leafy, low-drooping branches that almost hid their little dwellings. We caught a glimpse of a Hawaiian girl—fit a wine-red holoku (native dress) with two or three khaki-clad figures near by. Soldier boys studying native life perhaps.

In the late afternoon we drove to the Gap in the Waianae mountains and halted there in the glory of the sunset, looked down on the plain with the barracks standing out so clearly, in their location, on the broad ranch land beyond; further away the sugar-cane and pineapple fields, then upon the Koolau range, at this hour flushed and gilded into wonderful beauty. The place was marvelously quiet; it did not seem possible that a cavalry camp was dwelling there on Leilehua ranch. Leilehua seemed little disturbed by the presence of the men in khaki; dumbfiess even the ghosts that hovered about the old heiau (ancient temple) at the foot of Mount Kaala, found themselves molested to no great extent. Probably at nightfall they still set out to wander through the gulches and over the ranch on those un welcome visits to their kindred. As we drove home in the quiet falling darkness we wondered if ever the ghosts met with challenge from the scattered centries keeping guard at Schofield Barracks.

TEMPLE OF HEAVEN



Remarkable Chinese Holy Shrine in Peking.

For Imperial Worship Only, and Ceremonies Never Witnessed by Foreigners—Customs of Centuries Observed.

Peking, China.—The Temple of Heaven is the most sacred as well as the most beautiful of all Chinese religious edifices. It is used only for imperial worship, and no foreigner has yet seen the stately and elaborate ceremonies that take place here on fixed dates every year. The buildings of which it consists are situated in a large walled in park in the southeast section of the Chinese city of Peking. A broad, stone paved road leads to the temple from the Chinamen, the largest gate of the Tartar city. This gate is exactly in front of the main entrance to the imperial palace. The massive doors at its central entrance are thrown open only when the emperor leaves his palace to visit the Temple of Heaven or the Temple of Agriculture.

The park in which the Temple of Heaven lies is almost square in shape and is surrounded by a stout wall, nearly four miles long. Inside it is divided into sections by other walls and the visitor is bewildered by the number of gates through which he passes when being shown round the sacred buildings. At each he has to pay a small sum to the gatekeepers, who rely upon these tips as their main source of income. Some of the inclosures contain majestic buildings; others encircle the grazing grounds of the sacred animals reared for immolation upon the temple altars.

The striking edifice, which is generally known as the Temple of Heaven, but is called by the Chinese the Temple of Prayer for the Year, to which the emperor repairs each spring to make offerings and pray for an auspicious year for his people, is a landmark for miles round. Its triple roof of deep blue, gold flecked tiles, surmounted by a massive gilt sphere, can be seen from the railway some time before Peking is reached.

The Temple of Heaven.

It is comparatively a new building, having been erected since 1889, when the old temple, of which this is an exact copy, was destroyed by fire. It stands on a triple marble terrace, having a stairway at each of the four points of the compass. When the emperor comes here to worship, the tablets of his ancestors, which are usually kept in an adjoining building, are placed round the single lofty chamber of which the temple consists. A long marble paved terrace leads southward from the Temple of Heaven past a smaller building of similar design, known as the Temple of the Universe, to the inclosure containing the altar of heaven.

It may be doubted whether any structures in the world excite more admiration and beauty. The marble paved courtyard that surrounds it, like all the terraces in the park, is ill kept and overgrown with weeds, and even the altar terraces themselves are sprinkled with shrubs and grasses. But nothing can detract from the majestic simplicity of the altar.

It is on the main altar, kneeling on the circular slab of marble that marks its center that the emperor on the winter solstice, officiating as the high priest of his people (by whom he is known as the "son of heaven"), worships heaven and his ancestors at dawn.

The previous night is spent in meditation and fasting in the Hall of Abstinence, a fitting preparation for the solemn rites of the morrow to follow. Nearly two hours before dawn the emperor is called and arrayed in ceremonial raiment, after which he makes his way to the altar in a sedan chair, and kneeling on the center stone of the topmost terrace, burns incense to heaven, and renders an account of the important events of the year. Burnt offerings of animals are made on an altar of green porcelain to the southeast of the main altar. In bronze braziers ranged round the court the death sentences and offerings of silk and jade are committed to the flames. Grooved of cypress trees surround the altar inclosure, except to the north, where a series of triple gates marks the way to the Temple of the Universe, while in the distance beyond, the roofs of the Temple of Heaven can be seen.

THE SUNBEAM.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1911. NO. 35.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Plan 100-Story Building for Gotham

NEW YORK.—At the recent meeting of the National association of Building Owners and Managers in Cleveland, O., the statement was made that skyscrapers over 30 stories in height are commercial impracticances. To show the absurdity of the statement George T. Mortimer, vice-president of the United States Realty and Improvement company, of New York, stated that there are now in his office plans for a 100-story building. He claims that from an engineering standpoint the plans are practical and there is no reason why the building could not be constructed.

A few years ago, when it was believed the building code would be amended to prevent the erection of buildings higher than 20 stories, the Equitable Life insurance company filed plans for a 60-story building, but that was little more than a dream of the late Paul Morton, then president of the company.

When the Metropolitan tower was built two years ago it was thought the limit in height had been reached. That structure of 49 stories, towers 700 feet above the ground. But at the present time a 55-story building is in course of construction which, when completed, will be 750 feet high. So it will be seen that the 100-story building, like the 100-foot boat, is really not a dream but actually in sight as a practical realization.

According to Mr. Mortimer, the erection of a 100-story building will not offer any more serious engineering problems than are to be found in putting up one of 45 or 50 stories. The foundations will not have to be any deeper, for the solid rock below the surface of Manhattan would support a 500-story building if it were possible to build one.

The building, of course, will be of steel construction, more than 40,000 tons being required, not to mention 22,600,000 common brick, 3,700,000 face brick, 60,000 cubic feet of Indiana limestone, 6,000 cubic feet of granite and 9,000 tons of ornamental terra cotta.

Aged Churchman Charged With Arson

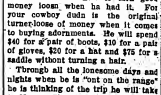
NEWARK, N. J.—Ellis Appleby, of Old Bridge, N. J., 60 years old, deacon in the Baptist church, wealthy and well known, was recently arrested on a charge of arson. Action comes after an inquiry of six years, in which the whole county of Middlesex has been terrorized by incendiary fires. During the reign of terror murder followed arson. The specific accusation is made by an insurance company in the case of the burning of the home of Mrs. Jessie Brown on August 31, in six years the residents of Old Bridge have been strangely murdered and more than a dozen fires occurred.

Six years ago Mrs. Jane Wright, an octogenarian, was found dead in bed one morning in her house, where she lived alone, across from the Baptist church of which Appleby is one of the elders. Every effort was made by the authorities to find the murderer, but the case baffled the keenest detectives. One of those who threatened to bring the murderer to justice was George Whiteman, Jr., son of the keeper of the Rooster Inn, two miles from Old Bridge. A few days later young Whiteman and his father were murdered in the inn, both having been shot by some unknown assailant.

A few weeks later a laborer who was thought to have some knowledge of the crime was found murdered in the road on the outskirts of Old Bridge. The murder of the laborer was followed by the finding of the body, in a deserted part of the town, of Thomas Collins, a prominent citizen of Old Bridge, who had made the statement that he would spend every cent he possessed to bring the murderer to justice.

In the meantime the insurance companies, the county board of freeholders and the townspeople had detectives working.

Pretty Girl Thief Gets $600 by Ruse



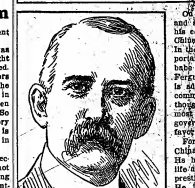
PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—What the police declare to be one of the boldest and most carefully planned robberies perpetrated here in recent years was committed by a beautiful 21-year-old girl, who, impersonating an inspector in the John Wanamaker store, collected $600 in cash from five cashiers. That the girl did not succeed in getting away with several thousand dollars was due to the young women cashier in the suit and cloak department, who refused to turn over the day's proceeds to the "inspector."

That the robbery was carefully planned is evidenced by the fact that the girl preceded the regular inspector, who daily collects the cash, by but a few minutes. So clean was her calculation that while she was gaining cash from one cashier the regular inspector was collecting from a cash register only a few feet away. She told the cashier that the regular inspector had been discharged and she would in future make daily collections.

Without a word the cashier turned over about $50 in bills of small denominations.

Emboldened by her success, the girl made her way to the suit and cloak department, but the cashier there became suspicious and refused to turn over the day's cash, which amounted to more than $4,000. The girl did not remonstrate, but saying she would take along the schedule of the day's business went to another counter on the same floor and was successful in making collections.

Cowboy Shopper Is One Real Spender



KANSAS CITY, Mo.—When the top of the Bar-Circle-X and the Bar Y ranches comes up to the city to buy his winter wardrobe, about the same time his more effete brother, the fop of the towns, goes to St. Louis, Chicago or New York to lay in his winter wardrobe, so there is little chance of them meeting and comparing notes. With his supercilious air, the effete one might look in scorn upon his sun-tanned confrere, while the bronco-bustin' dude of the southwest undoubtedly would break into a guffaw if he saw the other in a Prince Albert coat and top hat. So perhaps it is well that each makes his annual sojourn migration about the same time of the year. For the difference between them, at bottom, is very small, after all.

When the one comes back with his new fall suit and his fancy hat and his spats and gloves and all the rest of it he probably will think he has been something of a spender. He probably would be surprised to know that the other would look upon him as a cheap sort, a pikne, a T-wad who didn't know how to turn good money loose when he had it. For your cowboy dude is the original turn-loose of money when it comes to buying adornments. He will spend $40 for a pair of boots, $10 for a pair of gloves, $20 for a hat and $75 for a saddle without turning a hair.

Through all the lonesome days and nights when he is "out on the range" he is thinking of the trip he will take to Kansas City the first time he gets a chance. And when finally he does drift into town, he goes right over to Blank's and buys his outfit before he starts to take in the town, among the items of wet goods or hunk of a poker game.

WHO'S WHO—AND WHY

AMERICAN POPULAR IN CHINA

ON account of present conditions and also for the sake of broadening his education the infant Emperor of China, Pu Yi, may be sent to America. In the event of this happening the important mission of caring for the royal babe may be entrusted to Dr. John C. Ferguson, the eminent American, who is adviser to the Chinese board of communication. Mr. Ferguson, although an American, is one of the most trusted officials of the Chinese government and enjoys the special favor of the royal family.

For years Dr. Ferguson has studied China—its problems and its people. He has spent the best years of his life among them and has gained great prestige in the land of the celestials. He is looked up to and admired throughout the country and in this crisis, when the safety and welfare of the most sacred person in their empire is at stake the Chinese seem to trust no one whom they can hate more than Dr. Ferguson. During his stay in China Dr. Ferguson has been sent on some very important missions by the Chinese government. In 1901 he was sent on a special mission to negotiate the commercial schools of the United States and Europe. In 1906 he was chosen secretary of the Chinese ministry of commerce and since 1908 has been chief secretary to the Imperial Chinese railway administration.

WU FAVORS REVOLUTIONISTS

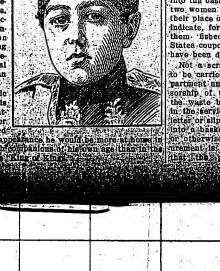
Dr. Wu Ting Fang, former Chinese minister to the United States, has accepted the post of secretary of foreign affairs in the new Chinese cabinet, throwing the weight of his vast experience in statecraft to the revolutionary cause. Wen Tsung Yao, another prominent Chinese, has joined the rebel cause. News of the action of these statesmen caused a sensation in Washington.

The weight of Minister Wu's immense influence thrown to the revolutionary movement has startled the Pekin government. It means to a great extent the Americanization of China.

While representing his country in America he took a vital interest in all things American. He was a close student of the United States republican form of government and its institutions and was thoroughly imbued with American ideas. The Chinese are demanding a republican government with every chance of success.

Under the leadership of Mr. Wu his American training is bound to have a tremendous influence on the new Chinese republics. It spells progress for China, for Mr. Wu's ideals are far in advance of the vast majority in his own country.

LEISHMAN DONS A UNIFORM



The American colony in Berlin has been mildly excited over Ambassador Leishman's revival of the custom of wearing a uniform when appearing before the kaiser. This custom was introduced by Ambassador Tower, who wore a uniform with the permission of President Roosevelt. It was discontinued by Ambassador Hill, who considered it undemocratic. Mr. Leishman has provided uniforms for all the members of the embassy staff who may appear before the emperor.

Inquiry is being made everywhere to find out if Mr. Leishman enjoys a military or naval title which would warrant him in departing so far from the custom prevailing among American diplomats for many years. It is recalled that Charles Page Bryan, ex-chargé d'affaires to Brazil and Portugal, and now minister to Japan, was once a colonel on the staff of the governor of Illinois and appeared at court functions in a colonel's full dress uniform.

Ambassador Reid at London makes his appearance at court functions clad in knee breeches and silk stockings, with the regulation full dress coat, and Ambassador Reid occupies a post where fastidious dress is required.

YOUTHFUL SHAH OF PERSIA

The 13-year-old shah of Persia, Sultan Ahmed, has a troubled time since his accession in July, 1909. His father, Shah Mohammed Ali, had granted his people a parliament to avert threatening symptoms of rebellion. It was, however, endowed with only nominal powers and the shah soon had another uprising on his hands. He had almost crushed it when the powerful Bakhtiari tribe, practically independent brigands of southern Persia, helped the revolutionists to snatch victory out of defeat and force the monarch's abdication. Since that time the ex-shah has been constantly intriguing to regain his throne, but was completely foiled last month and his principal general was executed by the Persian government.

The youthful sultan is a pathetic figure, powerless in the hands of his advisers and unable to gratify his natural affection for his father, from whom he cried bitterly at their forced separation. Judging from his early appearance he would be more at home in the American pavement, rompers and knickerbockers than in the splendor of the king of kings.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Adding Two More Stars to the Flag

WASHINGTON.—Now that it seems certain that two new states will be added to the Union by March 4, New Mexico and Arizona being slated for promotion from territories, the flag factories run by the government are in for some busy times. It will be necessary first for the department here to decide how the new stars shall be placed on the flag. The field of the flag is becoming crowded with stars and it is no easy matter to rearrange them so that the section reserved for constellations may not be inartistically jumbled. This duty devolves upon officials of the army and navy departments who must meet and decide how the new stars representing the two new states are to be placed on the field of the flag. Then the work of rearranging the field on all the flags owned by Uncle Sam will be begun, and a plentiful task it will be.

The army flags are all remade at the various government depots, the work being given to women who are widows of army men or daughters of veterans with some claim on the government for employment. The naval flags are usually fixed up by the sailors themselves, the Jackies being just as handy with the needle and the sewing machine as the women and as they have a great deal of leisure time the sailors manage to do their own official needlework when the flags are called in for the addition of stars and the rearrangement of the field of stars.

The addition of one star to the flag sometimes proves an easy task. The amount of work involved depends upon the position of the stars already on the flag. If there is room at the bottom of the last row of stars for the addition of another then it is merely a matter of adding that extra star and this is a comparatively easy job. But the field of stars seldom lends itself in that kind of manner to the work of adding additional stars. The symmetrical arrangement of the stars is a matter of the utmost importance and this requires much much thought and skill on the part of the officials to whom is entrusted the work of designing a field with the extra stars added.

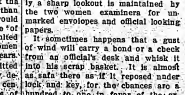
Uncle Sam Teaches Filipinos to Farm

A NOTED professor from the University of Chicago, who spent several months in the Philippine islands as lecturer at the teachers' vacation assembly, conducted by the bureau of education every year at Baguio, the summer capital of the islands, returned recently to the United States. "Other nations one of these days will be coming to the Philippines to see how the educational triumphs have been won," he said.

Without question one of the triumphs of America in the Orient is the wonderful work that has been accomplished there by the public school system during the ten years since its organization. From a mere handful of pupils, and an expenditure of a few thousand dollars in 1901, the system has developed until now it reaches into every town and nearly every village of the island, and last year instructed more than 350,000 boys and girls. The Philippine government spent more than $3,250,000 of local revenue for education.

The services of more than 9,000 American and Filipino teachers are employed in the various schools of the islands as supervisors and classroom teachers of the academic and technical subjects in the courses of study. The University of Chicago sent Dr. Shepardson and Dr. Goode, two of its ablest and most successful extension lecturers, to Manila during the past vacation to remain in residence at the vacation assembly of teachers and conduct education courses during the session.

In referring to the class of men and women engaged in the education work there, they speak in the highest terms. "I have seen many gatherings of educators, but none which average higher than this one," said Dr. Shepardson.



'Federal List of Immortals' Growing

THE so-called "list of immortals" of the United States biological survey—a roster kept by that bureau of all hunting fatalities in this country—already this year has had added to it 47 names. From this information the bureau hopes after a few years to be able to deduce general principles which will be of value in framing "life-saving" federal and state game laws.

One fact which we have learned during the three years we have kept this record," said Dr. T. S. Palmer, chief of the bureau, "is that there are practically no deer hunting accidents in states which prohibit the shooting of does. This is because in those states the hunter hesitates a moment before firing to determine whether the animal is a doe or a buck. In case the animal happens to be the two-legged variety that brief pause before pulling the trigger is enough to save human life." More than 150 persons were killed last year in hunting accidents. This was considerably larger than the number in 1909, which in turn was 50 per cent. in excess of the 1908 fatalities. "Of the 47 killed so far this year," said Dr. Palmer, "the largest number were reported from Michigan, with 15 deaths, New York coming second with nine, Washington and New Jersey being tied for third place with three fatalities each.

Pay Girls to Paw Over Waste Baskets

UNIQUE among government "jobs" is that of the two women who sit side by side now in the basement of the treasury department and spend the entire day going through the contents of the department waste baskets. They are searching for stray bonds, checks and bills that get through some mishap have fallen into the baskets. The positions of the two women are more important than their place on the treasury rolls would indicate, for some time back one "of the latest methods of raising United States coupon bond. The two women have been doing this work for years.

No small scrap of paper is permitted to be carried out of the treasury department until it has passed the scrutiny of the official examiners of the waste baskets. There is a rule in the service also that no envelope, letter or slip of paper shall be thrown into a basket until it has been torn or otherwise mutilated. This discourages the practice of some persons who, in the absence of waste paper to tear up, drop their letters into the baskets thrown into the baskets. Consequently a sharp lookout is maintained by the two women examiners for unmarked envelopes and official looking papers.

It sometimes happens that a gust of wind will carry a bond or a check from an official's desk and whisk it into the scrap basket. It is almost as safe there as if it reposed under lock and key, for the chances are a hundred to one in favor of the examiners rescuing it.

The Show.

Every man is entitled to a fair show, and every man, most of us get it, but there are some people who don't appreciate musical comedy.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - MINN

ACHIEVEMENTS IN IGNORANCE.

General Darry's report concerning the deficient education of many candidates examined for admission to West Point Military Academy is interesting from more than one point of view. Those young men were not taken at hazard from the mass of their fellows, nor were they merely young men of average ability. Each of them had been selected and chosen as a nominee for a cadetship. Each of them had presumably prepared for the examination he knew awaited him, says the New York World. Yet many of them disclosed a degree of ignorance concerning history and literature that could hardly be surpassed among illiterates. One of these aspirants for West Point stated that Lee and Stonewall Jackson had fought at Princeton and Trenton, another that the battle of Waterloo was fought between "Napolican" and "Wellisgford." Of Mason and Dixon's line it was said it "divides Maryland from Georgia." Among the "most important writers of the nineteenth century" were included "Elter Wheeler Wilcox, Elbert Huggard, Jack London and Dorothy Dix." These young men are graduates of American schools. To them have been open from their boyhood all the advantages of public libraries and an incessant and well-nigh countless stream of magazines and newspapers. They surely are not dull boys nor unambitious. Their ignorance, therefore, is as discreditable to their teachers as to themselves.

The idea of reclaiming Russian swamp lands is not new. Like many other valuable ideas it sprang up in the fertile mind of Peter the Great, who built his capital in a swamp, because it was the only place he could find affording access to the sea. Peter selected the Holmogori district in the province of Archasgal for raising Dutch cattle because he noticed the resemblance between the grass of Holland and that of the Holmogori district. It is now pointed out that at small expense the vast swamps in the province of Archasgal can be turned into lands covered with the Holmogori grass, and that after a few years a large portion of it will be fit for raising cereals and vegetables. A systematic reclamation movement is now planned by the Russian department of agriculture.

Germany is fast becoming Americanized, according to the reports of the British consul at Munich, who notes the symptoms in altered trade methods, the greater use of advertising by business houses and the growth of luxury and restlessness in private life, says the New York Sun. But what will strike Americans themselves as the best evidence of American tendencies in Germany is contained in the mounting cost of living in Germany and in the imperial chancellor's suggestion that it must be accepted as part of the new conditions.

Geologists are claiming that the greatest underground river in the world flows from the Rocky mountains underneath New Mexico and Texas, emptying itself in the Gulf of Mexico. This river is thought to be in places several miles wide, and it is believed that it feeds rivers that flow upon the surface. The artesian well belt of Texas is pointed to as the uplifting of the water from this river, often from eight hundred feet below.

A Chicago man who was arrested for kissing a girl made a plea for mercy by explaining that he was so badly under the influence of intoxicants that he didn't know whether he was kissing a girl or a horse. The judge, being unwilling to accept intoxication as an excuse, fined the offender $25 and costs. Things are not as they used to be.

Massachusetts is preparing to put in force a law which will compel the retirement of state employees on age limit, but with a pension. Inasmuch as part of the pension fund is to be obtained from enforced contributions from those employees, based on certain percentages of their salaries, there cannot be so much objection to the plan as there might otherwise be.

Music is said to increase a cow's output of milk, but farmers who subject their cows to thoroughly concerts are lacking in the milk of human kindness.

New York officials prohibit flying on Sunday, but Newport authorities place no restriction whatever on the high flying game.

Another American heiress has decided to get herself adrift from her noble spouse, but the market price of dukes and earls is as high as ever.

DR. A. A. AMES DEAD

PHYSICIAN, SEVERAL TIMES MAYOR OF MINNEAPOLIS, DIES AT HIS HOME.

HIS CAREER WAS PICTURESQUE

Elected Mayor of Minneapolis Several Times, Alternately on Democratic and Republican Tickets—Democratic Candidate for Gov.

Minneapolis. — Doctor Alonzo A. Ames, several times mayor of Minneapolis and otherwise one of the most interesting figures in the history died suddenly at his residence, 3104 James avenue south. His family had no hint of the approaching end. He was 70 years old and did not present the robust appearance which was familiar to most of the people of the city only a few years ago, but his friends did not expect early death. Dr. Ames leaves his wife, his fourteen year old daughter, Maurise, and Fred W. Ames, a brother.

Dr. Ames' Life.

Albert Alonzo Ames was born at Gardner Prairie, Boone county, Ill., January, 1842. He was the fourth of seven sons of Alfred Elisha Ames, M. D., one of the earliest pioneers of Minnesota who died at Minneapolis in 1874, and who came here in the spring of 1852 when the future Minneapolis was a part of the Fort Snelling reservation.

Albert Ames was 10 years old when his parents moved here and he attended the public schools, graduating in 1857 from the high school. He began the study of medicine and surgery under his father and after attending two preliminary and two regular courses at Rush Medical college, Chicago, was graduated Feb. 6, 1862, when he was 20 years old. The following August he returned to Minneapolis and began practicing. At the call of President Lincoln shortly afterwards he helped to organize Company B of the Ninth Minnesota regiment and enlisted as a private.

Dr. Ames first was appointed orderly sergeant and a few days later was given command as assistant surgeon of the Seventh Minnesota infantry volunteers and ordered to report to Fort Ridgely. He served with his regiment three years and was promoted to surgeon major in July, 1864, when he was 22 years old.

In 1867, previous to going to California, he was elected to the Minnesota legislature on the soldiers' ticket. In 1876 he was elected mayor of Minneapolis. This was the centennial year of the nation. He was again elected in 1883 and also in 1886. In the latter year he was nominated by the Democrats for governor of Minnesota. He was defeated by A. R. Gill of St. Paul by a majority of 2,500, although he always declared, as still do many Democrats, that he was really elected, but was counted out by the manipulation of votes in the up-state counties. Funds were raised for an investigation of the vote but nothing ever came of it.

Dr. Ames' political career was decidedly spectacular. A man of magnetic personality, he attracted a following that for years could not be swerved from its loyalty. It began with his popularity with the laboring classes when he ran for mayor against C. M. Loring in 1882 as a Democratic candidate. He had been defeated by Loring for the Republican nomination.

The election resulted in Ames defeating Loring by about 1,800 votes, the Republican vote being divided by the candidacy of W. W. Satterlee, Prohibitionist, who drew some of the Republican votes. This campaign both identified Ames as the friend of the labor element, and made him a Democratic leader.

George A. Pillsbury, Republican candidate, was elected in 1884 by about 6,000 votes.

In 1886 Dr. Ames was a candidate for re-election against Mayor Pillsbury and the fortunes of war were reversed, Pillsbury being defeated by 2,000 votes. The election took place in the spring and in the fall Dr. Ames was also made Democratic candidate for governor.

Again a Candidate.

In 1900, Dr. Ames became again a candidate for mayor, this time running as the Republican candidate. This was the first time the Australian ballot system, which introduced nominations by petition instead of convention, was in effect and Dr. Ames secured the nomination in the face of his former fierce attacks upon Republicans and the vehament denunciations that had been heaped upon him by Republican newspapers and leaders. It was again the introduction of a Prohibition candidate that aided him in the hottest contested campaign which followed, between Dr. Ames as candidate of the Republicans, James Grey, candidate for re-election by the Democrats, and W. J. Dean, candidate of the Prohibitionists. Dr. Ames was elected, by 3,500 plurality. His served one year of his term, when the city was paralized by the expose of the corruption of the police force, which was started by sensational articles appearing in McClure's magazine, entitled: "The Shame of Minneapolis," which effected stettion oil over the country and occasioned grand jury investigation. As a result several indictments were returned against police officials and Mayor Ames.

Mayor Ames tendered his resignation, which was not accepted, to the city council, and left the city, his whereabouts being unknown for several months. In the meantime, D. Percy Jones, president of the council, was made acting mayor. Dr. Ames was returned and brought to trial upon the charge of having received funds collected by his agents from gamblers and disorderly houses. The first trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury and the second in a conviction. An appeal was taken, however, which was granted, and a third trial and fourth trial resulted in disagreements, after which the county attorney's office declared that further prosecution would be useless, owing to the improbability that 12 men could be found in Hennepin county who would agree upon a verdict that would put Dr. Ames behind prison bars.

Was Always Popular.

This shows the remarkable personal popularity of the men, for his brother, who had been superintendent of police, and two detectives, were convicted on the same charge of collecting and receiving money for police protection and sent to the penitentiary. This popularity had for its foundation Dr. Ames' reputation for benevolence to the poor. While mayor he continued his practice as a physician and surgeon and rarely charged for either advice or attendance. His office was crowded daily with the sick and afflicted, for whom he wrote prescriptions at his greatest hours of the day administration of 1886. The city was in a wide open. Gambling was almost an established industry, money was easy, and speculation in real estate was rife. Thousands of strangers were arriving and passing through the city. Dr. Ames was the popular idol. His uniformed his police in military style and altogether conducted himself as king of the city. He even released prisoners at the request of political friends.

Evidently, when he was again elected mayor in 1900 he was unable to appreciate the changed conditions. He allowed gambling to run without control and his police force grew into protected revenues. It was the sudden awakening of the public consciences through publicity that brought about the political downfall of the man so popular that at one time he was seriously considered as a candidate for the Democratic nomination as vice president of the United States.

His career was very picturesque and even when out of office, with the newspapers of the city against him, he made himself in the public eye by the publication of a paper known as the News Letter, in which he was accustomed to indulge personal, political and personal, with much vigor. Of late years he had conducted his practice of medicine quietly.

He was twice married, in 1862 to Miss Sarah Streat, daughter of Captain Streat of Minneapolis. Thers were three children, Effie F. Ames, the wife of Dr. W. E. Rochford, who survives him, and two sons, Charley C. and Frank E., both dead. His two brothers survive.

Dr. Ames was very prominent in fraternal organizations of the city. He served as worshipful master of Hennepin lodge, No. 4, A. F. and A. M.; high priest of St. John's chapter, No. 1; eminent commander of Zion commandery No. 2, Knights Templar; grand chancellor of the grand commandery of the Knights of Pythias of Minnesota; chancellor commander of Minneapolis lodge No. 1, Knights of Pythias, 44, B. P. O. E. He also was a member of George Morgan post, G. A. R.

CANNIBALS WIPE OUT VILLAGE.

Murderous Savages Raid Settlement in New Guinea.

Victoria, British Col. — The Mersma brought news from Australia of a massacre by New Guinea cannibals, who, early in October, took advantage of the absence of warriors, and wiped out the villega of Muruttal, killing men, women and children.

A punitive expedition was sent after the raiding blacks, who had eaten a number of their victims, and captured a score of the fleeing tribesmen, who were brought to Paue to be tried for murder.

$750,000 Fire Loss at Ogden.

Ogden, Utah. — As the result of a loss of about $750,000, and resulting in the fatal injury of two firemen, wrecked the Eccles building here.

U. S. WON'T OPPOSE THE PLAN.

Government Not to Appeal From Court Tobacco Decision.

Washington, D. C. — The government will not appeal from the decision of the United States circuit court at New York, which approved the plan of Richard Reynolds proposed by the American Tobacco Company. While the government may ask the supreme court to review the decision at any time within three months, it is believed they will receive Pacific Fleet Going to China?

San Diego, California. — That the Pacific fleet is to be rushed to China to assist in the protection of foreign interests during the revolution, is the belief of naval men. Leaving $20,000 worth of supplies on the docks here without waiting to load them, the battleships Maryland, California and South Dakota are steaming hurriedly to San Francisco. When they arrive there it is believed they will receive

WHITTIER CLEARED

BOARD OF CONTROL VOTES EXONERATION OF TRAINING SCHOOL HEAD.

GOVERNOR IS DISAPPOINTED

Republican Member Agrees With Majority—They Admit Use of Whipping Machines and Hose Floggings.

St. Paul, Minn.—Frank A. Whittier, superintendent of the state training school for boys at Red Wing, was exonerated in the report of the board of control. After it had presented its report the board announced that it had received the resignation of Mr. Whittier. The resignation was dated Dec. 15.

C. J. Swendson, Governor Eberhart's appointee on the board, agreed with his colleagues, Chairman Dingdel and C. E. Vasaly, to the extent the board could not lawfully remove Mr. Whittier, but he dissented from many of the reasons advanced by the board in support of retention of the superintendent.

His authority for this stand, he said, was the opinion of the attorney general. He also agreed with the majority that the superintendent had the right to exercise wide discretion in disciplinary methods; that no permanent injury was shown to have resulted from any of the punishments authorized and that no malice was shown in administering punishment.

The report is a document of 65 pages, divided into two parts. One part is signed by the Democratic majority and the other by the Republican.

Governor-Eberhart refused to comment on the findings. He refused to suggest what the next step in the controversy might be. It was clear that the action taken by Mr. Swendsen was a keen disappointment.

The action of the board puts the matter straight up to Governor Eberhart. The governor has promised to straighten conditions at Red Wing. The reported resignation of Superintendent Whittier and the fact that the members of the board are practically unanimous may indicate that a compromise arrangement has been reached, which will mean that the governor will refuse to act and the investigation's resignation will close the matter.

Taking up the testimony of the various witnesses in detail will be discharged excessive punishment the majority members took as the basis for their conclusion that the most of the whippings were proper and that a tendency to exaggerate his characterized the testimony offered. The vicious character of some of the witnesses and the necessity for severe punishment also was asserted.

Spanking Machine Admitted.

Speaking of the spanking machine which was first brought to the attention of the public by former Senator Stephens of Crookston, the board admitted there was such a machine and said it was used under the direction of the board of control about 1903 and that it was used until July 5, 1907, when it was abandoned. The further admission was made that with the knowledge and consent of the board, Mr. Whittier also authorized the use of the paddle, also that a wet towel was applied to the face to avoid any abrasions of the skin under the beatings which the boys received.

The use of a piece of rubber hose to whip girls in the girls' department was admitted by the board said the use of the cruel, inhuman or excessive punishment was administered.

Thanks Are Exchanged.

In his letter of resignation Mr. Whittier said:

"Having received notice that I have been exonerated of the charges that were filed against me in May last, I hereby tender my resignation as superintendent, such resignation to take effect at your pleasure and convenience. I wish at this time to thank you for the constant support given me in the performance of my duties."

In its acceptance of the resignation the board complimented Mr. Whittier on his work.

Chairman Ringdal said that the board would exercise much care in the selection of Mr. Whittier's successor and that similar institutions in other states would be visited with the view of securing ideas and suggestions looking to the betterment of the school at Red Wing. While on this tour the board will try to find a superintendent.

Two McNamara Jurors Sworn.

Los Angeles alifornia—The fourth and fifth jurors were accepted and sworn in the McNamara murder trial, which was begun Oct. 11. Three two were obtained since Nov. 7, when the first three were sworn in.

FLOOD FILM EXCHANGE IS BURNED.

Milwaukee Concern Suffers Damages of $200,000.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Fire caused a loss of $200,000 to the Western Film Exchange, located in the Enterprise building, at Second and Sycamore streets. The insurance on the building, being considered fire proof, is

TRUST STOCK PLAN

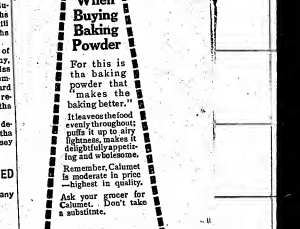
STANDARD OIL ANNOUNCES ITS SCHEME FOR DISTRIBUTION.

Holders of Parent Company Will Receive Shares in Thirty Different Concerns.

New York.—The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey declared a dividend of seven dollars a share for the last quarter of the year. This is the last dividend to be declared before the company dissolves under the mandate of the supreme court.

Since the Standard Oil was given corporate form in 1882 it has distributed $761,000,000 in dividends.

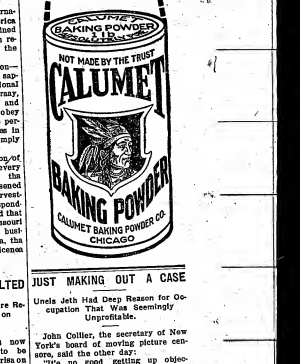
The Standard Oil Company of New York also declared a dividend of $20 a share, which is equivalent to a dividend of $2.06 a share on the stock of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.



Following the meeting of the directors formal announcement was made of the manner of distribution of stocks of subsidiary companies to the shareholders of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. It provides that the segregation in compliance with the decree of the United States Supreme court fractional parts of the former business, makes it delightfully appetizing and wholesome.

Remember, Calumet is moderate in price, highest in quality.

Ask your grocer for Calumet. Don't take a substitute.



For this is the baking powder that "makes the baking better."

It leaves the food evenly throughout; puffs it up to airy lightness, makes it delightfully appetizing and wholesome.

Remember, Calumet is moderate in price, highest in quality.

Ask your grocer for Calumet. Don't take a substitute.

BIG COMBINE IS OUSTED

International Harvester Company Fined $60,000 by State of Missouri.

Jefferson City, Mo.—The International Harvester Company of America is ousted from Missouri and fined $60,000 as an unlawful combine in restraint of trade, by a decision of the state supreme court.

The court imposes this condition—that if the company pays the fine, separates itself from the International Harvester company of New Jersey, files a statement of its business and belongs to the court that it will obey the laws in the future, it may be permitted to continue to do business in this state. It has 60 days to comply with this order.

The court sustained the position of Special Commissioner Bruce on every contention. It was declared in the opinion that competition was lessened and that practically all of the harvester business was done by the respondents and controlled by the state. It held that it is contrary to the laws of Missouri for one company to conduct the business of another, as, in this case, the New Jersey company had no license to do business in Missouri.

PACKERS' TRIAL IS HALTED

Nine Surrender on Bonds and Are Released Pending Arguments on Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Chicago.—The beef packers now the federal indictment, end to be tried next month, sprung a surprise on the government in the federal courts at the United State's marshal's office, where their leading attorney, John S. Kohlsaat, was conducting a case of his them on their bonds. The only one of the defendants not surrendered was J. Ogden Armour.

Judge Koblsaat issued a writ of habeas corpus, and the packers were released on bond.

The possibilites of the situation are almost unlimited, and Judge Kohlsaat is now in a position to invite permanant the government would take an appeal to the Supreme court and months would be consumed in argument and legal moves. The government believes that if Judge Kohlsaat rules against it the case the trial may begin on the date sat, even though the defendants appeal.

UNDEFEATED CHAMPION OF THE NORTHWEST.

T. A. Ireland, Rifle Shot of Colfax, Wash., Tells a Story.

Mr. Ireland is the holder of four world records and has yet to lose his first match—says he: "Kidney trouble so affected my vision as to interfere with my shooting if I became so nervous I could hardly hold a gun. There was severe pain in my back and head and my kidneys were terribly disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me after I had doctored and taken nearly every remedy imaginable without relief. I will give further details of my case to anyon enclosing stamp."

When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S. 50c, all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Agricultural.

Mother—Yes, Johnny, the queen bee is boss.

Johnny—How about the presidential bee?

Nature is the mysterious source of evil.

Canada at the Chicago Land Show

WILL MAKE A MAGNIFICENT EXHIBIT OF GRAINS AND GRASSES, VEGETABLES AND FRUIT.

A carload of grain in straw, grasses and other of the products of Western Canada arrived at Chicago the other day, and is now installed in the Coliseum, where the United States land and irrigation exposition is under way. Those who are interested in the "Back to the land movement" will find in the Canadian exhibit one of the best displays of the agricultural products of Western Canada that has ever been made. There are representative men there, who will be pleased to give the fullest information regarding the country.

The exhibit shows what can be done on the free grant lands of that country and most of the grain was produced on the farms of former residents of the United States who have taken advantage of the homestead lands of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The vegetable exhibit will attract a great deal of attention, and some marvelous potatoes, carrots, turnips, cabbage and cauliflower are shown.

It is true that the homestead area is being rapidly taken up and the bulk of that now to be had lies north of the Saskatchewan river in a portion of the country known as the park country. Here there is a large quantity of open prairie interspersed by beautiful groves of poplar and willow. Water is in abundance, hay is plentiful and consequently fodder for animals is right at hand. Those who have taken advantage of farming in these districts and watched the efforts of those in the prairie proper feel that they have the advantage of their brother, who is not able to secure fuel and the other conveniences of the park district on his own farm.

The crop conditions throughout Western Canada the past year have been generally good, and some wonderful crop yields of wheat, oats and barley are recorded. The Canadian Government, under whose auspices the exhibit spoken of is being made, is rewarding reports on crops in the different Western Coooda districts, and while these will not be ready for distribution at the local show commencing on the 18th of November and closing on Dec. 8th, application made to the Canadian Government agent nearest you will bring them to you as soon as they are published.

Blarney.

A Brooklyn woman who had spent a great deal of time in trying to teach her cook to make good brown butter gravy, but to little avail, had occasion severely to rebuke the domestic in the presence of others. "Ellen," she said sternly, "this gravy is absolutely bitter this evening."

"Indade I'm sorry, mum," came in ingubrious tones from the cook.

"How do you account for it, Ellen?" asked the mistress, persistent in her efforts to get at the bottom of the matter.

"I can't say, mum, unless it were the tear I dropped in it, mum."

Proved.

Orator—I thought your paper was friendly to me!

Editor—So it is. Whot's the matter?

Orator—I made a speech at the dinner last night, and you didn't print a line of it.

Editor—Well, what further proof do you want?—London Opinion.

The Gist of It.

Two and two make four. This is a platitude.

Two and two make three. This is demagogism.

Two and two make one hundred and fifty. This is high finance.—Lippincott's Magazine.

No Proof.

Blioneche—Where was Percy educated?

Belle—In his head—but I don't wonder you ask

A "Teaser"
For Jaded
Appetites—

Post
Toasties

with cream or preserved fruit.

Ready to serve instantly
—just open the box and enjoy an extra good dish—

Convenient, crisp, delicious, wholesome.

"The Memory Lingers"

Sold by Grocers

Made at the
POSTUM CEREAL CO., Ltd.,
Pure Food Products Factories,
Battle Creek, Mich.

The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By Cyrus Townsend Brady

Illustrations by Beroboom Nesbill

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young tenderfoot becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a drunken prospector in a western mining town. They prepare to elope in a hired buckboard, but are surprised by the husband, who, enraged chiefly by the fact that the chivalrous boy pins a note on the body inviting the crime upon himself. In their flight to the railroad station the woman's horse falls exhausted; the youth puts her in his own and follows heading for the nearest stirrup stop. Seeing in her a means of escape from the country, he secures a seat in a stage for Halfaday.

He stumbles into the railroad station just as the train bears the woman away. Twenty-five years later, this man, George Gormly, is a millionaire banker in New York. He meets Helena Hallam, a beautiful and high-spirited settlement worker, and co-operates with her in her work. Gormly becomes owner of a steamship line and finds himself interested in pier and track extension cases by granting almemen, backed by the Gotham Traction company. An automobile accident brings the two together. Gormly, who is engaged to Helena's friend Nell, will oppose an New York and redeem the city from corruption. Gormly, in a long desired interview with Gormly, makes an indirect proposition to compromise the fight which the latter has been waging in the newspapers. Gormly refuses. Helena is disappointed, but they are reconciled on being the head. Gormly boldly announces his plan of campaign to Hallam. Gormly rides to Haldane's place, carrying word of the auto accident. The next morning he refers to the ride of the night before as "a glorious one," and he carefully puts in his hip pocket the will he copied at Haldane's. Gormly is candidate for mayor. The political discomfiture of the meeting prince produced a tremendous sensation. The minority party, acting in him a possible Moses, make overtures looking to the improvement of the situation. The boss, Gormly, however, rejects all proposed alliances. A meeting of the Gormly forces is held at Gormly's and the Haldane plan of campaign is outlined before which the Sachem Society would be helpless.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

"I offer $10,000,000 for this franchise. If it be granted me, I shall guarantee to operate its road in the interests of the people, and turn over all the profits above six per cent. on my investment, to the people themselves. Lest there should be any doubt of my ability to make good," continued the merchant, "I beg to say that I have in my hand a forfeiture check for one-fourth of the amount in question, which is certified to by the City of Gotham National bank."

"The gentleman is out of order," remarked the presiding officer as soon as he could recover his equipoise. "We are not auctioning off public franchises to the highest bidder. We are granting this one in the interests of the public to the company which has already served the people so well and has nesumed the burden of the great system of which this is the necessary connecting link."

"Sir!" cried Gormly, amid a chorus of groans, hisses and cheers, "I protest against—"

"Any other interruptions from the speaker," came quickly from the chair, "and any further expressions of approval or disapproval from the spectators, will result in the clearing of the room by the sergeant at arms."

"I call" said one of the aldermen, "for a vote on the resolution."

"Those in favor of the granting of the franchise will say aye," immediately said the chairman.

There was a furious chorus of "Shames! shame!" from a great number of spectators in which the feebls "ayes" were scarcely heard.

"Those opposed," went on the voice of the chairman, trembling with excitement, "will signify it by saying no."

A thundering shout of "Noes" rang through the hall, the few in opposition making up by their vociferation for their small numbers.

"The ayes have it," said the chairman, hammering on the desk with his gavel!

"Division! Division!" clamored the opposition.

"Those in favor," continued the chairman, disgusted at being compelled to put the administration thus on record, but powerless to prevent it "will stand up."

Amid shouts and cries and disorder never before equaled, the members of the administration got to their feet. The whip that had been cracked over their heads had been used to effect. Some of them were very ignorant tools; others were able to understand what they were doing. They all rated alike. A score of alert reporters from carefully prepared lists were checking off the votes.

"The ayes have it; the ordinance is passed," cried the chairman triumphantly, after the votes had been called to their feet and counted.

"I move," said Alderman Heffman, "that we do now adjourn."

The motion was carried with a rush, and instantly the spectators began a wild scramble from the hall. Among the first to leave was Gormly. The streets of Gotham were packed full of people who had been unable to gain admittance to the chamber, but had learned what was toward.

When Gormly's well-known figure was seen in the doorway, a great shout of acclaim rose from the assembled

Gormly had not intended to speak; but the opportunity was too good to be lost. As he descended the steps, the cheering changed into a demand for a speech from him. No hustings had been prepared, but by the curbstone stood a big, high-powered automobile. It was filled with people. Livingstone Haldane sat in the chauffeur's seat. The place beside him was vacant.

"Up here, Mr. Gormly!" he cried, pointing. Without observing who was in the tonneau, Gormly clambered up to the seat and stood on it. He was thus lifted sufficiently high above the crowd.

"Fellow citizens," he began as the cheering subsided and the multitude gave him opportunity to speak, "you know that in order to complete the ring of oppression which holds the city in its iron grasp under the name of the Gotham Freight Traction company, it was necessary that the old franchise of the New York Street Car company existing today should become the property of that company. Through the franchises they already enjoy, they have created an institution that will enable them to continue their predatory practices—"

"Talk English!" shouted a voice from the crowd.

"Thank you, my friend," answered Gormly. "Which will enable them to steal from you your money, your earnings, your investments, your profits, your capital, whatever you have for the next one hundred years. They never rolled through the park with ever increasing volume and velocity.

If Gormly had looked back, he could have seen the alarm set the city hall ablaze with aldermen, white faced and anxious, listening to that irresistible roar and even furious negative.

"Let's get the aldermen out here!" cried a voice in a pause in the commotion, "and show 'em what we think."

There was an instant response to this suggestion. The people made a wild surge toward the entrance of the city hall. The multitude could easily have degenerated into a mob. But Gormly checked it. His control was admirable.

"No, gentlemen," he cried, "no, men and citizens of New York. We must do things lawfully. The grant has not been signed by the mayor. Believe me, they will not be insensible to this protest. Let it be repeated in every local organization left even a member of the board of aldermen be warned by his constituents not to press this bill, to reconsider his action at once.

"Gentlemen—" he held up a piece of paper. One of the tall lights in the square illuminated his face and figure. His every action was distinctly visible to the multitude—"I have here in my hand a check, certified by the city of Gotham National bank, for two and one-half millions of dollars. Before this ordinance was passed this evening, not two hours ago, I offered this sum of money as a forfeiture, binding me to pay ten millions for the franchises in question. I offered to subscribe to an agreement which would limit my own returns to six per cent. upon my investment and promised that the people should have every cent of profit over and above that legitimate amount. The offer was refused; that check was declined, but it still holds good. I make the offer not merely to the cringing, subservient, whipped-into-line aldermen, but to you, the people."

"What are you going to get out of it?" asked a voice.

"I am going to be elected mayor of New York by you men," answered Gormly. "I am going to get the control taken from me. I am going to give New York a clean, decent, law abiding administration, without graft. I am going to put the people in the enjoyment of their rights. I made my money here. Every dollar of it I am going to use, and I am giving it back to you. We worked together to make it; I by selling you good goods and you by trading with me. I did that by paying a fair price for it and coming back if you were not satisfied. We will work together in the same way now. If you give me the opportunity to administer the affairs of the city, I pledge my business honor, at which no man can point a finger, that I will do it honestly and honorably to the satisfaction of honest and honorable men, or you can throw me over.

"Now, remember," he concluded continued as wild cheers greeted this announcement, "that clamor and clangor and wild elections; that shouting and cheering are all very well in their way, but it is votes that count. You must see that your votes are deposited, and then you must see that they are fairly counted. I beg that you will dispense now, go home, and make it your business to see your aldermen about their franchises. Do it quickly and do it hard."

"We'll see them now!" yelled one voice after another in quick succession.

"Let 'em come out here!"

"We'd like to talk to 'em!"

"Where is the mayor?"

"Mr. Chairman, I Offer Ten Million Dollars for This Franchise."

"Where's the mayor?"

Once again Gormly put the people in control of the situation. He was equal to it.

"Gentlemen," he said, "you have heard my views. I am going to be elected mayor of New York tonight. Mr. Gormly," he roared, his great voice compelling attention, and as he spoke he was now on the steps of the automobile and faced the crowd, "we want you to ask the mayor of this city to come down and sign the bill granting the franchises. But before you do that we want you to call Mr. Kilmer and the officers of New York think of the proposition."

Through the crowd at this moment came charging a platoon of police, at the head of which was the chief himself. The man handling their sticks shouldered their way roughly through the people groaning, raging, swearing, about them. Connell laid his hand on the speaker and sought to drag him from the automobile. The man struck back violently; also flashed in the air. The multitude for another instant would have been a mob. Gormly it was the same again to the second.

"These," he promptly interposed, raising his voice, "are peaceable citizens discussing a great public question. I appeal to you as mayor of this city to call off the police. Take your hand off that man's collar, Connell," he shouted, "or by the living God I'll turn this mob upon you and you'll never be a rag left of you and your bluecoats!"

He stepped down to the body of the police as he spoke; and before the chief realized what he was about he seized him by the collar and threw him backward. It was a magnificent exhibition of strength and nerve and courage.

"Call them off," he shouted to the mayor—"or I won't be answerable for the consequences!"

As soon as he stopped, the roar of the mob began. Some were there who thought they had never heard a sound so terrible and so menacing. The mayor, not without good sense, came to the rescue.

"Be good," he said in his powerful finely modulated voice, "as these people do nothing, they shall not be interfered with. Mayor, your officers go here to the steps of the city hall, chief!" he cried.

There was nothing for Connell but obedience. Shaking his baton fiercely at Gormly, he gave an order to his men, and, followed by the curses and groans of the multitude, they marched up the steps of the city hall and grouped themselves about the mayor.

"I want to tell you," cried Gormly, mounting to the seat again and now thoroughly aroused, his voice ringing like a trumpet, "that you have no need of police protection in the presence of the people of New York."

"Let me speak!" said the mayor.

"No!" thundered the crowd. "We don't want to hear you speak!"

"Mr. Mayor," said Gormly, "these people want to express an opinion to you. Fellow citizens, those who are in favor of indorsing the action of the council in granting the franchise to the Gotham Freight Traction company will say aye."

Every handsman, every follower, every ally, every official present, cried, "Aye."

It made a brave showing until the negative was put, when such a roar of disapproval arose that it was like the breath of the gods and fairly shook the ancient stones of the hall.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Uncle Sam and His Divorces.

Almost every twelfth marriage in this country ends in a divorce. About two-thirds of the divorces are granted to the wife. Thirty-nine per cent. of divorces are due to desertion. The divorce rate in the southern states is larger than in the north. America (with the single exception of Japan) leads the world in the matter of divorce. The divorce rate is three times as large as it was in 1870. Of the divorces that come up only 16 per cent. are contested, and 75 per cent. of the contested cases are granted. Uncle Sam not only has a high divorce rate, but has the highest marriage rate on earth. In many states in the latter line being Hungary, west Australia and Saxony. Ireland has the lowest marriage rate and Sweden the next lowest.

Great Care of Children.

The ancient Egyptians devoted great attention to children. They wore garments short wrapped in fancy soft cloths, big cheeks like cheese cloth, and were washed and cried. After weaning nothing except cow's milk was good enough until they could chew good, hard veal. Infants lived in open air and naked up to the fifth year; barefoot till ten. Very lively games, hoops, balls and dolls are found often in graves. After the tenth year they were taught reading, writing and arithmetic, three to four hours a day in their schools, long—7,000 years ago; and yet modernes think we are the whole business.

Marvelous Boasting.

"Mrs. Homely keeps her house in print."

"Yes, and she takes care by sending it to every paper in town."

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENT POINTS WAY TO HEALTH

I can truthfully say that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a very good medicine, not alone for kidney trouble, but also for weak and sore back, as well as for rheumatism.

About a year ago I became ill and unable to work, my trouble being a lame back. I read of your Swamp-Root in the newspaper and in an Almanac. Believing it would do me good, I went to my druggist, Mr. Skinner, and purchased a bottle. Finding relief in one fifty-cent bottle, I purchased several more and in a short time was able to continue with my work and am today feeling well and strong. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it is as good a medicine as can be found.

AUGUST STRONG,
3414 Washington Ave., No.,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. Skinner makes affidavit that he sold the Swamp-Root to Mr. Strong.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Well Disposed.

A well-known expert in cooking encountered trouble in a suburban community the other afternoon when she prepared to lecture to the Mothers' club. Her subject was "How to Cook." She began by telling how much a men appreciates good cooking, and then she proceeded to give some recipes.

Among the first was one for cold slaw. "To have this best," began the lecturer, "take a good-hearted cabbage and—"

At this point a young matron interrupted. She was eager to get all the information possible. "Tell me, please," she spoke up, "how is one to know the disposition of a cabbage?"—Philadelphia Times.

PHYSICIAN ADVISES CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Four years ago I had places break out on my wrist and on my chin which would itch and burn by spells, and scratching them would not seem to give any relief. Then the rash first began, my wrist and shin itched like poison. I would scratch those places until they would bleed before I could get any relief. Afterwards the places would scale over, and the flesh underneath would look red and feverish. Sometimes it would begin to itch until it would waken me from my sleep, and I would have to go through the scratching ordeal again.

Our physician pronounced it 'dry eczema.' I used an ointment which the doctor gave me, but it did no good. Then he advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. As the trouble has been in our family for years, and is considered hereditary, I felt anxious to try to head it off if I could. Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, and they seemed to be just what I needed.

The disease started in my right headway on my system until I got the Cuticura Remedies which have cleared my skin of the great pest) From the time the eczema healed four years ago, until now, I have never felt any of its peet, and I am thankful to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment which certainly cured me. I always use the Cuticura Soap for toilet, and I hope other sufferers from skin diseases will use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Irven Hutchison, Three Rivers, Mich., Mar. 16, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 17 K, Boston.

Heathen Nations Invent Nothing.

Bishop Thoburn who has been a missionary in India for 50 years, and knows India better than any other living American, says: "If you visit the patent office at Washington, you will see 600 improvements on the plow. India has not invented one improvement on the implements of 3,000 years. The nations without God have no inventive faculty. They are almost universally the savage, uncelightened nations of the earth."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

No man will have any trouble about understanding as much of the Bible as he is willing to live.

For over fifty years Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and other painful diseases have been cured by Hamlins Wizard Oil. It is a good household remedy you will not regret having a bottle ready for use.

It is only those who live on low ground who complain that the world is overcrowded.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

There are still plenty of green pastures for all the Lord's sheep.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Love never fails, because it never stops trying.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 20 1906, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Somemore Log Jam.

We will just deviate from our argument regarding this log jam long enough to say to the Thief River Falls Times, that we extend to them our sincere and heartfelt sympathy for having been located in a saw mill town, which compells them to make the ridiculous statement that the big Red Lake is drying up so as to excuse a lumber company for blocking up the outlet with logs.

At the outlet where the water comes out of the lake into the river it is shallow for a distance of about ten miles, with sand and mud bars across it in places, and this is the part of the river that they have jamed full of logs, so the water can not get a start out of the lake into the river.

AN EX LOG DRIVER EXPLAINS.

In the spring of 1901, I went up the Red Lake River, as one of a crew of log drivers on the steamer "Christenia", and we got stuck on this same sand bar ten miles from the outlet, that is referd to by the Thief River Falls Times. Why was the steamer stuck? It was because there was a log jam in the outlet, that held the water back. But when the foreman sent a crew of men ahead and broke that jam the Christenia had no trouble in reaching the outlet.

Again, does the Times editor remember the low water in the spring of 1905, (if he is a log driver and hitchesteads this river) Why did the drive foreman jam the river every few miles that spring? Was it not done, to dam the water and prevent it from going down the river, so he could take off his year timber? From my experience as a log driver on this river I know that it is a easy matter to form a log jam and shut off the flow of water, especialy at the outlet of Red Lake.—A Log Driver.

The above was written by a man who is well aquainted with this river, who does not live in Thief River Falls. We had a talk with several practical rivermen, who have been by this log jam this summer and fall, and all are agreed that there is about twenty five million feet of logs in this jam, that it fills the river solid full of logs, from bank to bank for a distance of from seven to ten miles, commencing at the outlet of Red Lake, and that is what has shut off the water, so it can not get from the lake into the river.

These are the facts! Now what can we do about it? We propose that we call a mass meeting of the settlers living along this river, raise funds and employ an engineer to go to there, take a survey of the situation and report to the Chief Engineers, at Washington, as there is no use to report to the lumber to the St. Paul engineers office, and you all know the reason why.

When you receive notice of the above meeting be sure to attend as this is a much your business as it is ours.

Now comes the report that the practical interests of the east are pledging to back Theodore Roosevelt to accept the Republican nomination for president so as to defeat Mr. Bryan. It would be a bad thing for Republican party should Bryan be elected, for the next term will be upon the shoulders of the Democratic party and on it will rest the shameful record of the country.

The opening of Red Lake River has been carried beyond, that "outfit" at St. Paul who call themselves government engineers, and Congressman Steenerson now has the matter before the war department at Washington backed up by the facts in the case, which are that the Red Lake is higher now than it has been for a number of years, and that the water is shut off by a log jam.

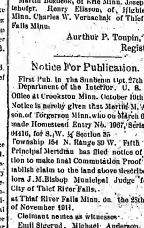
We should not blame Major Lieut. Col. Shunk, Corps. of Engineers, of St. Paul, as he is quite an old man, and made the mistake, of thinking that the lumber company's was the government, with their information bureau located in the mill company's office at Thief River Falls, but before they get through they will find out that they can not close off Red Lake River.

The Indians around Red Lake have had to move back from the lake on account of the high water, and if you ask them what is the trouble they will point to the outlet and say: "There is a log jam in the outlet."

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 23rd, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ole T. Hesson, of Hlida Minnesota, who on July 7th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1391, Serial No. 04186 for Lot 8 Section 6 and Lots 3, 6 & 7, Section 7 Township 153 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal
Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 4th day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Frank Savage, John Olson Sorlie, Olaf B. Hansen, of Hlida Minn. Sivert Satre, of Thief River Falls Minn.
ARTHUR P. TOPPEN, Register.

Notice for Publication.



First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.
Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 30th, 1911.
NOTICE is hereby given that Ole O. Nesland, of Roland Minn. who on February 21, 1905 made Homestead Entry No. 7052, Serial No. 4027, for E. ½ Section 29 Township 158 N. Range 50 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 12th, day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Oscar Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Hlida Minn. Ammund K. Breland, Aslak Nesland. of Roland Minn.
ARTHUR P. TOPPEN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 30th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ammund K. Breland, of Roland Minn. who on June 17, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1785, Serial No. 04470, for N. W. ¼ Section 29 Township 158 N. Range 50 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. on the 12th. day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole O. Nesland, Oscar Nesland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland. of Hlida Minn.
ARTHUR P. TOPPEN, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.
Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 25th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Anton Rudnicki, of Roland Minn. who on Gunfider, 8th, 1904, made Homested Entry No. 858, Serial No. 04393, for N.E. ¼ Section 6 Township 158 N. Range 48 W. Fifth
Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet, U.S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 5th. day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
John B. Rudnicki, of Roland Minn. Tom Lorbiet, of Hlida Minn. Ciurmis Wojciechowski, John Petefroid, of Roland Minn.
ARTHUR P. TOPPEN, Register.

Doctor—Well, how are you today?
Patient—No better, doctor.
Doctor—Um! I think you would better leave off taking those pills I ordered you.
Patient—I haven't taken any of them yet.
Doctor—For goodness sake, then, take them.—Pele Mele.

Not the Same.

Tess—He said I looked handsome in that gown, didn't he? Jess—Not exactly. He said that gown looked handsome on you.—Exchange.

Value Altered by Conditions.

Silence may be golden in its true sense, but it is not of any special value to an insurance agent.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 17th, Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 4th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that John Rybeack, of Highlanding Minn. who on March 2, 1905, made Homested Entry No. 1037, Serial No. 04411, for S. E. ¼ Section 19 Township 153 N. Range 49 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of thief river falls minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 18th. day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Martin Bordeck, of Erie Minn. Joseph Schindler. Henry Ellason, of Highlanding Minn. Charles W. Versaschel, of Thief River Falls Minn.
Arthur P. Toppin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 25th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Harold M. Anderson, of Torgerson Minn. who on March 6, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1097, Serial No. 04418, for S.W. ¼ Section 35 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. Fifth
Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 29th. day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Emil Sigrud, Andrew Klos, Martin Anderson, of Torgerson Minn. John H. Johnson of Highlanding Minn.
Arthur P. Toppin,
Register.

Take What Pill?
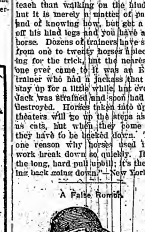
Why, a Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pill, of course. Good for all kinds of pain. Used to relieve Neuralgia, Headache, Nervousness, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Kidney Pains, Lumbago, Locomotor Ataxia, Blackache, Stomachache, Period-ical Pains of women, and for pain in any part of the body.
"I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills in my family for years and find them excellent. I prefer them to other Pain Pills in the form of tablets, as I find them more convenient and more prompt. I can recommend them highly."—Mrs. Jessie Hall, Concordia, Kan.
Sold by druggists. 25 doses 25c.
DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 20th, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 19th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Knut Sigrud, of Torgerson Minnesota, who on Dec. 10th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 1010, Serial No. 04387, for N. W. ¼
Section 35, Township 154 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 26th, day of November 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Mikkel Anderson, Martin Anderson, Soren Hermanson, of Torgerson Minn. John J. Sarseth of Erie Minn.
ARTHUR P. TOPPEN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. November 4th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given, that Martin Bordeck, of Erie Minn., who on December 21st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1018 Serial No. 04388, for N. E. ¼
Section 13 Township 153 N. Range 49 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 18th. day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Joseph Schindler, Henry Ellason, John Kober, Charles W. Versaschel, all of Highlanding Minn.
ARTHUR P. TOPPEN, Register.



Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 25th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Soren Hermanson, of Torgerson Minn. who on Feb. 15th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1048, Serial No. 04404, for S. E. ¼ Section 23 Township 154 N. Range 39
W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 28th. day of November 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Emil Sigrud, Andrew Klos, Martin Anderson, of Torgerson Minn. John H. Johnson of Highlanding Minn.
Arthur P. Toppin,
Register

Fore Part of a Horse.

"It's a funny thing," said the old animal trainer, "but you can't train a horse to walk on his fore feet because the front end won't stay. Take the dog or cat animals and they'll not only walk on their fore feet, but they will go up and down stairs with their hind legs to the air. It's a little harder to teach than walking on the hind feet, but it is merely a matter of patience and of knowing how, but get a horse off his hind legs and you have a tame horse. Dozens of trainers have spoiled from one to twenty horses trying for the trick, but the poorest pay you ever saw in it was an English trainer who had a jackass that could stay up for a little while, but even the jack was disturbed and soon had to be destroyed. Horses taken into circuses theaters will go up the steps as agile as cats, but when they come down they have to be tackled down. That's one reason why horses tend in hill work break down so quickly. It's not the long, hard pull uphill; it's the holding back going down."—New York Sun.

A False Rumor.

"Is it true, Miss Flyppe, that you are going to marry Mr. Dudleigh?" "Why, where did you hear such a thing?" "Why, I heard that you were engaged to him." "Oh, that's all nonsense. I'm not engaged to anybody."

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT SINGER BRO. KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods at the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce

Yours For Business.—SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents, "Hints to inventors," "inventions needed," "Why some inventors fail," Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U.S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE, PATENT ATTORNEYS WASHINGTON, D. C.

She Was Biased.

Dubleigh—Was that you I heard rumbling at your door this morning at 1 o'clock? Clubleigh—At 17 I guess so. My wife forbids me to be about 2 a. m.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Paternal Idea.

Miss Roxley—I lost my heart last night, pa. I accepted Mr. Poorman. Mr. Roxley—Huh! You didn't lose your heart. You must have lost your head.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see os, when yon are ready to make yonr final proof.

Have yon got the tnrkey ready?

A small heating stove for sale cheap, at Vangh Bros.

Cramberries 10 cents a qnart, at the Rhoda store.

Tiden Kretzer is reparing some broken windows in the Highiao ding school honse to day.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt, were on a shopping trip to Highlanding Wednesday.

Walter McAndress took a load of wheat to Hazel Monday, retnrning the same day.

Mrs. Andrew Ellingson is down to Thief River Falls to consult with the dentists, this week.

Mr. M. Shed received word that bis wife was sick, and left for bis home in Wisconsin on Wednesday.

Billie Consins made a trip to Thief River Falls Wednesday for Mr. Shed with C.L. Clarks team, returning the same day.

Will Vanghn and party feel justly proud over the fact, that they landed a fine moose on their hnntiog trip last week.

During toe hollidays we will pnblish each week a two colom holliday storey, which we hope will be appreaciated by our rea ders.

The roads are reported to be good between here and Thief River Falls, and some of the farmers are making the rond trip in one day.

Singer Bros, the Kratka merchants have just closed a big contract to furnish flonr and feed, for the goverment, which reaches as far west as Bismarck N' D.

Peter Hunstad sold off his stock and farm machinery last Saturday at auction and will go to Clearwater county dnring the winter, but will return here in the spring to attend to his farming interests.

Did anyone notice how quick the Eleven Towns dried np about that log jam. We guess they got a tip from Thief River Falls. A fine newspaper to represent the interests of the locality in which it is published,

From the sign of the hogs melt, we are to have onr coldest weather in the fore part of the winter, while the latter part will be very mild. You diden't know you had a weather prophet np here, did yon? Well just watch the winter and see if we are not right,

Wm. Hern and a genteiman representing the Crookston lnmber company was up last week to see if there was any logs being stolen out of the river. We wish someone would steal that log jam and we would guarentee to clear them before a jory of Red Lake River farmers, or almost any other jury that had the facts brought before them.

It has been estimated that $50. invested in dinimite and touched off under that log jam where it would do the most good, would open a hole big enongh to let some of the water out of Red Lake into this river. A man asked us this week if we was turning to be Socialist, and we told him no, but an Anarchist, as the Socialists did not have a platform broad enough for this occasion.

We received a letter this week from a man saying that he will take our paper, if we would let have it free. We are very sorry to inform him that the poor fellow down at Minneapolis, that used to steal our papers for his, died for want of breath last spring. Since that time we have been compelled to charge regular subscription rates, but if you do not want the paper, there is no law to compel you to take it.

Some More Excuses.

Next week we shall pnblish the report of Col. Sbnnk, of St. Panl made to the chief engineers office at Washington, which pnlls aside the cnrtain and shows why that logging company were allowed to block np Red Lake River.

We received a letter from the St. Panl engineers office last evening with a long string of technical advice about the low water io Red Lake. They promptly got an answer, not containing many teohnical words, bnt a devil of a lot of plain U.S. English.

We shall continue this fight until we either open that outlet, or make it so hot for those whose duty it is to compell that loging company to open it, that if they was passing by hell they wonld raise the lid and jump in to cool off.

Wanted: An improved farm to rent for next yer. Inquire of, or address George Leimers,
Roland Minn.

The Garden of Eden.

In some of his lectures Professor Robert W. Rogers of Drew Theological seminary expressed his opinion on the location of the garden of Eden. He thinks that the garden of Eden was somewhere in the region lying between the rivers Tigris and Enphrates. In an address before the Harlem branch of the Y. M. C. A. some years ago he said:

"When the search for the holy grail ceased in the middle ages the human mind took up the problem of the location of the garden of Eden. This has been put in many places—Armenia, Utopia, Atalantis (the prehistoric continent) and equatorial Africa. Christopher Colnmbus thought that Venezuela was the place, and because there is an Adam's peak on the island of Ceylon others have put the garden there. It has also been found in Palestine and at the north pole."

Immense Cost of Roman Feasts.

The amount of money often expended by the wealthy Romans on their sumptuous meals appears fabnlons. Vitellius is said to have spent as much as 404 sestertia (about £4,228 of English money) on his daily supper, and the celebrated feast to which he invited his brother cost no less than £40,350. It consisted of 2,000 different dishes of fish and 7,000 of fowls, with other equally numerous meats. His daily food was of the most rare and exquisite nature. The deserts of Lybia, the shores of Spain, the waters of the Carpathian sea and even the coasts and forests of Britain were diligently searched for dainties to supply his table, and had he reigned long he would, observes Josephns, have exhausted the great opulence of the Roman empire.—London Standard.

Must Have Tired His Jaws.

It might be well for those who adopt the one meal a day system to become chewers at the same time. A chewer, according to dietetic experts, is one who chews all things so long as they have any taste left in them. Gladstone, it is recorded, used to take thirty-two bites to every mouthful of food. This would be considered dangerously rapid eating by the modern school of chewers. "I have tried chewing conscientiously," writes Eustace Miles. "A banana has cost 800 bites, a small mouthful of bread and cheese 240 bites, a greedy mouthful of biscuit (while I was walking on a Yorkshire moor) more than a thousand bites. It still seemed to taste about as much as at first, but I knew that taste by then, so I swallowed."—London Chronicle.

State of Ohio, city of Toledo, } ss.
Lucas County.
Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.
Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Notice For Poblication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 22, 1911. Notice is hereby given that Perley P. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 5th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 04809, for N. W. ¼ Section 22 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described before William [illegible] U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 3rd day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses: Peter P. Korstad, Peter H. Thoreson, Charles Palmer, George L. Palmer, all of Highlanding Minn.

[illegible], Register.

COMFORT IN CONGRESS.

Free Baths and Shaves and Massage and Other Things as Well.

Every member of congress has the free use of the congressional baths and the barber shops under the capitol. He can take a nifty Turkish bath, a Russian bath, a Roman bath, a needle shower or the plain, old fashioned Pike county style of bath, lying down in a tub with both faucets going, and it doesn't cost him a cent.

As often as he pleases he may have a shave, a hair cut, a facial massage and be manicured all around, as they say in parts of Iowa when shoeing a horse. Every other day he can have the back of his neck shaved, just as if he were going to some large social function back home. Uncle Sam pays for the attendants and provides the whole outfit.

We mustn't overlook the notion counter at the capitol either. The members don't, so why should we, especially as the said notion counter is a gracious and enduring boon to statesmen, their wives, families, heirs and assigns.

It contains everything you can think of that would properly come under the head of notions and a great deal besides—all kinds of stationery, all kinds of typewriter and desk supplies, pocket knives, scissors, fountain pens, card cases, purses, wrist bags, visiting cards, business cards and—sh-h-h!—even the kind of cards which run fifty-two to a set and may be used for playing old maid and other harmless games.—Munsey's Magazine.

FAKED PAINTINGS.

An American Who Was Fooled and an Artist Who Was Insulted.

M. Henri Rochefort was being interviewed one day on bogus picture collections, says the Paris correspondent of the Kansas City Journal. He is as good an expert as any on the question. The subject always interests him. "Sit down, my friend," he said to the journalist. "I will tell you a good story. It happened not long ago either. An American one day rushed in and begged me to say what I thought of the pictures he had just bought. 'They are here at your door,' he said. 'I brought them along in a cab.'

"They were carried into the room. There were Rembrandts, Corots and Harpignies.

"'The Rembrandts are false,' I said, 'the Corots ditto, the Harpignies ditto.' The American was horror struck. He said they had cost him $160,000.

"'Then,' I said, 'let us leave the Rembrandts and Corots aside. These masters are dead, but Harpignies is not. Here is a note for him from me. Ask him yourself if he signed these pictures.' My American disappeared. I never heard from him again, but I got a letter from Harpignies some days later. He said: 'My dear friend—If I were not ninety-two years of age I would have sent you my seconds for sending that American to me to ask if those worthless daubs were mine. Yours, Henri Harpignies.'"

Kept His Head.

An ambassador of the great Charlemagne while visiting a court in the east, ignorant of a law of the king that condemned to death any one who moved a dish at table before the tyrant was served, committed this offense. "Great king," said the ambassador, "I die without a murmur; but, in the name of the great emperor whose servant I am, I beg of your majesty one favor before I die." The request was granted. "Give me the eyes of every man who saw me commit the crime." "It is well," said the king. "Their eyes shall be plucked out for thee." But no one admitted he had seen the ambassador move the dish, not even the king. "Then why should I die, great king?" asked the ambassador. "The deed cannot be proved against me." The king was pleased and forthwith pardoned the ambassador.

Might Is Right.

"Effie," said the timid highland lover, "I wad kiss ye, but I'm feart ye wadna let me."

She blushed as red as the sunset, but did not answer.

"Effie," he repeated timidly, a little later, "I said I wad kiss ye, but I'm feart ye wadna let me."

At the third repetition she asked:

"Dae ye min', David, yesterday I couldna lift a bag of potatoes intae the cairt an' ye lifted them for me?"

"Oh, aye!" he replied.

"Weel, that shows, David," she murmured, "that ye're far stronger than me!"—London Answers.

On the Right Road.

"Our daughter puts on too many airs," observed Mr. Spillkins.

"She does, does she?" sneered Mrs. S. "What's the trouble?"

"She seems to be too aristocratic and haughty."

"What do you want her to be?"

"I'd rather have her to be a good cook."

"And did you ever know anybody as haughty as a cook?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Usual Preference.

"What kind of meat have you this morning, Larry?" asked the board of trade operator.

"Well, sir," said the butcher, "I've got some fine bear steak and some [illegible]."

"Humph! Give me some lamb."—Chicago Tribune.

Unnecessary.

"Does your course of home reading include the popular authors?"

"No, I don't need em. I belong to a golf club."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ABOUT A MILE.

It Makes a Difference In Which Land One Travels This Distance.

If you take a notion to settle down for a time and after you have been whisked out and back in a motorcar you think to ask how far the house is from the station the agent carelessly waves his hand and airily remarks, "About a mile," you had best take heed as to what country you are in at the time.

If it is in England you are all right, for the familiar 1,760 yards is the standard, but if you have taken a fancy to some sod thatched Irish cottage it means a tramp of 2,240 yards, and if you are moved to linger in the highlands remember that the braw Scot calls 1,976 yards a mile. Considering the size of Switzerland, one might expect a mile to be about as far as one could throw a ball, but the hardy mountaineers think 9,153 yards the proper thing, even when, as it generally is, it is very much uphill. The Swiss is the longest mile of all, being followed by the Vienna post mile of 8,296 yards.

The Flemish mile is 6,869 yards, the Prussian 8,237 yards, and in Denmark they walk 8,244 yards and call it a stroll of a mile. The Arabs generally ride good horses and call 2,143 yards a mile, while the Turks are satisfied with 1,826 yards, and the Italians shorten the distance of a mile to 1,766 yards, just six yards more than the American has in mind when the agent waves his hand and blandly remarks, "About a mile."—Chicago Record Herald.

ICEBERG GROUPINGS.

Clusters and Long Lines Formed by Storms and Ocean Currents.

Among the perils and wonders of the ocean there are few more interesting things than icebergs, interesting not only by reason of their gigantic size, their fantastic shapes, their exceeding beauty, but also for the manner wherein they array themselves.

Icebergs exhibit a tendency to form both clusters and long lines, and these groupings may arise from the effects both of ocean currents and of storms.

Some very singular lines of bergs, extending for many hundreds of miles east of Newfoundland, have been shown on official charts issued by the government. Two of these cross each other, each keeping on its independent course after the crossing. In several instances parallel lines of bergs leave long spaces of clear water between them.

Curiously enough, while enormous fields of ice invade the so called "steamship lanes" of the Atlantic at the opening of spring during certain years, in other years at that season there is comparatively little ice to be seen. The ice comes, of course, from the edges of the arctic regions, from the icebound coasts of Greenland and Labrador, where huge bergs, broken from the front of the glaciers at the point where they reach the sea, start on their long journeys toward the south, driven by the great current that flows from Baffin bay into the northern Atlantic ocean.—Harper's Weekly.

Why Stars Twinkle.

The twinkling of the stars is chiefly an effect produced in the atmosphere upon the waves of light. It is due to currents and strata of air of different densities intermingling and floating past each other, through which the light passes to the eye. It is seen much more in cold than in warm weather and nearer the horizon more than overhead. The same effect may be seen by looking out of a window over a hot radiator or a candle held on the other side of a hot stove, so that you have to look through a body of highly heated air at the candle flame. The flame will be seen to waver and quiver. In other words, the various layers of air are at different densities and in motion, hence the "twinkle."—Exchange.

The Grass Widow Defined.

It is related of a Methodist bishop that when presiding over a district conference in North Carolina he had an attack of hay fever and in consequence was somewhat irascible and impatient. A young preacher who gave a rather poor account of his work was given a severe reprimand by the bishop and asked to state the reason for his failure.

"Well, bishop," he explained, "we had a lot of trouble the first year with a grass widow, and"—

"A grass widow!" roared the bishop. "And what, pray, is a grass widow?"

"A grass widow, bishop," responded the young clergyman, "is a woman whose husband died of hay fever."—St. Louis Republic.

Perhaps.

"Why," said the young man who tries to be cynical, "are dogs and horses so much more faithful in their friendships for us than our fellow human beings?"

"Perhaps," replied Miss Cayenne, "it's often due to the fact that we treat them with so much more kindness and consideration."—Washington Star.

A Good Third.

"You admit that you are not first in her affections. Yet you seem cheerful."

"Oh, I can't expect to compete with the pug dog and the rubber plant."—Washington Herald.

Knows Just Enough.

"What do you know about the stock market?" asked Poorly.

"Just enough to keep out of it," answered Richly.—Buffalo Express.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. Sam'l [illegible] Vic. Pis.
Larry O'Niel, Abrham [illegible]
J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Curzon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweatere for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footware Buy The ALL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.
Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.
Notary Public
ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail

The U. S. Mail, leaves Su[nbeam], at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesda[ys], Thursdays and Saturdays.
Arrives on the same days, 4.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p[...]

McCALL PATTERNS [illegible]

McCALL'S MAGAZINE [illegible]

Exaggerated Ego.

One of the hardest things in this world for the sixteen-candle kind of man to do is to keep from mistaking himself for a lighthouse.—Galveston News.

Passion For Music.

Mrs. Bacon—Did you say your husband has a passion for music? Mrs Egbert—Yes. Every time I sing flies into one.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Easy Road.

"I hear your brother has an automobile."

"Yes."

"Where has he run with it so far?"

"Principally in debt."

Poker Term.

Raising Him.

10 Days Free Tri[al]
In Your Own Home
of the improved
"Simplex"
Hand Vacuum Clean[er]
"The Cleaner That Cleans Cle[an]"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes. Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) [illegible] perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted [illegible]

Electric Cleaner C[o.]
[illegible] CHICAGO

DEFECTIVE PAGE

How Our Presidents have Given Thanks

THE two dozen and more men who have in the course of a century and a decade served as presidents of the United States have manifested quite a variety of tastes and preferences in their observance of our great national holidays—or, rather, all the holidays save one. The one exception in the category of holidays has been Thanksgiving. One and all, our presidents have, save under the most unusual circumstances, observed the November day of prayer and thankfulness in pretty much the same way. Indeed, it is something of a marvel that men of widely differing temperamental living at different periods of our history have found it possible to conform so closely to what has now almost become a set of unwritten rules of the White House.

None of the veteran employes of the presidential mansion has even been able to advance a wholly satisfactory theory as to why our chief magistrates have followed so closely in one another's footsteps in the observance of Thanksgiving when they have allowed themselves considerable latitude with regard to other holidays, such as Fourth of July. One supposition is to the effect that the religious significance of Thanksgiving prescribes a certain form of observance. Another theory is that it is the fact that Thanksgiving is so pre-eminently a family holiday—a day for family reunions. And finally, and perhaps it is the most plausible, is the premise that precedent once firmly established at the White House is pretty likely to be rigidly adhered to.

Whereas the program of a president of the United States on the last Thursday in November does not differ much from that of many an ordinary citizen, the Thanksgiving event requires attention from him earlier than from the average individual, who, perhaps, does not give it a thought until the good wife reminds him that he had better segogs a turkey, or the son and heir begins to discuss the prospects of the Thanksgiving day football contest. The lore thought of the president in the matter arises from the responsibility which rests upon him for the issuance of the official Thanksgiving day proclamation which fixes the date and formally calls upon all the people of the country to assemble in the churches and give thanks for the blessings of the year.

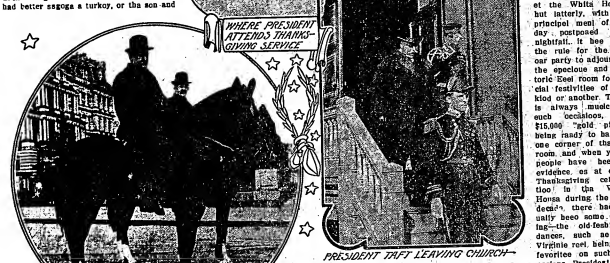
As it is, there is no surety and little likelihood that a busy president will, on his own initiative, assume the role of herald of the Thanksgiving. Accordingly, one of the duties of the White House, whose duty it is to keep tab of the president's engagement and act as a human memorandum pad, reminds the chief about the first week in November that it is time to issue the customary Thanksgiving proclamation (or perhaps the proclamation beautifully engrossed, comes over to the White House from the state department all ready for the president's signature. And this lets a secret out of the bag—namely, that not all of our presidents have written their own Thanksgiving proclamations. However, who rather prides himself on his literary abilities insisted on doing so, but most of the occupants of the White House have been only too glad to fall back on precedent and allow this call to be properly phrased by a man named Smith, who holds a confidential position in the state department and has been for, lo, these many years, acting as the chief executive's proxy in writing holiday proclamations and composing those ceremonial letters of congratulation or condolence which our ruler is called upon to send every now and then to sovereigns overseas.

With this proclamation out of the way the president does not need to bother any further about the preliminaries for Thanksgiving—not even as to the turkey for the feast—since kind-hearted admirers of the chief magistrate can always be depended upon to send him especially choice gobblers as gifts. Why one prosperous farmer in Rhode Island has not missed a Thanksgiving for considerably more than a third of a century in the donation of a White House Thanksgiving bird. Apparently his deeds not on file are positive evidence the size of the birds he sends either, for Grant and Cleveland and Roosevelt all received from this source turkeys that tipped the scales at close to 50 pounds apiece.

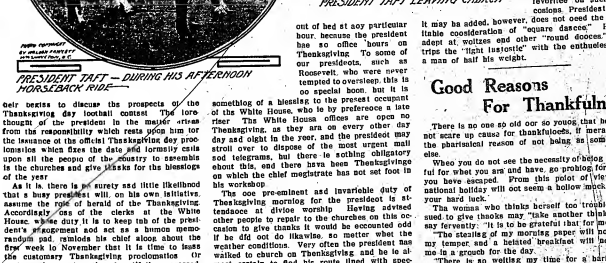
Thanksgiving day, when it arrives, is a morning when the president does not have to bring out of bed at any particular hour, because the president has no office hours on Thanksgiving. To some of our presidents, such as Roosevelt, who were ever tempted to oversleep, this is no special boon, but it is something of a blessing to the present occupant of the White House, who is by preference a late riser. The White House offices are open on Thanksgiving, as they are on every other day and eight in the year, and the president may stroll over to dispose of the most urgent mail and telegrams, but there is nothing obligatory about this, and there have been Thanksgivings when the chief magistrate has not set foot in his workshop.

The one pre-eminent and invariable duty of Thanksgiving morning for the president is attendance at divine worship. Having advised other people to repair to the churches on this occasion give thanks it would be accounted odd if he did not do likewise, no matter what the weather conditions. Very often the president has walked to church on Thanksgiving and he is almost certain to find his route lined with spectators who avail themselves of a certainty that does not characterize a president's church going at other times. Almost all our presidents, from Washington to Lincoln, attended Thanksgiving services in quaint little St. John's church—nicknamed the "Church of the Presidents"—which stands just across the park from the White House, but later presidents have worshipped in different edifices. President Taft goes to a Unitarian church about one-third of a mile from the presidential mansion, but Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen go to St. John's, to occupy the pew that for nearly a century has been reserved for our president's families.

Of late years the president has on some Thanksgivings attended two church services in succession, and this brings him home late for luncheon. Just here should be mentioned one of the few changes that have ever taken place in the White House program for Thanksgiving day. Years ago it was the invariable custom to serve the Thanksgiving dinner at noon, but latterly most presidents have preferred to have dinner served at 7 or 730 o'clock in the evening.



An American president is allowed some latitude as to the manner in which he spends the afternoon of Thanksgiving day. He may spend it visiting with his family or reading, but almost invariably the later afternoon is devoted to a confutitional. A long walk is an excellent appetizer for the turkey and cranberry sauce, although some of our later presidents, including both Taft and Roosevelt, have ridden horseback in the twilight of the autumn holiday.



WHERE THANKSGIVING DINNER IS SERVED AT WHITE HOUSE—

WHERE PRESIDENT ATTENDS THANKSGIVING SERVICE—

PRESIDENT TAFT LEAVING CHURCH—

PRESIDENT TAFT — DURING HIS AFTERNOON HORSEBACK RIDE—

It is pretty safe for the president of the United States to count on a house full of people on Thanksgiving. The holiday is recognized as the occasion for family reunions, and when, as in the case of Roosevelt and Taft, there are a number of children, the young people have all come home for the occasion—like as not, accompanied by school friends who account it a real treat to be entertained at the White House over a holiday. In the case of presidents who, like McKinley, have had no living children, there have usually been nieces and nephews and other relatives to make up a merry circle, and one mistress of the White House—the beloved Mrs. Hayes—made it a custom to entertain at dinner on such occasions all the employes of the presidential offices and their families. However, in justice to latter day First Ladies of the Land, it should be explained that such hospitality would be no slight chore when there are dozens of employes, to say nothing of the couple of dozen policemen who are detailed to guard the White House.

In some administrations it has been the custom to spend the evening of Thanksgiving day very quietly at the White House, but latterly, with the principal meal of the day postponed until eightfold, it has been the rule for the dinner party to adjourn to the spacious and historic East room for social festivities of one kind or another. There is always music on such occasions, the $15,000 "gold piano" being ready to hand to one corner of the big room and when young people have been in evidence at at every Thanksgiving celebration in the White House during the past decade there has usually been some dancing—the old-fashioned dances, such as the Virginia reel, being the favorites on such occasions. President Taft, however, is not over fond of dancing. He is likely to spend the evening in social converse with his guests and other "round dooces," and trips the "light lustonic" with the enthusiasm of a man of half his weight.

Good Reasons For Thankfulness

There is no one so old nor so young that he can not scare up cause for thankfulness. If merely for the pharisaical reason of not being as some one else.

When you do not see the necessity of being grateful for what you are and have, go prating for what you have escaped. From this point of view the national holiday will not seem a hollow mockery of your hard luck.

The woman who thinks herself too trouble pursued to give thanks may "take another think" and say fervently: "It is to be grateful that for me:

"The stealing of my morning paper will not ruin my temper and a botched breakfast will not put me in a grouch for the day.

"There is no waiting my time for a barber to make me a daily sight with lather white he converses at length.

"There is open enjoyment in a bit of gossip without feeling bound to pretend my sex never indulged in such a pernicious habit.

"A mirror seed not mean surreptitious glances lest I be thought vain, and if I happen to be bald in my tastes I need not ombue them to somber hues or else go clad in ties, socks, and vests that are the joke of the club.

"There is no need for inventiveness to explain nights out and I can take my pleasure less wearisomely than in whooping it up.

"The first of the month means merely my own bills, or some one to pay them, not settling, accounts for a whole family.

"A contition is an accustomed sensation of waiting to be asked, not a nerve racking fear of being a makeweight at dinner.

"There may be a dozen strings to my bow without achieving the reputation of being a gay deceiver and running risks of getting my hand called if I pay marked attention to two fair ones at once."

A GRIM REMINDER.

"Doctor," said the deepest heavyweight, "give me something to make me weigh less."

"That sort of thing merely makes you dangerously ill."

"I don't care if it does."

"Very well; but I can't see why you should go to all that trouble merely to make taxes a little lighter for your pallbearers."

COLDS

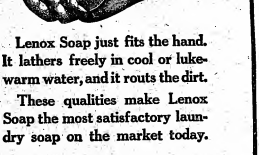
Cured in One Day

As a rule, a few doses of Munyon's Cold Cure will break up any cold and prevent pneumonia. It relieves the throat and lungs almost instantly. Prevents it any time if not too late. If you have Kidney, Bladder, write to Munyon's Doctors. They will carefully diagnose your case and give you advice by mail, absolutely free.

Address Professor Munyon, 53d and Jefferson streets, Philadelphia, Pa.

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING, PRINTING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. MORRISON-DEPARTMENT K. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

When You Think



Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page Illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps.

Lenox Soap just fits the hand. It lathers freely in cool or lukewarm water, and it routs the dirt.

These qualities make Lenox Soap the most satisfactory laundry soap on the market today.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Smokeless Odorless Clean Convenient

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater warms up a room in next to no time. Always ready for use. Can be carried easily to any room where extra warmth is needed.

A special automatic device makes it impossible to turn the wick too high or too low. Safe in the hands of a child.

The Perfection burns nine hours on one filling—giving heat from the minute it is lighted. Handsomely finished: drums of blue enamel or plain steel, with nickel fittings.

Ask your dealer or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION

Not Made by a Trust

A Powder That's Different

The first difference you'll see when you shoot Robin Hood Ammunition is the scarcely-there recoil. That means that all the force of the powder is used to propel the shot or bullet. The powder combustion is progressive—produces velocity all along the barrel.

The kick you notice in other ammunition is caused by a big sudden explosion that works both forward and backward and leaves no reserve force to follow the load from breech to muzzle.

Buy R. H. Hot Shells and Metallic Cartridges from your dealer. Send for our valuable book of ammunition pointers.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION CO.
7th STREET, SWANTON, VT.

Does Not Burn Out Grates

Unlike ordinary gas-house coke and hard coal, Solvay Coke does not burn out fire-pots or grates. It can be used in any furnace, range, stove or grate suitable for coal, and with better results.

Buy Milwaukee

Solvay Coke

"The Fuel Without a Fault"

It is smokeless, sootless and clinkerless—saves time, work and worry. Being practically pure carbon—the best element—you obtain complete combustion—no ashes to sift. Cheaper than hard coal. A clean, healthful, effective and dependable fuel for household use. Have you tried it?

2,000 dealers in the Northwest sell Milwaukee Solvay Coke. Write us for folder and name of nearest dealer.

GAS LIGHT & COKE COMPANY,
Oneida & Kinnickinnic Milwaukee, Wis.
Responsible dealers wanted in every town.

Prejudice Is a Serious Menace

Prejudice is a hard thing to overcome, but where health is at stake and the opinion of thousands of reliable people differs from yours, prejudice then becomes your menace and you ought to lay it aside. This is said in the interest of people suffering from chronic constipation, and it is worthy of their attention.

In the opinion of legions of reliable American people the most stubborn constipation imaginable can be cured by a brief use of Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You may not have heard of it before, but do not doubt its merits on that account, or because it has not been blatantly advertised. It has sold very successfully on word of mouth recommendation. Parents are giving it to their children today who were given it by their parents, and it has been truthfully said that more druggists use it personally in their families than any other laxative.

Letters recently received from Mr. E. M. Connelly, Genoa Jct., Wis., and Mrs. E. Bolch, Hatfield, Wis., are but a few of thousands showing the esteem in which Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is held. It is mild, gentle, non-griping—not violent, like salts or cathartics. It cures gradually and pleasantly so that in time nature again does its own work without outside aid. Constipated people owe it to themselves to use this grand bowel specific.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

In Strange Company.

The Visitor—And what is that gray stone structure over there?

The Courier—Zot ees ze armory for ze soldiers.

The Visitor—Ah, yes. And that long, low building that looks like a train shed—what is that?

The Courier—Zat ees ze arsenal.

The Visitor—I see. And what is the big factory with the immense smokestack?

The Courier—Zat ees ze gr-a-reat iron works where is made ze big gun an' ze shot an' ze shell.

The Visitor—And that peculiar looking structure across the river—the one with the rounded roof?

The Courier—Zat ees ze powder magazine.

The Visitor—And what is this magnificent marble structure with its wonderful dome and countless columns?

The Courier—Oh, zat ees only ze palace of peace!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Hunting Story.

An old backwoodsman that Abraham Lincoln often told of had very heavy, over-hanging eyebrows, and wore big spectacles with brass rims. One day he came rushing into his cabin and seizing his rifle, aimed it carefully through a crack of the door at a great oak tree that stood near, and fired.

"What is it?" whispered his wife.

"A wildcat, Sairy," he said, excitedly, "an' I missed him!"

He hastily loaded and fired again, and then again.

"Now, hold on, Joshua," said his good wife. "Let me look at you. Why, lows-a-daisy, it's nothin' but a little bug on one o' your eyebrows!"—Housekeeper.

Wine Drinking.

France alone pays taxes in a good year on more than a thousand millions of gallons of wine—and there are six bottles to a gallon—while Algeria, planted with vines in the days of the phylloxera, supplies no less than two hundred millions. A tonneau of 200 gallons is a pretty large vessel; a thousand such would fill a good-sized ship; and we have a multiply that by a thousand before we reach the production of this one French colony—one-fifth of all the wine consumed in France.

In High Life.

"So the Fliptons have separated?"

"Yes."

"Do you know any of the particulars?"

"She keeps the poodle."

A BRAIN WORKER.

Must Have the Kind of Food That Nourishes Brain.

"I am a literary man whose nervous energy is a great part of my stock in trade, and ordinarily I have little patience with breakfast foods and the extravagant claims made of them. But I cannot withhold my acknowledgment of the debt that I owe to Grape-Nuts food.

"I discovered long ago that the very bulkiness of the ordinary diet was not calculated to give one a clear head, the power of sustained, accurate thinking. I always felt heavy and sluggish in mind as well as body after eating the ordinary meal, which diverted the blood from the brain to the digestive apparatus.

"I tried foods easy of digestion, but found them usually deficient in nutriment. I experimented with many breakfast foods and they, too, proved unsatisfactory, till I reached Grape-Nuts. And then the problem was solved.

"Grape-Nuts agreed with me perfectly from the beginning, satisfying my hunger and supplying the nutriment that so many other prepared foods lack.

"I had not been using it very long before I found that I was turning out an unusual quantity and quality of work. Continued use has demonstrated to my entire satisfaction that Grape-Nuts food contains the elements needed by the brain and nervous system of the hard working public writer." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. [illegible]

IMMIGRATION PLAN

NORTHERN MINNESOTA DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION HAS $7,000 RAISED FOR MINNEAPOLIS OFFICE.

BANKERS SUPPORT MOVEMENT

To Steer Settlers North—Mill City and Duluth Commercial Clubs Pledge $7,000—W. R. McKenzie to Be in Charge.

Bemidji.—More than $7,000 of the $12,000 needed to conduct a homeseekers' clearing house office and display of Northern Minnesota products in Minneapolis during the coming year by W. R. McKenzie of this city, under the supervision of the immigration commission of the Northern Minnesota Development association, has been pledged.

The Minneapolis Commercial club has pledged $4,000 and the Duluth Commercial club $3,000, while A. G. Wedge, Jr., of this city has received numerous remittances from banks in Northern Minnesota. Mr. Wedge is treasurer of the commission. Each bank in the territory of the association was assessed $10.

In sending its $10 remittance the State Bank of Aitkin added an additional $15, C. P. De Laittre, C. H. Warner and J. J. McDonald, directors, making private donations of $5 each.

"I think you are getting down to good, practical work," is the comment of J. W. Wheeler, who sent $10 from the First National Bank of Crookston, of which he is president.

The First National Bank of Foley remits and Cashier William Lord says: "We think this is a very good scheme to advertise the northern part of the state, and hope that Benton county will get its share of the benefits."

"Glad to send the $10 and hope the good work will be continued," is Cashier J. A. Duffy's comment for the Merchants State bank at Red Lake Falls.

The Clarissa State bank remits, as does also the State Bank of Perley, the latter making the notation: "We consider ourselves pretty well on the outskirts, but think the work is so thoroughly commendable that we are pleased to contribute."

In the letter asking for contributions it was explained that $10,000 would be needed to carry on the work for the first year. The expense of maintaining a display room in Minneapolis is estimated at $150 a month. The plan is similar to the one used in Wisconsin, for which $40,000 has been appropriated, and in North Dakota, where a fund of $60,000 for three years' work has been provided.

All collections are paid to Mr. Wedge and will be paid out only when certified and audited by vouchers. D. D. Tenney of the Crookston Lumber Company of Minneapolis and L. B. Arnold of Duluth compose the auditing committee. The auditing committee's reports are to be examined and passed upon at every quarterly meeting of the commission and a statement of all proceedings is to be mailed all contributors, together with information as to how many persons visit the display rooms and to what points the homeseekers are sent.

HUNTER KILLS GIANT WOLF.

Hibbing Man, Surrounded in a Swamp by Hungry Animals, Uses Gun.

Hibbing.—Frank O'Rourke killed a wolf measuring over six feet from tip to tip in a swamp near Stingy lake. O'Rourke was hunting when he became lost in the swamp. A pack of about 60 wolves scented him and coming up began circling about him. O'Rourke's gun was loaded with buckshot and he fired into the pack. He dropped four but three of the animals soon got up and ran away. The fourth was lamed and the hunter put another shot through its throat killing it. Mr. O'Rourke soon afterward found his way out of the swamp dragging the wolf's carcass after him.

Wolves are thick this winter and many fresh deer bones found along the water courses show that the wolves are playing havoc with the deer.

TUCK'S HEALTH FAILS.

School for the Deaf Instructor Granted Leave of Absence.

Faribault.—Professor C. L. Tuck of the school for the deaf has been granted leave of absence owing to impaired health. He will go to Niles, Mich., for a rest. He has just completed his thirtieth year as a teacher in the school. During this period he has never lost a day from the schoolroom on account of illness.

A change in division went into effect at the school Nov. 11. The squad of farm boys seven in number, who have been studying agriculture under Professor Sanford, have gone back to shop work and another squad has taken their place in the agricultural division.

MANKATO MALT HOUSE LEASED.

Chicago Man Take Over Minnesota Brewery.

Mankato.—S. J. Woolner and William Gottlieb, malt men of Chicago, have leased the local malt house, which has been idle for two or three months, and will reopen it this week, giving employment to fifteen men. Some extensive repairs and improvements are in progress. The malt will be shipped South and made into beer [illegible]

LINDBERGH TAKEN ILL.

Suffers Attack of Acute Indigestion While Eating—Resting Easily At Hospital.

Washington.—Representative Chas. Lindbergh of the Sixth Minnesota district suffered an attack of acute indigestion, and for a time it was feared that he was mortally stricken. Physicians at the Casualty hospital, where Mr. Lindbergh was taken, report that the patient is resting comfortably and is in no danger.

Mr. Lindbergh was dining in the Senate restaurant with a friend when

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH.
Congressman from Sixth District of Minnesota.

he was attacked. Assistance was summoned and he was taken into the open air, and later he was removed to the committee room of Senator Clapp, where he was examined by a physician. Mr. Lindbergh appeared to recover rapidly, and was disposed to go to his apartments in the Hotel Driscoll. Upon the advice of the physician, however, he went to the hospital. Mr. Lindbergh, who arrived here a day or so ago, has been troubled with a bad cold, but has been able to attend to business in his office.

DULUTH MAN HUMAN TORCH.

Employe of Duluth Power Plant Receives 13,000 Volts and Lives.

Duluth, Minn.—Miraculously escaping death when he came in contact with a switch carrying 13,000 volts of electricity at the sub-station of the Great Northern Power company, David Carlson is terribly and perhaps fatally burned, but with a fighting chance of recovery.

Held as in a vise by the current, Carlson became a human torch, without power to move hand or foot. His fellow workmen could do nothing immediately, as to touch him meant death or a predicament similar to that of the unfortunate man. Haste was made to cut off all power. While the suffering man screamed in agony the employee at the station claim that a blue or green halo appeared above his head, fire flew from his hands, and then his clothes burst into red fire.

After the power had been cut off Carlson was rushed to a hospital. The upper part of his body is turned black, but he retains his mentality and talks freely. The superintendent of the station said that Carlson was wiping grease and that he entered a forbidden chamber containing the switch carrying the heavy charge and in some way got into contact with it.

BISHOP McGOLRICH IS HONORED.

Testimonial Banquet and Reception Is Tendered Prominent Churchman.

Duluth.—Four hundred Duluth people, Catholic and non-Catholics, did honor to Rt. Rev. James McGolrick, Bishop of Duluth, at a testimonial banquet at the Spalding hotel. The banquet was preceded by a reception. In the receiving line were Bishop McGolrick, Mrs. A. V. Kelly, president of the Bishops club, and the past presidents of the club. Rt. Rev. A. F. Schinner, Bishop of Superior, and Rt. Rev. Timothy Corbett, Bishop of Crookston, were present besides other members of the Catholic clergy from near-by towns. The speakers were Bishop McGolrick, Senator James P. Boyle, P. E. Dowling, Dr. E. L. Tuohy, and Rev. Hugh A. Floyd, pastor of Sacred Heart Cathedral.

The banquet was arranged by the Bishops club as a tribute to the Bishop who has been prominent not only in church work, but in art, literary and civic circles in Duluth during the 21 years in which he has been Bishop of the Diocese of Duluth.

SHOOT MOOSE IN DULUTH.

Zenith City Streets Prove Good Hunting Ground.

Duluth.—Harry Olson and Enith Collins, New Duluth youths, brought down a 200-pound buck on Commonwealth avenue. They had been hunting in the vicinity of the city and had trailed a deer. They chased the animal until it reached a point in front of an office building, where they shot and killed it.

NEW CHURCH AT FULDA.

Catholic Congregation Will Dedicate Edifice on Thanksgiving.

Pipestone.—One of the most important events in Catholic church circles in southwestern Minnesota will take place at Fulda on Thanksgiving day, when the handsome new St. Gabriel church will be dedicated. Bishop P. R. Heffron of Winona and other leading prelates will be present. The new church has been erected to take the place of the church destroyed [illegible]

SENATOR CLAPP IS RADICAL

MAKES A HOT SPEECH AT FERGUS FALLS.

Attempt to Form Ninth District La Follette League Resulted In Failure.

Fergus Falls.—The effort to organize a Ninth district progressive league in the interest of Robert M. La Follette for president failed here. The local progressive republican league remains in the saddle. Their call had gone out for an assembly of the clans, but they failed to arrive. When the roll was called in the parlor of the Grand hotel, it was discovered that Martin Wideten of Warroad, secretary to Congressman Halvor Steenerson, was the only out-of-town representative present.

Declaring the courts were the last resort of special privilege, Senator Moses E. Clapp declared for the initiative, the referendum and the recall for the judiciary and all other offices. He explained he was not attacking the personnel of the courts, but declared that special privilege was relying about the judiciary.

The address of the junior senator was even more radical than the one made in the East in which he was quoted as referring to "blackest tyranny" in describing the veto of the Arizona statehood bill.

About 400 people were gathered in the local opera house, and the senator was given a good reception by his former fellow townsmen. John H. Grass presided over the meeting, and he introduced Congressman Steenerson as chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Steenerson had come prepared to make known his indorsement of La Follette and did so in a speech in which he charged that the president had forfeited leadership because of his endorsement of Canadian reciprocity. Hugh T. Halbert of St. Paul made a brief address, and was succeeded by Senator Clapp, who attacked the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, assailed the Canadian reciprocity pact, which he said was a measure in the interest of the manufacturer, and by inference charged this to the executive.

The senator declared for the initiative and the referendum as necessary methods of bringing proper government where it belonged. He declared for the popular election of United States senators and approval of the Oregon plan adopted by the last Minnesota legislature. He declared that time was not far distant when women would be given the suffrage.

SOCIAL WORKERS ADJOURN.

Officers for Coming Year Elected—Austin Gets Next Meeting.

Duluth.—Dr. H. L. Taylor, of St. Paul, chairman of the State Sanatorium Advisory board, who addressed the closing session of the twentieth annual conference of Minnesota Charities and Corrections, declared for national health insurance, in order to make a speedy and effective job of coping with the white plague. He spoke on "The Importance of the World-Wide Anti-Tuberculosis Fight," and indorsed the workingmen's insurance plan proposed for Great Britain in a bill recently presented by Mr. Lloyd George.

The annual conference sermon was preached at St. Paul's Episcopal church by Rev. A. W. Ryan.

An afternoon meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. was devoted to the activities of the Associated Charities in the various Minnesota cities.

Courtenay Dinwiddie, secretary of the Duluth Associated Charities, gave an illustrated talk on the housing problem. He showed stereopticon views of slum conditions to be found in Duluth and explained the importance of wholesome home surroundings as a preventive of crime.

Miss Florence W. Hutsinpiller, assistant secretary of the Minneapolis Associated Charities, read an interesting paper on the "Problem Presented in the Passing On," which discussed undesirables and paupers who are sent from one town and community to another.

A. W. Guthridge, formerly secretary of the Associated Charities, in St. Paul, spoke on the relation of the Associated Charities to the general social welfare. The report of the committee on the place for the next meeting was adopted. Austin was chosen.

Chairman Guthridge of the committee on organization reported the following officers named for the coming year: President, E. T. Lies of Minneapolis, at present secretary; first vice president, J. W. Johnson of Litchfield; second vice president, Dr. A. F. Kilbourn of Rochester; secretary, H. F. Burt of Minneapolis; enrolling secretary, George A. Franklin of Austin; elective members of the executive committee, Mrs. C. W. Ames of St. Paul, Miss Jean Poirier of Duluth, Henry Wolfer of Stillwater, S. H. Brown of Simpson, Rev. J. W. Ryan of St. Paul and Dr. L. B. Ohliager of Walker.

POTATO LAND IN DEMAND.

Clay County Sees Many Acres Sold At $38 An Acre.

Barnesville.—Clay County lands are in great demand. The large potato yields and high prices appeal to farmers, and this week 880 acres in the vicinity of Barnesville changed hands, the price averaging $38 an acre. John McGrath disposed of 560 acres to local men. Karl Koenig sold his quarter section to an Illinois man and then purchased the Alex Render farm, containing [illegible]

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Eradicates scrofula and all other humors, cures all their effects, makes the blood rich and abundant, strengthens all the vital organs. Take it.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Stops Neuralgia Pains

Sloan's Liniment has a soothing effect on the nerves. It stops neuralgia and sciatica pains instantly.

Here's Proof

Mrs. C. M. Dowker of Johannesburg, Mich., writes:—"Sloan's Liniment is the best medicine in the world. It has relieved me of Neuralgia. Those pains have all gone and I can truly say your Liniment did stop them."

Mr. Andrew F. Lear of 60 Gay Street, Cumberland, Md., writes:—"I have used Sloan's Liniment for Neuralgia and I certainly do praise it very much."

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is the best remedy for rheumatism, backache, sore throat and sprains.

At all dealers.

Price 25c., 50c. and $1.00

Sloan's book on Horses, Cattle, Hogs and Poultry sent free.
Address Dr. Earl S. Sloan Boston, Mass.

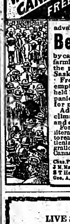
Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief—Permanent Cure

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable—act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion, improve the complexion, brighten the eyes.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature



Brent Good

REMEMBER PISO'S for COUGHS & COLDS

RUPTURE CURED in a few days without a surgical operation. No pay until cured. Write to Dr. F. N. Rowe, 320 Century Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

Why Rent a Farm

and be compelled to pay to your landlord most of your hard-earned profits? Own your own farm. Secure a Free Homestead in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, or purchase land in one of these districts and bank a profit of $10.00 or $12.00 an acre every year.

Land purchased 3 years ago at $10.00 an acre has recently changed hands at $25.00 an acre. The crops grown on these lands warrant the advance. You can by cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Become Rich

Free homestead and pre-emption areas, as well as land held by railway and land companies, will provide homes for millions. 38

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid schools and churches, good railways.

For settlers' rates, descriptive literature "Last Best West," how to reach the country and other particulars, write to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N. D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S. D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
Geo. A. Hall, 125 2d St., Milwaukee, Wis.

LIVE STOCK AND MISCELLANEOUS

Electrotypes

IN GREAT VARIETY FOR SALE AT THE LOWEST PRICES BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

521-531 W. Adams St., Chicago

PROFITABLE TRUCKING

Raising Fruits and Vegetables From the Peanut Fields of VIRGINIA To the Orange Groves of FLORIDA

The 6 So. States traversed by S. A. L. Ry. offers special inducements. Land cheap. Ideal climate, water plentiful. Quick transportation to big markets. In Land of Manatee on West Coast of Florida, raise 2 to 3 crops a year—net $500 to $1000 per acre.

J. A. PRIDE, Gen. Ind. Agt., Seaboard Air Line Railway, Suite 710 Norfolk, Va.

LOOK Reference book catalogue, 225 illustrations of necessary household articles from 5 cts. up. Time and work SAVERS. Interesting and of value to ALL. Send 10 cts. to assure good faith, amount will be credited on first purchase or any 10 ct. article free. ECONOMIC SUPPLY CO. No. 34 Pine Street - - New York City

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package—other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

IF IT'S YOUR EYES PETTIT'S EYE SALVE is what you need

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 47–1911.

REAL ESTATE

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for $12-$18 per acre in the finest mixed farming district in Canadian West. Close to Prince Albert, Sask., splendid market point. Free Government homesteads also within 25 miles of City, crops excellent, settlement coming in fast. For free literature and maps, write Julius S. Woodward, Sec. Board of Trade, Dept. L, Prince Albert, Sask.

INVESTMENTS

10% PER ANNUM. The preferred stock of the Securities Realization Company pays 10% per annum. Dividends are paid on June 21st and December 21st. Shares $100 each. The business is safe and conservative. None of the investor's money is used for rent, salaries or wages. If having bought stock you later on want to sell it, we will sell it for you to the next purchaser; in other words, we will not sell any more treasury stock until we have sold your stock. Full particulars free. Address, W. B. Walrath, 301 Title & Trust Building, Chicago.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE

HORSE SALE DISTEMPER

You know what you sell or buy through the sales has about one chance in fifty to escape SALE STABLE DISTEMPER. "SPOHN'S" is your true protection, your only safeguard, for as sure as you treat all your horses with it, you will soon be rid of the disease. It acts as a sure preventive no matter how they are "exposed." 50 cents and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 dozen bottles, at all good druggists, horse goods houses, or delivered by the manufacturers.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists and Bacteriologists, GOSHEN, IND., U. S. A.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

WOMEN wear W. L. Douglas stylish, perfect fitting, easy walking boots, because they give long wear, same as W. L. Douglas Men's shoes.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The workmanship which has made W. L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

W. L. Douglas shoes are warranted to hold their shape, fit and look better and wear longer than other makes for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom

Shoes Sent Everywhere — All Charges Prepaid.

How to Order by Mail.—If W. L. Douglas shoes are not sold in your town, send direct to factory. Take measurements of foot as shown in model; state style desired; size and width usually worn; plain or cap toe; heavy, medium or light sole. I do the largest shoe mail order business in the world.

Illustrated Catalog Free.
W. L. DOUGLAS, 145 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $2, $2.50 or $3.00 SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes
Fast Color Eyelets Used Exclusively.

The Famous Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

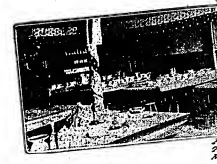
Rayo lamps and lanterns give most light for the oil used.

The light is strong and steady. A Rayo never flickers. Materials and workmanship are the best. Rayo lamps and lanterns last.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps and lanterns, or write for illustrated booklets direct to any agency of

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

The American Thanksgiving Dinner and Its Cost



STEADILY growing in significance year by year and in the fame of its appetizing attributes the American Thanksgiving dinner has become very much of an institution. It might almost be said that it has become more of an institution than the American Thanksgiving, itself. At least if the feast does not overshadow the holiday at home it does in foreign parts. For, be it known, the American Thanksgiving dinner is now eaten "around the world," and in these detached realms of American soil or sentiment the dinner is decidedly the most important feature of the program, for, of course, there is no football game and no mutiee such as many Americans rely upon for Thanksgiving diversion, and in the case of many of the exiles who observe Thanksgiving overseas there is not even a Thanksgiving religious service such as is universal at home.

It is not merely, either, that the officers and men of our army and navy have introduced the Yankee Thanksgiving dinner to benighted lands long to ignorance of its delights. To be sure the epicurean bluejackets and the lads in khaki have been responsible for much of this gastronomic "missionary work," but it is also a fact that American diplomatic and consular officials, and indeed all classes of Americans resident abroad, have done their share to preserve all the traditions of the Thanksgiving dinner as a reality in every transplanted home. Especially, where there is a little "American colony" in an alien environment, is the Thanksgiving dinner right jealously guarded.

But whereas the American Thanksgiving dinner has been winning its way around the world it has likewise come to enjoy more and more prestige at home. The one jarring note in any prescot-day eulogy of the Thanksgiving dinner is to be found in its greatly increased cost over the expense involved for a corresponding menu a few years since. No person who grasped the import of the "high cost of living" issue in the recent political campaign can fail to realize that the matter is a very grave one to the average housekeeper, and especially when it obtrudes itself in connection with a holiday repast which ought to be an occasion for care-free feasting instead of domestic perplexities.

The ooo consolation, if act compeasatioa, in this situation is to be found in the knowledge that our Thanksgiving dinner in this day and generation are vastly better than the like holiday spread of years gone by. It is not so much that the dishes that go to make up the bill of faro for the November holiday have been greatly increased in number or variety. Your hearty diner demands on Thanksgiving the essentials such as turkey and celery and cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie, which were the stand-bys of the feast in the days of his father and his grandfather before him. The point is that some of the eatables are unquestionably more flavory than were their counterparts of several decades ago, and—with all due respect to the kind that mother used to make—some of the modern recipes seem to put it all over the old-times in garnishes and the preparation of puddings and pastry, etc.

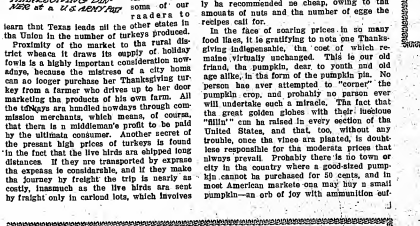
And, speaking of the changes that have come about, take the case of the toothsome turkey, headliner of the whole holiday menu. It would be futile to try to convince the high liver of the twentieth century who revels in his milk-fed or chestnut-fed turkey from Rhode Island or the middle west, that his forefathers ever enjoyed anything so delicious. Certainly turkeys have increased in size, too, judging by the average weight those that find their way to market. However, this latter development is clearly traceable to the tendency of turkey raisers to devote themselves almost exclusively to the Bronze, the largest of the six standard varieties of turkeys.

However, there are two sides to this turkey story, and the housewife who presides over small families are the ones who have had brought home to them the disadvantageous side of the boom in the size of turkeys. With the big bronze birds weighing from 15 to 36 pounds apiece—and usually somewhere near the former figure—crowding the market it is becoming every year more difficult for the buyer of a family of two or three people to find a satisfactory six, seven or eight pound turkey. It really begins to look as though the small families would be driven to hotels on Thanksgiving or else be compelled to take in boarders or entertain all their friends at the holiday dinner.



Turkey buying, too, is the phase of the Thanksgiving marketing where the increased cost of living most severely pinches the man with the stationary income. A dweller in any of our large cities may consider himself decidedly in luck these days if he succeeds in getting a tender turkey at Thanksgiving for 25 cents per pound, and he is much more likely to be asked any figure up to 28 or 40 cents per pound, which prices have prevailed every Thanksgiving in recent years in the New York and Boston markets for the choicest birds. The people of the central west have an advantage over eastern turkey raisers, because illinois, Indiana, Ohio and other states along the backbone of the country are the great centers of the turkey industry, although it will doubtless surprise some of our readers to learn that Texas leads all the other states in the Union in the number of turkeys produced.

A STANDBY OF THE THANKSGIVING MENU

Proximity of the market to the rural district whence it draws its supply of holiday fowls is a highly important consideration nowadays, because the mistress of a city home can no longer purchase her Thanksgiving turkey from a farmer who drives up to her door marketing the products of his own farm. All the tdkeys are handled nowadays through commission merchants, which means, of course, that there is a middleman's profit to be paid by the ultimate consumer. Another secret of the present high prices of turkeys is found in the fact that the live birds are shipped long distances. If they are transported by express the expense is considerable, and if they make the journey by freight the trip is nearly as costly, inasmuch as the live birds are sent by freight only in carload lots, which involves the rental of a special type of car for the journey and pay for the service of a man who is sent along to feed the birds en route.

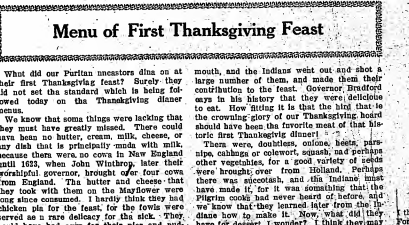
Owing to the mounting prices of turkey and an occasional shortage of supply — although there is no prospect of a turkey famine this year—has induced an increasing number of families all over the country to substitute chicken, duck or goose for the traditional Thanksgiving fowl. The cost is much less and the satisfaction equally great—once a housekeeper has freed himself from the tradition that Thanksgiving without turkey would not be Thanksgiving. Then, too, the increasing number of vegetarians and persons who have adopted a diet of nuts or other meat substitutes have devised some very ingenious proxies for the Thanksgiving dinner—one-meat dishes that even simulate the appearance of a turkey. However, these new-fangled dishes can scarcely be recommended as cheap, owing to the amounts of nuts and the number of eggs the recipes call for.



In the face of soaring prices in so many food lines, it is gratifying to note one Thanksgiving indispensable, the cost of which remains virtually unchanged. This is our old friend, the pumpkin, dear to youth and old age alike, in the form of the pumpkin pie. No person has ever attempted to "corner" the pumpkin crop, and probably no person ever will undertake such a miracle. The fact that the great golden globes with their luscious "filth" can be raised in every section of the United States, and that, too, without any trouble, once the vines are planted, is doubtless responsible for the moderate prices that always prevail. Probably there is no town or city in the country where a good-sized pumpkin cannot be purchased for 10 cents, and in most American markets one may buy a small pumpkin—an orb of joy with ammunition ef-

Menu of First Thanksgiving Feast

What did our Puritan ancestors dine on at their first Thanksgiving feast? Surely they did not set the standard which is being followed today on the Thanksgiving dinner menus.

We know that some things were lacking that they must have greatly missed. There could be no butter, cream, milk, cheese, or any dish that is principally made with milk, because there were, no cows in New England until 1633, when John Winthrop, later their worshipful governor, brought over four cows from England. The butter and cheese that they took with them on the Mayflower were long since consumed. I hardly think they had chicken pie for the feast, for the fowls were served as a rare delicacy for the sick. They could have had eggs for their pies and puddings. Since they raised pumpkins they might have had pumpkin pies, if they made them with water.

In the ocean there was great abundance of fish, oysters, and other shellfish. Of course, there was none of their national dish, prime roast beef, no veal, lamb, mutton or pork. There was plenty of deer, which would be a good substitute in venison. But they had something that we like better than anything else on Thanksgiving day. Wild turkeys were very abundant in the woods and Zeke about Pilgrim mouth, and the Indians went out and shot a large number of them, and made them their contribution to the feast. Governor Bradford says in his history they were delicious to eat. How fitting it is that the bird that is the crowning glory of our Thanksgiving board should have been the favorite meat of that historic first Thanksgiving dinner!

There were, doubtless, onions, beets, parsnips, cabbage or colewort, squash, and perhaps other vegetables, for a good variety of seeds were brought over from England. Perhaps we know but-they learned later from the Indians how to make it. Now, what did they have for dessert, I wonder? I think they may have had some sort of pudding with huckleberries for plums. I doubt if they had much sweetening for their pudding and pumpkin pies, as their stock of sugar and molasses was very limited. Perhaps they had a substitute. There were fine, wild grapes in the woods, and they had doubtless dried a store of wild strawberries, cherries and plums. They surely did not have any mince pies, since the Pilgrims thought mince pies were very wicked, and savored of Romanism. So they condemned those who ate and made them.

ficient for at least a couple of pies—for the modest sum of four or five cents. The newspapers have given prominence this year to the exploit of an Indiana farmer who has raised a pumpkin as large around as a wagon wheel and weighing 150 pounds. However, the record in pumpkin growing is claimed by a Colorado planter, who sets credit for producing a few years ago a pumpkin weighing more than 300 pounds.

Cranberries are a Thanksgiving commodity the price of which fluctuates widely in different years. And yet we feel that we must have them, almost without regard to price, for if Thanksgiving is incomplete without the turkey, certainly the turkey is incomplete without the cranberry sauce. Cranberries are cultivated to any extent in only three states, namely, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and New Jersey, and the producing area being thus restricted it naturally follows that when there comes a lean year the shortage of the ruddy berries is quickly reflected in the price. However, cranberries are never so very much of an extravagance because it requires such a modest portion to make up a batch of cranberry sauce. When cranberries are plentiful they sell wholesale as low as $2 per barrel, but a few years ago, when there was a cranberry famine, the price went as high as $20 per barrel.

The business side of the problem of supplying a Thanksgiving dinner for the American people is by no means the least interesting phase of this subject. The city of Chicago alone receives during the week or ten days before Thanksgiving as many as half a million turkeys valued in the aggregate, at wholesale prices, at much more than a millions dollars. From Cape Cod, Mass., the greatest cranberry growing district, there are shipped each autumn more than one-third of a million car loads of cranberries and the major portion of this harvest finds its way to Thanksgiving dinner tables. Many car loads of celery from Michigan and other states swell the total cost of our Thanksgiving dinner to millions.

The Cat's Thanksgiving Soliloquy

I'm just about tired of waiting
For my Thanksgiving treat;
I see them about the table,
And they eat, and eat, and eat.
They do not think of poor pussy,
Who has had no food to wait;
Why doesn't some one remember
That it's growing very late.

And haven't I smelt that turkey
Since into the oven it went?
If they'd give just one drumstick,
Why, then I'd be content.
But no, they eat them talking
And laughing around with glee;
I wish that some one among them
Would throw down a hoce to me.

There's that greedy little Teddy,
There's that boy named Ike pinta;
And that turkey's growing smaller
At a very rapid rate,
And see Jack's face all shining
With gravy up to his eyes.
I wonder they take no notice
When they hear my hungry cries.

Oh, dear! There's dessert to follow,
The puddings and pumpkin pies
And the fruits and nuts and candy,
And oh, how fast times flies!
Ah, there's gentle little Ethel,
She's so loving and so kind,
She's bringing me some turkey bones
And a grateful cat she'll find.

FRANK H. SWEET.

AN OLD FRENCH "CASTLE"

Fort Niagara at the Mouth of the Niagara River Has Interesting History.

Buffalo, N. Y.—No place in America possesses more interesting history than old Fort Niagara at the mouth of the Niagara river. The building shown in the illustration is the old French "mess" house or "castle," as it is now called. It was begun by the French in 1726 and finished in 1725. It is said to be the oldest existing masonry work west of Albany. Its dimensions as planned by the French were 105x47 feet. The brick used in laying the mata floore was brought from France and much of the stone for the walls from Frontenac.

At Fort Niagara.

It is the tradition that the "castle," which is a very strong building, was erected by strategem. A considerable, though not powerful, body of French troops had arrived at the point. Their force was inferior to the surrounding Indians. The French obtained consent of the Indians to build a wigwam, and induced them with some of their own officers to engage in an extensive hunt. The materials had been made ready and while the Indians were absent the French built the "castle." When the hunting party returned at night the French had advanced so far with the work as to cover their faces and to defend themselves against the savages in case of any attack.

GRAPPLING A SAFETY PIN

How a Physician Removes One From the Throat of a Patient.

Chicago.—The modern physician is not obliged to guess at what is the matter with a Man's stomach or his bronchial tubes; if the proper instruments are at his disposal he can see for himself what the trouble is quite as well as if he were on the outer surface of the body. If his patient has swallowed a button or a pin the practitioner can see just where it is with a simple instrument, and can have it under his eye while he is extracting it.

Devices by which the interior cavities of the body could be seen were invented, if not actually used, over a century ago, but none could be really successful before the introduction of he electric light. Now improvements that are really marvelous are in the hands of the better surgeons and the interior of the esophagus and stomach are easily explored and doctored. The illustration shows the method of taking an open safety pin from the throat of a patient. The ring is slid past the pin, and the pin is then closed for removal

Removing a Safety Pin.

Mother Dug Grave for Boys.

Argo, Colo.—Not far from the finished digging a grave for three boys, Mrs. Anna Covie was taken in charge and sent to the County hospital. She had borrowed a spade from a neighbor and told him she was going to dig a grave for her children and bury them alive. He watched her until the grave was ready, and then notified the police. The woman had dressed the boys for the occasion.

Lit Match in Powder Mill.

Kansas City, Mo.—Lighting a match after he had crawled into a shed to sleep, Harry Sutton was killed in an explosion of tons of powder. The place he had intended to inspect was the wareroom of the Excelsior Powder mills, near this city.

Thanksgiving.

I thank thee, Life, for many, many gifts;
For wealth of bloom and tender song that lifts
My life the heated highway's path above;
But most of all I thank thee, Life, for Love!

I thank thee for the body's health; for friends;
The daily bread thy kindly bounty sends;
For all the goodly things that are or were;
But most of all I thank thee, Life, for Her!

For Her I count of good thine utter store
That satisfies avarice. Thou hast no more.
No, boon for wife one covet wish from me
When I have that whose giving begars thee.

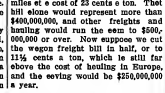
THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1911. NO. 36.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Nation Loses Millions by Bad Roads



WASHINGTON—In the United States there are in all about 2,500,000 miles of roads of one kind or another—enough to reach around the earth 100 times. Much of this, however, is of a character not worthy of the name road. Some of it is little better than a rock pile, and others are wide tracks through ditches and swamps. Of the whole only seven miles in each hundred can be said to have eny improvements whatever, and on the most of it the improvements are such as to be unworthy of note. Altogether not two per cent. can be called first class.

The roads in the United States may not be the very worst in the world, but they are bad enough as a whole, that is certain, compared with those in other civilized countries. Europe is a network of magnificent highways. In Germany, France and England one can ride for miles without striking a stone or a puddle. This does not add to pleasure alone. It is the means of saving millions of dollars each year in those countries where main roads are maintained.

The cost of hauling over our country roads is now about 23 cents per ton to the mile. In the European countries as long as 15 years ago the cost had been reduced to 10 cents, and it is much lower today.

According to the report of the Interstate commerce commission in 1906, our railroads handled more than 800,000,000 tons of freight which originated on their respective lines. All this had to be taken to and from the cars. A great deal of it was hauled many miles et e cost of 23 cents e ton. That bill alone would represent more than $400,000,000, and other freights and hauling would run the sem to $500,000,000 or over. Now suppose we cut the wagon freight bill in half, or to 11½ cents a ton, which le still far above the cost of hauling in Europe, and the saving would be $250,000,000 a year.

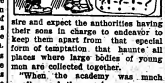
Government Busy Cleaning Out Opium

SLOWLY the federal arm is sweeping in the opium fiends. The recent raid here by internal revenue agents, when $8,000 worth of the drug, prepared for smoking, was confiscated and the distributing organization for the District of Columbia broken up, was one of a series of big hauls in the larger cities of the country in recent months, as a result of which several hundred thousand dollars' worth of the drug is now in government possession.

In the last five months just such hauls, many larger and more important, have been made by means of which agents have in many cases been able to trace the drug to the illicit manufacturers, thus dealing the most serious blow of all. In Terre Haute, Ind., where the richest haul of all was made, nearly $100,000 worth of the drug was found when the inspectors raided a small river shack where the crude opium was being prepared for distribution to smokers throughout the middle west.

"We are learning how to go about it. We are discovering the haunts of them," said a special officer. "It has been a hard job, because there is no prohibition regulation. There is a bill for that purpose before congress now. The only way to stamp out the use of opium and cocine primarily is through interstate regulation.

"Since the importation of opium was prohibited in 1909, a process of manufacture hse been evolved which has left the door wide open again. The crude drug is imported in very simple end can be carried on quietly for years. The crude opium is bought from druggists who, without an interstate regulation law, can import the crude drug and distribute it ot will.



Mammoth Guns to Guard Panama Canal

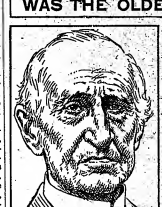
THE greatest gun ever built will become part of the coast defense at the Pacific end of the Panama canal. The giant weapon is now at Sandy Hook, N. J., but according to orders received from the war department it will soon start on the most remarkable journey ever taken by a weapon of its size. It weighs 180 tons, is 50 feet in length, with a 16-inch bore and power to throw a 2,400-pound projectile a distance of 23 miles. The gun is being moved because war authorities believe New York is in less danger of being attacked than the west end of the Panama canal. There no ship that pokes its nose above the horizon will be safe against the monster gun for with a single well-directed shot it could send to the bottom the largest war craft the world knows today.

Although the fortifications for the canel have already been fully planned, the details regarding them are kept secret. All that is known is that the two ends of the ditch will be defended by seven forts in all, three at the Atlantic end and four at the Pacific opening. These works will constitute two systems of forts—the four at the Pacific end operating together, and likewise the three at the Atlantic end. The fortifications will all be underground. A hostile fleet approaching from the ocean will see nothing but a slope of grassy greensward, whether on the islands or on the mainland. There will be nothing visible to shoot at, for the great guns will be hidden in concrete lined pits, from which they are hoisted momentarily by their disappearing carriages to deliver their fire.

Bar Unbidden Guests From Naval Ball

RECENT agitation over the new restrictions placed upon midshipmen at the naval academy in the matter of guests at academy dances has brought forth from officials of the navy department a remarkable statement. It was disclosed that heretofore the doors of the naval academy have been opened wide on the evenings of dances, and all presenting themselves at the doors dressed as for a dance have been admitted without question.

Several embarrassing situations have developed from time to time involving midshipmen in serious trouble. Henceforth, it is stated, the academy officials will require that no person be admitted without presenting a card of invitation, and the names of all persons to whom such cards are issued are to be listed.



"The invitations to balls and hops at the naval academy," says the statement, "have been either a source of misunderstanding or a cause for stamping to stir up clash of prejudice. Few fathers and mothers with sons at the naval academy who would care to see their sons in charge of endeavor to keep them apart from that special form of temptation that haunts all places where large bodies of young men are collected together.

"When the academy was much smaller and the number of guests correspondingly fewer, there was little difficulty in keeping a careful scrutiny at the doors of the ballroom; but the number of guests attending has made this practically impossible.

"Is it too much to ask that only those invited should attend, and that cards of admission should be issued to authenticate the guests? Is there any society, society or assembly of any kind which is not protected by some similar precaution?"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

WAS THE OLDEST CHICAGOAN

Fernando Jones, Chicago's oldest inhabitant, and for years the most picturesque old man among the survivors of the city's pioneer's days, is dead. With the death of Mr. Jones comes the breaking of a connecting link between Chicago as a swampy village—with one bridge and a major population of Indians—and the Chicago of today, fifth city in the world.

Mr. Jones was born in Forestville, Chautauque county, N. Y., on May 26, 1820. When four years old the family moved to Buffalo, where he received his early education and where he was once thrashed by his schoolmaster, Millard Fillmore, who later became president of the United States.

When sixteen years old Mr. Jones followed his father to Chicago, where the elder Jones had established a hardware store. He came in a sloop carrying a cargo of hirdes. Able to deal with the Indians by virtue of his now knowledge of an Indian tongue, he obtained employment a year after his arrival at the land office then in Chicago.

WON HOT MAYORALTY FIGHT

The hottest political campaign in the history of Philadelphia came to an end in the election of Rudolph Blankenburg for mayor.

The campaign really began months previous to the election, when William S. Vare, a contractor, announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination and was beaten by Geo. H. Earle, who had the support of United States Senator Penrose. This somewhat split the Republican ranks, for the fight over the nomination left several sore spots. Blankenburg's entry into the race, representing the independent Republicans—and of Democrats, intensified the interest in the campaign.

There are few better known citizens in Philadelphia than Rudolph Blankenburg, who has been fighting in the reform ranks for thirty years. Mr. Blankenburg spent $750, according to the itemized account of his election expenses filed. He did not receive money from outside resources but paid all his personal expenses from his own pocket. Two years ago the regular Republicans elected their district attorney by 43,000, while the usual Republican majority is from 75,000 to 100,000.

ITALIAN DENIES BUTCHERY

General Caneva, having been requested by the Halten government to give ocmie explanation regarding the charges of brutality and alleged slaughter of unarmed Arab women and children in Tripoli replied as follows:

"If reproch may be made of us, it is only for our exceeding indulgence and benevolence toward the natives. A full demonetration, of the is the order and declaration which advised the soldiers to treat the Arabs on friendly terms, respecting their traditions. It was a treacherous surprise and many soldiers were shot, the ambulance corps of the Red Cross was attacked, and the sick and wounded were horribly killed in the town by shots fired from roofs. Women cried, 'Revolt against the infidels.' The soldiers were surprised and massacred, and so it was necessary to guarantee our safety and that of the Europeans. The soldiers were ordered to shoot men shooting against us and to arrest those keeping arms and munitions. Hassane Pasha admitted it was indispensable that we should act as we have done, considering the Turks and in Tripoli a wild band preaching a holy war and using such balls as the dum-dum."

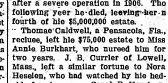
FLEW ACROSS THE COUNTRY

The longest flight ever made by an aviator was that completed by Calbraith P. Rodgers, who landed on the Pacific coast after a trip by the air route across the country. Rodgers left the Sheepshead Bay race track, New York, and when he reached Pasadena, Cal., he had traveled a distance of 4,321 miles, being 49 days in completing the journey. He met with a number of mishaps on the way and his machine practically had to be rebuilt several times on the long journey across the continent. His actual flying time was three days and ten hours. He traveled at an average rate of 81 miles an hour while his machine was in the air. The daring aviator had many nerve-racking experiences on his journey.

Rodgers is a newcomer to the field of aviation. He became a pupil of the Wright brothers at Dayton, Ohio, only last July. His first exhibition of consequence were made during the meet held in Chicago, hour while his machine was in the air. The daring aviator had many nerve-racking experiences on his journey.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Foreigners a Problem for New York



NEW YORK.—Perhaps no other city in the world quite equals New York in the great diversity of its population and in the variety of the interests engaging the population's attention. Constantinople would seem to be the only rival. In New York pretty much every civilized nation has its representation. There are gathered Jews, Italians, Greeks, Poles, Armenians, Chinese, Hungarians and so on. Many nationalities not only have representation, but they have large ones. There are today undoubtedly many more Jews in New York than ever had permanent residence in Jerusalem at any given time. They constitute about one-sixth of the 5,000,000 of population.

So it comes about that New York is not a typical American city. It is too crowded with people who do not have typical American conditions in their homes, who do not have American ideals before them and who do not go about their duties with the American spirit. In brief, New York is thronged with multitudes who are living in a different age of the world and who are dominated by other ideas of morality, duty and the like. Their ideas of cleanliness are not those of the typical American. It is doubtful whether American institutions mean much to them. Foreign thoughts, purposes, ideals, business methods, manners and customs are swamping the city.

As one moves about and comes into contact with New York employee he will be fortunate indeed if he does not suffer from their bad manners, not to say insolence. Probably some of this is due to the conditions of a great city, and would occur even under the best of circumstances. However, the presence in the city of such enormous masses of ignorant and incompetent people, saturated with unAmerican ideals and purposes, cannot help having a tremendous and bad influence upon others. The conditions in New York may constitute a very great problem indeed.

Nurses Find Cupid in the Sick Room

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The trained nurse appears to play a more prominent part in the romantic news of the day than any other professional women. Handy a day passes but the newspapers chronicle some marriage, will, love affair or litigation in which a trained nurse figures. Miss Eleanor Peregrine, who nursed Walter E. Durpee, the New York youth with a broken neck for twelve years, is by agreement among the Durpee relatives, to receive the $200,000 bequest left her in his will. Miss Ida Corey Murphy, who nursed Chalmers Dale, a stock exchange broker, two years, is suing for $30,000 for her services because Mr. Dale didn't remember her in his will. The marriage of John Hamilton Lodge, son of United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, to Miss Caroline Crowninshield, a trained nurse who attended him a year, is another proof that Venus in a nurse's cap and gown is a most enticing lady.

Charles E. Hallwell, of the American Tobacco company, married Miss Ruth Alice Cole, who had been summoned to nurse him in New York city after a severe operation in 1906. The following year he died, leaving her a fourth of his $5,000,000 estate.

Thomas Caldwell, a Pensacola, Fla., recluse, left his $75,000 estate to Miss Minnie Burkhart, who nursed him for two years. J. B. Currier of Lowell, Mass., left a similar fortune to Nora Hesselon, who had watched by his bedside for six years. Sarah B. Herrison, sister of former Governor Herrison of Connecticut, left a $100,000 estate to Miss Eva R. Gilker, who had been her faithful nurse for three years. The list could be continued indefinitely.

Men marry their nurses so frequently that the instances are beyond all counting.

Work 47 Years on Same Street Cars

CHICAGO.—Chicago has the oldest street car conductor and the oldest street car motorman in the world, both in age and point of service.

They are Michael Moran, sixty-six years old, conductor, and Patrick Brady, sixty-five years old, motorman. They started driving the same car in 1864 and are still working together on West Sixty-third street, from Central Park avenue to Fifty-sixth avenue.

Their first car was an old bus mounted on trucks and hauled by horses. That was soon after Chicago adopted "street cars." Within a few years from then the first cable horse cars were operated in Chicago, and the old buses were abandoned. Then Moran and Brady got a regular run on State street.

Moran and Brady have worked on all of the old routes, and, with the exception of short periods, never have been separated since they started.

For a year after the fire of 1871 they were separated, and after Grady took his first electric car on Wentworth avenue world's fair year the two again were on different cars for about two years and a half. Since then they have been on the same car and for three years continuously.

Neither has missed more than an average of three days a year because of sickness since 1864. Counting holidays and all, they say they have not missed more than an average of eight days a year.

In the eight years they have been running electric cars they have traveled an average of 100 miles a day, 36,500 miles a year, making a total of 292,000 miles.

Women Said to Be Real Home Wreckers

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Women, not men, is the real home-wrecker, according to statistics that are being compiled from the divorce court records of the state of Kansas. So far as the statistics go, 80 per cent of the divorce suits now pending are brought by wives, while virtually the same percentage of the suits are brought on so-called trivial charges.

Practical statistics show that in Jackson county, in which Kansas City is, there were three suits for divorce filed for every five marriage licenses issued, and this startlingly high percentage prompted an investigation into the causes. Of the suits filed that were within 30 per cent of the plaintiffs were women and 80 per cent of their suits were brought on trivial charges, that less than 10 per cent of the suits filed by the men were based on the trivial charges, while 90 per cent were based on the more serious charges of desertion, criminal conduct or neglect of duty. Of the suits filed by women statistics show that 70 per cent are based on the charge of cruelty.

Women, too, the statistics show, have apparently less regard for the future of their children. Whereas, when men are plaintiffs in divorce suits, the average is only one child to a family, 300 suits taken consecutively from the docket, in which women are plaintiffs, show nearly 1,000 children, or an average of a little more than three to the family.

Incidentally, the statistics on a side investigation show that mothers-in-law as a very much maligned person, and that case is written mother-in-law has taken the son-in-law's part against her daughter on more than one occasion.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM, - - MINN.

WOMAN'S ABILITY.

The late Premier Stolypin's recognition of the capacity of women for public business took a very practical form, which is pleasing to the women of Russia in general as well as to the strong-minded Dowager Empress. It is displeasing to men who are candidates for official honor, as it makes women in certain cases their successful rivals. It is true that by an amendment ordered after the original promulgation of the order only one in five of the civil service staff can be a woman; nor can a woman rise higher than the seventh of the twelve ranks in the service, says the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin. So men will continue to monopolize the coveted title "High Excellency," and the chance that a woman will be a cabinet minister is very remote. One noteworthy feature is that women receive the same pay as men in positions of equal rating. Women officials are to receive full pensions, even if they marry before leaving the service, and their children will get the same pensions as if they had fathers in the service. When both parents serve, they will get almost double pensions. In all cases, the women are to have the same salaries, lodging and traveling expenses as the men. This latter feature of the Stolypin system is the one that is likely to make the deepest impression on the women school teachers of the United States.

Alfred Tennyson Dickens from far away Australia plunges Boston femininity into gloom by observing that in respect to ankles "the beefy sort greatly outnumber those graceful appendages that linger so much longer in a man's memory," says the Boston Globe. This is one of the effects of the recent rainy weather, and is not to be taken too seriously. Besides, so far as our observation goes, the criticism is grossly exaggerated, not to say unfounded. Mr. Dickens must have poor vision or perhaps he spent all his time in the shopping district where, to be frank, the display of ankles is very prosaic. Our women who are striving to be beautiful of course will feel deepest over the unartistic picture that Mr. Dickens frames. Our ladies are accustomed to reduce their weight or increase their avoirdupois, as the case may be, to become more Venuslike, but nobody yet has ever advertised an ankle-reducing emporium, nor does it seem possible that such an establishment could operate to advantage. Probably this Dickens man, a perfect Shylock on fashion, would suggest that a pound of flesh be taken from each ankle, so that it might linger longer in his memory.

The thing about Paris that seems to have most impressed our great fellow American, Edison, is that the Champs Elysees is a twilight lane in the country compared with the great white way in the hilly old New York. It is to be presumed that this is the fault of Paris' age. Being some thousand years the senior of Manhattan, she is rather averse to casting too much illumination on her features—in a sense dwelling has been regarded as a part of humanity, it is said. It takes irrepressible youth to stand the dazzle of Broadway. But if Paris doesn't burn so many electric lights, it has charms that Gotham cannot match.

When she learned that her husband had fallen heir to $1,000,000 a woman who had gone to Reno for the purpose of securing a divorce decided to withdraw her application. Now if she can convince the gentleman that she loves him for himself alone all will be well.

Jamaica has a new banana disease. With modern methods of tracing the origin and communication of disease, it should be easy to handle it. If the banana tree were a slow grower, the outlook for this Jamaica industry would be worse.

A historian declares that the "early Christian fathers protested against the wearing of false hair." But as usual, under such circumstances, they failed to say anything about padded shoulders.

A Gotham minister says that happiness is the best gymnastic. This is a valuable hint to hundreds who obtain their wives to wear artificial complexions.

Only in essentials does the spiral glide performed by an aviator differ from that of the bibulous clubman returning home late.

They tell us that this is a busy world, but one gains a different impression by watching a crowd around a scoreboard.

Mr. Edison's remark that aviation needs scientific revision should give the aviators pause.

REBELS SHELLING CITY OF NANKING

IMPERIAL GENERAL IS AMONG THOSE KILLED IN FIRST DAY'S FIGHTING.

TO FORCE ROYALIST SURRENDER

Yuan Shi Kai Unable to Form a Cabinet and Is Becoming Desperate —Canton in the Hands of Brigands.

Nanking, Nov. 27.—(1:00 a. m.)—After more than half a century of silence, the hills overlooking the walled city of Nanking, the ancient capital of China, are swarming with rebels determined to overthrow the last strong hold of the Manchus, south of the Yangtse.

From the Tiger Hill fort, for several hours guns spoke repeatedly, while farther up along the northeastern range, from the top of Purple mountain, overlooking the Ming Tombs, for a 15-mile semi-circle westward to the Yangtse, smaller forts scattered shells into every section of the city. So far as is known the casualty list is not large. General Wong, second in command of the defenders, is among those killed.

Lion Hill's reply to the bombardment was at first sharp, but later it became feeble. During the morning there was some sharp fighting at the eastern and southern gates. The revolutionaries advanced in three columns, one along the railway, the second behind Purple Hill, and the third along the river. The Imperialists fired upon a red cross train coming in on the railway.

About 4,000 of General Chang's rawest recruits are now outside the city with machine guns, but a number have surrendered.

The Imperialists attempted a sortie, but were driven back with considerable losses. The Tiger Hill batteries meanwhile, were pounding shells into Lion Hill and succeeded in silencing the Manchu batteries there.

The object of the first seizure of Tiger Hill was shown by the early appearance of four rebel cruisers and later of other warships. Doubtless they will quickly reduce the fewer sections and drive the defenders to the south.

The viceroy of Nanking and the Tartar general, in fear of General Cheng, the Imperialist commander, have taken refuge in the Japanese consulate, in which only the consul remains. He is the sole official representative of foreign interests now in Nanking. The consulate is well guarded by marines.

The attack can only be considered a slight foretaste of bigger things to follow, because the main body of the revolutionaries is steadily investing every side and bringing the big guns into position on every eminence.

The plans of the attacking force are not revealed. The revolutionaries may not attempt to rush the city, but may prefer to bombard steadily and await its surrender. But if breaches are made in the walls of the city and the rebels enter, it is believed that General Chang and the loyal troops will make a desperate stand.

Pirates Imperiling Steamers.

Hong Kong.—The West river is swarming with pirates and traffic to Wachow, in Kwang Si province, is seriously imperiled. The steamship companies are grumbling and said they are considering the suspension of their services, but are continuing for the present with armed crews.

Great indignation has been aroused by the attack by pirates on the British steamship Sheen a few days ago, when Chief Officer Nicolson was murdered, and the people are becoming clamorous for intervention of some kind to put down the lawlessness.

Canton is said to be in the hands of brigands. Grave troubles are feared. General Lung is almost powerless to maintain order and contemplates flight.

Yuan in Desperate Straits.

Pekin.—Premier Yuan Shi Kai is practically without a cabinet, only the presidents of the minor boards having accepted offices. The finance board is without a minister and the vice minister left Pekin, after informing a personal friend that he did not intend to return. The military activity on the part of Yuan Shi Kai is considered a forlorn hope.

Thirty foreigners, most of them Americans, arrived here from Tai Yuan Fu. They were given safe escort both by the rebels and the Imperialists.

Two Miners Are Buried Alive.

Bessemer, Mich., Nov. 27.—Two miners lost their lives and a third barely escaped the same fate when a cave-in occurred in the Yale mine.

Kills Two With a Hatchet.

Kenosha, Nov. 27.—Tortured by the mental picture of his headless wife and her companion, whom he slew Saturday night, Pasquale Marchesi went to a priest and confessed the double killing which had not been discovered. The young avenger of his honor was turned over to the police, who are closely guarding him. According to Marchesi, he went home Saturday night and found his wife, Rosina, and Louis Scopino, a family friend, together. Blinded by rage, he seized a razor and severed the head of his wife from her body. Scopino fled, but Marchesi overtook him and killed him with a hatchet. Marchesi's home was in Chicago.

A BEGINNING ON THE MESSAGE

JOHN D. IS BIDDEN

ROCKEFELLER AND HIS ALMONER INVITED TO REFUTE MERRITT BROTHERS' TESTIMONY.

STEEL HEARING IS HALTED

Duluth Man Tells Stanley Committee That His Family Was Frozen Out of Iron Company by Standard Oil Head.

Washington.—The Stanley house committee investigating the United States Steel corporation will ask John D. Rockefeller and Rev. F. D. Gates of Montclair, N. J., his almoner, to reply to the charges made before the committee by the two Duluth (Minn.) men, Alfred and Leonidas Merritt.

The Merritt brothers charge that Rockefeller, through Gates as his agent, took from them in 1893 $10,000,000 in Mesaba Iron mines and Duluth, Mesaba & Northern Railroad securities to satisfy a call loan of $4,320,000. These securities were afterward sold to the United States Steel corporation, and are now a part of that corporation's vast holdings.

After Leonidas Merritt had testified that he had gone to New York with $10,000,000 in securities, had met Mr. Rockefeller and two months later had nothing except a "chance to walk from New York to Duluth on the ties," the steel committee had an executive session.

Previously Chairman Stanley had announced that Mr. Rockefeller would be subpoenaed. The committee decided, however, merely to ask Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Gates if they wished to appear and to give them an opportunity to be heard.

Leonidas Merritt, on the witness stand, said that he had gone to New York and had an interview with John D. Rockefeller relative to the formation of the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mine company, which the Merritts were forming to take care of their mining and railroad interests. Speaking of the interview, Merritt said: "Rockefeller said he would be proud to be my partner and backer. He also said that he never speculated, and for that reason would not take any stock in the consolidation. He would just keep the bonds in the proposed Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mine company that we were organizing." Then the Merritts were frozen out.

BOOM FOR GOOD HIGHWAYS

Roads Congress at Richmond, Va., Favors Cullom's Measure—May Receive Indorsement of Meet.

Richmond, Va.—The postoffice department's interest in highway improvement was made evident at the good roads congress by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General P. V. DeGraw, who came representing Postmaster General Hitchcock. Mr. DeGraw is the active head of the rural free delivery system, whose carriers travel 400,000,000 miles over country roads each year.

Senator Cullom's bill for the construction of seven national highways between Washington, D. C., Boston, Seattle, San Francisco, San Diego, Austin and Miami will probably receive the unanimous indorsement of the convention.

Blow, Whistles, Avoid Holdups.

New York.—The superintendent of the Metropolitan Street Railway company has ordered 300 police whistles for the employes of the road. One of the conductors recently avoided a holdup by blowing a police whistle.

Two Killed in Blast.

New York.—Dynamite that filled a large storehouse exploded at Seventy-second street and Columbus avenue, killing two men and injuring several others. Fragments of the building were hurled in all directions and the explosion was heard for miles.

TAR GIRL ON STAND

KANSAS TEACHER RECITES DETAILS OF ATTACK.

Victim Accuses Barber of Offering Insults and Leaving Her in Hands of Men.

Lincoln Center, Kan.—Mary Chamberlain, the Shady Bend school teacher, told details of the attack upon her when she was tarred by a number of men at the trial of Edward Ricord and four others before a crowd of spectators that filled every inch of space in the courtroom.

Apparently at her case, Miss Chamberlain answered the questions of the attorneys as to details of the "tar party." Once she became angered at questions propounded by the defense and flashed back a sharp answer, but she quickly recovered her even demeanor.

Her story of the affair was told amid a dead silence in the courtroom, as every spectator leaned forward eagerly to hear her dramatic recital.

Her narrative set forth how Edward Ricord, a village barber, decoyed her out into the country on the pretense of going to a dance, his alleged inamita stripped her of her clothes and then left her.

But he recovered quickly. The fortitude of the older Beattie had more to do with the recovery than the soothing offices of Rev. Benjamin Dennis, who has labored with the condemned prisoner.

With Spartan self-control, the father kept his emotions in check, although the tears raced down his cheeks and his lips twitched pathetically. No words were spoken, but the young widow and mother's face felt the stern repression of his parent, for his sobs were strangled and he straightened.

"Good-by," he said and turned away. Neither father nor brother trusted to speak, but each made their way from the penitentiary.

THIRTY KILLED IN PLUNGE

Entire Passenger Train Falls With Bridge in France Into Flood Swollen Stream.

Paris.—Thirty passengers lost their lives by a breaking down of a bridge over which a train was passing on the State railway near Sanaun.

The train, which was bound from Angers to Poitiers, carried about 100 passengers. While crossing the bridge over the Thouet river the structure, which had been weakened by recent floods, gave way, sending the entire train into the swollen stream.

PACKERS ARE REFUSED STAY

Chief Justice White Says Full Supreme Bench Must Pass on Application for Delay.

Washington.—Chief Justice White refused to grant a stay in the trial of the Chicago beef packers indicted for violations of the Sherman anti-trust law.

He asked the attorney to make the application to the full bench as he considered the matter of too much importance for him to pass upon alone.

Aid Asked for McNamaras.

Atlanta, Ga.—Every paid official of Typographical union No. 48 will be asked action in the United States and Canada was asked by the American Federation of Labor convention in session this week's wages to the fund for the defense of the McNamara brothers.

Prince Adolph Under Knife.

Stockholm.—An operation for appendicitis was performed on Crown Prince Gustaf of Sweden. The condition of the patient is reported satisfactory.

Wilson Sits for Bust.

Washington.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is sitting for a bust of himself. Solon H. Borglum, brother of Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, is the artist.

DEATH OF BEATTIE IS DEAD

WIFE SLAYER DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR IN EARLY MORNING AT RICHMOND, VA.

DOES NOT CONFESSION

Spends Last Day in Preparing for Final Plunge Into Eternity—Tells Pathetic Leave of Aged Father and Brother.

Richmond, Va.—Henry Clay Beattie took his final plunge into the unknown one hour after the sun had risen, and paid the penalty demanded by the law for the murder of his young wife last July.

At five o'clock Beattie was awakened by the arrival in his cell of his two spiritual advisers, Rev. J. J. Fix and Rev. Dr. Benjamin Dennis.

They prayed with him until a short time before seven o'clock, when his breakfast was served. Just at seven the twelve witnesses of the electrocution were summoned, who made tests of the electric chair to make sure that it was all right. Then at 7:20, with the clergymen preceding him, and a guard on each side of him Beattie started for the death chamber. Arriving there he was placed in the chair and the guards, assigned for the duty, placed the straps about his arms and legs and adjusted the helmet on his head.

A signal was given and in an instant Beattie's body was rigid from the current of electricity that passed through it, and in two minutes thereafter he was pronounced dead.

As soon as the doctors said life was settled the body was turned over to an undertaker, who was present in another part of the prison with Douglas Beattie, the brother. It was some later time taken to Mount cemetery, in South Richmond, and laid in the burial plot alongside that of the wife he killed. The Owen family, relatives of the slain bride, are said to have interposed no objection to this. Beattie's last full day upon earth began for him at 7:30 in the morning, when he arose and breakfasted. He had just finished a couple of cigarettes after this when his ministers arrived. First they talked, then prayed, with the boy kneeling upon the hard concrete of his cell between them. These who say his calm was the ministers particularly have done that he was apparently sincere in his declarations of faith in the eternal.

For a few brief moments Beattie broke down and it was feared his remarkable nerve and stoicism were about to desert him. This was when his took leave of his father and brother Douglas.

When the parting came the son held his head on his father's breast and sobbed convulsively.

One arm was flung across his father's shoulders, the other hand gripped that of his brother.

But he recovered quickly. The fortitude of the elder Beattie had more to do with the recovery than the soothing offices of Rev. Benjamin Dennis, who has labored with the condemned prisoner.

With Spartan self-control, the father kept his emotions in check, although the tears raced down his cheeks and his lips twitched pathetically. No words were spoken, but the young widow and mother's face felt the stern repression of his parent, for his sobs were strangled and he straightened.

"Good-by," he said and turned away. Neither father nor brother trusted to speak, but each made their way from the penitentiary.

RAMON CACERES IS SLAIN

President of Santo Domingo Is Assassinated—Wife at U. S. Legation.

Washington.—Ramon Caceres, president of Santo Domingo, was assassinated by political malcontents in Santo Domingo city, according to reports to the state department.

The American charge d'affaires reports that President Caceres was leaving the house of Louis Vasquez, and when he had made a call, when he was shot by two men, Luis Tejera and Jaime Mota, Jr. The wounded man fell a short distance from the American legation, where he was pursued and fatally shot by the assassins.

Friends carried the dying man to the American legation, where he passed away half an hour after the attack. The assassins fled to San Cristobal.

FAIL TO FIND $100,000 FUND

Experts Report to Senators That Evidence Is Lacking in Hines and Tilden Book.

Chicago.—Neither Edward Hines, lumberman, nor Edward Tilden, banker, was the custodian of the $100,000 fund nor any other fund which was to be used to "pay off the friends of William Lorimer in the United States senate," according to experts' reports submitted to the senatorial investigating committee. The evidence for the defense came in response to the previous testimony of C. S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester company.

Cities War on Cigarettes.

Bloomington, Ill.—A campaign against cigarette smoking was launched here by Thomas Bigler, Chicago, representing the Anti-Cigarette league of America. Similar campaigns are under way in Danville and Joliet.

BALKED BY POLICE

OVER 200 WOMEN ARRESTED IN ATTACK IN PARLIAMENT.

Suffragettes Determined to Introduce Resolution Are Disperced.

London.—The suffragettes of London made their fearless assault on parliament and were repulsed by a large force of police, after they had done considerable damage by stone throwing.

For a time the police withstood the attack of the women and prevented them from entering the house of commons. More then 200 women were arrested. There were many minor casualties, the women resisting the police bitterly and forcing them to use their clubs.

Thousands of women resorted to desperate tactics, picking up stones and hurling them at government buildings. Hundreds of persons were struck by the flying missiles, and in some cases injuries were severe.

The situation grew so menacing after the window smashing was begun that the police reserves were called out, and as they came dashing upon the scene in patrol wagons the crowd scattered and inside half an hour had dispersed.

The demonstration was planned against the meshood suffrage bill which now is in a fair way of passing parliament.

STEAMER ASHORE ON ISLAND

Liner Prinz Joachim, With W. J. Bryan Aboard, on Rock—Passengers Taken Off.

New York.—Twenty-five miles off her course, the steamer Prinz Joachim in the Atles service of the Hamburg-American line, is ashore on Semane island, an uninhabitable rock about a mile wide and eight miles long, thirty miles south of Fortune island. Dehomas.

W. J. Bryan.

A message received here stated that the passengers and mails had been transferred to the Ward liner Seguranca.

William Jennings Bryan, his wife and son were among those on board.

TELLS OF PATTERSON KILLING

Eye Witness Describes How Woman Shot Husband in Denver—Death Penalty Is Asked.

Denver, Colo.—Evidence tending to prove that the killing of her husband by Mrs. Gertrude Patterson on September 23 was cold-blooded murder was introduced by the prosecution at the trial of the slayer.

A. B. Shugert, a carpenter, living near the scene of the shooting, testified that he was working about the yard of his home when he heard two shots fired in rapid succession. Witness said that he saw Mrs. Patterson shoot her husband the third time, after his attention had been attracted by the first two shots.

In opening the case Prosecutor Benson made only a short address. He told the jury the state would prove the murder was premeditated and unprovoked and that the state asked for a first degree conviction and the extreme penalty provided by law.

CHINDA TO SUCCEED UCHIDA

Appointment of New Japanese Ambassador to United States Is Gazetted in Tokyo.

Tokyo.—The appointment of Viscount Satsum Chinda, the Japanese ambassador at Berlin, as ambassador to the United States was gazetted. He will succeed Baron Uchida, who returned to Tokyo from Washington to assume the ministry of foreign affairs.

Banker Cummins Is Guilty.

New York.—William J. Cummins, former president of the Carnegia Trust company, was found guilty by a jury of larceny in connection with his use of an alleged fund of $750,000 from the Nineteenth Ward bank. Sentence was reserved.

Jilted Girl Gets $8,000.

Des Moines.—Miss May A. Nolan, school-teacher, was awarded a verdict at Indianola of $8,000 against W. H. Grynn, banker of Cumberland, Ia., who had promised to marry.

LOST RANGE STOCKS

STEEL INQUIRY COMMITTEE HEARS MERRITT'S STORY OF $1,000,000 DEAL.

JOHN D. PLAYS CONFIDENCE GAME

Blames Preacher Emissary for His Downfall—Declares He Was Not Schooled in Ways of "Money Trust."

Washington, D. C. — Alfred Merritt of Duluth, first president of the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern Railroad, who styled himself a "timber jack" unacquainted with the methods of the "money trust," told the house steel trust investigating committee that through loans of less than $1,000,000 from John D. Rockefeller he had lost his holdings in the Mesaba iron mines and the railroad properties now owned by the United States Steel corporation and estimated to be worth today as high as $700,000,000.

Merritt and his brother, Leonidas Merritt, who will testify, were among the original mine owners in the Lake Superior region, and part owners and builders of the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern railroad. The elder Merritt declared that he was induced through F. D. Gates, Mr. Rockefeller's secretary, "in charge of his charitable work," to put up all his holdings as collateral for loans from Mr. Rockefeller in 1892 and 1893. One loan was for $142,000. Others were for various sums.

Gates, he said, was a Baptist preacher, in whom he had confidence, and who assured him that by placing a call loan he would not be pressed and that he would be taken care of.

Rockefeller Foreclosed.

The witness related how, two months after he had put up his collateral with Mr. Rockefeller, during the panic of 1893, Rockefeller called the loan, giving him $4 bonus to raise $420,000; that being unable to raise the money, he and his brother lost their property.

He admitted that Mr. Rockefeller offered him an opportunity to buy his property back within a year, but declared that the old king told financiers "to keep hands off" and that he was unable to raise money anywhere.

Dispute as to the nature of the transaction arose when D. A. Reid, counsel for the United States Steel corporation, stated that the Merritts had made actual sales of their mine holdings to Rockefeller in order to raise money, and that they never had taken advantage of the opportunity to repurchase within a year.

Another brother, Mr. Reid declared, had redeemed his stock and secured his pro-rata share at $208 per share when it was taken over at the time of the organization of the United States Steel corporation.

The Merritts were first parties to a transaction with Mr. Rockefeller and others in determination of the Lake Superior Consolidated Iron mines. In this the mines of the region and the Duluth, Mesaba & Northern were consolidated. Out of this, a suit by the Merritts against Mr. Rockefeller developed on the ground that misrepresentation of mining properties were turned in by the Rockefeller interests. Subsequently, Rockefeller paid the Merritts $525,000 in settlement for this.

C. H. Marts, engineer of the railroad, testified that he was forced by Mr. Rockefeller to sell his stock in the road because he was an employee and that he had been ordered to pad the cost of the road in a report to the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission in order to justify ore rates charged.

WINS HER ALIENATION SUIT.

Duluth Woman Deserted by Husband Ten Days After Wedding.

Fergus Falls. — Julia Schabbtchneider of Duluth secured a verdict in the district court in this city against her father-in-law and mother-in-law for $1,500 for alienation of the affection of her husband. The parents reside in Dverdrui township, this county, and are wealthy pioneers. Their son accepted a position as a streetcar conductor in Duluth and was married thero without their consent. They learned that a home had been issued through a newspaper announcement, and Schabbtchneider left at once for Duluth. The plaintiff says that as a result of the visit, her husband left her after they had lived happily together for ten days, and that his parents gave him a farm on his return home. She sued them for $10,000 and some rather spicy testimony was brought out in the course of the trial.

GARDENS IN VIRGINIA LOTS.

Citizens Form Club With Object of Reducing Living Cost.

Virginia.—The Virginia Garden club has been organized to encourage gardening. Members of the club are requested to pledge themselves to put in and develop a small garden in their yards or on vacant lots in the city or vicinity next summer, agreeing that in case they fail to keep the pledge each person will donate $1 to charity. The object is to lower the cost of living.

RIIS ON TEACHERS' PROGRAM.

Will Address Southern Minnesota Association on Feb. 16.

Mankato.—Jacob Riis will make an address on the second day of the annual meeting of the Southern Minnesota Teachers' association, to be held in this city Feb. 15, 16 and 17. Efforts are being made to secure Professor M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin and a former member of the faculty of the Mankato state normal school. Miss Mabel Cornez Normal, Ill, whose specialty is rural work, will speak the second and third days. George F. Howard and Mr. Lambson of the university extension department of the Minnesota university will be asked to appear. It is expected that from 500 to 600 teachers will be present.

JACOB RIIS.

BEAULIEU CASE IS BEGUN.

Attorneys to Be Given Wide Latitude in Bringing Out Evidence.

Fergus Falls. — Judge Morris in the United States court here gave attorneys to understand that he would allow wide latitude in the introduction of evidence in the big Beaulieu case. The defendants, the Beaulieu, Robert G. Beaulieu, John L. Fairbanks and John Leachy, were employed by the Nichols-Chisholm Lumber company in negotiating deals for timber on Indian lands and are accused of having conspired to defraud the government by inducing fullbloods to represent themselves as mixed bloods in order that they might be able to sell lands under the provisions of the Clapp act. The government claims it will be able to prove that, to this end, witnesses were induced to make false affidavits that Indians themselves were induced to swear falsely, that many of them signed deeds and affidavits without knowing what they were signing and that where signatures could not be obtained they were forged. The defense takes vigorous exception to these claims made by the government attorneys and claims that no evidence of this character is admissible under the indictment. Judge Morris ruled in the case at any rate thing tending in any way to prove a conspiracy case was admissible, the points of evidence will be numerous and being very broad. President Nichols of the Nichols-Chisholm Lumber company was the first witness, and he testified to the fact that the defendants were in the employ of his company and that they received salaries and commissions. Saleries were $75 to $100 per month.

TRAIN SINKS INTO SWAMP.

Duluth, — Marooned on the top of a Soo Line passenger train, which settled 7 feet in the swamp, 21 miles east of Moose Lake, 100 passengers were exposed to the ravages of the Northwest winter, while the rescuing party with food and water made its way on foot to the scene of the accident. Most of the trashing in the Deerwood country is over swamps, built up by years of filling.

When on the most treacherous part of the way near Blackhoof, the entire train began to settle. It did not take it long to sink to a depth of seven feet. The engine turned over as it settled. Only the roofs of the coaches are visible above the marsh.

The surrounding country is sparsely settled, but news was brought to Moose Lake by one of the passengers who walked the entire way. He stated that the passengers were suffering from lack of water and food. The wrecking crew was sent out from Superior, Wis., but was unable to get anywhere near the wreck. The passengers will be taken to the wrecking train which is several miles distant from the accident and brought in to this city.

"Salvation Nell."

"Salvation Nell," which comes to the Bijou, Minneapolis, the week of December 3rd, is an animated comic section of East Side life in New York. The play has fools, all the gaiety, laughter, strife, noise, gossip, of that life, yet with no didactic purpose, other than to show that from the lowliest and most unexpected sources in life, truth and beauty may spring.

Rural Carrier 74 Years Old.

Medelia.—Asaph Putnam, who for ten years has supplied patrons on Rural Route No. 1 with their daily mail, is believed to be the oldest rural carrier in Minnesota and possibly the United States. December 2 he will round out his seventy-fourth year. He began his work as mail carrier from the Medelia postoffice September 1, 1901, and during the first year his route covered thirty-one miles, as the city mail route out at Medelia at that time. He has driven 44,200 miles on his route.

DULUTH RATE CASE IS BEGUN

PROTESTS BROUGHT BY ZENITH CITY TRADE BOARD.

Millers Claim Cereal Is Diverted to Points Where Low Rates Are in Effect.

Duluth. — Many rate experts and attorneys for the railroads of the Northwest and for various public, commercial and private organizations are in Duluth for the hearing of the grain rate case of the Duluth board of trade against the railroads affected. The hearing is before Commissioner Clark of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Although the Duluth case is the last set, the hearing will be more comprehensive for it also takes in actions brought by the Superior, Wis., Commercial club and the Milwaukee chamber of commerce, the three cases being considered together by the commission. The Chicago board of trade, Minneapolis Traffic association, North Dakota railway commission and other organizations effected have intervened.

The cases are of far-reaching importance and should their issue be successful for Duluth, the whole grain rate system of the Northwest will be readjusted. The charge made by the Duluth board of trade, which charge is also made in the Superior complaint is that grain rates in effect from North and South Dakota and southwestern Minnesota points to the head of the lakes are unjust and unreasonable in and of themselves and are unduly discriminatory against the head of the lakes and in favor of all other primary centers, notably the Twin Cities, Chicago and Milwaukee.

The charge is made that by reason of the unjust rates prevailing, Duluth millers are handicapped in competition with those of Minneapolis and that such grain that should properly go through the head of the lakes gateway is diverted to Chicago and Milwaukee by reason of the more favorable rates in effect to those points.

To Rush Grain on Water.

Indications point to a big rush of grain shipments from the Duluth-Superior harbor for the next few days that will be further accelerated should the weather continue cold and freeze an early end of the navigation season. Efforts will be made to get nearly 8,000,000 bushels down before Dec. 1, as well as a large quantity of flour, which Minneapolis milling interests are now seeking to secure tonnage for.

The result of this rush will be an advance of rates. Boats are chartered at 1½ cents if they can be loaded at not more than two storage and but scattered cargoes would not be taken for less than 1¾ cents.

Duluth-Superior stocks are 10,000,000 bushels of wheat, as well as a quantity of oats, corn and rye. Efforts will be made to get the bulk of this on the water, as the wheat coming forward from the Northwest will more than supply the local flouring mills. Minneapolis has 13,000,000 bushels of wheat in storage and the millers will be unable to handle much of their flour with the new Flour City boats and are now after wild tonnage and are arranging for shipments over the regular line packegs freigh'ers.

OYGART GETS LIFE.

Anoka Murderer, Shows Insolent Bravado in Court.

Minneapolis, Minn.—"James Dygart, you can be thankful that capital punishment has been abolished in Minnesota," said Judge A. E. Giddings of Anoka county when Dygart pleaded guilty to the murder of Mrs. Frank Bolton and her cousin, Frank Rhodes, on the Bolton farm, near Anoka, September 10.

"Can't we have it back again? That would suit me," retorted Dygart.

He was at once sentenced for the state prison for life.

These statements followed Dygart's cold-blooded avowel to the court of those crimes and the murder of John Hofeleide in Poplar, Wis., to which he confessed:

"I don't believe I did wrong and I believe that I have the right to take any man's life at any time.

"I guess it was born in me.

SHORT COURSE IN SCHOOL WORK

Caledonia.—An innovation in public school work has been started here. A short course for boys and girls will open Dec. 1 and continue until March 16. No entrance examination is required and the course is open to all boys and girls of good character, over 15 years of age. The following subjects will be taught: Agriculture, manual training, cooking, sewing, hygiene, English, practical arithmetic, and household science. In addition there will be a corn judging contest, a corn and berley show, a week for the farmers, and several lectures by experts from the extension department of the University of Minnesota.

BUFFALO RATE HEARING DEC. 16

Interstate Commerce Commissioner to Pass Affecting Flour City Lines.

Duluth.—December sixteen is the date set for Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord to hear arguments on the petitions of the Lehigh Valley and Lackawanna railroads to receive freights from the independent steamers at Buffalo and Surry and New York on and from, respectively, the petitioner claims is in violation of the fourth section of the act to regulate commerce.

Christmas Bags Made of Ribbons

If Athena revisits her proteges, the spinners and weavers, the divinity must rejoice at the products of their looms. Even a goddess might wonder at the beauty and splendor of ribbons. In them the colorist indulges his delicatest and most gorgeous fancies. This allows their use in dress accessories, giving to the toilette a touch of that "splendor dear to women."

Just now the vogue of the fancy hand bag (nearly all of them made of brilliant ribbons) helps solve the problem of selecting a Christmas gift. Bags are always a good choice, but never so popular as now. Six new ones are shown here, made of various kinds of ribbon No. 1 is a vivid rose-colored confection made of brocaded and plain satin ribbon. Two panels of brocade are set together with a puff of the plain ribbons. The ribbon is rounded at the top and the edges and seams finished with tiny, blue glass beads, strung on a thread wire. A casing is run in about the top and narrow satin ribbons serve to close and suspend the bag. It is finished with two little bead tassels at the sides.

No. 2 is a bag of black moire lined with deep purple faille ribbon. It is decorated with tiny roses made of ribbon in purple and old gold and foliage in dull green, sewed flat to the bag. Small black silk tassels finish the bag. It is suspended with narrow purple satin ribbon terminating in little rosettes of loops.

No. 3 pictures a brilliant flame-colored bag made of four strips of satin ribbon and four of gold sequze ribbon. Narrow satin ribbon suspends the bag terminating in ends finished with e rosatte at each side. A tassel made of the narrow ribbon finishes the bottom. The bag is drawn up by an elastic cord run in a casing about the top.

No. 4. This lovely handbag is made of brocaded faille ribbon showing dark red and purple roses and dull green foliage, on a black ground. It is lined with dark red and bound with old gold braid. A loop of the flap fastens over a button covered with the gold braid. Gold thread tassels and a gold cord finish the bag.

No. 5. This new "aeroplane" beadkerchief bag is made of pink Dresden ribbon, with printed flowers. It consists of six lengths shirred over supporting wires. It is tied with narrow pink satin ribbon and suspended by this with rosettes of loops finishing the ends.

No. 6. A bag of brocaded satin is lined with dark netter blue falls ribbon and finished with many loops and ends at the sides, of narrow blue satin ribbon. It is drawn up at the top by a casing through which the narrow ribbon is run.

Julia Bottomley.

DISTRIBUTING THE GIFTS

Some Novel Ways That Will Please the Recipients and Add to the Occasion.

Should one wish something more original than Christmas gifts awkwardly thrust into one's hands by the giver; should the time-honored stocking fail, here are several new ways that may cause excitement in present distribution.

Some member of the family or one of the maids can enter the breakfast room, where the table is prettily decorated with greens, but no gifts are displayed. She should be heavily veiled, dressed in a long rain coat and carry two or three cotton umbrellas, furled.

Her appearance will excite surprise. Some of the children will offer to assist and from the umbrella will fall the packages, gaily tied and clearly addressed. Anything that may suffer from a tumble should be tied to the rim.

In one household the large family has decided that each person shall hunt up some novel way of gift presentation. No one will know what the other has selected, but the element of surprise will be emphesized.

A mother who wished to avoid confusion at the breakfast table has decided that no presentation should be made then. The family will be asked to put their various presents in a certain room on Christmas eve. All are to be labeled and the children, after the candles are lighted on the Christmas tree, will be allowed to enter and marvel and laid away for the

FARM AND ROAD IMPROVEMENT

MANAGEMENT OF CLOVER HAY

Experience Shows It Possesses Higher Feeding Value When Cut and Cured Green as Possible.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Experience as well as exact experiments prove that clover hay possesses a higher feeding value when the crop is cut and cured as green as possible. The majority of farmers allow their clover to get too ripe before they begin the work of cutting and hervesting.

Every practical feedar of dairy cattle and young things knows the value of rowen as food for milk production and growth. What is the matter with making rowen out of the whole of the crop?

Handy in Clover Field.

The clover should be cut as soon as it is in blossom. It cannot be cured as quickly, but it can be cured, and we shall be more sure to get a good second crop.

Much of the feedfing value of the clover depends upon how the crop is managed after it is cut. Here and here is where we find many practical farmers who fail to agree on how the clover should be handled, although they are all working with one object in view, and that to cure it as quickly as they can and get the crop secured before unfevorable weather delays the work and ruins the feeding value of the hay.

We make a practice of cutting in the forenoon when may be tedded and raked and cocked in the afternoon and allow it to remain in the cocks and cure for two days and open up the third day about nine or ten o'clock in the morning and begin hauling to the mow in the afternoon.

When the clover is bended in this manner it will be cured and the loss of leaves will be reduced to a minimum. Clover that is handled in this mennar will retain its delightful aroma. Of courses, wet conditions will often upset our most carefully laid plans, and we shall be compelled to cut away from the barn, rain showers and do the best thing possible under the circumstances.

The hay tedder is a necessity if we get our hay into the barn in the best condition, and on day's good sun and two teddings will do more toward curing a crop of clover than two days' exposure to the sun and weather; besides, when the clover is cocked up and left there is but little danger from rainy weather unless it continues for several days, and even then the loss will be much less than it would be if the clover were left as when first cut in the rowe as it was raked up.

A Disk Plow.

CARE OF FARM IMPLEMENTS

All Machinery Should be Overhauled as Soon as Season Is Over and Repairs Made.

One of the most serious leaks on the farm is in the poor care taken of farm implements when not in use. As soon as the season's work is ended and other machinery, no longer needed this year, should be carefully cleaned; the rust and dirt should be removed from the bearings, and these should be carefully oiled and all bright parts should be given a coat of paint. Preparations should be made for replacing any broken or defective parts.

If time does not permit of all this, make a memorandum to be governed by on some stormy day, and then see that everything is put in readiness for the next hervesting or haying season. Get the repairs and place them on the machines at once. Take care of the plows. Get them under cover. Clean and grease the bright parts, so that, when wanted next spring, they will scour and save the time so many farmers lose in putting their implements into working order.

Importance of Humus.

Remember the importance of having plenty of humus in the soil, and there is no best and most economically supplied by growing clover and practicing good use of the manure that results from keeping live stock to consume the most grown upon the farm.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1906, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Outlet Easy To Open

Tell the lumbermen what to do, says their month organ at Thief River Falls. That is easy! Employ a few men to go up, and break that log jam at the ontlet of Red Lake and there would be plenty of water in the river. The Red Lake Falls Gazette, which had an investigation made of the conditions as they exist says: "The present conditions indicates that not the least effort has been made to clear the channel. The logs were run into the stream and allowed to remain there. There can be no excuse for such negligence when it is known that by the removel of the first jam the situation would be relieved."

"The lumber company should be compelled to remove the log jam located a short distance below the ontlet and to clear the lake outlet. That done, there is no doubt that with the present stage of water in the lake the river would again be a large stream."

The above shows how easy it would have been to have opened Red Lake River when this complaint was first made, but the lumber companys though is was cheaper to load up the representative of that "outfit" in St.Paul, that call themselve goverment engineers, with "hot air," and get a report that Red Lake was drying up. (See report published in another coulum), than to hire a few log drivers to open that ontlet after they had blocked it up.

What is the use to keep howling to governor Ebehart about an extra session of the legislature? He is in the same fix as the government engineer at St.Paul. They can't represent the interest and sentiment of the people, for the reason that they have made other arrangements.

If nothing is done to open that log jam and the lumber companys turn that twenty five million feet of logs loose with all the surplus water in Red Lake, we are likly to have the worst flood ever know. But the lumber company might get old Shunk to stand on the bank and holler: "Never mind boys, swim out, but don't blame the lumber company as it is because Red Lake is ABOVE its normal level and an old settler informs me that, this has not happend before for 42 years."

Those who could not visit the the state fair and see the display of Minnesota products should attend the great land show to be held at St. Paul Dec. 12, to 23. The state of Minnesota occupies [illegible] square feet of floor space, and in addition to this the railroads in the northern part of the state have five hundred square feet, giving Minnesota the largest display in the show. Everything will be shown from garden truck and small fruit to minerals from farm crops to furs and live fish.

The Thief River Falls Times does not seem to know what our politics are. Why my dear sir, we are a progressive Republican, [illegible] is progressive. The trouble with [illegible] is that he is twenty years behind the times, and is [illegible] about putting a [illegible] on an old saw mill twenty years ago. Someone had ought to pinch him and wake him up. Take him down on the road east of town, and let him see the long string of farmers from eastern Pennington county headed for Thief River Falls with their farm produce. After he has had a good dinner, take him for a walk around the city, to your banks, to your stores, hotels, and other places of business, and let him see how busy the business men are, with evidence of prosperity on every hand, and all this in view of the fact, that his old saw mill has not had a pay day for nine months. Wake up! Get progressive. Represent the interest of the farmers, the wealth producers of this country, and not a rich lumber corporation, who have made their millions robbing northern Minnesota of its pine.

Old Shunk Digs In.

The following is a copy of the report sent from the Engineers at St.Paul, which shows why the war department did not compell the lumber company's to open that log jam, and let the water out of Red Lake into this river.

2nd Inorsement.

United States Engineer Office,
St.Paul Minn. August 15th, 1911.

Respectifully returned to the Chief of Engineers.

This matter was investigated by Mr. P. F. Joice, Junior Engineer, WHO VISITED THE CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS and attempted to make an examination of the river. This was impossible as ther is not enough water to float a row boat and there is no roads leading to the outlet. Howerer, Mr. Joice was able to get A GREAT DEAL OF INFORMATION. The City of Thief River Falls has for the past twelve years used water power for the pupose of electric light. During the present year the supply of water faild, and the city officials made an examination of the river. Their account indicates that Red Lake is 3-½ feet below its normal summer level. An old resident there states that the same conditions prevailed 42 year ago, between which time and the present, the stage of the lake has been remarkably uniform. This fall of 3-½ feet cuts off the discharge toalmost nothing with the consequence that logs cannot float. While the upper part of the river is full of logs, they are there only because there is not enough water to take them and they do not constitute a jam; as all accounts agree that they lie side by side with little or no piling up. I think it is quite evident from Mr. Hunt's letter that lack of water is the chief difficulty. If the trouble was due merly to obstructions in the river these obstructions would soon be overflowed. The only prospective relief is from rainfall. There have been rains recently in various parts of the State of Minnesota, and it is to be hoped that conditions may have improved.

I recommend that no action be taken in the matter.

Francis R. Shunk,
Lient. Col. Corps of Engineers.

Read the above over twice, you men that are aquainted with the facts as they exist, and see if you blame THE SUNBEAM, for being a little radical on questions of so much importance to the settlers living along this river. Our interests was handed over to the logging company in a job lot by men in high positions under this government. Cattle do not protest when they are sold in job lots to the butcher, but we are not cattle.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. October 23rd, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ole J. Hanson, of Hilda Minnesota, who on July 7th, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1201, Serial No. 04488 for Lot 8 Section 6 and Lots 8, 6 & 7, Section 7 Township 153 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilheim Michelet U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 8th day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Frank Sayage, John Olson Sordal, Olaf B. Hanson, of Hilda Minn. Sivert Satre, of Thief River Falls Minn.
Aurthur P. Toupin, Register

Not a Joke.

Giles—Take two letters from money and one will be left.
Miles—Is that a joke?
"Yes."
"Well, I know of a fellow who took money from two letters and it was no joke. He got twelve months in jail."

"Where did you get that het?"
"At the hat store," replied the funny man.
"I am surprised. I should think such an original person would buy his hats at the shoe store or the tin shop."

Notice For Publication.

First Pub in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th,
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 4th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that John Krbecek, of Highlanding Minn. who on March 2, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1057, Serial No. 04411, for S. E. ¼ Section 10 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 19th, day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Martin Bozdeck, of Erie Minn. Joseph Schlehofer, Henry Eliason, of Highlanding Minn. Charles W. Verhachek, of Thief River Falls Minn.
Aurthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov 24, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 17th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ignatz Stastny, of Turgerson Minn. who on April 11th, 1905, made Homestead entry No. 1123, Serial No. 04456 for N. E. ¼ Section 24 Township 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 29th, day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
John Markuson, Michael Kassa, Eugene H. Besancon, Theodor Nelson, all of Torgerson Minn.
Aurthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 22, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Perley P. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 5th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 04809, for N. W. ¼ Section 22 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhiem Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 3rd, day of January 1912.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Peter P. Korstad, Peter H. Thoreson, Charles Palmer, George L. Palmer, all of Highlanding Minn.
Aurthur P. Toupin, Register

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."
A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill.
Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without griping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return the price. [illegible]

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 1st, 1911
Department of the Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 24th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that, Thoma Twedeo, of Kratka Minnesota, who on [illegible] 1904, made Homestead entry No. 879, Serial No. 01107, for N. W. ¼ Section 9, Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Withleim Michelet U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 10th day of January 1912.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Ludvig Larsun, Carl Jeoson, Christian O. Nygaard, Peter Suland, all of Kratka Minn.
AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. November 4th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given, that Martin Bozdeck, of Erie Minn., who on December 31st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1018 Serial No. 04388, for N. E. ¼ Section 11 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City at Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 19th day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Joseph Schlehofer, Henry Eliasen, John Krebeck, Charles W. Verachek, all of Highlanding Minn.
AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub, The Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.
Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 20th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Anton Radolecki, of Roland Minn. who on Octctober. 9th, 1904, made Homested Entry No. 998, Serial No. 04383, for N.E. ¼ Section 11 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U.S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 5th day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
John E. Radniecki, of Roland Minn. Tom Lofthus, of Rhoda Minn. Laurntz Wojnerowski, John Peterson, of Roland Minn.
AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 30th. 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ammund K. Breland, of Roland Minn. who on June 17, 1905. made Homestead Entry No. 1186, Serial No. 04479, for N. W. ¼ Section 20 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register, and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 12th, day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses;
Ole O. Nesland, Oscar Nesland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Rhoda Minn.
AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.
Department of The Interior, U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 30th, 1911.
NOTICE is hereby given that Ole O. Nesland, of Roland Minn. who on February 21, 1905 made Homestead Entry No. 1052, Serial No. 04407, for S. E. ¼ Section 20 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 12th, day of December 1911.
Claimant names as witnesses:
Oscar Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Rhoda Minn. Ammund K. Breland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn.
AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Not In Use There.

"For a college graduate you don't seem to know much horsy slang."
"Sir, I am a graduate of a college of veterinary surgery."—Chicago Tribune.

Turn About.

Stella—When you are engaged you tell him that he must economize. Bella—And after you are married he tells you that you must.—Puck.

The best government is that which teaches us to govern ourselves.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods,

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF gROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO,

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

She Was Biased.

Dubleigh—Was that you I heard fumbling at your door this morning at 1 o'clock? Clubleigh—At 1? I guess so. My wife declares I got in about 3.—Baltimore Sun.

A Thousand Refusals.

Kate—That Bragson girl claims to have made a thousand refusals of marriage. Ethel—That's true. When Gus asked her to be his wife she replied, "No, a thousand times, no!"—Boston Transcript.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to inventors." "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE
PATENT ATTORNEYS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 20 1906, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Outlet Easy To Open.

Tell the lumbermen what to do, says their month organ at Thief River Falls. That is easy! Employ a few men to go up and break that log jam at the outlet of Red Lake and there would be plenty of water in the river. The Red Lake Falls Gazette, which had an investigation made of the conditions as they exist says:

"The press dent conditions indicates that not the least effort has been made to clear the channel. The logs were run into the stream and allowed to remain there. There can be no excuse for such negligence when it is known that by the removel of the first jam the situation would be relieved."

"The lumber company should be compelled to remove the log jam located a short distance below the outlet and to clear the lake outlet. That done, there is no doubt that with the present stage of water in the lake the river would again be a large stream."

The above shows how easy it would have been to have opened Red Lake River when this complaint was first made, but the lumber companys though is was cheaper to load up the representative of that "outfit" in St. Paul that call themselves governmen engineers, with "hot air," and get a report that Red Lake was drying up. (See report published in another column), than to hire a few log drivers to open that outlet after they had blocked it up.

What in the hell to keep bowling to governor Eberhart about an extra session of the legislature? He is in the same fix as the government engineer at St. Paul. They can't represent the interest and sentiment of the people, for the reason that they have made other arrangements.

If nothing is doine to open that log jam and the lumber companys here that twenty five million feet of logs loose with all the surplus water in Red Lake, we are likly to have the worst flood ever know. But the lumber company might not odd Shunk to stand on the bank and holler "Never mind boys, swim out, but don't blame the lumber company as it is because Red Lake is ABOVE its normal level and an old settler informs me that this has not happend before for 42 years."

Those who could not visit the State fair and see the display of Minnesota products should attend the great land show at Detroit Mich. Oct. 16 to 28. The state of Minnesota occupies a big space right in the front room in the northern part of the state where the finest wheat, oats, barley, Minnesota the best display in the show. Everything will be shown from garden truck and small fruit to minerals. From farm crops to furs and fish.

The Red Lake River Falls Times does not seem to know what constitutes the "Big Ox" that is responsible for the high price of meat. It says: "Meat is still high in price and we see no reason for it, as cattle are not scarce and the price paid for them is not high." Perhaps the Times does not know that the "Big Ox" is the tariff, and that it is responsible for the high price of everything we eat, wear or use.

Not a Joke.

Editor Sunbeam: Please tell me in the letters from Shunky and oblige a lover of jokes.

Jokes—Is that a joke?

Shunky—I mean of a fellow who took a correspondence course in journalism from the factory and it was expected to last twelve months in all. He got twelve months in jail.

on an old saw mill twenty years ago, Someone had ought to pinch him and wake him up. Take him down on the road east of town, and let him see the long string of farmers from eastern Pennington county headed for Thief River Falls with their farm produce. After he has had a good dinner, take him for a walk around the city, to your banks, to your stores, hotels, and other places of business, and let him see how busy the business men are, with evidence of prosperity on every hand, and call this in view of the fact, that his old saw mill has not had a pay day for nine months. Wake up! Get progressive. Represent the interest of the farmers, the wealth producers of this country, and not a rich lumber corporation, who have made their millions robbing northern Minnesota of its pine.

Old Shunk Digs In.

The following is a copy of the report sent from the Engineers at St. Paul, which shows why the war department did not compell the lumber company's to open that log jam, and let the water out of Red Lake into this river.

2nd Inorecment.

United State Engineer Office,
St. Paul Minn. August 15th, 1911.

Respectfully returned to the Chief of Engineers.

This matter was investigated by Mr. P. F. Joice, Junior Engineer, WHO VISITED THE CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS and attempted to make an examination of the river. This was impossible as ther is not enough water to float a row boat and there is no roads leading to the outlet. However, Mr. Joice was able to get A GREAT DEAL OF INFORMATION. The City of Thief River Falls has for the past twelve years used water power for the pupose of electric light. During the present year the supply of water failed, and the city officials made an examination of the river. Their account indicates that Red Lake is 3-4 feet below its normal summer level, all old residents there agree that the same conditions prevailed 42 years ago, between which time and the present, the stage of the lake has been reasonably uniform. This fall has been remarkably dry, and the supply of 3-4 feet cuts off the discharge to the extent of nothing with the consequence that logs cannot float. While the upper part of the river is full of logs, they are there only because there is not enough water to take them and they do not constitute a jam; as all accounts agree that they lie side by side with little or no piling up. I think it is quite evident from Mr. Hunt's letter that lack of water is the chief difficulty. If the trouble was due merely to obstructions in the river these obstructions would soon be overflowed. The only prospective relief is from rainfall. There have been rains recently in various parts of the State of Minnesota, we use to be hoped that conditions may have improved.

I recommend that no action be taken in the matter.

Ernest R. Shunk,
Lieut. Col. Corps of Engineers.

Read the above over twice; you men that are dissatisfied with the facts as they exist, and see if you blame THE SUNBEAM, for being a little radical on questions of so much importance to the settlers living along this river. Our interests was handed over to the logging company in a job lot by men in high positions under this democratic administration. Cattle do not bolest, when they are sold in job lots to the butcher, but we have not cattle.

Notice for Publication.

Notice is the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 26th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ole J. Hanson, of Hillsdale, Minn. who on 10th, 1911, made Homestead Entry No. 12325, Serial No. 04686, for Lots 3 Section 3 and Lots 3, 4 & 7, Section 4 Township 158 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Nicholes U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 7th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Peter Hanson, Thief River Falls Minn.
Joseph Schlehofer, Thief River Falls Minn.
Charles W. Verschelde, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 1st, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ole J. Hanson, of Hillsdale, Minn. who on April 11th, 1910, made Homestead entry No. 11325, Serial No. 04686 for N. E. ¼ Section 34 Township 158 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Nicholes U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 29th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
John Markuson, Michael Kasse, Eugene H. Swanson, Theodor Nelson, all of Tarnen Wo Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.
Department of the Interior.
U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 22, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Patsy P. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 8th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 04899, for N. W. ¼ Section 22 Township 158 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Commutation proof to to establish claim to the land above described, before

William Nicholes U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 31st, day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Peter P. Kurstad, Peter M. Thorseth, Charles Peltier, George T. Fowler, all of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin,
Register.

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. B. Wilson says of them in part:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for years and find them just as recommended. They relieve pain promptly and quickly, but do not seem to have any bad after effects. I have taken a pill occasionally when troubled with headache, and have found relief in a short time. I have also used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and find them a most excellent medicine, being in many cases just what is needed to relieve constipation."

A. B. Wilson.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills

are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills act violently—they force the bile in enough or more than enough quantity, but in a violent way, with griping or other disagreeable effects. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills act gently, but surely, on the liver, stirring up the bile in a natural way, with no griping or other disagreeable effects. They are sold by druggists everywhere, and we authorize them to refund the purchase price to any purchaser who finds that they do not benefit or cure. Book on nerves sent free. Address Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

"Where did you get that hat?"
"At the hat store," replied the funny man.

"I am surprised. I should think such an original person would get his hats at the shoe store or the tin shop."

Notice For Publication.

First Pub in the sunbeam Nov. 10th,
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 4th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that John Krbecek, of Highlanding Minn. who on March 2, 10th, made Homestead Entry No. 1057, Serial No. 04411, for S. E. ¼ Section 10 Township 157 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed Notice of intention to make Final Five Year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the city of third river falls minn. at thief river falls minn. on the 10th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Martin Bohlofski, of Fels Minn. Joseph Schlehofer, Henry Elliston, of Highlanding Minn. Charles W. Verschelde, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 18th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Isaac Blasser, of Tarpeton Minn. who on April 11th, 1910, made Homestead entry No. 11325, Serial No. 04686 for N. E. ¼ Section 34 Township 158 N. Range 39 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Nicholes, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 29th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
John Markuson, Michael Kasse, Eugene H. Swanson, Theodor Nelson, all of Tarpeton Wo Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 22, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Patsy P. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 8th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 04899, for N. W. ¼ Section 22 Township 158 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Commutation proof to to establish claim to the land above described, before

William Nicholes U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 31st, day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Peter P. Kurstad, Peter M. Thorseth, Charles Peltier, George T. Fowler, all of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Oct. 27, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 26th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ole J. Hanson, of Hillsdale, Minn. who on 10th, 1911, made Homestead Entry No. 12325, Serial No. 04686, for Lots 3 Section 3 and Lots 3, 4 & 7, Section 4 Township 158 N. Range 39 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Nicholes U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 7th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Peter Hanson, Thief River Falls Minn.
Joseph Schlehofer, Thief River Falls Minn.
Charles W. Verschelde, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin,
Register.

COPENHAGEN SNUFF

We guarantee that Copenhagen Snuff is now and always has been absolutely pure snuff, that it complies with the laws of every State and all federal laws.

American Snuff Company, 111 Fifth Ave., New York.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 1st, 1911
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 24th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Thoms Tweetnat Kratka Minnesota, who on 1904, made Homestead entry No. 879, Serial No. 01197, for N. W. ¼
Section 9, Township 158 N. Range 41 W. 5th. principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Nicholes U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ludvig Larson, Carl Jenson, Christian O. Nygaard, Peter Soland, all of Kratka Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. November 6th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Martin Bohlofski, of Fels Minn. who on December 21st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1013 SW No. 04685, for N. E. ¼
Section 13 Township 158 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Joseph Schlehofer, Henry Elliston, John Krobeck, Charles W. Verschelde, All of Highlanding Minn.

Acturnis P. Tuepin,
Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Oct. 27th, 1911.
Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. October 26th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Anton Rabinoski, of Roland Minn. who on December 8th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 096, Serial No. 04688, for N. E. ¼ Section 9 Township 159 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Nicholes, U.S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 5th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
John S. Radinoski, of Roland Minn. Tom Lothian, of Stock Minn. Andrew Vujtovich, John Fabricus, of Roland Minn.

Anrtrin P. Tuepin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 26th, 1911.
Notice is hereby given that Ambrose M. Reeland, of Roland Minn. who on March 7, 1906, made Homestead Entry No. 1198, Serial No. 04479, for W. ½ W. ½ Section 20 Township 161 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Nicholes, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 7th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole O. Nesheim, Oscar Nesland, Lewis Nesland, of Roland Minn. Richard Hicks, Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.
Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 26th, 1911.
NOTICE is hereby given that Ole O. Nesland, of Roland Minn. who on 6th February, 1906 made Homestead entry No. 1095, Serial No. 04478, for W. ½ Section 20 Township 161 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Nicholes, U. S. Commissioner, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 7th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:
Ole O. Nesheim, Oscar Nesland, Lewis Nesland, of Roland Minn. Richard Hicks, Minn.

Arthur P. Tuepin,
Register.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to buy the Right Goods at the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

She Was Biased.

Fulleigh—Was that you I heard having a childhood refusal of marriage at your home this morning at 2 o'clock, Gubleigh—At 2 I guess you, a thousand times, no!—Boston Transcript.

A Thousand Refusals.

Kate—That Benjamin girl claims to have had a thousand refusals of marriage. Ethel—That's true. When Gus asked her to be his wife she replied, "No, a thousand times, no!"—Boston Transcript.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Rack of patents. "There is no invention" "Inventions needed" "Why some inventors fail" Solid rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Assistant Examiner of Patents, and is back and will charge at the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE, PATENT ATTORNEYS WASHINGTON, D. C.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when yon are ready to make your final proof.

The weather has been very fine the past week, with just about snow enought to make fine sleighing.

There is moro water than usal at this time of year, in the Clearwater river six miles from Red Lake river, which has been closed off by the lumber company.

We are sorry to hear what an awful time they are having at Thief River Falls for want of water power, but we are doing all we can to relieve the present conditions for them.

We publish this week a supplement of our County Commissioners proceedings, which will be appreciated by a large number of our tax payer readers who would like to know where the money goes.

This part of Pennington county will have a number of new settlers in the spring, as we know of a number of familys that are comming from eastern states that will settle here. Get good farmers on the vacant lands, is what we want.

There are some fine farm residences in the town of Deer Park, among which we noted those of Peat Gustafson and Frank Lundeen. Anyone passing by them would imagin that they were in resident portions of St. Paul, instead of the eastern part of the new county of Pennington.

Wm. Parno has drilled a well 210 feet deep on his Kratka farm without striking water. The river has no water in it near his place and he will soon have no water for his stock, and there is hundreds of farmers living along Red Red Lake river that will be in the same fix soon, if that outlet is not opened.

We have received quite a long letter from Kuelberg, who had who had the contract to dig the No. 47 ditch last summer. He of course wants an extension of time for another year. Our county auditor Mr. Fasel is desireous of hearing from the tax payers on the ditch regarding the matter, so there will be a meeting of them called to decide what to do.

Mr. and Mrs. Kretzer and ye editor visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs George Leimer in Deer Park township last Sunday. Mr. Leimers has a fine farm located on the bank of Red Lake River on which he has built a new residence this year. He lost about two years time by going to Washington about four years ago but fortunatly did not sell his farm and is now satisfied to make his future home in the best county in northern Minnesota, by the name of Pennington.

Stephen Singer, the hustling Kratka merchant passed by here Wednesday on a business trp to Rhnda. Ho says the Kratka post office question is still before the department. We can not see why his opponent, Mr. Jenson should want to try to run this office again, when he resigned before because he could not keep on friendly terms with its patrons. If we had a row with about all of the patrons of Sunbeam post office, we would resign, and never ask to be re-appointed.

A farmer dreamed tha he raised five thousand bushels of Wheat, and sold it all for a dollar a bushell, and then he dreamed that he had only sold one bushell in a place, and spent the ballence of the night running around trying to collect and woke up in the morning ringing wet with sweat. He then said to his wife: "I had an awful dream last night, and I know just what ails me. I am going down and pay that $1, that I owe the local paper, the first thing I do this morning."

Old Fogeys.

In its local colums The Sunbeam says that the local flour mills are closed down for want of water then goes on to say. "Good for them and we hope to see the town half stunk out with dead fish in the spring". Relly isent Hunt the most charitable and sociable cuss you ever saw. —T.R.F. Times.

We have a large number of warm personal friends and good paying subscribers in the city of Thief River Falls and we certainly do not wish that any ill luck will overtake them, but we was mad at the part of the city who helped the lumber company to exouse themselves for blocking up this river. Had they allowed that government engineer that was sent up here to envestigate to have went up to that outlet and made an investigation of the facts, as they are, the government would have compelled them to have opened that log jam, and your city would not have had to bonded to have got power to run your electric light plant. The mill would not have had to have put in power that they will soon have no use for, after the old Red Lake River is unchained.

There are a large number of progressive and up to date business men in Thief River Falls, and to them we want to say; that it is not the purpose of this paper, or its publisher to place straws in the way of the advacement of your city, or this county as this is our home.

But you have a lot of old fogys down there, among whom is old man Mussey of The Times, who formed the habit twenty years ago. that when they see a repreaentative of that lumber company they would take off their hat, how the knee and ask what they would have? This time it was to help them to make a false report to government engineers of what caused this river to dry up, but they got caught al it proper.

Straining Himself

Percy—What are you doing about your doctor's advice to take physical exercise, dear boy?

Cholly—I'm cawwying a heavier walking stick and I wear a larger buttonhole bouquet.—New York Mall.

He Had Told It.

Next to Joseph Chamberlain, Birmingham honors no citizen more than Jesse Collings. In politics and friendship Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Collings have been inseparable for many years. They even shared their platform anecdotes, and in regard to one story they arranged that when both were taking part in a meeting the first speaker was entitled to its use.

It so happened that Mr. Collings arrived late at a meeting one night, but was due to speak before Mr. Chamberlain. As he was launching out into the story he felt his coattail pulled, and a voice behind him whispered, "I've told it." So Mr. Collings desisted, but what was his surprise to hear Mr. Chamberlain tell the story as soon as he got on his legs. "I thought you said you told it?" he asked afterward. "So I had," replied the imperturbable Joe, "but not tonight."—Pall Mall Gazette.

State of Ohio, city of Toledo, Lucas County, } ss.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 188[illegible].

(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for [illegible]

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Christmas Tree Lesson

By Dorothy Blackmore

"IT would be perfect folly, George," the girl was saying.

"Thanks," the man replied, a little hurt.

"You know very well what I mean. It would be foolish—worse than foolish—for us to marry and—it is not because I do not love you, George," she added, earnestly.

"What on earth is necessary—except love?" asked the impatient man.

The girl laughed. "Much—much more," she said. "You admit, for instance, that you are absolutely bored to death in the country, that picnics, any kind of outing where you have to get down to nature is uninteresting to you. Even today you chafe under the discomfort of having to sit on a mossy mound instead of in a mahogany arm chair with a leather hassock at your feet. You would rather hear the clang of a trolley car than the song of a bird; you would rather eat a six-course dinner in a brilliantly lighted restaurant with music and the gay chatter of many companions than sit down quietly in your own home to a simple domestic meal with—with a single woman for a vis-a-vis. While, I—well, set down all the opposites of the things you live for and you have what I like. Don't you see, George?"

For a time the man did not answer. He counted the buttons on his gaiters with the tip of his walking stick.

"Is it as bad as that, girl?" he asked. "Are we as far apart as that?"

Eleanore nodded while she looked straight into his eyes. "We are," she repeated, "even as far as that."

"And there we stand—do we?"

"Yes—you in the city with all the lights turned on you; I in the quiet, peaceful country with only the eyes of my family and my friends to see me and all of nature to commune with."

"It doesn't look like a very happy prospect for a life together, Eleanore. We're old enough to see that—even in our 20's—aren't we? But oh—" and there was a great longing tenderness in his voice—"I do love you. I do want you, dear."

The girl turned away. Presently she rose to go. There was no annoyancy in her movement. At last, the thing she had been fearing had come to pass. They had had their explanation—they had tried to have an understanding as to why they could not marry each other. There was no further hope that he would tire of the life she considered artificial, the life she had been brought up in and—hated. Always, she had longed for the country and when she began to realize that she loved George Davidson it was with fading hope that she studied his life, his fancies, his preferences. He loved every inch of the merry avenues of the crowded cities, every atom of their existence.

On the way home the man told her frankly that if he could not have her—if she could not marry him and take a chance with it all—he would put her out of his life. He, manlike, was willing to take any chance to have her for his wife; but then, she explained to him, he had not given it the thought that was necessary.

"Well, I'll travel," Eleanore told him when they were parting. "I want to see rural France and Germany and—with you out of my life, George—I might be lonely," she said a little wistfully. She looked hastily away that he might not see the effort with which she kept the sparkling tear-drop from tumbling down her cheek. "And—if I find that I can come back and—and live with my ear on the trolley track, I'll—I'll come and let you know. Meantime, you shall not know where I am," she said, an almost imperceptible break in her voice. She had tried to be gay, but she had failed dismally—and she knew he knew it.

"All right, girl," the man said, holding her hand closely in his own. "Since you're afraid of adding to the long list of mis-mates among our friends—I'll remain as I am. I'll have you or no one, mate or mis-mate. Good-by."

He strode off with never a look behind and she knew he was gone out of her life until—"Oh, forever!" she said, as she dashed away the foolish tears that pushed each other from her eyes.

True to her word, she traveled. She journeyed here and there and enjoyed things as only a woman of her caliber can enjoy the beautiful, rare old things she had read of, and heard of all her life.

When she returned to her own country it was to take up her profession of tutoring—but in the country this time. She found a home in the rectory of an old church. The minister was a family friend, and she went into the family to tutor his two children with the privilege of having a few others during odd hours in the week.

She spent many happy days with the children; she taught them everything she knew, how to [illegible] French and German, but, most of all, she taught them the love of Mother Nature.

The holidays were drawing near and Eleanore had little time for introspection. She was busy helping the children keep their Christmas secrets, planning for the Christmas tree in the church, making odds and ends to give to friends. For the time, she was almost forgotten.

But when Christmas eve had come and gone and she sat in the small conservatory of the rectory on Christmas afternoon when the children, tired from play, had gone to take an afternoon nap and the good rector with his wife had gone and done likewise, Eleanore began to have that lonely feeling deep within her. She looked out of doors where tiny snowflakes were just beginning to blow here and there as forerunners of a glorious Yuletide snowstorm.

Suddenly, as if to ward off the blues, she sought her cloak and gloves. She would go out in it if only because she could!

Outside, she struck out briskly toward the churchyard where the fir trees were green. There was much of the yard that was made up of beautiful parkways with wonderful blue spruce trees mingled with the old-fashioned green Christmas tree.

It was toward these trees that she walked and with every breath of the soft, moist air, she felt invigorated. The caress of each tiny snowflake as it touched her cheek was sweet to the girl who loved nature.

Presently, ahead of her, she saw a group of boys. They seemed to be looking up at a great green fir tree and listening to a man who stood in their midst.

Eleanore drew near. None of the little group had seen her as she walked softly on the snow covered grass. The man—her heart beat wildly—was George Davidson.

Suddenly, as if he felt her presence, he turned. "You," he cried, "Eleanore." Then, as if remembering the boys, he said, "Boys, I want to introduce you all to Miss Marvells. Perhaps she can tell you more than I can about—Christmas trees."

Eleanore acknowledged the introduction to each bareheaded lad even while her hand was still in the big warm one of George Davidson.

"It's like this, Eleanore," he was ex-

She Was Not Happy.

plaining. "I've sort of taken up some settlement work on the East side lately, and when one of these boys asked me—not long ago—where the Christmas trees came from I—I felt ashamed to think he had been under my eye and didn't know. He'd never been out of the city in his life—and never seen a fir tree growing."

Eleanore's eyes grew wide with surprise. "Poor lad!" she said.

"Then and there, I promised the whole crowd of boys that on Christmas day I would take them to see a real Christmas tree growing in the earth where it belongs. I told them they should not have their gifts until we stood under one of Nature's own trees and—well, here we are. Aren't we, boys?" he asked, turning to the group of young foreigners who adored him.

"I was trying to tell them about—trees and things and—"

The man broke off lamely.

"And you didn't know very much about them? Was that it?" Eleanore asked, teasingly.

"That's it, exactly," he said. Then he drew near and spoke in an undertone while the lads, feeling instinctively that they were at liberty to roam about if they desired, left the two standing together.

"Is it too late for me—to learn?" he asked.

"No," she said, "but first, I'd like to exchange a few lessons in how to behave in a fashionable restaurant for them," she said.

"Eleanore!" he cried.

"Yes," she admitted, "it isn't so thrilling to sit on the porch all evening and watch the moon come up behind the trees—alone—even if it is Nature, I—suppose we combine our tastes and live in the country, but not so far that we can't get to town whenever we—you, I should say—feel like it."

"I feel now, dear, that I never want to see the city again if—if you don't want to," he said. "I'm so weary of living without you that I'd gladly camp under a haystack with nothing but the lowing herd for an outlook [illegible]

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEW STATION ON DULUTH & CO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. Samuel Gilleau Vic. Pis. Larry O'Niel, Abrham [illegible] J. A. DUFFY, Cashier. T. L. CRUZON, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footware Buy The BALL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W. G. Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

Wanted: An improved farm to rent for next yer. Inquire of, or address George Leimers, Roland Minn.

Problem in Gain and Loss.

A well known physician of Chicago was attending old Pat, a faithful janitor, but a querulous patient.

"Och, doctor, ye said Thursday would bring ye again, and here it is Friday."

"Today's Thursday, Pat."

"Friday, doctor."

"Mistaken, Pat."

"Sure, I'll ask my daughter. Mary Ann, what day would it be?"

"Doctor's right, father. It's Thursday."

"Och, now, is it, then? I ask your pardon, doctor. But since it's Thursday when I thought it was Friday was I gainin' a day or losin' six? Hould on, I know, doctor; 'tis accordin' to whither this is last week or nixt."—Housekeeper.

Some Responsibility.

"Just himself and his wife alone, isn't it?"

"No, they have a cat, a canary, two dogs and a cow."

"I didn't suppose he was as much of a family man as that."

The Last Dueling Clergyman.

"When did clergymen cease to fight duels?" is a startling inquiry in London Notes and Queries. It will be news to many of us that they were ever fond of that exhilarating pastime. But, as a matter of fact, the Rev. Mr. Allan fought a duel with Lloyd Delany, Esq., and killed him in Hyde park in 1782 [illegible] convicted of manslaughter [illegible]

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

McCALL PATTERNS [illegible]

McCALL'S MAGAZINE [illegible]

[illegible] to Agents. Postal brings premium catalogue and new cash prize offers. Address

THE McCALL CO., 238 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell both hand and electric machines.

Electric Cleaner Co. [illegible]

TIRED, SICK AND DISCOURAGED.

Dean's Kidney Pills Brought Health and Cheerfulness.

Mrs. J. P. Pemberton, 854 Lafayette St., Marshall, Mo., says: "For years I suffered with Bright's disease which doctors said was incurable. I grew so weak, I had to take to my bed. Kidney secretions were suppressed, I became terribly bloated, and finally reached the point where I took no interest in life. It was then I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and soon improved. Before long I was without a sign of the trouble that seemed to be carrying me to my grave."

When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S. 50c, all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

HE WAS NEXT.

Katherine—There is never any excuse for ignorance.

Kidder—That's right. There were even knight schools in the dark ages.

BABY'S ECZEMA AND BOILS

"My son was about three weeks old when I noticed a breaking-out on his cheeks, from which a watery substance oozed. A short time after, his arms, shoulders and breast broke out also, and in a few days became a solid scab. I became alarmed, and called our family physician who at once pronounced the disease eczema. The little fellow was under treatment for about three months. By the end of that time, he seemed so better. I became discouraged. I dropped the doctor's treatment, and commenced the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and in a few days noticed a marked change. The eruption on his cheeks was almost healed, and his shoulders, arms and breast were decidedly better. When he was about seven months old, all trace of the eczema was gone."

During his teething period his head and face were broken out in boils which I cured with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Surely he must have been a great sufferer. During the time of teething and from the time I dropped the doctor's treatment, I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, nothing else, and when two years old he was the picture of health. His complexion was soft and beautiful, and his head a mass of silky curls. I had been afraid that he would never be well, and I feel that I owe a great deal to the Cuticura Remedies." (Signed) Mrs. Mary W. Ramsey, 224 E. Jackson St., Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 24, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 5 L, Boston.

Budding Genius.

Knicker—You think Johnny will grow up to be president?

Proudpop—I think that boy can eat anything.—New York Sun.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

The Happiest Man.

Happier than the man who thinks that whatever is is right is he who thinks that whatever is his is best.

DISTEMPER

In all its forms among all ages of horses, as well as dogs, cured and others in same stable prevented from having the disease with SPOHN'S DISTEMPER CURE. Every bottle guaranteed. Over 500,000 bottles sold last year. $5.00 and $1.00 a bottle, good druggists, or send to manufacturers. Agents Wanted. Spohn Medical Co., Specialists Contagious Diseases, Goshen, Ind.

If it is safe to trust God in anything it is safe to trust him in everything.

Diphtheria, Quinsy and Tonsilitis begin with sore throat. How much better to cure a sore throat in a day or two than to be in bed for weeks with Diphtheria. Just keep Hamlins Wizard Oil in the house.

Whenever the devil has a minute to spare he sets another trap for the boy.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take.

Some girls would lose out, even if every year was a leap year.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

We know very much of the finite we believe in the few we trust God.

Uruguay and the Pan American Railway System

By Jose Rickling

URUGUAY is a country small in area, not quite twice the size of New York state, but large in the importance it has in relation to South American development. Brazil to the north must cross Uruguay to get to the South American metropolis, Buenos Aires. Argentina to the south must use Uruguay's railways to find the shortest route—part rail, part sea—to Europe, England and the United States, for the port of Pernambuco, Brazil, will some day take an importance as the terminus of a through rail line from Buenos Aires and as the port of departure for a quick steamship service to the countries north of the equator. With this in view Brazil is now spending millions upon harbor improvements at this point.

This through railway from Buenos Aires to Pernambuco has therefore something more than a South American significance. It becomes Pan-American. In fact the great system of railways destined to bring shorter easier communication between the capitals and principal cities of all American republics may be divided into two systems: (1) The main line following close to the backbone of the continent and connecting Argentina and the westerly republics with North America through the Isthmus of Panama; (2) the transcontinental line linking up Chile and Argentina with the easterly republics and thence via steamship line with North America.

That the transcontinental system will be completed long before the roads from Buenos Aires, Chile and Argentina have pierced the Andes and Uruguayan sends passengers and freight to Buenos Aires by the completed Transandine railway. Brazil has pushed her steel highways nearly to the border of Uruguay.

While England and France have poured their capital into the building of these lines, which help to form the Pan American, it seems fitting that the United States should at this step in and complete one link in the chain which goes under the name Pan or All American.

It will not be for the little republic of Uruguay to bring about this desired result.

She greeted to an American company concessions to build the line from Colonia just opposite Buenos Aires northeast to the Rio Grande, a distance of about 365 miles, with a branch of 40 miles to connect with an existing line to the east.

Uruguay has found it good policy to encourage railway building by fair and liberal treatment of capital which ventures into such large undertakings. The government has confidence in the future of Uruguay and is willing, therefore, to guarantee an interest earning upon a fair capitalization, believing that the country as it develops will make good and produce these earnings and more. Experience has shown such confidence to be well founded, and the existing railways are paying good returns to their shareholders. Uruguay, therefore, felt no hesitation in inviting capital from her sister republic north of the equator to enter the field.

How the invitation was accepted may be learned from an examination of the Uruguayan consular records. During the past three months, April, May and June, a steady stream of invoices has passed through the offices. Thousands of tons of rails, bridge and other structural steel, telegraph poles and wire, fence wire, cement, lumber, passenger cars, freight cars and locomotives have left the port of New York headed for Uruguay. From Newport News the Lovles cleared, a good-sized herbontine purchased by the Pan American Transcontinental Railway company to help out in carrying railroad ties and lumber. From New Orleans, on June 7, the Wimbledon steamed away, carrying the largest consignment of lumber which ever went out of that port. Over 50,000 ties and over 60,000 feet of yellow pine timber made up her cargo.

All of these things go to help build the first American railway in the River Plata region. Inquiry has developed that the enterprise is one which is backed by business more than by banking interests in the United States. The work has been carried on quietly and steadily. The surveys were completed and submitted to the government July 15, 1910. The winter and early spring were occupied in arranging for purchase of material and equipment. Grading was begun at Durazno on March 6.

The first section of 30 miles was formally opened to public service in September, 1911, and the entire line will be completed within four years.

It seems thus to be destined that Uruguay, of all the South American republics, shall be first intimately known to United States capital. And as where one's capital is there lies one's interest, it seems not unlikely that Uruguay in its development may feel strongly the influence of American ideas and customs and perhaps be drawn into still closer national sympathy with the people of the United States.

In the physical characteristics of the country Uruguay bears a striking resemblance to parts of the United States. The rolling prairies and stony streams of Illinois are there, as, too, is the rich, deep, bleak soil.

The peaches, grapes and pears of northern Ohio find a natural home in the southerly portions of the country, and the sands of Colonia remind one of the sands of Lake Erie.

In the history of the development of the middle west he repeated south of the equator one can see Uruguay well peopled and well plowed, a prosperous country to live in and a fair one to look upon.

In the plans of the railway company the development of the port of Colonia plays an important part. It is understood that there will be established a center of distribution for imports to the River Plata region. Storage warehouses will enable manufacturers to ship their goods at trifling expense large stocks upon which they can call as needed for distribution in the Argentine or Uruguayan cities or up-river districts.

The natural depth of the water in such at Colonia as to make this one of the finest of harbors. The largest ocean steamers will be able to discharge their cargoes quickly and cheaply. Natural conditions, in fact, seem to have destined this point for one of the great shipping centers of the River Plata region.

This Pan American railway has large significance for Uruguay, but it may become even more for the United States. If it serves, as now seems quite possible, as the introduction of United States capital to this great South American region, and familiarizes United States investors with the sound and stable character of railway enterprise, as it has been and will be developed on this port of the new world, it will have accomplished more than its mere task for the republic of the north as for Uruguay, and more perhaps for the general advancement of Pan Americanism than for either.

OFFICIAL INVITATION TO AMERICANS

HOW ROBERT ROGERS, MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR, IN WINNIPEG ADDRESS, ISSUES WELCOME OF AMERICANS TO WESTERN CANADA.

During the course of a reply to an address presented to Hon. Robert Rogers, the newly appointed Minister of the Interior of Canada at a banquet given at Winnipeg in his honor that gentleman spoke on immigration. The tone of his remarks was that he intended to pursue an aggressive and forward policy in the matter of immigration. In part, he said:

"The most important branch perhaps of that department (Interior) is that of immigration.

"If there is anything more than another we want here it is a greater population, and it shall be my duty to present to the people in all parts of the world where desirable emigrants are to be found the advantages and the great possibilities of this country. We have received in the past a reasonably large immigration from south of the international boundary, and in this connection let me say just a word for our American cousins who have found happy homes amongst us, and those whom we hope to welcome in greater numbers in the years to come. There are hundreds of thousands of them in our prairie provinces, happy in the enjoyment of a freedom as great as they ever knew, and all contributing in a materiel way towards the development of Canada. We are not blind to their value as settlers. They come better equipped with scientific farming knowledge than most of our emigrants, and constitute without doubt the wealthiest class of emigrants any new country has ever known. As head of the immigration department it will be my privilege to offer them a welcome hearty and sincere, and to so contribute to their welfare that under the protecting folds of the Union Jack they will enjoy as great a degree of liberty and hepphess as under the Stars and Stripes. The Borden government cherishes nothing but the kindliest feelings for the people of the great republic to the south, and will do all in its power to increase the bonds of kinship and neighborly good feeling that has so long existed. (Hear, hear.)

"While we adopt a vigorous emigration policy in the country, we will also adopt the same vigorous policy in other parts of the world. We will go to England, Ireland and Scotland, and every other country irrespective of race, creed or nationality, where we can find suitable and desirable emigrants for this great country. I think much good work can be done in those countries, and especially perhaps at the present time in England, Ireland and Scotland. Now, then, it will be my duty to stir up that policy in the most vigorous manner possible."

Felt Safe.

"I always enjoy going to the first performance of a new play."

"Why the first?"

"Because I'm always sure then that the man who sits behind me hasn't seen it before."

Crafty Vegetarian.

Nebuchednezzer went on all fours.

"Man are uneteing deer even when they walk upright," he consoled himself.—New York Sun.

Catarrh

One of the most common of blood diseases, is made worse by the sudden changes of weather at this time of year. Begin treatment at once with Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has relieved and permanent cures. This great medicine has received

40,366 Testimonials

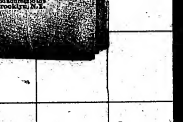
in two years, which prove its wonderful efficacy in purifying and enriching the blood. Best for all blood diseases.

In nasal liquid form or chocolated tablets known as Sarsatabs. 100 doses $1.

Your Liver Is Clogged Up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts —Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days. They do their duty.



Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion and Sick Headache

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

The three following are the most popular size and universal uses:

No. 1A—
Pocket Kodak
Price $20.00 to $23.00

No. 2—
Brownie Camera
Price $10.00 to $12.00

Brownie Cameras $1 to $12. Kodaks $5 to $100. Everything photographic at the dealers. Free at your store. Catalog free.

Peck Company 115 E. 13th Street, New York City

KEYSTONE FOR WALLS AND CEILINGS

SELF-BUILDING METAL. Easy to put on. Cheaper than lath and plaster. Will not crack, fall off or harbor vermin. Fireproof. Sanitary. Handsome. Durable. Write for booklet and sample.

KEYSTONE COPPER CO., 49 Wall St., New York

Hard to Destroy Species

Difficulty of Extermination Is Exemplified by the Case of the Wolf in Europe.

When man sets about ridding himself of entire species of animals by systematic persecution he usually finds it a difficult job. Set a price on the head of a wolf or a woodchuck, and the animal seems at once to realize the importance of prolonging its life.

The case of the wolf in Europe is a historic one. A price has been set on the creature's head for centuries, and yet there is only a small portion of the continent from which the animal has been exterminated. The Netherlands is free of wolves, owing to the character of the country. The whole land furnishes not a single rocky den suitable for a wolf's lair, neither is there a forest for the animal's shelter.

It is true the wolf has been exterminated from Great Britain, and Ireland. This result has been reached, however, by indirect means rather than by a direct attack. The clearing off of the forest left the wolf no place in which to hide from pursuit. The islands were too far from the continent for their thither ranks to be recruited from the mainland. In Spain and France the wolf has at no time been unknown, although a price has been set on its head for hundreds of years. The animal has developed cunning in proportion as the pursuit has become closer. Like the crow, it has learned to take care of itself. On the other hand, species reared by human care have very little help toward their continuance from the well-meant efforts of man to that end. In proof of this we are told that there is an ancient act of parliament still in force in England and Wales prohibiting the taking of eggs of certain birds, of which six birds are expressly named. In spite of this protecting law, four of the six species have ceased to breed in those countries. The indirect ways in which such results are brought about are shown in the destruction of the quail in New Zealand. The birds once were numerous; no one wished to destroy them. But the land was burned over for other purposes at seasons when the eggs and young of the quail were exposed to destruction, and a few years brought the species to an end.

Difference Lies in Direction.

A precocious son of one of the managers of William S. Vare's mayoralty campaign has been following the developments of the fight with interest. He has not yet acquired all the rudimentary knowledge of politics necessary to understand all the curves but he is learning.

"Father," he inquired the other evening, as his "oh man" bolted down his evening meal, having come early, "what's the difference between a traitor and a Republican?"

"Fellow, that leaves our side and goes over to the gang," snapped the father.

"And what do you call those who they quit the other side and come to you?"

Facts About Wedding Gifts

Presents Should Be Sent to a Bride-Elect Within a Fortnight of Her Marriage.

Wedding gifts are sent to a bride-elect within three weeks or a fortnight of the day set for her marriage. More visiting acquaintances of the families or the couple about to be wed do wait to wait and see whether they are asked to a wedding before forwarding any presents. This course is not prompted by cold calculation, but by genuine delicacy. As soon as the person thus in doubt receives a card a pleasant assurance is given, and the gift may then be forwarded.

When wedding cards extending an invitation to witness merely the marriage ceremony are received by one who acknowledges only the mere formal acquaintance with the bride or groom, or either of their families, there rests no obligation to send a gift. It would be proper to send one if the recipient of the cards wishes to, still many persons feel that the receipt of such cards calls for one. It is customary to send a gift where the card includes an invitation to the house afterward, as well as the church.

Persons in mourning may send wedding gifts, though they are not able to attend either the ceremony or reception. Those who feel themselves under obligation for gifts they received favors from either of the contracting parties are privileged to send a bridal gift, even if they are not invited to the wedding. Gifts are usually presented with cards bearing the names of their senders.

Only the intimate friends and relatives of a bride are entitled to present the gifts in person.

Shorthand.

Mr. John D. Rockefeller shows the religious side of his character by making notes of a sermon in order to read it at his sick wife. The note-taking habit is a useful one. When this great financier becomes his own stenographer he is indulging in a pleasant occupation, knowledge of shorthand is a good accomplishment for anybody. Its usefulness is unquestionable. Anyone capable of taking phonographic notes need not necessarily be speedy enough for professional work. If one can merely take notes two or three times as fast as he could by using long hand he can catch and preserve important data. For most Americans a knowledge of shorthand is of far more importance than the acquirement of a foreign language, as the latter cannot be used often and is easily forgotten. In the public schools its pursuit would soon make pupils better spellers and writers, as well as more accurate in their pronunciation and grammar.

Red Whiskers.

"Plunkville needs a new constable?"

"What's the matter with the present incumbent?"

"He has black whiskers and the people in the new addition to the town are all Irish and they are unable to get along with officers of such hostile appearance."

The PING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL DELATION TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

ILLUSTRATIONS BY DENBOROW HOLMES

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY HARPER BROS. & COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young undertaker becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a drunken, prosperous saloon keeper in his town. They prompt a slave in a blinding blizzard but he is rescued by the undertaker's assistant. Later the obstreperous boy plays a note in the body found in the snow and upon himself. In their flight to the railroad station the woman's horse fails exhausted; the youth puts her on his own and, himself, breaks through the snow. The woman thanks her escort into a snow drift and leaves him. Half-frozen he stumbles into the railroad station just as the train bears the woman away. Twenty-five years later this man, George Gormly, is a multi-millionaire. Miss Haldane, also rich and beautiful and wealthy settlement worker, and no-one-else with her in her work. Gormly becomes owner of a steamship line and finds himself frustrated in pier and track extension plans by granting absolutely, backed by the Colliver Traction company. An automobile accident brings Dr. Haldane and his daughter home. Gormly attempts to buy off Haldane as mayor of New York and redeem the city from corruption. Mr. Haldane is a long distance interview with Gormly, makes an indirect proposition to compromise by the latter has been leading in the municipal campaign. Haldane declines the proposition and which Haldane is suspected of being the head. Gormly boldly announces his plan to campaign in Haldane. Gormly rides to Haldane's place, carrying word of the auto accident. The next morning he refers to the ride of the night before as "quite a lark." Gormly is the "Ping" of the title. Haldane's daughter appears and opposes his candidacy for mayor. The political declaration of the merchant prince produced a tremendous sensation. The minority party, seeing in him a second Moses, make overtures lookers to the leadership of the anti-Gormly forces. Haldane refuses. A meeting of the Eachen Society of the "Ping" is held at the Haldane home. Many political dignitaries and heroes are present and ways and means are advanced to dampen Gormly's mayoralty aspirations and squelch his candidacy. The youngest Haldane is approached as the strong candidate; the private secretary and the city's detective force is to be used to dig up something damaging to Gormly. Haldane refuses the nomination and announces that he will support Gormly. A mass meeting is called for the purpose of ratifying the Gormly force, and at the same time rush through a Freight Traction company franchise, without which the Eachen Society would be helpless. The press heralds a sensational interview in the mayoral candidate, now under pressure, directly opposing the franchise and the revision by granting a ground-rent renewal of the traction franchise. Gormly offers two dollars per share for the franchise. The excited populace threaten to hook the aldermen, when addressed by Gormly.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

"Now, sir," said Gormly, "you see what our masters the people think. They wish me to put to you a question. If such a measure comes before you, will you veto it or will you not?"

The mayor was in a dilemma, a fearful one. He was quick enough to see that his whole political future, the future of his party, practically depended upon his action. If he did not declare his purpose to veto the bill, he and his party were doomed. If he took some other course, they would still have a fighting chance. The mayor rose to the occasion.

"Gentlemen," he said, "my action shall be dictated by yourselves."

"Answer! Answer! No speech!" roared the crowd.

"Every man is entitled to his chance," said Gormly, "and I beg you to hear."

"I will pledge you my word," continued the mayor, "that so far as I have power the issuance of this franchise shall be determined by the election. If I am so fortunate as to receive a majority, I shall take it as a sign that you indorse the policy which, with an eye single to the public interest, believes that it demands the granting of the franchise to the Gotham Freight Traction company, which has already served you so well. If on the contrary, my distinguished opponent shall prevail, the matter will be left for his determination."

"You won't sign the bill if it comes to you then?" asked some one in the crowd.

"I will not, and I will use what influence I have to see that it is not presented to me," was the answer.

"Nothing doing," said Gormly, "could be fairer than that. The issue is clearly and sharply drawn. If you want to perpetuate the power of the Gotham Freight Traction company, you have only to re-elect the present mayor. If you want to reassume your own control of affairs, you have only to elect me. I don't ask you now which it shall be. I don't want any more cheering. I want you to go to your homes and go to work. Good night."

He sank down in the automobile, covered with perspiration and trembling with excitement and exertion.

Amid tumultuous cheering and applauding, the crowd opened a line through which the big automobile slowly moved over toward Broadway and then sped upward through the night.

Connell turned to the mayor. "Shall I drive these dogs out of the square? Curse 'em!" he cried.

Nothing would have suited the mayor better; but policy would not permit.

"No," he said, "just picket the approaches to the city hall. Let the people alone. They will disperse now."

Indeed they were already beginning to break away.

"Well, you've gone and done it now, my boy," said Connell, giving the mayor a cordial embrace. "Tighest game ever played, the Eachen Society, Haldane, Gormly—all the big guns in town. Say, you're the real thing, you are. Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll go and get Warren gloomily, "unless I am elected."

The mayor turned away and walked into the city hall. Rutherford met him at the door.

"I want to congratulate you," he said, "on your course."

"Do you approve of it?"

"Approve! It was the nerviest sort of a thing for you to do, but the only thing. That damned Gormly had you dead to rights; but you took the wind out of his sails."

"I don't know," answered the mayor, nervously. "What will Liffey and Bonson and the rest say?"

"I don't know," returned Rutherford; "but whatever they say, it was the only thing on God's earth to do, and they ought to be glad that you had the nerve to do it. Now, we've got to win the election."

"Yes," said the mayor; "but how?"

Outside the city hall a slender, quiet, but shrewd looking man edged his way carefully through the rapidly dispersing crowd until he caught sight of Connell standing on the steps scowling at the multitude, black rage in his heart.

"Well," said the chief, as the man came close to him, "any news?"

"You See What Our Masters the People Think!"

"I have a clue," was the answer.

"Come in here!" said the chief, laying his hand on the other man's shoulder, and in his excitement and eagerness almost jerking him into the city hall.

CHAPTER XI.

Miss Haldane Listens to a Declaration.

For some distance the automobile sped onward. Before one of the big wholesale buildings on lower Broadway, now entirely dark, it suddenly stopped in obedience to a signal from the tonneau. A hand was laid on Gormly's shoulder, and a voice he knew and to which he thrilled spoke to him.

"Mr. Gormly," said Miss Haldane, "that was the most magnificent, splendid, dramatic scene I ever witnessed or participated in."

Gormly rose to his feet instantly and faced about.

"You were there, Miss Haldane!" he exclaimed.

"Didn't you see me?" asked the girl, a note of disappointment in her voice.

"And didn't you see me?" put in Miss Haldane opportunely.

"Well, girls," said Livingstone Haldane, "how long are you going to keep up stepping here?"

"I was about to suggest," said Miss Stewart, "that Mr. Gormly and I change places. I don't want to talk to you particularly; but I know that Eleanor wants to speak to Mr. Gormly, and—"

The words were not out of her mouth before Gormly had leaped to the street and opened the door. He assisted Miss Stewart to the place he had occupied, took her place by the big woman's side and sank down in the shadow of the car. As soon as the change was effected the car moved on.

"I am sure you must, that I was aware of your presence, Miss Haldane," said Gormly quietly. "And because of that I know that I never spoke better."

"It was a great occasion," was the reply, "and great eloquence makes great occasions."

"That and the consciousness, unconscious, if you will, if I may use such a contradiction—that you were listening—dare I not say sympathetically?—carried me through."

"It was glorious. You played upon those people as I might play upon—"

"Me," said Gormly softly.

"Upon an instrument of music," continued the girl. "I think your election is sure."

"I think so too," was the answer; "but I am not indulging in any overconfidence, and there is no let to no weakening of effort until the last minute."

They had by this time reached Fourteenth street. Although it was long after the ordinary time for the issuance of the latest editions of the newspapers, newsboys were already crying scraps of the epitome on their streets, and papers were being bought eagerly on every hand.

"Mr. Gormly," she turned suddenly full upon him, "why have you said to my brother that I must not come to the store any more to consult you on business matters?"

"My dear Miss Haldane," said Gormly. "I did that for your sake."

"But why?"

"I have ascertained that I am being shadowed by practically all the detectives of the city hall force; that I am watched constantly; that all my visitors are noted; and I did not wish to involve you in any notoriety whatsoever. Therefore, although I had no knowledge that you would come or that you wanted to come, I thought it proper to advise you through your brother not to do so."

"Of course I wanted to come," said the young woman, earnestly, "I have very many things pertaining to the campaign. I have done what I could among such friends as I was able to influence to get them to aid you. It was through me that Livingstone profured his services. I owed it to my father, but I have been unable to make any impression upon him; and now, I wanted to hear from you directly how things were going."

"I realize all that you have done, and you can't imagine, Miss Haldane, how great a deprivation it was to me to send such a message, and how hard a course it was to decide upon."

"I made Livingstone bring us both down here tonight. But I never dreamed that I was going to be the spectator of such a scene as that which has just happened. I don't believe there was ever anything more dramatic or splendid in the history of American politics. Why, it was like a new Declaration of Independence! When that multitude surged back and forth, they were yelling, threatening and muttering. I followed every emotion in my own heart. I never was so thrilled in my life. I am glad to have lived through this, to have seen it, to have been a small part of it."

"You can't imagine," said Gormly, "how great a part of it you have been. I will not say that I am doing it all for you now; that would not be true or fair. But you were my inspiration in the beginning; your words, your presence. Miss Haldane, I have something to say to you."

"First of all," he began, "where are you taking me?"

"Anywhere you want to go," was the answer, "only, please, not to the city hall. I am afraid that I am responsible for the fact that the police have been withdrawn from the vicinity of your house. I am afraid that I have been the cause of the withdrawal of the protection which you have been receiving. I am very sorry for that."

"Don't be," said Gormly. "I have no use for them. Where do you live?"

"Riverside Drive. We can get a decent bite to eat in some quiet place down there, and—"

"Suppose we go to my rooms and I'll see what I can get for us that is agreeable to you?"

"I am in your hands," answered Gormly gratefully. "And indeed, I think I should like it very much. I had no idea how tired I was till you told me. You know, how few opportunities I get like this for an hour's quiet enjoyment."

"Leave it to me," said young Haldane. "I'll turn you up at your apartment in proper time and in good shape. Tonight you are going to enjoy yourself and drop the campaign for a little while."

Whether or not Gormly would have indulged in the battle if he had had foreknowledge of this alliance between the father of the woman he loved and her brother he was trying to overthrow, is a question. As to his present attitude, he had begun his campaign with mingled feelings. It had been at first in a certain sense adventitious, a chess game for the winning of Eleanor Haldane; but larger issues had speedily relegated that to a motive into the background, and now the campaign made every possible appeal to his honor as a man, to his sense of duty as a citizen. And while Eleanor Haldane hulked large before him, he knew that no matter what might be the result of the campaign so far as she was concerned, he must of absolute necessity press for the end of it. He wanted to win for her; but if it became necessary, he would win without her, and for the people's sake.

It would make his election probably certain to reveal to the public the true sinister influences behind the traction company and the Eachen society. His agents had been thorough in their work, and they had discovered what nobody suspected; that the system of which Haldane was the head practically controlled all the public utilities and afforded all the financial backing for the Eachen society and its immense corruption fund.

Gormly had meant to carry on his campaign to the end, and then tell her that he loved her and ask her to be his wife. He saw swiftly that with all the complications before him this would be an entirely fruitless proceeding. Indeed, if under more favorable circumstances he would have won her affections, it was probable that now his success or failure would be unavailing. He had been wondering since the knowledge had come to him how he could get speech with her without too great publicity, and behold fortune had given him the chance. At whatever hazards he intended to avail himself of it.

"Miss Haldane," he began, after they had been sitting for some moments in silence, "I said that I had something to say to you. I don't suppose either of the terms or the circumstances are propitious, but necessity compels me to say it now."

"I shall be very glad indeed to listen to anything that you have to say to me," was the answer.

"Thank you. I meant—it was my purpose—I intended—when I had won the first step to ask you if you would not help me with the rest of the battle."

"Help you, Mr. Gormly?"

"Yes, Miss Haldane, I purposed to ask you to be my wife."

"You—you—" exclaimed the girl.

"It surprises you doubtless. Possibly it dismays you."

"It surprises me, certainly."

"And yet you must have known, you must have seen—you must have known enough for that—that I cared a great deal for your opinion."

"I will not deny it, Mr. Gormly," returned the girl. "Things you have said, not so much that perhaps as the way you have said them, have led me to think so. But I really never imagined—you see there is so much difference—"

"I know that I am almost old enough to be your father," returned the man gently, "I am no boy. Therefore, I am the more sure and convinced of what I say, and you can be the more sure that I love you."

"It is a great honor that you pay me," began the woman.

"Wait!" said the man. "I am not through. I did not intend to tell you tonight. As I say, I was going to wait until I had something worth while to offer; but things that I have learned have made it necessary in my judgment to inform you of this fact at once."

"What things, Mr. Gormly? Is some one making charges against you or discovering things about you?"

"Not one bit of myself I am thinking."

"Of whom? Of what then?"

"As I said before," returned the man, "I can say no more. It seems to me that now my honor demands that I put you in possession of the state of my feelings. I am not asking you if you care anything for me. I realize that you could not. It is easy for me to have fallen in love with you, infinitely easy. I don't see how I could have helped it; but the case with you is different. And I want you to know, whatever happens in these closing days of the campaign, that I do truly and devotedly love you. Great God! Miss Haldane, I have never said those words to a soul since I was a boy. Yes and I know what they mean to me, what it would like to have them mean to you. Some day, it may be soon, I shall ask you to be my wife; but now all that I want to impress upon you is that whatever happens to me or anyone, I am pledged to you in my heart forever. Nothing can make any difference in my feelings. You are—"

"Stop!" cried the girl, rising to her feet and confronting him. "You have no right to say these things to me. You have no right to—to—"

"Eleanor," said Livingstone Haldane, "how long are you going to keep up stepping here?"

"I was about to suggest," said Miss Stewart, "that Mr. Gormly and I change places. I don't want to talk to you particularly; but I know that Eleanor wants to speak to Mr. Gormly, and—"

The words were not out of her mouth before Gormly had leaped to the street and opened the door. He assisted Miss Stewart to the place he had occupied, took her place by the big woman's side and sank down in the shadow of the car. As soon as the change was effected the car moved on.

"I am sure you must, that I was aware of your presence, Miss Haldane," said Gormly quietly. "And because of that I know that I never spoke better."

"It was a great occasion," was the reply, "and great eloquence makes great speakers."

"That and the consciousness, unconscious, if you will, if I may use such a contradiction—that you were listening—dare I not say sympathetically?—carried me through."

"It was glorious. You played upon those people as I might play upon—"

"Me," said Gormly softly.

"Upon an instrument of music," continued the girl. "I think your election is sure."

"I think so too," was the answer; "but I am not indulging in any overconfidence, and there is no let to no weakening of effort until the last minute."

They had by this time reached Fourteenth street. Although it was long after the ordinary time for the issuance of the latest editions of the newspapers, newsboys were already crying scraps of the epitome on their streets, and papers were being bought eagerly on every hand.

"Mr. Gormly," she turned suddenly full upon him, "why have you said to my brother that I must not come to the store any more to consult you on business matters?"

"My dear Miss Haldane," said Gormly. "I did that for your sake."

"But why?"

"I have ascertained that I am being shadowed by practically all the detectives of the city hall force; that I am watched constantly; that all my visitors are noted; and I did not wish to involve you in any notoriety whatsoever. Therefore, although I had no knowledge that you would come or that you wanted to come, I thought it proper to advise you through your brother not to do so."

"Of course I wanted to come," said the young woman, earnestly, "I have very many things pertaining to the campaign. I have done what I could among such friends as I was able to influence to get them to aid you. It was through me that Livingstone profured his services. I owed it to my father, but I have been unable to make any impression upon him; and now, I wanted to hear from you directly how things were going."

"I realize all that you have done, and you can't imagine, Miss Haldane, how great a deprivation it was to me to send such a message, and how hard a course it was to decide upon."

"I made Livingstone bring us both down here tonight. But I never dreamed that I was going to be the spectator of such a scene as that which has just happened. I don't believe there was ever anything more dramatic or splendid in the history of American politics. Why, it was like a new Declaration of Independence! When that multitude surged back and forth, they were yelling, threatening and muttering. I followed every emotion in my own heart. I never was so thrilled in my life. I am glad to have lived through this, to have seen it, to have been a small part of it."

"You can't imagine," said Gormly, "how great a part of it you have been. I will not say that I am doing it all for you now; that would not be true or fair. But you were my inspiration in the beginning; your words, your presence, Miss Haldane. I have something to say to you."

"First of all," he began, "where are you taking me?"

"Anywhere you want to go," was the answer, "only, please, not to the city hall. I am afraid that I am responsible for the fact that the police have been withdrawn from the vicinity of your house. I am afraid that I have been the cause of the withdrawal of the protection which you have been receiving. I am very sorry for that."

"Don't be," said Gormly. "I have no use for them. Where do you live?"

"Riverside Drive. We can get a decent bite to eat in some quiet place down there, and—"

"Suppose we go to my rooms and I'll see what I can get for us that is agreeable to you?"

"I am in your hands," answered Gormly gratefully. "And indeed, I think I should like it very much. I had no idea how tired I was till you told me. You know, how few opportunities I get like this for an hour's quiet enjoyment."

"Leave it to me," said young Haldane. "I'll turn you up at your apartment in proper time and in good shape. Tonight you are going to enjoy yourself and drop the campaign for a little while."

Whether or not Gormly would have indulged in the battle if he had had foreknowledge of this alliance between the father of the woman he loved and her brother he was trying to overthrow, is a question. As to his present attitude, he had begun his campaign with mingled feelings. It had been at first in a certain sense adventitious, a chess game for the winning of Eleanor Haldane; but larger issues had speedily relegated that to a motive into the background, and now the campaign made every possible appeal to his honor as a man, to his sense of duty as a citizen. And while Eleanor Haldane hulked large before him, he knew that no matter what might be the result of the campaign so far as she was concerned, he must of absolute necessity press for the end of it. He wanted to win for her; but if it became necessary, he would win without her, and for the people's sake.

It would make his election probably certain to reveal to the public the true sinister influences behind the traction company and the Eachen society. His agents had been thorough in their work, and they had discovered what nobody suspected; that the system of which Haldane was the head practically controlled all the public utilities and afforded all the financial backing for the Eachen society and its immense corruption fund.

Gormly had meant to carry on his campaign to the end, and then tell her that he loved her and ask her to be his wife. His saw swiftly that with all the complications before him this would be an entirely fruitless proceeding. Indeed, if under more favorable circumstances he would have won her affections, it was probable that now his success or failure would be unavailing. He had been wondering since the knowledge had come to him how he could get speech with her without too great publicity, and behold fortune had given him the chance. At whatever hazards he intended to avail himself of it.

"Miss Haldane," he began, after they had been sitting for some moments in silence, "I said that I had something to say to you. I don't suppose either the time or the circumstances are propitious, but necessity compels me to say it now."

"I shall be very glad indeed to listen to anything that you have to say to me," was the answer.

"Thank you. I meant—it was my purpose—I intended—when I had won the first step to ask you if you would not help me with the rest of the battle."

"Help you, Mr. Gormly?"

"Yes, Miss Haldane, I purposed to ask you to be my wife."

"You—you—" exclaimed the girl.

"It surprises you doubtless. Possibly it dismays you."

"It surprises me, certainly."

"And yet you must have known, you must have seen—you must have known enough for that—that I cared a great deal for your opinion."

"I will not deny it, Mr. Gormly," returned the girl. "Things you have said, not so much that perhaps as the way you have said them, have led me to think so. But I really never imagined—you see there is so much difference—"

"I know that I am almost old enough to be your father," returned the man gently, "I am no boy. Therefore, I am the more sure and convinced of what I say, and you can be the more sure that I love you."

"It is a great honor that you pay me," began the woman.

"Wait!" said the man. "I am not through. I did not intend to tell you tonight. As I say, I was going to wait until I had something worth while to offer; but things that I have learned have made it necessary in my judgment to inform you of this fact at once."

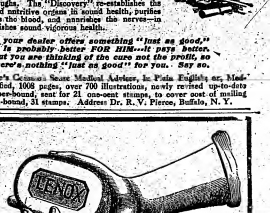
"What things, Mr. Gormly? Is some one making charges against you or discovering things about you?"

"Not one bit of myself I am thinking."

"Of whom? Of what then?"

"As I said before," returned the man, "I can say no more. It seems to me that now my honor demands that I put you in possession of the state of my feelings. I am not asking you if you care anything for me. I realize that you could not. It is easy for me to have fallen in love with you, infinitely easy. I don't see how I could have helped it; but the case with you is different. And I want you to know, whatever happens in these closing days of the campaign, that I do truly and devotedly love you. Great God! Miss Haldane, I have never said those words to a soul since I was a boy. Yes and I know what they mean to me, what it would like to have them mean to you. Some day, it may be soon, I shall ask you to be my wife; but now all that I want to impress upon you is that whatever happens to me or anyone, I am pledged to you in my heart forever. Nothing can make any difference in my feelings. You are—"

"Stop!" cried the girl, rising to her feet and confronting him. "You have no right to say these things to me. You have no right to—to—"



Nature Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in curing weak stomach, indigestion, bad blood, weak lungs, and obstinate coughs, is due to the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in concentrated and condensed form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food; build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

It your dealer offers something "just as good," It is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English or, Medicine Simplified, 1008 pages, over 700 illustrations, newly revised up-to-date Edition, paper-bound, sent for 21 one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Lenox Soap removes dirt without unnecessary labor and does not injure the clothes.

Dishes; pots; pans; colored clothes and white—Lenox Soap is good for one and all.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

PISO'S Best for COUGHS & COLDS

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. ADDRESS DEPARTMENT R. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

FOR ALL EYE DISEASES Pettit's Eye Salve

DEFIANCE Cold Water Starch makes laundry work a pleasure. 16 oz. pkg. 10c.

20 ACRE farms, good land surrounded by wheat fields, having cream gathering station, 80 per acre 10 monthly payments if desired. Write for literature. FARM LAND CO., Box 1, Prince Albert, Sask.

DRUG STORES (Stamps) for sale and trade in all localities. 27 KRAUT, Sandusky, O.

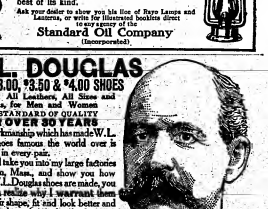
W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 48—1911.

REAL ESTATE

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for sale on Government, railway and private lands. Close to Prince Albert, Sask., splendid market; good water, convenient to railway and timber; $10 to $20 per acre; crops annually exceed value of land. For literature and maps, write Julius H. Woodward, Board of Trade, Dept. 24, Prince Albert, Sask.

Splendid Crops

In Saskatchewan (Western Canada)



800 Bushels from 20 acres

is what was the thresher's record last season from a Lloydminster farm in the autumn of 1910. Many fields in that same district averaged 40 bushels of wheat to the acre. Other grains in proportion.

LARGE PROFITS are thus derived from HOMESTEAD LANDS which, in Western Canada, are still obtainable free. The excellent shooting, cross fishing, splendid water, and healthful climate are other features. Grain growing, mixed farming and cattle raising are profitable lines. There are still millions of acres of these lands left, and settlers are flocking in. Schools and churches in every settled district. Railway facilities unsurpassed. Send for pamphlet, "Last Best West," and other literature, giving description of districts, Canadian Government rates, etc., to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can.

Can. Pac. Ry., Clifford Sifton, Desk 24, Winnipeg
Can. Nor. Ry., W. H. Rogers, Desk 24, Winnipeg
G. T. Bell, Desk 24, 801 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
Geo. A. Hall, 125 3d St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

Scientifically constructed to give most light for the oil they burn. Easy to light, clean and rewick. In numerous styles and styles, each the best of its kind.

Ask your dealer to show you the Rayo Lamps and Lanterns. Write for illustrated booklets that interest you.

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

All Styles, All Leathers, All Sizes and Widths, for Men and Women

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY

FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The workmanship which has made W. L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then realize why I warrant them to hold their shape, fit and wear better and wear longer than other makes for the price.

CAUTION the genuine have W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom. If the dealer cannot supply you, order direct from factory. Sold by mail or express, charges prepaid. Allow one or two pairs for your shoes. Illustrated Catalog Free. W. L. DOUGLAS, 149 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' $3.00 or $3.50 SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary boys' shoes

Fast Color Eyelets Used Exclusively.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Always ready for use. Safest and most reliable. The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater is just like a portable fireplace.

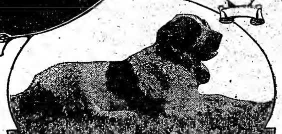
It gives a bright, cheerful glow and intense heat. A necessary in fall and spring, when it is not cold enough for the furnace. Invaluable as an auxiliary heater in midwinter.

All dealers have it. Dozens of blue and white steel, nickel trimmings. If not convenient to call on dealer, write to nearest agency for descriptive circular.

Standard Oil Company

The Wonderful Dogs of St. Bernard

by Sterling Heilig



ST. BERNARD HOSPICE

AUGUSTINE MONK AND ST. BERNARD DOG

THE KENNELS A LITTER OF ST. BERNARD PUPPIES

A FULL BLOODED ST. BERNARD DOG

ENTRANCE to KENNELS of the ST. BERNARD HOSPICE

I HAVE just quit forty of the most magnificent dogs in the world—as big as calves, as husky as bears, as intelligent as folks, as pedigreed as princes, as meritorious as saints, and as pure and plain-living as their masters, the Augustine canons, who, after fifteeo years of a climate that is nine mooths ice end snow, break down completely, with swelled joints, impoverished blood and chronio rheumatism.

The dogs are as aristocratic es the kings who in the middle ages seot them collars of gold; becouse the first Bernards, their ancestors, were already on the spot, aiding travelers in so amateurish wey, wheo St. Bernard de Maothoo went up from Aosta and founded the Hospice, A. D. 962. Their eocestors, bear-fighting dogs of old Charlemagne's court, had been left with certain mountaineer chiefs, emoog other peymeot for aid and neotrality, by an carlier Bernerd, uncle of Charlemagne, wbco be marched an army by this route A. D. 773.

Thus the great dogs of imperial court race were oear the spot when St. Bernard and his companions built their famous refuge at the epcx of the pess; and to understand their evolotioo—why the good monks began training them oot to be like other dogs—they most have an idea of this majestic short-cut of antiquity from north Europe into Italy.

Nowadeys the tunnels take you through by rail, in three-quarters of an bour, bot before such modern eogineering woodars it was different. Why has Napoleoo's—or Hannibel's—pessage of the Alps remained so striking? Because a great army, with its baggage, camp material, supplies, cannons and ammunition carts or yat more pondarous elephants, irrupted unexpectedly on the fertile plains of the sooth. They fell, really, from the cloods—the clonds hanging round the suow capped wall of mountains! Otherwise, Napoleon must have led his army round by the Mediterranean, interminabla journay that would have surprised nobody.

Otherwise, Hannibal, wandering with his hundreds of war elephants from Spain up into France would hava been obliged to wander back or stay there. Instead, he followed the Rhine valley to the entrance of the Great St. Bernard, climbed the grand old roed, op, op to its snow and ice, elephants and all, and descended on the vines and fig trees of Cepua, to the immense surprise of the Romans.

Tho first army to risk it was a Gaulish one, 150 years befora Hannibal. The Romans nsed it as early as B. C. 105; and the monks presorve tablets that record the passage of verious legions. After tbe foundetion of Aosta, B. C. 23, it became frequsnted by travelers and traders—a Temple of Jopiter actually stood at tbe top, where oow risss the gigantic statoe of St. Bernard. Roman emperors improved the road, ootably Coustaotioe, A. D. 339. Later, barbariao bordes fell oo the empire from its heigbts; bot in the anarchy of the early dark ages it became one of the most traveled and securest rootes of Europo, policed by mountain chiefs taking moderate toil—whence the big dogs of Charlemagne's uncle.

So, when St. Bernard founded his Hospice at tho top, and collected a pack of the dogs' descendaots—already evolved to precious mouotain frieods of man—it was to succor travelers at tha critical point of a uniqoe highway in the clouds. There were other short-cut passes, but nooe so improved by art and cootinual traffic. Even today, in spite of the railwey tunoels, the Great St. Bernard is annually crossed by 17,000 poor pedestrians.

In the early days, the richer the travelers, the more substantially tbsy showed their gratitnde. During the middle ages the mooastery became very wealthy. Kings and emperors made it grants. Passiug nobles and rich merchants settied annnities on it. And princesses embroidered collars in cloth-of-gold for the big dogs—already of ancient descent from Charlemagne's court—concerning whose unearthly intelligence and goodoess all kinds of stories ware rife.

Personal friends of mine had an adventure with the dogs last May. Hearing it to be a sporting "English" trip to go sleighing over tha Great St. Bernard after a considerable melting of the snows makes the thing possible, they started off, very Parisian trio—retired fashionable ladies' tailor of the rue Royale, Paris, his wife and his mother-in-lew, weigbt and girth increasing in the ordar mentioned.

At Martigny, in full bloom of peach and charry blossoms, they took a fonr-horse carriage up the already dusty road, through the ravine of the Drance, the rocky gorge, the tender spring buds and the woods, the tunnel, and on np through Sambrancher—whare tha stopped to cool with beer—past ruined chateaux and over old stone bridges, the Drance away down below, often invisible, and all delightful, springlike, and their hearts sang as they went up, like the skylerk. * * * They exclaimed in wonder as they began to get views of Mt. Velan with its glaciers and snowfields merging into an all-snow world beginning up there, just above them—so different from the scene in August. On the great curve beyond Liddes village, they felt chilly. Beyond the Torrent de la Croix they struck snow, and et Bourg St. Pierre the sleigh was waiting for them.

The sleigh had been engaged by telephone; and by the same means the good monks would have a hot dinner and fires all ready in their bedrooms. Jingling gaily across the Gorge of [illegible] with its deep snowbanks [illegible]ed, they chatted of Napoleon's superhuman difficulties in gettiog 30,000 men, cannon and camp beggage over thet historic sticking pot in ths seme mooth of Mey, the year 1800. They were doiog it beantifully in a light three-horse sleigh without beggage; hut the modern road, hewn in the rock, avoids the old steep, slippery route, scarcely marked by jegged stooes sticking out of the ice. It must heve been a 25 per cent. incline.

They had struck nothiug worse than 7 per cent.; and throogh the forest beyond it was often almost level, the snow well packed. A favorable momeot! Beentiful sleighing! Exhilerating edventure! Up! up! Five per cent., sir. They jingled through a loog defile end np into vast boulder-strewn pestures shrouded in white, like greet ghosts. How different from a common diligence trip in August, with hnrrahiug toorists! They still affirm that a three-horse sleigh can take three restanrant-fettened Parisians and a heer-swelled driver np inclines of 7 end 8 per ceot. with streogth and beeoty, had not e hlizzerd struck them just hefore the Cantine de Proz.

"Five more miles to climb," they said there, "better hurry! We shall telephone the canons." This is where they always telephone for help to come down from the Hospice, in bad weather; bnt their fat sleigh man had swigged his birsch-and-hot-water piacidly, refused an extra horse aod man, and started them off with confidence. This is why they were soon floondering in a blizzard that darkened the sun like night, at the entrance to a black defile, past "precipices" that "turned their stomachs." With a joit, the sleigh stopped.

"Must wait," said the fat sleigh man, blanketing his horses.

"Where are we?"

"At the Pas de Marengo, three miles below the Hospice."

"Drive on!"

"Go hack!"

"Armand, he'll take us over a precipice. I can't see two yards ahead!"

To all of which the driver, lifting the falling-top, covered them with rugs, and lighting his pipe, answered briefly: "They'll come."

"Never will I forget that half-hour while the sleigh was being snowed under in the black twilight of that blizzard," says the mother-in-law of the world-famed rue Royale concern. "And never was I so glad to see human beings as those three splendid big dogs that advanced to us formally, gravely out of the twilight. I cannot think of them as dogs. They were more than persons. They seemed supernatural creatures come to save us, perfectly safely, perfectly easy! Our confidence was complete. We understood their meaning when they ranged themselves three ebreast, just far enough apart for us two women to walk between, leaning on their backs! Armand took an outer edge. The driver showed him. [illegible] Up they advanced, dragged, sustained and cheerfully encouraged by the dogs alone, as they affirm, for a mile and a half, the driver leading his horses hehind, and keeping mighty close. He left the sleigh and valises—it was no momsnt for fancy work. When the good canon and his two brown brothers, with reinforcements of four more dogs, came hnrrying after the canine first aid, it was possibly e little earlier than they remember. The two miles or more of 10 per cent. climh np the long windings, over the dreary Comb of the Deed and through the avalanche gallery, seems to them a fantastic dreem of blizzard and derknsss. The two men heid the mother-in-law straddled on one of the horses, with the greatest difficulty. Armand and medame, draggsd along hy a big dog undsr each ermpit, "just loved the noble creatures."

Only when they errived at the Hospice did they realize that they had no pajamas. Their clothes were soaked and frozen. In a dreem they were led to two hig hedrooms with two bid wood fires blezing * * * and a hig brown brother calling through the keyhole thet they would "find a change of gowns on the chair-backs." They were monks' gowns, of acratchy, thick hrown woollen stuff that "tickled" the two ladies so thet they "ate their soup and went to sleep laughing." * * *

The next afternoon—the driver having rescued his sleigh, sent np their valises by porter, and himself returned to Bourg St. Pierre long before—they went down the 2, 6, 8 and 10 per ceot. slopes of the Italian side in a reguiar service sleigh and deshing style and taking the terrific descents of 18 to 25 per ceot. with "sleigh hrakes that hold safer than an antomobile." Although they found the Pess alive with service movement, mostly locel, they consider themselves great sports and "advise no one to repeat the exploit." As to the dogs, they will "send them a present of 500 francs every year." As the first year has not yet elapsed, it remains to be seen if they turn out more grateful than the average tourist; hnt I believe they did leave $10 in the alms hox.

It is a peihful suhject. To merely see the dogs on the spot and learn of their deeds is worth any man's $10, even in August. And, quite apart, is the question of board and lodging.

The Hospice consists of two vast aggiomerations of hnildings in the hottom of a cnp-like apece surrounded by the terrific snow-covered peaks. Yet it is the top of the pass, so high that everyooe is incommoded in hreathing after a little exertion—no one knows why; but the amosphere is more rarefied and colder than that of any other pass, altitnde for altitnde, hy a technical 500 meters. True, it is higher than the Simpson or Mt. Cenis; hut it is lower than the Stolvie or Great Gilhier—all of which I have done, in anto, with none of the inconvenieoce in hreathing experienced around the Great St. Bernard Hospice.

Withont the Hospice, the 17,000 poor pedestrians would he in e wretched, even dangerous plight. They regularly sleep at night and eat two meals gratis.

Without the Hospice, 6,000 well-to-do pleasure tourists, who annually "do" the Great St. Bernard in July, August and September by wey of diligences, eervice-breaks and private carriages would find it a much less "romantio and delightful adventure," with perhaps some painful inconveniences.

For one thing, they would have to pay. When a break-load arrives, they ring the bell in the ancient porch and are welcomed by one of the ahbes or canons as guests of a chateau. Automobiles not being permitted on the Swiss side, the [illegible] locomotion of the pass makes a stay over night et the top practically necessary. With old-feshioned courtesy the tourists are conduoted to their rooms by an ahbe, and after meals are shown round the church, the kennels and mussum, quite as guests in a country house. Never a hint of pay. Every tourist knows—it is universal conversation and all guide books tell it—that each tourist ought to put into the alms box at least what he (or she) would have to pay at a hotel.

All toorists similarly know in advance that the Hospice has grown poor in modern times by continuing to feed, warm and lodge 23,000 mingled rich and poor annually—the grants, rents and annuities that once made it rich having shrunk and dwindled. This being so, what do you imegine the 6,000 gay and arrogent tourists lest summer put into the alms box? Less than 1,000 would have paid at e hotel! That is to say, an average of one tourist in six paid np honestly. The rest sneeked it.

This is not why the dogs have a far-away, almost disdainful look. They do not know why they are almost hard up for their soup and biscnits. Once they wore gold collers; now they go ebout contentedly in leather dotted with brass nail-heads. They do not even know that rich tourists have tried to huy them for large sums—which the good ceoons gontly refused; they would oever seod their dog friends down to pant and pine in the thick, hot air of the plain. They disdain nobody. They simply do not like our smell—the smell of overheated, overfed, gross tourist hodies, hurning oxygen and letting off poisooous gases like a furnace.

Their frieods, the abbes, brothers and clean-smelling wood choppers of the heights are plain livers, trained down, all muscle, their very clothes free from the grease eod microhes of the festering plain. How, then, if they avoid us, are they willing to hound off through enow and night and hunt out—what they smell so easily, so far away—the strong-scented denizen of low eltitudes in distress?

In men it would be called professiooel ardor In these dogs we call it atavism. Since St Bernerd de Menthon collected the peck in the year A. D. 962, almost e thousand yeers have elapsed. Generetion after geoeretioo, back through the centuries, the same patient treining, exclusive compenlooship of wise meo, absence of outside foolishness aod distractions heve made it a rece of dogs apert. There are pleoty of St. Bernards up and down the valley; hut they are degenerates from the overflow

The dogs of the Hospice, for example, take their orders only from the ahhes, or canons not the brown brothers ("marronniers") who live with them, feed them, and for whom they have the greatest effection. Yet before starting on an expedition, en ehbe has the chief dogs up before him, one by one. It pesses in absoiute silence, very queer. When the pure-minded, stroog-souled, trained-dowo, unworldly man looks into his eyes, whet pesses into the subconscious heing of the cleeo-living, high-bred, hnmen-compenioned enimel of the thiu air and lonely heights?

Two Hospice dogs have crouched beside an exheusted weyferer, snnggling close to him on each side to keep him warm while the third dog ran back, to lead the "caravan" of rescue to the spot.

Snch a trio of scouts have barked continuously in the ears of a weakening, stumbling traveler to keep him awake. Two trndged so close to him on each side es to werm and hold him upright—while the third hutted him elong from behind a good five minntes before deshing heck to hring the caravan.

Any visitor in snow time is given the privilege to wander off and hide behind a drift—as far as he pleases, covering his trecks at pleasure. Then an ahbe will take a new bunch of six dogs from the kennels, merely show them your handkerchief in his uplifted hand—of course they get the scent—end off they go, circling, herking, as et e game. After two cricles of the Hospice, at the most, running with their noses in the air like a Frsnch deer hound, they have your trail and follow it straight to where you are waiting to be rescued. Then yon get your second surprise. Instead of digging you out end offering you a drink of hrandy and water from the canteens round their necks, they stand in a circle, laughing at you. Yon know how a dog laughs?

Technically, the pass is "open to circulation" between the melting and reappearance of the snows in July, August and September. During this period, when the road is alive with traffic over good dry earth, and rock, the rescue work is limited to hunting up adventurous tourists or tipsy "work-seeking" laborers who have strayed or fallen. In bad weather and as soon as there is snow, the telephone makes rescue work a routine. From St. Rhemy, on the Swiss slope, a telephone message invariably notifies the Hospice of the passage up of each vehicle, band of pedestrians or solitary edventurer.

DREADED MAN-EATING SHARK

Voracious Monster of the Deep Attains Enormous Size and Devours Almost Anything.

San Francisco, Cal.—This shark was caught in the vicinity of the Hawaiian islands. There are many species of sharks, this being of the "white" variety, known as the 'man-eater," and therefore the most dreaded of all moosters of the deep. They attain great size, one having been caught 37 feet in length. The body is covered with a hard skin, and is grayish-brown above and whitish below.

These sharks often follow ships for deys to feed upon any animal substance that may be thrown or may fall overboard, eod often their lodiscriminate vorecity will swallow thiugs indigestible. A lady's workhox wes found in the stomach of one, and ths papers of a slave ship in thet of another. Human heings are frequently its prey, a fect which makes hathing or diving in tropical sees a dangerous pursuit.

Caught In Hawall.

This variety of shark is capehle not only of hiting off the leg of a man, but of shapping the hody in two, end hes been known to swallow a man entire. Its heed is large, the mouth large and wide, furnished with terrihle teeth, which ere trianguler in form, somethimes two inches in breadth, sharp-edged and sereted. When not in use they ere laid heck in the mouth, neerly flet, but when used in biting, they ere brought up hy means of muscles with which each tooth is independently provided.

This shark is often ceptured hy seamen by meens of a great hook haited with a piece of meet and attacbed to a chaio, as the shark's teeth readily bite through any rope. When the shark is hooked aod hauled on board, great care is necesssry to avoid denger both from the mouth end from the wonderfully powerful tail.

MAY YET BE BRITISH QUEEN

Little Daughter of Russia's Czar May Be Wedded to the Prince of Wales.

London.—It is rumored tbat Princess Tatjaoa, second daughter of the Czar of Russia, is the destined hride of Edward Alhert, the young Prince of Wales. They ere secoud cousins, the maternal grandmother of the princess, Grand Duchess Alice of Hesse, heing a sister of the late King Edward.

They are indeed doubly second cousins, for Prince Alhert's grandmother, Queen Alexendrie, and Princess Tatjana's grandmother, the Dowager Empress Dagmer of Russia, are sisters of the present King Frederick of Denmerk.

PRINCESS TATIANA of RUSSIA

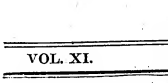
The Czar Nicholes of Russie and King George of England, sons of these sisters, have always borne a remarkahie resemhlance to each other, accentuated by the similarity in the cut of their heards, and by the low stature commoo to botb. The Prince of Wales is 17 years of age, while the princess is orly 14.

Toadstools Kill Three.

Chicago.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Letch and their son, Le Roy, were fonnd dead in their home in Irving Park, a euburh. Physicians deciare they had died from toadstool poisoning.



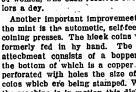
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1911. NO. 37.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Wonderful Machine Now in the Mint



PHILADELPHIA.—A most interesting machine recently installed in the United States mint in this city is the automatic weigher for coins of all denominations. Last year the government coined nearly 5,000,000 pieces of gold and 35,000,000 pieces of silver. Formerly each piece was weighed by hand, located at long tables, each with a balance in front of her, were from 30 to 60 women "adjusters." It was their duty to weigh each piece. Pieces which were too heavy were reduced with a file. Those that were too light were thrown aside to be put again into the melting pot. Gold pieces were weighed twice, once in blank and once in coinage.

The new weighing machines have each ten hoppers which are set according to the required weight of the coin which is being tested. Then they work automatically, each machine taking ten coins at a time. The movement of the beams of the scales determines into which of the several chutes the weighed coin shall drop. If it is too light, the scale beam moves up and the coin is dropped into the "Lights." If it is too heavy the scale beam drops and the coin falls into the "heavies." If it just balances the coin drops among the coins which are of the proper weight. The work is very rapid and very accurate. There are eight of these new machines in use at the mint, and they have displaced 34 women, who each received two dollars a day.

Another important improvement at the mint is the automatic, self-feeding coining presses. The blank coins were formerly fed in by hand. The new attachment consists of a hopper, at the bottom of which is a copper disk perforated with holes the size of the coins which are being stamped. When the machine is in motion this disk revolves slowly, and the blanks drop through into a stocking tube, whence they are carried by little clutches and placed under the stamp.

Revolution Daughter 111 Years Old

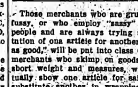
ATLANTA, GA.—Mrs. Mary Tarwick Proctor, aged 111 years, a real daughter of the American revolution, a woman who has lived in three centuries, has been found in an humble one-room Georgia cabin. Her sole companions are her daughter, Miss Mary Proctor, aged 56, and the two great-great-grandchildrens, descendants of another daughter, all who are left of six generations of her family.

On a bed of straw, constituting a mattress so thin that the rough plank slots can be seen, this daughter of the revolution lies, her form emaciated, skin wrinkled, almost to a skeleton. Her aged daughter, never tiring of her feeble efforts to give her mother every possible comfort, administers to her wants and tills the soil in a small cotton and garden patch near by. The meager profits derived from their labor she adds to the $12 a month pension Mrs. Proctor receives for the service her husband rendered in the War of 1812.

The morning of her life she spent in the eighteenth century, when the United States government had just been established, the afternoon in the nineteenth century, when brother fought against brother in the civil war of 1861, and now in the twentieth she hears of the discussions of world-wide peace movements, of long journeys by airships, in striking contrast to the methods of travel when she was a girl and the only methods of doing a thousand things is as many different ways as foreign to those employed a hundred years ago, when she was 11 years old.

'Dormant Accounts' Reach Big Total

NEW YORK.—More then $1,000,000 is lying in the savings banks of New York city in whot bonking people colk "dormoet accounts"—that is accouets to which eotbieg bes hece added ond from which notbieg bas been withdrawn for many years. Bet the depositor in each cass is liable to appeer any day and demand it. In fact, since the beginnio of the year five accounts in the Emigrants' Savings beet sioes, which had since ootbeeo touched for from $5 to 30 years, andesiy become "active," through the owears, who bed not been seen nor heord from in that log period, reapperiog ot the bank. Some of these unmoo accounts are more than 70 years old; none is less than 22, and whot to do with such deposits has been a puzzle over since savings banks were first established in thot city.



Money at four per cent interest per eneum doubles itself in obout 18 years, ond as four per cent. is the averoge rate paid by the savings banks in New York, it will be seen that the "unclaimed" money or dormant accounts, unless checked would pile up enormously in the course of time and become such a hurden that the banks might collopse under it. At first the limit was fixed at 20 years, but later was extended to 22 years.

Most of these sleeping accoents were originally sums of only $5 or $10, fag-ends of accouts which once were active. The owners perhaps hod left these small bolances simply to keep their accounts open and finally perheps forgot all obout them. But many of the accounts represent money deposited by some emigrant who later probably went west or to some other seclion of the new country, and, unable to write, had never again got in communication with the bank.

Kansas Women Classifying Merchants

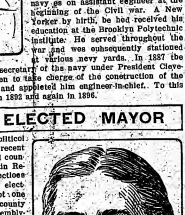
TOPEKA, KAN.—Kansas club women are preparing a classification of merchants in the various towns in the state according to service rendered. The retail associations of the state have a classified list of customers. Those who are prompt in paying bills are classified as class A. Those who are slow, but sure pay, get into class B. Those that pay finally, but are exceptionally slow, are put into class C, and those who never pay are class D, or "deadbeats," and not entitled to credit.

The women are going to do the same thing with the merchants. Those stores which sell goods as advertised and deliver goods of the same quality when ordered by telephone as when bought personally, will get a class A rating in each town throughout the state. Class B includes the merchants who try to give their customers the best possible treatment in every way, but who handle soiled, inferior lines of goods, or who misrepresent.

Those merchants who are gruff and surly, or who employ "easy" salespeople and are always trying substitution of one article for another "just as good," will be put into class C, and merchants who skimp on goods, give short weight and measure, who actually show one article for sale and substitute another in wrapping, will be put into Class D, and the women of the state will be warned to keep away from them.

Mrs. C. Kaiser, merchants' have threatened to apply for an injunction to prevent the publication of the classified list of women have really no right to interfere with the business of merchants, and that the women have no right to publish the list.

PROMINENT PEOPLE



HERO OF THE AMERICAN NAVY

Rear Admiral Melville had won fame for heroism in Arctic explorations as a naval engineer and constructor. He was a member of De Long's party, which sailed for the Arctic regions from San Francisco in 1879 in the ill-fated Jeanette, and he commanded the boat's crew which escaped from the icy wastes of the Lena Delta after the wreck of the expedition. He afterwards commanded the expeditions which recovered De Long's body and the records of the Jeanette, for which services he received a gold medal by special act of congress. But that is another story. How Admiral Melville entered the navy as an assistant engineer at the beginning of the Civil war. A New Yorker by birth, he had received his education at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. He served throughout the war and was subsequently stationed at various navy yards. In 1887 the head of the navy under President Cleveland, Admiral Melville as the man to take charge of the construction of the new navy of the United States and appointed him engineer-in-chief. To this post Melville was reappointed in 1892 and again in 1896.

late William C. Whitney, then secretary of the navy under President Cleveland, picked Melville as the man to take charge of the construction of the new navy of the United States and appointed him engineer-in-chief. To this post Melville was reappointed in 1892 and again in 1896.

PREACHER ELECTED MAYOR

One of the most notable political changes in New York at the recent election was that in the city and county of Schenectady, where certain Republican and Democratic factions united with the Socialists and elected all the city officers, except one and gained a majority of the county offices, beside electing an assemblyman. The leader of these mixed forces was Rev. Dr. George R. Lunn, their candidate for mayor, whose portrait is shown, and who polled practically two-thirds of the entire vote.

Rev. Dr. Lunn was at one time pastor of the First Reformed church, one of the most aristocratic in the city. Three years ago his advanced political views, some of them in harmony with Socialistic principles, forced his resignation from the First Reformed pulpit and he then organized the United People's Congregation, which recently united with the First Congregationalist. Dr. Lunn edits a weekly paper called the Citizen in which he expresses his political and sociological views and frequently conducts Sunday evening meetings in theatres for the same purpose.

The Socialistic vote in Schenectady at the last preceding election was 2,340. The town has a population of 81,000.

HEADS RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT

Although the active efforts in the men-ced religion forward-movement were begun only a short time ago, practically all of the seventy-six cities participating have reported completed organizations and campaigns under way. The general headquarters in New York city is being kept in close touch with the work all over the country.

The general interest which has been manifested by the leading business and professional men is especially encouraging to the men in charge of the movement. James G. Cannon, who is here pictured, president of the Fourth National Bank of New York, is chairman of the general campaign committee and he believes the effort will be the most significant made by the church in the religious history of America.

One of the extraordinary incidents of the campaign in Grand Rapids, Mich., carried at a mass meeting where Rev. Dr. Tumpie and Dr. I. J. Lansing discussed "The Church and Labor."

Mr. Cannon is enthusiastic over the apparent success of the campaign of which he is the head.

IS FIRST WOMAN OFFICIAL

Miss Edith Campbell is the lady who has been elected a member of the Board of Education for the city of Cincinnati. President Taft in a public speech heartily endorsed her candidacy and though she was not on his ticket he voted for her. She is a brilliant woman with marked executive ability and wide educational experience. President Taft says he believes that every city Board of Education would be the better for women in its membership and doubtless his endorsement had much to do with Miss Campbell's election.

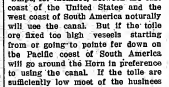
Her election gives her a three-fold distinction. She is the first woman elected to any public office in Cincinnati, though several have been candidates before; she is the first candidate ever elected for the Board of Education in Cincinnati who ran as an independent candidate, and she is being received as the guest of honor at the United States Treasury department of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Panama Canal Tolls Up to Congress

WASHINGTON.—That the question of legislation relative to canal tolls and regulations and the government of the canal zone will come before congress at the very outset of the session and that it will be one of the most important matters of the winter in a legislative way was the view expressed by Senator Bristow of Kansas. He is a member of the committee on inter-oceanic canals and recently returned from a visit to the canal zone.

Senator Bristow summed up his impression of the canal and the work being done on it with one word: "Great." He commends in the highest terms the efforts of those in charge of the construction of the canal. He expects to see it opened in 1913.



"The matter of tolls and regulations should be settled this session," said he. "Those who are looking forward to the use of the canal want to know what they can expect. The fixing of the tolls is the chief problem. It is the most important question relative to the canal to be worked out. And the tolls should be fixed by legislation.

Just at what figure to fix the tolls, Senator Bristow pointed out, is something difficult to work out. Many interesting and important factors enter into the solution. It is expected that the canal will cost $3,000,000 or more a year to maintain. This sum ought to be made up by tolls, if feasible, he says.

"The problem is to put the tolls at the point where they will bring in the most revenue," said the senator. "Ships, for instance, between the east coast of the United States and the west coast of South America naturally will use the canal. But if the tolls are fixed too high vessels starting from or going to points far down on the Pacific coast of South America will go around the Horn in preference to using the canal. If the tolls are sufficiently low most of the business will pass through the canal.

"The same thing is true as to vessels between Europe and the west coast of South America. High tolls will drive many of these vessels around the Horn, while low tolls will bring many of them through the canal. bring many of them through the canal."

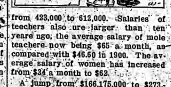
Postal Savings Bank Proves a Success

BY Jan. 1 the trustees of the postal savings banks expect to have a postal savings bank established in every first, second and third class post office in the entire country. All of the first and second class offices have already been so designated, and the designation of third class offices is on and will continue at the rate of 100 a day until completed. This means that more than 2,000 postoffices in the United States are now receiving deposits for their postal banks for which the government pays 2 per cent per annum interest, or, if the depositor chooses to buy government bonds with his deposits, 2½ per cent. The officials in charge of the work in the postoffice department know that the system bee been a tremendous success, far exceeding their expectations, and they are heeding their time and energy for the present to an extension of the benefits of the service.

On Jan. 3 last, the postal savings bank system of the United States was started by the designation of one sec ond-class office in each of the 48 states and territories of the country ee a postal savings bank. Progress in the public has been so slow at first but now that the system of administration is well in hand, designations are proceeded as rapidly as investigations can be made. Instruction given ond supplies furnished to banks in longer any disposition to hang hock—the system is a demonstrated success.

It is the intention of the board of trustees, just ee soon as they get oround to it, to devise a plee for an extension of the postal bank system in the larger cities. At the present time Chicago, New York and other of the larger cities have only one bank.

Consul-General Kicks on His Laundry



IF John H. Snodgrase, consul-general at Moscow, ever kicked about his laundry work in Cincinnati, Washington or Indianapolis, he has the pardon of every steam cleaning establishment, every slant-eyed Celestial, and every colored washerwoman in those and other cities. What they are doing to his collars, his shirts and unmentionable waistcoats over there in the land of the czar is something awful to relate. Besides that, the way they are soaking John in the matter of price is enough to make any American citizen utter loud wails of distress. For instance, they charge a nickel to do up a collar, and "the work is unsatisfactory" and the finishing is crudely done," he insists.

Change under the collar—frayed to a saw edge by the ruthless Russians without doubt—Consul-General Snodgrase the le no relation to Snodgrass, of the New York Clams, who managed Baker, of the Athletic during the world's series game), writes to the department of commerce and labor a fiery report on the wash subject and begs some enterprising American capitalist to hurry over to Moscow and start a real United States laundry.

There isn't a modern establishment of the kind in the city, he states. In fact, the only steam laundry open to the public in the entire empire is at St. Petersburg, and that is too far from Moscow to send a collar with any hope of getting it back before another consul-general comes into office.

Schools of Nation Show Marked Gain

GREATER progress has been made in the education in the United States during the last ten years than in any previous decade in the country's history. A study of the development just completed by the federal bureau of education, shows that during the years 1899 to 1910 the annual income of the public schools has nearly doubled, having increased from $220,000,000 to $426,000,000, while the annual appropriations to normal schools for the training of teachers have grown from $2,750,000 to $6,250,000. The value of public school property in 1900 was $550,000,000; in 1910, it was more than a billion dollars.

During the same period the average length of the common school term increased from 144 to 161 days and the average attendance of children enrolled from 72 to 81 days. The number of teachers employed increased from 423,000 to 612,000. Salaries of teachers are also larger than ten years ago, the average salary of male teachers now being $65 a month, as compared with that end women, $50 a month, as compared with $41 in 1900. The average salary of women has increased from $34 a month to $53.

The jump from $166,175,000 to $372,425,000 is shown in the productive fund of universities, colleges and technical schools, and an increase from $28,500,000 to $77,000,000 in the annual income of those schools, from endowments and other end revenue. There are now 2,138,000 students in these schools and a total of 110,000 instructors.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM, - - MINN.

CAUSE OF DISCONTENT.

The poor man, or the man moderately well to do, who makes the few good books of a small collection the companions of his home, and who hangs upon the wall a few pictures having in them for him and his family a meaning, a beauty and an inspiration, is richer by far than the vulgar captain who crowds a magnificent library with unread books and the unappreciated works of painters and sculptors. Moreover, it is not easy today to tell the rich man's child from the poor man's child; they wear the same kind of clothes, attend the same schools, enjoy the same harmless hobbies, and in all essential particulars live upon terms of equality, save the Seattle Post-Intelligencer. And so far as necessary material comforts are concerned, the poor man's home is not different from the rich man's home. What, then, is the reason for the pervasive discontent of the hour? The reason is to be found in false sentiments and false opinions made possible because the poor have been foolish enough, in a moment of passion and prejudice, to become jealous of the vulgar ostentation and unbridled extravagance of the foolish rich.

All women today have a wider horizon. The mother studies the task of feeding and caring for her children and busts information. The matron, whether her husband's income be large or small, belongs to some club in church, to the home and school league or to her social life, and has a swarm of organizations in which she is interested. An overwhelming share of the 3,000,000 volumes yearly circulated in this city are read by women, probably seven or eight out of ten, says the Philadelphia Press. Concerts, music in the home, art and the theater all live on the interest of women, as the noticeable show. Novels and magazines grow and multiply on their support. Physical training, sounder hygiene and wiser food have greatly developed the American woman. The daughter of today is nearly always taller than her mother and usually better schooled. Fair as was her mother, she is fairer still, as the Roman poet noted of mother and daughter in a day of corresponding advance. But though fairer and physically stronger, when the American woman thinks of the "perfect woman," she gives the major weight and importance to those things of mind and heart which years do not rob, but instead enrich.

According to a Turkish diplomat now to this country, the Turkish women no longer keep their faces covered in public. They go about as they please, and make pretty eyes and flirt just as women do elsewhere. This is a great reform which is said to be pleasing to both sexes, but it is not likely to create a rush to Turkey for a beauty exhibition. The most beautiful woman in the world are not to be found in Turkey—not in extravagant numbers. Now that they can show themselves, however, it may be expected they will take more pains to enhance their charms.

Luther Burbank, the wizard of naturalists, has produced a blackberry bush without thorns. But the rest benefactor of the race will be he who evolves the dumb and stingless mosquito.

A German has been arrested for smuggling glass eyes into this country, which is proper. Let our glass eye factories have the fullest measure of protection that is possible. They need it, owing to the disinclination of people in general to make a larger output of the glass eyes necessary.

Let us hope that the hoity emperor of China knows what it is to have when he says "the spirits of our nice emperors are unable to enjoy the sacrifices." In English, at any rate, it's a bit hazy.

An umbrella was found in the stomach of a shark caught in Delaware bay a few days ago. Search was made for the owner, but no trace of him was discovered.

Panama hats are now to be made in Panama, but the frankfurter, the Hamburger steak and the Havana cigar will continue to register from any old place.

Astronomers report from the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., that Mars had its first frost of the season. They have not been able to discover whether Marians succeeded in getting their late corn under cover before the frost came.

If Mr. Bryson, coming up New York bay, could only see the kindly, warm Yankees that live on the shores of the

M'NAMARAS MAKE A FULL CONFESSION

JAMES B. McNAMARA ADMITS CAUSING THE TIMES EXPLOSION THAT KILLED TWENTY-ONE.

LONG TERMS IN PRISON ARE DUE

John J. Confesses Implication in the Blowing Up of the Llewellyn Iron Works, Also in Los Angeles, in Which Outrage No Fatalities Occurred.

Los Angeles, Calif. — James B. McNamara pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree in Judge Walter Bordwell's court. His brother, John J. McNamara, secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, entered a plea of guilty to having dynamited the Llewellyn Iron Works in Los Angeles on Christmas day, 1910.

James B. McNamara's confession clears up absolutely the tragedy of the explosion and fire which at 1 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 1, 1910, wrecked the plant of the Los Angeles Times at First and Broadway and caused the death of 21 persons. For nineteen of these deaths the McNamara brothers were indicted.

J. B. McNamara was on trial specifically for the murder of Charles J. Haggerty, a machinist whose body was found nearer than that of any other to the spot where the dynamite was supposed to have been placed.

To Be Sentenced Dec. 5.

It is expected District Attorney John D. Fredericks will ask for life imprisonment for James B. McNamara, the confessed murderer, and probably fourteen years for his brother. The men's lives are considered saved. The great contention that the Los Angeles Times was not dynamited is dead beyond resurrection or argument.

"He was counselled to confess because that was the best thing he could do, in the opinion of counsel," said Attorney Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel. "I will say now that there was no other reason or motive in it. I've studied this case for months. It presented a stone wall."

Darrow's statement was made as looking squarely in the face of the charges filed in the recent arrest of Burt H. Franklin, an investigator employed by the defense, and two others with him, might have precipitated a situation untenable save by confession of the prisoner.

Darrow also denied that external pressure was exerted from union labor socialist sources as General Harrison Gray Otis charged in a formal statement, or that the municipal election to be held next Tuesday in which Job Harriman, one of the defense's counsel, is candidate for mayor, carried any weight. It was learned that Harriman was not consulted at all in the deliberations.

A brotherly affection bordering on worship, it became known, brought about James McNamara's confession. A desire to save his brother from the necessity of confessing anything at all held back day after day the word that would end the trial.

Courtroom Packed.

At the afternoon session the courtroom was packed, many attaches of Fredericks' office being present.

Two floors above the court room, a few minutes after adjournment, the office of the district attorney was active with a throng of people—friends of the prosecution, newspaper men and photographers. The district attorney threw wide the doors and they trailed in. Exhibits of all kinds in connection with the case were conspicuous and the very steel beam upon which James B. McNamara was shown to have placed the dynamite bomb that wrecked the Times was exhibited to visitors.

Scene in Courtroom.

Seated with District Attorney Fredericks was his entire staff. During him was Clarence S. Darrow and two three associate counsel for the defendants.

"The people versus McNamara," remarked the court, and Attorney Le Compte Davis of the defense stood.

"Your honor," he declared, "the defendant is in court. In this case, people vs. McNamara, that is now on trial, may it please the court, after a long consideration of the matter and final consultation between counsel for the defendant, we have concluded to withdraw the plea of not guilty and have the defendant enter in this case a plea of guilty and we intend to pursue the like course with reference to J. L. McNamara in the case of the people against him wherein he is charged with having destroyed the Llewellyn Iron Works or with having placed dynamite at the Llewellyn Iron Works."

Mr. Fredericks—"To this indictment charging you with the crime of murder, do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

The Defendant—"Guilty."

Mr. Fredericks—"J. J. McNamara, you have heretofore been arraigned on indictment No. 6953 in which you are charged with the crime of exploding or attempting to explode dynamite, nitro-glycerine, etc., in the buildings or near the buildings adjacent to the Llewellyn Iron Works. You have been arraigned on the said indictment and entered your plea of not guilty. Do you now want to plead guilty or not guilty?"

The Defendant—"Guilty."

Ortie E. McManigal, the confessed dynamiter whose admissions are said to have been a big factor in the McNamaras pleading guilty, will go virtually free, if the plans of his state in his behalf do not go wrong.

Death Penalty Demanded.

St. Joseph, Mo.—At a meeting of the central labor council of St. Joseph, representing nearly all the labor unions of the city, resolutions were adopted unanimously demanding the death penalty for the McNamaras. Indignation is at a high pitch among the union men on account of the affair.

The chief crime charged against the McNamaras and the one which finally led to their undoing was the destruction of the Los Angeles Times building. Organized labor opposed this paper because of its successful fight against the unions. There was much talk of a "gas explosion" at the Times, and Socialist and labor publish papers discussed the theory seriously, but men on the outside doubted and smiled when they attributed the destruction of the Times to gas.

Shortly after the big pressure in the basement had commenced rumbling on the morning of October 1, 1910, the Los Angeles Times building, which was one of the landmarks of the southern California metropolis, was destroyed by an explosion which startled the city. Twenty-one lives were lost. The property loss was estimated at $500,000.

Twenty minutes after the explosion which shattered windows and broke glass in homes many blocks away, the seven-story brick and stone building was a mass of ruins, under which lay the scores of victims, with the angry flames licking up every bit of inflammable material in sight, including several carloads of print paper stored in the basement. It was believed the explosion, together with the other unsuccessful attempts, by which it was sought to destroy the homes of the owner of the Times, General Harrison Gray Otis, and Herry Zechendelaar, secretary of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association, was the result of a conspiracy of certain union labor leaders who were known to be antagonistic to the Times and the merchants' organization.

For many years General Otis has been waging a relentless warfare against labor unions, commencing with his fight against the International Typographical union. He had enlisted the support of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, a powerful and influential body of Los Angeles business men, who stood by the Times publisher in its campaign against organized labor.

Feeling Very Bitter.

The feeling between the labor organizations and the Times was extremely bitter. General Otis openly and strongly attacked unionism on every possible occasion, and the unionists were equally bold in denouncing him and his allied forces. On several occasions the newspaper publisher's life has been threatened by men whom he had fought through the columns of his paper.

A disavowal of labor union responsibility was also made by the strike committee of the metal trades unions, which had then been on strike for several months, and which had been hooked in the columns of the Times. Between these organizations and the Times existed a feeling of intense bitterness. The state of California added $10,000 to the reward offered for the capture of the dynamiters, and the Los Angeles city council, at the urgent request of Mayor Alexander, added $5,000 to the additional reward, or $15,000.

General Otis has long been antagonizing this view, being in the warfare with the labor unions, by maintaining a fully equipped auxiliary plant in duplicate of another part of the city, of which few people know. By this means the Times was enabled to get out its regular editions within 48 hours after the explosion.

The arrests marked the end of one of the most thrilling criminal hunts ever recorded. Many times detectives knew in advance that certain explosions were to take place and dared not prevent them lest they warn the quarry of their presence. For six months, during which more than a dozen bomb outrages were staged by the "wrecking crew," its members are said never to have been out of sight of a detective. All this time the men were being sought by regular police in the cities in which they were operating, but never once, despite the omnipresence of posters describing their appearance accurately, were they molested by the authorities.

A few weeks before the Times building was destroyed an attempt was made to blow up a bridge at Peoria, Ill. This was in the latter part of September, 1910. An arrest had been made in the adjustment of the machine and it failed to explode. It was found by a detective and turned over to detectives employed by the Erectors' association—the national body of open-shop contractors, against whom the hand of the "wrecking crew" had been turned.

The contractors who had been forced to stand helpless while a property loss running over $5,000,000 had been inflicted upon them, saw in the infernal machine their first clew, and soon a swarm of detectives went to work in Peoria. Some worked into the confidence of labor men and learned, it is said, that a Chicago man had "done the job."

Comparison of the machine found at Peoria and those picked up at Los Angeles convinced the detectives the dynamitings had been planned by the same person and carried out by his agent or agents. William J. Burns, head of the Burns Agency and the man who exposed the San Francisco graft ring, chanced to be in Los Angeles at the time of the explosion and was called into conference with Mayor Alexander, the chief of police, other city officials and representatives of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' association.

He was offered a reward from the state, city and private interests which now totals $100,000, in the event that he succeeded in finding the fiend that ran down the criminals.

Going back to the Peoria plot, he traced McManigal to his Chicago home, and then placed a special squad of shadows on McManigal's trail.

A connection was soon established between McManigal and the McNamara, and their connection with a number of additional dynamite cases established. Events came rapidly to a head, James B. McNamara and McManigal being arrested at Detroit on April 12, 1911, and his brother ten days later at Indianapolis. The latter was taken from an executive meeting of the Iron Workers' union, of which he was international secretary, and a search of the union headquarters revealed a mine of dynamite, bombs, etc., ready for use. The men were taken to Indianapolis, where they have since been in jail.

McManigal's confession and corroborative evidence consisted of letters with a series of over one hundred dynamite outrages, beginning from May 31, 1906, until April 5, 1911.

GOV. MARSHALL RELIEVED.

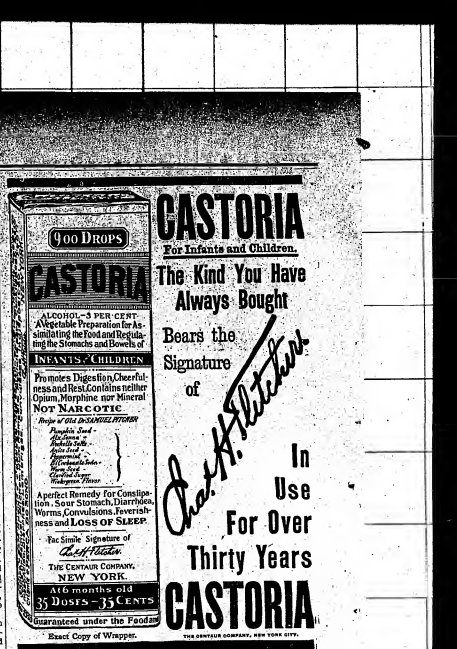
Confession Ends Alleged Kidnapping Case.

Indianapolis, Ind. — Gov. Thomas R. Marshall received the confessions of the McNamaras and Ortie McManigal following him from charges that he aided in the so-called kidnapping of John J. McNamara. Mr. Marshall said: "At all times I have had the consciousness that I did my full duty in the case of Mr. McNamara. He has pleaded guilty to the crime charged in the requisition upon which I issued the warrant."

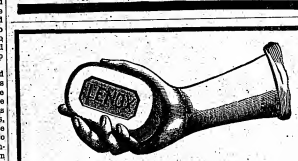
Chicago Wants National Convention.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 4.—Chicago will be satisfied with one national convention in 1912. A citizens' committee had been after both the Republican and the Democratic national conventions, but has agreed that the $200,000 necessary to bring here the Republican gathering would be all that could be raised.

Rebels Blow Up Banking Magazine.



Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The Chinese rebels captured and blew up the imperial magazine at Nanking, following a battle in which many Manchus were slain, according to the navy department advices.



Prisoner Doesn't Want Pardon.

Geuing, New York. — Patrick Kiernan, 70-year-old convict here, Sing Sing prison, likes his prison quarters so well that he declines to entertain over the reminiscences of his pardon by Gov. Dix. The aged man glanced at the document curiously when it was presented and then handed it back. "I don't know that I care to accept it," he said, "but I haven't any relatives in Chicago, Illinois, and—well, Sing Sing prison, likes his prison quarters so well that he declines to entertain over the reminiscences of his pardon by Gov. Dix. The aged man glanced at the document curiously when it was presented and then handed it back. "I don't know that I care to accept it," he said, "but I haven't any relatives in Chicago, Illinois, and—well, Sing Sing has been my home for so long that I've grown used to it. I'm afraid I'd be lonesome outside."

Suicide Sweetheart, Then Self.

Kenosha, Wisconsin.—John Golden, twenty-three years old, shot and seriously wounded his sweetheart, Anna Trialoborski, aged nineteen years, she dying during the fact from the wound. Golick then turned the revolver upon himself and died a few minutes later. The girl's mother, the woman was taken to a hospital, where it is said her condition is serious, and the police in the case

"A woman's work and the washing of dishes, are never at an end."

But the woman who uses Lenox Soap has the satisfaction of knowing that what she does, with the aid of Lenox Soap, is WELL done.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

The strong, steady light.

Rayo lamps and lanterns give most light for the oil they burn. Do not flicker. Will not blow or jar out. Simple, reliable and durable—and sold at a price that will surprise you. Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo lamps and lanterns, or write to any agency of

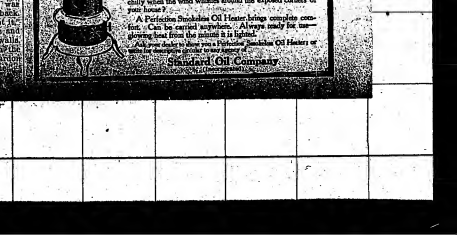
Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

All Styles, All Leathers, All Sizes and Widths, for Men and Women

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY FOR OVER 30 YEARS



The workmanship which has made W. L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then realize why I warrant them to hold their shape, fit and look better and wear longer than other makes for the price.

CAUTION The genuine have W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom. If the dealer cannot supply you, write W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass., for mail order catalog. Shoes sent everywhere, delivery charges prepaid. Fast color eyelets used. Write for Illustrated Catalog. Free.

ONE PAIR of my BOYS' or YOUTHS' SCHOOL SHOES will positively outwear TWO PAIRS of ordinary shoes. Take no other. Insist upon having them. Name and price stamped on bottom. Sold by dealers everywhere. If not for sale in your town send for Catalog. W. L. DOUGLAS, 146 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

In every cold weather emergency you need a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater. Is your bedroom cold when you dress or undress? Do you water pipes freeze in the cellar? Is it chilly when the wind whistles around the exposed corners of your house?

A Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater instantly removes cold. Can be carried anywhere. Always ready for use—giving heat from the minute it is lighted.

Ask your dealer to show you a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

TAFT IS FOR TRUST LAW

Annual Message Deals With One Subject.

DEFENDS DECISIONS OF COURT

In Cases of Standard Oil and Tobacco Companies.

THINKS AMENDMENTS NEEDED

Believes Present Statutes Good as Far as They Go; Suggests Supplemental Legislation—For Federal Corporation Law.

Washington, Dec. 5.—President Taft's annual message, which was read in both houses of congress today, deals exclusively with the anti-trust statute. The full text of the message is as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: This message is the first of several which I shall send in congress during the interval between the opening of the regular session and the adjournment for the Christmas holidays. The amount of information to be communicated as to the condition of the government, the number of important subjects calling for comment by the executive, and the transmission to congress of exhaustive reports by special commissions, make it impossible to include in one message of a reasonable length a discussion of the topics that ought to be brought to the attention of the national legislature at its first regular session.

The Anti-Trust Law—The Supreme Court Decisions.

In May last the Supreme court handed down decisions in the suits in equity brought by the United States to enjoin the further maintenance of the Standard Oil trust and of the American Tobacco trust, and to secure their dissolution. The decisions are epoch-making and serve to advise the business world authoritatively of the scope and operation of the anti-trust act of 1890. The decisions do not depart in any substantial way from the previous decisions of the court in construing and applying this important statute, but they clarify those important decisions by further defining the already admitted exceptions to the literal construction of the act. By the court's latest they furnish a useful precedent as to the proper method of dealing with the capital and property of illegal trusts. These decisions suggest the need and wisdom of additional or supplemental legislation to make it easier for the entire business community to square with the rule of action and legality thus finally established and to preserve the benefit, freedom and spur of reasonable competition without loss of real efficiency in business.

No Change in the Rule of Decision—Merely in Its Form of Expression.

The statute in its first section declares to be illegal "every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations," and in the second, declares guilty of a misdemeanor every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce of the several states or with foreign nations."

In two early cases, where the statute was invoked to enjoin a transportation agreement between interstate railroad companies, it was held that it was no defense to show that the agreement as to rates complained of was reasonal at common law; because it was said that the statute was directed against all contracts and combinations in restraint of trade whether reasonable at common law or not. It was plain from the record, however, that the contracts complained of in those cases were not have been deemed reasonable at common law; and in subsequent cases the court said that the statute should be given a reasonal construction and refused to include within its inhibition certain contractual restraints of trade which it dominated as incidental or as indirect.

These cases of restraint of trade that the court excepted from the operation of the statute were instances which, at common law, would have been called reasonable. In the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases, therefore, the court merely adopted the tests of the common law, and in finding exceptions to the literal application of this statute it only substituted for the test of being incidental or indirect, that of being reasonable and this, without varying in the slightest the actual scope and effect of the statute. In other words, all the cases, therefore, the statute which have now been decided would have been decided the same way if the court had originally adopted in its construction the rule at common law.

It has been said that the courts by introducing the "rule of reason" in the construction of the law, instead of that which has emasculated it. This is obviously untrue. By its judgment every contract and combination in restraint of interstate trade made with the purpose or necessary effect of controlling prices by uniting competition, or of establishing in whole or in part a monopoly of such trade, is condemned by the statute. The only extreme critics cannot instance a case that ought to be condemned under the law which is not brought within its terms as thus construed.

The suggestion is also made that the Supreme court by its decision in the last two cases has committed to the court the unlimited and unlimited discretion to determine whether a case of restraint of trade is within the terms of the statute. This is wholly untrue. A reasonable restraint of trade at common law is well understood and is clearly defined. It does not rest in the discretion of the court. It must be limited to accomplish the purpose of a lawful main contract to which, in order that it shall be an enforceable at all, it must be incidental. If it exceeds the needs of that contract it is void.

The test of reasonableness was never applied by the court at common-law to contracts or combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade whose purpose was or whose necessary effect would be to stifle competition, to control prices, or establish monopolies. The courts never assumed power to say that such contracts or combinations or conspiracies might be lawful if the parties to them were only moderate in the use of the power thus secured and did not exact from the public too great and exorbitant prices. It is true that many theorists, and others engaged in business violating the statute, have hoped that some such line could be drawn by courts; but no court of authority has ever attempted it. Certainly there is nothing in the decisions of the latest two cases which should be a dangerous theory of judicial discretion in enforcing the statute can derive the slightest sanction.

Force and Effectiveness of Statute a Matter of Growth.

We have in the course years making this statute effective for the purposes for which it was enacted. The Knight case was discouraging and seemed to remit to the states the whole available power to attack and suppress the evils of the trusts. Slowly, however, the errors of that judgment was corrected, and only in the last three or four years has the heavy hand of the law been laid upon the great illegal combinations that have exercised such an absolute dominion over many of our industries. Criminal prosecutions have been brought and a number are pending, but juries have felt averse to convicting for jail sentences, and judges have been most reluctant to impose such sentences on men of respectable standing in society whose offense has been regarded as merely statutory. Still, as the offense becomes better understood and the committing of it assumes more of studied and deliberate defiance of the law, we can be confident that juries will convict individuals and that jail sentences will be imposed.

The Remedy in Equity by Dissolution.

In the Standard Oil case the Supreme and circuit courts found the combination to make it easier for the interstate business of refining, transporting, and marketing petroleum and its products, effected and assimilated through thirty-seven different corporations, the stock of which was held by a New Jersey company. It in effect commanded the dissolution of this combination, directed the transfer and pro rata distribution by the New Jersey company of the stock held by it in the thirty-seven corporations to and among its stockholders, and the corporations and individual stockholders were enjoined from conspiring or combining to restore such monopoly; and all agreements between the subsidiary corporations tending to produce or bring about further violations of the act were enjoined.

In the Tobacco case, the court found that the individual defendants, twenty-nine in number, had been engaged in a successful effort to acquire complete dominion over the manufacture and the distribution of tobacco in this country and abroad, and that this had been done by combinations in restraint of trade which affect to stifle competition, control prices, and establish a monopoly, not only in the manufacture of tobacco, but also of tin-foil and licorice used in its manufacture and of its products of cigars, cigarettes, and snuff. The tobacco suit presented a far more complicated and difficult case than the Standard Oil suit for a decree which would effectuate the will of the court and end the violation of the statute. There was here no single holding company as in the case of the Standard oil company. The plan adopted to destroy the combination and restore competition involved the dissolution of the original and plants of the whole trust between some of the companies constituting the trust and new companies created for the purposes of the decree and made parties to it and numbering, new and old, seventeen, called "the Situation After Readjustment.

The American Tobacco company (old) capital, $92,000,000; the Liggett and Myers Tobacco company (new) capital, $67,000,000; the P. Lorillard company (new) capital, $47,000,000, and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, (old) capital, $23,000,000, being entirely new, in the sense that they were not parties to the combination which was dissolved by the decree, and which cannot be dissolved without incurring far-reaching penalties. And, on the other hand, the successful dissolving operation of the organization should teach that the effect of enforcing the statute is not to destroy, but to reconstruct, and to establish, but not to create, the relations with the conditions which must exist when competition and not combination controls.

The new companies organized in pursuance of the decree were left free to engage in the business of manufacturing tobacco, but were restrained from acquiring the capital stock of any other tobacco corporation, and from combining with any other tobacco manufacturing company with the purpose to restore the old combination. The capital stock of the American Tobacco company was divided into two, one of $235,000,000 and the other of $400,000. The latter was small company, divided into three companies, one with a capital of $15,000,000; another with a capital of $1,000,000, and a third with a capital of $8,000,000. The American Tobacco company will have 23.08 per cent, the Liggett and Meyers 20.05 per cent, the Lorillard company 23.82 per cent, and the Reynolds company 2.66 per cent. The stock of the other thirteen companies, both preferred and common, has been taken from the defendant American Tobacco company and has been distributed among its stockholders. All covenants restricting competition have been declared null and further performance of them has been enjoined. The preferred stock of the different companies that are now given voting power which was denied it under the old organization. The ratio of the preferred stock to the common was as 78 to 40. This constitutes a very decided change in the character of the ownership and control of each company.

In the original suit there were twenty-nine defendants who were charged with being the conspirators through whom the illegal combination acquired and exercised its unlawful dominion. Under the decree these defendants will hold amounts of stock in the various companies organized or reorganized from 41 per cent, as a maximum to 2½ per cent. as a minimum, except in the case of one small company, the Forid Rican Tobacco company, in which they will hold 45 per cent. This company and the individual defendants are enjoined for three years from buying any stock except from each other, and the group is further prevented from extending its control during that period. All parties to the suit, and the new companies who are made parties, are enjoined perpetually from in any way effecting any combination between any of the companies in violation of the statute by way of resumption of the old trust. Each of the new companies is prohibited from acquiring stock in any of the others. All these companies are enjoined from having common directors or officers, or common having or selling agents, or common offices, or lending money to each other.

Size of New Companies.

Objection was made by certain independent tobacco companies that the settlement was unjust because it left companies with very large capital in active business, and that the agreement that would be effective to put all on an equality would be a division of the capital stock of the trust in such small fractions in amount more nearly equal to that of each of the independent companies. This contention results from a misunderstanding of the anti-trust law and its purpose. It is not to break up thereby to prevent the accumulation of large capital in business enterprises in which such a combination may assist economy in production, sale and distribution. It is directed against such an aggregation of capital only when it is used as that of stifling competition, enhancing or controlling prices and establishing a monopoly. If we shall here by the decree dissolved these purposes and restored competition between the new units into which the capital and plant have been divided, we shall have accomplished the useful purpose of the statute.

Confiscation Not the Purpose of the Statute.

It is not the purpose of the statute to confiscate the property and capital of the offending trusts. Methods of punishment by fine or imprisonment of the individual offenders, by fine of the corporation, or by forfeiture of its goods in transportation, are provided, but the proceeding in equity is a specific remedy to stop the operation of the trust by injunction to prevent in the future use of the plant and capital in violation of the statute.

Effectiveness of Decrees.

I venture to say that not in the history of American law has a decree more effective for such a purpose been entered by a court. The case against the Tobacco trust in Circuit Judge Noyes said in his judgment approving the decree:

"To the extent to which it has been necessary to tear apart this combination and force it into new forms of association the attendant burdens ought to demonstrate that the federal anti-trust statute is a drastic remedy. But it accomplishes effective results, which so long as it stands on the statute books must be obeyed, and which cannot be disobeyed without incurring far-reaching penalties. And, on the other hand, the successful dissolving operation of the organization should teach that the effect of enforcing the statute is not to destroy, but to reconstruct, and to establish, but not to create, the relations with the conditions which must exist when competition and not combination controls."

Movement for Repeal of the Anti-Trust Law.

But now that the anti-trust act is seen to be effective for the accomplishment of the purposes of its enactment, there is a party cry and from many different quarters for its repeal. It is said to be obstructive of business prosperity and general prosperity. It is defiantly hailed method of destructive competition between small units, and to make it impossible to effect combinations of capital and the reduction of the cost of production that are essential to national prosperity and normal growth.

In the recent decisions the Supreme court has given a construction to the law in the statute which condemns combinations of capital or mere highness of plant organized to secure economy in production and a reduction of its cost. It is only when the organization and maintenance of the organization and maintenance of the combination or the aggregation of plant and capital are out of all reasonable proportion to the requirements of economy in production and a reduction of its cost, or enhance, prices and create a monopoly.

Lack of Definiteness in the Statute.

The difficulty that is made of the statute that it is not sufficiently definite in its description of that which is forbidden, and specifically enough to guide in its violation. The suggestion is, that we may have a combination of two corporations, which are run on for years, and that subsequently the attorney general may conclude that it was in violation of the statute, and that which was supposed by the combiners to be innocent there turns out to be a combination in violation of the statute. The answer so this hypothetical case is that when most attempt to organize stupendous capital it will be able them to suppress competition, control prices and establish a monopoly, they know the purpose of their acts. Men do not do such a thing without having it clearly in mind. If what they do is merely for the purpose of reducing the cost of production, without intending thereby to suppress competition by use of the bigness of the plant they are creating, then they cannot be convicted, and if by error the union is made, nor can they be convicted later, unless it be open that later on they consciously entered into a combination and take the usual methods for doing so, and thus establish for themselves a monopoly. They are then in a case, hardly complain if the motive which subsequently is disclosed is attributed by the court to the illegal combination.

Now Remedies Suggested.

I have had the benefit of the views of the attorney general and the solicitor general with reference to the remedies for the enforcement of the anti-trust act, and have considered the question presented by the decisions of the supreme court in the light of the experience in the administration of the law, and have reached the conclusion that certain changes in the statute ought to be recommended to the congress. These changes are intended to make more definite the general description of the things denounced by the statute, and to provide more effective means of dealing with the conditions found to exist after long investigation to be working injury to the business of the country.

Supplemental Legislation Needed—Not Repeal or Amendment.

I have no objection, and indeed I see no reason why, the provisions of the present law, which prohibit certain specific acts, such as the giving of preferential rates, the division of territory, the pooling of profits, and the like, should not be repealed. The real difficulty in the anti-trust law is not with the specific things mentioned in the statute, but with the general clauses which condemn "every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations," and which declare guilty of a misdemeanor every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce of the several states or with foreign nations."

The defect of these two declarations has led to decrees dissolving the combination of manufacturers of electric lamps, a southern wholesale grocers' association, an interlocutory decree against the tobacco trust, and to the order of the circuit court compelling dissolution, and other combinations of a similar character. The opinions in connection with the department of justice looking to a disintegration by decree and reorganization of business with law. It seems possible to bring about these reorganizations without general business disturbance.

Movement for Repeal of the Anti-Trust Law.

But now that the anti-trust act is seen to be effective for the accomplishment of the purposes of its enactment, there is a party cry and from many different quarters for its repeal. It is said to be obstructive of business prosperity and general prosperity. It is defiantly hailed as a method of destructive competition between small units, and to make it impossible to effect combinations of capital and the reduction of the cost of production that are essential to national prosperity and normal growth.

In the recent decisions the Supreme court has given a construction to the law in the statute which condemns combinations of capital or mere bigness of plant organized to secure economy in production and a reduction of its cost. It is only when the organization and maintenance of the organization or the aggregation of plant and capital are out of all reasonable proportion to the requirements of economy in production and a reduction of its cost, or enhance, prices and create a monopoly.

Lack of Definiteness in the Statute.

The difficulty that is made of the statute that it is not sufficiently definite in its description of that which is forbidden, and specifically enough to guide in its violation. The suggestion is, that we may have a combination of two corporations, which are run on for years, and that subsequently the attorney general may conclude that it was in violation of the statute, and that which was supposed by the combiners to be innocent there turns out to be a combination in violation of the statute. The answer so this hypothetical case is that when most attempt to organize stupendous capital it will be able them to suppress competition, control prices and establish a monopoly, they know the purpose of their acts. Men do not do such a thing without having it clearly in mind. If what they do is merely for the purpose of reducing the cost of production, without intending thereby to suppress competition by use of the bigness of the plant they are creating, then they cannot be convicted, and if by error the union is made, nor can they be convicted later, unless it be open that later on they consciously entered into a combination and take the usual methods for doing so, and thus establish for themselves a monopoly. They are then in a case, hardly complain if the motive which subsequently is disclosed is attributed by the court to the illegal combination.

Now Remedies Suggested.

I have had the benefit of the views of the attorney general and the solicitor general with reference to the remedies for the enforcement of the anti-trust act, and have considered the question presented by the decisions of the supreme court in the light of the experience in the administration of the law, and have reached the conclusion that certain changes in the statute ought to be recommended to the congress. These changes are intended to make more definite the general description of the things denounced by the statute, and to provide more effective means of dealing with the conditions found to exist after long investigation to be working injury to the business of the country.

Supplemental Legislation Needed—Not Repeal or Amendment.

I have no objection, and indeed I see no reason why, the provisions of the present law, which prohibit certain specific acts, such as the giving of preferential rates, the division of territory, the pooling of profits, and the like, should not be repealed. The real difficulty in the anti-trust law is not with the specific things mentioned in the statute, but with the general clauses which condemn "every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations," and which declare guilty of a misdemeanor every person who shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any other person to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce of the several states or with foreign nations."

Proposed.

I do not set forth in detail the terms and sections of a statute which might supply the constructive legislation permitting and aiding the formation of combinations or agreements or federal corporations. They should be subject to rigid rules as to their organization and procedure, including publicity, and to the closest supervision as to the issue of stock and bonds by an executive bureau or commission in the department of commerce and labor, to which in times of doubt they might well submit their proposed plans for future business. It must be distinctly understood that incorporation under a federal law would not exempt the company thus formed and its incorporators and managers from prosecution under the anti-trust law for subsequent illegal conduct, but the publicity of its procedure and the opportunity for frequent consultation with the bureau or commission in charge of the incorporation as to the legitimate purpose of its transactions would offer it as great security against successful prosecutions for violations of the law as would be practical or wise.

Such a bureau or commission might well be invested with the duty already referred to, of aiding courts in the dissolution and recreation of trusts within the law. It should be an executive tribunal of the dignity and power of the comptroller of the currency or of the interstate commerce commission, which now exercise supervisory power over important classes of corporations under federal regulation.

The drafting of such a federal incorporation law would offer ample opportunity to prevent many manifest evils in corporate management today, including irresponsibility of control in the hands of the few who are not the real owners.

Incorporation Voluntary.

I recommend a federal incorporation charters than to be granted shall be voluntary, at least until experience justifies a compulsory provision. The benefit to be derived from the operation of great businesses under the protection of such a charter would attract in the are anxious to keep within the lines of the law. Other large combinations that fail to take advantage of the federal incorporation will not have a right to complain if their failure is ascribed to unwillingness to submit their transactions to the careful scrutiny, competent supervision and publicity attendant upon the enjoyment of such a charter.

Supplemental Legislation Needed.

Supplemental legislation may be suggested for federal incorporation, it seems to me, is suitable constructive legislation needed to facilitate the squaring of great industrial enterprises to the rule of action laid down by the anti-trust act. If the statute is construed by the Supreme court must continue to be the line of distinction between legitimate business, it must be enforced, unless we are to banish individualism from all business and resort to some common system of regulation or control of prices like that which now prevails with respect to railroads, the end which when applied to all business would be a long step toward state socialism.

Importance of the Anti-Trust Act.

The anti-trust act is the expression of the effort of the government to compel the people to preserve equality of opportunity. It is the result of the confident determination of each one of us to maintain their future growth by preserving uncontrolled and unrestricted the enterprise of individuals, its ingenuity, its intelligence and his independent courage.

Whether it is more or more the statute has been upon the statute book. All knew of its general purpose and importance. Many of them were cynical over its assumed impotence.

It seemed impossible of enforcement. Slowly the spirit of the courts ground, and only gradually did the majesty of the law enact itself. Many of its enemies became died before it became a living force, and they and others saw the evil grow even after they hoped to destroy. Now, its efficacy is seen; now its power is heavy; now its object is over achievement. Now we bear the call for its repeal on the plea that it interferes with business prosperity, and we are told that most general terms how, by some other statute end in some other way, the evil we are trying to remedy can be cured. If we only abandon this work of twenty years and try another experiment for some other way.

It is said that the act has not done good. Can this be said in the face of the effect of the Northern Securities decree?

That decree was in no way so drastic in its operation as in dissolve the Standard Oil decree or the tobacco decree; but did it not stop for all time the further acquisition of control of the control of all the railroads of the country in a single hand?

Such a step forward could not have been a healthful instance in the republic, even though exercised under the general supervision of an interstate commission.

Do we desire to make much ruthless combinations and monopolies lawful? When all energies are directed, not toward the reduction of the cost of production for the public benefit by a healthful competition, but toward new ways and means for making permanent, by any hands the absolute control of the conditions and prices prevailing in the whole field of industry, then individual enterprise and effort will be paralyzed and the spirit of commercial freedom will be dead.

WM. H. TAFT.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 29 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

It is reported that it takes numerous dashes to supply the cuss words of Roosevelt when anyone mentions the name of Taft.

Taft has announced that he will be a candidate for the republican nomination next year. He may be able to secure the nomination for you know Taft trusts the trusts and the trusts trusts Taft.

Thomas Gore, the blind senator from Oklahom on his return from a tour of the west predicts that a Democratic victory at the polls next year is reasonably sure. Mention of Taft's name by him at Fargo was received in silence.

The confession of the McNamaras is a severe blow to Union labor organizations. However be it said to their credit that they promptly repudiated the McNamaras and are now demanding that they be given the extream penelty of the law, which is death by hanging in California. This crime had ought to be an object lesson to organized labor and it should teach its leaders not to start raising a big fund for the defense of one of its members until they find out whether they are guilty or not, for this country will not tolerate any organizaton that indorses and defends criminals.

The Thief River Falls Times publishes quite a lengthy opinion from a wholesale "Prune seller," about the reason for Red Lake River going dry, that had ought to place the interviewer, and the interviewed at the head of the dumbe class. The people who understand this situation, as it is, simply laugh at such "hoo waals" published by the tools of a rich corporation, to excuse them for blocking up the river. But the opinion of a traveling prune seller won't cut much ice at this stage of the game, as the facts are now before our congressmen and seators, and the war department at Washington, and we will soon know all about it. If that lumber company can shut off this river one year and dry it up and the next year open it up at the outlet, and flood and distroy the farmers meadows and crops, we might as well know it now, as later.

Dividing the Danger.

"Help, help! I'm drowning!" shrieked the young woman in the surf.

The men on the shore seemed to hesitate. It was an old dodge, and they knew it. But the young woman appeared really to be in distress. A consultation was held. Finally one sturdy young man, the best swimmer in the throng, spoke up:

"If I save her will somebody in the throng volunteer to marry her?"

"I will," spoke up a weakkneed, pale faced youth, and immediately the work of rescue began.—Detroit Free Press.

The greatest danger of the man who has a command of language is that one he is a ware language will have command of him.—Puck.

Had a Reputation to Maintain.

Wifey (with magazine)—It says here that a statute mile is 1,280 feet and a nautical mile 6,080 feet. Now, why are they different, John?

Hub.—Why—er—you know, my dear, that things swell when in the water.—Boston Transcript.

Mordecai.

"Mordecai, something mysterious about the actual physique," said the student of human nature.

"Yes, sah," replied Mordecai Johnsing. "Ah has noticed dat de mo' mysterious de actual physique is, de mo' likely it is to be a mule."—Washington Star.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Dec. 8th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 6th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Thomas Nielsen, of Kratka Minn. who on June 28th, 1906 made Homestead Entry No. 4500, Serial No. 04140, for N. E. ¼ Section 10 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 19th day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Christoferson, Ole M. Peterson, Jacob B. Berg, Louis O. Kongsli, all of Kratka Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Completely Cured Our Little Boy of Fits."

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health.

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy who was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 10 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and one specialist but all of them said he could not be cured but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now 15 years old and free from fits. You have liberty to use this letter as you see fit and accept nothing for it. I will gladly answer if any enclose stamp for reply."

T. M. ROGUE, Windfall, Ind.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

is just what it is represented to be, a medicine compounded especially for nervous diseases, such as fits, nervous St. Vitus' dance, convulsions and epilepsy. These diseases frequently lead to insanity or cause weak minds. Dr. Miles' Nervine has proven most effective in relieving these dreaded maladies.

Sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit your money is returned.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

News of Genius.

Many of the men whose names we revere today in science, art, literature and poetry suffered from emotional disturbances, resulting in nerve storms or outbursts of mental violence, which can only be described as enigmatic pasms. The poet Cowper had strong suicidal tendencies, yet he wrote "John Gilpin" when suffering from intense melancholia. Shelley had an insane ancestry, and at Eton he was called "Mad Shelley." Charles Lamb had to be placed in an asylum, and his sister Mary stabbed her mother to the heart while insane. Wordsworth and his sister Dorothy are almost a parallel to Charles and Mary Lamb. At the age of thirty Coleridge was bowed down, and he died a wreck at sixty-two. Southey came of an insane stock. The mother of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, the dramatist, died demented at forty-two. Pope was deformed and rickety, and Keats was neurotic to the last degree tips. Byron's mother was unbalanced, and so was his maternal grandfather.—London Globe.

Value of Deep Breathing.

Writing on the cultivation of physical fitness in the Herald of the Golden Age, Eustace Miles says that those who have mastered the art of deep and full breathing are thereby enabled to master their emotions—they can overcome pain and secure control of the mind and of the circulation of the blood. The control of the breathing prevents one from becoming hurried and flurried, and one acts leisurely, although not lazily. Breathing can be adapted to various needs—for instance, in producing warmth or the opposite effect—or one can breathe in order to become more sensitive. In fact, the all round value of deep and full breathing cannot be overestimated. Of all physical practices this is the first and foremost and one that can be regulated without being in the least conspicuous. If you have learned how to breathe deeply and fully people may not suspect it—they only notice that you are calm, poised and good tempered.

Immune.

Knox: "He insisted on my going over the links with him." Willis: "Say, you've got to see the movies around the links. Saw a dozen golf jacks. Fr. Friendly: "Impossible, Willis, your near-sightedness has made you a victim of too much golf." Knox: "Yes, I'm afraid I'm getting a little—" Willis: "Say, you've got to see the movies around the links. Saw a dozen golf jacks."—Puck.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington} S. Sate District Court 6th Judicial District.

John A. Wig, Plaintiff.

vs.

Marcus Olson Sandwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andenia Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingor Olive Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Olga Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; and also all unknow heirs, devisees, grantees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS AND EACH OF THEM.

YOU AND EACH OF YOU

Are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which complaint is filed in the office of the Clerk of District Court within and for the said County of Pennington, Minnesota, in said Judicial District, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, within twenty (20) days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in said Complaint.

Stanton & Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS.

Take notice that no pannonal claim is made against you on any of you in this action, and that the object thereof is to obtain judgement that the plaintiff is the owner in fee of the premises described in said complaint, and that you and each of you have no estate or interest therin or lien thereon.

Stanton And Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE OF LIS PENDENS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington} S.S. In District Court, 6th, Judicial District,

John A. Wig, Plaintiff,

vs.

Marcus Olson Sandwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andenia Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingor Olive Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; and, also all unknow heirs, devisees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given that an action has been commenced in this Court by the above named plaintiff against the above named defendants, the object of which is to obtain judgement that the said plaintiff is the owner in fee of the East Half (E½) of Northwest Quarter (N.W.¼) and the West Half (W½) of the Northeast Quarter (N.E.¼) of Section Thirty-one (31), Township One Hundred Fifty-four, (154) North of Range Forty-four (44) West of the Fifth Principel Meridian in Minnesota, and that the said defendants and each of them have no interest therein or lein thereon.

Dated the 28th, day of November 1911.

Stanton and Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

Office of Register of Deeds,
County of Pennington, Minnesota.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 28th, day of November, A.D. 1911, at 2:30 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book 9 of Mortgages on Page 428.

[Seal] E.L. Quist Register of Deeds.
By Effie Hamry, Deputy.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 17th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ignacy Sasinzy, of Torgerson Minn. who on April 11th, 1905, made Homestead entry No. 1128, Serial No. 02487 for N. E. ¼ Section 19 Township 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 20th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John Markuson, Michael Kaska, Eugene H. Beaubien, Theodor Nelson, all of Torgerson Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 17th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin Sondsort, of Erie Minn., who on December 31st, 1906, made Homestead Entry No. 4619 Serial No. 04265, for N. E. ¼ Section 11 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before A. M. Bishop, Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 16th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Joseph Schleicher, Henry Eliason, John Krolnick, Theodor W. Vorseldt, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 22, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Fred F. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn., who on June 5th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 04809, for N. W. ¼ Section 22 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 3rd, day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter N. Kerstad, Peter H. Thoreson, Charles Palmer, George L. Palmer, all of Highlanding Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 3, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Oct. 30th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Amund K. Breland, of Roland Minn. who on June 17, 1905, made Homestead Entry No. 1186, Serial No. 04478, for N. W. ¼ Section 29 Township 156 N. Range 44 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on the 20th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole O. Nesland, Oscar Nesland, Aslak Nesland, all of Roland Minn. Ole O. Erland, of Rhoda Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 9. 1911.

Department of The Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota October 30th, 1911.

NOTICE is hereby given that Ole O. Nesland, of Roland Minn. who on February 21, 1905 made Homestead Entry No. 1052, Serial No. 04607, for S. ½ E. ¼ Section 29 Township 156 N. Range 44 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Five-year proof, to establish claim to the land above described before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minnesota, on the 20th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Oscar Nesland, of Roland Minn. Martin E. Hyland, of Rhoda Minn. Ammund K. Breland, Aslak Nesland, of Roland Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov. 10th, Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 6th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that John Krolnick of Highlanding Minn. who on March 2, 1908 made Homestead Entry No. 1202, Serial No. 04411, for S. E. ¼ Section 10 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before A. M. Bishop Municipal Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 18th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Martin Sondsort, of Erie Minn. Joseph Schleicher, Henry Eliason, of Highlanding Minn. Charles V. Vorseldt, of Thief River Falls Minn.

ARTHUR P. TOURIN,
Register.

A Leaping Asian Cats.

The ancient Greeks claimed that all creatures except lions and apes, at that time unknown to them, were produced by a thermic process. Aristotle, the architect, and the poet Lucretius, who lived in the first century B.C., agreed in considering that the process of production was by putrefaction. Pliny, the naturalist, who lived in the first century A.D., was of the opinion that the process of production was by putrefaction. Pliny, the naturalist, who lived in the first century A.D., was of the opinion that the process of production was by putrefaction.

LEAVE THIS SPACE FOR THE ARRIVAL OF SANTA CLAUSE

He will come to the Fillmore Bros. At Highlanding with A Big and well selected stock of Christmas Toys.

WATCH THIS SPACE FOR HIS ARRIVAL.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES,

HOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLETE STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER, Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO.

KRATKA, MINN.

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on Patents sent free. Highest references. Best results secured. Why spend inventors fee before you know? Patent Office Rules and Forms, Advice, How to obtain and sell Patents, Trade-Marks, Copyrights, Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Chief Examiner of Patents, and is thus in a position to secure for clients the most liberal interpretation of the law. Send sketch or model for free report as to patentability. Our fees are moderate and we make no charge unless we secure patent. Write for our book, "How to obtain Patents," and other information.

GREELEY & McINTIRE,
PATENT ATTORNEYS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Stephan Singer was transact business at Rhods yesterday.

Wheat seems to be going down in price, but it may be lower before it is higher.

Walter McAndress made the round trip to Hazel today, taking down 62 bushels of wheat.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Parno Oscar and Erma, visited Mr. and Mrs. Kratzer, at Sanbeam last Sunday.

Martin Hyland is building an addition to his feed mill and is now grinding feed on Mondays and Fridays.

Ellingson Bros. have arranged their store to put a big stock of holiday goods in, which you are invited to call and look over.

Andrew Letvig is drilling a deep well for Wm. Swanson. He went over to Wm Parnos Wednesday to assist the Hyland Bro. put a blast in the 219 foot deep well that they have drilled.

Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Clark are the proud parents of a fine baby boy, which came to make his home with them Monday. Mother and baby doing well, and Chas wearing his broadest smile.

There will be a basket social, at the Lintvat, school house, in District 52 in Deer Park township on Saturday evening December 16th,. All are invited to come and spend a social evening. Good music will be in attendance.

The fish that are being slaughtered by the shutting off of this river are not one fish, but when they open that log jam and flood and destroy the meadows and crops, we will, show them that they are destroying our crops quick.

Mr. Philipp Heidemann, of Cleveland O., is un here on a visit to his friend George Leimers and is looking for a location on some of the choice farming lands of eastern Pennington county. He likes the country and will move here with his family in March.

Thief River Falls is to have an exclusive job printing office. A good thing to finish starving out local newspapers, that depend on getting an income from their job work for the colmne of tyne they sect free to boom the city, but they will have a lots of customers, for we all know that if the devil visited the earth he would have lots of followers.

The next move made by the settlers living along this river, if the goverment does not compell the lumber companys to open that log jam, will have to be made in District Court. The farmers of Clearwater county brought the lumber companys to time and compelled them to stop damming up the Clearwater River and destroying their crops, by floods, when they broke the jam.

The Kratka farmers that live near, where the Red Lake River used to be, are having very fine fishing now days. One farmer picked up 200 fish in the afternoon that were flounering in slush ice and mud on the river bottom. The fishers that go will make use of them while they last, for theis will not a live fish be left in the river next spring.

Wm. Hiern went up to watch the lumber company log jam this week to see that there was no logs being stolen. He says some of the mill men are kicking because their power is shut off, and we should think they would kick, when you furnished that Hudson and Barford have been compelled large to the big expense of putting additional power into their mills to save shutting down, they stopped running a few logs came down and they opened up.

Pay up your back subscription.

The Highlanding creamery has closed down for the month, but will again open next month.

Now is just the right time to get out a big bills of wood for next years wood. That's what we are doing.

EAST DEER PARK.

Fine weather this.

W.A.Swanson was out practicing mule driving las Sunday.

Eve Lande will bach for a while on his claim in the township of Hickory.

Frank Lundeen and Peat Gustafson made a trip to Trail City this week.

Mr. and Mrs Gizzelquist intertained several of their friends on Thanksgiving evening, and a very pleasent time was enjoyed by all.

The Y.P.S. met at the home of Mr. Syversad last Sunday and had a pleasent time. They will have their next meeting at the home of George Leimers on the 23rd, of December.

Mr. George Leimers took Mr. P. Heidemao down to Oklee on Monday and he left for his present home at Cleveland Ohio.

On Wednesday Dec. 6th, the town board of Deer Park drove down to Ralph Greens, to the town of Equality to meet their town board of that town to settle up the divison of this town by county division last fall. There was quite a warm discussion for sometime, but they came to an agreement which fully disposed of the matter.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

After the Battle.

Pa—I'll get you yet, Mr. Parrot.
Parrot—You had better tackle the canary bird first and get a reputation.—New York Mail.

An Elemental Fire.

A judge was sitting in the Manitowick waters and just after dinner became involved in an argument with his boat companions. The debate lasted some minutes, and during that time the judge had his bald head dangling in the air over his shoulder.

The bridge took a hand.

"Phillips," said he presently, "drop your ring in the water. There ain't no living fish around here."—Chicago Post.

A Rich One.

The Visitor—And what are you going to make of him?

Stanhope—I want him to be a philanthropist.

The Visitor—But there's no money in that.

Stanhope—I want him to be a philanthropist who has very rich.

Gilbert's Witty Comments.

Mr. W. S. Gilbert's wit and humor never always ready. He was a fine raconteur and a good after dinner speaker. Rutland Barrington, the old Savoyard, said that "starting in Gilbert's honor was like lighting a stationary fireworks factory."

Gilbert played the Colonel in "Patience." At rehearsal one day Gilbert said was an aristocratic and manly soldier. "Mark" (meaning Barrington) "is to cross the stage, and, representing the back of H. M. Dragoons, and his accoutrements, he should present a military appearance. Barrington, please let me see you walk across the stage, and only mind that you present the proper military attitude."

Barrington walked across the stage in all the pride of his youth and beauty, and then, turning to Gilbert, said:

"Is that the proper military attitude?"

"No," said Gilbert, "that is the attitude of a man who has just seen a ghost."

A Storm-Bound Christmas

By Dorothy Douglas

[illegible]AD Wallingford been satisfied but a wealthy bachelor and accustomed to having everything he wanted, the circumstances would have seemed less of a calamity.

He had been on his way to San Francisco to spend Christmas with his favorite married sister; and midway, in the most barren desert of the country, a bridge had been swept away by winter gales. His destination could not possibly be reached until Christmas was well over.

Wallingford cast a glance out over the wide stretch of rolling plains with only a few scattered shacks to break their endless waste; and then he looked back to his bulging suit case. The latest and most wonderful toys he could find in the city shops were crowded into that bag, for she sister's only boy. Then, out caring whether or not a highwaymoo might be looking in at the window of the parlor car, he took a small box from his waistcoat pocket and looked sorrowfully at a ring from which three exquisite diamonds flashed back at him.

Wallingford leaned back in his chair and in imagination pictured his sister's joy when slipping that ring on her finger. He could hear her scold him for his extravagance and chaff him for having no one else for whom to buy such baubles. He sighed and returned it to his pocket much as he might have cast it to the depths of the sea; it would do him as much good there as it would in his pocket under the present circumstances.

Wallingford was recruited in a Christmas dinner over a lunch counter whoo his eye caught the name of Yankville. Yankville probably boasted a near-thousand inhabitant, yet Yankville also suggested the name of Everly—Jack Everly. When Wallingford had last heard of Jack Everly the latter was located in Yankville. That was some eighteen months before, but there was no reason why he should not be there still.

It seemed that everyone in Yankville knew the Everly homestead. It was the only one of any proportions in the village.

The red glow from an open fire within cheered Wallingford's cumbed faculties as he rang the bell at the Everly door.

On the face of her who opened the door, Surprise was the principal impression. For, Wallingford, his afresh-ave encased in a great fur coat all dangling with glistening snow beside and his handsome flowing face looking frankly into her own, was a surprise for any eyes.

She did not wait for him to explain his errant but with the meltin's privilege of hospitality invited him into the warmth of the house.

"I was job cold to stand outside," she explained and waited for his question.

"I am Bob Wallingford," he began meeting the easy cordial expression of her bluh eyes. "I am one of the belated passengers of the bridge that was washed in two over night and Jack Everly would take pity on an old friend and—"

"Jack Everly left Yankville," a smile played about her lips at mention of the illustrious village. "Some six or seven months ago—"

Embarrassment, disappointment, and surprise mingled equally in Wallingford's face, and did not escape the eyes of Sylvia Vale. She spoke with ready tact.

"Take off that great coat, Bob-ware, and come into the fireside. It's no night to be out."

Wallingford followed the slim graceful figure in a decidedly chaotic state of mind. Attacked with his embarrassment at having called on an absolute stranger's home, was the kindest attraction he felt for that girl with the pearly skin. Something of a combination perhaps—was making him feel like a young—the schoolboy. It was quite unusual for him to find himself Bob Wallingford's name.

"Dick! Are you Santa Claus?" he cried excitedly. "I have your toys, bells and saw your big fuzzy coat. Mamma, isn't he Santa Claus?"

The fluffy blonde of golden hair spoken her Wallingford's eyes speak to the mother.

"Dick, you must not frighten the gentleman," she said, "and you must not call mamma Mamma. Mamma is dead, you know, and I am only your nurse."

"I'm my own house and my own sister," laughed Sylvia. "But where in the world did you get Mr. Santa Claus acquaintance?" He cast an interested glance at the wealth of gifts piled around.

Sylvia glanced quickly at Wallingford and a deep blush mantled with the glow from the fire in her cheeks. She explained the circumstances and Wallingford was quickly made to feel that he had come to the right house.

"I will stay under one condition only," he said finally, "and that is that you all will remain without touching the Christmas gifts which brought for my sister and her family—with out question."

There was a moment's silence and the trustees was made, finally.

"Then we will have to return the favor," brother and sister spoke as one voice.

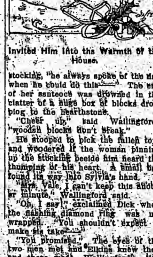
So it was decided.

"Too bad Vale couldn't get here," remarked Sylvia, later in the evening when, the small boy having been tucked into bed, the three sat about the blazing fire.

"Yes—we would have made a jolly quartet," said Sylvia.

Wallingford was almost guilty of a gasp. The calm, unconcerned way in which she remarked that her husband would have completed a quartet on Christmas eve had he been able to get there, was rather disconcerting.

Jack Everly's wife and left the room to get the boy's toys.



"Bring down the suitcase in my room," cried Wallingford. He was as excited as a boy.

"You will not regret having promised to accept what I had bought for my sister!" Wallingford leaned slightly toward Sylvia's gray dress and through the strands of her golden hair, and the man in him had a struggle before quenching the light in his own eyes. It was the girl herself who was unable to hide a tremor.

"I wonder," she said tentatively. "But it seems—odd."

Dick returned, staggering under a load of toys. Then they all jumped gladly into the spirit of Christmas.

"When my husband was living," said Sylvia as she pinned up a tiny Invited Him Into the Warmth of the House.

stocking, "he always spoke of the way when he could tell—" The word of her sentence was drowned in the clatter of a huge box of blocks dropping in the hearthstone.

"Uncle Bob," said Wallingford, "wooden blocks don't break."

His stooped to pick the fallen toys and received in the woman leaning up the stocking beside him heard the thumping of his heart. A small box was in her sylvia hand.

"Bob, Vale, I can't keep this a minute," Wallingford said.

"Oh, I'm sorry!" Sylvia's disappointment was unfeigned. "You shouldn't expect to make me take—"

"You promised—" The eyes of the two met and Sylvia knew that and there what Wallingford's lips would speak.

Then two of the opposite her fastened her eyes and little chance to flinch and with a tingling sensation in every nerve of her body she knew that her fight had.

It was into the next night when the two had been taken tickets for the stream of a wonderful day in the kingdom of love with three grown up boys and a baby girl. Wallingford and Sylvia again sat about the open fire.

"I never knew a happier Christmas," Sylvia said, "and I never knew a thing in his voice.

"I, Bob, you'll have to—to—excuse me, I must kiss you," he stood above her. "He and her husband were a very happy couple," she continued, "and I've never seen so much his desperate as he was when he left for the train."

But the minute was a complete pause in which neither would dare to look at the other. Then Wallingford's arms were around her and his lips were pressed against her own.

"Sylvia, I love you," he said, "I love you, I love you, I love you!"

"Bob, Bob, you must not—you must not—" But her protest was lost in the kisses that were showered upon her face and hair.

"Sylvia, you love me, you love me, you love me!"

"Bob, Bob, you must not—you must not—" But her protest was lost in the kisses that were showered upon her face and hair.

"Sylvia, you love me, you love me, you love me!"

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.
NEW STATION ON DULUTH S.S. & A. LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. Sam Gilson Vic. Pres.
Larry O'Niel, Abrham Fischer, J. Collins.
J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Crigon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweafere for Men Ladies and Children, For Good Warm Footware Buy The BALL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W.G.Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make 12 trips to the County seat, as can do the business by mail for us.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

Wanted: An improved farm to rent for next year. Inquire of or address George Leimers, Roland Minn.

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.
Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

Evident.
"It be a man of great inner?"
"Excellent."
"What does he admire most?"
"Me."

Neighbors.

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"Was Skined That Week Clean"

If you want to supply your home with a high grade vacuum cleaner, but cannot afford to pay cash for it, we will furnish you one on easy payments, and allow you ten days free trial in your own home. If you are not entirely satisfied with the cleaner, you may return it at our expense, and we will refund your money without question.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do all good work of Electric machines, costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight, runs easily, has no complex parts to get out of order, and can be used on any electric light socket.

Write today for our free booklet and full particulars.

Electric Cleaner Co.

W. L. DOUGLAS' TRUST PLAN

Manufacturer Thinks Government Should Obtain Publicity by a License System.

Large business organizations have come to stay. We cannot go back to old conditions. We must meet world competition. Large concerns can produce goods at lower cost than small ones. Germany favors large corporations. The method of the present national administration is to dissolve the great organizations and make them smaller, which is a backward step. There should be no limit to a corporation doing a large and legitimate business, such as would be possible under the licensing plan which I favor, writes W. L. Douglas, former governor of Massachusetts, in the Boston Herald.

Prejudices against corporations merely because they are big, perhaps, must be done away with. They give labor better returns. They cheapen product and thus benefit the consumer. They give opportunities to small investors who get returns otherwise unattainable. They employ able young men who have no capital at all, but who receive handsome salaries for their ability and service.

In place of the Sherman law it is my opinion there should be a department at Washington to grant licenses to all manufacturers and corporations in this country who do an interstate commerce business.

The law should be made so clear, plain and definite that it could not be misunderstood. It should require all capital to be paid in full. Semi-yearly statements should be given to the public and certified by a public accountant. There should be a board of examiners in each state to look after these corporations just as our national banks are watched by the national government. They should have the right to enter the offices and examine the records of all the directorates of these companies.

Naive Optimists.

"Six months ago there was another outburst of optimism as naive as though the world were still living in the sentimental era of glass exhibitions. Since then there has opened another era of political earthquakes and conflagrations, and the area of disturbance continues to extend. Before the Tripoli problem has been safely liquidated or the peace of the Balkans is assured, we have the outburst in China of an insurrection which may change the face of the far east and give an incalculable increase of force to all the impulses set moving by the triumph of Japan. All we can be certain of in the region of world politics is that nothing is certain. Do we need further lessons to convince us that the peace of civilization is founded upon the crust of a volcano?" asks the London Observer.

Practical Suggestion.

A new association proposes to have all American railroads lined with flowers and hedges, but what our railroad rights of way really need is to be lined with feather beds. What good would it do anybody to fall on a pansy when trains collide?—Detroit Free Press.

Sickened the Owl.

"I love you, darling, more than you love me," sighed the swain.

"Ah, that is impossible, precious," she whispered back, "for I love you better than you do me!"

"You cannot!"

"But I do!"

"You do not!" he argued.

"When I say a thing I stick to it!" she snapped.

An owl shifted uneasily above them.

"Pardon me, Gwendoline!"

"Pardon me, Eustice!"

"Miss Brown!"

"Mr. Jones!"

The owl hooted dismally and sought another bower.

WORKS WITHOUT FAITH
Faith Came After the Works Had Laid the Foundation.

A Bay State belle talks thus about coffee:

"While a coffee drinker I was a sufferer from indigestion and intensely painful nervous headaches, from childhood.

"Seven years ago my health gave out entirely. I grew so weak that the exertion of walking, if only a few feet, made it necessary for me to lie down. My friends thought I was marked for consumption—weak, thin and pale.

"I realized the danger I was in and tried faithfully to get relief from medicines, till, at last, after having employed all kinds of drugs, the doctor acknowledged that he did not believe it was in his power to cure me.

"While in this condition a friend induced me to quit coffee and try Postum, and I did so without the least hope that it would do me any good. I did not like it at first, but when it was properly made I found it was a most delicious and refreshing beverage. I am especially fond of it served at dinner ice-cold, with cream.

"In a month's time I began to improve, and in a few weeks my indigestion ceased to trouble me, and my headache stopped entirely. I am so perfectly well now that I do not look like the same person, and I have so gained in flesh that I am 15 pounds heavier than ever before.

"This is what Postum has done for me. I still use it and shall always do so." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young tenderfoot becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a drunken prospector in a western mining town. They prepare to elope in a blinding blizzard but are confronted by the maudlin husband. He is shot by the wife, but the chivalrous boy pins a note to the body taking the crime upon himself. In their flight to the railroad station the woman's horse falls exhausted; the youth puts her on his own and follows hanging to the stirrup strap. Seeing he is an impediment, the woman thrusts her escort into a snow drift and rides on. Half-frozen he stumbles into the railroad station just as the train bears the woman away. Twenty-five years later, this man, George Gormly, is a multi-millionaire in New York. He meets Eleanor Haldane, a beautiful and wealthy settlement worker, and co-operates with her in her work. Gormly becomes owner of a steamship line and finds himself frustrated in pier and track extension plans by grafting aldermen, backed by the Gotham Traction company. An automobile accident brings the Haldanes to his country home. Gormly announces that he will be mayor of New York and redeem the city from corruption. Mr. Haldane in a long desired interview with Gormly, makes an indirect proposition to compromise the fight which the latter has been waging in the newspapers against the Gotham Traction company, and which Haldane is suspected of being the head. Gormly boldly announces his plan of campaign to Haldane. Gormly rides to Haldane's place, carrying word of the auto accident. The next morning he refers to the ride of the night before as mild compared to one he experienced in his boyhood days. The papers announce his candidacy for mayor. The political declaration of the merchant prince produced a tremendous sensation. The minority party, seeing in him a possible Moses, make overtures looking to the indorsement of his candidacy by the "outs." Gormly, however, rejects all proposed alliance. A meeting of the Sachem Society or the "Ring," is held at the Haldane Home. Many political dignitaries and henchmen are present and ways and means are advanced to dampen Gormly's mayoralty aspirations and sidetrack his candidacy. The younger Haldane is proposed as an opposition candidate; the whole machinery of the city's detective force is to be used to dig up something damaging to Gormly. Haldane, Jr., refuses the nomination and announces that he will support Gormly. The reigning party then decides to name a non-partisan ticket for the purpose of dividing the Gormly forces, and at the same time rush through a Freight Traction company franchise, without which the Sachem Society would be helpless. The press heretofore unanimously favorable to the merchant candidate, now under pressure, divides and the campaign waxes warm. A resolution is introduced granting a gratuitous renewal of the traction franchise. Gormly offers ten million dollars for the franchise. The excited populace threaten to mob the aldermen, when addressed by Gormly. The Ring mayor and the merchant have a critical moment. The detective force reports a valuable clew. Miss Haldane congratulates Gormly on what she terms a new Declaration of Independence, and he makes an unexpected declaration of love. He is shocked by the confirmation of his suspicions that her father is the head and backbone of the notorious traction company which he is attempting to overthrow.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

"And you—you will—do you think—" He stopped. "No," he said, "I shall stop there, with this moment, with this statement. I ask nothing, I expect nothing, and so far as a man can crush down his own feelings, I hope for nothing. I just want you to know the fact."

"I know it," was the answer. "Now, you must let me say something. I am, at least I believe myself to be, absolutely heart free. Sometimes I have thought that what you have said might be true, with regard to your feelings I mean; but I have tried to put it out of my mind. Your declaration, therefore, comes to me with a certain measure of surprise. You have not asked me anything, and it is just as well that you have not. I think I can say honestly and truthfully that I do not care for you now in the way you seem to care for me."

"Seem to care for you," cried the man impulsively.

"The way you do care for me then," returned the woman.

"That's better."

"And whether I could care in that way, I don't know; but at least I care for no one else. And while I hold myself as free as the air, when you speak to me again on this subject I shall at least be ready to hear you."

"That is all that I can ask."

"Meanwhile I want to say over and over again how I respect you, how I admire you. The fine life you have lived, the splendid stand you have taken for public right, the crowning of your long and honorable and unblemished career with the success which I think I see before you and with the great opportunity for service, fills me with pride."

"Miss Haldane," said Gormly, "what you say to me is sweeter and more precious than the acclaim, the applause, the indorsement of all the rest of the people of New York. As I said, I began this to make myself worthy of you; but I would not be worthy of you, I would not be worth considering in any light, if I did not say to you now that I am carrying it on for the work and for the possibilities that it presents, as well as for you."

"I believe you," said the woman, "and I am glad to have you say that."

"Although there is nothing in my life I so covet as you, Miss Haldane," went on the man with the blunt honesty that somehow appealed to the woman much more powerfully than more graceful and romantic wooing, "yet if I had to choose now between you and this great opportunity for service to the people—"

"You would choose the opportunity for service," interposed the woman quickly.

"I should have to do so. And yet you still remain my inspiration," said the man. "Your approbation means more to me than anything or every-thing else. I don't know what fate has in store for me; but I doubt if I shall have another opportunity of the magnitude of that I have enjoyed tonight, and that you were there completes my satisfaction."

"Mine, too."

"Yet, there is another thing that I ought to say," continued Gormly, and this was the hardest thing he had ever attempted, he thought. "You have spoken of my career, of my long and honorable record, of my unblemished reputation. I have to confess to my shame that I am not altogether worthy of your confidence."

"What do you mean?"

"Ever since I have been in New York, there is no act of my life that I could not tell you myself; but before that—"

"You were a boy then," said the woman quickly.

"But I mingled with life in an ugly way."

"That ride in the snow?" she whispered, staring at him in turn.

It did not occur to him to lay any emphasis upon or draw any inference from the fact that she had remembered his remarks of several months before.

"And that other woman, was it she for whom you rode?" she went on.

"Yes," said he.

"Did you do anything that makes you unworthy the respect of—"

He Bent Over and Kissed It Fervently.

"Not anything dishonorable in one sense," answered Gormly. "And whatever it was, I have repented of it long since and would have made amends if I could have done so; but—Well, if I ever should come to you with that question about being my wife, I will tell you all about it. As it is, I don't want even the faintest shadow of a pretense about myself where you are concerned."

"You were only a boy, as you say, Mr. Gormly," said Miss Haldane after a long pause. "I don't know what it is, nor do I wish to, now. I know what you are, the world knows what you have been since you have been here, and I—" She extended her hand to him. "I trust you, I would trust you with anything."

The man took it in both his own. They were stretching out beyond the city. No one was near. The two in front were busy about their own concerns. He bent over and kissed it fervently.

"I thank you for that," he said simply, as he released it.

BOOK III.

THE CRUCIAL MOMENTS.

CHAPTER XII.

Mrs. Haldane Is Surprised.

The Haldane family usually partook of luncheon together. Breakfast was an irregular meal taken at different times by different members of the household, and dinner usually brought many engagements which widely separated them. A few days after the automobile ride, while the excitement over the proposed granting to the Gotham Freight Traction company of the New York Street Car company franchise was still at its height, Mr. and Mrs. Haldane and their daughter, after waiting sometime for the arrival of Livingstone Haldane, sat down to luncheon without him.

It was Eleanor who opened the conversation, after the luncheon had been served and the servants had withdrawn.

"Father," she said, "I have been thinking for some days now that I ought to tell you something that happened the other night."

"What night, Eleanor?"

"The night Mr. Gormly made his famous speech in the city hall square. You know Livingstone and Louise and I were down there in the car and saw and heard it all."

"Yes," said her father, somewhat bitter, "it was told to me the next morning that Gormly had spoken from your brother's car and that after it was all over he had ridden away with you two young women."

"Told to you?" exclaimed his daughter. "Why should you be interested in Mr. Gormly's movements?"

Haldane saw that he had made a mistake. "I mean," he said quickly, "that I heard of all this from some of those who were present."

"Eleanor, I am surprised," began Mrs. Haldane in her loftiest and most impressive manner, "that you should allow yourself to be mixed up with this ineffable person in any way. It is bad enough to have Livingston espousing his cause; but to have you associated with him in the public eye, or out of it, is simply preposterous!"

"Mother!" said Miss Haldane mildly; but the elder woman was not to be stopped.

"The family has never been allied with trade since it has been settled on Manhattan Island. I am a five-barred Colonial Dame; your father's people are nearly as old; and I say frankly that I do not like your intimacy with this person. Of course Livingstone being a man, it does not make so much difference; but you should be more careful."

"I think it proper," said Miss Haldane at this juncture, "to inform you that Mr. Gormly told me that he—that he cared very much for me."

"What!" exclaimed both Mr. and Mrs. Haldane at the same moment and with one voice.

The intimation, however, and the feeling expressed in both cases were decidedly different. Both were surprised; but Mrs. Haldane's surprise was lost in indignation. In Haldane's amazement, there was a shade of relief. A possibility instantly leaped into his mind, a possibility that he dared not formulate or give utterance to. It rendered him less emphatic, therefore, in his disapproval. Nothing restrained Mrs. Haldane.

"The impudence, the insolence of that man!" she cried. "It was bad enough to have him aspire to be mayor of New York; but that he should have the audacity, the presumption to raise his eyes to you, Eleanor Haldane, is inconceivable! I trust that you reduced him to his proper position instantly. For one thing, I am glad that he did declare himself; for now the acquaintance will be absolutely ended."

"He did not ask me to be his wife," returned the daughter quietly.

"Why, good gracious! you don't mean to say that he——"

"Eliza," interposed Haldane, "don't be foolish. I have no doubt that Mr. Gormly's remarks were entirely proper."

"Mother!" exclaimed the girl indignantly. "Of course they were."

"Well, you said yourself he did not ask you to marry him."

"No," was the hesitating answer. "But he said he intended to do so."

"I wish he would do it then, and have it over with."

"My dear wife," said Haldane, "while of course such an alliance is not to be thought of, yet Mr. Gormly, so far as I know, has done no dishonor to Eleanor by his remark, and——"

"Have you taken leave of your senses, Beekman Haldane?" cried his wife. "Such a proposition as that should be disposed of at once, and I repeat I am sorry that the man hesitated, for whatever reason I can't imagine, so that the affair might have been conclusively settled."

"I am not at all sure, mother," answered Miss Haldane, "that it would have been conclusively settled in the way at least you seem to think the only way possible, if he had asked me to be his wife."

"Eleanor, you could not possibly love this man!"

"I could do so; but I certainly do not love him now. I certainly respect and admire him, I think he is the leading citizen of New York today. If he wins this election and goes on as he should, there is no reason why he should not be president of the United States. I believe it would be easier to be elected to that office than to become mayor. And while I do not feel toward him as I should toward the man I will some day marry, yet there are many other things in the prospect that allure."

"But you are a Haldane, you are a Stuyvesant, you are——"

"I know, mother, all that my ancestors were. As for myself, I am just an American girl, who likes American men and American institutions, and who is glad to see people do things."

"I presume," said Haldane, who had said little but had thought deeply, "that such a proposition, if definitely made, would be made to me."

"Well then, of course," said his wife, "you will give but one answer."

"And what would you suggest that should be?" asked Haldane.

"To show him the door."

"I hardly think," returned her husband, "that I should be guilty of that discourtesy."

"There is no use," interposed her daughter, "to discuss the matter any further; for he hasn't asked me, I haven't accepted him. I don't know whether he ever will ask me or not, and until he does why trouble about it?"

"Well, what does he mean then by telling you that he loves you? Loves!" sneered the older woman disdainfully.

"Yes," said her father, "it seems to me a rather remarkable course for a man to address a woman in that way, and yet not complete his proposition."

"He said that something was impending which made him feel that it was proper to tell me this now."

"Something impending?"

"Some sort of disclosure, I inferred," answered the girl, "that might affect him or possibly me."

Haldane started.

"Well," he said, "I do not quite agree with your mother. There is no insult in the honest affection of any honest man. But if he approaches you upon the subject, I wish that you would refer him to me."

"Father!"

"Beekman!" exclaimed the older woman, greatly surprised. "You don't mean——?"

"Now, I don't mean anything, except just what I say," answered Haldane decisively. "It is proper that such a proposition should be made to me; and I should very greatly desire to be allowed to discuss the matter, if it goes any further, with Mr. Gormly personally."

Haldane spoke sternly, and his wife at once subsided, as she invariably did when he assumed that mood. Eleanor, however, was not so easily silenced.

"Of course, in any event you would be consulted, father," she said firmly; "but so far as the disposition of my hand goes, that is a matter that concerns my heart, and it is one which, although I should be very glad of your counsel and your approval, I shall have to decide myself."

"Quite so, quite so," said Haldane. "I have no other idea."

"Father," he said abruptly, "I want to see you alone for a moment or two please!"

"What has happened?" began Haldane, rising.

"Why, Mr. Gormly—— But I would rather see you alone."

"Has he made a proposition to you for your sister's hand?" questioned Mrs. Haldane.

"What!" exclaimed her son.

"Eleanor," explained his mother, "has just stated that Mr. Gormly took advantage of your kindness to him the other night, after that disgraceful episode in the city hall, to make love to her in the tonneau of the car."

"You don't say!" exclaimed the young man, apparently neither shocked nor surprised. "Well, he's a good one. What did you say to him, sis?"

"It is very unpleasant to me to have these matters discussed in this way," answered Eleanor, her face blushing. "As I have explained to father and mother, Mr. Gormly did me the honor to say that he cared a great deal for me. He did not ask me to be his wife although he expressed his intention of doing so. He said that certain things had made him anticipate his purpose and state his feelings toward me now without waiting, as he had expected to do, until the end of the election."

"What things?" asked young Haldane. "Things that concerned him——"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

YOURS

Yours for uniformity.

Yours for greatest leavening power.

Yours for never failing results.

Yours for purity.

Yours for economy.

Yours for everything that goes to make up a strictly high grade, ever-dependable baking powder.

That is Calumet. Try it once and note the improvement in your baking. See how much more economical over the high-priced trust brands, how much better than the cheap and big-can kinds.

Calumet is highest in quality—moderate in cost.

Received Highest Award—World's Pure Food Exposition.

44 Bu. to the Acre

is a heavy yield, but that's what John Kennedy of Edmonton, Alberta, Western Canada, got from 40 acres of Spring Wheat in 1910. Reports from other districts in that province showed other excellent results—such as 4,000 bushels of wheat from 120 acres, or 33 1-3 bu. per acre. 25, 30 and 40 bushel yields were numerous. As high as 132 bushels of oats to the acre were threshed from Alberta fields in 1910.

The Silver Cup

at the recent Spokane Fair was awarded to the Alberta Government for its exhibit of grains, grasses and vegetables. Reports of excellent yields for 1910 come also from Saskatchewan and Manitoba in Western Canada.

Free homesteads of 160 acres, and adjoining pre-emptions of 160 acres (at $3 per acre) are to be had in the choicest districts.

Schools convenient, climate excellent, soil the very best, railways close at hand, building lumber cheap, fuel easy to get and reasonable in price, water easily procured, mixed farming a success.

Write as to best place for settlement, settlers' low railway rates, descriptive illustrated "Last Best West" (sent free on application) and other information, to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to the Canadian Government Agent. (36)

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N.D.
J. M. MacLachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S.D.
E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.
Geo. A. Hall, 125 2d St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

Pettit's Eye Salve RELIEVES TIRED EYES

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 49–1911.

REAL ESTATE

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for $12-$18 per acre in the finest mixed farming district in Canadian West. Close to Prince Albert, Sask., splendid market point. Free Government homesteads also within 25 miles of City, crops excellent, settlement coming in fast. For free literature and maps, write Julius S. Woodward, Sec. Board of Trade, Dept. L, Prince Albert, Sask.

98 ACRE fruit, dairy and alfalfa farm, $8,000. Half cash. Splendid producing farm, 4 miles from Topeka. Good water, markets, residence and educational advantages unsurpassed. Also best varieties of strawberry, blackberry, raspberry plants; peonies, iris, cannas, dahlias, vines, shrubs; lowest market prices. Catalogue free. W. L. Lux, Route 7, Topeka, Kansas.

ROSTHERN Farmer wins Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's prize of $1,000 in gold for worlds best wheat at New York City. Rosthern lands are best investments. F. F. Siemens, Rosthern, Sask. Canada

PISO'S is the name to remember when you need a remedy for COUGHS and COLDS

WATER CURE AT "REF"

INTERESTING REVELATION OF ST. CLOUD INSTITUTION.

Claimed That Prisoners Have Been Threatened With Vigorous System When Noisy.

St. Paul. — A very unique way of quieting prisoners by turning a hose on them has been unearthed in the investigation of Superintendent Randall's conduct of the state reformatory at St. Cloud. The investigation was made by J. C. Matchitt, executive secretary of the board of visitors to state institutions.

It was charged that a hose was played on a boy until he begged for relief. According to Mr. Matchitt's report, superintendent Randall could not remember the particular incident. Mr. Matchitt quotes Superintendent Randall as follows:

Believes He Did Use Hose.

"I do not remember it in connection with the incident you refer to, but I believe I did, on one occasion, turn the horse on to an angry and noisy man to the extent that he became calm and good natured and the inmates in the adjoining cell house were enabled to sleep.

"Before the stream was applied the physician examined the man. The water was from an attic tank and was cold, and the treatment was effective in such a short time that it was not long continued. With my approval a similar measure has since been threatened, but a reasonable length of time having been given for reflection, it was not necessary to apply it."

Superintendent Exonerated.

In Mr. Matchitt's report Superintendent Randall is exonerated of the charges preferred against him by an inmate of the school, Frank Farrell. The charges were found in manuscript form in the cell of Farrell and were turned over to the board of visitors by Mr. Randall himself.

The charges were that political and outside influence is used in securing release of inmates; that there is no one to guard the interests of the prisoners; that their private affairs are made public property; that too many personal questions are asked them when they are admitted; that some officers were heartless and incompetent, and that inmates, when given hearings, are considered untruthful if they don't admit the charges made, and are punished if they do not plead guilty.

Farrell declared that he was going to be bed head shaved up in the affair. He said that his manuscript had been prepared from notes taken from the other inmates, John Smetzler and James A. Boland. No evidence to substantiate these charges could be found.

"The delay in the departure from the institution of paroled men is often caused by inability to find a satisfactory place for the man," says Mr. Matchitt. "The parole system is open to material improvement in that there should be a corps of parole officers."

MANKATO PUSHES GOOD ROADS

Project of a State Highway to the Twin Cities Presented to Towns.

Mankato.—A party of five good roads advocates from the Mankato Commercial club addressed meetings at Elysian and Waterville in the interest of the project started by the Madison Lake Commercial club to have the road from the city to the Twin Cities declared a state road and improved by grading and graveling so as to make it in good condition at all times, as is the portion of the road from this city as far east as Madison Lake.

The party consisted of President F. E. Crandall, George A. Palmer, chairman of the good roads commitee, John H. Hohmann, H. A. Patterson and County Auditor Eugene Weaver.

This was the first of a series of addresses to be made at towns along the route as far as Northfield, and it is hoped to awaken sufficient interest and enthusiasm to get the work done this winter.

BOOKS FOUND IN GOOD SHAPE.

Public Examiner Reports on Accounts of Two Schools.

St. Paul. — Public Examiner Fritz has filed reports with Governor Eberhart covering examination made of the financial affairs of the Red Wing training school and the school for feeble minded and epileptics at Faribault. He finds the books in good shape.

In the case of the Faribault school, $600 was found which has been owing to the institution by Carver county for the last four years. There is owing by the various counties for patients sent to the school nearly $7,000.

The cost of the superintendent's cottage at the Red Wing training school, Mr. Fritz found on the ledger at $6,490.53 when in reality it cost $9,996.64. The difference, it is explained, was paid out of another fund.

CUSSICK GOES TO POOR HOUSE.

Formerly Owns Stage Between St. Paul and Duluth.

Duluth.—John Cussick, whose name is linked with that of early Minnesota in a singularly interesting manner, went to the St. Louis county poor farm. He worked out like old Mike Fink, between the Head of the Lakes and St. Paul in the later sixties, once before the era of railroads.

REFORMATORY INVESTIGATED.

St. Cloud Inspected Following Sensational Article Written by Inmates.

St. Paul.—The state board of visitors has completed an investigation of conditions in the state reformatory at St. Cloud and its report will be in the hands of Governor Eberhart in a few days.

The investigation of the St. Cloud institution was brought about by Superintendent Randall following a discovery that three inmates were writing an article on conditions in the institution, supposedly for publication in some newspaper. Mr. Randall immediately turned the manuscript over to the state board of control and asked for an investigation.

The article, which was practically completed, was highly sensational and purported to describe the conditions in the reformatory.

The board of visitors spent several days at the institution and examined several witnesses, including the authors of the manuscript. One of the young men implicated denied that he had anything to do with the writing of the book.

Superintendent Randall has been at the head of the St. Cloud institution for several years. He was appointed by former Governor Lind.

PROGRESSIVES TO ORGANIZE.

Redwood County Republicans to Form League Saturday December 11.

Redwood Falls.—The Progressive Republicans of Redwood county are planning a big mass meeting to be held at Wabasso on Monday, Dec. 11, at which time a county organization will be perfected.

The object of the organization is purely for the purpose of promoting progressive principles and not for the purpose of boosting the political ambition of any person or persons.

About 100 blanks were sent out over the county for signatures of prominent Republicans who favor a Progressive league, and nearly 100 signatures have been received, a large percentage of the names being those of prominent farmers.

Nearly every precinct, out of forty in the county, will be represented.

Hon. James Peterson of Minneapolis has accepted an invitation to deliver an address at the Wabasso meeting.

POSTOFFICE FUNDS SHORT.

Assistant Postmaster at Belle Plaine Held to Federal Court.

Mankato.—George H. Nichols, assistant postmaster at Belle Plaine, was arraigned before Court Commissioner Taylor in this city on a warrant charging the embezzlement of $201.74 from government funds in the postoffice. He was given a bond for $500 for his appearance at the next term of the United States court at St. Paul, Dec. 6.

It appears that on Nov. 1 the defendant and his father, who is postmaster, went over the accounts of the postoffice and found everything apparently as it should be, with the accounts balanced, but the next day an inspector arrived and found the alleged deficit. The postmaster immediately made the amount good from his private funds. It is not thought the defendant had any intention of defrauding the government.

GOOD PRICE FOR STATE LAND.

Eastern Marshall County Sell Brings High Figures.

Warren.—In this city occurred the biggest sale of state land in the history of Marshall county. Twelve thousand acres were sold at from $6.50 to $15 per acre.

Most of the bidding on this land was done by farmers living in the vicinity of the land. Much of the land was sold to Iowa and Illinois farmers, who intend to move to this county and farm it.

At the Stilson county state land sale, held at Hallock, over 6,000 acres were sold at an average price of $12 an acre.

In all cases the land was sold at figures about $5 per cent higher than its appraised value. The land is located in the eastern part of Marshall county.

STATE'S BALANCE REDUCED.

Usual Overdraft Leaves $1,786,823.58 in Minnesota Treasury.

St. Paul. — Though the state's accounts show a balance of $1,786,823.58 in the various funds, the usual overdraft of the general revenue fund at this period, amounting to $494,175.58 this year, has reduced Minnesota's actual cash balance to $1,786,823.58, according to the monthly report given out by Walter J. Smith, state treasurer.

This overdraft, however, is gradually being offset by the payments of November taxes by the different counties, which are constantly being made in small amounts. The only one of the larger counties of the state to make payment thus far is St. Louis, which recently sent in $200,000.

ST. CLOUD TO VOTE ON PLAN.

Commission Form of, Government Seems Likely to Be Adopted.

St. Cloud.—A special election is to be held in this city for the purpose of voting upon a proposed new charter which embraces the commission form of government. Last fall a similar proposition was faced by the voters, but at that time the matter was submitted in connection with the municipal election. This time, however, the election will be held on a day by itself.

DETROIT HEARS EBERHART

EXECUTIVES URGE RATIFICATION OF TREATIES

Assume That if America Takes Lead in Peace Movement, Other Nations Will Follow.

Detroit, Mich. — "International conciliation and universal peace" was the subject of brief addresses by Governors Eberhart of Minnesota and Burke of North Dekota, members of the party of western governors now invading the East at the union nondenominational Thanksgiving exercises in this city. The other visiting governors spoke in the various churches throughout the city.

Governors Eberhart and Burke urged the ratification by the senate of the leading arbitration treaties.

"When the United States and England have accomplished this step, the other nations will do likewise," declared the chief executive of Minnesota. "We are now spending money on the army and navy that could be used for much more worthy causes, once the treaties are adopted," he concluded.

"It is the man with the gun that gets into trouble," declared Governor Burke, referring to "war talk" and army and navy expenditures. "The man who looks for peace generally avoids trouble and to a large extent I predict it will be the same way with the nations."

The speaker expressed confidence in the final adoption of the pending treaties and ultimately a full realization of "peace on earth."

Both speakers were introduced by Governor Osborn of Michigan who accompanied the party here from Kalamazoo.

Party Guests of Toledo.

Toledo.—It was a round of entertainment, interspersed with speeches of thanks for their reception, that marked the stay of the governors of the Western states. The visitors were taken on an auto trip through the city, visiting the Yacht club, Country club and ending at the Toledo club, where a reception was held.

When the governors left the Toledo club, they went to the Commerce club, where a buffet luncheon was served. Here they were met by the Newsboys Cadets.

The governors, with the exception of Governor Eberhart of Minnesota, in their speeches at the Commerce club, dwelt upon the suffrage for woman, advocating it strongly. At the conclusion, Frank Mulholland, vice president of the Conference club, asked for an expression on the subject from the four hundred business men present, and only three failed to raise their hands in approval.

While the governors were being entertained in the Commerce club, a party of business men from Cleveland arrived to escort them to that city.

LUMBERMAN'S WIFE DIES

Mrs. Frederick Weyerhaeuser Succumbs After Several Weeks' Illness.

St. Paul. — Mrs. Frederick Weyerhaeuser, wife of the millionaire lumberman, who has been ill for several weeks at her residence. Mrs. Weyerhaeuser was born 73 years ago at Niedersaulheim, on the Rhina, in Germany, the same town in which Mr. Weyerhaeuser was born and where Her maiden name was Elizabeth Bloedel, and she came to this country with her father, as an infant.

Five years after Mr. Weyerhaeuser settled in this country he was married to her at Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 12, 1857.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Weyerhaeuser is survived by the following children: John P., St. Paul; Charles A., Little Falls, Minn.; Rudolph H., Choquet, Minn.; Frederick S., St. Paul; Mrs. William Bancroft Hill, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Mrs. J. R. Jewett, Cambridge, Mass., and Mrs. S. S. Davis, Rock Island, Ill. There are eleven grand-children.

Wagonload of Timothy Brings $1,092.50

Sandstone.—A wagonload of timothy seed from the C. H. Cooper place has the most valuable load ever brought to this market. The net weight of the load was 4,370 pounds and at the market price of timothy seed was worth $1,092.50. It was threshed by Reese Workman from the hay of about ten acres. It passed over two scales for the purpose of verification. Six of the land on which the timothy grew has been seeded upwards of ten years, the crop being cut each year and never turned under. Part of the land was never broken and the seed was planted on the top of the ground. Mr. Cooper figures that enough seed was lost in harvesting to reseed the ground from which the crop was taken. The seed is valid and is unable to leave his chaff, and his field work must of necessity be left to others. The seed represented only a small part of the returns from the farm.

Representative Block Gets Moose.

St. Cloud.—Former Representative H. C. Block of this city returned from a hunting trip in Beltrami county and brought home the largest moose ever shipped to St. Cloud. The animal, which weighed 850 pounds, dressed, stood seven feet high when standing. The bull moose was one of a herd of fourteen, which had taken up winter quarters in a cedar bog near Lake Block and his guide succeeded in getting within shooting distance of the herd. Block shot the bull moose through the heart.

DOCTORS SAID HE WOULD DIE

A Friend's Advice Saves Life.

It was to speak of the wonderful cure that I have received from your noted Swamp-Root, after Bright's disease and bladder cure. Last summer I was taken with severe pains in my back and sides. I could not breathe without difficulty. I tried all the different doctors from far and near, but they said it was no use to doctor as I would die anyway. I was at the end of my rope and was so miserable with pain and the thought that I must die that words cannot tell how I felt. One day a friend told me of the wonderful help she had received from Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. She gave me one of your pamphlets which I read and determined to try Swamp-Root. After taking half a bottle I felt better, Have now taken two bottles and am well as I ever was, thanks to Swamp-Root. I wish to tell all suffering people that have kidney, liver or bladder trouble, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the best medicine on the market.

All persons doubting this statement can write to me and I will answer them directly.

Yours very truly,
CLYDE F. CAMBRON,
Rosalia, Wash.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23rd day of July, 1909.
VERN TOWNE, Notary Public.

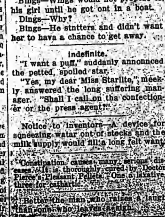
Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

The Optimist.

Ex-Senator Mason of Illinois gave a new definition of an optimist in a recent speech before the Business Men's club. "A true optimist," said the genial senator, "is a man who is able to come home at night out of all the lemons handed him during the day."



CUTICURA OINTMENT HEALED BAD SORE ON LIMB

"Some time ago I was coming up some steps when the board crushed under me like an egg shell, and my right limb went through to the knee, and scraped he flesh off the bone just inside and below the knee. I neglected it for a day or two, then it began to hurt me pretty badly. I put balsam fir on to draw out the poison, but what I had used in a week; it hurt so badly that I changed to ——— ointment. That made it worse and when I saw how bad I used it a week; it hurt more, and that was the fourth week after I was hurt.

"Then I began to use Cuticura Ointment for the sore. It stopped hurting immediately and began healing right away. It was a bad-looking sore before Cuticura Ointment healed it, and it suffered so much pain for about four days after I fell until I began using Cuticura Ointment.

"Cuticura Soap is the best soap I ever saw. I have used all kinds of soap for washing my face, and always it would leave my face smarting. I have had it used in the house to wash, no matter how expensive a soap I used. I find it does everything that a soap that will clean my face and leave no smarting, and I do not have to use any balm or anything to clean it. I believe Cuticura Soap is the best soap made." (Signed) Mrs. M. B. Fairchild, 605 Lafayette St., Wichita, Kan., May 3, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 23 K, Boston.

LOOKING AFTER THE DETAILS.

Bingo—Wings would not propose to his girl until he got out in a boat.
Dingo—Why?
Bingo—He knitters and didn't want her to have a chance to get away.

indefinite.

"I want a pull," suddenly announced the petted, spoiled child.

"Yes, my dear Miss Starlite," meekly answered the long suffering manager. "I'll call on the confectioner or the press agent."

Notice to Inventors.

A device for squeezing water out of sheets and the milk supply would bring your fortune.

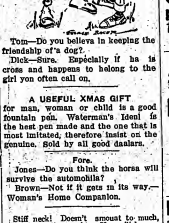
Conditional.

"Constantine, dearest, would you marry me if I were a millionaire?" asked the impetuous youth.

"Constantine, dearest, would you marry me if I were a millionaire?" asked the impetuous youth.

"Certainly, dearest, if you were a millionaire," answered the fair one.

ALWAYS GENTLE IN REPROOF



General Lee's Real Kindness of Heart Made Manifest on Such Occasions.

"There are some new, or, least, unfamiliar stories of Robert E. Lee in Gamaliel Bradford, Jr.'s articles on 'Lee After the War' in the South Atlantic Quarterly. Lee's methods of reproof were peculiar to him. A subordinate was once called to account for absence. "Mr. M., I am glad to see you better," Lee said to him, smiling. "But, general, I have not been sick. "Then I am glad you have better news from home." "But, general, I have had no bad news." "Ah, I took it for granted that nothing less than sickness or distressing news from home could have kept you from your duty."

In the same vein was his remark to a student who had been late for prayers. "Mr. Page, will you kindly give my compliments to Mrs.—— and ask her if she will please have breakfast a little earlier for you?" To a negligent student he said: "Are you a your mother? I am sure you must be devoted to her; you are so careful of the health of her son."

Summoned to Lee's office, a lad was told that only patience and industry would save him from failure in college and in life. "But, general, you failed," the student replied with sophomore impatience. "I hope that you may be more fortunate than I," was the quiet answer.

WISE PLAN.

Tom—Do you believa in keeping the friendship of'a dog?
Dick—Sure. Especially if he is cross and happens to belong to the girl you often call on.

A USEFUL XMAS GIFT

for man, woman or child is a good Hamlin pen. Waterman's Ideal is the best pen made and the one that is most imitated, therefore insist on the genuine. Sold by all good dealers.

Fore.

Jones—Do you think the horse will survive the automobile?
Brown—Not if it gets in its way.—Woman's Home Companion.

Stiff neck! Doesn't amount to much but mighty disagreeable. You will be surprised to see how quickly Hamlins Wizard Oil will drive that stiffness out. One night, that's all.

I am more and more impressed with the helplessness of the poor who out of their mountenous penury give the rich their opportunity.

IT WEARS YOU OUT.

Kidney Troubles Lower the Vitality of the Whole Body.

"Don't wait for serious illness; begin using Doan's Kidney Pills when you first feel backache or notice urinary disorders. John L. Perry, Columbus, Texas, says: "I was taken sick about a year ago. My limbs and feet began to swell and my doctor said I had Bright's disease. I then consulted a doctor who said I had dropsy and could not live. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me promptly and I owe my life to them."

"When Your Back Is Lame, Remember the Name—DOAN'S." 50c, all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Even a man who is good for nothing is apt to look good to some woman.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Many a small hottia has developed into a family jar.

SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA

Cleanses the System effectually; Dispels colds and Headaches due to constipation. Best for men, women and children; young and old.

To get its Beneficial effects, always note the name of the Company.

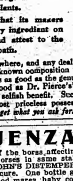
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. plainly printed on the front of every package of the Genuine

FURS

TRAPPER'S GUIDE FREE

WE WANT IT SENT TO EVERY TRAPPER IN THE WORLD. THE LARGEST SHIPPERS OF FURS IN THE WEST

T. J. BUTLER HIDE & FUR CO., Minneapolis, Minn.



WOOL

RUPTURE CURED in a few days without a surgical operation. No pay until cured. Write to H. P. Brooks, 20 Century Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. ANDERSON-ZIMMERMAN DRUG CO., ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

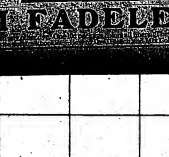
DEFIANCE STARCH, for hot work and starches clothes blest.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is the best of all medicines for the cure of diseases, disorders and weaknesses peculiar to women. It is the only prescription of its kind devised by a regularly graduated physician—an experienced and skilled specialist in the diseases of women.

It is a safe medicine in any condition of the system.

THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol and no injurious habit-forming drugs and which creates no craving for such stimulants.



THE ONE REMEDY so good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on each outside bottle-wrapper and attest to the truthfulness of the same under oath.

It is sold by medicine dealers everywhere, and any dealer who hasn't it can get it for you. Think of unknown composition for this medicine or of known composition. No counterfeit is as good as the genuine and the dealer who says something else is "just as good as Dr. Pierce's" either mistakes or is trying to deceive you for his own selfish benefit. Such a man is not to be trusted. He is trifling with your most precious possession—your health—may be your life itself. So don't you yet what you ask for.

INFLUENZA CATARRHAL FEVER PINKEYE, SHIPPING FEVER, EPIZOOTIC

And all diseases of the horse, affecting his throat, especially colts and horses in exposed or infected stables, can be prevented from having them by using SPOHN'S DISTEMPER AND COUGH CURE. 2 to 5 doses often cure. One bottle guaranteed to cure one case. Safe for brood mares, baby colts, stallions—all ages and conditions. Most skilful veterinarians use it. 50c BOTTLE, $5 DOZ. Any druggist, or delivered by manufacturers.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., GOSHEN, INDIANA

Muzzle Velocity is what Counts

"If Gen' 'mos' thought to use a little more powder he'd come back home a hero. The initial explosion of the powder is not the important thing; it's the manner in which it is followed up that's what counts. Most shells are made to explode on contact. Most shells are made to explode on contact. In the ordinary "quick explosion" powders all the force is exerted at the start. And right here lies the superiority of the progressive combustion powders used by

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION (NOT MADE BY A TRUST)

Robin Hood smokeless powders do not really explode; they burn, and burn so slowly that the maximum velocity is not reached until the powder has been forced up the barrel more than half its length. That's why Robin Hood shells shoot so flat and kill so far.

We make the "quick explosion" shells too—and no wonder.

If you can get Robin Hood shells and powder cartridges, you can get the best that can be had in the world for all purposes. Send 2c stamp for our 64 page catalog and list of interesting information for gunners.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION COMPANY
Factory and Main Office, SOMERSET, MASS.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

CHINA HAS SHAKEN OFF SHACKLES

AWAKENED by the world's unrest, the last empire of old, old things, of unchanging ideas, of reverence for the past, has shaken off the shackles of autocratic, tyrannical government, and western notions of liberty, of industrial activity and modern progress have taken possession of the celestial empire. Victory after victory has placed the constitutional party in almost complete control of the country. In a frantic effort to save some remnant of its tottering power the throne issued edict after edict abjectly acceding to the various demands of the revolutionists. But Manchu rule in China is ended forever.

Wu Ting Fang, twice ambassador of his country to Washington, and one of the most famous and distinguished statesmen in China, has declared himself in favor of a republican form of government and has taken a leading place in the counsels of the constitutional party. A republic, founded upon lines similar to the government of the United States is to be the future of China. What influence this awakened giant of Asia may exert in world politics is a question that is causing no end of anxiety in the capitals of the various powers and is one which only the future can answer.

Twice during the three century history of the Manchu domination of the Chinese race has the cry been heard: "Down with the Manchus." The first attempt made by patriotic Chinese to rid themselves of the tyrannical and oppressive yoke of their Tartar conquerors was in 1861, and for seven years there waged a civil war in the Middle Kingdom that far exceeded in bloodshed the conflict between the North and the South in the United States.

The Bund, Hankow, China
© Underwood & Underwood, N.Y.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, Revolutionary Leader
© Underwood & Underwood, N.Y.

Prince Regent and Sons—The Eldest Is Emperor

China's Modern Soldiers

And it is an interesting coincidence, that these two national upheavals were in progress at the same time and both inspired by the same sentiment, love of country; while in a still more striking manner did this mighty Chinese protest become a counterpart of the American revolution in its avowed purpose to claim its country for itself and banish forever beyond the confines of the empire the hated Manchu usurper.

That the victory of Washington and his loyal hosts was not duplicated by the Chinese revolutionists at that time was due to the fact that their efforts were impeded, interfered with and finally successfully resisted by that same power whose unjust domination of these American States eventually resulted in the immortal Declaration of Independence.

And yet how much is known of the history of the "Tai Ping Kwok," the Tai Ping Rebellion, or "The Great Kingdom of Peace?"

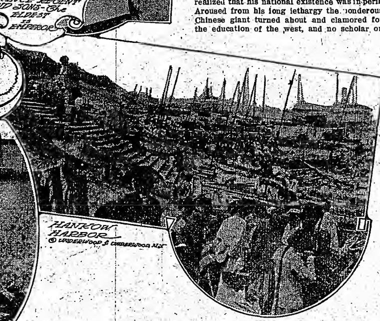
The cable and the wireless have so brought the ends of the earth together that today, we read in the morning paper what has transpired in the evening on the other side of the earth. But in those days, China was a land buried in mystery, practically unknown and unexplored and whose political and economic conditions attracted but little attention from the outside world, and so far as we are concerned we were too deeply engrossed in our own gigantic struggle to maintain the unity of our own states, to give a thought to what was transpiring across the Pacific.

The history of the Tai Ping rebellion is one of intense interest and full of tragedy, pathos, and romance, but is merely referred to here as being the first cohesive effort made by the Chinese to regain the government of their own land and free themselves from the thraldom of a foreign rule.

Their efforts were unsuccessful. The movement was born in the spirit of enthusiastic patriotism but it ended in total riot and demoralization.

Its leader, Hung Hsieu Chuen, first raised the cry, "Down with the Manchus" and his enthusiasm was infectious.

The Chinese turned to him as a divinely appointed saviour of their land, and he, being more or less of a visionary type, believed himself to be inspired and commissioned by Heaven to accomplish this herculean task.



He had received a certain amout of Christian training and it is an astonishing fact that the whole movement was primarily based on Christian principles. But that his religious zeal exceeded his good judgment and sound reason is indicated by the fact that while he referred to Christ as the Elder Brother, he impiously termed himself the "Younger Brother" thus placing himself on an equality with Divinity.

Notwithstanding this and other faults of judgment his cause appealed to the great mass of the people, thousands flocked to his victorious banners and his war against the Manchu government was a series of uninterrupted triumphant achievements.

Cities ... fell before his patriotic ... Hankow and ...

Yang-Tse River
© Underwood & Underwood, N.Y.

Hankow Harbor
© Underwood & Underwood, N.Y.

met the fate which was theirs in this last conflict, they fell into the hands of the conquering hosts of rebels.

Success was almost within their grasp when the Peking government became alarmed and frantically appealed to the British government to send a soldier who could train an imperial army to meet and quell the Tai Ping rebels.

Gen. Charles Gordon was commissioned for this purpose, and in co-operation with Li Hung Chang he succeeded in putting into the field an efficient and well disciplined army which was afterwards known as the "ever victorious army" for they never lost an engagement with the enemy, and in six months he had completely exterminated the insurrectionists.

Defeated and discouraged, the rebel leader, Hung Hsieu Chuen, retreated to Nanking and there committed suicide.

The Manchu government was saved to continue its dominating oppressive sway and the distinguished Englishman who came to the rescue has ever since been known as "Chinese Gordon."

Note the difference between the attitude of the powers towards the Peking government in the recent rebellion and that of England towards the Manchu despot nearly fifty years ago.

The powers refused to aid or respond to the Peking government's appeal for assistance, financially or physically, apparently recognizing that the Chinese have a just grievance and a perfect right to adjust it in the only way possible.

During the past few weeks Tai Ping history has been duplicated, but with a higher purpose and more intelligent direction. The battle cry was the same and "Down with the Manchu" found an echo throughout the length of the Yang Tse valley, in hamlet, town and city, aboard ungainly junks and northward along the shimmering lines of the new railroad until it was heard within the crenelated walls of the Forbidden City, and the son of heaven abjectly apologized for past neglect and mistakes of the throne and granted every demand of the revolutionists. ... nothing ... visionary in the minds or plans of the leaders of this new movement, during the past decade young China has been at school. Bright and intelligent oblique-eyed youths from the Dragon land have traveled beyond the seas and in this and other lands have learned that the preparation for future accomplishment is more to be desired than the slavish devotion of the worship of ancestors and a complacent contemplation of hoary ages past.

Chinese graduates of American and European universities have imbibed with the various features of their scholastic curriculum a spirit of independence, and hence the new nationalism in China which has succeded in breaking the bonds of ancient tradition and humiliating servitude.

The startling sucessive incidents which focussed the eye of the world on central China were not the result of any local anti-foreign prejudice but the culmination of a carefully prepared plan which occupied the earnest and serious thought of the Young China party for a number of years.

A movement of such stupendous proportions demanded leaders of exceptional ability, and that these were found and proved their fitness has been demonstrated to the world by their deliberate thoroughly organized methods, and their avowed determination to not permit their zeal or success to betray them into any act which might be offensive to any foreign power.

Pre-eminent among the leaders of the revolutionary party, or the "Constitutional party," as they prefer to be termed, is Dr. Sun Yat Sen, whose whole life has practically been devoted to the task of bringing about the present crisis. His career has been both thrilling and picturesque.

The lot of the reformer in China is not a happy one, and the persistent agitation of Dr. Sen soon evoked the wrath of the authorities with the result that it was officially decided that his head would be worth fifty thousand dollars. The fearless young reformer, however, believed it was worth a good deal more to him and so for its preservation he became an exile from his native land.

The organization which he and his colleagues succeeded in creating waxed mighty in numbers and influence in constant and close touch with developments in China and the progress of the reform party he was able to direct at long distance its various movements until the psychological moment arrived when confident of their strength, they were able to strike their first effective blow.

The introduction of foreign educational methods, the sweeping abolition of their ancient and useless "halls of learning," the establishment of foreign schools, modern factories and the construction of extensive railroads have all combined to awaken the younger generation of Chinese to the fact that they were not as they supposed, the superior of all other races, but a century behind the least progressive nation.

And, that there might be no doubt about it, Japan administered an effective lesson, and with eyes wide open, the supercilious Celestial realized that his national existence was in peril. Aroused from his long lethargy the ponderous Chinese giant turned about and clamored for the education of the west, and no scholar on earth is more keen and intellectually alert to learn and acquire than the yellow man of the Orient.

To the western world this revelation of the spirit of revolt and change in China seems very sudden. Most of us believed that the empire, with world-old superstitions, was still refusing to admit the blessings of modern progress. We believed that it was untouched by the revolutionary fire which in twenty-five years has changed the Japanese nation, miraculously, so that it has shuffled off its old faith, and its old moralities, adopted the shoddy clothes of Europe, darkened its cities by the black smoke of busy factories, made slums of its flower-gardens, established a great army and a great navy to fight a war which has brought it to the verge of bankruptcy, adopted the philosophy of greed and grab, and generally learnt the beauties and joys of western civilization. China still seemed to be sleeping in the sun, or dreaming away its life in the old faith of smiling contempt for the rush and roar of western progress.

All travelers from China bear witness to the temperate, contented, cheerful, laughing character of the Chinese peasant, and to the intelligence, the courtesy, the equanimity, the kindliness, the calm philosophy of the Chinese gentleman. When England was a tangled forest inhabited by naked savages, China was the home of literature and the arts. For two thousand years it has had its poets and its great teachers and its men of science. Many of our modern inventions were discovered by Chinese sages a thousand years ago, and abandoned as foolish or dangerous toys which would not add to the happiness of the human race. When their passions are aroused the Chinese people have certainly revealed a savage cruelty equal, but not surpassing, perhaps, the cruelty of the western world in the middle ages. But if all things are measured up it seems that they have much to lose, as well as much to gain, in virtue and in happiness, if they adopt the standards of European civilization. For, after all, our western system of society has not, in spite of all our "progress," given a great measure of happiness or material comfort to the average laborer.

Life in Plunkville

"Abner, how about this Salome dance you've booked for the opery house? Some of our best citizens are a little worried about it."

"Oh, I've cut out all the objectionable features, you know."

"That's ... it. We ... you would."

MARVEL OF SUCCESS

Christian Endeavor Society Girdles the World.

Greatest Religious Organization in History, With Over 3,500,000 Members—Rev. Francis E. Clark Its Founder.

Portland, Me.—Founded in 1881, by Rev. Francis Edward Clark in Willston Congregational church, Portland, the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor has increased from one society to over 72,000 societies that thrive in every corner of the earth. Its roll of membership has grown from a list of 57 to an enrollment of over 3,500,000. Twenty-nine years ago it was known as an innovation in a parish of Portland.

Mr. Clark for years had faced the demand of the age for religious youth. He had studied the problem from every side and had sought information from all known sources concerning the various plans that had matured from time to time in Christian history for developing the religious life and activity of young people. He grew despondent of ever producing anything new and effective; but yet in all humble simplicity he made an attempt and it proved to be the most successful in the history of Christendom. Its success is due to the sincerity and ableness of its founder, and the definiteness of its purpose. Mr. Clark, although unconscious of it at the time, is a man chosen by Providence for a life career, an apostle in a movement which is essentially progressive and destined to pass on through history an active and far reaching force in the affairs of the Christian world.

In Dr. Clark we are brought face to face with a man who is a revelation as far as executive ability and versatility are concerned. He has been many things to many men. He has been a pastor and leader, an organizer and a diplomat, an advocate and defender of young people, a gentleman and a Christian. His gentleness has made him great and his humility has saved him from the dangers to which pride and honor are ever exposed. As an editor and author he has been voluminous and he has made copy not only for his own official paper and publishers, but for numerous editors and magazines. He has written for his readers wherever he has traveled in this and other lands. In his connection with Christian Endeavor he believes that Providence has opened a way before him and hidden him to walk in divinely-chosen paths. This has given him courage and zeal.

Rev. Francis Clark.

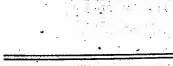
Remarkable as has been his success, twice so has been his spirit of generosity and self-sacrifice. Quitting a Portland pastorate, he has never received compensation in any form from the United Society which he founded and of which he is head and to which he has given more than a quarter century of service. He has supported himself by his literary work and even when traveling over the world, which he has done as have few other men, he has paid his own expenses by writing for the magazines and other similar work.

Largely because of Dr. Clark's personal efforts, made during tours in the various parts of the world, the Christian Endeavor movement has become world wide. Dr. Clark is a quiet, self-contained man. He is not a great speaker, and his leadership of young people depends upon personality rather than upon voice and manner. He has administrative ability to a marked degree, and has been able because of it to surround himself in his work with other men who became prime favorites with the young people, although Dr. Clark has always been their ideal. Dr. Clark is a native of Aylmer, Quebec, is 59 years old and has traveled around the world four times in the interest of the Christian Endeavor movement.

The society has taken its place among the permanent organizations and institutions of religion. It has taken hold of the problem of training the youth as no society in the history of Christendom has ever done before. It has toiled through a few years and now has reached a stage in its history where it has nothing to do but grow and expand unhindered and free. Dr. Clark is still at its head and the great work which he is accomplishing is remarkable.



THE SUNBEAM.

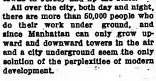
VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA FRIDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1911. NO. 38.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

New Yorkers Burrow Down Like Moles

NEW YORK.—A city beneath a city is the only term which can fitly describe underground New York. This buried city has its stores, restaurants, art galleries and other places of business the same as the city of the open air and the time skies; and many thousands of people work in it daily, heedless of the tide of busy commerce passing far above their heads.



No sooner was the subway opened than stores along its route began building show windows facing on its stations and entrances. The great stores of Brooklyn have made seven more of this opportunity than Manhattan. Long and dazzlingly lighted windows flank the stations there. Cafes followed the stores in hustling to cut entrances from the subway, realising that no space need be wasted in this town of precious inches simply because it was underneath the sidewalk. From Ann street down practically every foot of Broadway pavement is laid over hollowed space that is utilized for something. Vaults, restaurants, saloons, wine cellars, bakeries, pressrooms and acres of machinery all are packed beneath the feet of trumping thousands.

Statistics as to the men and women who work below the level of the city's streets would doubtless make interesting and surprising reading. How many thousands of them there are who practically never see the light of day from the time they enter their places of employment early in the morning until they leave at night cannot be known accurately. But certain it is that this mole-like burrowing for more room to work in is increasing with every big building that is raised.

In underground Manhattan there are souls enough to populate whole towns in Jersey and up the state.

All over the city, both day and night, there are more than 50,000 people who do their work under ground, and since Manhattan can only grow upward and downward towers in the air and a city underground seem the only solution of the perplexities of modern development.

Turk and Potato Bug Cause Wedding

BREWSTER, Wash.—A charming romance has ended here in the marriage of Phillip Strange and Miss Helen McGraw, the wedding being locally styled a "union of the Washington State Potato King and the Turkey Queen of the Northwest."

Miss McGraw for years had taught country schools in the vicinity of this town, but two years ago she began to raise turkeys for the market. The land she selected for her turkey ranch adjoined the potato farm of Strange.

During last summer a scourge of bugs raided the potato fields, and Strange foresaw that unless he fought the bugs his crop would be lost. About this time a drought spoiled the feeding grounds of Miss McGraw's turkey farm. The grass and alfalfa fields dried up, and the insects accustomed to lurk therein vanished.

Usebila to find food at home, the hords of several thousand half-grown and half-feathered turkeys invaded the potato field of the northwest potato king. The potato bugs decreased in number every day as the voracious turkeys advanced through the long straight rows. At night the poultry rested beneath the vines and at daybreak again continued the onslaught against the enemy of both. When August came, and with it nice warm rains, the potato fields freshened up, and the biggest crop of tubers ever harvested matured.

The turkeys were loath to leave the potato fields, and Miss McGraw and Strange held several councils to plan methods to get the turkeys back to their home land. At last they decided to let turkeys and potatoes remain on the same farm and the result was the wedding.

Indian Girl Has $600 a Week Income

LAWRENCE, Kan.—An income of $600 a week should be enough for almost any schoolgirl of fourteen, but it is about $599.76 more than the only Lawrence schoolgirl of that age who draws it ever expends.

A nickel's worth of gum drops, a dime for a pencil or two and 10 cents more for general expenditures usually represent the extravagance of this lass, although she might buy almost anything else she pleased. The young lady of the large income and of the small outgo is Miss Ellen Ellen, an Indian student at Haskell Institute.

At Haskell, the second largest Indian school in the world, there are many girls, perhaps more girls than boys. The parents of many of these children are rich, enormously so, but their riches are not used to buy the things that delight the soul of the palefaces.

Of all these Indians, the Chickasahs of Oklahoma are the richest, and Ellen Ellen is a Chickasha. She holds the distinction of being the wealthiest girl in college, or, for that matter, in Kansas at present. Ellen Ellen is a fat contradiction to the stories that are written of the Indians. She is not a beautiful Laughing Water, for her facial characteristics are those of the real Indian.

Every Saturday the Haskell students are permitted to come to Lawrence to enjoy what pleasures they may find. The girls are brought in a big carryall, with a teacher to chaperon them. Ellen Ellen is an exception to her sister students. She spends 15 cents a week in town, so her money is simply resting until the time when she will spend it all.

Babies Play While the Mothers Pray

COLUMBIA, Mo.—That age-worn problem, "What to do with baby while mamma goes to church," is in process of solution by the women of the Methodist Episcopal church in this city. Under the leadership of Mrs. C. M. Aker, the pastor's wife, the women of the congregation are making enthusiastic progress in the establishment of what might be called the "most unique" of all day nurseries, if that expression were grammatical.

The idea is a Sunday nursery in the church edifice, and the pastor's study has been chosen for this novel institution. During the Sunday school and preaching services those mothers who heretofore have had to explain to Pastor Aker why they attended church so seldom now sit with their classes and in their pews, happy in the consciousness that the youngsters of the household are in good hands, while still present in the room, seeing, hearing to the sermon, fulfill one of their dangerling their precious little lives. Miss Loretta Ferguson has been chosen as head nurse, with several other young women as assistants. Upon arrival at the church mamma places her baby or small child in the care of these young women, who take the tot into the study where Pastor Aker prepares his sermon.

During the services the children must be amused, lest perchance one of them set up a howl calculated to disconcert Rev. Mr. Aker in the midst of his effort. Rowing, passage and the distress the particular mamma and baby identify the infants being cared for, and the proper mothers are notified.

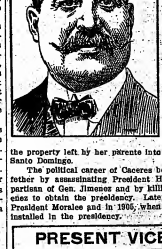
IN THE LIMELIGHT

ARREST OF GENERAL REYES

The arrest by United States Federal authorities of Gen. Bernardo Reyes, former member of the Diaz regime in Mexico, on the charge of violating the neutrality laws of the United States has brought prominently before the public the efforts which are being made by Mexican refugees in this country to precipitate civil war across the border. Ever since Gen. and President Madero succeeded in ridding Mexico of Diaz and ending the close corporation which stood around him and which had been exploiting the country for its own interests there has been a conspiracy on foot to oust Madero and restore the old Diaz regime to power.

The center of this conspiracy apparently has been in El Paso, Tex., within another junta was established in San Antonio, where Gen. Reyes had taken up his quarters and where he was placed under arrest. Soldiers of fortune gathered in these places, dynamite in large quantities was purchased and stores of arms and ammunition accumulated. It has been a well-known fact that a plot against Madero has been brewing and that an attack upon Juarez was contemplated.

MOVER IN A NEW SHIP LINE



As a result of H. G. Haugan's trip to Norway last summer, from which he returned to Chicago recently, the first steamship company to run a line of ships between Norway and the United States was organized. At a banquet of ship owners in Christiania some time ago Mr. Haugan showed so plainly the profits that could be made by such a steamship line as the Norwegian-American Steamship company, with a capital of $1,700,000, was organized.

Mr. Haugan's family always has been active in Norwegian affairs. His brother, H. A. Haughan, former president of the State Bank of Chicago, was made a knight of the Order of St. Olaf, the highest order of Knighthood in Norway, shortly before his death in 1909.

The formation of a shipping company to take care of the trade between the Scandinavian countries and the United States without the vexatious transshipping at an English or German port had been under consideration for a long time. It needed only the indorsement of Mr. Haugan, whose experience as a railroad official gave his opinion weight, to make the company a fact.

LATE DOMINICAN PRESIDENT

The assassination of President Ramon Caceres of the Dominican Republic by political malcontents in San Domingo city as he was leaving the house of a friend where he had made a call, is the climax to a series of political tragedies with which the last had been intimately connected. The first of these occurred in 1884, when Caceres' father was put to death by the order of President Heureaux because of his supposed sympathy with political dissenters.

Caceres, then a boy of ten, vowed vengeance. His father left a large estate and, with unlimited means at his disposal, young Caceres came to the United States, where he attended and graduated from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, at Troy, N. Y. Here he met and married Lillian, the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hakes, of that city. Upon the death of Mr. and Mrs. Hakes, a few years later, Mrs. Caceres converted the property left by her parents into cash and accompanied her husband to Santo Domingo.

The political career of Caceres began when he avenged the death of his father by assassinating President Heureaux on July 26, 1899. He was a partisan of Gen. Jimenez and by killing Heureaux made it possible for Jimenez to obtain the presidency. Later Caceres became vice-president under President Morales and in 1905, when Morales fled his country, Caceres was installed in the presidency.

PRESENT VICEROY OF INDIA

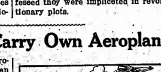
Lord Hardinge, the present viceroy of India, being the direct representative of the crown in the eastern empire, with his young and charming wife, took rank next to their majesties in the splendid ceremonies and festivities which graced the coronation celebration of the Delhi Durbar.

The wedde of the active career has been spent in the diplomatic service. He was born in 1859, became a foreign office clerk in 1880, and three years afterward was appointed third secretary at Madrid. He served five years at St. Petersburg, to which court he was appointed in 1886. After two years at Constantinople, he went for a long charge, d'affaires at Teheran, the seat of the Persian court. He was further secretary at Paris and Pasadan and Washington, at Vienna from 1900 to 1904, and from Teheran he went to Madrid and from there was appointed ambassador to Russia in 1906.

He was born with a silver spoon in his mouth, being the nephew of the fourth Earl of Cranbrook, and succeeded to the title in 1896. He is a great traveler, and has visited nearly every country of the world, including Tibet, which few Europeans have ever seen. He is a great sportsman, and has killed many kinds of big game in various parts of the world. He is a member of the Marlborough club, the Travelers' club and the Turf club, London.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Your Uncle Sam Is Watching Mexico



WASHINGTON.—So menacing have conditions on the Texas border become that a patrol of United States troops has been established on the Rio Grande to co-operate with the civil authorities in the enforcement of the neutrality laws. Secretary of War Stimson has authorized General Duncan, commanding the department of Texas, to enforce the laws with vigor and to move the troops under his command within divisional limits without waiting orders from the department. The United States has 5,000 troops on the border and it is not probable more will be sent south. Orders to mobilize 25,000 men in the zone paralleling the northern boundary of Mexico have been issued by the war department of Mexico to capture any bands of revolutionists who may be successful in crossing the border from Texas and to suppress any trouble that may arise.

The arrest of Gen. Bernardo Reyes at San Antonio, Tex., on charge of violating our neutrality laws, and other steps taken by the United States, indicate a fe pressed the organization of another revolution on American soil, indicate the attitude of Washington. The steps were dictated as much by domestic economic considerations as by regard for the stability of the Madero regime in Mexico.

The United States does not want another war in Mexico. The last revolution, which lasted about nine months, cost the United States about $30,000,000, not including the damage done to American property in Mexico. American capitalists who have invested in the neighboring republic do not want to see another series of disorders.

Federal authorities have seized great quantities of arms and ammunition at Laredo, Tex., and other points along the border. The officers were led to the cache by Juan Meriga, shortly after his arrest on the same indictment as that found against Gen. Reyes. He confessed the arms were collected in Texas and were to have been used in a revolt against Madero. He stated the revolution was to be in behalf of General Reyes and that the general was the leader of the plot. Three other alleged Royists were arrested at Laredo and all confessed they were implicated in revolutionary plots.

Each Ship May Carry Own Aeroplane

ANOTHER year will see the hydroaeroplane developed to such an extent that each battleship of the American navy will have its own flying machine, in the opinion of Capt. Washington I. Chambers, who has charge of the aeronautical work of the navy department.

Captain Chambers believes that as soon as a solution is found for the motor problem, on which practically all aviation experts now are working, the installation of hydro-aeroplanes as a part of the equipment of battleships will be begun.

It is not considered probable that the navy aeronauts will follow the plans of the army and move their equipment south for practice during the winter. When the weather at Annapolis, where the navy hydro-aeroplane experiments are carried on, becomes too disagreeable for flying purposes, the aeronauts will give attention exclusively to motor problems. They believe that by the time the flying season opens again in the spring they will have perfected a motor peculiarly adapted to their purposes.

Free entry into this country for experimental purposes is being sought by the navy department for an instrument designed to indicate the direction from which wireless telegraph messages are coming. Although the navy would be willing to pay for a set of these instruments, it has balked at the heavy duty and is looking to the treasury department for relief.

Nation's Great Annual Loss by Fire

PRESENT indications are that the fire losses in the United States and Canada for 1911 will exceed $250,000,000. The figures for the first seven months of the year show a total of $154,892,000, as compared with $126,067,800 during the same period last year. The losses for 1910 were $234,406,650, and if the present ratio of increase continues throughout the year they will reach the enormous sum of $300,000,000. This will exceed any year in the history of the country except those of the San Francisco and Baltimore conflagrations.

Government officials, underwriters and firemen agree that the majority of these fires are due to carelessness and are easily preventable. All of the recent fires, which have attracted public attention because of the heavy loss of life with which they were accompanied, were due to the carelessness and indifference of the owners, occupents, or municipal authorities.

New York has been spending $10,000,000 a year for fire extinguishment and only $10,000 for fire prevention. The recent shirt waist factory fire aroused the public and the authorities, and fire prevention is to be made much more prominent hereafter.

The most important consideration is the development of a sense of personal responsibility on the part of property owners for the excessive fire waste, which is draining the resources of the country and weakening its insurance capital.

Army's Many Useless Hitching Posts

IN the United States proper, we have approximately 32,000 usable troops, half of whom have been in the army long enough to have become trained soldiers. Unfortunately the system under which the government manages the army permits of no such efficiency. The system of keeping the army at a number, of minute parts and imposes on each part enough non-military duty to prevent the military training which alone can make an army efficient. This disastrous accomplished by putting small detachments, "companies" or posts, which are scattered throughout the length and breadth of the land, chiefly on the frontier, and thus removing from the presence of a military force existing in the form of a regiment or brigade. These posts were created to meet military exigencies incident to the wars of the revolution; some were established during temporary enlistments for troops during the war of 1812, some are relics of the Mexican war, and others were established for the purpose of protecting the settlers against Indian depredations. The military necessity for these posts (irreverently called "Hitching Posts" by the army) has long since expired, but few have been abandoned. Around these garrisons, during the long years of their existence, settlements and towns have grown up which are principally dependent upon the pay of the soldiers.

Every effort by the army to have these useless and expensive establishments abandoned have been bitterly contested, and in most instances sufficient pressure has been brought to bear by the civilians to prevent any effort to withdraw the troops.

THE SUNBEAM.
W. G. HUNT, Publisher.
SUNBEAM, MINN.

PUCKERLESS PERSIMMONS.

Apparently the scientists cannot be prevented from robbing us of all our cherished traditions and privileges. After having upset about everything else in the world they have now discovered a way of taking the pucker out of the persimmon, although why they should have thought this necessary no one seems to know. The scientists clearly are interfering with a law of nature and also robbing life of one of its sources of joy. There are few more mirth-provoking things in the world than watching the uninitiated attempting to eat a green persimmon. The pucker of the persimmon comes from tannic acid and we fail to see what the scientists are going to accomplish by removing tannin from the persimmon. One might as well eat a cucumber and be done with it. The danger in the discovery is the harm it may do to the persimmon in the later stage of its development. How do the scientists know that nature did not put the tannic acid into the persimmon as one of the elements that when the fruit comes, conspires to make the once puckery and inedible persimmons a richer, riper, sweeter morsel than science ever smacked its lips over?

In favoring a liberal appropriation by the state to pay the tuition of boys and girls at colleges already established, rather than to found a new state university, Governor Foss advocates a very sensible policy, says the Boston Globe. If the state is to aid deserving young men and young women in their efforts to obtain a college education, it would certainly seem wiser, for economical reasons, if for no other reason, to take advantage of the many excellent institutions of the higher learning already existing in Massachusetts. The problem of selecting the right boys and girls upon whom to bestow free scholarships ought not to be difficult to solve, for that might be left to the judgment and fairness of high school teachers and boards of education in every community, who certainly would have means of knowing whether the scholarships were well bestowed. Neither political "pull" nor other improper influences need enter into the decision.

From the effete east comes word of the intuitive kiss. The intuitive kiss is one which you are sure you are about to get, but you never get it. You feel intuitively that you are to become a kissee. But you don't, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The fact that the kiss is never delivered is what makes the girls so angry.

There is a man in Texas who prefers solid home comfort to pedigree and prestige. He is looking for a mule to marry, whose first husband was hanged, so he may be secure from having his predecessor held up to him as model. For genuine, long-seeing philosophy, Texas challenges the wisdom of Solomon.

Another pretty American heiress is to marry a foreign nobleman. This shows our young American men are too busy making money to think of other things—that the real prizes, both in beauty and millions, are being carried off by the leisure class so despised here.

That German doctor who predicts that American women will have fewer toes a thousand years hence seems bound to save his life out of us some way. He now tells us that riding up and down in skyscraper elevators is shortening life. Well, life would have to be considerably prolonged to enable us to make many round trips by stairway.

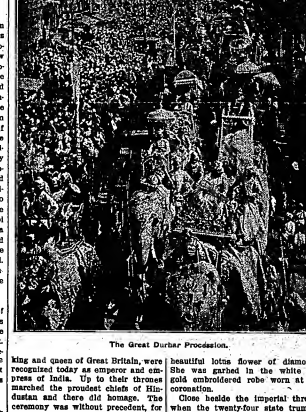
New York aldermen are trying to pass a resolution to prohibit women from smoking in public places as injurious to public morals. The practical aimed at is neither pretty nor elevating, but as picked out for the subject of special legislation in defense of public morals, the proposed ordinance is distinctly, though unconsciously, humorous.

Indianapolis ministers denounce motor racing as being as vicious as bullfighting. Indianapolis has had more than its share of the tragedies of the game.

A Massachusetts preacher who is under indictment charged with having murdered a young woman has quit his pulpit. It seems a natural thing to do, considering the circumstances.

A California poet allowed his wife one coat a day, thus setting a bad example for poets.

Edison says that he likes America better than Europe. We knew he would.



DURBAR AT DELHI MOST GORGEOUS

Splendor of Ceremony Never Before Equalled in India.

GREAT DISPLAY OF JEWELS

George and Mary, Seated on Imperial Thrones of Hindustan, Witness a Wonderful Pageant.

Delhi, India, Dec. 12.—Amid scenes of splendor never before equalled even in India, the country of marvelous pageants, nor in any other land in modern times, George and Mary, king and queen of Great Britain, were recognized today as emperor and empress of India. Up to their thrones marched the proudest chiefs of Hindustan and there did homage. The ceremony was without precedent, for never before has a British emperor of India come to Delhi, the ancient seat of the kings of India, to assume his title. The Durbar, for which elaborate preparations had been under way for months, took place in a great camp to the north of the city, some five miles square. The temporary population of this camp is about a quarter of a million, and it is furnished with all the conveniences of modern life, including 31 post offices, two telegraph offices and even electric light, railways, motor cars and taxi-cabs. There the people gathered from the farthest corners of India to see a display of precious stones such as few would seem to modern times. The rajahs, princes and chiefs, in their castes, grouped themselves about the throne, where also stood the governors of the Asiatic colonies of the crown, other distinguished government officials and invited guests.

The Great Durbar Procession.

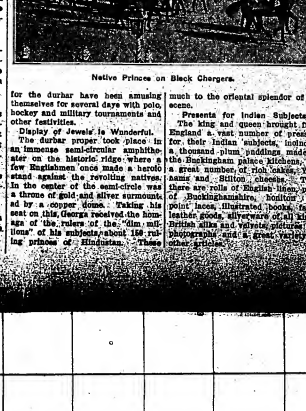
Queen Wears the Koh-i-noor.

The king was crowned king-emperor at Westminster, so he took his throne already wearing a crown that had been made especially for this occasion, garbed in the royal robes of state, wearing the state jewels and carrying the scepter. By the side sat Queen Mary, on her brow the crown that was made for her coronation and in the front of which blazed the great Koh-i-noor, the Indian diamond supposed to bring good fortune to wear by a woman. Her jewels were even more magnificent than those she wore at the coronation at Westminster, among her new ornaments being a beautiful lotus flower of diamonds. She was garbed in the white and gold embroidered robe worn at the coronation.



Close beside the imperial thrones, when the twenty-four state trumpeters with their silver trumpets heralded the durbar were, of course Lord Hardinge, viceroy of India, and Lady Hardinge.

Most spectacular was the grand review of troops, about 50,000 in number. Most of these were native troops, and they were garbed in the most gorgeous uniforms in the world.

The rajahs and other native princes present brought their own elephants, the size of the animal depending on the rank of its owner, and the huge brutes with their magnificent howdahs and other trappings added much to the official splendor of the scene.

Presents for Indian Subjects.

The king and queen brought from England a vast number of presents for their Indian subjects, including a thousand plum puddings made in the Buckingham palace kitchens, and a great number of rich cakes. Yards and Stilton cheeses. Then there are rolls of English linen, pillows of Buckinghamshire, bonitos and point lace, illustrated books, fancy leather goods, silverware of all kinds, British silks and velvets, pictures and photographs, and a great variety of other articles.

Native Princes on Black Chargers.

EMPEROR AT DELHI

GEORGE AND MARY GREETED BY HIGH OFFICIALS AND 150 INDIAN CHIEFS.

MAJESTIES IN TENT HOUSES

Magnificent Spectacle to Be Presented When Royal Couple Make Their State Entry Into City in Presence of 250,000 People.

Delhi.—More than 250,000 people witnessed the most magnificent spectacle ever beheld in the history of India when George V., king of England and emperor of India, and Mary, his queen-empress, made their state entry into the city of Delhi.

The king and queen arrived from Bombay and were greeted with a salute of 101 guns. The route to the Durbar camp had been a scene of great activity long before dawn, and when the time came for the procession to start the roadway was lined with either side with bejeweled Indian princes, military officers, administrative officers, foreign tourists and large numbers of natives.

Stationed closest to the roadway, and extending over the entire route, were regiments of British and Indian troops, forming the official guard. Packed behind these picturesque streaks of humanity were hundreds of bullock carts, the smartest modern carriages, powerful motor cars and richly caparisoned elephants and hooded horses.

Their majesties first proceeded to a pavilion within the fort, where they received 150 ruling Indian chiefs. Then began the great procession. The princes and heads of tribes, and behind them rode General Peyton, the herald, in silk and gold tabard and 16 British and native trumpeters, all mounted on black chargers. Next followed the native escort of the viceroy in native costume. Then came the imperial cadet corps, composed entirely of princes and their sons.

The emperor and empress arrive a magnificent charger, followed immediately by the empress in a state carriage drawn by six horses. As their majesties approached the cattle lined of troops presented arms, the natives bowed to the ground and the Europeans doffed their hats. Following their majesties, and outshining all in point of splendor, rode 150 imperial horse, sawahs and other chieftains. The column was closed by a band of savage Afghans and Pathan chiefs, mounted on wild ponies.

The emperor and empress entered the city through the king's gate, which had not been opened since 1857, when the king of Delhi went to public worship. They at once repaired to their camp in the center of the vast tented city.

Their majesties later received great dignitaries in the emperor's palatial tent.

PRINCE CHUN FORCED OUT

Chinese Regent, Who Has Been Regarded as Stumbling Block to Good Government, Resigns.

Peking.—Prince Chun, the regent, has abdicated, and the reformed revolutionary leaders declare the chief stumbling clock in the road to have a constitutional government of China.

In Chun's place two guardians have been appointed to assist the emperor, Pu Yi. They are Han Shih Chang, a Chinese diplomat, and Shih Hsi, a Manchu and close associate of the emperor. Both were formerly grand councilors.

Yuan Shi Kai, the premier, is believed to have forced the regent to step down as a result of one of the repeated demands of the revolutionists, who have always regarded Chun as a traitor.

CASH REGISTER IS ACCUSED

Government Starts Suit in Ohio Charging Concern With Conspiracy and Restraint of Trade.

Cincinnati.—United States District Attorney Sherman T. McPherson and O. R. Harrison of the department of justice filed trust proceedings alleging conspiracy in restraint of trade against the National Cash Register company of Dayton, O., its officers and managers.

The government's complaints that the corporation has resorted to illegal acts to eliminate, stifle and suppress other manufacturers and dealers throughout the United States, engaged in the business of making, selling and shipping in interstate commerce cash registers and other registering devices.

Overdue Ships Reach Port.

Hancock, Mich.—The steamer Berlin and its consort Aurora from Cleveland reached port a week overdue.

Plunged to Death.

New York.—Hundreds of persons in New York were horrified and mystified today by the sight of a man, dressed in a derby hat, overcoat and business suit, plunge from the dome of the World building, a height of more than 300 feet and plunge with terrific force on the hood of an automobile. The man was instantly killed.

Gas Explosion Fatal.

St. Petersburg.—Two employes were killed and 40 injured by an explosion of gas in the gold-plating department of a commercial mint. The entire plant was destroyed.

SHUSTER TODEFY CZAR

STATE DEPARTMENT TELLS HIM TO STAND ON RIGHTS.

Russian Force Marches on Teheran to Eject American Financial Agent of Persian Government.

Washington.—With 2,000 Russian Cossacks advancing to occupy Teheran, proclaim martial law and eject him at the point of the bayonet, W. Morgan Shuster, financial agent of the Persian government, is advised by the American state department to stand upon his constitutional rights and defy the czar.

The startling move by Russia was officially reported by Charles W. Russell, United States minister at Teheran. Following this intelligence a cable was sent Minister Russell instructing him to advise Shuster to stand his ground.

Should Russia eject oil Persian officials as anticipated, Shuster, following his instructions, will appeal to Minister Russell and lodge protest with the Russian diplomatic agent at Teheran.

The situation will then become one of international import between the Russian and American governments, already ruffled by the czar's refusal to honor passports held by American citizens of Jewish birth.

"OIL KING" QUITS AS HEAD

J. D. Archbold to Succeed Rockefeller as President of Standard.

New York.—John D Rockefeller has resigned as president and director of the Standard Oil company and is succeeded by John D. Archbold as chief of that corporation.

A majority of the officers and directors who for years have been associated with Mr. Rockefeller in the control of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey also handed in their resignations. These included: William Rockefeller, vice-president and director; C. M. Pratt, vice-president; William G. Rockefeller, assistant treasurer; H. C. Folger, Jr., secretary and assistant treasurer; Directors H. M. Flagler, L. J. Drake and E. T. Bedford.

Two new vice-presidents were elected. They are A. C. Bedford and W. C. Teagle. The other vice-president, J. A. Moffett, remains in office.

Mr. Rockefeller and his associates at the head of the Standard Oil Company of New York also resigned. H. C. Folger, Jr., was elected president of this company.

All the officers and directors of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey as previously organized resigned from the boards of the various subsidiary companies on which they had been serving. Their successors will be elected at the next meetings of these companies.

PACKERS ARE REFUSED STAY

Supreme Tribunal Fails to Grant Chicago Beef Men Delay.

Washington.—The United States Supreme court refused to grant a stay of proceedings to the packers under indictment in Chicago on charges of violating the criminal sections of the Sherman anti-trust act. This means that the ten packers must go to trial.

The court's decision was the final step in the long legal contest to avoid trial at this time. Shortly before they were first called for trial on November 20 nine of the indicted packers sought to have the United States circuit court at Chicago release them from custody on the ground that the Sherman anti-trust law, under which they were indicted, was unconstitutional as a criminal measure, particularly in view of the recent interpretation of the law in the Standard Oil decision.

Chief Justice White announced the decision of the court. No opinion was handed down, the chief justice contenting himself with the mere statement that the packers' motion was refused.

SOCIALISTS LOSE AT POLLS

Women in Los Angeles Vote for First Time and Help Re-Elect Mayor Alexander.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Socialism as nominated by Job Harriman and Alexander Irvine went down to defeat in Los Angeles by an overwhelming majority. Mayor George Alexander, leading the "good government" forces, was re-elected by a majority that will reach 40,000 over Harriman.

"It was the vote of the women that returned Alexander to office and snowed under the Socialists," said Field Captain Jeannette Converse of the Women's Progressive League. Out of a registration of approximately 70,000 women, 65 per cent voted and of those 75 per cent voted for Alexander.

SOCIALISTS LOSE AT POLLS

Women in Los Angeles Vote for First Time and Help Re-Elect Mayor Alexander.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Socialism as nominated by Job Harriman and Alexander Irvine went down to defeat in Los Angeles by an overwhelming majority. Mayor George Alexander, leading the "good government" forces, was re-elected by a majority that will reach 40,000 over Harriman.

"It was the vote of the women that returned Alexander to office and snowed under the Socialists," said Field Captain Jeannette Converse of the Women's Progressive League. Out of a registration of approximately 70,000 women, 65 per cent voted and of those 75 per cent voted for Alexander.

Buys Land at $870 Square Foot.

New York.—A new record price for New York real estate was marked by the sale of half a city lot at Broadway and Thirty-fourth street for $1,000,000. The plot contains less than 1,200 square feet, it brought nearly $870 a square foot.

Stop Cars to Save Deer.

Hartford, Conn.—Motorman must exercise the utmost care while running their cars in Connecticut to avoid killing deer, according to a bulletin from the state commissioner.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Cures all blood humors, all eruptions, clears the complexion, creates an appetite, aids digestion, relieves that tired feeling, gives vigor and vim.

Get it today in usual liquid form or chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

GOT THE LETTERS MIXED

Clergymen's Mistake Resulted in Giving Decided Surprise to Dignified Archbishop.

One of the most amusing stories which the Hon. Lionel A. Tollemache tells in "Nuts and Chestnuts," is that entitled, "The Wrong Envelope." Mr. M——, a missionary, shortly before leaving England, received two letters —one from Archbishop Tait asking him to dine, and the other from the secretary of a religious society, a very old friend, asking him to preach. He accepted the archbishop's invitation, and at the same time wrote to the secretary, but put the letters into the wrong envelopes.

After the dinner at Lambeth the archbishop said to him: "Mr. M——, do you always answer your dinner invitations in the same way?"

"I do not understand, your Grace."

The letter, which was then shown to the missionary, ran thus: "You old rascal! Why did you not ask me before? You know perfectly well that I shall be on the high seas on the date you name."—London Tit-Bits.

Wanted—A Handhold.

Meandering Mike heaved such a deep sigh that his companion was moved to ask him what the matter was.

"I was just thinkiog about bed roods and the wonders of scieoce," was the answer. "This earth is spioning round faster'n a railway train behind time."

"Well, we ain't fell off yet."

"No. But think of what a convenience it would be if we could have some place to grab on to while de territory slid under our feet until de place we wanted to go to come aloog."—Youth's Companion.

Somewhat Inconsistent.

The young woneo had spent a busy day. She had hrowbeaten fourteen sales people, bullyragged a shopwalker, argued victoriously with a milliner, led down the law to a modiste, nipped in the bud a taxi chauffeur's attempt to overcharge her, made a street car conductor stop the car in the middle of a two-story run for her, discharged her maid and engaged another, and otherwise refused to allow herself to be imposed upon. Yet she did not smile that evening when a young man began:

"Let me be your protector through life!"

Particular Woman.

"She insisted on hevlog a woman lawyer secure her divorce."

"Why was she so particular?"

"She did not want to go contrary to her notion of the horrible ceremony that reads, 'Let no man put asunder.'"—Judge.

Left Him Thinking.

"I promised my wife a half-crown to put in a home-safe every time I kissed her. Later, when she opened the safe, there were a lot of sovereigns and half-sovereigns in it. I asked her where she got them.

"'Somebody is not so stingy as you,' she replied."—London Tit-Bits.

A Born Quibbler.

"Didn't I tell you not to shoot my quail on this place?"

"Yassus," replied Uncle Rasherry. "You done tole me en' I done heerd you. Dis ain' no quail. Dis is a partridge."

THE LITTLE WIDOW

A Mighty Good Sort of Neighbor to Have.

"A little widow, a neighbor of mine, persuaded me to try Grape-Nuts when my stomach was so weak that it would not retain food of any other kind," writes a grateful woman, from San Bernardino Co., Cal.

"I had been ill and confined to my bed with fever and nervous prostration for three long months after the birth of my second boy. We were in despair until the little widow's advice brought relief.

"I liked Grape-Nuts food from the beginning, and in an incredibly short time it gave me such strength that I was able to leave my bed and enjoy my three good meals a day. In 2 months my weight increased from 95 to 113 pounds, my nerves had steadied down and I felt ready for anything. My neighbors were amazed to see me gain so rapidly, and still more so when they heard that Grape-Nuts food had brought the change.

"My 4-year-old boy had eczema very bad last spring and lost his appetite entirely, which made him cross and peevish. I put him on a diet of Grape-Nuts, which he relished at once. He improved from the beginning, the eczeme disappeared and now he is fat and rosy, with a delightfully soft, clear skin. The Grape-Nuts diet did it. I will willingly answer all inquiries. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

ARBITRATION TAKES PLACE OF CONFLICT

Powers Won Over to Ways of Peace.

TAFT SEES GREAT PROGRESS

Special Message Discusses Year's Intercourse With Other Countries.

REVIEWS MEXICAN CIVIL WAR

Mobilization of American Troops on Southern Border Explained—Foreign Trade Relations—Need For American Merchant Marine.

Washington, Dec. 7.—President Taft today sent to congress a special message on foreign relations. The message follows:

The relations of the United States with other countries have continued during the past twelve months upon a basis of the usual good will and friendly intercourse.

Arbitration.

The year just passed marks an important general movement on the part of the powers for broader arbitration. In the recognition of the manifold benefits to mankind in the extension of the policy of the settlement of international disputes by arbitration rather than by war, and in response to a widespread demand for an advance in that direction on the part of the people of the United States and of Great Britain and of France, new arbitration treaties were negotiated last spring with Great Britain and France, the terms of which were designed, as expressed in the preamble of these treaties, to extend the scope and obligations of the policy of arbitration adopted in our present treaties with those governments. To pave the way for this treaty with the United States, Great Britain negotiated an important modification in its alliance with Japan, and the French government also expedited the negotiations with signal good will. The new treaties have been submitted to the senate and are awaiting its advice and consent to their ratification. All the essentials of these important treaties have long been known, and it is my earnest hope that they will receive prompt and favorable action.

Claim of Alsop & Co. Settled.

I am glad to report that on July 5 last the American claim of Alsop & Co. against the government of Chile was finally disposed of by the decision of his Britannic majesty George V., to whom, as amiable compositeur, the matter had been referred for determination. His majesty made an award of nearly $1,000,000 to the claimants, which was promptly paid by Chile. The settlement of this controversy has happily eliminated from the relations between the republic of Chile and the United States the only question which for two decades had given the two foreign offices any serious concern and makes possible the unobstructed development of the relations of friendship which it has been the aim of this government in every possible way to further and cultivate.

Arbitrations.

In further illustration of the practical and beneficent application of the principle of arbitration and the underlying broad spirit of conciliation, I am happy to advert to the part of the United States in facilitating amicable settlement of disputes which menaced the peace between Panama and Costa Rica and between Haiti and the Dominican republic.

Since the date of their independence, Colombia and Costa Rica had been seeking a solution of a boundary dispute, which came as a heritage from Colombia to the new republic of Panama, upon its beginning life as an independent nation. Although the disputants had submitted this question for decision to the president of France under the terms of an arbitration treaty, the exact interpretation of the provisions of the award rendered had been a matter of serious disagreement between the two countries, both contending for widely different lines even under the terms of the decision. Subsequently and since 1903 this boundary question had been the subject of fruitless diplomatic negotiations between the parties. In January, 1910, at the request of both governments the agents representing them met in conference at the department of state and subsequently concluded a protocol submitting this long-pending controversy to the arbitral judgment of the chief justice of the United States, who consented to act in this capacity. A boundary commission, according to the international agreement, has now been appointed, and it is expected that the arguments will shortly proceed and that this long-standing dispute will be [illegible] that the Dominican republic and Haiti were about to enter upon hostilities because of complications growing out of an acrimonious boundary dispute which the efforts of many years had failed to solve. The government of the United States, by a friendly interposition of good offices, succeeded in prevailing upon the parties to place their reliance upon some form of pacific settlement. Accordingly, on the friendly suggestion of this government, the two governments empowered commissioners to meet at Washington in conference at the state department in order to arrange the terms of submission to arbitration of the boundary controversy.

Chamizal Arbitration Not Satisfactory.

Our arbitration of the Chamizal boundary question with Mexico was unfortunately abortive, but with the earnest efforts on the part of both governments which its importance commands, it is felt that an early practical adjustment should prove possible.

Mexico.

The recent political events in Mexico received attention from this government because of the exceedingly delicate and difficult situation created along our southern border and the necessity for taking measures properly to safeguard American interests. The government of the United States, in its desire to secure a proper observance and enforcement of the so-called neutrality statutes of the federal government, issued directions to the appropriate officers to exercise a diligent and vigilant regard for the requirements of such rules and laws. Although a condition of actual armed conflict existed, there was no official recognition of belligerency involving the technical neutrality obligations of international law.

On the 6th of March last, in the absence of the secretary of state, I had a personal interview with Mr. Wilson, the ambassador of the United States to Mexico, in which he reported to me that the conditions in Mexico were much more critical than the press dispatches disclosed; that President Diaz was on a volcano of popular uprising; that the small outbreaks which had occurred were only symptomatic of the whole condition; that a very large per cent. of the people were in sympathy with the insurrection; that a general explosion was probable at any time, in which case he feared that the 440,000 or more American residents in Mexico might be assailed, and that the very large American investments might be injured or destroyed.

After a conference with the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, I thought it wise to assemble an army division of full strength at San Antonio, Tex., a brigade of three regiments at Galveston, a brigade of infantry in the Los Angeles district of Southern California, together with a squadron of battleships and cruisers and transports at Galveston, and a small squadron of ships at San Diego. At the same time, through our representative at the City of Mexico, I expressed to President Diaz the hope that no apprehensions might result from unfounded conjectures as to these military maneuvers, and assured him that they had no significance which should cause concern to his government.

The mobilization was effected with great promptness, and on the 15th of March, through the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy, in a letter addressed to the chief of staff, I issued the following instructions:

"It seems my duty as commander in chief to place troops in sufficient number where, if Congress shall direct that they enter Mexico to save American lives and property, an effective movement may be promptly made. Meantime, the movement of the troops to Texas and elsewhere near the boundary, accompanied with sincere assurances of the utmost good will toward the present Mexican government and with larger and more frequent patrols along the border to prevent insurrectionary expeditions from American soil, will hold up the hands of the existing government and will have a healthy moral effect to prevent attacks upon Americans and their property in any subsequent general internecine strife. Again, the sudden mobilization of a division of troops has been a great test of our army and full of useful instruction, while the maneuvers that are thus made possible can occupy the troops and their officers to great advantage.

"The assumption by the press that I contemplate intervention on Mexican soil to protect American lives or property is of course gratuitous, because I seriously doubt whether I have such authority under any circumstances, and if I had I would not exercise it without express congressional approval. My determined purpose, however, is to be in a position so that when danger to American lives and property in Mexico threatens and the existing government is rendered helpless by the insurrection, I can promptly execute congressional orders to protect them, with effect.

"Meantime, I send you this letter, through the secretary, to call your attention to some things in connection with the presence of the division in the southwest which have doubtless occurred to you, but which I wish to emphasize.

"In the first place, I want to make the mobilization a first-class training for the army, and I wish you would give your time and that of the war college to advising and carrying out maneuvers of a useful character, and plan to continue to do this during the next three months. By that time we may expect that either Ambassador Wilson's fears will have been realized and chaos [illegible] justed matters as to secure tranquillity—a result devoutly to be wished. The troops can then be returned to their posts.

"Second, Texas is a state ordinarily peaceful, but you can not put 20,000 troops into it without running some risk of a collision between the people of the state, and especially the Mexicans who live in Texas near the border and who sympathize with the insurrectos, and the federal soldiers. For that reason I beg you to be as careful as you can to prevent friction of any kind.

"Third, One of the great troubles in the concentration of troops is the danger of disease, and I suppose that you have adopted the most modern methods for the preventing and, if necessary, for stamping out epidemics. That is so much a part of a campaign that it hardly seems necessary for me to call attention to it.

"Finally, I wish you to examine the question of the patrol of the border and put as many troops on that work as is practicable, and more than are now engaged in it, in order to prevent the use of our borderland for the carrying on of the insurrection. I have given assurances to the Mexican ambassador on this point.

"I sincerely hope that this experience will always be remembered by the army and navy as a useful means of education, and I should be greatly disappointed if it resulted in any injury or disaster to our forces from any cause. I have taken a good deal of responsibility in ordering this mobilization, but I am ready to answer for it if only you and those under you use the utmost care to avoid the difficulties which I have pointed out."

I am more than happy to here record the fact that all apprehensions as to the effect of the presence of so large a military force in Texas proved groundless; no disturbances occurred.

From time to time communications were received from Ambassador Wilson, who had returned to Mexico, confirming the view that the massing of American troops in the neighborhood had had good effect.

The insurrection continued and resulted in engagements between the regular Mexican troops and the insurgents, and this along the border, so that in several instances bullets from the contending forces struck American citizens engaged in their lawful occupations on American soil.

Proper protests were made against these invasions of American rights to the Mexican authorities.

The presence of a large military and naval force available for prompt action, near the Mexican border, proved to be most fortunate under the somewhat trying conditions presented by this invasion of American rights. Had no movement theretofore taken place, and because of these events it had been necessary then to bring about the mobilization, it must have had sinister significance. On the other hand, the presence of the troops before and at the time of the unfortunate killing and wounding of American citizens at Douglas, made clear that the restraint exercised by our government in regard to this occurrence was not due to a lack of force or power to deal with it promptly and aggressively, but was due to a real desire to use every means possible to avoid direct intervention in the affairs of our neighbor, whose friendship we valued and were most anxious to retain.

The policy and action of this government were based upon an earnest friendliness for the Mexican people as a whole, and it is a matter of gratification to note that this attitude of strict impartiality as to all factions in Mexico and of sincere friendship for the neighboring nation, without regard for party allegiance, has been generally recognized and has resulted in an even closer and more sympathetic understanding between the two republics and a warmer regard one for the other. Action to suppress violence and restore tranquillity throughout the Mexican republic was of peculiar interest to this government, in that it concerned the safeguarding of American life and property in that country. On May 25, 1911, President Diaz resigned, Senor de la Barra was chosen provisional president. Elections for president and vice-president were thereafter held throughout the republic, and Senor Francisco I. Madero was formally declared elected on October 15 to the chief magistracy. On November 6 President Madero entered upon the duties of his office.

Honduras and Nicaragua Treaties Proposed.

As to the situation in Central America, I have taken occasion in the past to emphasize most strongly the importance that should be attributed to the consummation of the conventions between the Republics of Nicaragua and of Honduras and this country, and I again earnestly recommend that the necessary advice and consent of the senate be accorded to these treaties, which will make it possible for these Central American republics to enter upon an era of genuine economic national development.

Our relations with the Republic of Panama, peculiarly important, due to mutual obligations and the vast interests created by the canal, have continued in the usual friendly manner, and we have been glad to make appropriate expression of our attitude of sympathetic interest in the endeavors of our neighbor in undertaking the development of the rich resources of the country.

The Chinese Loans.

The past year has been marked in our relations with China by the conclusion of two important international loans, one for the [illegible] form to which China was pledged by treaties with the United States, Great Britain, and Japan, of which mention was made in my last annual message.

Knowing the interest of the United States in the reform of Chinese currency, the Chinese government, in the autumn of 1910, sought the assistance of the American government to procure funds with which to accomplish that all-important reform. In the course of the subsequent negotiations there was combined with the proposed currency loan one for certain industrial developments in Manchuria, the two loans aggregating the sum of $50,000,000. While this was originally to be solely an American enterprise, the American government, consistently with its desire to secure a sympathetic and practical co-operation of the great powers toward maintaining the principle of equality of opportunity and the administrative integrity of China, urged the Chinese government to admit to participation in the currency loan the associates of the American group in the Hukuang loan. While of immense importance in itself, the reform contemplated in making this loan is but preliminary to other and more comprehensive fiscal reforms which will be of incalculable benefit to China and foreign interests alike, since they will strengthen the Chinese empire and promote the rapid development of international trade.

When these negotiations were begun, it was understood that a financial adviser was to be employed by China in connection with the reform, and in order that absolute equality in all respects among the lending nations might be scrupulously observed, the American government proposed the nomination of a neutral adviser, which was agreed to by China and the other governments concerned. On September 28, 1911, Doctor Vissering, president of the Dutch Java bank and a financier of wide experience in the Orient, was recommended to the Chinese government for the post of monetary adviser.

Especially important at the present, when the ancient Chinese empire is shaken by civil war incidental to its awakening to the many influences and activity of modernization, are the co-operative policy of good understanding which has been fostered by the international projects referred to above and the general sympathy of view among all the powers interested in the far east.

New Japanese Treaty.

The treaty of commerce and navigation between the United States and Japan, signed in 1894, would by a strict interpretation of its provisions have terminated on July 17, 1912. Japan's general treaties with the other powers, however, terminated in 1911, and the Japanese government expressed an earnest desire to conduct the negotiations for a new treaty with the United States simultaneously with its negotiations with the other powers. There were a number of important questions involved in the treaty, including the immigration of laborers, revision of the customs tariff and the right of Americans to hold real estate in Japan. The United States consented to waive all technicalities and to enter at once upon negotiations for a new treaty on the understanding that there should be a continuance throughout the life of the treaty of the same effective measures for the restriction of immigration of laborers to American territory which had been in operation with entire satisfaction to both governments since 1908. The Japanese government accepted this basis of negotiation, and a new treaty was quickly concluded, resulting in a highly satisfactory settlement of the other questions referred to.

A satisfactory adjustment has also been effected of the question growing out of the annexation of Korea by Japan.

Europe and the Near East.

In Europe and the near east, during the past twelve-month, there has been at times considerable political unrest. The Moroccan question, which for some months was the cause of great anxiety, happily appears to have reached a stage at which it need no longer be regarded with concern. The Ottoman empire was occupied for a period by strife in Albania and is now at war with Italy. In Greece and the Balkan countries the disquieting potentialities of this situation have been more or less felt. Persia has been the scene of a long internal struggle. These conditions have been the cause of uneasiness in European diplomacy, but thus far without direct political concern to the United States.

In the war which unhappily exists between Italy and Turkey this government has no direct political interest, and I took occasion at the suitable time to issue a proclamation of neutrality in that conflict. At the same time all necessary steps have been taken to safeguard the personal interests of American citizens and organizations in so far as affected by the war.

In spite of the attendant economic uncertainties and detriments to commerce, the United States has gained markedly in its commercial standing with certain of the nations of the near east. Turkey, especially, is beginning to come into closer relations with the United States through the new interest of American manufacturers and exporters in the possibilities of those regions, and it is hoped that foundations are being laid for a larger [illegible] commodities between the two countries [illegible]

Hague convention for the establishment of an international prize court, mentioned in my last annual message, embodying stipulations providing for an alternative procedure which would remove the constitutional objection to that part of The Hague convention which provides that there may be an appeal to the proposed court from the decisions of national courts, has received the signature of the governments parties to the original convention and has been ratified by the government of the United States, together with the prize court convention.

The deposit of the ratifications with the government of the Netherlands awaits action by the powers on the declaration, signed at London on February 26, 1909, of the rules of international law to be recognized within the meaning of article seven of The Hague convention for the establishment of an international prize court.

Fur-Seal Treaty.

The fur-seal controversy, which for nearly twenty-five years has been the source of serious friction between the United States and the powers bordering upon the north Pacific ocean, whose subjects have been permitted to engage in pelagic sealing against the fur-seal herds having their breeding grounds within the jurisdiction of the United States, has at last been satisfactorily adjusted by the conclusion of the North Pacific sealing convention entered into between the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Russia on the seventh of July last. This convention is a conservation measure of very great importance, and if it is carried out in the spirit of reciprocal concession and advantage upon which it is based, there is every reason to believe that not only will it result in preserving the fur-seal herds of the north Pacific ocean and restoring them to their former value for the purposes of commerce, but also that it will afford a permanently satisfactory settlement of a question the only other solution of which seemed to be the total destruction of the fur seals. In another aspect, also, this convention is of importance in that it furnishes an illustration of the feasibility of securing a general international game law for the protection of other mammals of the sea, the preservation of which is of importance to all the nations of the world.

The attention of congress is especially called to the necessity for legislation on the part of the United States for the purpose of fulfilling the obligations assumed under this convention, to which the senate gave its advice and consent on the twenty-fourth day of July last.

International Opium Commission.

In a special message transmitted to the congress on the seventh of January, 1911, in which I concurred in the recommendations made by the secretary of state in regard to certain needful legislation for the control of our interstate and foreign traffic in opium and other menacing drugs, I quoted from my annual message of December 7, 1909, in which I announced that the results of the International Opium commission held at Shanghai in February, 1909, at the invitation of the United States, had been laid before this government; that the report of that commission showed that China was making remarkable progress and admirable efforts toward the eradication of the opium evil; that the interested governments had not permitted their commercial interests to prevent their co-operation in this reform; and, as a result of collateral investigations of the opium question in this country, I recommended that the manufacture, sale and use of opium in the United States should be more rigorously controlled by legislation.

Prior to that time and in continuation of the policy of this government to secure the co-operation of the interested nations, the United States proposed an international opium conference with full powers for the purpose of clothing with the force of international law the resolutions adopted by the above-mentioned commission, together with their essential corollaries. The other powers concurred cordially responded to the proposal of this government, and, I am glad to be able to announce, representatives of all the powers assembled in conference at The Hague on the first of this month.

Since the passage of the opium-exclusion act, more than twenty states have been animated to modify their pharmacy laws and bring them in accord with the spirit of that act, thus stamping out, to a measure, the intrastate traffic in opium and other habit-forming drugs. But, although I have urged on the congress the passage of certain measures for federal control of the interstate and foreign traffic in these drugs, no action has yet been taken. In view of the fact that there is now sitting at The Hague so important a conference, which has under review the municipal laws of the different nations for the mitigation of their opium and other allied evils, a conference which will certainly deal with the international aspects of these evils, it seems to me most essential that the congress should take immediate action on the anti-narcotic legislation to which I have already called attention by a special message.

Foreign Trade Relations of the United States.

In my last annual message I referred to the tariff negotiations of the department of state with foreign countries in connection with the application, by a series of proclamations, of the minimum tariff of the United States to importations from the several countries, and I stated that, in its general operation, section 2 of the new tariff law had proved a guaranty of continued commercial peace, although there were, unfortunately, instances where foreign governments dealt arbitrarily with American interests within their jurisdiction in a manner injurious and inequitable. During the past year some instances of discriminatory treatment have been removed, but I regret to say that there remain a few cases of differential treatment adverse to the commerce of the United States. While none of these instances now appears to amount to undue discrimination in the sense of section 2 of the tariff law of August 5, 1909, they are all exceptions to that complete degree of equality of tariff treatment that the department of state has consistently sought to obtain for American commerce abroad.

While the double tariff feature of the tariff law of 1909 has been amply justified by the results achieved in removing former and preventing new, undue discriminations against American commerce, it is believed that the time has come for the amendment of this feature of the law in such way as to provide a graduated means of meeting varying degrees of discriminatory treatment of American commerce in foreign countries as well as to protect the financial interests abroad of American citizens against arbitrary and injurious treatment on the part of foreign governments through either legislative or administrative measures.

It would also seem desirable that the maximum tariff of the United States should embrace within its purview the free list, which is not the case at the present time, in order that it might have reasonable significance to the governments of those countries from which the importations into the United States are confined virtually to articles on the free list.

The fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, shows great progress in the development of American trade. It was noteworthy as marking the highest record of exports of American products to foreign countries, the valuation being in excess of $2,000,000,000. These exports showed a gain over the preceding year of more than $300,000,000.

There is widespread appreciation expressed by the business interests of the country as regards the practical value of the facilities now offered by the department of state and the department of commerce and labor for the furtherance of American commerce.

Crying Need for American Merchant Marine.

I need hardly reiterate the conviction that there should speedily be built up an American merchant marine. This is necessary to assure favorable transportation facilities to our great ocean-borne commerce as well as to supplement the navy with an adequate reserve of ships and men. It would have the economic advantage of keeping at home part of the vast sums now paid foreign shipping for carrying American goods. All the great commercial nations pay heavy subsidies to their merchant marine, so that it is obvious that without some wise aid from the Congress the United States must lag behind in the matter of merchant marine in its present anomalous position.

Legislation to facilitate the extension of American banks to foreign countries is another matter in which our foreign trade needs assistance.

Improvement of the Foreign Service.

The entire foreign-service organization is being improved and developed with especial regard to the requirements of the commercial interests of the country. The rapid growth of our foreign trade makes it of the utmost importance that governmental agencies through which that trade is to be aided and protected should possess a high degree of efficiency. Not only should the foreign representatives be maintained upon a generous scale in so far as salaries and establishments are concerned, but the selection and advancement of officers should be definitely and permanently regulated by law, so that the service shall not fail to attract men of high character and ability. The experience of the past few years with a partial application of civil service rules to the diplomatic and consular service leaves no doubt in my mind of the wisdom of a wider and more permanent extension of those principles to both branches of the foreign service. The men selected for appointment by means of the existing executive regulations have been of a far higher average of intelligence and ability than the men appointed before the regulations were promulgated.

I therefore again commend to the favorable action of the congress the enactment of a law applying to the diplomatic and consular service the principles embodied in section 1753 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, in the civil service act of January 16, 1883, and the executive orders of June 27, 1906, and of November 26, 1909. In its consideration of this important subject I desire to recall to the attention of the congress the very favorable report made on the Lowden bill for the improvement of the foreign service by the foreign affairs committee of the house of representatives. Available statistics show the strictness with which the merit system has been applied to the foreign service during recent years and the absolute non-partisan selection of consuls and diplomatic service secretaries who indeed far from being selected with any view to political consideration have actually been chosen to a disproportionate extent from states which would have been unrepresented in the foreign service under the system which it is to be hoped is now permanently obsolete. Some legislation for the perpetuation of the present system of examinations and promotions upon merit and efficiency would be of greatest value to our commercial and international interests.

WM. H. TAFT.

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Brotherly Love Hit.

The Thief River Falls Times heads an article, "Brotherly Love" then goes on to advise the mobing of the SUNBEAM editor. The trouble with Mussey is, that when he attempted to defend, and justify that lumber company in blocking up this river, he bit off more than he could "chaw." How's that for high flown langoage? Please copy.

But they and their, so called government engineer from St. Paul got blocked proper at every turn of the road, and exposed to the people, as ment that would publish as a snowspaper, and report as a government engineer, such ridiculas statements as that the great Red Lake was drying up, to excuse a rich corporation for running twenty five million feet of logs into that outlet and shutting off this river.

Now after they got caught red handed in their dirty work, they would resort to mud throwing at the editor of this paper, to try and detract attention from the main issue. But if it's mud throwing they want we will go down to the river bank and dig up the Loon vomit and give them a dose that will stink them out of Thief River Falls. Bad language this! Please copy, and credit, to THE SUNBEAM.

We feel justly proud that the facts have been established that the jaming of them logs into the outlet, or source of this river is what causes it to be so low, and that the jam could have been broken so as to let the water out of the lake into the river, at a very small expense when the complaint was first made, last July.

The lumber companys have only one method of doing business, and that is to cut down the labor expenses as low as possible, so as to pile up the millions of profits, which goes to a rich corporation that are not residents of this part of the country. What do they care for the idle laborers that follow lumbering for their living, that would have been glad to have got the job to unjam that log jam for the day wages they could earn? What do they care for the millions of fish that are now dieing on the muddy bottom of this river, or for the people of Crookston and all other placees that most drink the water that comes from this putrefaction next summer? What do they care for the farmers living along this river who will not have water for their stock this winter and will have their crops and meadows distroyed, when they turn Red Lake onto them next spring? It is a matter of business with them, and the less money they pay out to laboring men the more their wives can have to buy fancy collars for pet poodle dogs. And then The Times talks about "brotherly love." "Geo whize," fan us with a brick, and please copy.

There will be some hasty bustling done for higher land in a part of Crookston next spring, when the lumber company's open the outlet to Red Lake. But the company's will undoubtly have a report ready to sign by that onfit at St. Paul that the canes of the river being so high is because the Red Lake is above its normal level. Will failed is to be above its normal level will not appear in the report.

Grand Forks Wakes Up.

There are very few people that realize what the shutting up of Red Lake River means. It may mean the worst calamity of liphold favor that was ever in norther Minnesota. Grand Forks has woke up to the situation, and Mayor Murphy has taken the matter up with the North Dakota congressional delegation. Congressman Steenerson has had the the matter before the department for the past few weeks With the combined efforts of the Minnesota and the North Dakota men now in Washington there is a prospect that the war department may be moved to act.

The Fish Are Dieing.

Mr. George Lelmers who lives on the bank of Red Lake River over in Deer Park township, informs us that his horses will not drink the river water, owing to the small dead fish that comes up in the watering hole in the ice that he has cut to water stock. Rotten fish soun bad enght to be cheap in Crookston and Grand Forks next spring, and they can serve it hot or cold.

FARMERS WILL ORGANIZE.

The farmers living along the banks of Red Lake River are on the anxious seat waiting to hear what action will be taken by the river department to compel the lomber companys to open that log jam. If there is no action taken by the government soon the farmers will meet and prepare to promptly bring action in District Court for all damages that they may sustain by havioc their crops and meadow lands distroyed when the lumber companys turns Red Lake onto them to the sprieg.

Notice For Publication.

First pub in the sunbeam Nov. 10th.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 4th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that John Erbecek, of Highlanding Minn. who on March 3, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 1957, Serial No. 02411, for S. E. ¼ Section 19 Township 152 N Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before J. M. Bisbee Mcclelland Judge for the city of Thief River Falls Minn. at thief river falls Minn. on the 10th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Malvin Bozdock, of Fris Minn. Joseph Schreiber. Henry Elness, of Highlanding Minn. Charles W. Verbeheek, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Sep. 8th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 4th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Chester Elefson, of Kratka Minn. who on June 28th, 1904 made Homestead Entry No. 600, Serial No. 04140, for N.E. ¼ Section 12 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before William Mitchell, U.S.Commissioner, for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 16th day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Christoferson, Olo M. Peterson, Jacob S. Healy, Louis O. Kongelf, all of Kratka Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 22, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Harley P. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 5th, 1909 made Homestead Entry No. 04809, for N. W. ¼ Section 32 Township 152 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final commutation proof to establish claim to the land above described, before William Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 3rd, day of January 1912.

Claimant cailes as witnesses:

Peter P. Konstad, Peter H. Thoreson; Charles Palmer, George L. Palmer, all of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

A Reminder.

Dearborn—What have you got that string tied about your finger for? Wabash—Oh, I've been getting married, and my wife doesn't want me to forget it.—Boston Herald.

Is Sure.

"Did Jerry ever tell you that time when he made his opponents bottle up their oratory?"

"Yes, it's a corking story."—Baltimore American.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota County of Pennington) S. S. in District Court, 14th Judicial District.

John A. Wig, Plaintiff,

vs

Marcus Olson Sadwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andeana Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Nicholas Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Anna Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingle Olson Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Anna Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingle Olson Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Andeana Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Nicholas Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Anna Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingle Olson Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; and also all unknow heirs, devisees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS AND EACH OF THEM:

YOU AND EACH OF YOU.

Are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which complaint is filed in the office of the Clerk of District Court within and for the said County of Pennington, Minnesota, in said Judicial District, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, within twenty (20) days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in said Complaint.

Stanton & Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS.

Take notice that no personal claim is made against you or any of you in this action, and that the object thereof is to obtain judgement that the plaintiff is the owner in fee of the premises described in said complaint, and that you and each of you have no estate or interest therein or lien thereon.

Stanton and Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE OF LIS PENDENS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington) S.S. In District Court, 14th, Judicial District, John A. Wig, Plaintiff,

vs

Marcus Olson Sadwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andeana Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingle Olson Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; and also all unknow heirs, devisees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest, in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given that an action has been commenced in this Court by the above named plaintiff against the above named defendants; the object of which is to obtain judgement that the said plaintiff is the owner in fee of the East Half (E½) of Northwest Quarter (N.W.¼) and the West Half (W½) of the Northeast Quarter (N.E.¼) of Section Thirty-one (31), Township One Hundred Fifty-four (154) North of Range Forty-four (44) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota, and that the said defendants and each of them have no interest therein or lein thereon. Dated this 28th, day of November 1911.

Stanton and Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

Office of Register of Deeds,
County of Pennington, Minnesota.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 28th, day of November, A. D. 1911, at 2:30 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book 9 of Mortgages on Page 428.

[Seal] E.L. Quist Register of Deeds.
By Effie Hamry, Deputy.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 17th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ignatz Stanley, of Torgerson Minn. who on April 11th, 1910, made Homestead entry No. 1128, Serial No. 04456 for N. E. ¼ Section 22 Township 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 28th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John Markuson, Michael Kain, Eugene H. Swanson, Theodor Nilson, all of Torgerson Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Cutting the Boy.

"I have got to perform a very delicate operation this morning," remarked the ominous surgeon.

"What is that?"

"Cut my rich relative's will out. He is to take a little something of the kind."—Washington Herald.

Work Best Week.

"The week I worked hardest was the week before I got married," said Uncle Mose, "cause I have always noticed dat nothin' worries a man so much as workin'."—Washington Star.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota County of Pennington) S. S. In District Court, 14th Judicial District.

John A. Wig, Plaintiff,

vs

Marcus Olson Sadwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andeana Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingle Olson Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; and also all unknow heirs, devisees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest, in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS AND EACH OF THEM:

YOU AND EACH OF YOU.

Are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which complaint is filed in the office of the Clerk of District Court within and for the said County of Pennington, Minnesota, in said Judicial District, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, within twenty (20) days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in said Complaint.

Stanton & Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS.

Take notice that no personal claim is made against you or any of you in this action, and that the object thereof is to obtain judgement that the plaintiff is the owner in fee of the premises described in said complaint, and that you and each of you have no estate or interest therein or lien thereon.

Stanton and Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE OF LIS PENDENS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington) S.S. In District Court, 14th, Judicial District, John A. Wig, Plaintiff,

vs

Marcus Olson Sadwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andeana Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingle Olson Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; and also all unknow heirs, devisees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest, in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given that an action has been commenced in this Court by the above named plaintiff against the above named defendants; the object of which is to obtain judgement that the said plaintiff is the owner in fee of the East Half (E½) of Northwest Quarter (N.W.¼) and the West Half (W½) of the Northeast Quarter (N.E.¼) of Section Thirty-one (31), Township One Hundred Fifty-four (154) North of Range Forty-four (44) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota, and that the said defendants and each of them have no interest therein or lein thereon. Dated this 28th, day of November 1911.

Stanton and Rowberg,
Attorneys for Plaintiff,
Thief River Falls Minn.

Office of Register of Deeds,
County of Pennington, Minnesota.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 28th, day of November, A.D. 1911, at 2:30 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book 9 of Mortgages on Page 428.

[Seal] E.L. Quist Register of Deeds.
By Effie Hamry, Deputy.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 17th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ignatz Stanley, of Torgerson Minn. who on April 11th, 1910, made Homestead entry No. 1128, Serial No. 04456 for N. E. ¼ Section 22 Township 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 28th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John Markuson, Michael Kain, Eugene H. Swanson, Theodor Nilson, all of Torgerson Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Nov 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 17th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Martin Bostock, of Erie Minn. who on December 31st, 1906, made Homestead Entry No. 1018 Serial No. 04888, for N. E. ¼ Section 11 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before J. M. Bisbee Mcclelland Judge for the City of Thief River Falls Minn. at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Joseph Schleicher, Henry Elness, John Krabbel, Charles W. Verbeheek, all of Highlanding Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of eighteen and 96-100 ($18.96) dollars, which became due August 1st, 1910, and is now due and payable upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Peter H. Thoreson and Anna K. Thoreson his wife, mortgagors, to the Merchants State Bank of Red Lake Falls, mortgagee, baring date the 12th, day of July, 1909, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 28th, day of January, 1910, at 5 o'clock P.M., in book 6 of Mortgages on Page 268, and is now recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington County, Minnesota, in book 33 of Mortgages on Page 223, and Whereas, said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay his prior mortgage of twelve hundred ($1200.00) dollars upon the same land or any instalment of interest due thereon, that the mortgagee of this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same and have a lien therefore, under this mortgage, and may declare this mortgage and the whole debt thereby immediately due and payable; and default having been made in the payment of fourteen and 16-00 ($14.16) dollars, interest due August 1st, 1910, and seventy-two ($72.00) dollars interest due August 1st, 1911, upon the said prior mortgage, the same was paid by the undersigned, mortgagee; and mortgagee did at once declare the said mortgage herein first described now due and payable with the debt secured thereby, and there is now due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon said mortgage herein foreclosed, and first described, the sum of one hundred twelve and 80-100 ($112.80) dollars and the further sum of eighty-eight and 69-00 ($88.69) dollars, the interest paid upon said prior mortgage and interest on the amounts as paid from date of payment; amounting in all to the sum of two hundred one and 89-00 ($201.89) dollars, which is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to cover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW THEREFORE, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described, will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:—The Southwest quarter (S.W.¼) of section twenty-three (23), in township one hundred and forty-three (143) north of range forty (40), west in Pennington County, Minnesota, formerly being in Red Lake County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court house in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the 31st, day of January A.D., 1912, at 2 o'clock P.M., of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, of the said debt so as aforesaid due and unpaid, and twenty-five ($25.00) dollars attorney fees which amount is hereby claimed and stated to be a reasonable fee stipulated in and by said mortgage, in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale, as provided by law.

Dated December 12th, 1911.

MERCHANTS STATE BANK OF Red Lake Falls, Minn. Mortgagee.

CHAS. A. SMITH, Attorney for Mortgagee, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Santa Claus, Came,

WELL I GOT HERE AT LAST, WHAT MADE ME LATE WAS STOPING TO BUY CHRISTMAS TOYS, BUT I FOUND THE BEST AND CHEAPEST ONES, AT ELLINGSON BROS. AT HIGHLANDING. Where you will find a large stock of Xmas presents.

Hang up yourstockings Christmas,
For Old Sats Clause is coming,
with a lot of them pretty toys that you have seen at ELLINGSON BROS.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods,

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES,

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT SINGER BRO. KRATKA, MINN

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Pri[illegible]

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.-- SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. How to invent "what to invent" and why some inventors fail. Search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and so much has been changed at the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE, PATENT ATTORNEYS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

P. H. Thoreson was transacting business at Thief River Falls Wednesday.

Miss Cardo McMahn has been working for Mrs. C. L. Clark during her illness.

Some light falls of snow the past week has improved the sleighing wonderfuly.

Mr. and Mrs. Knut T. Sannes, of Malone was transacting Notary Public business here Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Leimers visited with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kretzer, at Sunbeam, on Sunday last.

Stephen Singer got orders to remove the Kratka post office to its new location Wednesday. This ends the post office fight at that place, with Singer p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McAndress drove down to Thief River Falls today, and will visit relatives at St. Hilaire before returning home.

Halvor Himedahl, of Kratka had his sleigh stolen from in front of the hotel West at Thief River Falls on Tuesday. When our informant left town he had two policemen helping him to try and locate his sleds.

There will be a basket social at the Lintvet school house, in District 53 in Deer Park township on Saturday evening December 16th. All are invited to come and spend a social evening. Good music will be in attendance.

Our first four months term of school will close on next Thursday There will be a Christmas tree intertainment at the school house on Thursday evening December 21st. All are invited to come. A good program will be given by the school scholars.

It has been decided to have only three weeks vacation of the Highlanding school, before starting the last four month term of school, in order to give the older scholars living in the district a chance to attend during the winter.

The Eleven Towns by keeping still, is accomplishing more towards relieveng the "low water situation," than a score of Sunbeams could do.—T.R.F. Times.

Yes, and if it keeps still long enough the water will be twenty foot deep in the river. It's easy to keep still if you haven't got brains enough to say anything.

We extend our thanks to the T.F. Times for correcting errors, but it's a wonder they don't find more, in view of the fact, that we neither have copy writers or a proof reader in this office, but just crawl up on the type stool, and "lace it to em," and as soon as we get one line "set, we start on the next one.

Wages are reported very low in the pine woods just now, owing to the rush of men to the tall timber, who have "blowed" their summer wages. But what is the difference? They will have just as much money, in three days after they get to Bemidji next spring, if they get $15,00 a month as they would have if they get forty dollars a month; so what is the difference? Of course the saloons and other resorts won't take in as much money, but they will get along all right.

NOTICE. School District No. 37 will receive sealed bids for the delivery of ten cords of green poplar cord wood at the school house, in said district, on or before February 15th, 1912. All bids should be sealed and filed with [illegible] at Highlanding [illegible]

Pay up your back subscription.

See the advertisement of Ellingson Bros. published in another column, and call and look over their Xmas goods.

Henry Arndt will build a large grain barn in the spring. He will hawl the lumber this winter, so as to start building operations as soon as the snow leaves us.

John Quirk has employed the Shed boys to hawl the stone for the foundation for a big stock and grain barn, which he will build next summer. He will hawl a lot of lumber from Peasoup Island this winter.

James O'Brien has moved his barn and will move his house a short distance south of its present location onto the section line, so when they get a bridge across the river he will be on the main traveled road from Sunbeam to Thief River Falls.

We received a letter from Washington Tuesday evening, stating that the St. Paul branch of our government engineers had been ordered from the head engineers office at Washington to make an examination of that log jam at the outlet of Red Lake, and you bet they will get above Thief River Falls this time, as they have discoverd that Thief River Falls was not the outer edge of civilisation, and maybe they have discoverd that the Eleven Towns was "keeping still"

"I Suffered Years With My Back."

Backache resulting from weak kidneys, a bad cold or other cause, usually renders the sufferer unfit for work and often results in permanent disability.

"I suffered for years with my back, or kidney trouble, and have tried a number of remedies from different physicians. More than a year ago, one of our local druggists induced me to try and after using them some three months I found a decided improvement in my kidneys, and I am glad to say that I hope soon to be fully restored to health." J. P. ALLEN, Ex-Judge City Court, Glasgow, Ky.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

As long as pain is present in any part of the body rest is impossible and the system becoming weakened is exposed to any form of disease to which the sufferer may be inclined.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

by steadying the irritated nerve centers, make refreshing sleep possible, thereby enabling the body to recover lost strength. As a remedy for pain of any description Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are unsurpassed.

Sold by all druggists under a guarantee assuring the return of the price of the first box if no benefit results.
MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

STATEMENT OF THE HIGHLANDING CREAMERY.
FOR OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER.

Cream Received, pounds	2,829.
Avr test	26
Butter Fat	1.515.
Butter made	1.748.
Overun	229.
Net price rec. for butter sold	31,½ cts.
Price paid for butter fat	31-½ cts
Receipts.
Ballence last month	$101,79.
Received for 1744 lbs butter sold	$544,62 cts.
Other Sources	$1,85,
Disbursements:
Paid Patrons by check	$453,71,
Botter	$18, 75.
Running expenses	65,80.
Sinuing fund	12,99.
Bal. at the end of month	102, 51.
Bal. $648,26.	648,26.

Guy Melius, Sec.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition [illegible]

The Angel Doctor's Christmas

By Carl Jenkins

OPPOSITE each other in the cosy morning room sat a young woman and a girl of twelve.

"Now, Cousin Hilda," said the latter, as she smoothed down her dress and settled herself in her chair, "I'm going to begin at the beginning and tell you all about it, and then we are to go out and buy a Santa Claus present for him."

"Yes, Polly," answered the young woman.

"You had gone to Europe. You had just packed up and skated as if the police were after you. Mother said she didn't believe you wanted to go the least little bit, but that your mother made you."

"Don't talk nonsense, Polly."

"Well, you skated anyhow."

"And don't talk slang."

"Skated isn't slang. It means that you just glided off like a streak of lightning. You had skated, and I was lonesome, and I was out walking with poor Flora, when a boy came along with a big dog. He was tough. So was his dog. He shouted at me:

"'Take care of your dog!'

"'Why?' I answered.

"'Cause my dog will chew him up!'

"I was just going to tell him that if his dog did there would be trouble in the camp, when it sprang upon poor Flora and ended her life. I can't describe my feelings as I saw her breathing her last."

"Well, don't try to—not if there's any slang in it."

"Why, Hilda, I haven't said a slang word. You know how very, very particular mother is with me. No, I can't describe my feelings, but I remember that I went for that boy, tooth and toe-nail. I hit and scratched and kicked and bit, and I was doing him up when—"

"Polly Sewell!" exclaimed Miss Hilda in horror.

"Now what's happened?" Polly asked. "I told it to papa just this way, and he patted me on the shoulder and called me good girl. As I was saying, I was putting in my best licks when along came a taxi with a fat woman in it. Maybe she was eloping, and maybe she only wanted to get home to lunch. Maybe the chauffeur yelled 'Hi!' at me, and maybe he just wanted to kill another girl. However it was, he ran me down. Yes, cousin, I was knocked out."

"You mean you lost consciousness?"

"Gracious, but how ignorant you are for a girl of twenty! Nobody can be knocked out without losing their consciousness. That's the whole idea of it. Yes, I was knocked out and counted out, and when I came to I was in the hospital with three broken ribs. That fat woman must have weighed a ton. It was hours and hours before I came to, and then—oh, then—"

"Then what?"

"Then there was the loveliest angel standing beside my cot in the hospital you ever saw. Nobody knew who I was, and they had rung for the ambulance and taken me to the hospital. And, oh, that angel, cousin—that angel!"

"You mean a nurse, of course."

"I don't. I mean a man—a doctor. He had hold of my hand. He was looking down on me with his sad, sad eyes. I saw at once that he had some great sorrow on his mind. Yes, he had the finest eyes—and curly hair, and a handsome nose, and when he spoke to me there was pathos in his voice. And the fun of the whole thing was that I knew him at once, while he didn't know me from a side of sole-leather. Oh, you are interested, are you?"

"Polly, I was just thinking how frightened you must have been to find yourself in a hospital," said the blushing Hilda.

"Oh, I see! Well, save your sympathy. A hospital with an angel-doctor to fix up your broken ribs isn't a half bad place. In fact, I liked it so well that I lied to stay there."

"Polly Sewell!"

"I sure did. They had gone through my outfit without finding my address and had concluded I was a stranger in the town. When I opened my eyes and sort o' winked at the angel—"

"Polly, that's surely slang!"

"No it isn't. I told papa about it, and he said things had come to a pretty pass if a girl with three broken ribs couldn't wink at the angel-doctor who has set them. When I had opened my eyes and winked, the doctor said:

"'Little girl, what is your name?'

"'It's Hanah Jones.'

"'And where do you live?'

"'At far-off Blackberry Corners.'

"Polly, you ought to have been sent to jail," was the emphatic comment.

"But [illegible]

[illegible] where he found me. And [illegible] ten more before the angel would [illegible] take me home. Cousin Hilda, a girl who is the real thing can accomplish a heap in fifteen days, even if she has broken ribs. I wanted to have a chat with that angel on certain matters, and I had three or four of them. You ought to have seen his face when I told him where I had seen him before and asked if he didn't remember me."

"But—but—I don't—don't—" protested Hilda in a puzzled way.

"But you will in just a minute. I told him I had seen him in this very house. Now, then!"

"Polly, it wasn't—"

"Oh, it wasn't, eh? [illegible] but it wasn't! Of course it was, and I was so mad at you that it set my broken ribs back all of three days. Dr. Charles Mortimer, and because he isn't rich your mother is down on him and she skated you off to Europe. Oh, I got on to the racket right away."

"Polly Sewell, you are a wicked girl! You use slang, and you fib to the doctor, and you meddle with other people's affairs, and—and—"

"And such dark eyes—and such a deep, pathetic voice! And we had several confidential chats together—very confidential. We didn't even let a trained nurse come within ten feet of us. Hilda, you don't know how confidential a girl becomes when three of her ribs are broken and she is afraid to draw long breaths!"

"And—and you talked about—me?"

"We did. I told him just what I thought of your mother, and I told him I was going to have a plain talk with you, and I told him—"

"Polly Sewell, I'll never speak to you again!" declared Miss Hilda as she rose and tried to look very angry.

"You'll have to, as we are going down town right away to buy Christmas presents for your Sunday school kids. I want you to help me pick out something for our angel-doctor."

"You—you can do that by yourself."

"But you can tell me whether the diamonds are all O. K. or not. No rhinestones for the angel with the deep, dark eyes. Dear me, while I can't help but grieve about poor Flora's death, I almost wish I could have three ribs broken on the other side!"

"You Mean a Nurse, of Course."

It was three days before Christmas, and the streets were crowded and the stores packed like a ward caucus. It was crowd and jam and push. The cousins had to link hands to prevent separation. They had visited two or three stores and were still in the jam when Polly suddenly disengaged her hand and whispered:

"Watch my hike!"

And ten seconds later she was lost in the crowd, and the angel-doctor and Miss Hilda Fitch stood face to face. They were penned in. They had to lean against a show-case and hold their own. They had to talk and say things, and by and by the angel-doctor had to help select the presents for the Sunday school children and to help Miss Hilda through the jam to a taxi, and—and—

"Say, now," observed the twelve-year-old Polly when she made a call three days later on her cousin, "I don't claim to know everything, but I do know when to—to hike!"

And she wasn't even asked what "hike" meant!

Holly and Mistletoe.

In the language of flowers holly signifies foresight, and mistletoe means "I have surmounted all difficulties." Holly, as everyone knows, is the symbol or sign of Christmas, but the custom of using it is older than Christianity. The Romans sent friendly greetings and sprigs of holly to one another during their winter festival. For this reason, perhaps, it was taken to stand for the spirit of love and good-will.

Mustn't Spin at Christmastide.

In North Germany, where the practical yet poetic spinning wheel still hums in the cottages, one must not spin during the twelve nights of Christmas lest he or she walk after death. If the spinning is done after sunset on Saturday, mice will eat the [illegible]

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn.
NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. Samuel Giteau Vic. Pres. Felix O'Neil, Albert Fenquire, T. L. Crezon.
J. A. Lupy, Cashier. • T. L. Crezon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS,

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footwear Buy The [illegible]

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR,

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W. G. Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you,

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m, on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays. Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 15th, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Dec. 8th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Henry Runnestraod, of Kratke Minnesota, who on July 1st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 480, Serial No. 04638, for S. W. ¼ Section 4 Township 158 N. Range 41 W. 5th Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn, on the 20th day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Olaf Brevik, Gunleg Holum, Knut T. Nordgaard, of Kratka Minn. Anders Anensen, of Mavie Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 15, 1911.
Department of the Interior. U.S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. December 8th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Frank Savage, of Hilda Minnesota, who on December 14, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1004, Serial No. 4884 for [illegible] S.W. ¼ and [illegible] made additional Homestead Entry No. 06105, for N. W. ¼ S. E. ¼, all in Section 6 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn, on the 3rd day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

[illegible] of Thief River Falls Minn. Olof B. Hanson, Otto Stucy, John Olson Sorbol of Hilda Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin,
Register.

A Thousand Refusals.

Kate—That Bragson girl claims to [illegible] a thousand refusals of marriage. [illegible]

[illegible]

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home of the improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans"

We want to get [illegible] neighborhood [illegible]

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly, and easily by one person.

With ordinary care the "Simplex" will last a lifetime.

Dealers and Agents Wanted to sell [illegible]

Electric Cleaner Co.
[illegible] CHICAGO, ILL.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY CONVINCES THE MOST SKEPTICAL.

I want to tell you what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root did for me. I was completely broken down. My kidneys hurt me so that when I was down, I could not get up unless I took hold of something to pull myself up with.

I tried different kinds of kidney pills, but they did me no good. Someone told me to try Swamp-Root. I had no faith in it but to please my wife, I purchased one bottle and took it. I saw it was beginning to help me and kept on taking it until I had taken six bottles and it straightened me out all right.

Swamp-Root is the only medicine that did me any good. I thought I would write this letter and tell everyone that is afflicted as I was, to take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. The six bottles I took cost me five dollars, and did me five hundred dollars worth of good.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE H. HUBER,
Atlanta, Ill.

State of Illinois } ss.
Logan County }

I, M. M. Hoose, a Notary Public in and for the said county of Logan, in the State of Illinois, do hereby certify, that George H. Huber, known to me to be the same person whose name is subscribed to the foregoing instrument, appeared before me this day in person and acknowledged that he signed sealed and delivered the said instrument as his free and voluntary act.

Given under my hand and Notarial Seal this the 12th day of July, A. D. 1909.

M. M. Hoose,
Notary Public.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co. Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

New View of It.

"I envy the men who believe that superstition about Friday," said Mr. Growcher.

"I consider it depressing."

"Not at all. A man ought to be mighty comfortable who can feel sure there's only one unlucky day in the week."

IT IS CRIMINAL TO NEGLECT THE SKIN AND HAIR

Think of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfiguration, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 21 L, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on skin and scalp treatment.

It's humiliating to discover that the folks who we imagine despise us never even think of us!

The Farmer's Son's Great Opportunity

Why wait for the old farm to become your inheritance? Begin now to prepare for your future prosperity and independence. A great opportunity awaits you in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, where you can secure a Free Homestead or buy land at reasonable prices.

Now's the Time

—not a year from now, when land will be higher. The profits secured from the abundant crops of Wheat, Oats and Barley, as well as cattle raising, are causing a steady advance in price. Government returns show that the number of settlers in Western Canada from the U. S. was 50 per cent larger in 1910 than the previous year.

Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of one crop.

Free Homesteads of 160 acres and pre-emptions of 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. Fine climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates; wood, water and lumber easily obtained.

For pamphlet "Last Best West," particulars as to suitable location and low settlers' rate, apply to Sup't of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to Canadian Gov't Agent.

Chas. Pilling, Clifford Blk, Grand Forks, N. D.; J. M. MacLachlan, Box 197, Watertown, S. D.; E. T. Holmes, 315 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn.; Geo. A. Hall, 125 2d St., Milwaukee, Wis.

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible — they not only give relief — they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

PISO'S

The RING and the MAN WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

ILLUSTRATIONS BY DEARBORN MELVILL

COPYRIGHT 1909 BY MOFFAT, YARD & COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young tenderfoot becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a drunken prospector in a western mining town. They prepare to elope in a blinding blizzard but are confronted by the maudlin husband. He is shot by the wife, but the chivalrous boy pins a note to the body taking the crime upon himself. In their flight to the railroad station the woman's horse falls exhausted; the youth puts her on his own and follows hanging to the stirrup strap. Seeing he is an impediment, the woman thrusts her escort into a snow drift and rides on. Half-frozen he stumbles into the railroad station just as the train bears the woman away. Twenty-five years later, this man, George Gormly, is a multi-millionaire in New York. He meets Eleanor Haldane, a beautiful and wealthy settlement worker, and co-operates with her in her work. Gormly becomes owner of a steamship line and finds himself frustrated in pier and track extension plans by grafting aldermen, backed by the Gotham Traction company. An automobile accident brings the Haldanes to his country home. Gormly announces that he will be mayor of New York and redeem the city from corruption. Mr. Haldane in a long desired interview with Gormly, makes an indirect proposition to compromise the fight which the latter has been waging in the newspapers against the Gotham Traction company, and which Haldane is suspected of being the head. Gormly boldly announces his plan of campaign to Haldane. Gormly rides to Haldane's place, carrying word of the auto accident. The next morning he refers to the ride of the night before as mild compared to one he experienced in his boyhood days. The papers announce his candidacy for mayor. The political declaration of the merchant prince produced a tremendous sensation. The minority party, seeing in him a possible Moses, make overtures looking to the indorsement of his candidacy by the "outs." Gormly, however, rejects all proposed alliance. A meeting of the Sachem Society or the "Ring," is held at the Haldane Home. Many political dignitaries and henchmen are present and ways and means are advanced to dampen Gormly's mayoralty aspirations and sidetrack his candidacy. The younger Haldane is proposed as an opposition candidate; the whole machinery of the city's detective force is to be used to dig up something damaging to Gormly. Haldane, Jr., refuses the nomination and announces that he will support Gormly. The reigning party then decides to name a non-partisan ticket for the purpose of dividing the Gormly forces, and at the same time rush through a Freight Traction company franchise, without which the Sachem Society would be helpless. The press heretofore unanimously favorable to the merchant candidate, now under pressure, divides and the campaign waxes warm. A resolution is introduced granting a gratuitous renewal of the traction franchise. Gormly offers ten million dollars for the franchise. The excited populace threaten to mob the aldermen, when addressed by Gormly. The Ring mayor and the merchant have a critical moment. The detective force reports a valuable clew. Miss Haldane congratulates Gormly on what she terms a new Declaration of Independence, and he makes an unexpected declaration of love. He is shocked by the confirmation of his suspicions that her father is the head and backbone of the notorious traction company which he is attempting to overthrow. Public sentiment turns overwhelmingly against the party in power and the Sachem Society. Miss Haldane informs her parents of Gormly's declaration to her, which they characterize as impudence and insolence.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.

"I don't know what they are."

"Well, I think I do," returned the young man.

"What are they?" his sister asked him with great eagerness.

But young Haldane was not quite prepared to declare what things they were.

"On second thoughts," he said, evasively "I don't know. At any rate I want to talk some matters over with father."

"Financial matters, my boy?"

"Political."

"Very well. If your mother and sister will excuse us, we will go into the library."

"Certainly," answered Mrs. Haldane, making virtue of necessity.

"If they concern me or my relation to Mr. Gormly," said Eleanor, "I should like to know them immediately."

"They concern us all," he answered. "And, by the way," he added, "I was going to withhold it; but I might as well give it to you now. Here's a letter to you from Mr. Gormly. He asked me to give it to you when I saw you. I was going to talk to father about this other matter before I gave it to you; but you can read it over while we are gone."

"What was it you wished to say to me, Livingstone?" began the older man as they entered the library.

"Father," returned his son with bewildering abruptness, "I learned at headquarters today that you were the head and front of the Gotham Freight Traction company and all the rotten lot against whom we are fighting."

"From whom did you learn this?" asked the older man quietly.

"From Gormly himself."

"Does anybody else know it?"

"It isn't generally known, if that's what you mean."

"And suppose that I am—er—interested in the traction company?"

"To what extent are you interested?" asked the younger man.

"Well, that was not the question I asked you."

"But it is the question with me, father."

"I recognize no right that you have to put such questions to me."

"I may not have any right; but I am doing it just the same. I know and we all know just what the Gotham Freight Traction company is. We know that it is robbing the people. And for that reason I want to know how deeply you are interested in it."

"Go back to Gormly and find out!" thundered his father, intensely angered at the young man's scathing denunciation.

"No, sir, I'm going to find it out [illegible] this room."

"Let me think," he said faintly at last.

"You don't have to think," went on the young man with unconscious cruelty, "to say how deeply you are involved in the affairs of the Gotham Freight Traction company."

"As deeply as anybody can be," was the desperate admission.

"Good God!" exclaimed Livingstone, surprised in spite of his forewarning. "You! It isn't possible. I saw the proofs with my own eyes, and yet I wouldn't believe that you would ally yourself with that gang of thieves and scoundrels."

"Somebody had to take that franchise and build that road," answered his father. "We are giving the people good service, and——"

"Don't make excuses," said the young man, brushing them away with a wave of his hand. "How on earth are we going to explain the facts? What will Eleanor think?"

"You have influence with Gormly," said the father. "Go to him. Tell him that I must see him and at once. Can you bring him here?"

"Well, he's watched like a hawk," said young Haldane. "Your dirty crowd has detectives on his trail all over New York. If he came up here, it would be reported in every paper in the city tonight and tomorrow morning."

"Never mind that. I must see him."

"Look here, father. I am not mixed up with the Gotham Freight Traction company and that gang that you're allied with, and I don't intend to be involved in any scheme you may undertake to get Gormly in trouble."

"I don't intend to make any trouble.

"Go Back to Gormly and Find Out!" He Thundered.

I must see the man, and you must arrange it. Come, are you my son or are you not?"

"I am your son all right," answered the younger man; "but I tell you frankly that I have cast in my lot with Gormly and this isn't going to make any difference. Perhaps we can stave this off or——"

"At any rate I must see Gormly, and you must help me. For God's sake, don't stand there arguing with me, but arrange in some way to bring Gormly and me together secretly and without delay!"

"Let me think a minute," said the younger man at last, impressed by his father's terrible insistence. "I have it. The car is at the door fortunately. I'll run down and tell Gormly you want to see him about this cursed business. I don't know whether I can persuade him to meet you or not; but I'll do my best. Then you go over to Louise Stewart's at once."

"Hurry then, and don't tell your sister or your mother anything of this," said Haldane as he rose to end the interview.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Desperate Position of Haldane.

At this crucial moment there was a knock on the door. Bidden to enter, Eleanor came in, followed by her mother.

"Father," she said, [illegible] an open letter, "the emergency which we discussed has come upon us sooner than we anticipated."

The girl was very nervous and excited, her hands trembled as she held out the paper.

"What! What do you mean?" gasped Haldane, his own agitation not less evident.

Could it be possible that his daughter had already heard of this revelation?

"Here is the letter from Mr. Gormly, which Livingstone just brought me, wife."

"What answer shall you give him, sis?" asked her brother, intensely interested.

"I haven't made any yet," was the reply. "But I can only repeat what I said the other night: that while I respect and admire Mr. Gormly exceedingly, I do not love him."

"At least," questioned the older Haldane, "you don't dislike him, do you?"

"Dislike him, father? Not at all. I have just said——"

"Well, give me the letter then, and——"

At this moment the footman, bowing before the open door, entered. "Beg pardon, sir," he said, "but a party by the name of Liffey is waiting outside to see you."

"Charley Liffey!" exclaimed the son of the house. "What is he doing here now?"

"Why," said Eleanor in great surprise, "that is the grand chief of the Sachem society and the most notorious——"

"Yes, yes. I know," interposed Haldane quickly. "You will kindly leave me for a few moments, all of you. Where is Mr. Liffey?"

"I've got him waiting in the hall, sir."

"Tell him I will see him here. Livingstone, do you carry out my injunctions at once. Eleanor, say nothing to Mr. Gormly about this proposition until I have seen him. Now leave me."

"But, Beekman——" began Mrs. Haldane.

"Father!" protested his daughter.

"Eliza," said her husband, "not another word! Eleanor, I am tried now beyond endurance. Please go!"

When Liffey entered the library, now empty of all its former occupants save the elder Haldane, he confronted a very agitated and very angry man.

"Do you know what's up now, Liffey?" was the question that was hurled at him.

"Do I know what's up? Well about the best news that we could hear is up."

"You regard it that way, do you? Well, I don't."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, Gormly has discovered my connection with the Gotham Freight Traction company and the close alliance that exists between the Sachem society and the corporation, and all the rest of it."

"The devil you say!" cried Liffey.

"It's so, and he has it all ready to publish tomorrow morning."

"Well, that's bad," returned the boss; "but it might be worse. The quieter these things are managed, the better; but still it ain't so bad as it might be. You see it was bound to come out sooner or later, and——"

"My dear man, you don't understand the importance of this matter. For the Gotham Freight Traction company to be found to be in close alliance with the Sachem society and with the administration will lose us the election, and then the New York Traction company franchise goes, and——"

"Well, just wait a bit, Mr. Haldane. Things ain't so black as they seem. I've got a little piece of news that'll discount yours all hollow.

"It's this," said Liffey, coming closer and sinking his voice to a whisper lest he should be overheard by any one. "All but sure of it. We'll know definitely in two days. Men are verifyin' the tale, and Connell and I are expectin' a telegram any time. There's no doubt about it, though. It's a sure thing. All you've got to do now is to keep this revelation you're tellin' me about out of the papers for two days, and then they can talk their mouths off. It won't affect us a bit. Can you do it?"

"I'll do it," answered Haldane resolutely, "if it kills me. I have an appointment, or at least I expect to have one, to see Gormly inside of an hour, and I must go now. You will excuse me?"

"Keep a stiff upper lip, Mr. Haldane. We're goin' to win the biggest victory against the biggest enemy that New York has ever seen, you mark me. Goodby."

In half an hour Haldane, in answer to a telephone message from his son, was bowling along upper Fifth avenue in his own electric toward the Stewart home. Miss Stewart herself admitted him.

"Yes," she said in answer to his eager question, "Mr. Gormly is here. Livingstone brought him. I was just coming into the house, so I let them in myself."

"Is Livingstone here also?"

"Yes. He is in the small drawing room with Mr. Gormly."

"I want you to amuse him while I talk with Mr. Gormly. Don't let any one disturb us."

"Not for the world," said the girl, throwing open the door of the little reception room as she spoke. "Here is Mr. Haldane, Mr. Gormly. Livingstone, you are to come with me."

"I intend to be present," answered Livingstone firmly, "at this interview."

"You will pardon me," said his father with equal resolution, "but I intend to see Mr. Gormly alone."

"Go, Haldane," said Gormly. "If there is anything that you ought to know, I will tell you what it is later."

"But I would—"

"Livingstone," said Miss Stewart, "this is very ungallant and unkind toward me."

"Your father and I both wish to be alone," said Gormly sternly, whereat the young man, with very bad grace, be it admitted, retired and shut the door.

Gormly waited for the elder man to begin.

"Mr. Gormly," said Haldane at last, "my son has told me that you have discovered my connection with the Gotham Freight Traction company."

"I told him so this afternoon."

"Why did you tell him?"

"To give him an opportunity to withdraw from his association with me before I published the story of the corrupt corporation, and because I have a sort of chivalrous, old-fashioned feeling that compels me to warn you of what I am going to do before I do it."

"Mr. Gormly," said Haldane, "you this day addressed my daughter and asked her to be your wife?"

"I did, sir."

"Why today?"

"Because I intended all along to do so, and I preferred to do it now rather than after the publication of the news that will be made tomorrow. I shall repeat my offer tomorrow."

"And you wish to marry her?"

"It is—it was—the dearest wish of my heart."

"Was, sir?"

"Yes, and so far as I am individually concerned it still remains so; but there are things higher than our own personal wishes, Mr. Haldane, as I have been finding out, and to be mayor of New York for the purpose of serving the people is now my chief ambition."

"But you love my daughter, I understood her to say."

"She could not possibly say how much I care for her, or how proud I should be to make her my wife."

"Mr. Gormly," said Haldane, lowering his voice and looking about him, "it is not beyond possibility that your desires in that direction might be gratified."

"Do you carry a message to me from Miss Haldane?"

"No, not exactly. She, however, placed the matter in my hands. I have your letter here." He drew it forth. "And, in short, it is possible that she might be induced to favor your suit. Of course," he added very slowly in a mere whisper, during which he kept his eyes carefully averted from the other man's face, "you will understand that if you were a party to this—er—revelation to which you have alluded, that would render any alliance impossible."

"You say," asked Gormly slowly, "that Miss Haldane is not privy to your decision, that you do not make this proposition by her authority?"

"Certainly not. She knows nothing about it; but I am sure that with my wish and your own determined and—er—most agreeable personality, the matter can be brought about," he paused, significantly—"on conditions," he added.

"What conditions?"

"I leave that to your own perspicacity."

"By the living God!" burst out Gormly, furiously throwing off all restraint in his indignation and resentment, "if I treated you rightly, I would kick you out of the house. I would expose you not merely for your connection with that thieving octopus, but as a father who tried to barter his daughter to secure his own immunity."

"Sir, sir!" exclaimed Haldane furiously, but Gormly was not to be interrupted now.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

It Means Health For the Child

The careful mother, who watches closely the physical peculiarities of her children, will soon discover that the most important thing in connection with a child's constant good health is to keep the bowels regularly open. Sluggish bowels will be followed by loss of appetite, restlessness, during sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder.

At the first sign of such disorder give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring and repeat the dose the following night if necessary—more than that will scarcely be needed. You will find that the child will recover its accustomed good spirits at once and will eat and sleep normally.

This remedy is a vast improvement over salts, cathartics, laxative waters and similar things, which are altogether too powerful for a child. The homes of Mrs. Evelyn Matson, 516 Milwaukee St., Milwaukee, Wis., and Mrs. Kate Hawley, Waukesha, Wis., are always supplied with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and with them, as with thousands of others, there is no substitute for this grand laxative. It is really more than a laxative, for it contains superior tonic properties which help to tone and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels so that after a brief use of it all laxatives can be dispensed with and nature will do its own work.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 201 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

The Difference.

"John M. Harlan," said a Chicago lawyer," in a eulogy of the late Supreme Court Justice, "had a way of pointing an observation with a story. Once he wanted to rebuke a man for exaggeration, so he said he was as bad as a Pittsburg millionaire who was being interviewed by a New York reporter.

"'Where, sir, were you born?' the reporter, as he sharpened his pencil, asked.

"'I was born in Pittsburg,' said the millionaire.

"'And where did you first—er—see the light of day?'

"'When I was nine,' the millionaire replied. 'My people then moved to Philadelphia.'"

Husband Was Willing.

The Scot has no monopoly of domestic felicity, as many a piquant paragraph bears witness. The other day an old farmer and his wife were "doing" the sights of a provincial town, and, among other places they visited a panorama of South Africa.

The views were extremely interesting, and the couple were enjoying themselves to the full. As scene after scene passed, the woman's enthusiasm increased, and at length, turning to her husband, she exclaimed:

"Oh, Sandy, this is really splendid. I could jist sit here all my days."

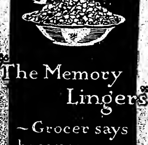
"Ah, weel, Jennie, woman," replied Sandy, to the mirth of those sitting near, "just sit you still there; I'll not grudge the eaxpence."

Measure of His Intelligence.

Fido's Mistress (sobbing)—I've lost my dog; my sweet little innocent pet!

Friend—I'm so sorry. Have you put an advertisement in the newspaper?

Fido's Mistress—Oh, what would be the use? The poor darling doesn't know how to read.—Woman's Home Companion.



No Jury.

"Didn't you give that man a jury trial?"

"Look here," replied Broncho Bob, "there ain't a big lot o' men in this settlement. We couldn't possibly git twelve of 'em together without startin' a fatal argument about somethin' that had nothin' whatever to do with the case."—Washington Star.

After a woman living in a small town has visited in the city for a couple of weeks she calls her hired girl a maid.

For Instance
Post Toasties

"The Memory Lingers"
—Grocer says because they are GOOD

WESTERN CANADA FARMER SECURES WORLD'S PRIZE FOR WHEAT

A ROSTHERN, SASK., FARMER THE LUCKY WINNER.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy of the Canadian Pacific Railway offered $1,000 in gold as a prize for the best 100 lbs. of wheat, grown on the American continent, to be competed for at the recent Land Show in New York. In making the competition open, the donor of this handsome prize showed his belief in the superiority of Canadian wheat lands, by throwing the contest open to farmers of all America, both United States and Canada. The United States railways were by no means anxious to have the Canadian railways represented at the show and a New York paper commenting on the results of the competitions says that they were not to be blamed, as the Canadians captured the most important prize of the show.

The winner of this big wheat prize was Mr. Seager Wheeler of Rosthern, Saskatchewan, and its winning has brought a great deal of credit on the district. The winning wheat was the Marquis variety, and received no more attention from Mr. Wheeler than any other grain, but he is a very particular farmer. His farm is one of the cleanest and best kept in the Rosthern district, and this year he won first prize in a good farm competition which included every feature of farming and every part of the farm. Last winter Wheeler was a prize winner at the provincial seed fair in Regina.

Wheeler is a firm believer in sowing clean seed of the best quality procurable, consequently his grain is of much sought after by the best farmers for seed purposes.

Wheeler is an Englishman. He is a pioneer of Rosthern, coming here fifteen years ago. In the last six years he has done much experimenting, and successfully with several varieties. His farm resembles an experimental farm. A long driveway, lined on both sides with trees, leads to a modest house, the home of Wheeler, a modest, unassuming man with the appearance of a student rather than a men engaged in commercial pursuits.

There are sow 60 tree homesteads to be had in this district, and farm lands are worth from $20 to $40 per acre, which a few years ago were secured by their present owners, either as a free gift or purchased at from $5 to $8 per acre.

It is not many miles from Rosthern, where the farmer lives, who secured the first prize for wheat last year at the National Corn Exposition at Columbus and West of Rosthern, about the 150 miles, lives Messrs. Hill and Son, who won the Colorado Silver Trophy, valued at $1,500, for the best peck of oats, also awarded at the National Corn Show at Colombus in 1910.

Not contented with the high honors obtained is its wheat, Canada again stepped forward into the show ring, and carried off the Sheffield trophy and $1,000 for the best potatoes on the continent. This time the winner was a British Columbia man, Mr. Asahel Smith, the "Potato King," of that province. The district consists of one hundred and one varieties drawn from all parts of the province aggregating in weight one and a half tons.

At the recent Dry Farming Congress, held at Colorado Springs, and at which time it was decided to hold the next Congress at Lethbridge, in 1912, the Province of Alberta made a wonderful showing of grains, grasses and vegetables.

"At the Congress, Alberta got more prizes and trophies, ten to one, than any state of the Union," said Mr. Hotchkiss to the Edmonton Bulletin. "We brought back all het the building with us, and they offered us that, saying we might as well take all that was going. We would have brought it along, too, if we had had a fat car to put it on. Alberta captured nearly 50 first prizes, 20 seconds, 3 thirds, 5 cups, 40 medals, 99 ribbons and 3 sweepstakes. The grand sweepstake prize, for the best exhibit by state or province, a magnificent silver cup, was presented to us with much ceremony at a reception to the Canadians in the Empire Room. The presentation was made by Prof. Olin, chairman of the judging committee, and the cup was received on behalf of the province by the Hon. Duncan Marshall.

Give and Take.

Howell—Does he take things philosophically?

Powell—Yes, but he doesn't part with them philosophically.—Woman's Home Companion.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

There isn't much hope for the man who has no self-respect.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, the original, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels, and cure constipation.

Some men are sorry to write letters, plenty of them are sorry after they get them written.

ORCHARD MEN MEET

RICH PRIZES AT EXHIBITION OF STATE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY IN MINNEAPOLIS.

WAS A GREAT YEAR FOR FRUIT

Program Deals With Nearly Every Phase of Cultivating and Growing Fruit and Garden Products.

Minneapolis.—The 1911 meeting and exhibition of the Minnesota State Horticultural society is the greatest of its fifty-five years of life, held in the First Unitarian church, Eighth street and Mary place, Minneapolis, next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The fruit crop of 1911 has been such that the large and coveted prizes offered for certain fruits will be awarded this year. In previous years the fruit did not come up to the standard, but with the announcement that Minnesota was given the first prize for apples in this, the Middle West section of the country, comprising four states, the outlook is declared to be encouraging. Over $1,000 in cash prizes were offered.

Among the papers read and talks made were the following:

FLOWERS AND OTHER TREES.

"Hybrid Plums and What We May Expect from Them," Prof. Hansen, Brookings, S. D.; "Ornamentation," Leon "Comparative Value of Japanese Hybrid and American Plums for Minnesota Planting," W. J. Tingley, orchardist, Forest Lake; "Is the Catalpa Worth Planting in Minnesota?" Clarence Wedge, surveyman, Albert Lea; "Evergreens in the Dryer Section of Minnesota," Prof. Green, Lincoln, Neb.; "Shrubs and Deciduous Windbreaks for the Western Prairie," John W. Maher, nurseryman, Devils Lake, N. D.

"From the City to the Country," Mrs. E. E. Sanders, St. Paul and Cloquet; "Fairies," "Interesting the Children in Agriculture," S. N. Drum, retired farmer, Minneapolis; "Wild Flowers and Ferns, Their Care and Cultivation," Miss Elsie Eisler, superintendent wild flower department, Minneapolis parks, Minneapolis. "Seventh Year in Civic Improvement Work" in Rural Districts," Mrs. Ella Gilbert Ives, Civic and Commerce department, St. Paul. Mrs. Ives will deliver an illustrated address on "Vanishing Wild Flowers."

TOP WORKING.

"A Visit to A. A. Phillips' Top-Worked Orchard," Le Roy Cady, professor of horticulture, Minnesota Agricultural College, St. Anthony Park; "Possibilities for Minnesota in Apple Raising by Top Grafting," exhibiting twenty-four varieties of apples grown in his own orchard, top worked, Dr. Hansen, Brookings, S. D.; "Interesting Facts About Top Working Apple Trees," Peter Gideon, nurseryman, Excelsior. "Top Working Orchards," Prof. Green, Lincoln, Neb. "The Drainage in the Orchard," John T. Stewart, professor of mechanical engineering, state agricultural college, St. Anthony Park; "Spraying and Other Care of Fruits in the Southern Part of Minnesota," Prof. C. G. Selby, Albert Lea; "The Duties of a Forest Ranger," Paul Voelkering, Milroy. "The Duties of a Forest Patrolman," the Forest School in Itasca State Park, Robert Wilson, Bullwarter, Minn. "The Forest Fire Problem," illustrated lecture by Prof. F. Gunsel, Minneapolis. "The Birds of the Orchard and Garden and What They Are Doing for Us," Prof. C. H. Woodworth, Minneapolis.

TALKS ON FRUIT.

"The Farmer's Fruit Garden and Orchard," Hendrik Hueser, farmer and fruit grower, Excelsior. "Fruit Growing in Northern Minnesota," A. Peterson, fruit grower, etc., Excelsior. "Apples on the Dryer Soil in Minnesota," Colonel Freeman Thorp, artist and fruit horticulturist, Hubbel. "Practical Orchard Pruning," illustrated, Prof. Green, Lincoln, Neb. "The state experiment station," Mr. Anthony Park.

FRUIT BREEDING.

"The Plant Breeders' Auxiliary in Minnesota," Thomas Wedge, nurseryman, Albert Lea. "The State Fruit Breeding Farm for 1911," Peter Hansen, horticulturist, Excelsior. Report of committee on examination of the Minnesota state fruit breeding farm, S. D. Vaning, Excelsior. "Fruit Breeding," Prof. Fruit Breeding Orchard in 1911," W. H. Perkins, farmer and orchardist, Red Lake Falls. "Fruit Breeding," Prof. Breeding Movement, Mr. A. Dorsey, orchardist, Excelsior. "Fruit Breeding," Prof. Green, Lincoln, Neb. "Fruit and Garden Sentence Notes of the Season in Fruit Breeding," Prof. N. Hansen, horticulturist and fruit breeder, South Dakota state agricultural college, Brookings, S. D.

SPRAYING AND MARKETING.

"Spraying Materials and Foliage Injury," H. A. Gossard, Shiverick building, Chicago. "Spraying Materials," Prof. Selby, Albert Lea. "Spraying, economic entomology," Dr. Washburn, state agricultural college, St. Anthony Park. "Needed changes in the Horticultural Inspection Law," H. B. Scammell, assistant dairy inspector, St. Anthony Park. "Marketing Apples From the Commercial Standpoint," Mr. Augur, commercial agent, Minneapolis. "Profitable Packing and Market for Fruit," D. M. Mitchell, horticulturist, Owatonna. "Fruit Exhibits Suitable for Shipping," Prof. Green, Lincoln, Neb. "Varieties of Apples for Commercial Orchards—Their Planting and Care," C. J. Anderson, farmer and fruit grower, Excelsior. "Fruit Planting Possibilities," Thos. Edwards, Excelsior. "Fruit Exhibits," Minnesota Horticultural Society. "Judging and Scoring Fruit Exhibits at the County Fair," C. E. Jenkins, assistant horticulturist, St. Anthony Park. "Fruit Exhibits," Prof. Green, Lincoln, Neb. "What to Do With the Unsalable Apples," Hendrik Hueser, farmer and fruit grower, Excelsior.

PRIZES ARE OFFERED.

The following are the various prizes and premiums offered and others:

One thousand dollars offered as a

EBERHART FOR MASONIC HOME

Governor Says He Will Work to Procure Institution for Minnesota.

Utica, New York.—Following a committee meeting at the city the western governors' party visited the Masonic home at Utica, addresses were made by Governor Carey of Wyoming and Governor Eberhart of Minnesota. Governor Eberhart declared in favor of establishing a Masonic home in Minnesota, and said he would work to that end.

NEW TURN IN ALLISON CASE

PERJURY CHARGE AGAINST A STATE'S WITNESS

A. Brandt, Star Witness for the State, Has Open Pages in His Life.

Bemidji.—As a result of a perjury charge made here against A. Brandt, star witness for the state in the Black Duck arson charge against Edward Geralds, the county attorney of Minnesota now present interesting complications, having an interest bearing on the charges against Dr. D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake. Edward Geralds is the man who has sworn out the warrant against Brandt.

Brandt, who has been in the employ of the Indian office since last September, now faces prosecution by the county attorney here, although in the employ of the state for the arson and perjury cases, and defended by special attorneys for the state.

Brandt, who knows as Fisher and Duval, was a witness at the preliminary hearing of Geralds before Municipal Judge Stinson a few weeks, at which time he said he had been in the employ of the state since last September and that he had witnessed a payment of $50 by Geralds to "Boston Blackie" O'Neil here in March of this year for the Black Duck job.

In his charge, Geralds asserts that Brandt could not have witnessed such a transaction because Brandt was not in Bemidji. Brandt also testified that he never had been convicted of crime. The perjury complaint alleges he has four times been convicted, the last time as late as last September. In this connection, Attorney Geo. Spear of Grand Rapids, defending Geralds, asks why Brandt is not now in prison instead of being in the employ of the state.

CONSUL LOOKS FOR HEIRS.

Huffman's Estate May be in the Courts Twenty-one Years.

Duluth.—Judge Gilpin of the probate court has a case which may be before the court twenty-one years. It is the estate of August Huffmann, a homesteader, who died May 13, 1910, intestate and left heirs.

The case was filed by M. J. Filletreult on June 27, 1910, and the German consul at St. Paul was given the task of looking up heirs. He is searching every conceivable nook of the German empire where an heir might be located.

Huffmann is said to have been an eccentric man, being a recluse of rigidly frugal character. Dying at the age of 70 he left an estate which was appraised at $1,075 in real estate and some personal property. The location of the property is described as lot 5, block 47, sixth division, in West Duluth.

Yet the chief interest seems to hinge on his personal effects, valued at $83.35. His manner of life appears to have been quite similar to that of his chief of John Thoreau, the man who boasted he could live on 37 cents a week.

NYE INTRODUCES FOUR BILLS.

To Provide for Bridges for City of Minneapolis.

Washington, D. C.—Representative Nye introduced four bills granting the city of Minneapolis the privilege of construction of a number of new bridges across the Mississippi river. The bills are as follows:

For a bridge across the river from Plymouth avenue North to Eighth avenue Northeast, bridge from Third avenue, near its intersection with First street South, on the west side of the river to the intersection of Second and First streets Southeast, on east side of river, bridge from Washington avenue South, St. Paul and Great Northern railway and waterworks park to the intersection of Thirty-seventh street and Nicollet avenue South; from intersection of Nineteenth avenue South and Bluff street to Tenth and University streets. The bills provide for commencement of the construction within one year after passage of measures.

ASKS FOR AN EXTRA SESSION.

Development Association of Marshall County Elects its Delegates.

Stephen.—The second annual meeting of the Marshall County Development association was held here. A committee of ten was appointed to draw an extemporaneous of the legislature for the purpose of passing the reapportionment bill, resolutions asking the appropriation of $1,000 for a county fair and a more liberal appropriation by the state for drainage work.

MOTORMEN ASK MORE WAGES

Wilson Union Puts New Schedule Up to Street Railway Receivership.

Winona.—The local street railway motormen's union has presented a new wage schedule to the receivers, providing for an increase of five cents an hour, which company officials say is unnecessary at present, as the men are receiving more than the average wage paid in other cities of the same size.

C. & N. W. EMPLOYEES STRIKE.

Thirty Out at Winona Because of Change in Working System.

Winona, Minn.—Some thirty employees in the car repair department of the North Western road adopted here yesterday a strike, refusing to submit to a change from the hour basis to a piece system. The piece system provides that the men shall be paid according to the number of cars they repair, instead of by the hour. The men say they will not submit to the change, and that they will stay out until the old system is restored. The company says it will not restore the old system.

The Human Heart

The heart is a wonderful double pump, through the lungs and back, which the blood passes in a never-ceasing round and round through the body at the rate of seven gallons every minute. Nothing but the best blood will set and start the pistons of overwork without good, pure blood any more than the engine can run smoothly without oil. After many years of study and the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that a pure, rich stomach was the first of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general breakdown, a tonic made of the glycerin extract of certain roots was the best corrective. This he called

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

Being made without alcohol, this "Medical Discovery" helps the stomach to assimilate the food, thereby curing dyspepsia. It is especially adapted to diseases attended with excessive tissue waste, notably in convalescence from various fevers, for this blooded people and those who are always "catching cold."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps for the French cloth-bound book of 1008 pages. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Give Lenox Soap a trial and you will find that it is absolutely satisfactory for general household use.

The quality is high. The shape is convenient. The price is low.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 50—1911.

Question for Question.

"I shall discharge our butler," said Mr. Cumrox.

"What's the trouble?"

"He doesn't show me proper deference. When I am paying a men illerally, I consider it his duty to laugh at my jokes."

"And won't he?"

"I don't think he can. He's an Englishh butler. When he a spirit of genius and condescending bedinage I said to him, 'Hawkins, can you tell me which came first, the chicken or the egg?' he said, 'Which did you order, first, sir?'"

The Paradox.

"My doctor is a paradoxical one."

"How so?"

"The more he reduced the swelling the higher the bills grew."

Many people have receding gums. Rub Hamlin Wizard Oil on gums and stop the decay; chase the disease germs with a loud wash of a few drops to a spoonful of water.

We are apt to speak of a man as being lucky when he has succeeded where we have failed.

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of all kinds. DEVELOPING AND PRINTING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. ADDRESS DEPARTMENT K. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

DEFIANCE STARCH

16 OUNCES IN THE PACKAGE—OTHER STARCHES ONLY 12 OUNCES—SAME PRICE AND "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY

Pettit's Eye Salve FOR ALL SORE EYES

HEAL ESTATE

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for $15-$30 per acre. Write for free booklet telling of the finest mixed farming districts in Canadian West. Low railway rates. Descriptive literature, maps, settlers' rates, reduced railway fares, information regarding conveyancing, settlement, coming in free. For this literature address Canadian Government Agent, Room 412 Customs House, Chicago, Ill.

TEXAS The Benson Orchards and Gardens are located in the center of the Houston, Galveston, Beaumont and Port Arthur district, which now has the eye of the public. Large and small tracts for sale at liberal prices and easy terms. Write us for information. We want good, reliable men to help us in the sale of these lands. Address for free booklet "BENSON ORCHARDS AND GARDENS." Benson Land Company, ♦ 201 Standard Bank Building, Chicago, Ill.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Smokeless Odorless Clean Convenient

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater warms up a room in a hurry and keeps it so. It may be carried easily to any room where extra warmth is needed.

A special automatic device makes it impossible to turn the wick too high or too low. Safe in the hands of a child.

The Perfection burns nine hours on one filling—glowing heat from the moment it is lighted. Handsomely finished in drums of blue enamel or plain steel, with nickel trimmings.

Ask your dealer or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

Standard Oil Company
(Incorporated)

W. L. DOUGLAS

$2.50, $3.00, $3.50 & $4.00 SHOES

All Styles, All Leathers, All Sizes and Widths, for Men and Women

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR OVER 30 YEARS

The workmanship which has made W. L. Douglas shoes famous the world over is maintained in every pair.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then realize why I warrant them to hold their shape, fit and look better and wear longer than other makes for the price.

CAUTION the genuine have W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on bottom. Sold by the best shoe dealers everywhere. Take no substitute. If your dealer cannot supply you, send direct to factory. Illustrated Catalog Free. W. L. DOUGLAS, 146 Spark St., Brockton, Mass.

BEST CALF SHOE IN THE WORLD
$5 SHOES will positively outwear
TWO PAIRS of ordinary shoes
Fast Color Eyelets Used Exclusively.

The Famous Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

Rayo lamps and lanterns give more light for the oil used. The light is strong and steady. A Rayo never flickers. Made of brass, they look well and last for years. Dealers everywhere sell Rayo lamps and lanterns.

Standard Oil Company

A CHRISTMAS ALIAS

By C. N. AND A. M. WILLIAMSON

COPYRIGHT BY W. G. CHAPMAN

OUTSIDE the little station at Cava del Tirreni, three days before Christmas, a crowd of interpreters, porters, hotel touts and cabmen were awaiting the arrival of the quick train from Naples. As it drew up in the station and the first travelers made their appearance at the exit there rose a Babel of voices. Conspicuous among the vehicles in waiting was a smart English-looking four-in-hand, driven by a handsome, aquiline-faced young man, so dark of skin that he might well have passed for an Italian. At the heads of the impatient horses stood an impassive English groom.

Young Lord Belever, who was driving his own coach, scanned eagerly, from under the brim of his smart bowler, the persons who came crowding out of the station. His eyes lighted with pleasure as a girl appeared in the doorway, followed by an older lady, and two porters, carrying luggage and wraps. A dash of Parisian smartness in the lines of the well-cut traveling dress and the perfectly fitting boots, a more than Anglo-Saxon frankness and independence of carriage, announced the girl as an American.

A driver bent down from the box of his carriage, and, in answer to a question from the young lady, in elementary Italian, demanded 14 francs for the drive to Amalfi.

"But 'Baedeker' says the tariff is five or six," expostulated the girl. Her Italian was fluent, if the grammar was a little shaky. Lord Belever, from his high box-seat, heard every word.

"Baedeker!" The Italian driver snapped his fingers with a gesture of contempt. "Fourteen francs is the fare."

The girl bit her lip. She thought she was being cheated and that made her angry.

"Perhaps we had better take him and have done with it, dear," suggested the elder lady. "It doesn't matter much, you know. There are not many carriages left. If we bargain too long we may get none."

"Mamma," exclaimed the beauty, "I hate to be cheated!"

She looked around, and catching sight of Belever's pawing, glossy bays, her pleased eyes traveled in one glance up to the box-seat, where the young man sat looking eagerly down on her.

"Why, mamma," exclaimed the girl, "if there isn't a perfectly lovely coach, and I believe the man wants to drive us!"

"It's sure to be more than the cab, dear."

"How much to drive us to Amalfi?" cried the girl.

"Five francs each, ladies," was the prompt answer in good Italian, the language in which the coachman had been addressed.

"Bene," came the quick reply, and the girl signed to the porters to put the bags and wraps inside the coach.

The groom, hiding a grin, ran with a ladder; the elder lady mounted to a place behind the driver, the beauty climbing to the box-seat. With a flick of the long whip the bays dashed forward.

"I call this too glorious for words!" The beauty's cheeks were tinged with carmine, brought there by the tingling sea air that blew up the ravine; her eyes sparkled. "Aren't we in luck, mamma, to have got seats in this splendid coach, and with such a driver, too? See how well he handles the reins! And his profile looks as if he were cast in bronze."

"Take care, Lesley! Are you sure he doesn't understand you, dear?"

"Oh, that's all right! Very few of these Italian drivers know more than two or three words of English."

Then the girl began to talk Italian to the coachman and he answered her in the same tongue, fluently and courteously. Belever could speak Italian nearly as well as his own language and Lesley's knowledge was not deep enough to detect his few slips. He felt guilty, but dared not betray his nationality, lest the ladies should insist on being put down at the next village.

"Well, mamma," cried Lesley, turning in her place, "we've had a splendid time in Europe, haven't we? We've seen and done such a lot of things. But I believe I like Italy best of all. Of course, Egypt was gorgeous and Greece was lovely—"

"And England—" prompted the mother.

"England was sweet. But it was disappointing in one way. Only fancy our not meeting one single, solitary, real, live lord. I shall be ashamed to go home. My country expected it of me. And—I failed. Such a shame we should have missed Lord Belever! When I brought three new dresses on purpose, too!"

Belever started. This was a nice scrape he had got himself into. But he didn't see any way out of it now. He could not suddenly exclaim, "Behold, I am Lord Belever!" He had seldom been more uncomfortable; but the worst of it was that he found himself base enough to snatch a fearful joy from the situation.

"I dare say he would have been most uninteresting when you came to know him," the girl's mother proceeded to console her.

"But the Dering-Lacys said he was awfully nice and good-looking, don't you remember? They expected him to come ward to our one country-house visit in England; and, of course, it was very nice, but it did seem an anti-climax when the very man I'd been invited to flirt with never turned up at all. Oh, what he missed!" and she laughed.

Belever could cheerfully have kicked himself. To think that he might have met this divine creature in a decent, self-respecting manner, if only he hadn't sent an unworthy excuse to those good but dull people, the Dering-Lacys.

Through inquiries he had learned at the Bristol that the ladies were Mrs. and Miss Fleetwood, but somehow he had failed to associate the name with that of the American heiress with whom the Dering-Lacys had tried to tempt him a few weeks ago. And in his blindness he had rejoiced in the thought of meeting the girl at Amalfi, whither he had ascertained from the hotel porter that they were going, and whither he had already purposed driving in his coach, which had lately won honors in the coaching meet at Naples.

It Was She!

These desperate reflections drove the hitherto loquacious coachman into an abstracted silence. He answered vaguely the questions with which Lesley did not cease to ply the "perfectly lovely coachman with the bronze profile." He was actually relieved when he stopped his horses at the foot of the long flight of steps that wound up the cliff to the Hotel Cappuccini.

His mind was in a tumult. He, too, was due at the Cappuccini, where his room was engaged; but now he hesitated to go and claim it and to appear in his own person before the American ladies. The craven thought came into his mind that he should run away; then he half resolved to declare himself at once. He had been unable to decide upon a course of action when the ladies prepared to descend from the coach. Then he overheard Lesley whisper to her mother: "He's been so nice and intelligent, don't you think we might give him a couple of francs for himself?" Before he could speak, the girl had placed 12 francs in his hand, wishing him a smiling goodby.

Belever hesitated. To speak, or not to speak—which was wiser in the mind of man? But he found himself maintaining his part by uttering a deferential "Molte grazie, signorina."

Belever turned his smoking team, and walked them back to their stable in the town, where he left coach and horses in the hands of his groom. Strolling slowly back to the Cappuccini steps, his courage suddenly returned to him. He would face the music, brave out the situation and trust to his own tact and the ladies' sense of humor to save the position. One thing only was impossible—to give up the adventure and see the girl no more. He mounted the many steps, received a warm welcome from the handsome and effusive Italian landlord, and in the visitors' book set a firm, clear "Belever, England," immediately under the clever, characteristic writing in which Lesley had inscribed the names of "Mrs. and Miss Fleetwood, New York, U. S. A."

Until the gong clashed out the hour of dinner Belever kept his room, writing letters, slowly changing into his evening clothes, stopping every now and then to lean upon his window-ledge and gaze out upon the incomparable beauty of Amalfi. He was among the earliest persons in the long, vaulted dining-room, once the refectory of the Capuchins, and a word in the ear, and a coin in the hand of the head-waiter, procured him a place next to Miss Fleetwood. This arranged, he retired a little and mingled with the throng of Germans, English, French and Americans who were trooping in to dinner. In a moment or two he saw Mrs. Fleetwood and her daughter coming in from the reading-room, Lesley in a simple, but charming white evening dress, shining, in his eyes, among the other women, like a flower among weeds.

When the two ladies were seated Belever grasped his courage in both hands and, with a thumping heart, took the vacant place by Lesley's side. She turned, looked up, and gave him a quick, surprised glance, then a gleam of merriment flashed into her face, and a rich, warm blush reddened her cheeks, tinging even the shell-like ear. Belever saw, with infinite relief, that the first encounter was to be decided in his favor. He smiled and bowed, looking very handsome in his evening dress.

"I hope," he ventured, "that you are not tired after your drive."

Mrs. Fleetwood was looking at him across her daughter.

"Is it possible—?" she had begun.

"I'm afraid it is, mamma," Lesley cut in mischievously. "Somewhere there's been a very big mistake. Whether it's our fault or this gentleman's, I don't know."

"Let me take all the blame," said Belever, hastily, "if blame there be, for letting myself appear to be what I am not." It was hard to withstand the temptation of having two ladies as companions on the drive."

"And I—made personal remarks, and gave you two francs for yourself!" Lesley threw up her two little hands in horror.

"It was the sincerest compliment I ever received," said Belever. "I shall always keep the coin in recollection of the pleasantest drive of my life." He was wonderfully happy again by this time.

"And that was really your own coach and you are not an Italian?"

"I am as little Italian as you are. I drive my coach for my own pleasure about this coast. I have rented one of those old watch towers which we passed on the way and am having it furnished and fitted up for me now. It would give me great pleasure if you and your mother will take tea with me there one afternoon."

"That would be delightful," Lesley exclaimed; but her forehead had a little, thoughtful pucker and she spoke abstractedly. Belever feared that she was trying to recall the things she had said in English to her mother in the course of the drive, and to keep her from a reflection that might be dangerous to himself, he dashed into conversation.

"By the way," Lesley was saying, "we saw in the visitors' book that Lord Belever is in the hotel. He seems to have arrived to-day, for his name is just under ours. Do you happen to know him?"

Lesley had glanced curiously as she spoke along the row of diners lingering over their nuts, and now she turned full to her companion. In spite of himself he flushed scarlet. He was beginning a stammering reply, when the look on the girl's face checked his words. The truth had flashed into her understanding like a lightning stroke and she was enduring bitter mortification when she remembered how freely she had spoken of him in his own hearing. Her face first crimsoned, then froze into icy haughtiness. Belever looked at her beseechingly and would have spoken had she not stopped him with a gesture. She murmured something to her mother; both ladies rose, and, turning their backs on Belever, without a word or sign, they joined the crowd moving from the room.

The lamps in the long, white house were nearly all extinguished when at last Belever went to bed, but not to sleep. As soon as it was light next morning, he was dressed and out, and, taking a small boat on the beach, he pulled out beyond the tiny pier that forms the harbor of Amalfi. Resting on his oars, he looked up to the quaint, white hotel.

Suddenly a window was thrown open and a graceful figure, dressed in some loose, white morning wrapper, stepped out on the balcony. It was she! Belever's heart beat fast as he looked up at the girl he had loved at first sight standing with one little hand shading her eyes from the sun, drinking in the beauty of the scene. Presently she looked down, as it seemed, into his very eyes. He thought she recognized him, for with an impatient movement she hastily went in, closing the window after her.

Dejectedly Belever rowed ashore and mounted the long flights of steps to the hotel. He thought of packing up his things at once and finding another lodging until he saw his place should be ready for habitation; but a certain obstinacy in his nature held him from his course. After all, was he so much to blame? Had he done a thing too bad for forgiveness? If he frankly apologized to the ladies, ought they not to forget his impulsive error of taste and receive him again on a footing of friendship? He determined to seize the first opportunity for an explanation.

He had not long to wait, for as he was passing down the long corridor on his way to the salle-a-manger for breakfast a door opened in front of him and Lesley herself appeared.

"Miss Fleetwood—" He had begun appealingly, when she turned on him a look so full of resentment that the words died on his lips. She passed him with a hardening of the dainty features and her pretty chin in the air. Belever fell back, biting his lip. For the next two or three hours he wandered wretchedly about the ancient town and presently found himself again at the little port, where he began to talk with one of the Italian masons employed on the works for strengthening the pier. Suddenly this man looked up with an exclamation, and the giving of the means by which they transported and sunk the heavy blocks of concrete, and raise a sheltering wall, withstanding the waves, he looking up at the great cliff that rose above the hotel, and gave him a asked in an awed whisper. "It is the mountain working. That is the third time since breakfast I have heard it crack and strain as it is stone is giving the Hotel Santa Caterina cracked."

"Good heavens! Do you mean that the cliff will fall?"

"I think there is great danger, signore. We have had a fortnight's rain, and the building of the Hotel Santa Caterina there has weakened the base of the mountain. I shall go and call the syndic."

Far above him Belever could see that many persons had come out of the Hotel Cappuccini and were assembled on the terrace looking toward the overhanging part of the mountain. He recognized the flowing whiskers of old Signor Vozzi, the landlord, and could see the white aprons and the bright dresses of the servants mingling with the darker costumes of the hotel guests. Then, on the terrace to the left of the house, beyond the cloisters, just under the grotto, he detected a gleam of poppy color, and, staring hard, he recognized Lesley Fleetwood, walking slowly up and down, all unconscious of the danger that threatened her.

With a shout, Belever started for the grotto. It was approached by a long flight of steps which turned two or three times until they reached the terrace of the grotto.

The girl looked up suddenly, and her face flushed. She turned from him impatiently.

"Miss Fleetwood, there is great danger; the mountain will fall," he cried excitedly. "You must come at once."

"Must!" repeated the girl, with a surprised lifting of the eyebrows.

"This is no time for ceremony," he answered; "the peril is near. Your mother and everyone have run out from the hotel."

"Are you afraid?" She looked at him half mockingly, half disdainfully. "I am afraid for you. I entreat you to come at once!"

"Thank you. I prefer to stay where I am, and to be alone."

With this there came from above a shower of loose stone and dust that poured from the edge of the cliff over their heads.

"You see!" he cried. "My witness."

"Nonsense!" said Lesley, sharply. "A servant told me those stalactites and things always fall after rain. Pray lose no time in saving yourself from the terrible danger!"

Down came another stone. There was a strange sound, mysterious, indescribable, that came from the mountain. It was as if a giant imprisoned inside were stirring cautiously.

The man and the girl looked into each other's eyes, defiance in hers, pleading in his. But suddenly a hot wave seemed to rush through Belever's veins. With a wild shout from below ringing in his ears, he caught the girl in his arms as if she had been a child. The mountain groaned. Belever sprang from under the arch of the grotto end, as if that fettered giant grudged the loss of his prey, there came a great roaring, which filled the air and confused the young man's senses. With a tremendous crash, a huge mass of rock plunged down from the foot of the grotto upon the very spot where, an instant ago, the two had stood, smashing into fragments the concrete pavement of the platform. The ground shook under Belever's feet; the earth seemed to quake as if it were turned to a jelly. Deafened, half blind, unable to think, he still ran on, Lesley quiet as death against his shoulder.

Cried to Him to Come Back.

Running down the few steps toward the hotel, which lay below the grotto in the rock, he reached the cloisters. Something seemed compelling him to look up. The whole mountain appeared to be falling. In the midst of a rushing mass from above three human figures detached themselves, shooting downward, limp as dolls made of rags, yet dignified into supreme tragedy.

"A few seconds and we shall be like that," were the words that flashed through Belever's brain. Still though he was hopeless now, instinct made him run on for dear life. Hardly had the thought of what might come crossed itself before the eyes of the whole great cover hanging, ... the chapel of soft dusk, the peace, the faint suggestion of incense, the lighted candles—in honor of the Christmas season—on the altar, and dotted about among the quaint little oriental figures of the "crib," or "presepio," all seemed unreal, a mirage of peace in the presence of great danger. The rushing noise, like an advancing tidal wave, grew louder. From the doorway through which he had just come Belever could see what was happening. He saw a huge flying boulder strike the roof of the hotel, crush it in, and break away the wall beneath, as if the solid, ancient structure, which had weathered the storms of 800 years, had been a house of cards, set up by the hands of a child.

For a moment he believed that the whole building would go, and the girl he loved with it. But he heard the thunder of the landslide as it swept down to the sea, engulfing the Santa Caterina as it went and throwing a towering wall of water that rushed in upon the beach. Then a great silence fell, broken only by the far-away shouting of human voices sounding strangely small and feeble after nature's savage uproar. Nothing more happened. They were saved.

Lesley had clung to him speechless, almost breathless, and Belever had clasped her tightly, hardly knowing how tightly. But now he gently released her. As he did so, she fell away from him, half fainting, and he caught her again, with his arm round her waist.

"For heaven's sake, tell me that you're not hurt—that no stone struck you as we came," he stammered.

"No," she whispered, for all strength was gone from her, and she could not speak aloud. "No—but you—there's a streak of blood on your forehead. Oh, how can I ever forgive myself? You might have been killed. It was all—all my fault. I was a wretch. You ought to have gone and left me."

"I'd rather have been killed then do that," said Belever. He had forgotten to let her go. She had forgotten to draw herself away, and so they still stood together, these two enemies, she leaning slightly against him, he with his arm round her waist.

"Oh, why do you say that?" she faltered. "I was so obstinate—so wicked. I deserved anything. I wonder you cared."

"But, you see, I loved you," said Belever, quite simply. "If the end had to come I wanted it to come for me, too." It did not seem in the least strange that he should be telling her this, though she had never seen him until yesterday and had refused to speak to him this morning. They had known each other always, now, and they could never go back to being strangers again.

She did not answer, or even appear surprised; but, when her eyes left his they wandered all about the chapel, thinking how beautiful it looked and how sacred it seemed and how good it was to be there.

"I hope—" she began; but what she hoped Belever was not to know, for a pale woman appeared at the door leading into the chapel from the hotel opposite the entrance from the cloisters, and, at the sight of the two figures standing together in the jeweled twilight broke into sobs.

"Lesley—thank heaven!" she ejaculated. "I've searched everywhere for you. They tried to keep me from coming back to the house, but I would."

Lesley ran to her mother. "He saved my life," she said.

The elder woman held out both her hands to him.

"How can I thank you?" she cried.

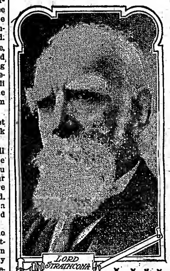
"By forgiving me—if you will." He spoke to her, but he looked at Lesley.

"We start newly from this moment," said the girl. Her eyes were wonderfully soft and sweet in the chapel's dusk, jeweled by the candle lights.

"Come away quickly," implored her mother. "Who knows yet if it is safe even here? It has all been so sudden, so horrible. I saw everything from the terrace—the peasants falling over the cliff from above, the fishing boats crushed—oh, I shall dream of it always. Signor Vozzi says even if all is well after this, every one must leave the hotel as soon as we can get our things together. Do come!"

She turned toward the door again, drawing Lesley with her. Belever followed, and as they went, Lesley turned ... that he had read aright what her eyes ...

MAN A GIANT AT 91



Marvelous Career of a Poor Scotch Laddie.

The Struggles and Successes of Lord Strathcona, Famous the World Over as Pioneer and Empire Builder.

Ottawa, Canada.—In the closing days of the rebellion of '38, when affairs were in a turmoil, there landed on the shores of Canada a poor friendless Scotch laddie, alone and new in a new land. He was tall and spare, but the square of his jaw told of Scotch courage and the man-light gleamed from his determined eyes. He was not more than 18, but he was big and inherited the brawn of a fine ancestry of Scots. This humble, friendless lad was Donald Smith, the man of whose brains, energy and sacrifices Canada owes much for her present prosperity.

In the early days, when Smith—now Lord Strathcona—began his life in the employ of the Hudson Bay company, the Canadian north was a country of the terrible. For thirty years, isolated on the ice-bound coast of Labrador, he labored in the hardest service on the continent, that of the Hudson Bay company. In his stripling days, as a trader, he tramped the mighty, silent north from end to end, planning, bartering and bargaining with the grim and stoic natives of the wild. From the time that Smith, a sturdy "highland laddie," left Montreal for his labors in the north his life was one of hardship, suffering and sacrifice.

The lessons in the school of suffering which awaited this lonely but courageous boy were hard ones, but Donald Smith learned them all. When he was 29 years old a romance of the heart came to lighten his years of banishment. A girl of the wild, fair as a rainbow on the snow, crossed his path and from then the bleakness of his life began to lose its austerity. She was the daughter of a trader and an Indian woman and he married her.

LORD STRATHCONA

Throughout his 30 years in the northland Smith gave his leisure to reading and studying. He became a thinker and a reasoner and in his work he learned to use his power of brain. From this point his advance was gradual but sure and in 1868, when he was 48 years old, he was appointed governor of the company with head offices at Montreal. He was well equipped for his mighty duties. He had learned the lessons of generalship and in the years that followed he proved himself a commander of forces, primal and artificial. Many times during his governorship crises arose that put his powers to test.

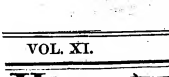
The activities of Donald A. Smith outside the Hudson Bay company brought him into the politics of Canada. His political creed was a disregard for party interests and, while at the outset he was a staunch supporter of Macdonald, the Conservative premier, later on, because of the severe criticism and accusations laid against the party and because he was convinced that the party was not conducting itself strictly along square lines he withdrew his support and brought about the first defeat of Macdonald.

Donald A. Smith, silent, reserved but powerful, was one of the greatest legislators that ever had a seat in the Canadian house of commons. His career as a lawmaker was one of honesty and genius.

In 1896 Lord Strathcona received the culminating honor of his great career. He was made the first holder of the newly-created office of high commissioner for Canada in London. Four years later he received world fame through his gift of the Strathcona horse, a body of 28 mounted officers and 512 men, enrolled from all over the Canadian west, for service in the Boer war.

In private life this great man is a considerate husband and father and a most engaging host. One of the greatest tributes he ever received was from the father and mother of King George V., the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra. They always called him "Uncle Donald."

At the advanced age of ninety-one he is still a marvelous man. His talk is bright and he is equally at home in American, Canadian or English poli-



MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 22, 1911. NO. 39.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Pension System for Widows a Success

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Kansas City's plan of pensioning widows is attracting wide attention. Requests for information come to the officers of the juvenile court every day from cities of the United States and Canada. There are more than 40 widows on the pension roll and the plan is working satisfactorily.

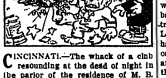
It was found soon after the establishment of the juvenile court that many children were kept from school to work, the money they earned being the sole support of the family. This was particularly the case where widows with several children were unable to work because of the necessity for remaining at home to care for the small children.

At the suggestion of Judge McCune, then presiding over the juvenile court, philanthropic persons formed a voluntary association and boys of school age compelled to work were paid a certain amount of money, according to the needs of the family, in place of the money they were earning, on condition that they attended school regularly.

Many sensitive women hesitated to accept this form of charity, and at first there were few applications for such pensions. Last winter, however, a law was passed by the legislature providing that the county clerk establish a pension bureau, the pensions to be paid from county funds in such amount as the juvenile court found necessary.

The law provides that a widow may be paid not to exceed $10 a month for one child to enable that child to attend school; if she has more than one child, not to exceed $5 a month for each additional child. The yearly expenditure must not exceed $12,000. The idea of the law is to keep the family together under home influence.

Stowaway is in Ship's Hold 12 Days



BALTIMORE, Md.—To have lived twelve days in the icy, inky blackness of a ship's hold with nothing to eat save raw potatoes, with only rats for companions, and to have been rescued only because the foremast light of the ship on which he was a stowaway refused to work, was the soul-racking experience of Walter Purding, an American, who reached Baltimore on the Johnston line steamer Ulstermore, Captain Gowan.

According to his story, when the Ulstermore was about to leave Liverpool, he gained the consent of a stevedore to stow away in hatch No. 3. He said he chose the hatch because it contained potatoes, and he believed the ship's cook would release him the first day or two at sea. But Captain Gowan procured his "spuds" some where else, and the cook came not. Hour by hour, Purding said, his hunger and thirst became greater. He began to eat potatoes, but in two days these pelted on him and he could eat no more. Thirst then attacked him.

When hunger began to weaken him the weather became rough. Purding says he was tossed about the hold like the potatoes until every fiber ached. The ship ran into the vicinity of ice bergs. Hail fell on the sides of the ship and converted the stowaway's quarters into a veritable refrigerator. The prisoner said that the rats in the hold nestled on his breast and he did not fight them because they kept him warm. They sought no blood or bone, but only the warmth of his body.

It was when the ship was 12 days out, when the foremast light refused to work and it was necessary to open hatch No. 3 to follow the wiring, Third Engineer Potter entered the hatchway to be surprised by a figure's bursting by him toward the side of the ship.

Killed Owl He Thought Was a Burglar

CINCINNATI.—The whack of a club resounding at the dead of night in the parlor of the residence of M. R. Hermen, coupled with the piercing screams of a dying maltese owl, marked the climax of a three-cornered battle, waged in darkness, between the owl, Night Patrolman Joe Conlon of the Newport police force and the Hermen household.

It was a bit of a brawl night when Patrolman Conlon rounded the corner and passed the Hermen home. Mr. Hermen, a neophyte of the fresh-air movement, had left the parlor window wide open. The owl, one of a pair which have been keeping Newport awake for nights for the past month, invaded the room and a fearsome noise ensued. After the owl, which was making wide circles of the room, had smashed an antique clock, a hall tree, several small pictures and a Louis XIV. chair of fruit design, and had its claws entangled in a piano cover, on which were a Japanese vase and a rose jar, was taking charge of this portion of the home furniture, Herman was roused by Patrolman Conlon thumping on the door.

"There's burglars in the house!" exclaimed Conlon. "Who-o-o" smartly inquired the owl. "Burglars! Don't you hear 'em?" shouted Conlon. Not knowing whether their quarry was human or ghostlike, the pair cautiously turned the doorknob. Before Herman could reach the light button there was a feathery swish past his head and he struck out with Conlon's club. The owl's cry of mortal anguish followed.

Bringing Together Jobless and Job

NEW YORK.—The National Employment exchange, a private organization in New York, in the first year and a half of its existence has learned many things about the task of bringing together the jobless man and the manless job. It was established with a fund of $100,000 contributed by a number of wealthy men to relieve the deplorable conditions of unemployment in New York city. Two separate exchanges are maintained, one to supply manual laborers, skilled and unskilled, the other to supply mercantile employes. During 1910, the demand for men to do manual work greatly exceeded the supply. Work for more than 4,000 was found in the city, in New York and other states. Many more could have been placed had the men been available. It cost $1.32 to get each man his job, over and above the small fee collected. Business depression this year has altered conditions, and not so many positions can be open, but it has been established generally true that the man who is willing to do manual work, skilled or unskilled, can find work if he wants it. There is plenty of room for him.

But not so in the mercantile pursuit, for office help, salesmen and similar occupations. The number seeking work of this kind is many times larger than the number of possible places. Positions were found for only 1,000 of the 4,540 applicants, and the cost of placing each one was $16.60 more than the fee. Many of these successful applicants were forced to accept employment at less or no wages a week. New York is flooded with a horde of young men and women who want, not only clerical work, but the training of the mercantile world. Of the 4,540 applicants, the exchange registered only 1,000 who were willing to do manual work.

WHO'S WHO—AND WHY

STILL IN HARNESS AT 72

In April, twenty years ago, United States Commissioner John A. Shields of New York, then fifty-two years old, and for thirty-seven years a federal office holder, was spoken of in a newspaper article as having held office as long as any other public official. Recently Commissioner Shields celebrated his seventy-second birthday, and it found him still holding office after fifty-seven years of service.

Commissioner Shields is the petrified man of federal officials. Mankind is never made of the commissioner in print without speaking of his white hair. They are now white, silky, long and full, and he wears them part-ed in the middle, like Lord Dundreary. They become him excellently, but they are the only symptom of age to be found anywhere in the commissioner's personal neighborhood.

"I have served the government fifty-seven years," the commissioner said the other day, "and the only reason that I probably will not serve it for fifty-seven years more is that I possibly will not live that long. If I do, however, you probably will find me still here at the end of that time."

JUDGE WALTER BORDWELL

Judge Walter Bordwell was the presiding judge in the McNamara trial at Los Angeles, which abruptly ended by the confession of guilt of the accused, and it was he who pronounced the prison sentences upon the brothers. The judge issued a formal statement giving his views as to the trial and especially what brought about its termination. This, he said, was done with the hope of correcting if possible some misconceptions due to erroneous publications.

In the first place, the judge declared, the claim or suggestion that the termination of the cases was due to the efforts of outsiders who undertook to influence the officers of the court other than the judge—was without justification in fact. He also denounced the claims of a certain writer and of other persons for him that the change of pleas from "not guilty" to "guilty" was due to his efforts as counsellors. The district attorney, the judge said, acted entirely without regard to the outsiders and on since decided upon before the latter appeared on the scene. The district attorney, according to Judge Bordwell, could have hed James B. McNamara's plea of guilty long before if he had been willing to dismiss the cases against his brother, but he refused.

BRITAIN'S UNIONIST LEADER

The new leader of the Unionist party in Great Britain, Arthur Bonar Law, is first of all a business man and has little of the politician in his make-up. While he has begn in parliament since 1900, representing a Lancashire district, he has not taken any very notable part in political management and is regarded as much inferior, to Lord Balfour, whom he replaces, in statesmanlike grasp of public affairs and in political sagacity. Although the ostensible reason for Balfour's resignation is given as poor health, it is well known that he was almost forced out of the leadership by the stand-pat element, or the "last ditchers," as they are called, which was dissatisfied with the conduct of the fight waged in connection with the reform of the house of lords.

Mr. Law is a native of New Brunswick and received his earlier education at Hamilton, Ont. He is now a wealthy iron merchant of Glasgow. If he succeeds in rehabilitating the Unionist party, succeeding where Balfour failed, he will achieve a notable triumph. The party is badly rent and perhaps there is no question upon which the various elements can agree except opposition to Irish home rule.

CAPTURED SHIP CONTRACTS

Rear Admiral Francis Tiffany Bowles proved his great enterprise when he bid against the world for the contract to build two mammoth battleships for the Argentine Republic and walked off with the prize. The price is not given, but it must be a large sum, judging by the figures that show ero and armament. The two vessels are the Rivadavia and the Moreno, the former of which is now being built at the Fowles shipyards in Quincy, Mass. Each boat is of that huge type which will dwarf the battleships of the earlier Dreadnought class, having a displacement of 28,000 tons, an indicated horsepower of 32,000, and carrying 12 of the 12-inch, 12 of the 6-inch and 18 of the 4-inch guns.

Rear Admiral Bowles was for several years chief constructor of the United States navy, until 1903, having previously graduated from the naval academy. He was the builder of the original battleship Kearsarge, the chief constructor of the battleship Connecticut, and the designer of the battleship Louisiana. He was also the designer of the battleship Nebraska, which was built by the Fore River Shipbuilding company of Quincy, Mass., and which was the first battleship to pass through the Panama canal.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

National Pawnshop is Now Proposed

WASHINGTON.—Shall Uncle Sam follow the example set by France, Germany, Holland and other European nations and make it possible for the temporarily embarrassed to obtain money on personal belongings without paying from 36 to 100 per cent interest on loans?

This question is called up for consideration through the publication by the department of commerce and labor of a series of consular reports on pawnbroking in foreign countries. Nearly citizens can obtain small sums of money on short notice, avoiding the exorbitant rates of interest charged by the private pawnbroking concern, and keeping free from the greedy clutch of the professional money lender.

Where the plan has been tried long-est its success has been most marked. This citizen is furnished with what money he needs up to a reasonable amount, on personal collateral. The average rate of interest charged is less than 12 per cent per annum. Moreover, with the possible exception of France, where the government exercises a complete monopoly of the pownbroking business, the national and municipal institutions have successfully combated strong competition from private concerns that have been permitted to charge much higher rates of interest.

The pawnshop of Amsterdam, the oldest and probably the most lenient in the world, is known as the Bank van Leening. It has been under the control of the municipality since 1614, and now has fifteen branches throughout the city. The average rate of interest is less than 10 per cent a year. Still the bank is able to maintain a working balance of more than $1,000,000. In France the pawnbroking business is strictly a government monopoly, which the Mont de Piete, the nation's pownbroking concern, has enjoyed for more than fifty years.

Great Work Done on Canal in a Year

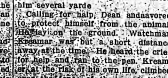
THE great mechanical problems connected with the construction of the Panama canal, which is to be opened in January, 1915, pass in review in the annual report of the Isthmian canal commission. The record of the year's achievements includes: Completion of almost three-quarters of the Culebra cut. Total excavations from Culebra during year, 16,221,672 cubic yards, at average cost of 58.8 cents a yard. Big plans laid for terminals, including storage of fuel, fresh water and other supplies; repair facilities, etc. Pacific terminal to have dry dock, storehouse and coaling stations. Practical completion of plans for all locks. Elaborate scheme for lighting. Safeguarding against landslides.

The locks have been a great problem. Designs for the approach walls at all locks except one have been prepared. Contracts in force at the beginning of the fiscal year were practically completed and new contracts entered into for a vast amount of frames, valves, gates and other paraphernalia needed to put the canal into operation.

More than 954 tons of castings were made on the isthmus. Building of the great lock gates—each leaf for which is fifty-four feet eight inches high—was expedited. At each lock entrance strong fender chains attached to powerful springs will be installed to prevent ships from battering down the locks.

A floating caisson gate is being installed for use in closing a lock so as to enable workmen to repair the permanent locks and the bottom sluices. Canal illumination will be provided by range lights for establishing the direction of vessels on the various tangents and by side lights a mile apart merking each side of the channel.

Uncle Sam is Using Weather Balloons



UNCLE SAM now has a system of balloon reporting for help in forecasting the weather. His makes balloons of different kinds and sends them up at the various stations over the United States to bring down records of the upper air. These are sent up from day to day and the results are telegraphed all over the country. It is partly from these that the weather forecasts come. These balloons are filled with hydrogen of a quality which is distributed to them. Indeed, there are only one or two places in the country where it can be had. The result is that the government makes its own hydrogen and it has a great machine for the purpose at Mount Weather in Virginia.

Hydrogen is one of the two gases which form water. The other gas is oxygan. The oxygen has to be taken out and only the pure hydrogen left. This is done by means of electricity, the machine for the purpose having been imported from Switzerland. The hydrogen is stored in little round cylinders, each about as thick and long as the leg of the average man. The cylinders are sealed so that they are absolutely tight, and are shipped by freight to the various weather stations.

Returning to the balloons, many of those which are now being sent up are equipped with parachutes which extend above them. As the balloon rises into the upper air it finally reaches an altitude at which it bursts. It carries with it one of these boxes containing the fine instruments. This is attached to the parachute, and for this reason it falls so gently that the machinery is not injured.

Zoo Keeper Gored by Enraged Buffalo

GORED by a bull buffalo, James E. Dean, a keeper at the Zoological park, is in a critical condition in the emergency hospital with a compound fracture of the skull. Dean, who is one of the oldest employes of the park in point of service, was attacked after he had given the animal its dinner and while he was cleaning his pen.

The bull buffalo is confined in a small pen in the western part of the park. It is Dean's duty to feed the animal and keep the pen clean. Dean placed the feed for the bull in one corner of the pen, and, according to his work, Dean spent a few minutes cleaning the implements about the pen and forgot to keep a watchful eye out. He turned his back on the animal, intent on his work, when the beast made a sudden rush and, lifting Dean on its horns, threw him over the fence. The animal was then prevented from further attacking the keeper by other attendants, who drove the buffalo away. Dean was then carried to the hospital.

Calling for help, Dean endeavored to protect himself from the animal, but he turned toward the watchman as he heard the bull bellowing. Before he could do so, however, the bull was upon him. Dean was thrown to the ground and gored. The animal then backed away and, lowering its head, pawed the earth. With a wild bellow it struck the keeper and hurled him several yards.

Calling for help, Dean endeavored to protect himself from the animal, but he turned toward the watchman as he heard the bull bellowing. Before he could do so, however, the bull was upon him. Dean was thrown to the ground and gored. The animal then backed away and, lowering its head, pawed the earth. With a wild bellow it struck the keeper and hurled him several yards.

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - MINN.

THE SLEEP OF FISHES.

Experiments have been made in an English aquarium with regard to the sleep of fishes, says Harper's Weekly. It is necessary to remember that sleep is the rest of the brain, and that the need of it will be in proportion to the animal's cerebral activity. Now the brain of a fish is ridiculously small in relation to the actual size of the animal. It is merely a double row of tiny protuberances, with a tadpole like pertile corresponding to the cerebellum of other animals. Since they have so little brain tissue, the waste to be repaired by sleep is slight among fishes. The result of careful experiment has shown that among fresh water fishes the roach, dace, gudgeon, carp, tench and minnow are known to sleep periodically, like land animals; among marine fishes the wrasse, conger eel, dory, dogfish, bass and all flat fish do the like, while the goldfish, pike and angler fish never sleep, but rest periodically. Fish seem to have no preference for the night as their sleeping time. A naturalist traveling from Constantinople to London in a small schooner reported that one morning he noticed a pilot fish a few inches from the side of the vessel, swimming so steadily that it seemed to be attached to one particular spot. All day long it remained there, neither advancing nor lagging behind, and so it happened for several days. Then came a gale of wind, and the vessel was separated from its little companion. It was evident that the fish could not have slept during all this time, as the vessel was sailing quite rapidly. The captain, moreover, asserted that he had known a pilot fish to accompany a vessel thus for more than a fortnight.

England has suddenly awakened to a realization of the fact that 95 per cent. of Canadian post-graduate students go to American or German universities to complete their education. Naturally she wonders why such a situation exists. Are not Oxford and Cambridge the equals of any foreign institutions? They are, indeed, but they take no particular pains to let any one know it, says the Boston Transcript. Clinging to their old conservative traditions, they are about a century behind the rest of the world in the matter of publicity, and have never been known to set forth the opportunities they offer for advanced work. On the other hand, foreign universities not only advertise themselves extensively, but they even grant fellowships to post-graduate students, often awarding them on the nomination of the colleges sending the student.

The report that a disease resembling trichina is rife this year among the deer in northern Wisconsin is not likely to whet the public's appetite for venison. If it co-operates with the game law in giving the deer a chance for their lives, it may be beneficial in two directions—first in conserving the deer and second in reducing the mortality among Wisconsin hunters, for the smaller the crowd of men with guns that goes into the woods to follow the fawns the fewer will be the fatal accidents whose victims are human beings. Indiana say that the disease now prevailing among the deer broke out some two winters ago, and killed many deer and many Indians. To make the flesh of deer harmless it should be well cooked.

Eighty-nine people have been killed and over 350 injured in automobile accidents in New York city since the first of the year. It is an appalling sacrifice to something which is a luxury not a necessity of life, and the more appalling since the majority of such accidents are avoidable. It is time that accident-prevention, as well as fire-prevention, be introduced in all large communities, on the principle that what is avoidable, need not occur.

While it is very well that all reasonable precautions should be taken to prevent the spread of rabies, it is not at all desirable that the public should be worked up into a frenzy on the subject. For every authenticated case of rabies there are scores and perhaps hundreds of cases of nervousness simulating the reported symptoms of that dread disease, which, indeed, is so rare that there still are very intelligent people who are unconvinced that it exists.

Possibly the clergyman who says a successful business man cannot be honest has been speculating in Wall street.

A clergyman refers to Adam and Eve as models. Up to a certain episode they certainly did pose in the nude.

Arabs in Tunis are getting restless, fearing that their kindred in Tripoli are charging a higher tanning average.

THE SEASON OF JOY

One Good Thing Right on the Heels of Another.

CHICAGO IS CHOSEN

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION WILL BE HELD IN ILLINOIS CITY.

CONVENES TUESDAY, JUNE 18

Administration Dictates Policy of Committeemen—Primary Question Is Quickly Disposed of Despite the Opposition of Senator Borah.

Washington.—Chicago was chosen as the convention city to nominate candidates for president and vice-president by the Republican national committee which met here. The call was issued for the assembling of delegates on Tuesday, June 18. St. Louis formally withdrew from the contest before the voting began, leaving Denver and Chicago to fight it out. The vote resulted: Chicago, 42; Denver, 7; St. Louis, 1; absent, 1.

The committee formally accepted the resignation of Frank H. Hitchcock as chairman. A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hitchcock for his services. Former Gov. John F. Hill of Maine then was elected chairman.

The Taft forces, directed by Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the president, won the first serious fight attending the committee meeting. The administration's friends had insisted that Col. Harry S. New of Indiana be named chairman of the subcommittee to take charge of the convention arrangements, including the choice of temporary and permanent chairmen, and the selection of a herald of the party keynote. The Taft people also had insisted that in addition to Colonel New they should name a majority of the committee.

The subcommittee having in charge the call for delegates developed a serious split, Senator Borah leading a revolt against the plan to give primary door to every state in the Union and framing a minority report. The subcommittee decided to follow the form of call adopted four years ago. This call recognizes the rights of states to choose delegates at primaries where primary laws have been passed and where the state committee so directs. In all other states it provides for the selection of delegates at state conventions.

NO BALL WAR IS IN SIGHT

National League Adjourns Annual Meeting After Ignoring Hostile Attitude of American Body.

New York.—There will be no big baseball war after all. The annual meeting of the National League adjourned without the slightest official notice having been taken of the American League's attitude of hostility as declared in the resolution adopted last Tuesday.

After a most spirited debate the National League moguls agreed that they could not understand the spirit of the communication, so it was laid on the table to die of neglect with the ticket scalping scandal and all other unpleasant subjects.

The National league season of 1913 will start on or near April 21, and will close on or near October 6.

Close "Soo" for Season.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—The American canal locks are closed for the season. The Canadian locks will remain open a few days longer.

Mother Accused of Slaying Child.

Little Rock, Ark.—Mrs. Alice Vance, accused of the murder of her four-year-old daughter, was arrested here and her brother was locked up as an accessory. The mother says she went to a spring late yesterday afternoon and returned to find the child slain.

Nail Taken From Appendix.

Duluth, Minn.—Lester Brewer is at the Duluth hospital, where he underwent an objective, yet speedless operation. Clarence Olson removed a nail he found in Brewer's appendix.

ROYALTY NEAR DEATH

SISTER OF KING GEORGE AND NIECES IN SHIPWRECK.

Launch Containing Duke of Fife and Family Capsizes en Its Way to Shore.

Gibraltar.—King George's sister, the Princess Royal Louise, her husband, the Duke of Fife, and their daughters together with a number of Americans and other persons had a narrow escape from death when the Duke Dehli, on its way to Egypt, went on the rocks near Cape Spartel, Morocco.

While being taken ashore by the longboat of the British armored cruiser Duke of Edinburgh they were thrown into the water by the capsizing of the boat, one of the daughters having a narrow escape from drowning. She was rescued by a sailor and carried to land with the others, all suffering severely from the bitter cold.

Six sailors of the French cruiser Friant were drowned when a small boat which had been sent to the aid of the English vessel was swamped by a gigantic wave. The others reached the shore in a desperate condition and several still are suffering.

It is believed that the Dehli will be a complete loss, as she lies in an exposed position and the storm, which is one of the worst experienced in years, has whipped up a sea that will soon batter the boat to pieces.

Wireless messages carried the news of the Dehli's plight to the British warships at Gibraltar. Realizing that several members of the royal family were on board, all was excitement and bustle in a moment. The two cruisers, the Duke of Edinburgh and the Duke of Weymouth, were at once dispatched to aid the stranded passengers.

BRIBERY PROBE NEAR END

Senator Lorimer Will Probably Take Stand in Own Behalf and Close Defense.

Washington.—Announcement was made that the defense in the Lorimer case has but a few more witnesses to present to the investigating committee and Senator William Lorimer of Illinois will probably take the stand in defense of his seat in the senate.

The news came as a surprise to nearly all concerned in the case, as it was expected that Attorney Hadley, counsel for Lorimer, would bring in scores of witnesses and indefinitely postpone the termination of the hearings. It is likely that Lorimer's right to his seat will be settled in the senate about the end of January, after a fight lasting nearly two years.

MAN LEAPS TO AWFUL DEATH

Naked Machinist Hurls Himself From Nineteenth Floor of Masonic Temple at Chicago.

Chicago.—Removing all his clothing and scaling the five-foot iron fence which was built to keep suicides from jumping down the lightwell of the Masonic temple, J. F. Greek, a machinist, leaped from the nineteenth story of the big building.

Hurling down 300 feet, striking against the gallery railings, his nude body crashed into the glass roof of the ground floor rotunda. Harry Evans, clerk at the stand, was knocked down and probably fatally injured by flying glass and broken wood which the force of the fall scattered about the rotunda.

General Hayes Ready, for War.

San Antonio, Tex.—It, reported here from a reliable source at Laredo that Gen. Bernardo Reyes was intrenched with an insurrectionary army in the mountains near Galeana, Nuevo Leon state, and expected to be in Monterey soon.

President Eliot Improving.

Colombo, Ceylon.—Mrs. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard university, is operating upon her husband at this place and reports that he is responding favorably.

HYDE TRIAL ENDS

MISSING JUROR WALDRON HE TURNS—JUDGE HOLDS HE IS INSANE; DISMISSES JURY.

CASE IS NOW SET FOR JAN. 2

Ventleman Tells of Flight While Caused Partial—Says He Wanted Fresh Air and Freedom—Did Not Get Far From Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo.—Following the return to court of Harry W. Waldron, the missing juror in the trial of Dr. B. Clarke Hyde, charged with murder, Judge Porterfield discharged the jury in that case. This action enables the show that Waldron had not discussed the case during his absence. Judge Porterfield said that Waldron was insane at the time he escaped and is still insane. He was permitted to go home and will not be punished.

Dr. Hyde's third trial was set for January 2, 1912. It is generally understood that the state will ask for a continuance of the case at that time.

Attorneys for Dr. Hyde objected to the dismissal of the jury. Judge Porterfield overruled their objection and said the rights of the defendant had not been placed in jeopardy. The attorneys for the defense were greatly downcast over the sudden ending of the trial. They had regarded the jury as favorable to the cause of Dr. Hyde.

The majority of the jurymen refused to discuss their opinions of the case. Several of them had not made up their minds. One juror said he was convinced that Dr. Hyde would have been acquitted, as many of the jurymen thought the state's witnesses had been coached.

While Judge Porterfield holds that Waldron is insane it is not believed he is dangerous. He was permitted to go back to his detry, for it was thought that a change would probably if given open air work and something to occupy his mind. Waldron declared that he was not insane. He wants to be left alone and given a chance to recover his strength, he says.

Throughout the reading of the judge's order discharging the jury Waldron sat in the jury box and gazed steadily at the court. No change was noted in the fairyman's countenance when the judge read his opinion that the juror was insane. When the jury finally was released Waldron passed among attorneys and jurymen, shaking hands with them. He expressed deep regret for running away. He said he wanted sunshine, fresh air and a chance to visit his family. Those he had obtained since his escape.

Waldron never was far away from Kansas City. After he escaped from the hotel he went to a railroad yard and caught a freight train to Emporia, Kan. He wanted to go to New Mexico, he said, but the train was too far as he got. There he learned that it was feared he had killed himself and he turned back. He reached Kansas City, Kan., nervous, half starved and almost out of money. For two hours he slept at the home of a friend in that city. Then he came across the line and went to his home.

NEGRO HANGED IN THEATER

Relatives of Man Slain by Colored Preacher Watch Execution From Opera House Boxes.

Jackson, Ga.—Rev. William Turner, the negro preacher who incited the race riot which resulted in the killing of Jesse Singley, a wealthy planter, was hanged here in King's opera house.

The sheriff had intended to hang the negro in the jail yard, but the weather was very disagreeable and the relatives of the murdered man wished to be present. He decided to have the execution in the opera house.

The gallows was erected on the stage and the execution passed off without a hitch. The boxes and front seats were occupied by relatives and friends of the murdered man. Only a few persons in addition were admitted.

Before the trap was sprung the negro confessed that he fired the shot which killed Singley and warned members of his race against whisky drinking.

Three sons of Turner are in jail awaiting trial for the same crime for which their father was hanged.

BAR ABSINTHE FROM COUNTRY

Order Forbidding Importation of Drug Into United States Awaits Signature.

Washington.—Declaring absinthe dangerous to health, the pure food board of the department of agriculture decided that its importation into the United States should be prohibited after January 31 next.

The order awaits the signature of Secretary Wilson before becoming effective.

Mobbed Visiting Sweetheart.

Bridgeport, Ct.—Is Decision to visited Arelada to see his white sweetheart, Walter Davis, a negro, was ordered to leave town by 150 white men. He was observed with eggs by a mob, and took refuge in a freight car, where he was shackled by the sheriff.

Will Quit Party Council.

New Haven, Conn.—It is announced at Hartford that Charles W. Brooker, Democratic state chairman, and other committees from Connecticut will resign shortly.

CRAZED VICTIMS FLEE

CHALK SIGNS FEAR RESCUERS TO DYING COAL MINERS.

Burning Mine Yields Dead and Dying as Terror-Stricken Negroes Run Before Deadly Fire Comes.

Greenville, Texas.—Thirty-six bodies have been taken out of the Cross Mountains coal mine, and the work of burial preparations and quick funeral services went on. Canary birds, the most sensitive to carbon monoxide that will not support life, are being used to warn the danger line for volunteer rescuers who are searching for the 76 or more men remaining in the mine, some of whom are believed to be still alive.

By chalk marks on beams and rocks those men have been traced down the blackened corridors as they made their stand, and then were forced back by the damp.

"We have gone to 23," one message read, and a roughly drawn hand, with index finger outstretched, pointed toward the designated cross section of the mine. At top speed the squad went to section 23, but found it empty.

None of the precious chalk was wasted by the fighting prisoners to tell how many were in the party or whether they had food and water. It is hoped, however, that the 76 or more miners who are supposed to be in the mine still are sticking together, and that when the party is found it will be found to contain all the men now missing.

While the main rescue squad is keeping at its task a smaller band of workers is engaged in the pitiful work of trying to capture two miners whose terrible experiences in the explosion have converted them into raving maniacs.

VOTE TO ABROGATE TREATY

House Adopts Sulzer Resolution to Cancel Agreement With Russia With One Opposing Voice.

Washington.—The Sulzer resolution demanding the abrogation of the treaty with Russia passed the house practically without a dissenting vote. The vote in favor of the resolution was 300 to 1. Mr. Malby of New York, a Republican, was the only one to vote against the resolution.

A day of fervid oratory, in which Russia's treatment of American Jews was fully recounted, preceded the passage of the resolution. On the floor but one voice was raised against the measure. It was that of Mr. Mann of Mr. McCall of Massachusetts. He urged that the Russian passport question be submitted for arbitration before the house took drastic action. More than fifty speakers, in addition to those ranging from one to five minutes in length, spoke in favor of the resolution.

PENSION BILL IS PASSED

Sherwood's Dollar-a-Day Measure Will Add Between $35,000,000 to $45,000,000 to Roll Annually.

Washington.—The Sherwood "dollar a day" pension bill, which, it is estimated, would add from $35,000,000 to $45,000,000 to the pension roll, passed the house.

The vote was along non-partisan lines, the great majority of Democrats and Republicans favoring it.

The parliamentary measure was framed in several particulars. Representative Mann obtained amendments making the bill applicable to veterans of the Mexican war and to old soldiers confined in soldiers' homes.

NOW SHOWS BIG SURPLUS

Hitchcock Report Says Postal Deficit Is Wiped Out By Department.

Washington.—The annual financial statement of the postoffice department, submitted by Postmaster General Hitchcock shows a surplus instead of a deficit for the first time since 1886. The revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, amounted to $237,879,932.60 and the expenditures of $237,660,705.46, leaving a surplus of $219,188.12. At the beginning of the present administration in 1909 the postal service was in arrears to the extent of $17,479,770.47, which was decidedly the largest deficit on record.

SHUSTER HAS NOT RESIGNED

Persian Cabinet Favored Move But Parliament Refused Its Permission—Body May Quit.

London.—Late advices from Teheran contradict the St. Petersburg report that W. Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer general of Persia, has tendered his resignation. The advices state that the Persian cabinet favored the resignation, but failed to get the consent of the parliament. The cabinet in view of this implied lack of confidence probably will resign.

Eight-Hour Bill Passed.

Washington.—The 10,000 women and makers and 3,000 laborers who have been working nine hours a day since November 13 last under the struggle between the two houses of congress will have eight hours' work after January 1, 1913, if the senate bill passed by the house without a dissenting vote.

Great Storm Fails.

Berlin.—The 10,000 women and makers and 3,000 laborers who have been working nine hours a day since November 13 last under the struggle between the two houses of congress will have eight hours' work after January 1, 1913, if the senate bill passed by the house without a dissenting vote.

A FEDERAL HEALTH BOARD

It is gratifying to note that the bill for the creation of a federal health board will not be allowed to pass without a protest. Reports of organized resistance come from all parts of the country, and it may be that the opposition will soon be sufficiently solidified to defeat a project that promises infinite mischief for the ingenuity and suffering and injustice for the individual.

The proposal is based upon those specious claims that are notoriously hard to controvert. If a federal health board were to combine its efforts to the promulgation of salutary advice upon hygienic matters, to the obtainment of purer food and to the purity of drugs, it might be possible to say much in its favor, although it would still be difficult to say that such an organization is needed. But we know that it will attempt to do far more than this, seeing that its adherents have loudly proclaimed their intentions. Indeed, there is no secrecy about them. It is confidently expected that the board will consist of advocates of one school of medicine only and that the methods of that school will be not only recommended, but enforced upon the nation. Indeed if board that was in any way representative of the medical profession as a whole would be stultified by its own disagreements. Outside the domain of simple hygiene, for which we need no federal board at all, there is no single point of medical practice upon which allopaths, homeopaths, eclectics and osteopaths could be in unison. Any board that could be devised by the wit of man must be composed of representatives of one school only, and this means that all other schools are doomed as of inferior rank, even though nothing worse happened to them. And something worse would happen to them. If we are to establish a school of medicine, if we are to assert that the government of the United States favors one variety of practice more than others, why not establish also a sect of religion and forbid special authorities upon Baptists, Methodists and Episcopalians? The established school of medical conjecture seems somewhat less objectionable than an established sect of pseudo-scientific conjecture.

Those who suppose that a federal board of health would have no concern with individual rights are likely to find themselves undeceived. It is for the purpose of interfering with individual rights that the proposal has been made. We need no special knowledge of conditions to be aware that what may be most effective methods of healing have made and indeed have into the orthodox. Homeopathy claims a vast number of adherents who are just as well educated and just as intelligent as those who adhere to the older school. Osteopathy, eclecticism, and half a dozen other methods of practice are certainly on debatable ground. Beyond them is the vast and increasing army of those who may be classed under the general and vague name of mental healers. Those who are addicted to any of these forms of unorthodox practice will be a menace to the purposes of the federal health board. Those purposes are simple. It difficult for them to follow their particular fads and fancies, to lead them into the end if necessary, even from medical unorthodoxy to medical orthodoxy.

Now the Argonaut holds no brief for any of the excesses and the superstitions connected with the care of the body in which this age is afflicted. It does feel concerned for the preservation of human liberty and for the rights of the individual to control himself in any way he pleases so long as he does not indubitably threaten the health of his neighbor. What he may take large doses of small ones, or no doses at all; he may be managed, anointed or let alone, as he wishes. Just as the whim of the moment may dictate, and probably it makes no particle of difference which he does. But he has the right to choose, just as he chooses the color of his necktie or the character of his underclothing. It is not a matter in which any wise government will seek to interfere. This is precisely the liberty that the health board intends to take from him. Under the medical conscience of its bosses, is trying to buttress itself by federal statute, to exalt allopathy to the status of a privileged caste, and to create an established school of medicine just as some other countries have allowed themselves to create an established school of religion. It is for the common sense of the community to rebuke that effort and to repel an unwarranted invasion upon elementary human rights.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Drain of the Company.

On his way home from the theater, where he had seen a performance of "Peer Gynt," Bobby was unusually quiet.

"Didn't you enjoy the play," his grandfather asked at last.

"Oh, yes, very much," replied Bobby. "But, grandpapa, there's one thing I think is quite dreadful. Does the black man kill a lady every night?"—Youth's Companion.

Natural Deduction.

"Pepa, are lawyers always bad-tempered?"

"No, daughter; why do you ask that?"

"Because I read so much in the papers about their cross-examinations."

Kindred Spirits.

"Lady," said Plodding Pete, "I ain't had a square meal in two days."

"Well," said the hospitable woman as she turned the dog loose, "neither has I. Come in and know you'll excuse him. He's quite peculiar."

The RING and the MAN

WITH SOME INCIDENTAL RELATION TO THE WOMAN

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

ILLUSTRATIONS BY DESBOROUGH MITCHELL

COPYRIGHT 1903 BY HARPER AND BROTHERS

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young tenderfoot becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a drunken prospector, and they journey taking town. They propose to be married, but Mr. Baldwin appears and confronts the amiable husband. He is shot by the wife, but the chivalrous boy plans a scheme to get the body away and take the blame upon himself. In their flight to the railroad station the tenderfoot's horse falls, exhausted; the youth is thrown to the ground by the jolt and, rushing to the station, arrives in time to see the train disappear. Seeing he is an innocent man, the woman thrusts her regret into a slow drift and runs on. Straightway he stumbles into the railroad station just as the train bears the woman away. Twenty-five years later, this man, Haldane, is a leading financier in New York. He marries Miss Stewart, a beautiful and wealthy settlement worker, and co-operates with Cormly, who has made Cormly become owner of a steamship line and finds himself frustrated in pier and track extension plans by erecting the Gotham Freight Co. Collingwood, a rival company. An automobile accident brings the latter's daughter to Haldane's home. Cormly tells Haldane of what she carries in her satchel—the Declaration of Independence, and he makes an unexpected declaration of love. He is shocked by the confirmation of his suspicions that he has been cheated and sent backstock of the interaction company which he is attempting to form. Cormly tells Haldane of his plan to form a combination with the Gotham Traction company, and in an interview between Cormly and Haldane the latter practically offers his daughter's hand as a bribe for Cormly to withdraw. Cormly refuses.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

"I love your daughter in ways that I doubt you are able to understand; but I would not take her on such conditions as those you mean me to infer. I would not degrade her by thinking of her in such terms, even if I lost her forever. I am unworthy of her now. God knows! but I would be as far beneath her under such circumstances that I could not even look at her again. I don't understand how she could have been born of such a father."

"I will not be talked to in that manner by you, sir," cried Haldane, who did not lack courage. "I have already definitely decline your proposal for my daughter's hand."

"I will take that declination from her, and from no one else!" said Cormly.

"She will repeat it, I am sure, if she hears with what insolence you have treated me."

"And I pray God for the sake of her love toward you and her respect toward you that she may never hear a word of what you have said. I have had enough of this interview, Mr. Haldane."

He turned to the door.

"Wait!" said Haldane.

"To hear another infamous proposition from you?"

"No, sir. But I have something more to say, and it is this: You are not so invulnerable yourself, sir, but that you might be glad for a little judicious silence."

"What do you mean?"

"Never mind what I mean. You publish what you have there at your peril! I warn you that in two days hereafter, your name will ring as a scoundrel and a blackguard throughout the United States."

"Having had bribery and failed, you now resort to threats," said Cormly. "But that you are base I knew."

He clenched his fist, stood staring a minute, then shrugged his shoulders, shook his head and turned away.

"You won't be warned, then?" said Haldane.

"Not by you."

"And you intend to publish my connection?"

"Everywhere."

"I shall tell Eleanor that you have done it."

"I shall tell her myself," returned Cormly, tearing open the door, "Haldane," he called, as he stepped into the hall. When the young man presented himself, he thus addressed him: "Your father and I have had a rather painful interview, into the details of which it is not necessary to enter. I have only to say that in the story I told you goes to the newspapers tonight. And now" he held out his hand, "goodby. I wish that we might have fought together until the end."

"But we are going to fight together until the end," cried the young man fiercely. "I love your father, and until now I have always respected him. I have been content to follow his lead; but I can do so no longer."

"You will both of you live to regret it," cried old Haldane after a long look at the pair. With his head high he marched out through the door. "Do your worst!" he said as he closed it behind him. "You will see what will happen to you in a day or two!"

"What does it mean?" asked Miss Stewart.

"It means," said Livingstone, that my father is fighting with a band of scoundrels; that he is the brain and backbone of the Gotham Freight Traction company; that we are fighting; and that he is involved in a struggle with Cormly, and that Cormly has the right to ask you what I had intended to ask you when the campaign was over and we had won, to be my wife."

"Are you asking me now?" cried Miss Stewart ecstatically.

"I would be if it was proper."

"It is proper," she said, blushing divinely.

"You don't mean—"

"You goose!" said the girl, "I don't love your father or your family."

Here Cormly turned and went into the drawing room again. When he came back, which he did not do until summoned by Miss Stewart herself, he confronted the blushing pair.

"You could not have chosen a truer, better man than Mr. Haldane," he said. "And as for you, Haldane, you are the luckiest man on earth."

He sighed with envy and regret as he spoke.

"I want to do something for you now," said Haldane.

"Well, there is one thing you can do for me."

"What is that?"

"I want to see your sister, and immediately."

"I will have her here in ten minutes," answered the young man, turning himself away from Miss Stewart without another word.

CHAPTER XIV.

Cormly Resists His Greatest Temptation.

Cormly had faced many difficult situations in his life. Even his successful business career had confronted him with crises of moment. But he never contemplated anything which imposed so hard a task upon his fortitude and his feelings as the approaching interview. What means young Haldane would take to induce his sister to intervene with him, how much of what had transpired he would tell her, Cormly had no means of knowing or divining. He felt confident that by hook or crook the young woman would be produced, and that a few minutes would find him face to face with her.

He did not in the least know how to begin or what to say, and the more he thought of it the more difficult became the situation. It was well that the time for reflection was short, it is better for a man who has to do great things to do them before the immoral and spiritual enemy has time to instil doubts into the mind. And it was with a feeling of relief in his growing apprehension and misery, therefore, that he heard the door open. He heard voices that he knew in the hall, and in another moment Miss Haldane entered the room alone. She had risen on her approach and stood confronting her, she was evidently greatly surprised.

"I did not know you were here," she said, "and I thought that I had come to see my brother."

"He will be here in a moment, Miss Haldane," said Cormly, "and I am glad that you have come, for I have something to say to you."

"It is a most extraordinary proceeding," said the girl nervously, "I cannot imagine why I was brought to you."

"It was necessary for me to see you," returned the man.

"Then why didn't you come to my house?"

"I could not."

"Why not?"

"There are reasons which will probably render me forever an unwelcome visitor to your house."

"I believe," said the girl slowly, slowly, "that something very serious must have happened, or you would not have had me brought here."

"I can scarcely bear to tell you."

"You alarm me beyond measure!" cried the girl, pressing her hands to her breast as if to still its wild throbbing. "You must not keep me in suspense any longer! What is it that you have to tell me? What is it that is likely to come between us?"

"This," responded Cormly, handing her a few typewritten sheets of paper. "Am I to read this?" she asked, taking it from him and looking very straight at him.

His was very pale now and she was scarcely less white.

"Wait!" said the man, as she lifted the paper and bent her head. "Perhaps it would be more merciful to tell you."

"Just as you think best. I am a strong woman. I can bear anything. Is it about," there was a long pause—"my father?"

He signed with envy and regret as he spoke.

"I want to do something for you now," said Miss Haldane.

"Well, there is one thing you can do for me."

"What is that?"

"I want to see your sister, and immediately."

"I will have her here in ten minutes," answered the young man, turning himself away from Miss Stewart without another word.

CHAPTER XIV.

Cormly Resists His Greatest Temptation.

Cormly had faced many difficult situations in his life. Even his successful business career had confronted him with crises of moment. But he never contemplated anything which imposed so hard a task upon his fortitude and his feelings as the approaching interview. What means young Haldane would take to induce his sister to intervene with him, how much of what had transpired he would tell her, Cormly had no means of knowing or divining. He felt confident that by hook or crook the young woman would be produced, and that a few minutes would find him face to face with her.

He did not in the least know how to begin or what to say, and the more he thought of it the more difficult became the situation. It was well that the time for reflection was short, it is better for a man who has to do great things to do them before the immoral and spiritual enemy has time to instil doubts into the mind. And it was with a feeling of relief in his growing apprehension and misery, therefore, that he heard the door open. He heard voices that he knew in the hall, and in another moment Miss Haldane entered the room alone. She had risen on her approach and stood confronting her, she was evidently greatly surprised.

"I did not know you were here," she said, "and I thought that I had come to see my brother."

"He will be here in a moment, Miss Haldane," said Cormly, "and I am glad that you have come, for I have something to say to you."

"It is a most extraordinary proceeding," said the girl nervously, "I cannot imagine why I was brought to you."

"It was necessary for me to see you," returned the man.

"Then why didn't you come to my house?"

"I could not."

"Why not?"

"There are reasons which will probably render me forever an unwelcome visitor to your house."

"I believe," said the girl slowly, slowly, "that something very serious must have happened, or you would not have had me brought here."

"I can scarcely bear to tell you."

"You alarm me beyond measure!" cried the girl, pressing her hands to her breast as if to still its wild throbbing. "You must not keep me in suspense any longer! What is it that you have to tell me? What is it that is likely to come between us?"

"This," responded Cormly, handing her a few typewritten sheets of paper.

"Am I to read this?" she asked, taking it from him and looking very straight at him.

His was very pale now and she was scarcely less white.

"Wait!" said the man, as she lifted the paper and bent her head. "Perhaps it would be more merciful to tell you."

"Just as you think best. I am a strong woman. I can bear anything. Is it about," there was a long pause—"my father?"

He signed with envy and regret as he spoke.

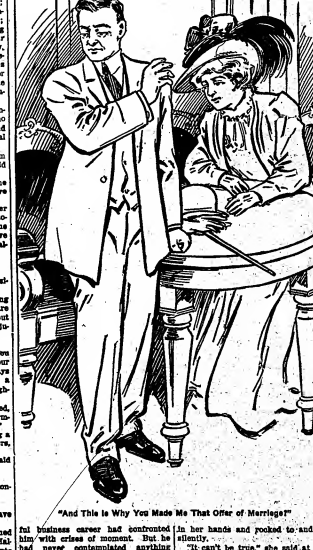
"I want to do something for you now," said Miss Haldane.

"Well, there is one thing you can do for me."

"What is that?"

"I want to see your sister, and immediately."

"I will have her here in ten minutes," answered the young man, turning himself away from Miss Stewart without another word.



CHAPTER XIV.

Cormly Resists His Greatest Temptation.

Cormly had faced many difficult situations in his life. Even his successful business career had confronted him with crises of moment. But he never contemplated anything which imposed so hard a task upon his fortitude and his feelings as the approaching interview. What means young Haldane would take to induce his sister to intervene with him, how much of what had transpired he would tell her, Cormly had no means of knowing or divining. He felt confident that by hook or crook the young woman would be produced, and that a few minutes would find him face to face with her.

He did not in the least know how to begin or what to say, and the more he thought of it the more difficult became the situation. It was well that the time for reflection was short, it is better for a man who has to do great things to do them before the immoral and spiritual enemy has time to instil doubts into the mind. And it was with a feeling of relief in his growing apprehension and misery, therefore, that he heard the door open. He heard voices that he knew in the hall, and in another moment Miss Haldane entered the room alone. She had risen on her approach and stood confronting her, she was evidently greatly surprised.

"I did not know you were here," she said, "and I thought that I had come to see my brother."

"And This is Why You Made Me That Offer of Marriage?"

"He will be here in a moment, Miss Haldane," said Cormly, "and I am glad that you have come, for I have something to say to you."

"It is a most extraordinary proceeding," said the girl nervously, "I cannot imagine why I was brought to you."

"It was necessary for me to see you," returned the man.

"Then why didn't you come to my house?"

"I could not."

"Why not?"

"There are reasons which will probably render me forever an unwelcome visitor to your house."

"I believe," said the girl slowly, slowly, "that something very serious must have happened, or you would not have had me brought here."

"I can scarcely bear to tell you."

"You alarm me beyond measure!" cried the girl, pressing her hands to her breast as if to still its wild throbbing. "You must not keep me in suspense any longer! What is it that you have to tell me? What is it that is likely to come between us?"

"This," responded Cormly, handing her a few typewritten sheets of paper.

"Am I to read this?" she asked, taking it from him and looking very straight at him.

His was very pale now and she was scarcely less white.

"Wait!" said the man, as she lifted the paper and bent her head. "Perhaps it would be more merciful to tell you."

"Just as you think best. I am a strong woman. I can bear anything. Is it about," there was a long pause—"my father?"

He signed with envy and regret as he spoke.

"I want to do something for you now," said Miss Haldane.

"Well, there is one thing you can do for me."

"What is that?"

"I want to see your sister, and immediately."

"I will have her here in ten minutes," answered the young man, turning himself away from Miss Stewart without another word.

CHAPTER XIV.

Cormly Resists His Greatest Temptation.

Cormly had faced many difficult situations in his life. Even his successful business career had confronted him with crises of moment. But he never contemplated anything which imposed so hard a task upon his fortitude and his feelings as the approaching interview. What means young Haldane would take to induce his sister to intervene with him, how much of what had transpired he would tell her, Cormly had no means of knowing or divining. He felt confident that by hook or crook the young woman would be produced, and that a few minutes would find him face to face with her.

He did not in the least know how to begin or what to say, and the more he thought of it the more difficult became the situation. It was well that the time for reflection was short, it is better for a man who has to do great things to do them before the immoral and spiritual enemy has time to instil doubts into the mind. And it was with a feeling of relief in his growing apprehension and misery, therefore, that he heard the door open. He heard voices that he knew in the hall, and in another moment Miss Haldane entered the room alone. She had risen on her approach and stood confronting her, she was evidently greatly surprised.

"I did not know you were here," she said, "and I thought that I had come to see my brother."

In Old Bill's Camp

By MARJORIE W. MERRIT

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Old Bill's camp nestled down on the edge of a lake in the heart of the Maine woods. It was built of logs and, had been originally a lumbermen's camp. After all the desirable timber had been cut and the camp abandoned, Old Bill had found it and made application to the owners for it. Being granted permission to live in it, he had taken up his solitary abode for the woods, and for five years, winter and summer, he had lived within the ample log house.

Old Bill was a guide and in his younger days no guide of the Maine woods had been more popular. He was full six feet in height and he knew the woods and trails, the lakes and mountains like a book. Then there had come a time when he could no longer tramp from morning till night with young, enthusiastic fishermen or hunters, and carry their packs and cook their meals. But when that time came he found that he could not leave the woods. He loved them—every foot of them—whether they were strewn with fragrant pine needles or carpeted with the snows of winter.

The old guide had a small pension from the United States. He had served his time in the civil war and this monthly sum, small though it was, was sufficient for his wants, together with what he was able to find for his table in the woods and lakes. In summer he lived off fish and the berries that grew wild all about his camp. In winter, he fared well; venison and game were plentiful.

It was December—early December—but the winter was well under way in the north of Maine. Old Bill set by the stove in his cook house, burning six months' old magazine, when he heard the unfamiliar jingle of sleighbells on the crisp air.

He took his feet from the stove and stood upright, listening. The jingling sounds came closer. Some one had found the way to the isolated log camp and Bill made haste to throw on his great fur coat and step out of doors.

Stood Upright Listening.

In the distance, picking their way slowly between the hows that marked the trail across the frozen lake, came two horses drawing a sled. The road was well marked by the green branches Old Bill himself had helped to chop in the ice, but a heavy snow of the night before had made sleighing heavy. Old Bill closed the cabin door and walked through the narrow footpath to the foot of the lake. He surveyed the horses and sled a few miles away, but he little thought of their coming on a day like this.

"Hallo Bill!" came across the cold air to him.

Bill waved his great hand. As yet he could see nothing but the sled and some muffled creatures within.

"We've got a surprise for you, Old Bill," said one of the men as the sled drew up.

"You sure have," replied the guide, helping to hold the horses while the persons crawled out from beneath the fur rugs and stepped into the deep snow. "You don't mean to tell me I've seen a living soul for three weeks—nor used my voice for as long. Put the horses up in the shed and blanket them well. Have you got feed?"

Frank Allen, for it was he, attended to the animals as Old Bill, putting his arm on a little figure all wrapped in a great coat, fur cap, veil and mittens, said: "Now, is the surprise?" He took off the heavy garments and a lovely girl stepped behind him. "This Old Bill," said Jack Allen's daughter, Isabel Rogers, from Omaha, Nebraska."

Old Bill rubbed his eyes. "Why, did you say Jack Allen's daughter?" he cried. "Not my daughter Belle's girl?"

"Yes, your daughter Belle's girl," said Jack Allen, "and your grandchild, Isabel."

"Grandchild!" cried Old Bill. "Why, I didn't even know that Belle had married. I've been out of touch with the world for so long that Frenchman Rogers and went out west to live," he said.

"The others had stepped aside, seeing the old man's emotion.

"My mother has—has gone," the girl faltered, "and it was her last request—she made me promise to find you and live with you. She was afraid of my health and she knew the cold mountain air and the out-of-door life would be good for me. Oh, not that I'm not all right," the girl hastened to explain, "but mother was afraid after father died that I might not be strong. I wrote to you and each time my letters were returned from the postoffice in Greenville, so I determined to come and find you. Mr. Allen took me into his home when I arrived and promised to find you for me. He says he has known you for years, granddather."

The old guide nodded repeatedly at the last coming to a realization of what had taken place. His own grandchild had come to live with him—his daughter Belle's child! It seemed incredible but there she stood, a living proof of the truth—for Isabel was like her dead mother.

"Well, well, let's get some supper and celebrate," the old guide began, turning to the others. His heart was too full for further words with the girl; there would be time enough for that.

Frank Allen rubbed his hands together in front of the stove. "In that basket there is enough plain food for a week and with the aid of your venison, Old Bill, I guess we'll make out. There is a generous supply of canned corn if they'd drive us out here they should have such a dinner as they've never had in camp before. Bring a six months' old magazine, when he heard the unfamiliar jingle of sleighbells on the crisp air.

Isabel looked out of the tiny window at the adjoining cabin of logs. It was piled high with snow banked to keep out the cold, they told her. If a little shudder passed through her at the thought of sleeping out there she did not give evidence of it. She was brave and she had promised her mother.

Old Bill's camp rang with merriment that night as the five sat around the red-covered table and ate of the guide's cooking and welcomed to the camp the pretty western granddaughter.

The visitors were not long on their way the next morning before Isabel and her grandfather were out making footpaths in the snow and exploring. The girl took readily to the cold weather and helped to make her little cabin comfortable. The guide had made a great fire for her in the stove and she had unpacked the few homelike things she had brought with her.

"Do many hunters come this way?" asked the girl, bearing shots in the woods far off.

"Yes — plenty," replied the guide. "It is a good season for deer."

And even as they sat at supper that night they heard a knock at the cook room door.

"Come in!" roared Old Bill, without rising. "This was the hospitality of the woods.

A lone man, blue and cold and tired, flung open the door. He sank into a chair, exhausted.

Old Bill rose hastily and went to him. "Lost?" he asked, substituting the man's fur coat.

"Yes—I got lost from my party this morning and have been tramping ever since. I saw your light."

"A lucky light for you, my boy," said Old Bill, in kindly tones. "Come over and have supper with me and my—grand-daughter," he said.

And after a while when the men was wormed and fed become rested, he joined them.

"This is often happens, Isabel, my girl," explained the old man, "so don't be surprised. I've been a refuge for many a lost hunter."

"You've been mine, indeed," added the protected man as he drank the coffee Isabel had heated for him.

When Isabel went to her lonely bedroom that night she felt more lonely. In all the great dense snow-covered forest she did not feel alone. Something had taken over that night, she felt at peace with all the world, just now, and slept.

And Old Bill still has his camp, but it is enlivened during fishing and hunting season by visits from his grand-daughter and the husband he gave shelter to on one cold December night.

Lofty.

"Did he speak in high terms of the doctor?"

"Yes; he said he charged ten dollars a visit."—Town Topics.

Presumptive Evidence.

"There, now, Gilly carries his dog to church to listen to an extreme unction."

"Why, I've married a Christian."

THE SUNBEAM.

BY W. G. HUNT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1905, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1,00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

A straw vote taken among the delegates in attendance at the State Association of Farmers clubs at Lansing Michi. on December 7th, showing their choice for president in 1912, indicates a surprising LaFollet sentiment. Fifty one republican delegates expressed their sentiment and 21 democrats. The republican vote resulted as follows:

LaFollet 32, Roosevel 5, Osborn 4, Taft 8, The democrats expressed themselves as follows: Wilson 12, Clark 3, Underwood 2, Harman 4. Almost to a man the farmers said that rather than to support Mr. Taft they would vote the democratic ticket,

Saxons.

Saxon is from "seax," a sword, and so the "Men of the Sword." In the early days the Saxons took for themselves such names as "Bloody Ax," "Skull Cleaver," "Death's Head," names which in no way belied their original character. The "berserker rage" of the old Vikings spread death and destruction all around the coasts which they haunted, and by the terror of their name they led the Christians to put into their litany the prayer, "Deliver us, O Lord, from the fury of the Northmen." Very terrible were these old Saxons, and to this day the most dreadful of all the people on the face of the earth, when they are thoroughly roused, are the descendants of the same Men of the Sword.—New York American.

End of Altruism.

Because he was too soft hearted to ask his poverty stricken landlady to buy new rugs for his room the altruistic young man bought several small rugs and spread them over the floor. Immediately after the next sweeping day she presented a bill for the week's expenditures: Items—Room rent, breakfasts, laundry and beating rugs, 25 cents.

"Hello!" said the altruistic young man. "What does this mean?"

"Just what it says," she returned. "If folks must cover their floor with extra rugs they'll have to pay for beating 'em, that's all. I can't afford to do it for nothing."

And from that moment altruism lost a disciple.—New York Times.

Persian Ware.

True porcelain was never produced in Persia, but hard paste porcelain in Persian forms and styles of decoration was made in China for the Persian market. Wine ewers with powder blue glaze and gold overglaze decoration, small vase, and bowls with bronze luster glaze and designs reserved in white are found in collections of Persian ware, but these are unquestionably of Chinese origin.—Argonaut.

Homelike.

Mamma—Why are you hiding from your little brother, Lizzie? Lizzie—Oh, we are just playing. I'm the lady of the house, and Tommy is the butcher come with his bill.—Chicago News.

Woman's Intuition.

Mrs. Crabshaw—I can't understand why I didn't see those faults in you before we were married. Mr. Crabshaw—It's quite plain, my dear. I don't possess them.—Judge.

Property has its duties as well as its rights.—Thomas Drummond.

Wanted the Combination.

Burglar—Don't shoot me, sir. Householder—On one condition—that you tell me how you got in without waking my wife.—Pele Mele.

When One Drills With Diamonds.

A diamond bit for rock drilling is quite an expensive article, says Cassier's Magazine. Its value, however, will undergo fluctuations, dependent upon the price of the diamonds. Perhaps $800 is a fair value for a bit. The diamond used is exceedingly hard—harder than those usually used as jewelry. Their carat price is considerable, averaging, say, $60 per carat. The diamonds used will weigh from one to two carats, so that eight have a value ranging from $480 to $960 on the average. The loss of a bit means many diamonds gone and may lead to difficulty with the hole. The diamond is not tough, but brittle. It will withstand heavy pressure if applied evenly and without shock. It [illegible]

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 22, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. Dec. 15th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given, that Anun Evendsen of Mavie Minn., who on November 9th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 865 Serial No. 04814, for N. W. ¼ Section 12 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 1st. day of February 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Gunder Evendson, Torjus Hemmestvedt, Andrew O. Sandland, of Mave Minn. Ole Legvold, of Thief River Falls Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First pub in the sunbeam Dec. 22nd.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Dec. 15th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Gunder Evendson Aastad, of Mavie Minn. who on Nov. 9th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 866, Serial No. 04815, for S. W. ¼ Section 12 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhem Michelet U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 1st. day of february 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Anun Evendsen, Tojus Hemmestvedt, Andrew O. Sandland, Ole Legvold, all of Mavie Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Dec. 8th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 4th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Thosten Eliefsen, of Kratka Minn. who on June 28th. 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 400, Serial No. 04149, for N.E. ¼ Section 19 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of Intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhiem Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th. day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ole Christoferson, Ole M. Peterson, Jacob R. Hesby, Louis O. Kongell, all of Kratka Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 29, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Perley P. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn. who on June 5th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 04809, for N. W. ¼ Section 22 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to to establish claim to the land above described, before.

Wilhiem Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. On the 3rd. day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter P. Korstad, Peter H. Thoreson, Charles Palmer, George L. Palmer, all of Highlanding Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 15, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. December 8th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Frank Savage, of Hilda Minnesota, who on December 11, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1004, Serial No. 04884 for Lot 6, 7, 9 and N.E. ¼ S.W. ¼ and on May 16th, 1911, made additional Homstead Entry No. 06105, for N.W. ¼ S.E. ¼, all in Section 6 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 23rd. day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Sivert Satre, of Thief River Falls Minn. Olof B. Hanson, Otto Stacy, John Olson Sordahl, of Hilda Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. In The Sunbeam Dec. 15th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Dec. 8th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Henry Runoeetrand, of Kratka Minnesota, who on July 1st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 480, Serial No. 04638, for S. W. ¼ Section 4 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn, on the 20th. day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Olaf Brevik, Gubleg Holnnu, Knut T. Nordguard, of Kratka Minn. Anders Anensen, of Mavie Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin, Register.

Running the Bluff.

"Is the doctor doing a general practice still?"

"No, he is an expert now."

"How did he [illegible]

SUMMONS

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington S. S. In District Court, 14th. Judicial District.

John A. Wig, Plaintiff, vs

Marcas Oleon Sandwick, if dead his heirs at law, Andreana Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law, Nickolina Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law, Anna Sandwick, if dead her heirs at Law, Inger Olava Sandwick, if dead her heirs at Law, and also all unknow heirs, devisees, grantees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any potion thereof.—Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS AND EACH OF THEM: YOU AND EACH OF YOU:

Are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which complaint is filed in the office of the Clerk of District Court within and for the the said County of Pennington, Minnesota, in said Judical District, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, within twenty (20) days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in said Complaint.

Stanton & Rowberg, Attorneys for Plaintiff, Thief River Falls Minn.

TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS.

Take notice that no personal claim is made against you or any of you in this action, and that the object thereof is to obtain judgement that the plaintiff is the owner in fee of the premises discribed in said complaint, and that you and each of you have no estate or interset therin or lien thereon.

Stanton And Rowberg, Attorneys for Plaintiff, Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE OF LIS PENDENS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington) S.S. In District Court, 14th, Judicial District.

John A. Wig, Plaintiff, vs

Marcus Olson Sadwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andeana Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; Anna Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; Ingor Olive Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law, and also all unknow heirs, devisees, and all pesons having or claiming any right, title or interest in of lein upon the premises decribed in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given that an action has been commenced in this Court by the above named plaintiff against the above named defendants, the object of which is to obtain judgement that the said plaintiff is the owner in fee of the East Half (E½) of Northwest Quarter (N.W.¼) and the West Half (W½) of the Northeast Quarter (N.E.¼) of Section Thirty one (31), Township One Hundred Fifty-four (154) North of Range Forty-four (44) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota, and that the said defendants and each of them have no interest therein or lein thereon. Dated this 28th, day of November 1911.

Stanton and Rowberg, Attorneys for Plaintiff, Thief River Falls Minn.

Office of Register of Deeds, County of Pennington, Minnesota.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 28th, day of November, A. D. 1911, at 2:30 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book 9 of Mortgages on Page 428.

[Seal] E. L. Quist Register of Deeds. By Effie Hamry, Deputy.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 17th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Ignatz Stastny, of Torgerson Minn. who on April 11th, 1905, made Homestead entary No. 1128, Serial No. 04456 for N. E. ¼ Section 24 Township 154 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 29th, day of December 1911.

Claimant names as witnesses:

John Markuson, Michael Kassa, Euegenn H. Besancon, Theodor Nelson, all of Torgerson Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin, Register.

Cutting the Bill.

"I have got to perform a very distasteful operation this morning," remarked the eminent surgeon.

"What is that?"

"One of my rich patients wants me to take a little something off his bill."—Washington Herald.

Notice for Publication

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 1st 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov. 24th, 1911.

[illegible] of Kratka Minnesota, who on June 28th, 1904, made Homestead entry No. 379, Serial No. 01107, for N. W. ¼ Section 9, Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ludvig Larson, Carl Jenson, Christian O. Nygaard, Peter Suland, all of Kratka Minn.

AURTHUR P. TOUPIN, Register.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of ten dollars which became due November 3rd, 1911 and is now due and payable upon a certain mortgage, duly made, executed and delivered by Bertha Pederson, an unmarried woman, as mortgagor, to C. L. Hanson, mortgagee, bearing date the 3rd, day of November, 1909, and with power therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 1st, day of December 1903, at five o'clock P.M., in book 6 of Mortgages on Page 289, and is now recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington County, Minnesota, formerly a part of said Red Lake County, in book 33 of mortgages on page 203, and Whereas, said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay her prior mortgage of one thousad [$1000,00] dollars upon the same land or any instalment of interest due thereon, that the mortgagee of this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same and have a lien therefore, under this mortgage, and may declare this mortgage and the whole debt thereof imediatly due and payable; and default having been made in the payment of the sum of sixty dollars due November 1st, 1911, the same being interst due upon said prior mortgage and the same baving been paid by the undersigned, motgagee according to the terms and conitions of a certain cupon interest note, and the said mortgagee did at once elect to declare the whole amount secured by said first above described mortgage now due and payable, and whereas there is now claimed to be and is actualy due at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage now being foreclosed and above first described, the sum of forty and fifty-three one handeths [$40.53] dollars and the sum of sixty [$60.00] dollars and interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per anum from the first day of November 1911 amounting to fifty one hundreths dolars the same being the interest paid upon said prior mortgage and interest on the amout so paid from date of payment, amonntiag in all to the sum of one handred aad one and three one bundrethn [$101. 03] dollars, which is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debts secured by said mortgag or any part thereof:—

NOW THEREFORE, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and persuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described, will be foreclosed by the sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, towit:—The Southwest quarter of section number fourteen, in township one hundred fifty four north of range forty one West of the fifth Principal Meridian now in Minnesota, now in the County of Pennington Minnesota, fomerly a part of Red Lake County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Pennington County at the froot door of the Court-house in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the ninth day of February 1912, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said debt of one hundred one and three one hundrethn dollars and interest and taxes if any on said premises and twenty five $25.00) dollars attorney's fee, which amount is hereby claimed and stated to be a reasonable fee as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated December 20th, 1911.

C. L. Hanson, Mortgagee.

Stanton and Rowberg, Attorneys for Mortgagee, Thief River Falls Minn.

Judges' Wigs.

The wig is only worn by English barristers to give them a stern judicial appearance, and no one can say that it fails in this respect. The custom was originated by a French judge in the seventeenth century, when, happening to don a huge wig one day, he found it gave him such a stern and dignified appearance that he decided [illegible]

Santa Claus, Came.

WELL, I GOT HERE AT LAST. WHAT MADE ME LATE WAS STOPING TO BUY CHRISTMAS TOYS, BUT I FOUND THE BEST AND CHEAPEST ONES, AT ELLINGSON BROS., AT HIGHLANDING.

Where you will find a large stock of Exmas presents.

Hang up your stockings Christmas,
For Old Sata Clause is coming,
with a lot of them pretty toys that you have seen at ELLINGSON BROS.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES,

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF gROCERIES.

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER, Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At

THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT

SINGER BRO,

KRATKA, MINN

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Prices

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm products.

Yours For Business.— SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

[illegible] "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for Search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE

PATENT ATTORNEYS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof.

Singer Bros. have just received a big stock of goods at their new store at Kratka.

Ye editor made a business trip to Thief River Falls Sunday, returning Tuesday.

Henry Peterson returned to Rhoda to day with his wood saw rig after sawing the wood for this neighborhood.

Thief River Falls business men are doing a flurishing business now days. Prosperous farmers is the city builders.

A shipment of plate matter that we ordered from St. Paul faild to arrive in time for this weeks paper.

Martin Hyland gave a birth day party to a large number of friends on Monday evening. All who atted report having a fine time.

Oscar Nesland, Eddy Singer and the two Miss Gundersons, of Deer Park made this office a plesent call Wednesday, on their way home from Kratka.

We understand that there will be a Christmas tree intertainment at the Swanson school house in Deer Park township tomorrow night.

Herbert Swift left for his home at Sauk Centre to day, after closing a successful four months tearm of school in the Higlanding district.

Owing to a rush of legal work and the printer being absent at Thief River Falls two days this week, our local colums are not very well loaded with news this week.

It is dificult to walk through the streets of Thief River Falls, owing to fishermen armed with fish spears. About every fourth man you met either had fish to sell or give away.

We are waiting to hear what action, if any will be taken by the war department regarding Red Lake River. The way things are now they should either open this river or declare it not a navigable stream.

There was a large number attended the Christmas tree intertainment at the Highlanding school house last night. The school children gave a nice intertainment lasting one and one half hours, after which Santa Clause remember them with a large number of presents.

NOTICE: School District No. 37 will receive sealed bids for the delivery of ten cords of green popular cord wood at the school house, in said district, on or before February 15th, 1912. All bids should be sealed and filed with T. S. Jacobson, at Highlanding on, or before January 8th, at which time the contract will be let.—By order of the board.

Extra Hazardous.

Beers—Poor Mrs. DeAlterres has always been unlucky in the selection of her husbands.

Townsend—Why do you say that?

Beers—Her first husband was a guide in the Adirondacks, her second was a baseball umpire, her third was a manufacturer of dynamite and her last was an aviator.—Chicago News.

An Unbeliever.

"This here paper says as how they've just discovered the remains of a thirty-five foot saurian in Nevada."

"What in thunder's a saurian?"

"Blamed if I know. I s'pose mebbe it's somethin' like a sardine."

"Huh! You ign'rant chump, they ain't no thirty-five foot sardines."

"Well, there could be the remains of one, couldn't they?"

"Haw, haw! Who'd ever buy a box of them things?"

"Darn you, you're just like all the rest of these here smart guys that are upsettin' religion ... [illegible]

Pay up your back subscription.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 22, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Dec. 20th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that John Horuik, of Torgerson Minn. who on April 12th, 1905, made Homestead entery No. 1131, Serial No. 04457 for S. E. ¼ Section 18 Township 154 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Five Year Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 30th. day of January ber 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter M. Olson, Martin Salberg, Lars L. Salberg, Gustaf E. Whalen, all of Torgerson Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin
Register.

"I Suffered Intense Pains in My Left Side."

Do you realize it is better to be safe than sorry, that it is the best policy to lock the stable door before the horse is stolen?

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that it was impossible for me to do thirty minutes work in a whole day. I suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade, I could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least excitement would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half-bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. I began to sleep well, had a good appetite, and improved so rapidly that when I had taken six bottles I was completely cured.

MRS. C. C. GOKEY, Northfield, Vt.

If you have any of the symptoms Mrs. Gokey mentions, it is your duty to protect yourself.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.

is what you need. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned. Ask your druggist.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Horror Anticipated.

"Wot cheer, Alf? Yer lookin' sick. Wot is it?"

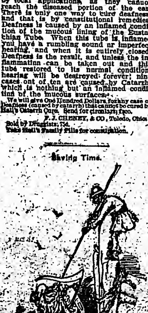
"Work! Nuffink but work, work, work, from mornin' till night."

"'Ow long 'ave yer been at it?"

"Start tomorrer."—Punch.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.



We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Saving Time.

Molly's Christmas Dinner

by Temple Bailey

(Copyright.)

"OH! but you couldn't really," Molly cried, incredulously.

"Yes, I can," Mrs. Phelps insisted.

She had a fancy to see how this pretty creature would take the men of her set. "I can lend you a gown and a hat and wrap, and you can take Vera Patterson's place. She has just telephoned that her cold is worse and that she can't be with us for Christmas dinner."

"I'd love it." Molly's eyes were like stars. "But—"

"There are no 'buts,'" Mrs. Phelps said calmly. "If I choose to add another guest to my Christmas dinner no one can possibly criticise."

"I've never dined in any of the big hotels," Molly confessed. "Terry wanted to make me once, but I couldn't—not in my old clothes."

"I don't see why you don't have some nice gowns," Mrs. Phelps said.

She had taken a fancy to her little seamstress; the girl's youth and beauty made her different from the usual cut-and-dried spinsters who work by the day.

"You could go around a lot if you had the things to wear."

Molly shook her head. "There are mother and father and Billy and Babe," she said. "I have to help out with the family expenses, and I mustn't spend everything on myself."

"So you just sit at home and stagnate," Mrs. Phelps complained.

Molly laughed. "Oh, Terry takes me out now and then."

"Who is Terry?"

"Well, he's a very nice boy who likes me," Molly confessed.

"And I suppose you'll marry him and be poor the rest of your life," was Mrs. Phelps' comment. "You're very silly, Molly."

Molly began to wonder if she wasn't silly. Here was an opportunity staring her in the face. Opportunity to meet rich men, opportunity to wear beautiful clothes.

"Do you really want me to go to your dinner?" she asked, half timidly.

"Of course," Mrs. Phelps said; "and I want you to try on the gown now."

It was a wonderful gown of white chiffon with the hem heavy with silver. There was a twist of white tulle which banded Molly's red-gold hair, with a silver rose at the side. The slippers were silver, and a little loose on Molly's tiny feet.

"They can be tied on with ribbons," Mrs. Phelps decided, "and they won't show under that long skirt."

In front of the long mirror Molly saw a wonderful vision.

Mrs. Phelps brought from a box a long wrap of lace and ermine and rose-colored velvet.

"I was afraid that color wouldn't go with your hair," she said, "but it gives you distinction, after all."

On her way home, again clothed in her shabby suit, Molly told Terry about it.

"She is going to give a Christmas dinner at the Belvidere," she said, "and one of her guests has disappointed her. She wants me to take her place, and I'm going to do it, Terry."

Terry's face fell. "Then you won't have dinner with us," he said. "We'll miss you, Molly."

"Oh, but it's my opportunity," her face was glowing. "Think of the people I'll meet."

He did think of the people she would meet, as he tramped home alone in the cold twilight. Terry knew something of the world, something of the men who would be at that dinner.

Babe and Billy protested strongly when they learned that Molly, the light of the household, was to spend her Christmas evening away from them.

"It will spoil all our fun," they said.

"Terry will be here," Molly told them. "Mother has planned a late dinner, because he has to work part of the day."

She felt a little conscience-stricken, however, as she left them, and not until she had donned the beautiful gown at Mrs. Phelps' could she put the thought of their tearful faces out of her mind.

It was a wonderful experience to ride through the streets in the limousine, wrapped in the rose-colored cloak, with a great bunch of valley lilies in her hand. She felt like a princess. She had the air of a princess ... swept through the wide corridor of the hotel, following Mrs. Phelps.

Her pleasure ... ended, however, when she met the other guests and sat down at the big round table ... [illegible]

... retort until now. ... the people around her lived in a world of their own. They talked of operas, of sports, of places of which Molly knew nothing. She didn't know that her pretty, blushing shyness charmed the multi-millionaire at her left and piqued the curiosity of the ambassador on her right. She was uncomfortable and self-conscious as she tried to fit her stammering little phrases to this new environment.

Gradually, as she gained poise, she confessed to herself that she was having a very stupid time. It wasn't a bit like Christmas; although the color scheme of the table was green and red, there was no holly, no mistletoe, just gorgeous American beauties and wide satin ribbons. She had a vision of the table set in the shabby dining room at home. In the center would be a great bunch of holly, and above it would hang a little wax angel. At one end she saw her father, his knife cutting through the crackling brown of the turkey's breast. The delicate fare of the hotel paled in comparison to her mother's cooking. At home there would be large helpings of mashed potatoes and turnips and gravy. The cranberry sauce would be served in big dishes.

As they drove home together, Mrs. Phelps said: "You were a success, my dear. If you will let me, I'll bring you out. Perhaps you will make a grand marriage. It would be a great thing for a girl like you."

Molly's response was not enthusiastic. She did not like to appear ungrateful, but she had had a most unhappy time. She had been a stranger in a strange land.

When she had changed her dress Mrs. Phelps sent her home in her car.

Terry met her at the door. Back of him was the red light of the dining-room lamp. Babe and Billy fell on her neck and welcomed her, and father and mother smiled in the background.

Molly had gifts for all of them. The lilies went on the center of the table, and she had tied up candies and almonds in the corner of her handkerchief. "I had an awful time hiding them," she confessed, "but I knew how you'd like them."

She had a red rose for Terry.

"The multi-millionaire gave it to me," she said. "Mrs. Phelps wants me to marry him."

Terry looked at her with his heart in his eyes, but he didn't say a word.

"The Multimillionaire Wants to Meet You Again."

Was Molly going to be swallowed up in that strange world, where men had millions and didn't have to work?

But Molly was demanding some of her mother's turkey.

"I hardly ate a thing at dinner," she said. "It was awful sitting up there and having people stare at me."

They brought it to her with delight, and she had to taste a little bit of everything and praise it.

When it was time for Terry to go she went with him to the front door, and they stood for a moment under the stars.

"Will you be going back to them?" Terry asked, jealously.

"Why should I?" Molly asked. "You couldn't go with me, could you, Terry?"

The next morning, when Molly went back to her sewing, Mrs. Phelps said, "The multi-millionaire wants to meet you again. When shall we plan for it, Molly?"

"Never," said Molly calmly. "I am going to marry Terry, and then I won't have any time for multi-millionaires, will I?"

Why We Rejoice.

In the manger at Bethlehem was cradled the hope of the world. That is why Christmas is the universal festival. That is why the world rejoices. But the manger must be interpreted largely. In the babe is the promise of the man and the Savior. It is not the birth alone that makes the gospel; it is also the life, the passion, the death, the resurrection, the ascension. Christmas carries all this in its happy content. There is the Good Shepherd who gave His life for the sheep, who leadeth His flock to green pastures and beside still waters and whose honor and good name are pledged to His leading in the ways of righteousness and paths of peace ... [illegible]

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLEE Lambert Post Office Minn,

NEW STATION ON DULUTH SOO LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors: A. P. Toupin, Pres. ... Vic. Pres. Larry O'Neil, ...

J. A. Duffy, Cashier. T. L. Cruzon, Assist. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool

New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS.

Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footwere try the ... FIND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO.

Highlanding Minn.

W. G. Hunt.

Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN

It is not necessary to make ... trips to the County seat, as ... can do the business by mail for ...

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail,

The U. S. Mail, leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays Thursdays and Saturdays.

Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p. m.

Wm. G. Hunt, p. m.

Rule Didn't Work.

"He seems to be an unconventional sort of fellow."

"He is at home wherever his hat is off."

"Oh, is he? Well, I saw him chasing a new lid down the street with a jeering crowd betting on results, and he didn't seem to be much at home."

Just So.

McCALL PATTERNS ... [illegible]

McCALL'S MAGAZINE ... [illegible]

10 Days Free Trial

In Your Own Home

of the improved

"Simplex"

Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to supply one lady in every neighborhood with a "Simplex" Vacuum Cleaner, for advertising purposes.

Write today for the most liberal offer ever made.

The "Simplex" is guaranteed to do as good work as electric machines costing $100.00 and over. It is light in weight (only 20 lbs) runs extremely easy and can be operated perfectly and easily by one person.

With ordinary care, the "Simplex" will last a lifetime. ... [illegible]

Christmas in Foreign Lands

By John Foster Frazer

AFTER all, there is no place like home in which to celebrate Christmas. Even when the day does not come up to the old-fashioned pictorial representation of snow on the ground and red-breasted robins on the boughs, but is instead green and sunshiny, Christmas at home has an appropriateness and fits the scene in a way it cannot do in other lands.

It is rather hard to imagine appropriateness about Christmas under a blazing sky, and the eating of plum pudding when the thermometer is 90 degrees in the shade. How out of place the picturesque characters from Dickens' novels—muffled and cheery and full of boisterous mirth—would have been if they could have been conveyed on the magic carpet to gorgeous Cairo! Wealthy people, and, in these days of cheap travel, those who are not wealthy, now seek sunshine in the months which are considered dreary; so each Christmastide crowds of British people betake themselves to the City of the Caliphs, proceed up the Nile, and, even on Christmas night, toast the old folks at home in the magnificent hotel at Khartoom.

Our grandfathers and grandmothers, who regarded Christmas as a time of waits and holly berries and taking baskets of provisions to poor folks, then attending the festooned and decorated church for morning service, and afterwards, with lights up and curtains drawn, proceeded to consume slabs of turkey and roast beef, chunks of plum pudding and innumerable mince pies, with the object of bringing happy months, would twirl in their graves if they could see the manner in which thousands of their descendants celebrate the day in Cairo.

TAKING CHRISTMAS DAY CALLS SHANGHAI, CHINA

IN PERSIA

CHURCH OF NATIVITY BETHLEHEM CHRISTMAS MORNING

CAMEL CAIRO EGYPT

CHRISTMAS PARTY AT THE PYRAMIDS

CHRISTMAS SPORTS IN THE ALPS

I have known snow in Cairo, but the occasions are as rare as blue moons. As a rule, the morning comes with blazing sunshine, with not a cloud in the sky, and the atmosphere not only warm but sultry. It is not the occasion for topcoats or mufflers or fur capes. The men are in flannels and the women are in white finery. Possibly some attend the English church, with the hope of being reminded what day it is; but the majority go off upon excursions, wandering through the quaint, bedizened and scented bazars, where the Mohammedan salesmen, with little concern about the Christian festival, ply their trade of selling antiques, radiant robes and hand-made Oriental carpets. The majority, on pleasure bent, go off to the Pyramids, and, under the sweltering sun, climb to the summit of the great burial pile of the Cheops, and then, likely enough, mounted on donkeys, scamper across the hot sands to the Sphinx, in the shadow of which they proceed to picnic.

It is late afternoon, and the big sun is setting over the Libyan desert, and the bells in the mosques are tinkling for the faithful Mohammedans to come and pray, when most of our fellow country people return to their hotels. There is no old-style Christmas dinner. The fare is French; the music is probably Austrian. Somehow, the occasion, delicious and happy though it be, does not fit the picture. The moon rises and the evening is fragrant, whilst parties sit out upon the balconies before the dancing begins. And then thoughts inevitably wander to what the folks at home are doing.

Even with ourselves, particularly in London, a great change is coming over the celebration of Christmas. People with families, especially those with young children, do keep up something of the tradition. But amongst those who are grown up the tendency is to spend Christmas night at one of the great caravansaries of pleasure—a fashionable West End restaurant or a hotel, where in the entrance hall there is generally a magnificent Christmas tree, and the dinner is lavish, the music ravishing, and everything is bright and noisy, and the air is rippled with the laughter of pretty women.

The old-time Christmas is voted dull; besides, taking one's Christmas dinner at a hotel is reckoned much cheaper than having it at home. Within short memory a great change has come over our manner of spending Christmas. Thousands of people go to the big hotels on the south coast. The hydropathic establishments in the provinces are invariably crowded. Thousands upon thousands of men and women—chiefly those who are still in blithe manhood and womanhood—take themselves to Switzerland. For a week before Christmas the London stations which are jumping-off places for the continent are as busy as in summer holiday time dispatching Britons to the Alps.

Christmas in Switzerland! Why, a dozen years ago the majority of British people would have shuddered at the idea. Switzerland in dead of winter, with heaped-up snow and storms and bitter cold, was not to be thought of. Great has been the alteration. Though there is plenty of snow, the atmosphere is dry and the sun shines brightly. The air is invigorating. There is sufficient [illegible] to be obtained [illegible] on toboggans to be secured, and, for those bent on adventure, there is the most exciting pastime of ski-ing.

Many of the high-placed villages in the mountains of Switzerland become colonies of British people. These do the proper thing by going to the little church on Christmas morning. But they come back in a hurry, and are soon in their sweaters and have donned their heavy boots, or have affixed their skates and are off for pleasure long before luncheon time. The dining rooms are decorated for the great event of the evening—the Christmas dinner. Curious it is to think that these bunches of happy folk, who a week ago were scattered in all parts of the British Isles, now congregate in the well-lighted rooms of a Swiss hotel, and are eating their Christmas dinner 600 or 700 miles away from home. Maybe there is a carnival on the ice at night. The air is dead still. The moon is like a great lantern in the heavens. Fancy dresses are the proper thing. Every one carries a multi-colored Chinese lantern swinging at the end of a cane. The local Swiss band plays popular airs. There is the swish and rumble of innumerable skates over the crisp and well-swept ice.

Think of the manner in which the day is spent in the distant treaty ports of the Far East. There comes back to my memory a Christmas day I once spent in Shanghai. In that great commercial Chinese city is a considerable gathering of British people, chiefly engaged in trade, kindly, hospitable, giving the hand of friendship to the traveler and seeing that he has a good time with the rest. There are Christmas morning calls to be made. Callers travel from house to house in jinrikshaws hauled by bronze-skinned Chinese coolies. Maybe there are steeplechase races on the outskirts of the town, and the entire British colony to go off to see their countrymen, adepts in horsemanship, scamper for the prizes. Then come luncheon parties, to be followed at night by the customary Christmas gathering. One might almost forget that one was thousands of miles away from home, except maybe for the fact that the servants are slit-eyed Chinamen.

Another Christmas day comes to memory as I write. It was in Teheran, the capital of Persia. There, of course, is the British legation; but most of the British residents, fifty or sixty in number, are engaged in connection with the telegraph service. Teheran is a great transmission station on the telegraph route between England and India. On Christmas morning there is generally a football match on the Miadan, a big open space where most of the Persian military displays take place. In the afternoon there is polo. The Persians stand round with wide-eyed wonder, quite incapable of understanding why it is that English people are putting themselves to such exertions in the search of what they consider pleasure. The Persian does not appreciate the western habit of violent exercise. He regards those who take part in it as rather mad.

It is the practice of most British ministers to give a dinner party on Christmas night to the leading British and American residents in the [illegible] legation dining room. [illegible] the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes [illegible] above the chair. When the dinner is over there follows the usual and appropriate speech making. Then comes the dance. That the company is in a distant foreign land is forgotten. Something of the flavor of Christmas tide at home is with the assembly. Laughter and merriment reign unbounded.

And is it not well at Christmastide to think of those of our own race and land who are in far corners of the world? I do not only mean those who are in the great cities of Canada or Australia or South Africa or even in the semi-British towns in India. Rather I have in mind lands where are few British men and women, some traders, some missionaries, but all cut off by enormous distances from what is called the civilized world, whom it takes six weeks or two months for a letter to reach, and whose Christmas day is inclined to bring sad thoughts, not only because of the lonely lives they are leading, but by reason of the recollection of the other and more happy Christmas days they spent before they left the home-land.

Dotted about the world, in Africa, in lonely Indian stations, in the far northwest of Canada, out on the deserts of Australia, these people will be eating their Christmas dinners on the same day as ourselves. So, in the flush of happiness which comes to most of us, it is not a bad thing to let the thoughts wander to fellow Britons so far off that sometimes they are inclined to be forgotten.

Also there are others. I remember a Christmas day I spent on a tramp ship, a commodious, roomy old boat, but slow in pace, plowing her way through a storm in the Bay of Biscay. We ought to have been home before Christmas, but the weather had buffeted us and we were nearly a week behind our time. Christmas morning came drearily as the old vessel bumped her way over the angry waters. We had no Christmas cheer, no turkey, no plum pudding, no wine, but we had tinned rabbit and some bottles of stout on board. While the ship pitched and rolled, the captain and his mate and myself gulped our poor Christmas cheer and toasted each other in stout. Then the men went out to their work in the gale. I stood on the bridge together with the officer in charge while the wind howled and the sleet slashed and we pressed on slowly into the gloom. Not a very merry Christmas! But still the kind of Christmas that will be spent by many thousands of good British sailors in far seas.

For a contrast where better could you go to spend Christmas day than in Jerusalem and attend service at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. Jerusalem is not quite the same as it was in Biblical times, though a good deal of it has not altered through many generations. It seems out of place to go to Jerusalem by railway and, outside the station, to be met by a horde of shrieking cab drivers seeking the job of conveying you to one of the big hotels.

Christmas day this year is on a Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, when thousands of Jews, conscious of what the day means to Christians, will lament that the Messiah they expect has not come. Christians, Jews, Mohammedans, all jostle in the narrow streets of Jerusalem. On Christmas Eve the Mohammedans who, curiously enough, have charge of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, to prevent quarrelsome Christians doing injury to one another, will be keeping the Mohammedan Sabbath, and from the minarets of the mosques will sound the muezzin of the Mullahs crying: "There is only one God, and Allah is his prophet; come all ye faithful and pray." Then, as the sun begins to drop on Christmas Eve, you may go to all that remains of the old walls of Jerusalem, and come across crowds of Jews, hooded women and men ringleted, many of them from distant shores, kissing the stones which once surrounded the city of their forefathers.

On Christmas morning, with the slouching Turkish soldiers at the door of the church, many Christians will enter to attend service, crouch through the low and narrow doorway, and have the privilege of kissing the stone on which tradition says the body of Christ was laid after the Crucifixion. See that group of tourists mounted on shaggy and ill-fed ponies! They are full of light-heartedness as they scamper along the rugged paths beyond the gates of Jerusalem. They are off to Bethlehem to visit the Church of the Nativity—dark and solemn and rather eerie with many subdued lights.

Christmas day brings many and varied recollections to the man who has wandered much about this old world.

FARM AND GARDEN

WEATHER STRIP FOR A DOOR

Piece of Board Automatically Arranged to Take Place of Mats and Pieces of Carpet.

The floors of an old house I used for a residence were not very level, especially in the hall. The inside partition had settled, making the floor in the hall so much out of level, says a Canadian writer in Popular Mechanics, that the outside front door and also the inside vestibule door did not fit close to the floor.

There was an open space of about two inches on one side when the door was shut. Mats or pieces of carpet were kept against the door to keep out the cold air. When the door was opened, the mats would cause trouble. I devised an automatic weather strip, as shown in the sketch, to take the place of the mats.

Automatic Weather Strip.

The strip was made of a piece of wood three-quarters inch thick and three inches wide, with a length equal to the width of the door. One end was fastened to the door with a screw on the side near the high part of the floor, in this case the hinged side of the door.

A piece of wood was cut out and fastened to the opposite side to act as a keeper for the strip of wood. A piece of cloth was wrapped around the stick to make it close fitting and to lessen the noise when opening and closing the door. The moveble strip would slip over the uneven floor and close the opening when the door was shut.

GRUB HOOK IS SATISFACTORY

Implement Made of Octagonal Steel Five Feet Long Found Useful in Grubbing Land.

There are lots of holly berries and greese brush here that bother in grubbing land. I have just cleared a 40-acre piece and used a home-made grub hook which was very satisfactory, says a California writer in the Farm and Home. It is made of a piece of $1\frac{1}{8}$-inch octagonal steel 5 feet long.

A Strong Grub Hook.

This is sharpened at both ends and bent double to make the tines, which are $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches apart and 18 inches long. This piece of steel is bolted to a hard-wood lever by which it is operated. A pry block 4x4x16 is clamped on at the bottom of the lever. In the top end of the lever is a clevis to which a horse may be hitched. A good many roots I can pull out by hand, but some are large enough to require a horse.

TO KILL GRASSHOPPER EGGS

Any Tool That Will Bring Them to Surface During Cold Weather Will Destroy Millions.

Nearly all our worst crop pests are within reach of shallow working tools during the egg or papal stage, which they spend in the ground. Grasshopper eggs have just enough covering to protect them from sudden freezing and thawing, and it is no doubt sudden thawing which destroys them, as no amount of combined cold storage hurts. In fact, the case is not much different from a potato or apple blossom, which if thawed out slowly enough, will come out normal, but suddenly subjected to heat will be destroyed. There is a protective covering to the grasshopper egg which is sufficient when kept undisturbed to preserve it, but stands but little exposure to sun and air. If you will take some of the eggs and expose them to the hot sun, where birds cannot get at them and carry them off, you will be hard put to it to find them after exposure. Their substance seems to evaporate. Any tool that will disturb them and bring them to the surface during fall, winter or early spring, will destroy millions, and this is true of larvae as well, so that harrowing, disking or renovating accomplishes a good deal more than establishing a soil mulch.

Cure for Discontent.

If you really want to renew the enjoyments of your country home try boarding at a city hotel or restaurant a day or two; then you will find that your common, every-day life is far [illegible]

Up to Both.

Harry Lauder, landing from the Saxonia, told a New York reporter a new story.

"It's a story," he began, "about one of your American peeresses, a lady of striking independence. She rang for her maid the other afternoon, and said, very sharply:

"'Yvonne, if I catch you and my husband kissing again, one of you will have to go.'"

ECZEMA DISFIGURED BABY

"Our little boy Gilbert was troubled with eczema when but a few weeks old. His little face was covered with sores even to back of his ears. The poor little fellow suffered very much. The sores began as pimples, his little face was disfigured very much. We hardly knew what he looked like. The face looked like raw meat. We tied little bags of cloth over his hands to prevent him from scratching. He was very restless at night, his little face itched.

"We consulted two doctors at Chicago, where we resided at that time. After trying all the medicine of the two doctors without any result, we read of the Cuticura Remedies, and at once bought Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Following the directions carefully and promptly we saw the result, and after four weeks, the dear child's face was as fine and clean as any little baby's face. Every one who saw Gilbert after using the Cuticura Remedies was surprised. He has a head of hair which is a pride for any boy of his age, three years. We can only recommend the Cuticura Remedies to everybody." (Signed) Mrs. H. Albrecht, Box 883, West Point, Neb., Oct. 26, 1910. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 14 L, Boston.

Don't try to understand a women and you will succeed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take. Do not gripe.

There are few shade trees in the average man's field of labor.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

A cheerful liar is more entertaining than a gloomy truth teller.

You Can't Begin Too Early.

Habit is hard to overcome, but why continue to shoot ammunition that does not do justice to your skill, simply because you have always used it.

To make the most of your marksmanship at target practice or game shooting you need the swiftest and best-balanced ammunition made.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION (Not Made by a Trust)

is loaded with our own smokeless powders which produce a maximum muzzle velocity by burning progressively all along the barrel.

Robin Hood Ammunition reduces the "kick" because all the force of the powder is used to propel the shot or bullet. As a natural and scientific result Robin Hood will shoot quicker and with greater accuracy than any other ammunition.

Prove it by test. Ask your dealer for Robin Hood shot shells or metallic cartridges, or write us if he is not supplied. Our interesting catalogue is free to every man who carries a gun.

ROBIN HOOD AMMUNITION CO. 7th Street, Swanton, Vt.

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.

Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache, and Distress After Eating.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c, and $1.00 at Druggists

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. High-est references. Best results.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water

TAKE A DOSE OF PISO'S THE BEST MEDICINE FOR COUGHS & COLDS

LAND SHOW IS ON

MAYOR KELLER SPEAKS IN BEHALF OF CITY AND RALPH W. WHEELOCK FOR STATE.

GOVERNORS WIRE GREETINGS

Charles Patterson Recites Organization, Ideals and Purposes of the Exhibition—Great Collection of Exhibits.

St. Paul.—With speeches by Mayor Herbert P. Keller for St. Paul, Ralph W. Wheelock, representing Governor Eberhart, for the state, and with greetings read from President Lewis Pewell of the Northwest Development League, and each of the governors of the states represented who are now on the tour of the Western Governors' Special, the Northwestern Land Products Show was officially opened.

Charles Patterson, of St. Paul, chairman of the executive committee of the league, presided at the opening. In his introductory address he retold the history of the organization, its purposes and ideals, and its relation to the growth of the northwest.

Mayor Herbert P. Keller, speaking in behalf of the city of St. Paul, congratulated the Northwest Development League for the movement it had begun.

Wheelock Speaks for Governor.

Ralph W. Wheelock, representing Governor Eberhart, extended the congratulations and good wishes of the state to the show.

Besides the telegrams from Governors Eberhart, of Minnesota, Norris, of Montana, Burke, of North Dakota, Vessey, of South Dakota, Howley, of Idaho, Carey, of Wyoming, Oddie, of Nevada and Vest of Oregon, greetings were read from Colvin B. Brown, of the Panama-Pacific exposition, former Governor Brady, and others of the Governors' Special.

The concert of the St. Paul quartet attracted a good share of the attention of the visitors at the show, and they shared honors in popularity with the Minnesota State band. The members of the quartet were dressed as farmers and carried cabbages, carrots, alfalfa and other farm products. They sang popular selections at intervals throughout the evening show.

Films Draw Large Crowds.

In the lecture hall the illustrated lectures and moving pictures of life in the northwest drew a large crowd, and the hall was well filled all evening. John F. Fox, of the Northern Pacific, pigeonhed views in Yellowstone National park, while C. C. Morrison gave an interesting stereopticon talk on the Glacier National park on the line of the Great Northern.

The Minnesota State band, under the direction of A. L. Ryder, entertained the large crowds, both afternoon andevening, with its concerts in the band stand in the left balcony. A large group of people were gathered in the balcony about the band stand, and every number of the program was applauded enthusiastically. Its programs, of the more standard as well as the popular music, are so made up as to please music lovers of the most varying tastes.

The first day was Children's day and St. Paul school children were guests of the show. Various other days will be devoted to special interests.

The immense auditorium building is filled with thousands of exhibits by the various northwestern states and many exhibits have been installed by the boosting organizations of different counties. Every branch of agricultural activity in the northwest is amply represented.

FORWARD MOVEMENT BOOSTED

Winona.—Defining the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which was recently started in this city and resulted in the organization of the Federated Churches, as one of the greatest advances of modern history in uplifting the morality of the human race and more closely uniting the men and the church, Fred A. Anderson, Minneapolis, executive secretary of the State Federation of Churches, addressed the local federation. He predicted that movement would branch out to every department of the church. A conference of the local members will be held some time in January as a result of Mr. Anderson's advice.

To Suspend Dividends.

New York, N. Y. — The Great Northern ore properties trustees have decided against any further dividend payments pending readjustments to meet the changed situation brought about by the announcement by the United States Steel corporation of its purpose to terminate its lease of the ore lands on Jan. 1, 1918.

Gas Well at Jeffers.

Jeffers.—While A. E. Bohlke and William Nickel were engaged in drilling a well on the farm of Fred Nickel, they struck a hard substance and in order to make more room for the casing, Mr. Bohlke lighted a fuse to a charge of dynamite. The light lighted gas coming from the well, and Mr. Bohlke's hair and eyebrows were badly singed. He failed to lose any hair and the burns received were slight. The explosion of the dynamite was heard a distance of six miles. The well is now flowing 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

DEVELOPMENT CONGRESS

Northern Minn. Assn. Holds Winter Meeting at St. Cloud.

St. Cloud.—The annual winter meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development Association, which was held here last week, was largely attended, representative men coming from all the counties in the district composing the organization. Particularly were the newspaper men present and one feature of the convention was a dinner given for them by Alvah Eastman of the Journal-Press, who is a candidate for congressman-at-large, and is getting the benefit of a first-rate newspaper boom by his numerous friends of the press.

DELVAH EASTMAN

Reapportionment was the main bone of contention of the meeting, the delegates being a unit for this popular measure, but being divided into two camps on the subject of demanding an immediate extra session of the legislature. It was the final decision of the majority that the special session would be useless, although the resolutions made strong demands for a reapportionment bill at the next regular session.

With reapportionment out of the way, good roads got a share of attention, and an interesting paper was read, from the pen of Bob Dunn of Princeton, who could not be present.

International Falls was selected for holding the midwinter meeting. The following officers were elected:

President—Cyrus McKing, Deer River.

Secretary—W. R. MacKenzie, Bemidji (re-elected.)

Treasurer—Walter J. Smith (re-elected).

Executive Committee—M. N. Koll, Cass Lake; Cyrus McKing, Deer River; W. J. Brown, Warren; Hubert J. Eva, Duluth; W. R. MacKenzie, Bemidji.

STATE POULTRY SHOW JAN. 11-17.

Officers Predict Exposition Will Be Better Than Ever.

Minneapolis.—The Minnesota State Poultry association calls its big show to be held in the armory, Jan. 11 to 17, the "Quality Show of the Northwest." The show will be greater in every respect than any previous poultry show ever held in Minneapolis because the state legislature has appropriated $1,500 and the business men of Minneapolis have taken hold to boost it as never before.

The state poultry association has combined with the Minneapolis Kennel club and a feature that Minneapolis has long lacked—a good dog show—will be held in conjunction with the poultry show.

Officers Off to Get Pointers.

George N. Houghton, president of the association; Frank Van Sant, secretary-manager; Mrs. John Kruse and some of the other directors will leave this week for Chicago to attend the big poultry show which will be held there Dec. 14 to 19, to get some ideas for the exhibit here in January and also to secure some of the choice exhibits there for show here.

About 2,000 fancy fowls will be put on exhibition here.

STRIKE TIES UP WINONA CARS

Employes Confident, But Company Promises Service Today.

Winona.—Not a street car wheel is turning on the Winona street railway system as the result of a strike which was started by the motormen's union. Three hours after the men abandoned their cars at the appointed hour, men from the clerical force of the offices manned one of the cars and took it in operation on the main line until dusk, when it was put in the barn, leaving the city without street car service for the first night in twenty years.

Both sides are confident and apparently the strike has settled down to an endurance test. There was no violence.

"The Boy Detective."

Life in a street city as depicted in "The Boy Detective," Chas. E. Blaney's play, has an overlasting claim on his time, interest, and entertainment and avoidance of the harsh exaggeration of falsely sensational stunt makes this play an achievement of the commendable sort. The many unusual characters, the excellence of the many players in a theatre so comfortable to play and play before, all go to make the

IRON ROYALTIES FALL

State in Receipts $214,177.75—Decrease of 7,000,000 Long Tons.

St. Paul.—In a season in which the full shipments from this state fell off 7,000,000 long tons and the shipments from the state mines were less than half what they were last year, the state's revenue on its iron ore royalties for 1911 amounted only to $214,177.25, $142,444.75 less than they were in 1910, according to figures compiled by J. F. Funk, clerk of mines, and filed in the state auditor's office.

Ten of the twenty open states mines shipped during the 1911 season 15,079 cars of ore, amounting to 603,515 long tons. In 1910 the shipments from the state mines reached 1,073,200 long tons; in 1909, 838,032.

"It was thought at the beginning of the season that the shipments from the state properties would amount to 1,500,000 or possibly 2,000,000 tons," Mr. Funk said, "but dullness in the iron market caused a slack of orders, and instead of the increase expected the reverse was experienced."

"The shipments from the state mines are small compared with those of the United States Steel corporation," he continued. "This season's output, however, has been disappointing to it and to the other large shippers, and the figures given out at the close of the season show total shipments of 24,366,759 tons, a decrease of 7,000,000 tons as compared with the season of 1910, when 31,366,759 tons were shipped from the state."

Of the twenty state mines now opened and which have either shipped or are ready to ship, seventeen are on state school lands, the 25-cent flat royalty per ton going into the permanent school fund. The remaining three belong to the swamp land fund.

During the past shipping season the state employed nine men as inspectors, engineers and car checkers to look after its interests, with headquarters at Hibbing. F. A. Wilkes is the chief inspector.

During the season just closed the state received $135,677.75 in direct royalties on ore shipped; $75,000 from sixty others paying a minimum royalty for non-shipments at $1,250 each and $13,300 more from the 133 mines which pay the annual payment of $100 charged against non-shipping mines for the first five years of the lease, before the minimum royalty is assessed. This makes the total revenue for 1911 $214,177.75.

Figuring on the same basis, the state received in 1910 $268,323.50 in direct royalties, which, added to the other two items, then the same, made a total revenue of $356,623.50.

BEAULIEUS ARE ACQUITTED.

Indian Cases at Fergus Falls Are Brought to a Sudden End.

Fergus Falls.—The Beaulieu cases came to a sudden end here. The government rested and the defense at once moved for a directed verdict in favor of the defendants. George H. Edgerton and C. D. O'Brien argued for the motion and Judge W. A. Morton against it. At the conclusion of the arguments Judge Morris announced that the motion was granted, and Gus H. Beaulieu, Robert G. Beaulieu, Benjamin I. Fairbanks and John Loachy walked out of the court-room acquitted of the charge.

"I have a very strong opinion about the Clapp amendment and the manner in which it was administered," said Judge Morris, "but that is not the matter at issue here. The question is: Did these defendants conspire to defraud the government by inducing Indians to represent themselves as mixed bloods and there is no evidence to sustain any such charge. The Nichols-Chisholm Lumber company, which the defendants represented, appears to have treated witnesses fairly and to have paid them good prices for all the timber purchased. The defendants are discharged."

WHITE EARTH PROBE ASSURED

Steenerson's Request for Inquiry of Alleged Frauds Will Be Rushed.

Washington.—Chairman Graham of the house committee on expenditures in the interior department assured Representative Steenerson that the resolution providing that a sub-committee of the house committee shall visit the White Earth reservation and hold a hearing there in connection with the investigation begun last summer, will be reported favorably at an early date and brought before the house for adoption. Mr. Steenerson does not agree with those who allege that huge frauds have been perpetrated against practically the entire Indian population of the reservation, although admitting that such is the case in a number of instances, and believes that something should be done toward settling the question of title to the various areas acquired by individuals and corporations. He is in favor of some kind of remuneration to those Indians upon whom fraud was perpetrated.

PIONEERS HOLD MEETING

Duluth and Superior Residents Plan to Picnic in Minnesota.

Duluth.—The seventh annual meeting of the pioneer residents of Duluth and Superior, held in the Commercial club building, was a most successful meeting and dinner was served. The

COSTS LESS THAN 55 CENTS A BUSHEL TO RAISE WHEAT IN CANADA

A FREQUENT QUESTION ANSWERED.

Western Canada probably suffered less from weather conditions during the year of 1911 than did almost any other portion of the country. Seeding was most successful and the growing conditions up to July were never better. Crops of all kinds showed wonderful promise at that time and were universally good, but there was not the usually excellent ripening weather in August and the effects of this were felt. Many fields that late in July promised 40 and 50 bushels per acre, what were reduced to 25 and 30 bushels, while some of course gave the full expectancy and others somewhat less. Generally speaking, also however, in face of these conditions, it is found that during the months of September and October, the total amount of contract wheat marketed and inspected was about 20 million bushels, which realized a total of 18½ million dollars, the average price for this wheat being 97¾ cents; thus below contract for the two months was a little over 15 million bushels, which at an average price of 89¾ cents per bushel realized a little over eleven million dollars, or a grand total for all wheat of 35 million bushels, which realized a total of a little over thirty-one million dollars.

On the first of November, there was in the hands of the farmers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta for sale and seed about 180 million bushels of wheat, from which fact some idea may be had of the value of the wheat crop of 1911.

A careful canvass made by the Winnipeg Free Press made of a number of-fices farming in a large way indicates that even with the extreme expense of harvesting the crop, which has been caused by the labor scarcity and difficulty in threshing, wheat has been produced and put on the market for less than 55 cts. a bushel. The average freight rate is not over 12 cts. per bushel. This would make the cost of prodnction and freight 68 cts. and would leave the farmer an actual margin on his low-grade wheat of 17½ cts. and for his high-grade wheat of 19⅛ cts.; and though this is not as large a profit as the farmer has every right to expect, it is a profit not to be despised, and which should leave a very fair amount of money to his credit when all the expenses of the year have been paid; unless the value of low-grade wheat sinks very much below its present level.

Salted Leg.

Little Girl—Your papa has only got one leg, hasn't he?

Veteran of Last Girl—Yes.

Little Girl—Where's his other one?

Veteran's Little Girl—Aunty, dear, it's in heaven.—Home Herald.

"Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for Infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Excitement.

"What's that racket out there?"

"That's Fido. He's chased your fuzzy hat up the tall tree."

Tightness across the chest means a cold and a cough. That's the best danger. Cure that cold with Hamlins Wizard Oil before it runs into Consumption or Pneumonia.

Couldn't Bear Sight of Him.

"He's the light of my life, pa."

"I don't like the light in my eyes."

One pugilist never offers to fight another just for fun.

Pleasant, Refreshing, Beneficial,

Gentle and Effective.

NOTE THE NAME

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. in the Circle, on every Package of the Genuine.

DO NOT LET ANY DEALER DECEIVE YOU.

MINIATURE PICTURE OF PACKAGE.

SYRUP OF FIGS AND ELIXIR OF SENNA IS THE MOST PLEASANT, WHOLESOME AND EFFECTIVE REMEDY FOR STOMACH TROUBLES, HEADACHES AND BILIOUSNESS DUE TO CONSTIPATION, AND TO GET ITS BENEFICIAL EFFECTS IT IS NECESSARY TO BUY THE GENUINE AND ONLY GENUINE, WHICH IS MANUFACTURED BY THE

Note the Full Name of the Company

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

PRINTED STRAIGHT ACROSS, NEAR THE BOTTOM, AND IN THE CIRCLE, NEAR THE TOP OF EVERY PACKAGE OF THE GENUINE. REGULAR PRICE 50c PER BOTTLE, ONE SIZE ONLY. FOR SALE BY ALL LEADING DRUGGISTS.

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.

Housework Drudgery

Housework is drudgery for the weak woman. She breathes, dusts and scrubs, or is on her feet all day attending to the many details of the household, her back aching, her temples throbbing, nerves quivering under the stress of pain, possibly dizzy feelings. Sometimes rest in bed is not refreshing, because the poor tired nerves do not permit of refreshing sleep. The real need of weak, nervous women is satisfied by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It Makes Weak Women Strong and Sick Women Well.

This "Prescription" restores the sense of dignity and womanliness, banishes nervousness and sleeplessness, and cures those distressing ailments so peculiar to women. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and builds up flesh.

Dr. Pierce is perfectly willing to let every one know what his "Favorite Prescription" contains, a complete list of ingredients on the bottle-wrapper. Do not let any unscrupulous druggist persuade you that his substitute of unknown ingredients is "just as good." Insist on what you want, or you will be sure to pay dollars for cents, but no profit. Just smile and shake your head!

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cures liver ills.

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

Scientifically constructed to give most light for the oil they burn.

Easy to light, clean and rewick. In numerous finishes and styles, each the best of its kind.

Ask your dealer to show you his line of Rayo Lamps and Lanterns, or write for illustrated booklets direct to the nearest agency of the Standard Oil Company (Incorporated)

KODAKS

and SUPPLIES of EVERY DESCRIPTION. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY FILLED. EASTMAN KODAK CO. OF CANADA, LTD. EASTMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA and be compelled to pay to your landlord most of your hard-earned profits, when you can own a farm in the Famous Western Canada

Why Rent a Farm

Free Homestead and pre-emption quarters as well as land held by railway and land companies, can be secured by settlers.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid railway facilities, good markets, good schools and churches. For pamphlet "Last Best West," descriptive of soil, climate, resources, etc., and particulars as to terms, railway rates, etc., apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Canadian Offices: 178 Second Street, E.E. Winnipeg, Man.; 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.; 123 Second Street, Portland, Ore.; 2 Rink, 124 1st St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Become Rich

by cattle raising, dairying, mixed farming and grain growing in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Free homestead and pre-emption quarters as well as land held by railway and land companies can be secured by settlers.

Adaptable soil, healthful climate, splendid railway facilities, good markets, good schools and churches. For pamphlet "Last Best West," descriptive of soil, climate, resources, etc., and particulars as to terms, railway rates, etc., apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to the Canadian Government Agent.

Canadian Offices: 178 Second Street, E.E. Winnipeg, Man.; 315 Jackson Street, St. Paul, Minn.; 123 Second Street, Portland, Ore.; 2 Rink, 124 1st St., Milwaukee, Wis.

RUPTURE

cured in a few days without a surgical operation. No pay until cured. Write to Dr. W. S. Rice, 70 Century Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 51-1911.

REAL ESTATE

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for sale by the Great Northern Railway. Descriptive literature and information regarding districts in Canada where the Great Northern Railway has large tracts of land for sale, sent free upon application. Correspondence solicited. Address Land Commissioner, Great Northern Railway, St. Paul, Minn.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater is just like a portable range.

Sold by dealers everywhere. Write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the Standard Oil Company (Incorporated)

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

Color more goods than any other dye. Sold by druggists everywhere. Write for free booklet telling how to dye, bleach or mix colors. MONROE DRUG CO., Quincy, Ill.

Lenox Soap

Free—To Lenox Soap Users

If you use Lenox Soap and would like a copy of a 68-page book—"Approved Methods for Home Laundering," send us a Lenox Soap wrapper, tell us that you want a "laundry book," and we will send it, absolutely free.

The book is exceedingly practical. It was written by a well-known authority on laundry matters, and covers the subject thoroughly.

The Procter & Gamble Co.

Cincinnati, Ohio

How Christmas Grew to be what it is Today

By Charles Phillips

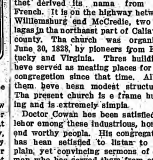
Waiting for the Messiah and a New Christmas.

By Henry Tyrrell

A PASTOR 50 YEARS

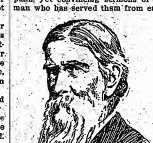
Rev. John Cowan in One Church That Long.

Half a Century Ago a Young Man Came to a Missouri Community and Has Been Pastor There Ever Since.



Fulton, Mo.—Fifty years the pastor of one church—that is the record of Rev. Dr. John Fleming Cowan. Recently the people in northeast Callaway county rested upon a two-days' celebration in his honor.

For half a century Doctor Cowan has served the Old Auxvasse Presbyterian church as pastor. For two score years and ten he has presided as spiritual adviser and servant of a church that is in a sense the mother church of many of those now in existence in this section.



Doctor Cowan came to the Old Auxvasse church as a young man of twenty-four. The country was rent with strife and the lines were sharply drawn. He was a man of southern beliefs and his people were of the same mind. He fitted into the post and he has fitted there ever since.

Auxvasse church is so-called because it stands on a high elevation in a big bend of the Auxvasse river, a stream that derived its name from the French. It is on the highway between Williamsburg and McCredie, two villages in the northeast part of Callaway county. The church was organized June 30, 1838, by pioneers from Kentucky and Virginia. Three buildings have served as meeting places for the congregation since that time. All of them have been modest structures. The present church is a frame building and is extremely simple.

Doctor Cowan has been satisfied to labor among these industrious, honest and worthy people. His congregation has been settled according to the plain, yet convincing sermons of the man who has served them from early youth until the declining years of his life. Nowhere in this section is a community of better people and nowhere is there a men of the cloth who has followed nearer in the footsteps of the men whose teachings he has endeavored to emulate than Doctor Cowan. Idealism has been demonstrated in its fullest sense.

THE REV. JOHN FLEMING COWAN

THE OLD AUXVASSE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

When the preachers of the pioneer days came to serve the congregation of Old Auxvasse they found a church built of logs. In 1840 a church of brick was erected. Than in 1870 came the building that is still serving as the home of worship.

Doctor Cowan was born at Foteed, Mo., March 4, 1837. Much of his early education was gained through his father, Rev. John P. Cowan, one of the early Presbyterian ministers of the state. He graduated from Westminster college in 1858 and then took a theological course at Princeton Seminary, completing his work there in 1861.

Rev. Mr. Cowan lived in the country near the church until his wife died and his daughter married. His wife was Miss Jane Crank, a native of Callaway county. In 1888 Mr. Cowan moved to Fulton, where he is teaching modern languages in Westminster college. These new duties did not lessen his love for the pastoral work of the Old Auxvasse church and he continued in the pastorate.

He has preached to the congregation of the Old Auxvasse church 2,500 times. In other churches during revival meetings and occasional visits he has preacher 1,300 times. He has conducted fifty revival meetings in various churches.

To the Auxvasse church during the fifty years of his pastorate 895 members have been added, 500 children have been baptized and 240 couples have been married. One hundred and three persons members of the congregation have died during that period and Doctor Cowan has conducted their funerals. Five members of the were men of the cloth.

YULETIDE IN THE BARON'S HALL — ARRIVAL OF THE SHEPHERDS

GUNGEET the prophet held up his hand.

A sudden cry smote the chilly air, the red edge of the sun creeping behind the snow cap of Everest seemed to the multitude a reflection on the scythe which Gungeet held in his hand, reddened with the blood of the Rsnow's first born, which had been offered as a propitiatory sacrifice to the Sun God. It was mid-winter—the winter solstice—and the sun rays were so feeble that the sun worshippers were sore afraid that unless the blood of a royal prince was shed for absorption by their weakening god the world would pass into darkness and all would die.

As the sun rose higher in the heavens the multitude of worshippers exchanged gifts, and on the crags and high places of the Mount of Ghoom, which is above Darjiling, in the Himalayas, goats were sacrificed to the sun god, who was hailed by the multitude as a new-born babe, refreshed and renewed with the blood of their princeling offering.

For thousands of years before the birth of Jesus of Nazareth this drama was enacted in the mountains of India and the tradition was carried by the merchants into Persia, Egypt and China to become later part of the Pagan saturnalia of the Romans and the Druids.

For two centuries of the Christian era there is no indisputable evidence of any celebration of Christ's birth. The primitive Christians, like sensible opportunists, made it the festival of the "Light of All Nations," borrowing from the east, the birthplace of all religions, the birthday of the sun god, which was held by the Romans (on the day when light got the better of darkness, and the days began to get longer) as a great festival, in celebration of "the birthday of the preconquered sun."

The first historical account of the celebration of Christmas day is connected with the persecutor, Diocletian, who, when holding court at Nicomedia, about 300 A. D., on hearing that a multitude of Christians were assembled in the city to celebrate the birthday of Jesus, ordered the church doors to be closed and the building to be set ablaze, so that all the worshippers perished in the flames. Diocletian was possessed of the most terrible of all heresies, that moral forces can be put down by physical ones. Christianity by fire and sword, but his successor, Julian, in the next generation, when Diocletian had done his worst, and done it thoroughly, had to admit that all was in vain. He may not, in fact, have said, "Thou hast conquered, Oh, Galilean!" though Julian proved it.

Early in the thirteenth century the Christian church sanctioned feasting on Christmas day by removing the obligation of observing abstinence whenever that festival should fall on a Friday. By abstinence is meant that flesh meat shall not be indulged in, and as every Friday throughout the year was a day specially marked for such mortification, Christmas must, indeed, have been somewhat chaotic when the feast was in reality more than a fast by reason of its occurrence on a Friday. That, however, is quite forgotten by present-day observers; and for close on 700 years Christmas day has been observed by even the most piously inclined as the occasion for indulging in good cheer.

In "merry England" the festival is made a thoroughly enjoyable one, though the days have changed somewhat since Dickens rode through the streets of London and told of the scenes of Christmas joy he witnessed in the lamplit streets. Nowadays electricity has taken the place of gas and lamplight, and instead of the slow, wheezy horse vehicles of Dickens' day the streets of Merry England are traversed by electric and oil motor carriages. Butcher's shops, old-fashioned dinner prevails, and from king to commoner all go to the place each calls home to eat wellmade soup, goose or turkey, potatoes, sprouts, mince pies and Christmas pudding.

"Stille Nacht, heilige nacht," has been sung in Germany for many untold Christmases beneath the illuminated pine tree, and its population of sixty-five millions will enjoy their gingerbread and honey cakes.

In Denmark Christmas is a most important and beautiful festival. Despite all other changes, it preserves its old character, and is universally celebrated among rich and poor.

In Russia the spirit of St. Nicholas is rampant, and the streets of St. Petersburg, Moscow, Riga and other centers are alive with silvery-belled drochas, all bearing happy muscovites exchanging calls and bearing each other presents, which are opened at sweet-laden tables shrouded in vapor from the steaming samovars.

In New-York City there will be millions of conspiracies to surprise the children, for with our polyglot peoples no nation restricts to the extent the United States does the inner meaning for the world of the festivals of the Christ child. Here, more than anywhere else in the world, the spirit of Christmas invites our own happiness in seeking that of others, and in the accomplishment of good will toward men we know we yearly replant the rose that blossomed in the snow of the first Christmas night.

GIVEN the idea of a new coming of Christ today is an influence, if not an obsession with countless millions of people in all parts of the world.

With all Christians it is a thrilling thought, or a devout wish. With some it is a faith and a prophecy. The Adventists, under their various denominations—Evangelical, Advent Christians, Seventh Day, Life and Advent Union and others—look for Christ's return at a nearly date within the present age, according to the same Hebrew prophecies which forecast his birth at Bethlehem of Judea. There are in the United States alone 2,544 Adventist churches, with an aggregate of 100,000 communicants.

The Jews expect a Messiah yet to come.

The Bahaists, or "Truth-Knowers," whose cult, a modern offshoot of Mohammedanism, has made remarkable headway in Europe and America during the past decade or two, believe that the reincarnation of the Master has already taken place in our time. Their priests and propagandists declare it their mission to make known to the world the glad tidings that Bahá Ullah, the head of their faith, who dwells in the flesh at Acre in Syria, is none other than Jesus Christ re-incarnated and come again to earth in fulfillment of the ancient prophecies.

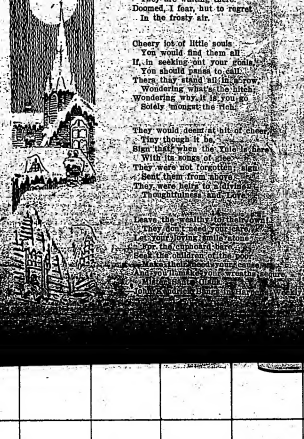
The Theosophists, whose "Universal Brotherhood" was founded by Mme. Blavatsky in 1875, with headquarters at Adyar, Madras, India, believe the incarnate appearance of Christ in this world to be imminent at the present moment. They believe that the Jesus of our faith, even now incarnate but not manifested to man, will take a new body, manifest himself visibly and lead mankind in the evolution of a higher civilization, an epoch of Christian socialism in which wisdom and compassion will make a true brotherhood of man at a time within the lives of the younger people of the present generation.

The above enumeration includes only a few of the world-wide sects and creeds that enter look for a new birth of Christ, or believe that such a refincarnation has already, and recently, taken place. The idea, more or less definitely formulated, animates an incalculable number of smaller communities and individuals not taken account of here.

And it is a significant fact that, however widely at variance their theories and grounds of faith may be, all these millions of Adventists meet on common ground in the popular belief that this present age reproduces, in the world's cycles, the Augustan age of Rome, with its over-ripe and decadent civilization and accompanying spiritual unrest.

The earthly scene is set for some new and awesome act in the drama of Eternity.

The Scriptures of old and the signs of the times today, thoughtful men point out, alike warn us that the hour of fate is at hand. Christians have done their best and their worst to the Church of God for now over eighteen centuries, and she stands today a mournful exhibition of their devastating work. Broken and divided into hundreds of warring sects, she no longer bears the voice that inspired the early church. Truly it is time to expect that the Lord will himself arise and come to rebuild the spiritual Zion and restore the waste places of the spiritual Jerusalem. Although we "know not the day or the hour," yet the time when the Lord's coming is at hand is not altogether hidden from us. The signs which are to precede and usher in his coming are plainly and abundantly set forth in Scripture, and we are exhorted to watch for them and know that the time is near. All these predicted signs in the social, moral, political, civil, ecclesiastical and spiritual spheres, declare the Adventists, are now either fulfilled or fulfilling.



All the ecclesiastical prophecies of Christ's second coming rest on the same foundation—namely, the fulfillment of previous Biblical prophecies and the assumption that this indicates further fulfillments yet to come. It is claimed that inasmuch as the birth of Christ was foretold (Isaiah vii., 14), and that the Messiah should take place in Bethlehem of Judea (Micah v., 2), and the several other prophecies concerning a Messiah (Isaiah liii., 8-9; Psalms xvi., 10), that he came in fulfillment of the time and in the manner prescribed, that the fourth prophecy, relating to the second appearance of the Messiah, demands expectant belief.

In the New Testament the third and fourth chapters of Second Timothy and the twenty-fourth of St. Matthew are regarded by many as forecasting the present condition of Christendom. We are living in the divided states of the decadent Roman Empire. The nations are torn with strife and contention, and are supporting millions of men in arms in anticipation of vast wars in the near future. Such was the condition of the world at the time of Christ's first coming. "In the last days, perilous times shall come," men were to depart from the faith and go in devious ways. Atheism, infidelity, socialism and anarchy have risen in a great wave that is eating at the very foundations of our religious, political and social life.

In the way of physical portents it is estimated that there have been more earthquakes within the last century or so than in all previous times in the recorded history of the world.

What do these signs of the times, heavenly and earthly phenomena, political and religious upheavals, mean? To the Adventists they mean that Christ is coming again, and soon.

An Appeal to Santa Claus

Hi there, Mister Santa Claus,
Hiking through the sky,
Careful lest you break the laws
Speeding swiftly by.
Better give your car a rest
In its onward flight.
Come down here and be my guest
Just for Christmas night.

I'll show you a thing or two
You'll do well to see;
Little people—not a few—
Waiting wistfully.
Hoping you will not forget
They are waiting there,
Doomed, I fear, but to regret
In the frosty air.

Cheery lot of little souls
You would find them all
If, in seeking out your goals,
You should pause to call.
There, they stand all in a row,
Wondering what's the hitch;
Wondering why, if so you go
Solely 'mongst the rich.

They would deem it bit of cheer
They, though it be,
Slim that when the Yule is here
With its songs of glee.
They were not forgotten quite Sent them from above
They were heirs to Heavenly light
Thoughtfulness and love.

Leave the wealthy to their fate
They don't need your visit;
Those who have not, they can wait
For, in comparison,
Scant the children of the poor
Scarce a single toy
Many there will be, I'm sure
Who will mourn and sigh.

Hi there, Mister Santa Claus,
Hiking through the sky,
Careful lest you break the laws
Speeding swiftly by.
Better give your car a rest
In its onward flight.
Come down here and be my guest
Just for Christmas night.

The Mistletoe.

Some of the ancient herbals this plant was called are "misseldon," or more commonly "missel." The plant was venerated by the bards of Greece and Rome. There is reference to the mistletoe in the works of Virgil, in the Edda and in Celtic literature.

Druids collected it with great solemnity. The priest or Druid cut it with a golden sickle, and it was held that the branches of ancient Britons possessed only that mistletoe which grew upon certain trees.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1911. NO. 40.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Broadway Is Routed by a 'Monster'

NEW York.—No sign remained in the Broadway theater district the next morning following the scenes that were enacted there one night when a maddened beast charged up and down, spreading terror and consternation, causing handsomely gowned women to faint and strong men to leave their cocktails untouched and flee for safety. That lion with the burning tail that broke loose during the Cosmy Island fire last spring was a tame affair in comparison with the Broadway monster.

The beast is dead, the police blotter has a small item about it, but it is evident that the management is anxious to minimize the affair for the sake of the public. Hundreds of witnesses will testify that the creature was at least eight feet tall. Its flaming mouth and wicked fangs were terrible for description.

The beast was seen first at Broadway and Forty-second street. With a blood-curdling roar, wow!! it rushed up to a beautiful woman and planted its paws on her shirt. Her companion rushed to her assistance and fearlessly planted a kick in the monster's ribs. "Ki, yi!" screamed the wild thing, as it tore off down Broadway. At Fortieth street, two boys, with the foolhardiness of youth, tried to seize the animal by its stubby tail. The beast turned upon them and bayed horribly.

On to Thirty-ninth street, scattering pedestrians right and left, raced the great dog. If dog indeed it was. At the corner it rubbed its horrid head against a freshly creased pair of trousers and emitted a whine that was the most terrifying than its bark. The owner of the trousers sprinted through Thirty-ninth street, uttering cries of fear, and the beast raced madly after him.

Even the police were forced to admit then that the situation called for desperate measures. Patrolmen McNamara and Dobbins drew their revolvers. Dobbins shot straight and true, and the monster keeled over in the gutter.

Brother and Sister Meet After Years

BALTIMORE.—Separated for more than a half century, but united through the efforts of a brother and sister, who live across the ocean, William Wilson of Island Point, Vt., and his sister, Mrs. Catherine Wallace of this city, are spending a few days together at Mrs. Wallace's home in northeast Baltimore.

It was in 1860 that Mr. Wilson, just [illegible] left his home in County Tyrone, Ireland, to tempt his luck in America. His little sister Catherine bade him good-by. Mr. Wilson went to Massachusetts and afterward took up farming in Vermont. His sister followed him across the Atlantic seven years afterward and made her home in Philadelphia. In the meantime she had been corresponding with her brother. Mr. Wilson moved, and though Mrs. Wallace was given his new address she lost it.

That was 35 years ago, and in all the intervening years no word passed between the two. In the meantime Mr. Wilson was prospering and was becoming a man of influence in his community. By thrift and industry he managed to make his way in the world and become the possessor of a 300-acre farm, one of the finest in his section of the state.

Mr. Wilson wrote to his brother in England, Isaac Wilson, seventy-six years old, who in turn wrote to his sister, Mrs. Martha Busby, who was still living on the old homestead in the north of Ireland. Through her it was learned that Mrs. Wallace was living in this city, and this information was sent to Mr. Wilson. A few weeks ago he came to Baltimore.

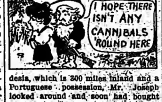
Electric Street Makes 'em All Dance

CHICAGO.—A man in a raglan overcoat and carrying a grip came along Clark street the other evening. His hat was pulled down over his brow to shield his face from the driving rain, and he seemed in a great hurry. Suddenly he stopped in front of No. 224 with a scared look on his face. Then he began to dance. The proprietor of the place at 124 rushed out, protesting.

"Here," he said, "you can't do that. You'll ruin my business."

He seized the dancer by the shoulders. "You'll have to—" he began, but the words died on his lips and safe way to the same scared look of the first man. He started dancing, too.

A crowd gathered. Some of them began to jeer. A street urchin pushed a companion toward the dancers. He slid across the wet sidewalk and clutched the dancers' legs. Then he also began to dance.



"That's enough o' that," shouted a policeman, arriving, as usual, a little late. "Move on there," he went on, pushing roughly toward the dancers. And then he, too, began to dance.

There were four dancing now, and finally one of the cars was rerouted into the gutter. It was the small boy.

"Say," he yelled, "they's electricity in that sidewalk. Them fellers is getting a shock."

An investigation was started. A short streetlet ran lamp and a wet sidewalk had united to electrify a strip of pavement about six feet square. Every person who touched it got a jolt of the power intended for the arc. It held its victims like sticky fly paper. And then they danced.

Man Aged 75 Returns to Pioneer Life

ELDORADO, KAN.—Not many men are pioneers at the age of seventy-five. This Kansas town presents one who is just as active and as anxious to penetrate desert and jungle as were any men who located in the state forty years ago. He is William I. Joseph.

This interesting Kansan was born in Morgantown, W. Va., came to Kansas forty years ago and located a homestead out near Potwin, in Butler county. He and his wife passed through all the hardships of the frontier, rearing a family of two sons and one daughter. As Mr. Joseph prospered, he bought land until he was owner of thousands of acres. Fifteen years ago Mrs. Joseph died and then the old pioneer spirit began to assert itself in this successful stockman and farmer.

Ignoring his age, he sold some of his interests and, with his only daughter, Alice, started for Africa, having [illegible] years of farming and stock raising [illegible] desia, which is 300 miles inland and a Portuguese possession. Mr. Joseph purchased land and soon had bought 35,000 acres of land at 50 cents an acre. They lived under the same conditions which prevailed in early Kansas days.

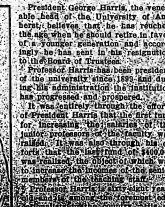
After spending a few months there Mr. Joseph and his daughter returned to their home in Butler county. But the wanderlust still was strong, and so a year ago he abandoned his all his family and they made the second trip to the old pioneering life, they now [illegible] miles inland. This time the party drove overland all summer and [illegible] arriving at the end of the journey [illegible]

PROMINENT PEOPLE

PERSIAN TREASURER GENERAL

One of the most remarkable situations in history is happening in the case of the young American, William Morgan Shuster, who, as treasurer-general of the Persian empire, has been beating the keenest diplomats of Europe for the past six months. This young man is only thirty-four years old and he started life as a newspaper [illegible]

This youngster, who has one of the biggest contracts in the world on his hands, was born in Washington, D. C., in 1877. His parents are divorced. After their separation, from Constantia Shuster obtained a position as a stenographer in the office of the comptroller of the currency in Washington. When the Spanish war broke out he was about seventeen years old. He remained in the office of the comptroller of the currency for [illegible] years, graduating from the high school and then from the college of commerce. In the latter institution he was a fellow. When Shuster was twenty-four years old he was appointed collector of customs at Manila by President McKinley. He was in the Philippines for [illegible] years, and through the administrations of Roosevelt and Taft. Shuster was diplomatic agent. When Shuster had finished his work in the Philippines he returned to Washington and started a law practice. He was a lawyer and financier of [illegible] years, having a paying practice to take charge of affairs in Persia.

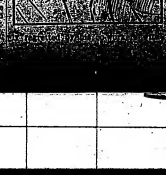


HEAD OF NATIONAL GRANGE

The newly-elected master of the National Grange, chosen at Columbus [illegible] is Oliver Wilson of Magnolia [illegible] He is a native of Ohio, but has lived in Illinois since childhood. He is a farmer and has been a member of the grange 45 years. For fifteen years he has been head of the Illinois state organization.

The order of Husbandry, as the grange is more commonly known officially, is a secret order of the United States which was founded at Washington, D. C., December 4, 1867. Its purpose is to promote the interest of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits and in business connected therewith. General depression in this line of activity followed the Civil war and was the impulse which brought this excellent organization into being. Men connected with several of the departments at Washington conceived the idea and prepared the ritual, but women are gladly accepted as members and have important parts in the initiatory work and conduct of grange lodges.

A GREAT ENGLISH PREACHER



The man who has earned for himself the title of "the modern Savonarola," Rev. Bernard Vaughan, S. J., the great London preacher, is now in this country for a long visit and Americans will have an opportunity to study at close range this fiery and impassioned clergyman, who has gained international fame by his excoriations of the sins and follies of the idle and the wealthy in the British metropolis.

Although without any ecclesiastical title, Father Bernard Vaughan has as much influence in the church as many prelates. He is a favorite at all the Catholic courts of Europe, and he is a frequent guest at Sandringham Palace. And he is also an honored visitor in the London slums, where he is as much at home in a meeting of costermongers as at a king's garden party.

Father Vaughan will visit and will preach in nearly all the big cities of the United States during his visit. His oratory probably will be a surprise to those who are accustomed to the rather cold formalism of English preachers. It astonished his audience when he preached some years ago before Pope Leo XIII. in Rome.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT RETIRES

President George Harris, the venerable head of the University of Amherst, believes that he has reached the age when he should retire in favor of younger administration and accordingly he has sent in his resignation to the board of trustees.

President Harris has been president of the university since 1899 and during his administration the institution has prospered and progressed.

It was entirely through the efforts of President Harris that the first fund for increasing the salaries of the professors of the faculty was raised. It was also through his efforts that the endowment fund of $400,000 was realized, the object of which was to increase the salaries of the professors. A member of the teaching staff of Amherst before Harris's administration was paid $1,200 a year. Now the salaries of the professors range from $2,500 to $4,000 a year. Harris has also been instrumental in [illegible]

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Schley Gifts in the National Museum

WASHINGTON.—The National Museum has recently received a large and valuable collection of memorials of the late Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, U. S. N. This collection has been deposited by Mrs. Schley, widow of the admiral, and comprises a group of over 100 articles consisting of swords, medals, trophies, silver plate, uniforms, and personal mementos of the late admiral, partaking in his naval career as well as in his Masonic and other similar affiliations.

The collection contains a number of gold medals which were presented to Admiral Schley during the course of his long service in the navy, and especially in connection with the Spanish war, in recognition of his brilliant achievements. Among them is a gold medal from the Humane Society of Massachusetts, presented as a token of esteem for his faithful service when in command of the U. S. Expedition to Cape Nichine, which in 1884 rescued Lieut. (now general) Greeley and the other six survivors of the Greeley Arctic expedition.

There is also a handsome gold watch his native state, Maryland, presented to him in commemoration of the same event. Another medal, gorgeously studded with diamonds, was presented to the admiral by the state of Maryland at the close of the Spanish war, in recognition of his services in the battle of Santiago de Cuba, July 3, 1898, when the Spanish fleet was destroyed.

Several handsome swords are included in the collection, gifts in commemoration of the same achievement, one from the state of Maryland and another, finished in gold, with a gem-incrusted scabbard and hilt, presented by the Knights Templars. Probably of most interest is the sword worn by Admiral Schley himself, his entire navel service of forty-one years, beginning with his graduation from Annapolis in 1860 and extending to 1901, when he reached the age limit and was retired.

Cloth for Uniforms Must Be Perfect

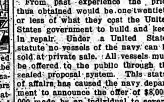
WHEN the government gives out a $1,000,000 cloth contract it sees to it that it gets material according to specifications. For this account the men of the United States army come nearer knowing to a certainty what they are buying in the way of cloth than do any other consumers in the country.

On Governor's Island, New York city, there is a testing laboratory for cloth. A specification of the weight per linear yard of each kind of cloth is mentioned; each bolt of goods is weighed, and if it falls short of the proper weight it is sent back. Next the question of wear and tear is considered, and again the specification is stated that each special kind of cloth will stand a strain of so many pounds to the inch filling way. So after weighing the next test is to cut a sample and try in a machine the strength of the cloth. If it will not stand this test the cloth is thrown out.

After the cloth has been pronounced perfect for weight and strength the dye tests are made; it must stand two acid tests for perspiration and the material must stand boiling for ten minutes in a certain soap solution, showing that it will stand washing with strong alkalis; and finally comes the weather test, the material being exposed 30 days on the roof without changing color appreciably.

If the cloth has passed its examinations successfully each yard of said piece is inspected, being run over machines for the purpose, while inspectors watch for an imperfection in the weave. As eighth of a yard for each imperfection is charged to the manufacturer.

Federal Prison for Women Under Way



UNCLE SAM'S women prisoners, nearly five hundred of them, now scattered in state penitentiaries all over the country, soon will have a prison of their own, a true prison inside a prison, in fact, into which no man, aside from a few higher officers ever will penetrate.

The new prison is being built inside the walls of the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan. It consists of a section of the prison inclosure, from which it will be cut off by high walls, as secure as those which surround the main inclosure. Though less likely to chance escape than the men, the women will be more securely confined than the most desperate characters in the men's prison. No community of nuns will be any more closely shut off from the world. Few visitors ever will penetrate the walls of the women's prison, and even visits from relatives will be confined as much as possible to women relatives.

The government now pays the various states to receive the prisoners. The new prison is known as the Federal Detention Farm. It will be the only one of the kind in the world. Its cost will be from two to three years' labor of the prisoners themselves. Under the present system the women prisoners are scattered in the state institutions, and the cost of maintaining them is high. Under the new system it is expected that the cost will be greatly reduced.

Warships to Be Sold for Small Sum

THIS navy department has received an offer of $8,000,000 cash for the battleships Indiana, Iowa and Massachusetts and the protected cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis. The battleships participated in the battle of Santiago sailing in the destruction of Admiral Cervera's Spanish fleet. All of these vessels are in first-class condition. They are now, and are known as the "white squadron" recently assembled in New York as a part of the great Atlantic fleet. They are also known in naval circles as the "second line" of defense for battle skirmishing. But the new Dreadnought type of battleship has rendered most of the vessels of the first line type obsolete. They are slow and cannot keep up with the modern battleship. Their guns are small and their armor [illegible]

The total cost of construction and repairs of the Indians to June 30, 1910, [illegible] $5,003,899.06; the Massachusetts $5,645,776.83, and the Iowa $7,265,445.56. The Columbia, a protected cruiser, [illegible] construction and repairs to June 30, 1910, [illegible] $4,058,350.14, and the Minneapolis $5,231,764.81.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE SUNBEAM.

VOL. XI. SUNBEAM, PENNINGTON COUNTY, MINNESOTA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1911. NO. 40.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Broadway Is Routed by a 'Monster'

NEW York.—No sign remained in the Broadway theater district the next morning following the scenes that were enacted there one night when a deadened beast charged up and down, spreading terror and consternation, causing hundreds of gowned women to faint and strong men to leave their cocktails untouched and flee for safety. That lion with the hurdy tail that broke loose during the Coney island fire last spring was a tame affair in comparison with the Broadway monster.

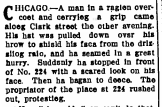
The beast is described by the police blotter as a small four-footer, but it is evident that the police are anxious to minimize the seriousness of the panic. Hundreds of timid Broadwayites will testify that the thing was at least eight feet tall. Its flaming mouth and wicked fangs were too terrible for description.

The beast was seen first at Broadway and Forty-second street. With a blood-curdling "How, how!" it rushed up to a beautiful woman and planted its paws on her skirt. Her companion rushed to her assistance and fearlessly planted a kick in the monster's ribs. "Ki, yi!" screamed the wild thing, as it tore off down Broadway. At Fortieth street, two boys, with the foolhardiness of youth, tried to seize the animal by its stubby tail. The beast turned upon them and bayed horribly.

On to Thirty-ninth street, scattering pedestrians right and left, raced the great dog, if dog indeed it was. At the corner it rubbed its horrid head against a freshly creased pair of trousers and emitted a whine that was even more terrifying than its bark. The owner of the trousers sprinted through Thirty-ninth street, uttering cries of fear, and the beast raced mad ly after him.

Even the police were forced to admit then that the situation called for desperate measures. Patrolmen McNamara and Dobbins drew their revolvers. Dobbins shot straight and true, and the monster keeled over in the gutter.

Brother and Sister Meet After Years



BALTIMORE.—Separated for more than a half century, but united through the efforts of a brother and sister, who live across the ocean, William Wilson of Island Point, Vt., and his sister, Mrs. Catherine Wallace of this city, are spending a few days together at Mrs. Wallace's home in northeast Baltimore.

It was in 1850 that Mr. Wilson, just [illegible] left his home in County Tyrone, Ireland, to tempt his luck in America. His little sister Catherine bade him good-by. Mr. Wilson went to Massachusetts and afterward took up farming in Vermont. His sister followed him across the Atlantic seven years afterward and made her home in Philadelphia. In the meantime she had been corresponding with her brother. Mr. Wilson moved, although Mrs. Wallace was given his new address she lost it.

That was 56 years ago, and in all this letterseeing years no word passed between the two. In the meantime Mr. Wilson was prospering and was becoming a man of influence in his community. By thrift and industry he managed to make his way in the world and became the possessor of a 200-acre farm, one of the finest in his section of the state.

Mr. Wilson wrote to his brother in England, Isaac Wilson, seventy-six years old, who in turn wrote to his sister, Mrs. Martha Bushy, who was still living on the old homestead in the north of Ireland. Through her it was learned that Mrs. Wallace was living in this city, and this information was sent to Mr. Wilson. A few weeks ago he came to Baltimore.

Electric Street Makes 'em All Dance

CHICAGO.—A man in a ragien overcoat and cerryieg a grip came along Clark street the other evening. His hat was pulled down over his brow to shield his face from the drizzling rain, and he seamed in a great hurry. Suddenly he stopped in front of No. 224 with a scared look on his face. Then he began to dance. The proprietor of the place at 224 rushed out, protesting.

"Here," he said, "you can't do that. You'll ruin my business."

His seized the dancer by the shoulders. "You'll have to—" he began, but the words died on his lips and eava way to the same scared look of the first man. He started dancing, too.

A crowd gathered. Some of them began to jear. A street urchin pushed a companion toward the dancers. He slid across the wat sidewalk and clutched the dancers' legs. Then he also began to dance.

"That's enough o' that," shouted a policeman, arriving, as usual, a little late. "Move on there," he went on, pushing roughly toward the dancers. And then he, too, began to dance.

There were four dancing now, and fically one of the four was crowded into the gutter. It was the small boy.

"Say," he yelled, "they's alactricity in that sidewalk. Them fellers is got the shock."

An investigation was started. A short circuited arc lamp and a wet sidewalk had united to electrify a strip of pavement about six feet square. Every person who touched it got a jolt of the power intended for the arc. It held its victims like sticky fly paper. And then they danced.

Man Aged 75 Returns to Pioneer Life

ELDORADO, KAN.—Not many men are pioneers at the age of seventy-five. This Kansas town presents one who is just as active and as anxious to penetrate desert and jungle as were any men who located in the west fifty years ago. He is William L. Joseph.

This interesting Kansan was born in Morgantown, W. Va., came to Kansas forty years ago and located a homestead oet near Potwin, in Butler county. He and his wife passed through all the hardships of the frontier, rearing a family of two sons and one daughter. As Mr. Joseph prospered, he bought land until he was owner of thousands of acres. Fifteen years ago Mrs. Joseph died and then the old pioneer spirit began to assert itself in this successful stockman and farmer.

Ignoring his age, he sold some of his interests and, with his only daughter, Alice, started for Africa, having heard of the possibilities of the land there. Arriving in Salisbury, Rhodesia, which is 300 miles inland and a Portuguese possession, Mr. Joseph looked around and soon had bought 25,000 acres of land at 50 cents an acre. They lived under the same conditions which prevailed in early Kansas days.

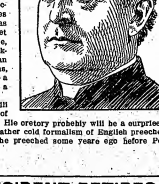
After spending a few months there Mr. Joseph and his daughter returned to their home in Butler county. But the wanderlust still was not satisfied, so a year ago he gathered up all his family and they made the second trip, the old pioneer leading the way to the promised land. This time the party stayed during the summer, and when they came home brought a Kaffir boy with them.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

PERSIAN TREASURER GENERAL

One of the most remarkable situations in history is happening in the case of the young American, William Morgan Shuster, who, as treasurer general of the Persian empire, has been beating the keenest diplomats of Europe for the past six months. This young man is only thirty-four years old and he started life as a stenographer.

This youngster, who has one of the biggest contracts in the world on his hands, was born in Washington, D. C., in 1877. His parents live there still. After his graduation from Columbia Shuster obtained a position as a stenographer in the war department at Washington. When the Spanish war broke out he was made assistant secretary of the commission that had charge of the evacuation of Cuba. He was then only twenty-two. Shuster remained in the Cuban customs service three years, and when he got through was special deputy collector of customs for Cuba. This was in 1900, and Shuster was twenty-four years old. A collector of customs for the Philippines was needed. It was one of the big administrative offices of the government's colonial possessions. Shuster was choice. When Shuster had done everything in the way of work in the Philippines he returned to Washington and started a law practice. He was a success as a lawyer and relinquished a paying practice to take charge of affairs in Persia.



HEAD OF NATIONAL GRANGE

The newly-elected master of the National Grange, chosen at Columbus Ohio, is Oliver Wilson of Magnolia Ill. He is a native of Ohio, but has lived in Illinois since childhood. He is a farmer and has been a member of the grange 40 years. For fifteen years he has been head of the Illinois state organization.

Patrons of Husbandry, as the grange members are known officially, is a secret lover of the United States which was founded at Washington, D. C., December 4, 1867. Its purpose is to promote the interest of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits and to business connected therewith. General depression in the line of activity following the Civil war was the impulses which brought the excellent organization into being. Men connected with several of the departments of Washington conceived the idea and prepared the first ritual, but women are gladly accepted as members and have important parts in the initiatory work and conduct of grange lodges.

A GREAT ENGLISH PREACHER

The man who has earned for himself the title of "the modern Savonarola," Rev. Bernard Vaughan, S. J., the great London preacher, is now in this country for a long visit and Americans will have an opportunity to study at close range this fiery and impassioned clergyman, who has gained internetionel feme by his excoriations of the sins and follies of the idle and the wealthy in the British metropolis.

Although without any ecclesiastical title, Father Bernard Vaughan has as much influence in the church as many prelates. He is a favorite at all the Catholic courts of Europe, and he is a frequent guest at Buckingham Palace. And he is also an honored visitor in the London slums, where he is as much at home in a meeting of costermongers as at a king's garden party.

Father Vaughan will visit and will preach in nearly all the big cities of the United States during his visit. He oretory probably will be a surprise to those who are accustomed to the rather cold formalism of English preachers. It astoslshed his audience when he preached some years ago before Pope Leo XIII, in Rome.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT RETIRES

President George Harris, the venerable head of the University of Amherst, believes that he has reached the age when he should turn the helm of a younger generation and accordingly he has sent in his resignetioo to the Board of Trustees.

Professor Harris has been president of the university since 1899 and during his administeration the institution has progressed and prospered.

It was entirely through the efforts of President Harris that the first fund for increasing the salaries of the junior professors of the faculty was raised. It was also through his efforts that the last fund of $400,000 was realized, the object of which was to increase the incomes of the senior members of the teaching staff.

Professor Harris is sixty-eight years old and is among the foremost educationalists in the country. His retirement, which he wishes to take effect before commencement in June, will be long missed by those who have labored for many years.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Schley Gifts in the National Museum

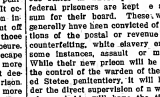
WASHINGTON.—The National Museum has recently received a large and valuable collection of mementoes of the late Rear-Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, U. S. N. This collection has been deposited by Mrs. Schley, widow of the admiral, and comprises a group of over 100 articles consisting of swords, medals, trophies, silver plate, uniforms, and personal mementos of the late admiral, pertaining to his naval career as well as to his Masonic and other similar affiliations.

The collection contains a number of gold medals which were presented to Admiral Schley during the course of his long service in the navy, and especially in connection with the Spanish war, in recognition of his brilliant achievements. Among them is a gold medal from the Historical Society of Massachusetts, presented as a token of esteem for his faithful service when in command of the U. S. Expedition to Cape Sabine, which in 1884 rescued Lieut. (now general) Greely and the other six survivors of the Greeley Arctic expedition.

There le also a handsome gold watch his native state, Maryland, presented to him in commemeration of the same event. Another medel, gorgeously studded with diamonds, was presented to the admiral by the state of Maryland at the close of the Spanish war, in recognition of his services in the battle of Santiego de Cuba, July 3, 1898, when the Spanish fleet was destroyed.

Several handsome swords are included in the collection, gifts in commemoration of the same achievement, one from the state of Maryland and another, finished in gold, with a gem-incrusted scabbard and belt, presented by the Knights Tempiare. Probably of most interest is the sword worn by Admiral Schley through his entire navel service of forty-one years, beginning with his graduation from Annapolis in 1856 and extending to 1901, when he reached the age limit and was retired.

Cloth for Uniforms Must Be Perfect



WHEN the government gives out a $1,000,000 cloth contract it seems to it that it gets meteriel according to specifications. On the account the men of the United States army come nearer knowing to a certainty what they are buying in the way of cloth then do any other consumers in the country.

On Governor's Island, New York city, there is a testing laboratory for cloth. A specification of the weight per lineer yard of each kind of cloth is mentioned; each bolt of goods is weighed, and if it falls short of the proper weight it is thrown out. Next the question of wear and teer is considered, and again the specification is stated that each special kind of cloth will stand a strain of so many pounds to the inch filling wey. So after weighing the nap test is to such a sample and try in a machine the strength of the cloth. If it will not stand this test the cloth is thrown out.

After the cloth has been pronounced perfect for weight and strength the dye tests are made; it must stand two acid tests for perspiration and the meriel must stand holling for ten minutes in a certain soap solution, showing that it will stand washing with strong elreils; and finally comes the weather test, the meteriel being exposed 90 days on the roof without showing color appreciebly.

If the cloth hee passed its exemiocetione successfully each yard of each piece is inspected, some times by machines for the purpose, while inspectors watch for en imperfections in the cloth. An eighth of a yard for each imperfection le cherged to the manufacturer.

Federal Prison for Women Under Way

UNCLE SAM'S women prisoners, nearly five hundred of them, now scattered in state penitentiaries all over the country, will have a prison of their own, a prison inside a prison, in fact, into which no one aside from a few higher officers ever will penetrate.

The new prison is being built inside the walls of the United States penitentiary at Leevenworth, Kan. It occupies one corner of the penitentiary enclosure, from which it will be cut off by high walls, as secure as those which surround the main enclosure. Though less likely to chance escape then the men, the women will be more securely confined than the most desperate characters in the men's prison. No community of nuns will be any more closely cut off from the world. Few visitors ever will penetrate the walls of the women's prison, and even visits from relatives will be restricted as much as possible to women relatives.

The government now pays the various states in whose prisons women federal prisoners are kept a stated sum for their board. These women generally have been convicted of violations of the postal or revenue laws, counterfeiting, white slavery and, in some instances, assault or murder. While their new prison will be under the control of the warden of the United States penitentiary, it will be under the direct supervision of a woman, who probably will have the title of superintendent. No guards, strictly speaking, will be necessary, but there will be several women warders, whose duties, however, will pertake more of the nature of forewomen.

Warships to Be Sold for Small Sum

THE navy department has received an offer of $8,000,000 cash for the battleships Indiana, Iowa and Massachusetts and the protected cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis. The battleships participated in the battle of Santiago, aiding in the destruction of Admiral Cervera's Spanish fleet. All of these vessels are in first-class condition. The Indiana, Iowa and Massachusetts recently assembled in New York as a part of the great Atlantic fleet. They occupy what is known in naval circles as the "second line" of defense or battle arrayment. But owing to the new Dreadnought type of vessels now in the first line these vessels will in from two to seven years become obsolete, even for the second line, and will under ordinary circumstances be relegated to the "scrap heap" and sold at public auction.

From past experience the price thue obtained would be one-twentieth or less of what they cost the United States government to build and keep in repair. Under a United States statute no vessels of the navy can be sold at private sale. All vessals must be offered to the public through the sealed proposed system. This status of efforts has caused the navy department to announce the offer of $8,000,000 made by an individuel to several members of congress. They have been asked what chances there are of a joint resolution providing for the acceptance of the offer of $8,000,000 getting through congress and thus making such a private sale legal.

The total cost of constriction and repairs of the Indiana to June 30, 1910, is $8,602,394.05, the Massachusetts $7,945,776.09 and the Iowa $7,253,-536.50. The Columbia, a protected cruiser, cost in construction and repairs up to June 30, 1910, $4,816,459.16, and the Minneapolis $4,331,705.61.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE DEFECTIVE PAGE

THE SUNBEAM.

W. G. HUNT, Publisher.

SUNBEAM. - - - MINN.

MYSTERY OF GLASS.

A correspondent recently reported what he described as the "curious freak" of a blackbird flying against a parlor window many times at the same spot. Such an incident is not uncommon. Birds have been known to fight for hours at a time, day after day, with their own image reflected in a pane of glass, pecking and fluttering against the pane and quite exhausting themselves in their fury to demolish the supposed rival. It is another instance of how the arts of our civilization corrupt and confuse the birds. It is the same with fishes. Darwin tells a story of a pike in an aquarium separated by plate glass from fish which were its proper food. In trying to get at the fish the pike would often dash with such violence against the glass as to be completely stunned. It did this for more than three months before it learned caution. Then when the glass was removed the pike would not attack those particular fishes, but would devour others freshly introduced. It did not at all understand the situation, but associated the punishment it had received not with the glass, but with a particular kind of fish. Darwin's American monkeys proved themselves more "knowing." When they cut themselves once with any sharp tool they would not touch it again or else would handle it with the greatest caution. Thus they gave evidence of the simpler forms of reason of which monkeys are no doubt capable, but birds are evidently lacking in reasoning powers.

Whatever may be said of the ex-king of Portugal, he has a saving sense of humor. Incontinently dumped out of his regal position, he makes his home near London, from which vantage point he can watch the efforts of those who dethroned him. Down in his heart, of course, there must be anger combined with regret that he is no longer the official head of his country; but if we may believe the reports, ex-King Manuel is not eating his heart out on that or any other account. The most recent international gossip that the duke de Vizeu has fallen heir to the role of the Portuguese pretender, and is endeavoring to so interest an American woman that she will back up his efforts with her money (her daughter is his wife) must amuse the ex-king, says the Cincinnati Times-Star. Those close to him say he is most frank in declaring that he has no anxiety to gain his throne again—just yet. Portugal, according to Rev. Dr. Gaster, who is said to know the situation, "will not be a republic long." But Dr. Gaster believes that if the throne is regained it will be for Manuel, not the Duke de Vizeu. Meanwhile the young Braganza, doing his own thinking, makes use of that excellent old saying: "Patience—and shuffle the cards."

The old question, "Do lightning rods protect?" has been referred to Thomas A. Edison, and Mr. Edison replies: "One or more metallic conductors at least one quarter inch in diameter of either iron or copper, without joints, when connected to a proper amount of metallic surface connected with a permanently damp earth, will certainly protect a house from being affected by lightning. Any metallic surface on roofs, etc., when connected with rods, will increase protection." That ought to settle that.

Not long ago a New York tea drinker was reported as saying that 60 cents' worth of tea would make twice as many cups of beverage as the same value represented in coffee. This has brought forth a calculation showing still more in favor of the economy of tea. A pound of coffee that costs the public 30 cents, it is asserted, will make only 45 cups of good coffee, while a pound of tea, costing 60 cents, will make 25 to 500 cups of tea. So tea costs from one-fourth to one-third as much as coffee.

Statistician tells us that Edmonton, Canada, has only two hours of actual darkness in summer. Bibulous persons in that vicinity cannot use the old excuse about being afraid to go home in the dark.

Rev. Mr. Milburn says that woman considers herself the white of the egg and clings to the yolk, which is man. Sometimes an egg is found with a double yolk.

A Washington pastor has given insomnia as his reason for resigning. In other words, if he couldn't sleep he wasn't going to stand up every Sunday and watch his congregation slumber.

A horse thief in Pennsylvania was sentenced to 20 years in prison, and a white slaver in New York to two years and a fine. The comparative valuation of the law in the cases [illegible] own comment.

FINANCES ARE IN GOOD SHAPE

Economies Have Effected Cut in Expenses of Various Departments.

MONETARY REFORM IMPORTANT

President Hopes It Will Not Be Made Subject of Party Politics—Surplus in Postal Department—Attention Called to Canal Matters—Postal Savings.

Washington. — Finances and currency reform are the subject of a special message to congress, which reads in part as follows:

The financial condition of the government, as shown at the close of the last fiscal year, June 30, 1911, was very satisfactory. The ordinary receipts into the general fund, excluding postal revenues, amounted to $701,372,374.99, and the disbursements from the general fund for current expenses and capital outlays, excluding postal and Panama Canal disbursements, including the interest on the public debt, amounted to $654,877,907.89, leaving a surplus of $47,234,377.10.

The postal revenue receipts amounted to $237,879,823.60, while the payments made for the postal service from the postal revenues amounted to $237,660,705.48, which left a surplus of postal receipts over disbursements of $219,118.12, the first time in 27 years in which a surplus occurred.

The interest-bearing debt of the United States June 30, 1911, amounted to $915,353,190. The debt on which interest had ceased amounted to $1,870,830.26, and the debt bearing no interest, including greenbacks, national bank notes to be redeemed, and fractional currency, amounted to $386,751,917.43, or a total of interest and non-interest bearing debt amounting to $1,303,984,937.69.

The actual disbursements, exclusive of those for the Panama Canal and for the postal service for the year ending June 30, 1911, were $654,137,997.89. The actual disbursements for the year ending June 30, 1910, exclusive of the Panama Canal and the postal service disbursements, were $659,705,391.08, making a decrease of $5,567,393.19 in yearly expenditures in the year 1911 under that of 1910. For the year ending June 30, 1912, the estimated receipts, exclusive of the postal revenues, are $666,000,000, while the total estimates, exclusive of those for the Panama payable from the postal revenues, amounted to $654,842,799.34. This is a decrease in the 1912 estimates of $1,534,367.22.

For the year ending June 30, 1913, the estimated receipts, exclusive of the postal revenues, are $667,000,000, while the total estimated appropriations, exclusive of the Panama Canal and postal disbursements payable from postal revenues, will amount to $637,920,803.35. This is a decrease in the 1913 estimates from that of the 1912 estimates of $7,921,995.99.

As to the postal revenues, the expansion of the business in that department, the normal increase in the post office and the extension of the service, will increase the outlay to the sum of $260,938,463; but as the department was self-sustaining this year the postmaster general is assured that next year the receipts will at least equal the expenditures, and probably exceed them by more than the surplus of this year. It is fair and equitable, therefore, in determining the economy with which the government has been run, to exclude the transactions of a department like the post office department, which relies for its support upon its receipts. In calculations heretofore made for comparison of economy in each year, it has been the proper custom only to include in the statement the deficit in the post office department which was paid out of the treasury.

A calculation of the actual increase in the expenses of government arising from the increase in the population and the general expansion of governmental functions, except those of the post office, for a number of years shows a normal increase of about 4 per cent. a year. By directing the exercise of great care to keep down the expenses and the estimates we have succeeded in reducing the total disbursements each year.

Efficiency and Economy in the Treasury Department.

In the treasury department the efficiency and economy work has been kept steadily up. Provision is made for the elimination of 134 positions during the coming year. Two hundred and sixty-seven statutory positions were eliminated during the last year in the office of the treasury in Washington, and 141 positions in the year 1910, making an elimination of 542 statutory positions since March 4, 1909; and this has been done without the discharge of anybody, because the normal resignations and deaths have been equal to the elimination of the places, a system of transfers having taken care of the persons whose positions were dropped out. In the field service of the department, too, 1,259 positions have been eliminated down to the present time, making a total net reduction of all treasury positions to the number of 1,801. Meantime the efficiency of the work of the department has increased.

Monetary Reform.

A matter of first importance that will come before congress for action at this session is monetary reform. The congress has itself arranged an early introduction of this great question through the report of its monetary commission. This commission was appointed to recommend a solution of the banking and currency problems so long confronting the nation and to furnish the facts and data necessary to enable the congress to take action.

In order to do its work with thoroughness and precision this commission has taken some time to make its report. The country is undoubtedly hoping for as prompt action on the report as the conveniences of the congress can permit. The recognition of the gross imperfections and marked inadequacy of our banking and currency system even in our most quiet financial periods is of long standing; and later there has matured a recognition of the fact that our system is responsible for the extraordinary devastation, waste and business paralysis of our recurring periods of panic. Though the methods of the monetary commission have for a considerable time been working in the open, and while large numbers of the people have been openly working with them, and while the press has largely noted and discussed this work as it has proceeded, so that the report of the commission promises to represent a national movement, the details of the report are still being considered. I cannot, therefore, do much more at this time than commend the immense importance of monetary reform, urge prompt consideration and action when the commission's report is received, and express my satisfaction that the plan to be proposed promises to embrace main features that, having [illegible] ponderance [illegible] sional opinion of the country, are likely to meet equal approval in congress.

With the present prospects of this long-awaited reform encouraging us, it would be singularly unfortunate if this monetary question should by any chance become a party issue. And I sincerely hope it will not. The exceeding amount of consideration it has received from the people of the nation has been wholly nonpartisan; and the congress set its nonpartisan seal upon it when the monetary commission was appointed. In commending the question to the favorable consideration of congress, I speak for, and in the spirit of, the great number of my fellow citizens, who without any thought of party or partisanship feel with remarkable earnestness that this reform is necessary to the interests of all the people.

The War Department.

There is now before congress a bill, the purpose of which is to increase the efficiency and decrease the expense of the army. It contains four principal features: First, a consolidation of the general staff with the adjutant general's and the inspector general's department; second, a consolidation of the quartermaster's department with the subsistence and pay department; third, the creation of an army service corps, and fourth, an extension of the enlistment period from three to five years.

With the establishment of an army service corps, as proposed in the bill, I am thoroughly in accord and am convinced that the establishment of such a corps will result in a material economy and a very great increase of efficiency in the army. It has repeatedly been recommended by me and my predecessors. I also believe that a consolidation of the staff corps can be made with a resulting increase in efficiency and economy, but not along the lines provided in the bill under consideration.

The army of the United States is in good condition. It showed itself able to meet an emergency in the successful mobilization of an army division of from 15,000 to 20,000 men, which took place along the border of Mexico during the recent disturbances in that country. The marvelous freedom from the ordinary camp diseases of typhoid fever and measles is referred to in the report of the secretary of war, and shows such an effectiveness in the sanitary regulations and treatment of the medical corps, and in the discipline of the army itself, as to invoke the highest commendation.

The Panama Canal.

The very satisfactory progress made on the Panama canal last year has continued, and there is every reason to believe that the canal will be completed as early as the 1st of July, 1913, unless something unforeseen occurs. This is about 18 months before the time promised by the engineers.

We are now near enough the completion of the canal to make it imperatively necessary that legislation should be enacted to fix the method by which the canal shall be maintained and controlled and the zone governed. The fact is that today there is no statutory law by authority of which the president is maintaining the government of the zone. The implied authority of the president to maintain a civil government in the zone may be derived from the mandatory direction given him in the original Spooner act, by which he was commanded to build the canal; but certainly, now that the canal is about to be completed and to be put under a permanent management, there ought to be specific statutory authority for its regulation and control and for the government of the zone, which we hold for the chief and main purpose of operating the canal.

I fully concur with the secretary of war that the problem is simply the management of a great public work, and not the government of a local republic; that every provision must be directed toward the successful maintenance of the canal as an avenue of commerce, and that all provisions for the government of those who live within the zone should be subordinant to the main purpose.

I renew my recommendation with respect to the tolls of the canal that within limits, which shall seem wise to congress, the power of fixing tolls be given to the president. In order to arrive at a proper conclusion, there must be some experimenting, and this cannot be done if congress does not delegate the power to one who can act expeditiously.

I am very confident that the United States has the power to relieve from the payment of tolls any part of our shipping that congress deems wise. We own the canal. It was our money that built it. We have the right to charge tolls for its use. Those tolls must be the same to everyone; but when we are dealing with our own ships, the practice of many governments of subsidizing their own merchant vessels is so well established in general that a subsidy equal to the tolls, an equivalent remission of tolls, cannot be held to be a discrimination in the use of the canal. The practice in the Suez canal makes this clear.

The Philippine Islands.

In respect to the Philippines, I urgently join in the recommendation of the secretary of war that the act of February 6, 1905, limiting the indebtedness that may be incurred by the Philippine government for the construction of public works, be increased from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000. The finances of that government are in excellent condition. The maximum sum mentioned is quite low as compared with the amount of indebtedness of other governments with similar resources, and the success which has attended the expenditure of the $5,000,000 in the useful improvements of the harbors and other places in the islands justifies, and requires additional expenditures for like purposes.

Rivers and Harbors.

The estimates for the river and harbor improvements reach $32,000,000 for the coming year. I wish to urge that whenever a project has been adopted by congress as one to be completed, the more money which can be economically expended in its construction in each year, the greater the ultimate economy. This has especial application to the improvement of the Mississippi river and its large branches. It seems to me that an increase in the amount of money now being annually expended in the improvement of the Ohio river which has been formally adopted by congress would be in the interest of the public. A similar change ought to be made during the present congress, in the amount to be appropriated for the Missouri river.

Waterway From Lakes to the Gulf.

The project for a navigable waterway from Lake Michigan to the mouth of the Illinois river, and thence via the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, is one of national importance. In view of the work already accomplished by the sanitary district of Chicago, an agency of the state of Illinois, which has constructed the most difficult and costly stretch of this waterway and made it an asset of the nation, and in view of the fact that the people of Illinois have authorized the expenditure of $20,000,000 to carry this waterway 62 miles farther to Utica, I feel that it is fitting that this work should be supplemented by the government, and that the expenditures recommended by the special board of engineers on the waterway from Utica to the mouth of the Illinois river be made upon lines which, while providing a waterway for the nation, should otherwise benefit that state to the fullest extent. [illegible] The limitation of the liability of the [illegible] master to his servant for personal injuries to such as are occasioned by his fault has been abandoned in most civilized countries and provision made whereby the employe, injured in the course of his employment, is compensated for his loss of working ability irrespective of negligence. The principle upon which such provision proceeds is that accidental injuries to workmen in modern industry, with its vast complexity and inherent dangers arising from complicated machinery and the use of the great forces of steam and electricity, should be regarded as risks of the industry and the loss borne in some equitable proportion by those who for their own profit engage therein. In recognition of this the last congress authorized the appointment of a commission to investigate the subject of employers' liability and workmen's compensation and to report the result of their investigations, through the president, to congress. This commission was appointed and has been at work, holding hearings, gathering data and considering the subject, and it is expected will be able to report by the first of the year, in accordance with the provisions of the law.

Measures to Prevent Delay and Unnecessary Cost of Litigation.

In promotion of the movement for the prevention of delay and unnecessary cost in litigation, I am glad to say that the Supreme court has taken steps to reform the present equity rules of the Federal courts, and that we may in the near future expect a revision of them which will be a long step in the right direction.

Postal Savings System.

On January 3, 1911, postal savings depositories were established experimentally in 48 states and territories. After three months' successful operation the system was extended as rapidly as feasible to the 7,500 postoffices of the first, second and third classes constituting the presidential grade. By the end of the year practically all of these will have been designated and then the system will be extended to all fourth-class postoffices doing a money-order business.

The deposits have kept pace with the extension of the system. Amounting to only $60,652 at the end of the first month's operation in the experimental offices, they increased to $679,310 by July, and now after 11 months of operation have reached a total of $11,000,000. This sum is distributed among 2,710 banks and protected under the law by bonds deposited with the treasurer of the United States.

Parcel Post.

Steps should be taken immediately for the establishment of a rural parcel post. In the estimates of appropriations needed for the maintenance of the postal service for the ensuing fiscal year an item of $150,000 has been inserted to cover the preliminary expense of establishing a parcel post on rural mail routes, as well as to cover an investigation having for its object the final establishment of a general parcel post on all railway and steamboat transportation routes. The department believes that after the initial expenses of establishing the system are defrayed and the parcel post is in full operation on the rural routes it will not only bring in sufficient revenue to meet its cost, but also a surplus that can be utilized in paying the expenses of a parcel post in the city delivery service.

The suggestion that we have a general parcel post has awakened great opposition on the part of some who think that it will have the effect to destroy the business of the country store keeper. Instead of doing this, I think the change will greatly increase business for the benefit of all. The reduction in the cost of living it will bring about ought to make its coming certain.

The Navy Department.

On the 2d of November last I reviewed the fighting fleet of battleships and other vessels assembled in New York harbor, consisting of 24 battleships, 2 armored cruisers, 2 cruisers, 22 destroyers, 12 torpedo boats, 8 submarines, and other attendant vessels, making 98 vessels of all classes, of a tonnage of 576,534 tons.

The fleet was deficient in the number of torpedo destroyers, in cruisers, and in colliers, as well as in large battleship cruisers, which are now becoming a very important feature of foreign navies, notably the British, German and Japanese.

The building plan for this year contemplates two battleships and two colliers. This is because the other and smaller vessels can be built much more rapidly in case of emergency than the battleships, and we certainly ought to continue the policy of two battleships a year until after the Panama Canal is finished and until in our first line and in our reserve line we can number 40 available vessels of proper armament and size.

Like the Treasury Department and the War Department, the Navy Department has given much attention to economy in administration, and has cut down a number of unnecessary expenses and reduced its estimates except for construction and the increase that that involves.

I urge upon congress the necessity for an immediate increase of 2,000 men in the enlisted strength of the navy, provided for in the estimates. Four thousand more are now needed to man all the available vessels.

Departments of Agriculture and Commerce and Labor.

For the consideration of matters which are pending or have been disposed of in the agricultural department and in the department of commerce and labor, I refer to the very excellent reports of the secretaries of those departments. I shall not be able to submit to congress until after the Christmas holidays the question of conservation of our resources arising in Alaska and the west and the question of the rate for second-class mail matter in the postoffice department.

Elimination of All Local Offices From Politics.

I wish to renew again my recommendation that all the local offices throughout the country, including collectors of internal revenue, collectors of customs, postmasters of all four classes, immigration commissioners and marshals, should be by law covered into the classified service, the necessity for confirmation by the senate be removed, and the president and the others, whose time is now taken up in distributing this patronage under the custom that has prevailed since the beginning of the government in accordance with the recommendation of the senators and congressmen of the majority party should be relieved from this burden. I am confident that such a change would greatly reduce the cost of administering the government, and that it would add greatly to its efficiency. It would take away the power to use the patronage of the government for political purposes. When officers are recommended by senators and congressmen from political motives and for political services rendered, it is impossible to expect that while in office the appointees will not regard their tenure as more or less dependent upon continued political service for their patrons, and no regulations, however stiff or rigid, will prevent this because such regulations, in view of the method and motives for selection, are plainly inconsistent and deemed hardly worthy of [illegible]

PRESIDENT SAYS RATES TOO HIGH

Chief Executive Urges Downward Revision of Schedule K.

MESSAGE SENT TO CONGRESS

Document Upholds Protective Principle But at the Same Time Most Ardently Supports Recommendations of Tariff Board.

Washington.—President Taft transmitted to congress the report of the tariff board on schedule K. Accompanying the report, the chief executive sent to the national legislature the following message:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In my annual message to congress, December, 1909, I stated that under section 2 of the act of August 5, 1909, I had appointed a tariff board of three members to co-operate with the state department in the administration of the maximum and minimum clause of that act, to make a glossary or encyclopedia of the existing tariff so as to render its terms intelligible to the ordinary reader, and then to investigate industrial conditions and costs of production at home and abroad, with a view to determining to what extent existing tariff rates actually exemplify the protective principle, viz: That duties should be made adequate, and only adequate, to equalize the difference in cost of production at home and abroad.

I further stated that I believed these investigations would be of great value as a basis for accurate legislation, and that I should from time to time recommend to congress the revision of certain schedules in accordance with the findings of the board.

In the last session of the Sixty-first congress a bill creating a permanent tariff board of five members, of whom not more than three should be of the same political party, passed each house, but failed of enactment because of slight differences on which agreement was not reached before adjournment. An appropriation act provided that the permanent tariff board, if created by statute, should report to congress on schedule K in December, 1911.

Presidential Appointments.

Therefore, to carry out so far as lay within my power the purposes of this bill for a permanent tariff board, I appointed in March, 1911, a board of five, adding two members of such party affiliation as would have fulfilled the statutory requirements, and directed them to make a report to me on schedule K of the tariff act in December of this year.

In my message of August 17, 1911, accompanying the veto of the wool bill, I said that, in my judgment, schedule K should be revised and the rates reduced. My veto was based on the ground that, since the tariff board would make, in December, a detailed report on wool and wool manufactures, with special reference to the relation of the existing rates of duties to relative costs here and abroad, public policy, and a fair regard to the interests of the producers and the manufacturers on the one hand and of the consumers on the other demanded that legislation should not be hastily enacted in the absence of such information; that I was not myself possessed at that time of adequate knowledge of the facts to determine whether or not the proposed act was in accord with my pledge to support a fair and reasonable protective policy; that such legislation might prove only temporary and inflict upon a great industry the evils of continued uncertainty.

Advocates Reduction of Rates.

I now herewith submit a report of the tariff board on schedule K. The board is unanimous in its findings. On the basis of these findings I now recommend that the congress proceed to a consideration of this schedule with a view to its revision and a general reduction of its rates.

The report shows that the present method of assessing the duty on raw wool—this is, by the specific rate on the grease pound, i. e., unscoured—operates to exclude wools of high shrinkage in scouring, but fine quality, from the American market and thereby lessens the range of wools available to the domestic manufacturer; that the duty on unscoured wool of 33 cents per pound is prohibitory and operates to exclude the importation of clean, low-priced foreign wools of inferior grades, which are nevertheless valuable material for manufacturing, and which cannot be imported in the grease because of their heavy shrinkage. Such wools, if imported, might be used to displace the cheap substitutes now in use.

To make the preceding paragraph a little plainer, take the instance of a hundred pounds of first-class wool imported under the present duty, which is 11 cents a pound. That would make the duty on the hundred pounds $11. The merchandise part of the wool thus imported is the weight of the wool of this hundred pounds after scouring. If the wool shrinks 80 per cent., as some wool does, then the duty in such a case would amount to $11 on 20 pounds of scoured wool. This, of course, would be prohibitory. If the wool shrinks only 50 per cent., it would be $11 on 50 pounds of wool, and this is near to the average of the great bulk of wools that are imported from Australia, which is the principal source of our imported wool.

These discriminations could be overcome by assessing a duty in ad valorem terms, but this method is open to the objection, first, that it increases administrative difficulties and tends to decrease revenue through undervaluation; and, second, that as prices advance, the ad valorem rate increases the duty per pound at the time when the consumer most needs relief and the producer can best stand competition; while, if prices decline the duty is decreased at the time when the consumer is least burdened by the price and the producer most needs protection.

Method That Meets Difficulty.

Another method of meeting the difficulty of taxing the grease pound is to assess a specific duty on grease wool in terms of its scoured content. This obviates the chief evil of the present system, namely, the discrimination due to different shrinkages, and thereby tends greatly to equalize the duty. The board reports that this method is feasible in practice and could be administered without great expense.

The report shows in detail the difficulties involved in attempting to state in categorical terms the cost of wool production and the great differences in cost as between different regions and different types of wool. It is found, however, that, taking all variaties in account, the average cost of production for the whole American clip is higher than the cost in the chief competing country by an amount somewhat less than the present duty.

The report shows that the duties on noils, wool wastes and shoddy, which are adjusted to the rate of 33 cents on scoured wool, are prohibitory in the same measure that the duty on scoured wool is prohibitory. In general, they are assessed at rates as high as, or higher than, the duties paid on the clean content of wools actually imported. They should be reduced and so adjusted to the rate on wool as to bear their proper proportion to the real rate levied on the actual wool imports.

Some Duties Prohibitory.

The duties on many classes of wool manufacture are prohibitory and greatly in excess of the difference in cost of production here and abroad. This is true of tops, of yarns (with the exception of worsted yarns of a very high grade), and of low and medium grade cloth of heavy weight.

On tops up to 52 cents a pound in value, and on yarns of 65 cents in value, the rate is 100 per cent., with correspondingly higher rates for lower values. On cheap and medium grade cloths, the existing rates frequently run to 150 per cent. and on some cheap goods to over 200 per cent.

On the other hand, the findings show that the duties which run to such high ad valorem equivalents are prohibitory, since the goods are not imported, but that the prices of domestic fabrics are not raised by the full amount of duty. On a set of one yard samples of 16 English fabrics, which are completely excluded by the present tariff rates, it was found that the total foreign value was $41.64; the duties which would have been assessed had these fabrics been imported, $76.90; the foreign value plus the amount of the duty, $118.74; or a nominal duty of 183 per cent. In fact, however, practically identical fabrics of domestic make sold at the same time at $69.75, showing an enhanced price over the foreign market value of but 67 per cent.

Would Reduce Duties.

Although these duties do not increase prices of domestic goods by anything like their full amount, it is none the less true that such prohibitive duties eliminate the possibility of foreign competition, even in time of scarcity, so that they form a temptation to monopoly and conspiracy to control domestic prices; that they are much in excess of the difference in cost of production here and abroad, and that they should be reduced to a point which accords with the principle.

The findings of the board show that in this industry the actual manufacturing cost, aside from the question of the price of materials, is much higher in this country than it is abroad; that in the making of yarn and cloth the domestic woolen and worsted manufacturer has in general no advantage in the form of superior machinery or more efficient labor to offset the higher wages paid in this country. The finds show that the cost of turning wool into yarn in this country is about double that in the leading competing country, and that the cost of turning yarn into cloth is somewhat more than double. Under the protective policy a great industry, involving the welfare of hundreds of thousands of people has been established despite these handicaps.

In recommending revision and reduction I therefore urge that action be taken with these facts in mind, to the end that an important and established industry may not be jeopardized.

The tariff board reports that no equitable method has been found to levy purely specific duties on woolen and worsted fabrics, and that, excepting for a compensatory duty, the rate must be ad valorem on such manufactures. It is important to realize, however, that no flat ad valorem rate on such fabrics can be made to work fairly and effectively. Any single rate which is high enough to equalize the difference in manufacturing cost at home and abroad on highly finished goods involving such labor would be prohibitory on cheaper goods, in which the labor cost is a smaller proportion of the total value. Conversely, a rate only adequate to equalize this difference on cheaper goods would remove protection from the fine goods manufacture, the increase in which has been one of the striking features of the trade development in recent years. I therefore recommend that in any revision the importance of a graduated scale of ad valorem duties on cloths be carefully considered and applied.

Praises Work of Committee.

I venture to say that no legislative body has ever had presented to it a more complete and exhaustive report than this on so difficult and complicated a subject as the relative costs of wool and woolens the world over. It is a monument to the thoroughness, industry, impartiality and accuracy of the men engaged in its making. They were chosen from both political parties, but have allowed no partisan spirit to prompt or control their inquiries. They are unanimous in their findings. I feel sure that after the report has been printed and studied the value of such a compendium of exact knowledge in respect to this schedule of the tariff will convince all of the wisdom of making such a board permanent, in order that it may treat each schedule of the tariff as it has treated this, and then keep its bureau of information up to date with current changes in the economic world.

It is no part of the function of the tariff board to propose rates of duty. Their function is merely to present findings of fact on which rates of duty may be fairly determined in the light of adequate knowledge in accordance with the economic policy to be followed. This is what the present report does.

The findings of fact by the board show ample reason for the revision downward of schedule K, in accord with the protective principle, and present the data as to relative costs and prices from which may be determined what rates will fairly equalize the difference in production costs. I recommend that such revision be proceeded with at once.

(Signed) WILLIAM H. TAFT.

The White House, Dec. 20, 1911.

Napoleon's Model Library.

In view of the recent talk about limiting the size of libraries by destroying the rubbish, it is interesting to remember that Napoleon once tried to make a list of all the books in the world which were worth preserving. He believed when he sat down to his task that a thousand volumes would suffice; but the list grew under his hands and ultimately included three thousand volumes. Even so, however, there were omissions of which Lord Rosebery and Mr. Edmund Gosse, as well as the general reader, would have been likely to complain. When the emperor came to look over his first list, he found that he had unaccountably left out the Bible. In his second list he forgot to mention not only Virgil and Shakespeare but—very curiously—Moliere.

Nothing the Matter.

Canvasser—Are you single?

Man at the Door—Yes.

"Why, the people next door told me you were married."

"So I am."

"You told me just now you were single."

"Well, what is the matter with [illegible]

Violence and the Widow

* * *

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

It was a matter of gossip that Mr. Clyde Vernon, the sculptor, was to marry the young and rich widow, Mrs. Coleman, who had been out of mourning for a year or more. As a matter of fact, both principles in the case had been congratulated by their mutu friends. The widow had blushed and made no reply, and the gentleman had said that he was too busy to groat an interview that day.

There was more than a grain of truth in the gossip, but gossip had hurried things along too fast. It was a case of love, not love, except in those cases where an empty-headed New York girl wants to buy a title and a "critter" with it, can't be hurried. Then the whole business can be concluded in twenty-four hours. Besides being young and rich, the widow was called handsome, a bolder being fairly well off, the sculptor had a fine face and figure, and a name in the world, and society athletics he had a high rank. He wasn't crazy on that subject, but he needed exercise, and he took it this way.

There was one thing about the widow he had not yet come to understand. She had inherited a terror of violence. She had fainted away at sight of two men exchanging blows on the street. A lame dog or a wounded bird brought out all the sympathy in her. On an occasion her only brother had been rendered insensible by a blow from a ruffian. She classed athletics under the name of "rough house," and it so happened that she had neither read nor heard of Mr. Vernon's "exercises." The information came to her with a great shock.

Through the newspapers she read that at a high-toned club, where a "scrap" had been put on, her admirer had donned the gloves and knocked out Billy the Terrible, who was a quarter of an hour recovering his terrible scares. What kind of gloves were used the widow didn't care, but there was one thing sure—Mr. Vernon must be a brute to step forward and hit Mr. Billy a punch on the jaw that almost deprived him of his life.

She had read the sculptor as a man of refined and gentle nature, but she now saw that those sentiments were but thin veneer. The brute nature lay close to the surface. He might use his fists on the gardener—on the cook—even on her! She could think of him only with a shudder, and she could think of The Terrible only as some guileless half-grown man who had been cajoled into standing up to be knocked down.

She Flashed and She Thought.

If was a dainty little note Mr. Vernon received a few hours later at his studio, but it had a sting to it. The golden cord, if golden cord there had been, was broken, and the silver bowl was smashed flatter than a pancake. The two were to be strangers henceforth. Yes, he was reading the dainty little note that sealed his doom while one of his club friends was saying:

"Clyde, old man, that was one of the prettiest punches I ever saw. He was about to swing with his left when you crossed your right, and, oh, Lordy, how he sat down and snored!"

"Se—shem!" replied the sculptor as he laid the note carefully aside.

"She'll have a husband that can protect her."

"You—bet so."

"I've congratulated you once, but shake again."

"I-e."

Would Mr. Vernon answer the note? Would he call and set the privileges of mating an explanation? Certainly not. No woman, except a prizefighter's wife, could be made to believe that beating was not brutality. If the widow had wanted an explanation she would have asked for it—was demanded it. And so it was not about that the gossips had another thing to talk about. They asked each other why the wedding should fall. They feared that any one not in the secret would say that there was another woman in the case, and they were right. The sculptor had married another woman and gone to Europe.

STORK WENT MORE OF TEN TO NORTHERN PART OF STATE

Birthrate Higher in the Sparsely Settled Regions in 1909, According to Statistics Produced By the State Board of Health—Fewer Newcomers in South.

The stork made more visits to the smaller part of the state in 1909 than it did to St. Paul or Minneapolis, in some towns its visits almost doubled the number made in the Twin City, when they are proportioned to the population.

This is shown by the report of the state board of health, just issued. There were 43,366 births in 1909, a smaller number, according to population, than in any year since 1901.—Stork Busiest in Sparsely Settled Sections.

The stork was busiest in that part of the state which is the most sparsely settled. There were 1,854 babies born in Duluth, which was at the rate of 24.4 to the 1,000 population; 240 born in Cloquet, or 36.3 to the 1,000. There were 366 born in Hibbing, 49.6 to the 1,000. The 187 born in Crookston made a percentage of 25.5; the 230 in Virginia, a percentage of 23.5, and the average in other northern towns is approximately the same.

State's Birth Rate 21.15 Per 1,000.

The 1909 birth rate for the entire state was 21.5. In St. Paul and Minneapolis the rate fell nearly 2 per cent below the average. The 4,196 babies born in St. Paul was at an average of only 19.6 to the 1,000 population. The 5,971 born in Minneapolis was at an average of 19.9 to the 1,000 population.

Rate for Ten Years in Three Cities.

How residents of the cities in the state have fared during the past ten years in the percentage of babies born to each 1,000 population is shown by the following table:

Year.	St. Paul	Minneapolis	Duluth.
1900	24.1	21.2	21.9
1901	20.3	19.1	19.1

STATE SUES FOR IRON ORE.

Attorney General Takes Steps to Determine Procedure.

St. Paul.—Attorney General George T. Simpson has written the brief to be filed in district court at Duluth, laying claim to the iron ore underlying Longyear lake in St. Louis county, approximately valued at $90,000.

This, however, is only a preliminary step toward laying claim to more than 25,000,000 tons of iron ore underlying Embarrass river in a more remote section of the state. The principle involved in both cases will be the same. Should the state win the Longyear suit, a precedent will be established.

The suits hinge on the question of riparian rights. The state contends that the title of upland owners extends only to the high water mark with certain rights appurtenant to the upland which do not include the right to mine in or otherwise sever the bottom of the lake. It insists that it owns the bottom of the lake including the iron ore therein, and that it is entitled to an accounting for all the iron ore which has been taken from it.

Riparian rights, Mr. Simpson contends, give owners of lands adjacent to navigable waters right of access or egress, but do not confer title to land or ores beneath them.

The suit is brought against Elize Korrer and Annie L. Korrer, who own what is known as lot 5, section 21, township 58 north, range 20 west. The owners leased the mineral rights to a mining company.

TWO BANKERS INDICTED.

Mo and West of Cobden State Bank Under Grand Jury Charge.

New Ulm.—Three indictments have been returned against Rollin M. West, former cashier of the State Bank of Cobden. The first charges him with embezzling $12,571.04, and another with appropriating $1,526 of the bank's money. The third charges embezzling $678.64 of the funds of the village of Cobden, he having held the position of treasurer. All indictments accuse him of grand larceny in the first degree.

Hans Mo, president of the bank at Cobden, was also indicted, and was arrested and released on bail. Peter Hagen, vice president of the Cobden bank, has been subpenaed to appear before the grand jury. Mr. Mo is one of the best known bankers in Minnesota, and in addition to his interests at Cobden, is president of the State bank of Sleepy Eye, of which Hagen is cashier. The indictment of Mo was returned in connection with the alleged defalcation of the cashier of the bank of Cobden.

"Death Valley" At Minneapolis.

"Through Death Valley," a melodrama in four acts, with a company of full-blooded Sioux Indians, a duel to the death between a half-breed and an Indian, a real rainstorm and the tragedy of a bound rattlesnake as some of its particular features, is announced for presentation at the Shubert, Minneapolis, as the attraction Christmas week.

"MONEY TRUST" ASSAILED.

Lindbergh Urges Committee to Investigate Charges.

Washington, D. C.—A plea for the creation of a special committee of five to investigate the so-called "money trust" was made before the house rules committee by Representative Lindbergh, of Minnesota. Mr. Lindbergh's contention is that certain big bankers and allied corporations control the money and credit of the country, and that the panics of 1893 and 1907 were caused by the manipulations of these interests.

DR. MAYO ON OPERATING TABLE.

MINNESOTA SURGEON YIELDS TO ATTACK OF APPENDICITIS.

Treatment Declared Successful—Colonel Vanderbilt in a Like Case.

New York, N. Y.— Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., was operated on here for acute appendicitis. The operation was performed in Presbyterian Blaine hospital and was entirely successful. Just a few hours before, Cornelius Vanderbilt had been operated on for appendicitis and in his case, too, the report issued was very satisfactory.

Dr. Mayo is a brother of Dr. William J. Mayo, the two conducting the world famous hospital in Rochester, which has been the Mecca for years for all the most difficult cases demanding surgical assistance in the western hemisphere. The two surgeons have become known as "the surgeons' surgeons," because their colleagues in the profession, from various parts of the continent, have been sent to come to Rochester when in need of care themselves.

Dr. Mayo had been attending the annual meeting of the Southern Surgical association in Washington, when stricken. Mrs. Charles Mayo was in Chicago expecting to meet her husband there on his way back, but she left immediately for New York.

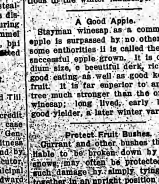
ROAD HEARING ADJOURNED.

Case Against Northern Minnesota Line is Postponed.

Duluth. — The state railroad and warehouse commission renewed the hearing in the case of George Heryeld vs. the Minneapolis and Rainy River road at Deer river, when it was announced that the complaint in St. Paul of the railing were set so that they rested on the bottom of the hole and extended about four feet above the ground. These posts were connected each by four cross-pieces, two below the ground and two above, which made a sort of fence around the tree. The fake work to hold the cement in place until it was set was so constructed that the part of the posts below the ground, as well as the cross-pieces connecting them, would be half embedded in the concrete. This concrete well, approximately nine inches in thickness, was reinforced with strong iron wire cut to the required length, and put in place in the manner of open network while the concrete was being poured. Since the cement from the tree to the boards wherever it was deemed necessary, so that the false work might be strong enough to hold the concrete back of it.

Above the ground, a rustic railing was carried out, constructed so that it might be strong enough to permit of the small boys' climbing over it.

LITTLE SNOWBERRY IS HARDY



Small Shrub Bears Fruit in Clusters and is Easy of Propagation by Seeds or Cuttings.

The snowberry is a small shrub which bears fruit in clusters and is easy of propegation by suckers, seeds or cuttings.

These shrubs are excellent for covering the ground under trees, or planting in masses or in borders where a low-growing plant is desired.

They are very hardy and thrive well in almost any soil, even in heavy clay or dry gravelly banks. Their habit of suckering enables them to cover the ground rapidly and effectively.

The snowberry is practically effective because it retains its fruit until it

Snowberry in Fruit.

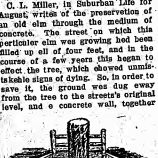
is forced off and one species retains the foliage nearly all the winter. For these reasons they are pleasing additions to the winter landscape.

A Good Apple.

Stayman winesap as a commercial apple is surpassed by no other. Its attractiveness is called the most successful apple grown. It is of medium size, a beautiful dark red good eating as well as good keeping fruit. It is far superior to and the grower much stronger than the original winesap; long lived, early bearer, good yielder, a later winter variety.

Protect Fruit Bushes.

Currant and other bushes that are liable to be broken down by heavy snows may often be protected from such damage by simply tying them together in an upright position at the time the shrubs cannot bend and break the canes.



HORTICULTURE

CONCRETE SAVES OLD TREE

Elm is Preserved by Construction of Concrete Wall, So That Entire Trunk Was Free From Dirt.

C. L. Miller, in Suburban Life for August, writes of the preservation of an old elm through the medium of concrete. The street on which this particular elm was growing had been filled up all of four feet, and in the course of a few years this began to effect the tree, which showed unmistakable signs of dying. So, in order to save it, the ground was dug away from the tree to the streets's original level, and a concrete wall, together with a rustic railing, was placed around the tree, so that the entire trunk might be free from dirt, as it was originally.

Concrete Pit Wall.

The construction of the reinforced concrete wall is very simple. After the hole was dug to the desired width the wire was cut to the required length, and put in place in the manner of open network while the concrete was being poured. Since the cement from the tree to the boards wherever it was deemed necessary, so that the false work might be strong enough to hold the concrete back of it.

Above the ground, a rustic railing was carried out, constructed so that it might be strong enough to permit of the small boys' climbing over it.

LITTLE SNOWBERRY IS HARDY

Small Shrub Bears Fruit in Clusters and is Easy of Propagation by Seeds or Cuttings.

The snowberry is a small shrub which bears fruit in clusters and is easy of propegation by suckers, seeds or cuttings.

These shrubs are excellent for covering the ground under trees, or planting in masses or in borders where a low-growing plant is desired.

They are very hardy and thrive well in almost any soil, even in heavy clay or dry gravelly banks. Their habit of suckering enables them to cover the ground rapidly and effectively.

The snowberry is practically effective because it retains its fruit until it is forced off and one species retains the foliage nearly all the winter. For these reasons they are pleasing additions to the winter landscape.

Snowberry in Fruit.

A Good Apple.

Stayman winesap as a commercial apple is surpassed by no other. Its attractiveness is called the most successful apple grown. It is of medium size, a beautiful dark red good eating as well as good keeping fruit. It is far superior to and the grower much stronger than the original winesap; long lived, early bearer, good yielder, a later winter variety.

Protect Fruit Bushes.

Currant and other bushes that are liable to be broken down by heavy snows may often be protected from such damage by simply tying them together in an upright position at the time the shrubs cannot bend and break the canes.

CHEESE IS BOUND OVER.

Blackwick Arson Trial Postponed Till December Term.

Duluth.—All efforts to discredit the state's blackwick arson case testimony, Attorney General Simpson to appear as a witness to be followed later on the stand by Governor Eberhart, Judge Hanft and Sheriff Hazen failed, Municipal Judge C. A. Simons binding Swanson over to the grand jury on the charge of the February grand jury. He was released on $2,000 bonds.

CHARGES IS BOUND OVER.

Blackwick Arson Trial Postponed Till December Term.

Duluth.—All efforts to discredit the state's blackwick arson case testimony, Attorney General Simpson to appear as a witness to be followed later on the stand by Governor Eberhart, Judge Hanft and Sheriff Hazen failed, Municipal Judge C. A. Simons binding Swanson over to the grand jury on the charge of the February grand jury. He was released on $2,000 bonds.

MINNESOTA SURGEON YIELDS TO ATTACK OF APPENDICITIS.

Treatment Declared Successful—Colonel Vanderbilt in a Like Case.

New York, N. Y.— Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., was operated on here for acute appendicitis. The operation was performed in Presbyterian Blaine hospital and was entirely successful. Just a few hours before, Cornelius Vanderbilt had been operated on for appendicitis and in his case, too, the report issued was very satisfactory.

Dr. Mayo is a brother of Dr. William J. Mayo, the two conducting the world famous hospital in Rochester, which has been the Mecca for years for all the most difficult cases demanding surgical assistance in the western hemisphere. The two surgeons have become known as "the surgeons' surgeons," because their colleagues in the profession, from various parts of the continent, have been sent to come to Rochester when in need of care themselves.

Dr. Mayo had been attending the annual meeting of the Southern Surgical association in Washington, when stricken. Mrs. Charles Mayo was in Chicago expecting to meet her husband there on his way back, but she left immediately for New York.

ROAD HEARING ADJOURNED.

Case Against Northern Minnesota Line is Postponed.

Duluth. — The state railroad and warehouse commission renewed the hearing in the case of George Heryeld vs. the Minneapolis and Rainy River road at Deer river, when it was announced that the complaint in St. Paul of the railing were set so that they rested on the bottom of the hole and extended about four feet above the ground. These posts were connected each by four cross-pieces, two below the ground and two above, which made a sort of fence around the tree. The fake work to hold the cement in place until it was set was so constructed that the part of the posts below the ground, as well as the cross-pieces connecting them, would be half embedded in the concrete. This concrete well, approximately nine inches in thickness, was reinforced with strong iron wire cut to the required length, and put in place in the manner of open network while the concrete was being poured. Since the cement from the tree to the boards wherever it was deemed necessary, so that the false work might be strong enough to hold the concrete back of it.

Above the ground, a rustic railing was carried out, constructed so that it might be strong enough to permit of the small boys' climbing over it.

LITTLE SNOWBERRY IS HARDY

Small Shrub Bears Fruit in Clusters and is Easy of Propagation by Seeds or Cuttings.

The snowberry is a small shrub which bears fruit in clusters and is easy of propegation by suckers, seeds or cuttings.

These shrubs are excellent for covering the ground under trees, or planting in masses or in borders where a low-growing plant is desired.

They are very hardy and thrive well in almost any soil, even in heavy clay or dry gravelly banks. Their habit of suckering enables them to cover the ground rapidly and effectively.

The snowberry is practically effective because it retains its fruit until it is forced off and one species retains the foliage nearly all the winter. For these reasons they are pleasing additions to the winter landscape.

Snowberry in Fruit.

A Good Apple.

Stayman winesap as a commercial apple is surpassed by no other. Its attractiveness is called the most successful apple grown. It is of medium size, a beautiful dark red good eating as well as good keeping fruit. It is far superior to and the grower much stronger than the original winesap; long lived, early bearer, good yielder, a later winter variety.

Protect Fruit Bushes.

Currant and other bushes that are liable to be broken down by heavy snows may often be protected from such damage by simply tying them together in an upright position at the time the shrubs cannot bend and break the canes.

THE SUNBEAM,

BY W. O. BUTT.

Published every Friday, at Sunbeam, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Entered as Second-class matter August 30 1906, at the post office at Sunbeam Minn. under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879

Subscription price $1.00 per year in advance. If not paid in advance $1.50

Congressman Steenerson has introduced a bill to repeal the Reciprocity law, which has served its purpose, of putting Taft out of business.

When governor Eberhart seen that Taft's band wagon was on the sure road to distruction he jumped off to save his life. Pretty smart duck, that same Adolph.

Gordon did not gain any political influence by his attempt to call a special session of the legislature while our governor was absent on a Minnesota Booming tour. It takes a sucker like Gordon to give a weak sister, like Eberhart a lift.

We are just taking a breathing spell waiting to see what action will be taken by the government regarding the closing of Red Lake River. If the war department of this government is under the management and control of the lumber companys, the next move will be made in the courts.

The Socialists are congratulating themselves that they are so rapidly gaining in numbers, with plenty of funds to hire speakers. Of course there is not many socialist newspapers in the country but it is getting down to a point, where there are very few editors that are so cheap as to say that a socialist speaks is lieing, when he knows they are telling the trouth.

As the time approches for the final settlement of you and Uncle for the land that you bought in 1904-5, we again warn you to have your final proof completed by March 29th, 1912. It takes you about six weeks to advertise and make your proof. "Hang on," if you want to, but when you wake up some morning and see a nice little claim shantie on your back forty, don't say THE SUNBEAM did not warn you. The other fellow will own your land, and you can go hunt another homested. We understand there is some vacant government land north of Red Lake.

End Over End.

With the sand, logs and slush ice that is now drifted into the outlet of Red Lake, there is now about five feet head, above the hormal level of the lake. This will be increased by about two feet more before spring. Then turn twenty five million feet of logs loose backed up by a seven foot head of water, fed by the big Red Lake, and you can form an idea of what the Red Lake River, and Red River valley's will be next spring, if there is no action taken to let a part of that water out this winter.

It will be remember that this paper published the statement last fall that the shutting off of this river by that log jam would kill all the fish in it before next spring, and the friends of the log jamers howled ridiculas, but any man living along this river to day will say that we published facts, and they will find that the above is facts when they see them saw logs coming down the river end over end next spring.

This information comes from men that have boated and drove logs on the Red Lake River for years, and in addition that has published a paper seven years above the line of ... as defined by U.S. ... Thief River Falls.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

We wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year! Now let us talk business. We are going to make an effort to streighten up our subscription books next month by cleaning them of all dead heads. We shall again notify all one year past due subscribers and all who fail to pay up, their name will be stricken from our list and their accounts placed in collection agency to be collected at the rate of $1.50 per year.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 22,1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office, at Crookston Minn. Dec. 16th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given, that Anun Evendsen, of Mavie Minn., who on November 9th 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 865 Seriel No. 04814, for N.W. ¼ Section 12 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth principal Meridien has filed notice of intention to make Final five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U.S. Commissioner for District of Minesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 1st, day of February 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Gunder Evendson, Torjus Hemmestvedt, Andrew O. Sendlend, of Mave Minn. Ole Legrold, of Thief River Falls Minn.

Arthur P. Tonpin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First pub in the sunbeam Dec. 22nd,

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Dec.15th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Gunder Evendson Aastad of Mavie Minn. who on Nov. 9th, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 866, Serial No. 04815, for S. W. ¼ Section 12 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described before Wilhem Michelet U.S. Commisioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 1st, day of February 1912.

Claiment names as witnesses:

Anun Evendsen, Tojus Hemmestvedt, Andrew O. Sandlend, Ole Legrold, all of Mavie Minn.

Aurthur P. Tonpin, Register.

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION.

First Pub. The Sunbeam Dec. 8th, 1911.

Department of the Interior U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 4th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Thosten Eilefsen, of Kratka Minn. who on June 28th. 1904 made Homested Entry No. 400, Serial No. 04140, for N.E. ¼ Section 19 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. Fifth Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five year Proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U.S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 16th, day of January 1912.

Claiment names as witnesses:

Ole Christoforson, Ole M. Peterson, Jacob R. Hesby, Louis O. Kongelf, all of Kratka Minn,

Aurthur P. Tonpin, Register.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in The sunbeam Nov. 24, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land office at Crookston Minn, Nov. 22, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Perley P. Palmer, of Highlanding Minn., who on June 5th, 1909, made Homestead Entry No. 04809, for N. W. ¼ Section 22 Township 153 N, Range 40 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Commutation proof to to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet U. S. Commissioner for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 3rd, day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Peter P. Korstad, Peter H. Thoreson, Charles Palmer, George L. Palmer, all of Highlanding Minn,

Aurthur P. Toupin, Register

Notice for Publication.

FirstPub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 15, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. December 8th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Frank Savage, of Hilda Minnesota, who on December 14, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 1004, Serial No. 04334 for Lot 6, 7, 9 and N.E. ¼ S.W. ¼, and on May 15th, 1911, made additional Homstead Entry No. 06105, for N.W. ¼ S.E. ¼, all in Section 6 Township 152 N. Range 39 W. 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Five year proof, to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilheim Michelet U. S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota at Thief River Falls Minn., on the 23rd, day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Sivert Satre, of Thief River Falls Minn. Olaf B. Hanson, Otto Stacy, John Olson Sordahl, of Hilda Minn.

Arthur P. Toupin, Register.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in The Sunbeam Dec. 15th, 1911.

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Dec. 8th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Henry Runnestrand, of Kratka Minnesota, who, on July 1st, 1904, made Homestead Entry No. 480, Serial No. 04638, for S. W. ¼ Section 4 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Five year proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 30th, day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Olaf Bratvik, Gunleg Hoinm, Knut T. Nordgaard, of Kratka Minn, Anders Abenson, of Mavie Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin, Register.

SUMMONS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington, S.S. In District Court, 14th Judicial District.

John A. Wig, Plaintiff,

vs

Marcus Olson Sandwick, if dead, his heirs at law, Andreana Sandwick, if dead her heirs at law; Nickolina Sandwick, if dead her heirs at Law; Anna Sandwick, if dead her heirs at Law; Inger Olava Sandwick, if dead her heirs at Law; and also all unknow heirs, devisees, grantees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in or lein upon the premises described in this action or any potion thereof, Defendant.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS AND EACH OF THEM:

YOU AND EACH OF YOU,

Are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the plaintiff in the above entitled action, which complaint is filed in the offices of the Clerk of District Court within and for the said County of Pennington, Minnesota, in said Judical District, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscribers at their office in the City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, within twenty (20) days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the Conrt for the relief demanded in said Complaint.

Stanton & Rowberg,

Attorneys for Plaintiff,

Thief River Falls Minn.

TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS.

Take notice that no personal claim is made against you or any of you in this action, and that the object thereof is to obtain judgement that the plaintiff is the owner in fee of the premises discribed in said complaint, and that you and each of you have no estate or interest therein or lien thereon.

Stanton And Rowberg,

Attorneys for Plaintiff,

Thief River Falls, Minn.

NOTICE OF LIS PENDENS.

State of Minnesota, County of Pennington) S.S. In District Court, 14th Judicial District.

John A. Wig, Plaintiff,

vs

Marcus Olson Sadwick, if dead his heirs at law; Andeana Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; Anna Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; Inger Olive Sadwick, if dead her heirs at law; and also all unknow heirs, devisees, and all persons having or claiming any right, title or interest in or lein upon the premises descerbed in this action or any portion thereof, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given that an action has been commenced in this Court, by the above named plaintiff against the above named defendants, the object of which is to obtain judgement that the said plaintiff is the owner in fee of the East Half (E½) of Northwest Quarter (N.W.¼) and the West Half (W½) of the Northeast Quarter (N.E.¼) of Section Thirty-one (31), Township One Hundred Fifty-four (154) North of Range Forty-four (44) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian in Minnesota, and that the said defendants and each of them have no interest therein or lein thereon.

Dated this 28th, day of November 1911.

Stanton and Rowberg,

Attorneys for Plaintiff,

Thief River Falls Minn.

Office of Register of Deeds, County of Pennington, Minnesota.

I hereby certify that the within instrument was filed in this office for record on the 28th, day of November, A.D. 1911, at 2:30 o'clock P.M. and was duly recorded in Book 9 of Mortgages on Page 423.

[Seal] E.L. Quist Register of Deeds.

By Effie Hamry, Deputy.

dec. 8—jan.12.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. in the sunbeam Dec. 29th, 1911.

Department of the Interior. U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. December 22, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Anton Horacek, of Highlanding Minnesota, who on February 27th, 1906, made Homestead Entry No. 1283, Serial No. 04638, for S. E. ¼ Section 15 Township 153 N. Range 40 W. 5th. Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make Final Five Year Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhelm Michelet, U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Theif River Falls Minn. on the 7th, day of February, 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Elo Sander, Bernhard P. Stikrud, John Krbecek, Joseph Schlchofer, all of Highlanding Minn.

Aurthur P. Tonpin, Register.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Notice for Publication.

First Pub. in the Sunbeam Dec. 1st, 1911

Department of the Interior U.S. Land Office at Crookston Minn. Nov 24th. 1911.

Notice is hereby given that Thomas Twedt of Kratka Minnesota, who on June 28th. 1904, made Homestead entry No. 872, Serial No. 01107 for N. W. ¼ Section 9 Township 153 N. Range 41 W. 5th. Principal Meridian has filed notice of intention to make Final Commutation Proof to establish claim to the land above described, before Wilhiem Michelet U. S. Commissioner, for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls Minn. on the 10th day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:

Ludvig Larson, Carl Jenson, Christian O. Nygaard, Peter Suland, all of Kratka Minn.

Aurthur P. Toupin, Register.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of ten dollars which became due November 3rd, 1911 and is now due and payable upon a certain mortgage, duly made, executed and delivered by Bertha Pederson, an unmarried woman, as mortgagor, to C.L. Hanson, mortgagee, bearing date the 3rd, day of November, 1909, and with power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Red Lake and State of Minnesota, on the 1st, day of December 1909, at five o'clock P.M., in book 6 of Mortgages on Page 289, and is now recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pennington County, Minnesota, formerly a part of said Red Lake County, in book 88 of mortgages on page 608, and Whereas, said mortgage is conditioned that if the mortgagor shall fail to pay her prior mortgage of one thousand [$1000.00] dollars upon the same land or any installment of interest due thereon, that the mortgagee of this mortgage, now being foreclosed, may pay the same and have a lien therefore, under this mortgage, above described, and may declare this mortgage and the whole debt secured thereby immediately due and payable, and default having been made in the payment of the sum of sixty dollars due November 1st, 1911, the same being interest due upon said prior mortgage and the same having been paid by the undersigned, mortgagee, according to the terms and conditions of a certain cupon interest note, and the said mortgagee did at once elect to declare the whole amount secured by said first above described mortgage now due and payable, and whereas there is now claimed to be and is actualy due at the date of this notice upon the said mortgage now being foreclosed and above first described, the sum of forty and fifty-three one hundreths [$40.53] dollars and the sum of sixty [$60.00] dollars and interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per anum from the first day of November 1911 amounting to fifty one hundreths dollars the same being the interest paid upon said prior mortgage and interest on the amont so paid from date of payment, amounting in all to the sum of one hundred and one and three one hundreths [$101.03] dollars, which is due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debts secured by said mortgage or any part thereof:—

NOW THEREFORE, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of the power of sale therein contained and persuant to the statut in such case made and provided, the said mortgage herein first described, will be foreclosed by sale of the premises therein described and conveyed by said mortgage to wit:—The Southwest quarter of section number fourteen, in township one hundred fifty four north of range forty one West of the fifth Principal Meridian now in Minnesota, now in the County of Pennington, fomerly a part of Red Lake County, Minnesota, togeather with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Pennington County at the front door of the Court house in the City of Thief River Falls, in said County and State, on the ninth day of February 1912, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay the said debt of one hundred one and three one hundreths dollars and interest and taxes if any on said premises and twenty five ($25.00) dollars attorney's fees, which amount is hereby claimed and stated to be a reasonale fee as stipulated in and by said mortgage and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated December 20th, 1911.

C.L. Hanson, Mortgagee.

Stanton and Rowberg,

Attorneys for Mortgagee

Thief River Falls Minn.

dec. 22—jan.26

Some Responsibility.

"Just himself and his wife alone, isn't it?"

"No, they have a cat, a canary, two dogs and a cow."

"I didn't suppose he was as much of a family man as that."

Watch This Space,

And Be Sure To Call at Ellingson BroS,

AT HIGHLANDING, who are now selling winter goods at cost. A big line of winter foot ware.

REMEMBER THE PLACE, THE PIONEER STORE,

GIVE US A CALL, AT ELLINGSON, BROS.

RHODA STORE

NEW GOODS, NEW PRICES.

A trial order will convince you, that this is the best Store to buy your goods.

I HAVE A FIN LINE OF GROCERIES,

BOOTS, SHOES, & COMPLET STOCK OF SUMMER FOOT WARE.

give me a call and get prices.

GEORGE SINGER. Prop. Rhoda Minn.

STOP NEIGHBOR!

Take A Look At THEM FINE NEW GOODS; AT SINGER BRO. KRATKA, MINN

The cheapest and best place to Buy the Right Goods At the Right Pri...

Best Line Of Groceries, Flour and Feed. Feed Mill at Kratka. Highest market price paid for farm produce.

Yours For Business.—SINGER BROS.

Kratka Minn.

PATENTS

Prize Offers from Leading Manufacturers

Book on patents. "Hints to inventors." "Inventions needed." "Why some inventors fail." Send rough sketch or model for search of Patent Office records. Our Mr. Greeley was formerly Acting Commissioner of Patents, and as such had full charge of the U. S. Patent Office.

GREELEY & McINTIRE

PATENT ATTORNEYS

WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE LOCAL NEWS.

Applications to make final proof written free at this office.

Call and see us, when you are ready to make your final proof

The second four months term of school is to commence in this district, on Monday January 8th after holliday vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McAndress, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt on Tuesday after noon and evening.

Mr. Halvor K. Holte, of Grand Forks county N.D.is making an extended visit with his mother and step father, Mr. and Mrs. Ljot Sigurdson.

The weather has been rather cold the past week, but the northern Minnesotan would be lone some if he could not see a few icicles at this time of year.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Vaughn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Arndt, and Miss Vaugh, took their Sunday Xmas dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Vaughn, in the town of Goodridge.

Tom Holte, of Grand Forkes. Henry Torgerson and sister, Miss Sorah Torgerson, of Torgerson, and Harry Gunderson, of Grit post office are Christmas visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ellingsonand other friends.

Henry Arndt will have a number of teams to help him haul the lumber from Plumer for his barn, next week. There is no regular traveled road from Plummer to Highlanding in the winter, as Mr. Arndt will bring out his lumber with a rush.

NEW FEED BARN.

Farmers desireing to feed and rest their teems in Thief River Falls, will find a good barn two doors north of the Red Lake Falls Elevator. Give us a call.

Keys & Covsure, Proprietors.

NOTICE: Mr. H. A. Lindahurg, who is with the State Dairy and Food Department, will be at the annual meeting of the Highland ing Creamery Assn., which takes place on January 11th, 1912, at 10 o'clock a.m. All patrons are invited to attend this meeting. Sad wiches and coffee will be served at noon.

Guy Melius, Sec.

The County printing is to be let next week, and while we are not in a position to do the work, we hope that our County Commissioners will consider that the tax payers of the eastern part of the county ought to know what is going on, and see to it, that their proceedings are published in Eleven Towns, so as to give part of them notice, but if they want to give them all notice they ought to publish in THE SUBEA M

Tea.

A Chinese Colubfian.

According to a Chinese chronicler, Hui Sen, who lived in the sixth century of the Christian era, North America was known to the Chinese under the name of Fusang or Fusa. It was said to be a country lying 6,000 miles to the east of Asia. The chronicle states that in the year 453 five Buddhist priests sailed from China for Fusang, landing in Mexico, where they taught their religion to the natives, built temples and set up heathenish statues of their gods all over the country. Traces of a Mongolian civilization have been found in Mexico. There existed in particular a statue of a god resembling not the slatue god, but one of the gods among the Chinese.—Harper's.

Detail.

"It is wonderful and service ble!" said Biddle of Bunn's self made hair tonic and got so daft to show himself what he is. By that our followers are trained up to fearlessly. Being brought up to speak what is not true, they make no conscience of a fib—Bellaine.

A Pair But.

Addition Skinner has a pair of shoes unsolicited by a convict in the penitentiary. Both shoes clearly will fit—same number. Editor—Does the convict "die" hahn.—Kansas City Star.

Pay up your back subscription.

Notice For Publication.

First Pub. 12 the Subeam Dec 29 1911

Department of the Interior, U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., Dec. 20th, 1911.

Notice is hereby given that John Dykstra of Tennessee Minn. who on January 24th, 1910 made Homestead entry No. 1281, Serial No. 04437 for S. E. ¼ Section 36 Township 154 N. Range 39 W 5th, Principal Meridian, has filed notice of intention to make final Five Year Proof to establish claim to the land above described before Wm. G. Mitchell, U. S. Commissioner for the District of Minnesota, at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the 30th. day of January 1912.

Claimant names as witnesses:—

Peter M. Olsen, Martin Solberg, Levi I. Solberg, Gustaf F. Wilson, all of Tennessee Minn.

Author P. Tomlin
Register.

The People Are He ard.

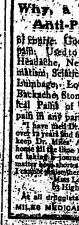
In all the controversy about the jamming of Red Lake river with logs we have endeavord to be fair, but when a corporation lumber company are of the opinion that they backed up by their corporation circle, are very old hunt they are no aginst proposition. Thief River Falls Times please copy and correct mistakes.

Last night we received the following letter from U S Senator Moses E. Clapp.

United States Senate, Washington D.C. Dec. 23rd. 1911.

Mr. W.G Hunt,

Snnbeam Minn.



Dear Sir:

Further reptying to your letter Gen Bishop, Chief of Engineers has directed Col Shunk to go over the ground personally and hold public hearings at Thief River Falls Crookston Grand Forks. This ought to give the people a chance to be heard.

With kind regards,

Moses E. Clapp U.S. Senator.

The people up in this neck of the wood have about as much respect for Shunk as they would have for an Indian dog. The snake came sneaking up here three years ago telling the farmers HE was the man to make complinto about this river. You saw him looking for a job, "wasent you Major and we guess you got IT. When you had your Engineer certify that there was no wagon road to the outlet of Red Lke you were missinformed. Now if you will send a goverment Engineer to Thief River Falls (I like Thief River we have somegood friends down there): put him in a band box and land him at Newberrys barn in Thief River Falls, and he will land him at the outlet of Red Lake. Then let him make a report of the conditions, as they are and the people will bow the knee and say "we are satisfied."

Take What Pill? Why, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pill,

Which is good for all kinds of pain. Used to relieve Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Kidney Pains, Lumbago, Locomotor Ataxia, Backache, Stomachache, Period ical Pains of Women, and for pain in any part of the body.

"I have used Dr. Miles' Medicines for over 12 years but seldom write them. Now Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills in the house all the time and would not think of taking a journey without them. No matter what ails me, a dose or two brings relief in a short time. Mrs. Lina Kirk, Bellefontaine, O.

To High Six Fashionable N. Y.

At all druggists. 25 tests one MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

At the Old Home

by Lawrence C. Berliner

(Copyright.)

STEARNS, the man of affairs, was in for dinner and indigestion as a visitor's evening found him deep in thought. A man of particular sensibilities, was the way the world adjudged the financier. Yet there were moments of a youthful romance and gaiety departure from home. No one ever dared broach the subject and it had long since been forgotten.

As Charles Stearns gazed into the fire in the library of his home, the flickering light seemed to recall days of the past. In fancy he saw again his boyhood home, his parents, and acquaintances. How little they had been to him for so long a time!

Quarterly stipends he had supplied to the old folks, yet he had never heeded the call they sent out for their only son.

As the man sat musing, he spoke aloud:

"I believe I am getting sentimental. I think I shall surprise the old folks and pay them a visit for Christmas."

A thought meant an act with Stearns. His mind once made up, it took much to change it. His decision to return to the farm for the holiday gave him pleasure. He pondered, hardly await the time when he was to start.

He bought presents for the old folks. He remembered his father's delight in watches. One of the finest to be had went into a chatsel for him. The silk for a new dress made up a portion of what he planned for his mother.

It was a long journey to the old homestead. The train sped onward and each moment made the man more anxious to see his people and the old place again. But suddenly a thought occurred to him and his face blenched. He had forgotten: Stella Harrington might still be there.

All the memories of the past were swept aside and he thought only of her.

Once she had promised to make him happy. As he thought of that time, he sighed deeply. She had stolen his life when she changed her mind for the last and threw him over.

He recalled the jeers of his boyhood companions as they sneered their rough wittisisms at him. It was the way of the country and he would not stand the finger of scorn, and had fled. That was in the long ago and he had almost forgotten—until now.

As the train stopped at the little station on the hill it stopped as if he had left it only yesterday.

But no—where was George White, the old agent? A young man filled his place. The driver of the stage was another stranger. Old Eb Brown was also a thing of the past.

None knew the portly middle-aged man as he strode towards the coach that plied between station and town. There was a moment's pause, while the driver gathered the mail, as old Eb had done so many times, and they were off.

As the big fellow over the rough roads the mail within watched with interest the scenes of his youth. The town had changed little in the years that had passed.

When the coach paused at the old homestead the man's eyes filled with tears. A woman came from the house; mother and son were in each other's arms.

On the porch stood his father to welcome the man home. With might eyes the united family stood. All hearts were full. The parents' hopes had been realized and the prodigal had come home.

"How could I have remained away so long?" he asked again and again as the old folks flocked about, trying to make him comfortable.

"And, father, you are such a hustler they left us," said his mother, who left us so long ago, are the images of your father at your age."

"My boy," spoke the father, "it has been a long time since you went away, but we are mighty glad to have you back again."

The son's heart was too full for words at first. He was, question after question like to ask, but the time was fused to come.

"Charlie," questioned his mother, "have you ever seen Stella since the day you went away?" I know I should not be asked of this, but I think—"

"Mother!" Ah a boy's anguish came forth in that word. As of yore, he buried his face in the mother's lap and sobbed.

She stroked his now balmning locks and the touch was magical. What had he not to forgive for so many years? His old love—Stella? Oh, he had forgotten her.

"Mother," he said, "I have never seen Stella since the day you went away. I never heard from her, never thought of her—until now. She never cared for me, I guess, but it was enough to make me leave you, even. You would never understand, and she was too proud to write."

"Where is Stella now, mother?" asked the man.

"She lives in the old place by the creek, Charlie, you remember it—with all the apple trees behind the house?"

Well did the man remember the scene to which he had spent the autumn evening with his sweetheart.

That evening found Stearns walking toward the creek. "I wonder how the old place looks," he thought.

There was the old-fashioned house, the porch with the long steps. Everything was as if the old boys were still there.

A figure moved about in the parlor. He knew well where the parlor was. He heard the organ. It was Stella's favorite air. He paused and his eyes filled with tears as he heard this song again.

Slowly he ascended the steps and pulled the bell. The playing stopped and he heard footsteps. The door opened and the light of the hall streamed upon his face.

It was evident that the woman failed to recognize him, for she looked askance as he spoke.

"Is this Stella Harrington?" he began, but the sound of his voice made her start.

"Charles Stearns, have you come back?" she gasped, and followed him into the room.

"So, Stella, you are keeping house alone now! You—you have not changed very much, either," he said carelessly.

He saw that her once golden tresses were streaked with grey, yet much of the youthful beauty remained and he found his heart quickening as he gazed at the woman.

"And you are the great banker they would have us believe—little Charlie Stearns, who used to be my teens at school?"

Neither had touched on the subject which seemed to be in the minds of both. At last the man could remain silent no longer.

"Stella, my mother has just told me why you changed your mind so many years ago. Why did you not tell me then?" he asked.

"Because I was too proud. When I found that he had lied, it was too late.

"Charles Stearns, Have You Come Back?"

You had left home and no one knew where. I thought if you had really cared you would have come back," said Stella.

"And I have come back, my girl. Just what brought me here this Christmas I cannot realize, but I know I am glad to be back."

"And your parents—how happy they must be to have you with them again," she said. "Now, they can enjoy Christmas to the old way—just you three together."

"Stella, you are all alone. Won't you come to our house for dinner to-morrow? Just to celebrate in a modern way, and it will make the old folks so happy."

Only the old folks—he also began, but the big man silenced her as he grasped her hands and said:

"Stella, I see you have refused me so many years ago. Will you be my wife? You are alone in the world, and I want you."

"Charles, it is not out of pity you ask me this time, is it?" she questioned.

"No, dear girl, it is because my heart has been hungry for something for these years, and I did not realize until now that it was you I needed." It was indeed a modern Christmas scene that met the eyes. The parents turned away as they saw the younger pair under the mistletoe, as only hand in hand the sweetheart mother-

Violetta in Australia.

It is striking contrast to our own is the Christmas Day spent by our people in Australasia. No snow or blazing log fire; no holly or mistletoe; only a bright sky, with fleecy white clouds, and a blazing sun. Christmas is so peculiarly associated by us with the cold season that it is hard for us to realize that there are countries where Christmas dinner, or, rather, luncheon, is eaten in the open air, and where the Christmas tree is a myrtle bough. Even the Christmas pudding is not the heavy dish it is with us, but a light confection of fruit and cream.—Pearson's Weekly.

Violets in Australia.

It striking contrast to our own is the Christmas Day spent by our people in Australasia. No snow or blazing log fire; no holly or mistletoe; only a bright sky, with fleecy white clouds, and a blazing sun. Christmas is so peculiarly associated by us with a cold season that it is hard for us to realize that there are countries where Christmas dinner, or, rather, luncheon, is eaten in the open air, and where the Christmas tree is a myrtle bough. Even the Christmas pudding is not the heavy dish it is with us, but a light confection of fruit and cream.—Pearson's Weekly.

NEW BANK.

FIRST STATE BANK,

OF OKLE Lambert Post Office Minn.

NEW STATION ON DULUTH S.S.O. LINE.

Your Business Solicited.

Directors, A. P. Toupin, Pres. Saul Gillet, Vice Pres. Larry O'Niel, Asst. Cashier. J. Duffey, Cashier. T. L. Chilson, Asst. Cashier.

We Carry The Fosston All Wool New Ulster Coats And Mackinaws, men and boys sheep lined COATS,

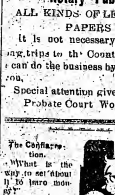
Sweaters for Men Ladies and Children. For Good Warm Footwear Try The ALL BAND.

CALL ON US, IF YOU WANT TO BUY THE DeLAVEL CREAM SEPARATOR.

VAUGHAN BROS. & CO. Highlanding Minn.

W.G. Hunt. Notary Public

ALL KINDS OF LEGAL PAPERS DRAWN



It is not necessary to make long trips to the County seat, as I can do the business by mail for you.

Special attention given to Probate Court Work.

U. S. Mail.

The U. S. Mail leaves Sunbeam, at 10.00 a. m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Arrives on the same days, at 4.30 p.m

Wm. G. Hunt, P. M.

The Contrary-tion.

"What is the way to set about it to have money?"

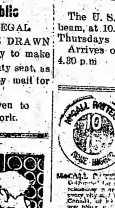
"Yes."

"Ahh then the mutch."

"Yes."

"That is all, only it is convenient and comforting to have a hurry on call for the tambahoo! But before marriage—"

Chatsel Doctor.



Doctor—Well, how are you today, Biggs?

Patient—Feeble, doctor. I feel much better.

Doctor—That's good. You're looking much better than you did yesterday.

Patient—Yes, I'm getting stronger. I want to recover enough to—said the patient, with a sly wink, to pay the doctor's bill.

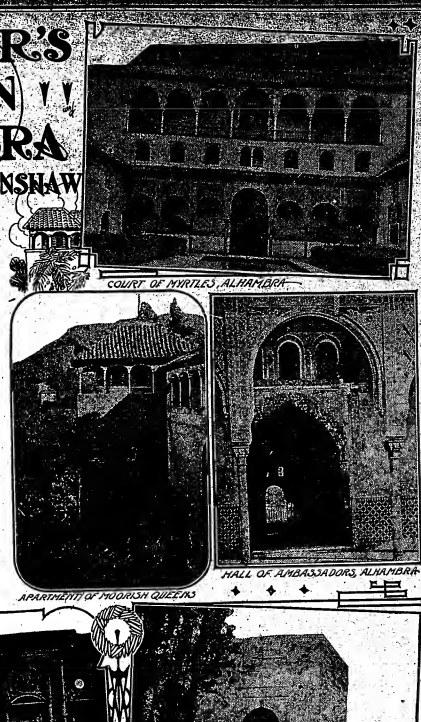
McCall Co. 236 to 246 W. 37th St., NEW YORK

10 Days Free Trial In Your Own Home

"Simplex" Hand Vacuum Cleaner

"The Cleaner That Cleans Clean"

We want to explain why it is every household should have a "Simplex" Hand Vacuum Cleaner. It is the only one that will do all kinds of work perfectly and easily in your home.



We want to explain to you how it is every household should have a "Simplex" Hand Vacuum Cleaner. It is the only one that will do all kinds of work perfectly and easily in your home.

We want to explain to you how it is every household should have a "Simplex" Hand Vacuum Cleaner. It is the only one that will do all kinds of work perfectly and easily in your home.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

NEW YEAR'S FIESTA IN ALHAMBRA

by BOYD WILKINSHAW

WERE you to pilgrimage to the old Moorish capital of Granada intent upon our own New Year's, you would wake that morning to find the city very strange and very Spanish, but I doubt not full as sleepy as its wont. Indeed, we had not come for the vulgar New Year's at all; it was rather for the peculiar indigenous fete to the Grandino the first of January is nothing more than a common feast day like a hundred others on the church calendar. But the second is the first day of the Toma, the day of masses and carnival, the day of fountains splushing in the courts of the Alhambra, the day when Ferdinand and Isabella vanquished Boabdil, last of the Moors. It is this day which sees the year properly launched in a flare of ecclesiastical pyrotechnics. So it is not surprising to find how perfectly Granada ignores the New Year of all the rest of Christendom in anticipation of its own.

The Ayuntamiento had been announced as the starting point of the procession. It was because of this that so many had gathered early. The Plaza had long been a jostle of color when a burst of music set every one on tiptoe. As we pushed our way into the crowd it was almost impossible to discern any procession at all. Only now and then were there glimpses of red and blue soldier caps and the high hats of the city functionaries. Yet it was enough to set the whole Plaza surging toward the cathedral, not more than a couple of stone-throws distant.

We were swept into the crowd at the door of the Royal Chapel, through which the procession and the whole population tried to enter at once. It is in this chapel that Ferdinand and Isabella sleep on high sepulchres of alabaster.

The service was, of course, very pompous, with the high altar a shimmer of gold, and bright-vested priests going to and fro, and the air dense. It deeply impressed the peasants who were massed about us. They stood the two hours or more in rapt wonder.

After mass everybody flocked back to the Plaza del Carmen for the "fag-waving." On that memorable morning in 1492, when Boabdil handed the palace keys to the Catholic sovereigns, Mendoza, grand cardinal of Spain, climbed the watch-tower of the Alhambra and waved over the fallen city a flag made by Isabella herself, and which is still shown in the cathedral sacristy. It was a boisterous moment when the alcalde appeared. The band had launched into the national anthem, but cheer after cheer soon drowned it. He waited a moment for the enthusiasm to subside, then shouted Mendoza's cry, "Granada, Granada, won by the sovereigns illustrious, Ferdinand of Aragon, and Isabella of Castile!" At this the flag was raised and vigorously swept to and fro a half dozen times. Then the ceremony was over and a thousand warm-blooded Spaniards howled ¡Viva Granada! Viva Espana! Viva!"

There is another thing peculiar to the day of the Toma. We could never have fully understood it had it not been for our young friend, to let me assure the unwary that one is still as likely in these parts to have fished out of a well as in the days of Washington Irving. This tardemadian had attached himself to us the moment we left our rooms, and had helped manipulate for our chairs at the mass, and warned us so as not to be late for the flag ceremony. Like Mateo, he was "fag-wed, and he remembered," a mouth which spread in grins as broad as his two ears would allow. It made him grin regularly to think that we could not understand all that hullo-ringing. It was the spasmodic ringing from the watch tower which overlooks the city from the ectrosity of the Alhambra that had so impressed that he bell was tolled every morning toward daybreak to regulate the irrigation gates on the Vega, but this capricious fancy was quite beyond us. Chicito told the whole tradition of the bell. "You see, senores, it's para cazadores, to get husbands. From long ago it was said that the girls who rang the bell on the day of the Toma and prayed to the Holy Virgin for a husband would surely get one before the next Toma came.

After the siesta, the whole population made a solemn pilgrimage up to the Alhambra. On through the gate of Pomegranates they went, level with the Alhambra's battlements, and then in its leafiness its romantic glen drew a charm of its own from arcaded trunks clung over with ivy, with their feet lost in a riot of early violets, and their slender branches covering the road in a basework of shadow. The way ascended along a hedge of burnished box barrel, where carriages rushed and scurried down the pebbly beds. After a while we had made the sharp turn, and let the great Portal of Justice yawned before us, and on its arch were the fabled hand and key of the magi. In spite of the careless come and go of holiday-makers, the present seems to fall back when that portal closes over us, like a spirit exorcised. We begin to feel the whimsery of the Alhambra—the prance of cavalcades, the flash of scimitars, the swarthy-visaged Moors, the romance of captive princes, the teasing mystery of hidden treasure.

But we were only to come out upon the Plaza of the Cisterns to find a band concert in progress.

This palace of the Cisterns is the broad court lying between the two groups of the Alhambra—the fortress of Alcasaba on the point of the ridge and the palace proper, whose halls cluster about the Tower of Comares. From here we could see how the city lay about the ridge in a ragged crescent, and a half dozen miles away we could nearly discern that empidering village of Santa Fe, the quarters of the Catholic conquerors during the siege of Granada. A Spanish gentleman pointed it out to us. But had the senores seen the Alhambra by moonlight? "No." "Ah, only the saints could describe the picture."

We were happy enough to see it by daylight, and afterwards followed the crowds back across the Plaza of the Cisterns and lost ourselves in the labyrinth of the Alhambra. That afternoon the courts were all reanimate with dancing-waters and the soft rustle of streams. People trooped everywhere, whole families of them. The older folks seemed to saunter about in a matter-of-fact way, but under the rimade so performatorily as though they were promenading on the Paseo de Colon. Sometimes they stopped in the Court of Lions, or lingered, maybe, over the views from the Mirador de la Reina. It was all grand, very grand. Those lagiesse (Englishmen) owned nothing to compare with it. Granada folks seemed perfectly conscious of their superiority. No wonder they, to whom even the Alhambra was a matter of every day, should show themselves amused, sometimes laugh outright, at the two short-coped lagiesse who always managed to obstruct the current, who hauled the Hall of Ambassadors' whole length in the middle of the day, who insisted upon walking in the Court of Lions, where only foreigners in the place, looked ordinarily at the blood-stained marble in the Room of the Abencerrages and paced again and again, pointing and ejaculating, in the Hall of Justice, where arch beams below arch dripping with many stalactites, as though inviting to some fairy grotto. In spite of being curiously watched, they explored the cellarerous baths of the Sultas and found their way into the cloistered garden of Lindaraja, over which hung the bedroom of Washington Irving.

But somehow, on that day of the Toma, the Hall of Ambassadors, opening out on the Court of Myrtles, kindled one's fancy most. In the midst of this court lies a marble-lipped pool bordered with low myrtle hedges. At each end arcades, needled into filigree, leap from delicate pillars, and under water in subdued gurglings. Towards the Darro rises the great square Tower of Comares which mirrors its tawny bulk in the green tinted water.

It is the Tower of Comares, as everyone knows, which holds the Hall of the Ambassadors. One leaves the arcades and crosses the ruined Chamber of the Boat to find himself under a great, dusky dome set over with starry facets of larch wood. Below, mosaics of azulejos weave a brilliant wainscoting in glazed blacks and greens. Above, yellow tinted walls are wrought into a wilderness of arabesques. At first their patterns are delicate as vine tendrils, then loosen in figure toward the upper edges.

How inevitably its halls summon memories of Boabdil and the Toma! Here were staged the first and last acts of that ill-starred life. The tyrant Abdul Hassam had made "The Morning Star," the choice of his harem. Her son was chosen for the throne, so that young Boabdil seemed doomed to lose his life as well as his empire. It was from yonder deep, embayed window that the royal mother lowered her prince to a waiting horseman, who bore him away to the hills of Guadix.

A few stormy years and the scene again shifts to the Hall of Ambassadors. The watchmen on the Tower de la Vela have reported a troop of horse scurrying hither from the plain. It is the demand of Ferdinand and Isabella. The Christian is at the gates of the Alhambra. See how dill-like his throne for the last time by yonder damasked wall. Low-hanging lamps shed a softened radiance through the gloom, and make the burnished weapons gleam in their racks. Swarthy councillors, with knitted brows, stand about the throne's monarch. Moorish knights finger the hilts of their scimitars in perplexity. Without, the fountain-filled pool of the Myrtles lies placid as glass, mirrors the turbaned figures that linger beside it. Morning sunlight glints its waters, now and then a shadow flits across it. Outside, the twilight curtain falls upon the drama of the Moor and his fate.

LETHBRIDGE, ALBERTA, SECURES DRY FARMING CONGRESS FOR 1912.

The term "dry farming" does not indicate all that might be implied. It does not mean a system of irrigation; but one where all the rain fall and precipitation is stored up and conserved in the soil, to be drawn upon by scientific and sane processes when it may be required to forward and increase the growth of grain.

In certain sections of the Canadian West, as well as in the American West, there is a portion of the country in which the soil is the very best for the growing of cereals, but the geographical locations and relative position to the rain avenues, do not give the advantage that other parts possess in the matter of precipitation.

Agriculture, however, has been making rapid progress during the past few years, and it is now a contested that it is not altogether the number of inches of rain that is essential to the growing of crops, but its conservation, and that in the meaning of "Dry farming." "Dry Farming" may well be applied to the tricts where there is a heavy rain fall and better results will follow. The education of the public into these new methods, not new exactly, but such as have had satisfactory demonstration, is not alone the purpose of these dry-farming Congresses. One idea is to bring into life and into operation the great areas of splendid land lying within what might be termed semi-arid, without placing them under the restrictive and expensive process of irrigation.

The Congresses are attended by thousands and they bring representatives from all parts of the world. The Province of Alberta, and also of Saskatchewan, has taken a vital interest in the Congresses which have been held in the past two or three years. The Province of Alberta has made provincial exhibits, districts have shown their products, and last year, some hundred dollars were taken in prizes; this year the Province of Alberta took prizes ten to one in excess of any else in the Union. Alberta has won eight out of twenty special cups, that province taking one, Lethbridge one, Arthur Ferry six, and John Baxter, Edmonton, carrying off one sweepstakes. When it came to a matter of location for the Congress for 1912, the City of Lethbridge, which had put up a splendid fight for it, secured the Congress by a unanimous vote. It is expected that the Lethbridge Congress will be the largest yet held and will be the biggest convention in the history of Western Canada. In emphasizing his invitation to Lethbridge, one of the speakers said he had just received a telegram from Magrath (near Lethbridge) stating that of one thousand acres of wheat just thrashed Hethershaw and Bradshaw had thrashed 47,000 bushels.

Literature sent out recently by the Canadian Government Agents, which will be sent postage free on application, tells of hundreds of splendid yields in all parts of Western Canada.

A man may be a member of the Elks and wear an overcoat with a fur collar and still not be an actor.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Do not gripe.

Most women like the villain better than the hero.

Splendid Crops

In Saskatchewan (Western Canada)

800 Bushels from 20 acres

Such a yield was the thankful return from a Lloydminster district farm. Mr. Thomas of Fort Macleod, Alta., writes: "Yields in that section were as follows: Wheat, 45 to 55 bushels per acre; oats, 80 to 100 bushels per acre. Other crops in proportion."

LARGE PROFITS

from the FREE HOMESTEADS

of Western Canada.

Adjoining homestead entries can be had in many districts. Schools and churches are established in the new districts. Railways are being built in all directions. Free illustrated pamphlets, giving experiences of farmers who have settled in Western Canada, and telling how they have prospered, can be had on application to the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or to any Canadian Government Agent.

The Official Gazette, Feb. 3, 1912, says: "Under the Homestead Regulations, 1908, 160 acres of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta may be obtained free by any settler who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, on payment of a fee of $10 on application for entry."

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and devitalized through indiscretions which have come down from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in overcoming our inherited and self-acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glycerin compound, extracted from native roots and contains no alcohol. Every person who suffers from Week Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Side, Indigestion, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Sallow Skin, Blood Humors, Scrofula, Chronic Diarrhœa and other Intestinal Derangements, "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

The genuine has on its outside wrapper the Signature

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the largest dealer may threw in a little larger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules. Easy to take as candy.

NO HARD PROBLEM TO SOLVE

Baltboy's Suggestion Would Seem to Be Natural Way to Get Around a Difficulty.

The Englishman who has been wearing a top hat and a frock coat impressed all who saw him with his distinguished appearance as he strolled about with an expensive air in one of the more expensive hotels. On Wednesday morning he came up to a clerk.

"I would like to have a shirt laundered," he said. "I must have it back by five o'clock."

The clerk told him that the time was unusually short, but he would do what he could, and the shirt was delivered on time.

He came down Thursday morning and said he wanted another shirt laundered, but that this one must be back by two o'clock in the afternoon. The clerk said that would be too short a time. The Briton grew angry and demanded to see the proprietor. He got as far as the bell boy captain, to whom he protested that he would not stand for such treatment. The bell boy suggested the purchase of a third shirt.—New York Sun.

BURNING ITCH WAS CURED

"I deem it my duty to tell about a cure that the Cuticura Soap and Ointment have made on myself. My trouble began in splotches breaking out red in the edge of my hair on the forehead, and spread over the front part of the top of my head from ear to ear, and over my ears which caused a most fearful burning itch, or eczema.

"For three years I had this terrible breaking out on my forehead and scalp. I tried one family remedy and he failed to cure it. Then I tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and used them for two months with the result of a complete cure. Cuticura Soap and Ointment should have the credit due, and I have advised a lot of people to use them." (Signed) C. D. Tharrington, Creek, N. C., Jan. 26, 1911.

Itching Scalp—Hair Fell Out.

"I will say that I have been suffering with an itching on my scalp for the past few years. My hair fell out in spots all over my head. My scalp started to trouble me with sores, then the sores healed up, and scabs formed on the top. Then the hair fell out and left me three bald spots the shape of a half dollar. I went to more than one doctor, but could not get any relief, so I started to use the Cuticura Remedies. I tried one bar of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment, and felt relieved right away. Now the spots have disappeared, and my hair has grown, thanks to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I highly recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all that are suffering with scalp trouble." (Signed) Samuel Stern, 126 Floyd St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed, free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 2 K, Boston.

Justly Punished.

"Why has your discharged Richards?" De'yon. "Well, because he had reached the age of forty-five that he is no longer useful?"

"No, that isn't it. When I was coming into the city on my car the other morning he got in front of it at a crossing and would not get out of the car to avoid running him down I had to lose nearly half a minute."

Calling a Halt.

He—I can marry any woman I please.

She—Ah, but do you please any?—Baltimore American.

The Chicago Fire could have been prevented with one pail of water, but the water was not handy. Keep a bottle of Hamline Wizard Oil handy and prevent the fiery pains of inflammation.

Mechanical Misses are the kind women give each other.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The wise manicure never hits the nail on the head.

SYNOPSIS.

A foolish young tenderfoot becomes fascinated with the bold, artful wife of a drunken prospector in a western mining town. They prepare to elope in a blinding blizzard but are confronted by the maudlin husband. He is shot by the wife, but the chivalrous boy pins a note to the body taking the crime upon himself. In their flight to the railroad station the woman's horse falls exhausted; the youth puts her on his own and follows hanging to the stirrup strap. Seeing he is an impediment, the woman thrusts her escort into a snow drift and rides on. Half-frozen he stumbles into the railroad station just as the train bears the woman away. Twenty-five years later, this man, George Gormly, is a multi-millionaire in New York. He meets Eleanor Haldane, a beautiful and wealthy settlement worker, and co-operates with her in her work. Gormly becomes owner of a steamship line and finds himself frustrated in pier and track extension plans by grafting aldermen, backed by the Gotham Traction company. An automobile accident brings the Haldanes to his country home. Gormly announces that he will be mayor of New York and redeem the city from corruption. The political declaration of the merchant prince produced a tremendous sensation. The whole machinery of the city's detective force is to be used to dig up something damaging to Gormly. The press heretofore unanimously favorable to the merchant candidate, under pressure, divides and the campaign waxes warm. A resolution is introduced granting a gratuitous renewal of the traction franchise. Gormly offers ten million dollars for the franchise. Miss Haldane congratulates Gormly on what she terms a new Declaration of Independence, and he makes an unexpected declaration of love. He is shocked by the confirmation of his suspicions that her father is the head and backbone of the notorious traction company which he is attempting to overthrow. Young Haldane discovers his father's connection with the Gotham Traction company, and is incensed. In an interview between Gormly and Haldane the latter practically offers his daughter's hand as a bribe for Gormly to withdraw. Gormly refuses. In an interview with Gormly Miss Haldane learns of her father's baseness though Gormly vainly tries to hide it.

CHAPTER XIV.—Continued.

"Stop! You are on oath now, by your honor as a gentleman, by your belief in God, by your faith in womankind, by your love for me! I want the truth. Indeed, it is almost unnecessary for you to speak. Your silence, everything, confirms me in that belief. A man who would do what he has done would not hesitate at that. But I must know, and I must have your answer."

"And I can't tell you."

"You can."

"Well, I won't then. I have told you enough. Anything else you must get from other people."

"And so you refused me?" said the girl standing up. "Look at me!" She stretched her hands out and stood boldly, magnificently, defiantly before him. "You refused me! Many men have wooed me; many men have sought me for a wife. I did not love you, I don't love you; but I might have learned. You might have had me. You say I am the dearest desire of your heart. A little silence, a paper torn in two, a momentary forgetfulness, and I should have been yours." She picked the paper up from the table as she spoke and held it before her. "I could tear it up in a moment. Think what you might have had." She stepped slowly around the table and approached him. She came nearer to him. He stared at her fixedly without moving. She was by his side now. She laid her hand upon his shoulder. "Me," she said, "for this, and you refused!"

He nodded. It was the hardest task life had ever laid upon him, this discussion.

"What are you made of?" she cries.

"I don't know," gasped the man hoarsely. "I was a fool!"

"Will you take me now?" she interposed swiftly, "and suppress this? If I say that I will marry you tomorrow, will you keep this a secret forever?"

"Great God!" whispered the man, "how you tempt me!"

"Will you do it? Answer!"

"No!" said Gormly faintly at last. "I won't!"

"Why not?"

"For two reasons. I would not be worth your respect for a moment if I did. I could never hope for your love in that case. And I won't have any woman that I have to buy."

"And we have both tried to bribe you, my father and I, and we have both failed."

"You did not try to bribe me, Eleanor. I am sure you did not know what you were doing."

"I did," she said. "I wanted to test you. I wanted to try you. I wanted to see if it was true. I wanted assurance that my father had done this thing. I wanted to measure your manhood by my womanhood. Oh!" she said in a sudden change of mood, "the light has gone out of life for me!"

"My dear child," he began tenderly.

She shook her head and sat down once more and once more buried her face in her hands. He ventured to come near to her. He laid his own hand on her head and stroked it gently, murmuring broken words; meaningless, save to her on whose ears they fell indistinctly. At last she lifted her head and looked at him. She caught his hand in both her own.

"You are a great man," she said, "a strong man, a true man, and I am only a poor, wretched woman. I kiss the hand that smites me." Before he could prevent it she suited the action to the word. "Now," she said, "go. You have done all you can. I understand [illegible] I think [illegible]

Without another word Gormly turned and left her.

He found Miss Stewart and young Haldane still in the hall. They stared at him awestruck at the tragedy in his grim face.

"Go to her!" he said as he passed them. "She needs you."

CHAPTER XV.

The Last Council of War.

Summoned by Liffey at Haldane's urgent request, the governing members of the ring met that night at their secret rendezvous. There were present besides the two mentioned, Van Slyke and McRonald, Rutherford, Connell, Habberley, Benson representing the allies, and the mayor. When Haldane arrived, he found the others already assembled.

"Well?" asked Liffey as soon as the other entered the room.

"He's found it out and he's going to do it."

"Found out what and going to do what?" asked Rutherford.

"Gormly has got onto us, Mr. Rutherford," was Liffey's reply. The boss realized instantly that Haldane had failed to postpone the disclosure. "He's found out the secret history of the Gotham Freight Traction company. He's found out the whole bloomin' history; where we git our money, how we spend it."

"And who was the traitor that betrayed you?" asked Benson fiercely.

"I'd like to know that same," answered Liffey, his fat jaws clamping together, his "pompadour" crest bristling.

"I don't imagine anybody betrayed us," said Rutherford. "We've known all along that the thing was bound to get out sooner or later. If it had been later, it wouldn't have made much difference; but now—— Is he going to publish it?"

"He is," answered Haldane.

"When?" demanded Van Slyke.

"Tomorrow. It will be in every paper in the city except our own."

"Great God!" exclaimed Connell. "If we could only stave it off for just three more days. Gimme three days, and——"

"Did you bid for him?" questioned the chief of police.

Haldane nodded.

"Did you go high enough?" asked Benson.

"I went so high," said the man, "that his refusal covered me with worse shame than the publication will do."

"And it wasn't enough?" queried Rutherford, who had a clearer comprehension of what the offer might have been than the others.

"No."

"So it's coming out tomorrow, is it?"

"Yes."

"Well, I don't know what we can do," said Liffey, "but grin and take it."

"Gents, hear me!" burst out Connell. "I can't throw no light on this situation. I don't see no way of keeping [illegible] could burn up the plants or close 'em down some way, which I'd like to have the job of doin'. But we ain't beat yet.

"This man that's posin' as an angel of virtue before the people of New York and talkin' reform and so on is an adulterer, a thief, and a self-confessed murderer."

"What!" roared the men present. "You're dreaming! You're mad!"

"I am, am I? Well, you just wait," returned the chief, "and you'll find I'm the sanest man in the whole bunch. You know the other night when you was jammin' through the franchise at the city hall and Gormly made his great play?"

"Yes."

"Well, one of my men—I had a bunch of plain clothes men scattered through the crowd—with his eyes and ears open heard a man say, lookin' at Gormly standin' up on that automobile and givin' the crowd his infernal rot, 'Well, if that ain't a dead ringer for a boy named George Fordyce that I used to know back in Kill Devil Camp in Wyoming twenty-five years ago, I'll eat my hat!' My man sized up the speaker at once. He was a big western man free of speech as he was with his money. His name's Bill Hamilton, and he's a big Montana mine owner. They call him colonel out there. They struck up a friendship right away, had a few drinks together, and my man got enough out of him to get on the trail of the story we been lookin' for without Hamilton in the least suspectin' what he was after. I sent a dozen of the smartest men on the force out to Wyoming to rustle up old inhabitants of Kill Devil Camp, which has long since been blotted off the map. It seems that this Gormly, or Fordyce, or whatever his name is, once run away with a miner's wife, first robbin' him of his pile and shootin' the miner."

The little group of men listened to the chief's startling story in a fever of excitement and surprise, which Connell greatly enjoyed.

"Now, we knew that he never came to New York with no woman," he ran on. "We've got his whole history from the day he landed here, every minute of it. We reasoned that the woman must have deserted him, or he her. Naturally she'd make for one of the big cities, especially if she had the money. We believed that she had it; for he had practically none when he landed. He went to work as a clerk in a store at five dollars a week. A woman like that'd be pretty sure to turn up on the town somewhere sooner or later. We've got a detailed history of everyone of 'em here and elsewhere. If she went down to the gutter, she'd be dead. If she went up to the parlor, she'd be alive still. It was only necessary to look among those that are runnin' the thing. We found one, who'd come from Wyoming. I went to see her myself, and I've got her confession here." He hauled a paper out of his pocket. "She didn't want to tell nothing about it. She don't come out of it especially creditable; but we had means to make her. All we got to git now is the stuff from Wyoming, a witness or two to identify Gormly with Fordyce, and that's the end of him."

Connell snapped his finger in derision.

"Has the woman seen the man?" asked Benson as soon as he could get his breath.

"Often."

"Does he still——"

"Lord, he don't know she's on the earth."

"Is she sure he is the man?"

"She says so."

"Has she never tried to blackmail him?"

"Never. She's glad enough to let him alone, I guess."

"Why isn't she witness enough then?" asked the district attorney.

"Well, she's mixed up in it in rather a nasty way. She's afraid she'll suffer if her part of it is made public."

"I can fix that," said Rutherford coolly enough. "A promise of immunity, and——"

"She won't do it," returned the chief. "You can drive these women just so far, and there you stop. Besides, it ain't never goin' to come into court."

"What do you mean?" asked Benson.

"I mean," said Connell emphatically, "that Gormly is goin' to give up the game."

"Give up the game!" repeated Haldane.

"That's what I said. It's goin' to be put up to him as to whether he wants this told or whether he withdraws from the field."

"You might back your 'put up' to him with a warrant for murder, I believe," said the district attorney. "If the evidence is what you say, I'll have charges preferred against him."

"All right," answered the chief. "Mr. Rutherford and I will fix that up. Now, gentlemen, you leave this to me. I am accustomed to deal with criminals, and I'll fix Gormly. I ought to have all the reports in my hands the day after tomorrow."

"Wouldn't it be well to spring it tonight?"

"Hardly. Besides it's too late. Not even Gormly himself could keep the stuff out of the papers now.

"I guess now, Mr. Haldane," said Rutherford, as the assembly dissolved and the two found themselves alone together, the others being gone, "that you are rather glad than otherwise that your bribe did not work."

"Yes, I suppose so. I don't know," answered Haldane brokenly. "I had heard some intimations of this, nothing definitely. Connell has been very close mouthed. I tried to bluff Gormly with that. I don't know what effect the disclosure is going to have. I don't know how true it is. It seems rather suspicious."

"Connell had better be careful what he does," returned Rutherford. "He'd better be very sure of his facts."

"Why did you leave the handling of the affair to him?"

"Well, he'd make a good scapegoat if anything went wrong," answered Rutherford with cynical indifference.

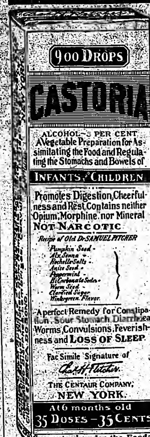
Now, as it happened, Colonel Bill Hamilton was not so guileless as he looked. After the first exclamation and the first few confidences over the drinks which he gave to the plain clothes man who had so adroitly sought to get his story on that eventful night, Colonel Bill shut up like a clam. The interest of the stranger in the story was suspicious. Colonel Bill knew a great many things that he had not told, and did not intend to tell unless it was necessary. Therefore, he soon got rid of his new friend and went to his room to think it over.

He was morally certain that Gormly and the man whom he had known as a boy as George Fordyce were one and the same. Fortunately he had always liked Fordyce, and he was not disposed to do anything that would injure him.

Of course he had heard, as had everyone else in the United States, of the remarkable campaign of George Gormly for the mayoralty of New York. He had not had a great amount of personal interest in the matter, however. But when he identified Gormly with Fordyce, the affair at once engaged his keenest attention. Since the day he had left Kill Devil Camp, he had never heard one word of either the man or the woman. He had supposed, as everyone else had, that they had perished in the storm, and although their bodies had never been recovered there were plenty of reasons to account for that.

What was he to do? Was he to see Gormly, or Fordyce as he called him, and put him on his guard? Or was he to wait and be governed by circumstances? This was not an easy problem to decide; but Colonel Bill Hamilton finally came to the conclusion that his best game was the waiting one. Besides he liked to play a lone hand, and he felt every confidence that he could do it.

Meanwhile he determined to fortify himself with such evidence as he could secure, and at the proper time, if the story was ferreted out and an attempt was made to make use of it, he would, as he phrased it, "butt into the game!" He set the telegraph to work, therefore, and presently received from his partner in Butte by express a tin box full of very private official documents. Thereafter he amused himself by following the progress of the campaign and doing some highly profitable local investigating on his own account, the result of which filled him with joy and satisfaction.



The demonstration of the alliance between the Gotham Freight Traction company and the Sachem society, the publication of the membership of Haldane and his friends in the traction company, the exhibition of its iniquitous processes, came off according to schedule. Such a storm of wrath and indignation rose in the public breast after the disclosure as had never been equaled in any political campaign in New York.

The stocks of the Gotham Freight Traction company had fallen off terrifically, and every other interest fathered by the syndicate of which Haldane was the head had suffered accordingly. The city was on the verge of a tremendous panic. Unrest, excitement, uncertainty, were in the air. The people had been aroused as never before.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

"He's an Adulterer, a Thief, and a Self-confessed Murderer!"

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

In every cold weather emergency you need a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater. Is your bedroom cold when you dress or undress? Do your water pipes freeze in the cellar? Is it chilly when the wind whistles around the exposed corners of your house?

A Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater brings complete comfort. Can be carried anywhere. Always ready for use—glowing heat from the minute it is lighted.

Ask your dealer to show you a Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

Standard Oil Company (Incorporated)

Don't Persecute Your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal, harsh, unnecessary. Try CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowel. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature Brent Good

KODAKS and SUPPLIES of every description. DEVELOPING AND FINISHING A SPECIALTY. Send for catalogue. ADDRESS DEPARTMENT K. ZIMMERMAN BROS., ST. PAUL, MINNESOTA

Furniture Stock So. Minn., invoice $7,000. We sell your property wherever located, have merchandise stocks to exchange for farms. McCABE, 800 NICOLLET AVE., MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

W. N. U., Minneapolis, No. 52-1911.

REAL ESTATE

WESTERN CANADA LAND—Parties intending buying for farming or investment, greatest wheat growing mixed-farming district in the world, consult undersigned, raw and improved farms all sizes, large tracts wholesale, raw $10 to $30 per acre, $3 to $5 cash, bal. arranged. D. W. Park, 2424 Waverly, Montreal, Can.

WESTERN CANADA FARM LANDS for $12-$18 per acre in the finest mixed farming district in Canadian West. Close to Prince Albert, Sask., splendid market point. Free Government homesteads also within 25 miles of City, crops excellent, settlement coming in fast. For free literature and maps, write Julius S. Woodward, Sec. Board of Trade, Dept. L, Prince Albert, Sask.

PISO'S will immediately relieve COUGHS & COLDS

DEFIANCE STARCH—16 ounces to the package—other starches only 12 ounces—same price and "DEFIANCE" IS SUPERIOR QUALITY.

British Columbia Graham Island Farms

Graham Island is the garden spot of the Northern Pacific Coast. Fine soil; suitable for vegetable and truck gardening, fruit, etc. Finest dairying country in the Province, cheap transportation to the best markets. A climate that is unexcelled. Prices low. Write for further information. MERRILL & MERRILL, 548 Granville St., Vancouver, B. C.

Lenox Soap will do anything that any laundry soap will do.

Use it in the laundry, or for washing dishes, pots, pans, floors—anything that can be cleaned with soap and water.

Lenox Soap

"Just fits the hand"

Rayo Lamps and Lanterns

The strong, steady light.

Rayo lamps and lanterns give most light for the oil they burn. Do not flicker. Will not blow or jar out. Simple, reliable and durable—and sold at a price that will surprise you. [illegible] or write to any agency of

Standard Oil Company

New Year's In Scotland

By A. Ireland Robertson

THE stern, Calvinistic Presbyterianism of Scotland has doubtless to answer for some idiosyncrasies of the people. While it produced heroes and martyrs, men of unwavering probity and dauntless courage whose rigid adherence to their convictions compels respect, it was also responsible for a certain narrowness of vision and for intolerance in some directions. To these less estimable characteristics Scotland owed the doubtful distinction which she enjoyed till within the past few years of being the only Christian country in the world in which the greatest of the Christian festivals was ignored. Ignored it was, absolutely. Christian observances and Christmas festivities were anathema to the true-blue Scot of a generation ago. Not, be it noted, because he objected to mirth and jollity in themselves. Those who imagine that the old life of Scotland from year's end to year's end was dull, grey and colorless make a profound mistake. The observance of Christmas was ignored because it offended the religious susceptibilities of the Scot.

Even yet non-observance of Christmas most, in truth, he reckoned among the peculiarities of Scotland. A better, kinder and more tolerant spirit exists, but the old feeling is not quite dead. Moreover national customs and the usages of centuries are not to be changed quickly. Christmas observance in Scotland is, at the best, only in its infancy.

It is when Christmas festivities have come to an end, and roast turkey, goose, plum pudding and mince pies are but memories (more or less pleasant), that Scotland enters upon her great annual saturnalia. From time immemorial boisterous, and in many cases bacchanalian revelry has been associated with the close of the old and the opening of the new year. Formerly the period was distinguished by the significant title of "The Daft Days." The name was given more particularly to the season between Hogmanay (the last day of the year) and Handsel Monday (the first Monday after New Year's day), but, like the generosity which characterized it, the time was not strictly limited.

The name indicates very expressively the mirth, fun and uproarious joviality of the period and the irresponsibility of the revelers. While the Daft Days have now been shorn of some of their glory, much of the spirit remains. And although it is still, as it has been in the past, associated with foolish errors of judgment, it is, on the whole, a spirit to be cherished. For it is a genial spirit, a spirit of good will, of generosity and of hospitality. It is the Spirit of Christmas—a trifle belated.

New Year in Scotland sees the union of sundered households. Now is the time when "Immediately the clock strikes 12 everybody rushes off to he 'first-foot' to some of his friends."

sons and daughters who have gone forth to the battle of life return to the old home and the old hearth; when ancient feuds are healed; when friends abroad are remembered with love and friends at home entertained. It is a spirit of joous hospitality which, as the year draws to a close, leads the citizens and the peasant to lay in their bookock (a cheese), and a stock of shortbread, currant bun and other indigestible luxuries.

The first day in most parts of Scotland, the greatest of the Daft Days was Hogmanay. Lexicographers have puzzled greatly over this term, and many guesses have been made as to its derivation and origin. It is said by some to come from the Scandinavian hogg-nott, hogsnat, or hogg-night, while others, perhaps the majority, hold that it comes from the French. The opening words of an old Scots' ditty, "Hogmanay, Trolloday," are supposed to be a corruption of Homme est ne—Trois Rois la. And Hogmanay is also said to be derived from Au gui mensel—a cry used by boys and girls in some parts of France when visiting houses on the last day of the year. Jamieson, the great authority on the Scots language, gives a big selection of derivations, and a writer who quotes several observers very ingeniously says "the reader may select for himself that which he considers the most probable."

It used to be customary in Scotland, and is still in some places, for bands of children to visit the houses of the well-to-do on the last day of the year for the purpose of receiving a "first-foot." The "piece" consists sometimes of oatmeal cake and cheese, but more frequently of richer dainties such as shortbread. It is not regarded by either givers or recipients as a doleful or a hospitable gift in recognition of the season. It is rendered by the children, but these rarely in Gaelic, the language of the Highlands, but in the broad Scots of the Lowlands, and the north of Scotland runs thus:

"Get up, gudewife, an' shak' your feathers,
Dinna think that we are beggars;
We're bairns come out to sing,
As is our Hogmanay custom."

One of the most common rhymes was the following brief couplet. Sometimes it was tacked on to one or other of those already given:

"Our feet's cauld, our shoon's thin,
Gie's a piece an' let's rin."

Another version has it:

"Gie's oor cakes, and let's rin."

Still another old greeting is:

"Hogmanay,
Trolloday,
Gie's o' your white bread, an' nane o' your grey."

There are many others; the children in some places singing a long ditty.

A Hogmanay custom of a very curious kind is peculiar to certain parts of the highlands. Young and old in the district gather at the house of some substantial farmer, and one of the smallest of the company drags the dried hide of an ox round the house behind him, three times. The rest follow, beating the hide with sticks and singing the following extraordinary rhyme:

"Hogmanay, yellow bag,
Beat the skin.
Carlin in neuk, carlin in kirk,
Carlin ben at the fire,
Spit in her two eyes, spit in her stomach,
Hogmanay."

This is supposed to have something to do with warding off fairy spells, the evil eye and the effect of witchcraft generally. After completing the third round the company halt at the door and each person proceeds in a rough rhyme, more or less extemporized, to extol the hospitality of the owner of the house, upon which all are regaled with bread and butter, cheese and whisky. But the strange performance has an equally curious sequel. Before leaving the house one of the visitors, having solemnly himself the breast part of the skin of a sheep, puts it to the nose of everyone that he or she may smell it. There is no difficulty in doing so! It may be nice, but as a protection against witchcraft it is infallible. It is also said to protect from infection.

In Carlisle—yes, I know Carlisle is not in Scotland, but it is so close to the border that I am not travelling very wide of my subject in mentioning a custom there. In Carlisle for weeks before the New Year householders are serenaded by boys who seek to entertain them with an odd mixture of the comic and the religious, generally winding up with a refrain after this fashion:

"If you cannot spare a penny,
You can spare a halfpenny;
And if you haven't a halfpenny,
God bless you."

The poetry halts hedly, but the concluding sentiment is excellent.

In Highnaims and some other parts in the north there was a curious ditty called "The Thigsarr' Chant," which was sung by a band of young persons who visited a number of houses on New Year's Day. It begins:

"The guid New Year is noo begun,
Resnithen, hesouthen,
An' a' the beggars begin to run,
An' ewn by southern toon."

The guidwife is appealed to "he nae sweir" to deal her "toorles to the pute," and she is also warned that if she has plenty and will not give anything "the deil will get ye when ye dee."

Even were she disinclined to be generous such liberal words, of course, compel hospitality. The party is invited to enter:

"Come in, come hen, you're welcome here,
Resouthen, hesouthen;
To'll get a share o' oor New Year cheer,
An' awey by southern toon."

"At Wemyss, a Curious New Year Game, Known as Yettlins, Has Been Played Since Time Immemorial."

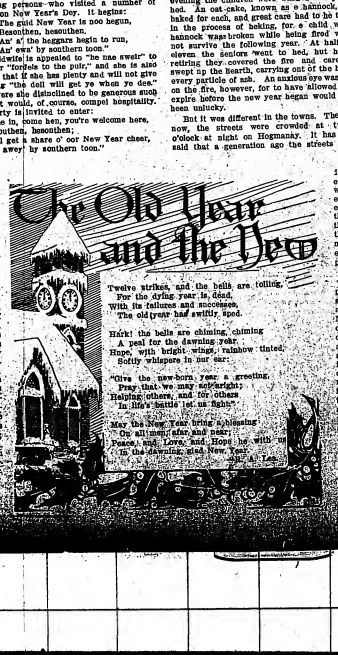
"Not Because He Objected to Mirth and Joviality in Themselves."

they were able to get hold of. One of them announced himself thus:

"Gilpinhan, Galashan,
Galashan is my name,
Sword and buckler by my side,
I hope to win the game."

To which another promptly and fiercely retorted:

"The game, sir, the game, sir,
Is not within your power;
I'll cut you down in inches
In less than half an hour."



A terrific battle ensued, and at last one of the performers was cut down. A doctor was called for, and there entered a boy clad in a dark suit and a battered tall hat, carrying a bag supposed to contain the implements of his profession. He announced himself as:

"Dr. Brown,
The very best doctor in all the town."

After a number of antics, including the comic administration of pills from a huge box, the "dead man" was restored to life. Then "Hoaste" went round with a money-box.

It is customary in Scotland to "cut out" the old year. In the towns the custom dates from time immemorial, but in the country it was long considered unlucky to be out of bed when the new year was ushered in. Early in the evening the children were washed and put to bed. An oat-cake, known as a bannock, was baked for each, and great care had to be taken in the process of baking, for a child whose bannock was broken while being fired would not survive the following year. At half-past eleven the seniors went to bed, but before retiring they covered the fire and carefully swept up the hearth, carrying out of the house every particle of ash. An anxious eye was kept on the fire, however, for it was allowed to expire before the new year began would have been unlucky.

But it was different in the towns. Then, as now, the streets were crowded at twelve o'clock at night on Hogmanay. It has been said that a generation ago the streets were Hogmanay was the chief night for the performances of the guisers or mummers, or, as the Daft Days." In places in which guising still goes on the performances, however, are nearly always on the evening of Hogmanay. The guisers are masquers, and their dress bears some resemblance to the old Twelfth Night mumming in England; and, like it, is believed to be a relic of the mystery plays.

The versions found in different parts of the country are not identical, but they bear a certain family resemblance to each other. The dressing was not by rule, but was entirely dependent on the available "wearin's." Sometimes the boy performers donned shirts which had belonged to their fathers, adorned their heads with paper caps, and had brilliant sashes round their waists in which were hung swords of lath, or metal if they could be obtained. The most simple form of guising was that in which two boys sang while a third, who was dressed as a girl, and known as Bessie, engaged in a number of antics.

But a more ambitious form was that of the Galashans, or Galatians, or Galoshens—the name varies. The Galashans were hideous masks, paper caps, and such odd garments as could be improvised from the contents of the family wardrobe. Thus attired, the guisers visited the houses of friends and neighbors, and, on being admitted, performed a dance, which was followed by the recitation of a rhyme, more or less extemporized, to extol the hospitality of the owner of the house, upon which all are regaled with bread and butter, cheese and whisky. But the strange performance has an equally curious sequel. Before leaving the house one of the visitors, having solemnly himself the breast part of the skin of a sheep, puts it to the nose of everyone that he or she may smell it. There is no difficulty in doing so! It may be nice, but as a protection against witchcraft it is infallible. It is also said to protect from infection.

In Carlisle—yes, I know Carlisle is not in Scotland, but it is so close to the border that I am not travelling very wide of my subject in mentioning a custom there. In Carlisle for weeks before the New Year householders are serenaded by boys who seek to entertain them with an odd mixture of the comic and the religious, generally winding up with a refrain after this fashion:

"If you cannot spare a penny,
You can spare a halfpenny;
And if you haven't a halfpenny,
God bless you."

The poetry halts hedly, but the concluding sentiment is excellent.

In Highnaims and some other parts in the north there was a curious ditty called "The Thigsarr' Chant," which was sung by a band of young persons who visited a number of houses on New Year's Day. It begins:

"The guid New Year is noo begun,
Resnithen, hesouthen,
An' a' the beggars begin to run,
An' ewn by southern toon."

The guidwife is appealed to "he nae sweir" to deal her "toorles to the pute," and she is also warned that if she has plenty and will not give anything "the deil will get ye when ye dee."

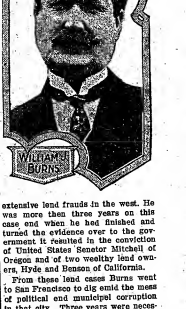
Even were she disinclined to be generous such liberal words, of course, compel hospitality. The party is invited to enter:

"Come in, come hen, you're welcome here,
Resouthen, hesouthen;
To'll get a share o' oor New Year cheer,
An' awey by southern toon."

KING OF DETECTIVES

William J. Burns the World's Greatest Sleuth.

Common Sense Is the Secret of His Success—The McNamara Case Has Made Him Famous the World Over.



Los Angeles, Cal. — Common sense the most uncommon thing in the world, is the secret by which William J. Burns, whose work in connection with the McNamara cases made his name world-wide, has risen to be ordained king of American detectives. Although he has dealt with some of the most hardened criminals in the country he has never fired a shot at a human being.

Burns is the essence of the ordinary. A man about middle height, broad shouldered, with prominent features and a pair of gray eyes that bore through you and the well beyond, reddish brown hair, untouched by age; his mustache tinged with grey, attired probably a bit more carefully and up to date than the average business men, and with a manner alert and positive, he passes not the appearance of a detective, but to the unknowing passes off for a prosperous citizen of fastidious taste regarding dress.

Burns was appointed to the government secret service in 1890 and was stationed in the west, working in Indian territory, Texas, Arkansas and the south. He was soon placed in charge of the district, and in 1894 was transferred to Washington, where he was promoted for good work, and got a roving commission, going wherever there was on unusually important case.

One of the biggest feats in those days was the running down of the principles in the Brockwey-Bradford-Courtney gang of counterfeiters. When this gang was run to earth and cornered in a building in West Hoboken, N. J., they had in their possession more than $2,000,000 in gold certificates and a lot of Canadian counterfeit notes. So accurate were the gold certificates the government had already accepted $80,000 worth of them, and in order to pick the bogus from the genuine it was necessary to summon one of the counterfeiters to Washington.

Another brilliant piece of detective work by Burns was in connection with extensive land frauds in the west. He was more then three years on this case and when he had finished and turned the evidence over to the government it resulted in the conviction of United States Senator Mitchell of Oregon and of two wealthy land owners, Hyde and Benson of California.

From these land cases Burns went to San Francisco to dig amid the mess of political and municipal corruption in that city. Three years were necessary for the investigation. It resulted in sending Mayor Schmitz to the penitentiary for five years; Ruef, the political boss, for fourteen years; Glass, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific States Telephone company, and several others to prison for various periods.

Burns, notwithstanding the nature of his profession, has a strong belief in the integrity of human nature. "There never was a time," he says, "when the moral sentiment of the people was more easily and quickly aroused than at present, or when there was a finer sense of honesty in the various relations of daily life. Even had men not a good government—if they are not making money out of bad government. Nor do I believe in the heredity of crime. Lombroso and other scientists speculate and write essays, but coming right down to common supposition, which is a better test than philosophy or long tables of figures, I know that environment and not birth is the one great cause of criminal conduct."

He has always held that the detective business was simply a matter of common sense. He is continually telling his subordinates that every crook, no matter how clever he is, always leaves a trail behind.

Intellectually, Burns is the most resourceful and brilliant detective in the United States. Nowhere else on earth, perhaps can anyone match him in the matter of ingenuity and resourcefulness. Of course he has his failures, but they are few and far between.

"A Child Whose Bannock Was Broken While It Was Being Fired Would Not Survive the Following Year."

dicates the nature of the place, for Skelleys is an old dicton used to describe a stretch of flat rocks of a shelving formation. In course, if such it can be called, is about a mile in length, and is over the rocks all the way. At each end is a goal marked by a huge boulder. The yettlins, which give their name to the game, are balls of cast iron, about one and one-half inches in diameter and weighing about a pound and a half. Each player has a bell, and the object of the game is by repeated throws to cover the distance between the goals. The one who reaches the goal in fewest throws scores a "hail," and a certain number of hails constitutes a game. The yettlin goes at immense speed when it is thrown, and the delivery is pretty high.

Another very remarkable local custom connected with the New Year is the burning of the clavie. It takes place in the little village of Burghead, on the southern shore of the Moray Firth, a few miles north of Elgin, and is quite unique. The ceremony is held invariably on New Year's eve old style. The clavie, which is built according to traditional rights, there by ancient custom, consists of half an archangel tar barrel supported on a stout pole. It is packed with wood, which is piled up in a tar'ood shed. When the tar is pounced over it copiously. Into a space which has been left in the center a piece of tarr is put, it being imperative that no match could be employed. While the flame is gathering strength the crowd gives three cheers for the king, the provost, the town, the harbor and the railway. Then the clavie is lifted, "man seizes the blazing clavie and carries it off." As soon as he reaches the junction of two streets he is relieved, and in this way the clavie is carried round the town. At every street corner the bearer is changed. There is keen competition for the honor of carrying the clavie, but it is no light task. Not only is it a very burden, but the bearer runs some risk of being scalded by the boiling tar which bubbles and drops. Moreover, to carry the clavie to the harbor in spite of all these difficulties is his own death duty. Immediately the clavie reaches the harbor it is thrown into the water.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY FINISH
SUNBEAM
SUNBEAM

JAN 6 1911 THRU DEC 29 1911

Title: (Sunbeam) SUNBEAM

10:41 - 11:40

Inclusive Dates:	Jan 6 1911	Dec 29 1911

148--3-1982

Originals held by: MHS x Other ___

Prepared by: Owens	Date: Mar 22, 1982	Format: 1A x 28
Filmed by: J.W.	Date: Mar 26, 82	Camera No. Red 1
Reduction Ratio: 12	Voltmeter .24 / 92	No. Exposures: 409
Prelim. Inspection by:	Date:	Density:
Target Resolution: ____/mm	O.K. ____ Reject ___	Length:

The Minnesota Historical Society has reproduced the material in this microfilm without any purpose of direct or indirect commercial advantage in order to preserve & to secure it for private study, scholarship, and research.

The material reproduced may be protected by copyright law. Any person engaging in further reproduction of this material may be liable for infringement.